- 2.1.2. Statutory “Residents” (aliens). These are foreign nationals who have a legal domicile within the District of Columbia or a federal territory or possession. They are defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A) and 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(2).

If you would like to know more about why the above are the only foreign subjects of taxation, see:

Why Domicile and Becoming a “Taxpayer” Require Your Consent, Form #05.002
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

- 2.2. States of the Union. Neither the IRS nor the Social Security Administration may lawfully operate outside of the federal zone. See:
- 2.2.1. 4 U.S.C. §72 limits all “public offices” to the District of Columbia. It says that the “public offices” that are the subject of the tax upon a “trade or business” must be exercised ONLY in the District of Columbia and not elsewhere, except as expressly provided by law.
- 2.2.2. 26 U.S.C. §7601 limits IRS enforcement to internal revenue districts. The President is authorized to establish internal revenue districts pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §7621, but he delegated that authority to the Secretary of the Treasury pursuant to Executive Order 10289. Treasury Order 150-02, signed by the Secretary of the Treasury, says that the only remaining internal revenue district is in the District of Columbia. It eliminated all the other internal revenue districts.
- 2.2.3. 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) define the term “United States” as the District of Columbia. Nowhere anyplace else is the tax described in Subtitle A expanded to include anyplace BUT the “United States”.
- 2.2.4. The U.S. Supreme Court said Congress enjoys NO LEGISLATIVE JURISDICTION within states of the Union and the Internal Revenue Code is “legislation”.

[Carter v. Carter Coal Co., 298 U.S. 238, 56 S.Ct. 855 (1936)]

“The difficulties arising out of our dual form of government and the opportunities for differing opinions concerning the relative rights of state and national governments are many; but for a very long time this court has steadfastly adhered to the doctrine that the taxing power of Congress does not extend to the states or their political subdivisions. The same basic reasoning which leads to that conclusion, we think, requires like limitation upon the power which springs from the bankruptcy clause. United States v. Butler, supra.”
[Ashton v. Cameron County Water Improvement District No. 1, 298 U.S. 513, 56 S.Ct. 892 (1936)]

- 2.2.5. The U.S. Supreme Court said Congress Cannot establish a “trade or business’ in a state and tax it. A “trade or business” is the main subject of Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A. See the following court cite:

1           “Thus, Congress having power to regulate commerce with foreign nations, and among the several States, and
2 with the Indian tribes, may, without doubt, provide for granting coasting licenses, licenses to pilots, licenses to
3 trade with the Indians, and any other licenses necessary or proper for the exercise of that great and extensive
4 power; and the same observation is applicable to every other power of Congress, to the exercise of which the 5 granting of licenses may be incident. All such licenses confer authority, and give rights to the licensee.

6           But very different considerations apply to the internal commerce or domestic trade of the States. Over this
7 commerce and trade Congress has no power of regulation nor any direct control. This power belongs exclusively
8 to the States. No interference by Congress with the business of citizens transacted within a State is warranted
9 by the Constitution, except such as is strictly incidental to the exercise of powers clearly granted to the 10 legislature. The power to authorize a business within a State is plainly repugnant to the exclusive power of the 11 State over the same subject. It is true that the power of Congress to tax is a very extensive power. It is given in 12 the Constitution, with only one exception and only two qualifications. Congress cannot tax exports, and it must 13 impose direct taxes by the rule of apportionment, and indirect taxes by the rule of uniformity. Thus limited, and 14 thus only, it reaches every subject, and may be exercised at discretion. But, it reaches only existing subjects.

15           Congress cannot authorize a trade or business within a State in order to

17 License Tax Cases, [72 U.S. 462, 18 L.Ed. 497, 5 Wall. 462, 2 A.F.T.R. 2224 (1866)]

18 Based on options above, most people do not have “gross income” as legally defined, and they are actually deceiving the 19 government if they put anything but zero on their income tax return. Because none of the earnings of the typical person who 20 is employed in the private sector can legally be classified as either “income” or “gross income”, what you put down for “gross 21 income” on your tax return boils down to the question of:

22           “How much of my receipts do I want to ‘volunteer’ or ‘elect’ or ‘choose’ to call ‘income’ or ‘gross income’ for 23 the purposes of federal taxes?”

24 How you choose to answer that question then determines the net “donation” (not “tax”, but “donation”) you are making to 25 the federal government based on the tax rate schedule that your fictitious and fabricated “gross income” falls into. As we 26 said at the beginning of this chapter in section 5.1.8, the income tax is “voluntary” and we really meant it! Not only that, but 27 the U.S. Supreme Court agrees with us!

28           “Our system of taxation is based upon voluntary assessment and payment, not distraint.”
29 [Flora v. U.S., 362 U.S. 145 (1960)]

30 Returning to our original question, then, “Can a person be simultaneously BOTH a ‘taxpayer’ and a ‘nontaxpayer’?”, the 31 answer is YES. Why? Because so long as we as biological people aren’t federal “public officers”, any amount we put down
32 for “gross income” on our tax return is a voluntary choice and not REAL “gross income” as legally defined. That amount,
33 and ONLY that amount, which we volunteer to define as “gross income” on our tax return makes us into a “taxpayer”, but 34 only for the specific sources of revenue we voluntarily identified as “gross income”! All other monies that we earned are, by 35 definition and implication, not taxable and not “gross income”, which means that for those “sources” of revenue that are not
36 “gross income”, we are a “nontaxpayer” and NOT a “taxpayer”.

37 So when someone asks you if you are a “taxpayer”, both the question and your answer must be put in the context of a specific
38 source of income. You should respond by first asking: “for which revenue source?” The answer can seldom be a general
39 “yes” or “no” for ALL RECEIPTS. Consequently, if we put down one cent for “gross income” on our tax return, then ONLY
40 for that source of revenue do we become “taxpayers”. All other sources of revenue for us are, by implication, NOT either
41 “gross income” or “taxable income”, which means that for those revenues and receipts, we are a “nontaxpayer”. Furthermore,
42 once we make the determination of “gross income” and self-assessment on the tax return that only we can do on ourselves,
43 the IRS has NO AUTHORITY to make us into a “taxpayer” or assess us an involuntary liability associated with any receipts
44 other than those that we specifically identify as “gross income”:

45           “Our tax system is based on individual self-assessment and voluntary compliance.”
46 [Mortimer Caplin, Internal Revenue Audit Manual (1975)]

47 Remember, the only amount we are responsible for paying is the amount we assess ourselves that appears on a tax return that
48 ONLY WE FILL OUT. The Internal Revenue Manual (I.R.M.), Section 5.1.11.6.8 confirms that the IRS is NOT 49 AUTHORIZED to do a Substitute For Return (SFR) on our behalf for the IRS Form 1040 or any of its derivatives (e.g.
50 1040X, 1040EZ, 1040NR, etc). Furthermore, 26 C.F.R. §1.6151-1 confirms that you are only responsible for paying the 51 amount shown on a return (because it says “shall pay”).

TITLE 26--INTERNAL REVENUE
 CHAPTER I--INTERNAL REVENUE SERVICE, DEPARTMENT OF THE TREASURY (CONTINUED)
 Procedure and Administration--Table of Contents
 Sec. 1.6151-1 Time and place for paying tax shown on returns.

(a) In general. Except as provided in section 6152 and paragraph (b) of this section, the tax shown on any income tax return shall, without assessment or notice and demand, be paid to the internal revenue officer with whom the return is filed at the time fixed for filing the return (determined without regard to any extension of time for filing the return). For provisions relating to the time for filing income tax returns, see section 6072 and Secs. 1.6072-1 to 1.6072-4, inclusive. For provisions relating to the place for filing income tax returns, see section 6091 and Secs. 1.6091-1 to 1.6091-4, inclusive.

(b)(1) Returns on which tax is not shown. If a taxpayer files a return and in accordance with section 6014 and the regulations thereunder, elects not to show the tax on the return, the amount of tax determined to be due shall be paid within 30 days after the date of mailing to the taxpayer a notice stating the amount payable and making demand upon the taxpayer therefor. However, if the notice is mailed to the taxpayer more than 30 days before the due date of the return, payment of the tax shall not be required prior to such due date.

26 U.S.C. §6020(b) does not authorize the IRS to do an assessment on you because only you (as the “sovereign”) can do an assessment on yourself for a voluntary donation program called the Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A. The only exception to this rule is under 26 U.S.C. §6014, where you can delegate to the IRS the authority to do a return on your behalf, which we don't recommend. Are you beginning to see through the fog? It took us four years of diligent study to figure this scam out and we are trying to save you some time.

How do we apply this wonderful new discovery to the pursuit of an administrative refund of monies paid into the IRS using a request for refund? First of all, we already established earlier in this section that if you put zero on your return for “gross income”, the IRS will basically treat you as a “nontaxpayer” in entirety and either ignore you completely or try to penalize you illegally as we indicated earlier in section 5.4.16. See the discussion of the IRS internal memo earlier in this section for details. But what if we put down one red cent as “gross income”, then we are “taxpayers” but at the same time the IRS is not authorized to assess us a greater liability. They will try to propose a corrected return amount and act like they have the authority to assess you a greater amount, but we know that they can't. They may also threaten a penalty if you don't go along with their proposed new assessment, but this is a fraud too because penalties imposed without a judicial trial are a Bill of Attainder that is prohibited by the Constitution. The way to prevent them scamming us when we use this technique to get our money back is to clarify on our administrative refund request the following facts, which completely ties their hands to do anything BUT refund all the money you paid in mistakenly or under duress. The below qualification that you can add to your refund request will completely tie the IRS' hands and back them into a corner so that they have no choice but to give you a refund and not penalize you. It uses their own rules and guidance against them so they cannot ignore your filing but also can't get any more money out of you than you volunteer to pay:

1. This return constitutes a “conditional self-assessment”. I am only indicating a nonzero “gross income” in order to procure a refund of all taxes paid over the period in question. I do not, in fact, make any “gross income” as legally defined but am electing to say that I have “gross income” in order to compel you to process my “return” and provide a refund of all taxes paid. In the past, I have filed “zero returns” and have found that they were ignored because I was not a “taxpayer” so that you had no jurisdiction to respond. Now, I am claiming that I have only one cent of “taxable income” and “gross income” so that you can no longer ignore my return or claim you have no jurisdiction.
2. In the event that the refund requested is not obtained, this conditional self-assessment and attached return is null and void in its entirety ab initio (from the beginning) because only a voluntarily executed return submitted absent duress or compulsion is valid and admissible as evidence according to the Supreme Court in Weeks v. United States, 232 U.S. 383 (1914). However, you should keep a copy of the return in your records as proof that I filed “something” so that the statute of limitations clock starts for all criminal and civil issues. The only thing that has to appear on the return is a signature under penalty of perjury, which it has, in order to be considered a valid filing according to the federal courts.
3. The attached tax return and any determinations by the IRS that are based on it is false, fraudulent, incorrect, and involuntarily submitted if anything on it is changed or altered in any way by either me or the IRS or if the IRS proposes or makes without my written, explicit consent, any change in the assessment appearing on the return or in their computer system. That means you can't alter the IMF to be inconsistent with what appears on my return or alter the return itself.

1 That is why my return is submitted in pen. In effect, I am delegating VERY SPECIFIC authority to only process the
2 return AS IS with NO CHANGES and no penalties or to withdraw the return from processing but not entry into my IRS
3 administrative file.

4 4. The IRS does not have my permission or consent to do any of the following without my explicit written and notarized
5 consent, and if it does, I withdraw my consent and my self-assessment and change the value of “gross income” on the 6 return to zero.

7 4.1. Propose an amended assessment or execute a “Substitute For Return” (SFR).

8 4.2. Correct anything appearing on this return.

9 4.3. Enter anything appearing on this return into any kind of information system.

10 4.4. Share any of the information provided to any agency, person, government organization, or private party who is 11 outside of the IRS and not directly involved in processing this request for refund.

12 5. I am not now and never have been an “employee” as defined or used in 26 U.S.C. §6331, 26 U.S.C. §3401\(c\), or 26
13 C.F.R. §31.3401(c)-1.

14 6. Any reports of “income” or “wages” provided to you by banks or employers on forms W-2 and 1099 and associated with 15 the SSN attached to my name are hereby declared and presumed to be incorrect, fraudulent, and may not be relied upon 16 as a basis for good faith belief, because they:

17 6.1. Are not signed

18 6.2. Are not submitted under penalty of perjury.

19 6.3. Are hearsay evidence.

20 6.4. Are only lawfully required in the case of “employees” under Subtitle C of the Internal Revenue Code, which I just 21 declared in the previous item I am not.

22 6.5. Are a violation of the Privacy Act, because when private employers illegally volunteer to act as agents of the federal 23 government under the color of law, they are also bound to comply with other laws relating to federal agencies,
24 including the Privacy Act. They in effect become a voluntary federal agency under the color of law in processing
25 federal forms. The Privacy Act, 5 U.S.C. §552a says that agencies may not provide Privacy Act information to 26 other federal agencies unless authorized by the employee and as required by law in the performance of their lawful
27 functions. Because they are not located on federal property and federal criminal statutes under 18 U.S.C. and civil 28 statutes under 26 U.S.C. do not apply outside of federal property, then they have no jurisdiction as federal agents or 29 “federal police” to be involved in any kind of “police power” enforcement activity related to tax collection.

30 These financial forms therefore create false presumptions on your part about me that are completely incorrect,
31 unauthorized by law, and which I never consented or authorized my bank voluntarily to provide to you or about me.

32 7. The number attached to my name which you call a Social Security Number, is NOT MY number. To be MY number, I
33 have to request it and consent to using it. Since I didn't apply for this number and my parents did without my consent,
34 and since I use it under unlawful duress and compulsion from both government and financial institutions, then I cannot 35 and should not be held responsible for using or correctly specifying that which is not “mine”. Do not attempt to refer to 36 that number as “taxpayer identification number”, because it can only be so if I am a “taxpayer”, which I am not for all
37 but one red (communist) cent of monies received which I have elected to call “gross income” for the purposes of obtaining 38 a refund. Even that one cent isn't really “gross income” but I'm electing to call it that so that you can't ignore my return
39 by calling me a “nontaxpayer” if I have zero for “gross income”.

40 8. Because I claim that all monies or revenues I earned other than the one cent appearing on my return are NOT “gross
41 income”, then for those monies, I am classified as a “nontaxpayer” and therefore DO NOT have any kind of burden of 42 proving that they are nontaxable under 26 U.S.C. §7491. Instead, the burden of proving that any monies listed on any 43 W-2 or 1099 forms you may have received about me are “taxable income” or “gross income” rests squarely and 44 exclusively on you and only you. Respect for my due process rights under the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments
45 demands that you and not me satisfy the burden of proving that these monies qualify as “taxable income” or “gross
46 income”. Any “presumptions” you might want to make to the contrary about this are hereby refuted and I demand
47 evidence of both the law and the facts that validate any such false presumption.

48 9. Pursuant to Internal Revenue Manual (I.R.M.), Section 5.1.11.6.8, you are NOT AUTHORIZED to prepare an amended
49 or Substitute For Return (SFR) changing the “gross income” defined on my form 1040NR. Such returns are only
50 proposed assessment, but not actual legal assessments. The GAO audit of the IRS in November 1999 documented in 51 GAO report number GAO/GGD-00-60R entitled “Substitute for Returns Program” available on the website at:

53 quotes employees of the IRS officially stating, and I quote:

"In its response to this letter, IRS official indicated that they do not generally prepare actual tax returns. Instead, they said IRS prepares substitute documents that propose assessments. Although IRS and legislation refer to this as the substitute for return program, these officials said that the document does not look like an actual tax return." [Report, page 1]

10. Pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §6020\(b\), IRS is not authorized to do an assessment under Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A. Only I, as the sovereign, can do a self-assessment. No one but me can make me liable for the income tax.
11. There's no liability statute anywhere in the Internal Revenue Code making me liable to pay any tax, and federal courts say one is required in order to collect a tax:

"To the extent that regulations implement the statute, they have the force and effect of law...The regulation implements the statute and cannot vitiate or change the statute..."
[Spreckles v. C.I.R., 119 F.2d, 667]

"Liability for taxation must clearly appear[from statute imposing tax]."
[Higley v. Commissioner of Internal Revenue, 69 F.2d. 160 (1934)]

"While Congress might have the power to place such a personal liability upon trust beneficiaries who did not renounce the trust, yet it would require clear expression of such intent, and it cannot be spelled out from language (as that here) which can be given an entirely natural and useful meaning and application excluding such intent."
[Higley v. Commissioner of Internal Revenue, 69 F.2d. 160 (1934)]

"A tax is a legal imposition, exclusively of statutory origin (37 Cyc. 724, 725), and, naturally, liability to taxation must be read in statute, or it does not exist."
[Bente v. Bugbee, 137 A. 552, 103 N.J. Law. 608 (1927)]

"...the taxpayer must be liable for the tax. Tax liability is a condition precedent to the demand. Merely demanding payment, even repeatedly, does not cause liability."

The implementing regulation at 26 C.F.R. § 1.1-1 that uses the word "liable to" is null and void, because the Secretary of the Treasury is nowhere conferred the authority to legislate or make law or exceed the scope of the statute at 26 U.S.C. §1 that imposes the tax:

"When enacting §7206(1) Congress undoubtedly knew that the Secretary of the Treasury is empowered to prescribe all needful rules and regulations for the enforcement of the internal revenue laws, so long as they carry into effect the will of Congress as expressed by the statutes. Such regulations have the force of law. The Secretary, however, does not have the power to make law. Dixon v. United States, supra."
[United States v. Levy, 533 F.2d. 969 (1976)]

Therefore, any amount I indicate on my tax return as a natural person as "gross income" is nothing more than a method of making a "donation" to the federal government and cannot be classified as a "tax" without committing fraud. As a matter of fact, it is FRAUD on the part of the IRS and the government to even call the "income tax" a "tax" in my case because nowhere in the Constitution is such as "tax" even authorized. Without the specific authority of the Constitution, whatever you may do or propose to do under the "color of law", including collecting a "voluntary" donation, is null, void, and unenforceable ab initio.

"We start with first principles. The Constitution creates a Federal Government of enumerated powers. See U.S. Const., Art. I, § 8. As James Madison wrote, "[t]he powers delegated by the proposed Constitution to the federal government are few and defined. Those which are to remain in the State governments are numerous and indefinite." The Federalist No. 45, pp. 292-293 (C. Rossiter ed. 1961). This constitutionally mandated division of authority "was adopted by the Framers to ensure protection of our fundamental liberties." Gregory v. Ashcroft, 501 U.S. 452, 458 \(1991\) (internal quotation marks omitted). "Just as the separation and independence of the coordinate branches of the Federal Government serves to prevent the accumulation of excessive power in any one branch, a healthy balance of power between the States and the Federal Government will reduce the risk of tyranny and abuse from either front." Ibid. "
U.S. v. Lopez, [514 U.S. 549 \(1995\)]

Show me where your power to tax internal to the country and upon natural persons is specifically enumerated in the Constitution, because it didn't come from the Constitution and it didn't come from the Sixteenth Amendment,

1                   “...the 16th Amendment conferred no new power of taxation, but simply prohibited the previous complete and
2 plenary power of income taxation possessed by Congress from the beginning from being taken out of the category
3 of indirect taxation [on corporations and businesses rather than individuals] to which it inherently belonged, and 4 being placed in the category of direct taxation.”
5 Stanton v. Baltic Mining Co., [240 U.S. 103, 112-13, 36 S.Ct. 278 (1916)]

6 As a matter of fact, before the Sixteenth Amendment, the case of Pollock v. Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, 157
7 U.S. 429, 158 U.S. 601 (1895) ruled that direct income taxes on biological people like me are unconstitutional, so what
8 change in the constitution since that case in 1895 other than the Sixteenth Amendment modified that? As the Supreme
9 Court said in Marbury v. Madison, 5 U.S. 137 (1803):

10                   “The government of the United States has been emphatically termed a government of laws, and not of men. It
11 will certainly cease to deserve that high appellation, if the laws furnish no remedy for the violation of a vested
12 legal right.”
13  Marbury v. Madison, [5 U.S. 137; 1 Cranch 137, 2 L.Ed. 60 (1803)]

14 So where is not only the Constitutional authority for what you are doing, but also please provide the following as evidence 15 of your personal authority:

16 11.1. Your Delegation order.

17 11.2. A copy of your Pocket Commission under Internal Revenue Manual (I.R.M.), Section 1.16.4 pursuant to the 18 Freedom of Information Act, 5 U.S.C. §552.

19 11.3. The source of your authority to exercise the equivalent of “police powers” as a federal agency within the borders
20 of the sovereign union states. The Supreme Court has ruled hundreds of times that the federal government has no
21 police powers inside the borders of the states of the Union, and that is where I am writing to you from. The act of

24 upon the individual states, and, in turn, delegated to local governments, through which they are enabled to 25 establish a special department of police; adopt such laws and regulations as tend to prevent the commission of 26 fraud and crime, and secure generally the comfort, safety, morals, health, and prosperity of the citizens by
27 preserving the public order, preventing a conflict of rights in the common intercourse of the citizens, and insuring
28 to each an uninterrupted enjoyment of all the privileges conferred upon him or her by the general laws.

29                   The power of the State to place restraints on the personal freedom and property rights of persons for the 30 protection of the public safety, health, and morals or the promotion of the public convenience and general
31 prosperity. The police power is subject to limitations of the federal and State constitutions, and especially to the 32 requirement of due process. Police power is the exercise of the sovereign right of a government to promote order, 33 safety, security, health, morals and general welfare within constitutional limits and is an essential attribute of 34 government. Marshall v. Kansas City, Mo., 355 S.W.2d. 877, 883.
35 [Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1156]

- 36 12. It is the height of hypocrisy and arrogance on your part for you to be on the one hand effectively illegally soliciting
37 donations and bribery from me under the “color of law” to then either attempt to penalize me illegally in the process or 38 make demands about any aspect of the conditions under which I choose or volunteer to “donate”. I simply refuse to 39 “donate” if you refuse to let me decide the terms under which I can or will donate. Compelled charity in that case would 40 not be charity at all, but slavery disguised as charity. Slavery is illegal under the Thirteenth Amendment.
- 41 13. I am not now and never have been a “fiduciary” for any entity or “income” (taxable or not) in any way and if you have 42 records indicting the contrary, then I:
43 13.1. Have enclosed an IRS Form 56 eliminating all such fiduciary relationships.
44 13.2. Demand that you send to me the authority by which such a relationship was established, because I never authorized
45 it. Failure to provide evidence of the existence of fiduciary duty within 30 days shall constitute a nihil dicit
46 judgment under common law of the fact that none exists.
- 47 14. I am not now and never have been a “transferee” for U.S. government property as defined in 26 U.S.C. §6901 and I
48 demand any evidence you might have that might suggest the contrary. Failure to provide evidence of the existence of 49 my status as a “transferee” within 30 days constitutes a nihil dicit judgment under common law establishing that I am
50 not such a transferee.
- 51 15. The entirety of all my property and my estate is now classified and always has been classified as a “foreign estate” under 52 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(31) in regards to Title 26 of the Internal Revenue Code and I demand any evidence you have that
53 might suggest the contrary. Failure to provide evidence suggesting that any part of my estate is not a foreign estate
54 within 30 days constitutes a nihil dicit judgment under common law establishing that my estate is a foreign estate as 55 legally defined.

16. The only reason you may have received any “taxes” that were either illegally withheld under Subtitle C or paid under Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A is because of the presence of duress and unlawful coercion against my property rights and my right to work by my employer, who I am very afraid to prosecute because I might lose my job. He nevertheless deserves to be behind bars for his misdeeds. You should interpret receipt of withholding monies by you from my employer as evidence of extortion, racketeering, and conspiracy against my property rights in violation of the Fifth Amendment to the Constitution. For you to condone or encourage or permit such criminal conduct on the part of private employers makes you an accessory to extortion and racketeering in violation of 18 U.S.C. §872 and 18 U.S.C. §225. Instead, as my fiduciary agent (see Public Law 96-303, Executive Order 12731, and 5 C.F.R. §2635.101), you are duty-bound to right this wrong and return this unlawfully extorted money back to me. If you don't, I will prosecute you personally for
- 16.1. Breach of fiduciary duty in violation of Public Law 96-303, Executive Order 12731, and 5 C.F.R. §2635.101.
  - 16.2. RICO in violation of 18 U.S.C. §872
  - 16.3. Peonage under Thirteenth Amendment, 18 U.S.C. §1581, and 42 U.S.C. §1994.
  - 16.4. Bank robbery, if you attempt any Notice of Levies on me in violation of my Fifth Amendment rights.
  - 16.5. Conspiracy against rights under 18 U.S.C. §241.
  - 16.6. Obstruction of justice, for not revealing the truth to me about this matter in violation of 18 U.S.C. Chapter 73.
17. This request for refund constitutes a Petition for Redress of Grievances protected under the First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution. The right to petition for redress CANNOT be penalized, taxed, controlled, or regulated in any way by the government because it is a right and not a privilege. You cannot penalize me for exercising this constitutional right.
18. You are therefore not authorized by law to penalize me for submitting this “conditional self-assessment” because:
- 18.1. Of the constitutional constraint against Bills of Attainder found in Article 1, Section 9, Clause 3 of the U.S. Constitution
  - 18.2. The definition of the term “person” in the context of the penalty regulations found in 26 C.F.R. §301.6671-1(b), which means only an employee of a corporation, and which I am not. If you choose to try to illegally impose any penalties on this conditional assessment, then I demand evidence that I am an “employee of a corporation” as defined there. If you penalize me in disregard of my due process rights under the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments, then you will be prosecuted under 26 U.S.C. §7433 for wrongful collection actions and also under the Constitution for violation of my inalienable Constitutional rights. I shall pursue a writ of mandamus to have my property returned and have you FIRED for malfeasance, negligence, and breach of fiduciary duty.
  - 18.3. You would be compelling me under unlawful duress to commit fraud and make false statements on future filings in order to appease your illegal, irrational, and extortionary demands.
19. Don't try to pull any scams with the word “includes” in your response because I know your game and it's a violation of my due process rights to use ambiguous definitions or laws that are “void for vagueness”. See the following for hard proof of this:

Either the law applies to me as a private individual or it doesn't, and I'm not going to play word guessing games or engage in speculation about what either you or any federal judge who is both paid by the income tax and subservient to your organized extortion “thinks” the word “includes” implies. If the law doesn't explicitly identify me as a person “liable” for the tax as a private person residing in a union state and outside of your territorial jurisdiction, then I'm not responsible to subject myself to your harassment or your illegal attempts at racketeering and extortion in order to get me to “volunteer” under duress to pay a “tax” that I don't owe. Prove your authority using only the law or get out of my life, please.

20. The only difference between what you do and what the Mafia does is the authority of law, both in the Constitution and in the Statutes that implement the Constitution. If you can't show me the law that makes me responsible in clear and unambiguous terms, or you know what the law says and refuse to explain or justify the good faith basis for your belief, then:
- 20.1. I have no choice but to assume that you are the Mafia, and your inaction and negligent administration of the tax code was what earned you that name.
  - 20.2. I must conclude that you are a Communist as defined in 50 U.S.C. §841, because the U.S. Congress in that section defines a “communist” as follows:

arises not from its numbers, but from its failure to acknowledge any limitation as to the nature of its activities, and its dedication to the proposition that the present constitutional Government of the United States ultimately must be brought to ruin by any available means, including resort to force and violence [or using income taxes]. Holding that doctrine, its role as the agency of a hostile foreign power [the Federal Reserve and the American Bar Association (ABA)] renders its existence a clear present and continuing danger to the security of the United States."

If you refuse to acknowledge or comply with or explain the lawful basis for your authority, then YOU ARE A COMMUNIST because you refuse to acknowledge or comply with lawful constraints upon your authority. So show me the law that makes me liable and acknowledge the laws that limit and define your power to me or YOU ARE A COMMUNIST as the United States Congress defines it.

21. Without the explicit authority of Constitutional, statutory, and regulatory law combined making me "liable" and evidence of that lawful authority provided to me in satisfaction of my due process rights under the Constitution, any amount of money that you might attempt to extort from me is paid in violation of the following laws, which in effect makes me into a co-conspirator with you in the following serious felonies. It also makes you into a money laundering operation for the extortion racket headed by our corrupted politicians:
  - 21.1. 18 U.S.C. §201: Bribery of public officers and witnesses. I would be compelled to bribe my Congressman with monies extorted from me involuntarily.
  - 21.2. 18 U.S.C. §597 Expenditures to Influence Voting. The monies I involuntarily paid to the federal government absent Constitutional authority could be used by politicians to influence voters to vote for them because of some socialist benefit they might receive.
22. I cannot in good conscience subsidize any government activity that is not explicitly authorized by both the Constitution and the Statutes that implement it and a clear and explicit showing by the moving party (that is you) that jurisdiction exists as required by the Administrative Procedures Act, 5 U.S.C. §556(d). To do otherwise or acquiesce otherwise would be to condone and subsidize criminal behavior by our government and by public servants in our government. Such acquiescence would also constitute Treason against the Constitution in violation of Article III of the Constitution. My military oath prevents me from any act of such Treason. You cannot penalize me for honoring my Constitutional oath.
23. Silence or lack of response to all the demands in this legal notice after a 30 day period shall constitute acquiescence to all of the determinations and facts herein contained and will result in a Notice of Default served upon you with a Proof of Mailing provided by a registered Notary Public.
24. Don't bother quoting any federal court cases below the Supreme Court in response to this legal notice because your own Internal Revenue Manual (I.R.M.), Section 4.10.7.2.9.8 says that any ruling below the Supreme Court may not be applied to more than the single "taxpayer" in the case involved. If you can't follow your own written internal procedures, then why on earth should I do what you expect me to or even listen to you?
25. Don't bother asserting jurisdiction based on my citizenship status because I am a "national" under 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21) domiciled outside the federal zone and not exercising a public office. That makes me a "non-resident non-person" beyond the jurisdiction of Congress.
26. The closes status in your codes and regulations would be a "nonresident alien" not engaged in a "trade or business" (public office) for the purposes of the income tax pursuant to 26 C.F.R. §1.871-1(b)(1)(i), but I am not a statutory "nonresident alien" either because not engaged in a public office.
27. You may feel tempted to retaliate against this request for refund by overriding your IDRS system and manually entering bogus time-barred assessments against me that are back-dated. Be advised that I am very familiar with how to decode my non-sanitized IMF file and if you do so, you will be prosecuted for fraud, put behind bars, and fired from the service for your misconduct if I have anything to say about it.
28. What the Lord requires of you in this case is to DO JUSTICE and to LOVE MERCY. You can't do either if you care more about stealing my money than you care about following the law and the Constitution, your own integrity, and about upholding the public trust and the Constitution that maintains the civil society that we both value. Both of these biblical requirements, JUSTICE and MERCY, can be satisfied by refunding to me the money that was illegally sent to you under duress by my criminal employer, who forced me to pay a tax I didn't voluntarily want to pay as a condition of employment.

*"He has shown you, O man, what is good;
And what does the Lord require of you
But to do justly,
To love mercy,
And to walk humbly with your God?"
[Micah 6:8, Bible, NKJV]*

29. If you respond to this request for refund by providing the amount of refund requested, then under a nihil dicit judgment, you have consented that all other revenues and receipts received by me are NOT TAXABLE and NOT GROSS INCOME, and you agree that:

29.1. My estate is indeed a foreign estate as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(31\).

29.2. The only amount of “gross income” I earn is the amount that I say I earn, because none of what I make is legally defined as “gross income”. Nowhere is any of the money that I earned as a private worker who is not a “public official” of the United States legally classified as “gross income”. I challenge you to provide any statute that concludes otherwise. If you look in the annotated U.S. Code, 1928 edition, under 26 U.S.C. §954, you can clearly see that the definition of “gross income” has always meant, in the case of natural persons, only public officers of the United States government. Obfuscation of the Internal Revenue Code by greedy lawyers in the Department of Treasury can't change that fact either, because the Constitution hasn't changed and it remains the definition and limitation of Congress' power to tax.

29.3. You are forever estopped from proceeding against me in the future either administratively or in litigation for:

29.3.1. A return or civil suit for return of the monies you refunded to me.

29.3.3. Failure to file a tax return in violation of 26 U.S.C. §7203.

If you find yourself unwilling or unable to consent to the above determinations in conjunction with the requested refund, please find a supervisor or other authority who has such delegated authority and have him sign the letter you enclose with your refund as an affidavit so that we can settle this matter and bar or estop any future criminal or civil litigation related to it.

30. If you don't comply by providing to me the refund I am demanding under the authority of law, then I will see you in court and will show you the same amount of lack of mercy that you earned by refusing to be civil or accountable or helpful to members of the public like me who you are there to SERVE as a public servant. I will personally make sure that you will reap exactly what you sow. Remember, “Service” is the most important part of “Internal Revenue Service”, and I am the customer you exist to serve. Making me your servant is the very definition of tyranny in a free country.

A word of caution is in order about the above approach. We warn you throughout this book never to claim to be a “taxpayer” because it prejudices your rights. The discussion above helps to show you how to avoid prejudicing your rights more than necessary when you claim to be a “taxpayer”. We warn you that it is at best a triage measure designed as an expedient to help those of you who have been wronged by your private employers wrongfully withholding taxes from your pay against your wishes. We are trying to show you how to undo that wrong and recover these illegally withheld taxes without prejudicing your rights and without the need to litigate. Please be cautious and make sure you have read at least the first five chapters of this book before you attempt to claim a refund using the above technique.

We wish to conclude this section by revealing some very important implications of being a “nontaxpayer” that we need to be very aware of in order to avoid jeopardizing our status and creating a false presumption that we are a “taxpayer”, which are summarized below:

1. You cannot quote any section of the Internal Revenue Code that requires you to be a “taxpayer” in order to claim its benefit. For instance, 26 U.S.C. §7433, which purports to allow anyone to file a suit against an IRS agent for wrongful collection actions, says the following:

§7433. Civil damages for certain unauthorized collection actions

(a) In general If, in connection with any collection of Federal tax with respect to a taxpayer, any officer or employee of the Internal Revenue Service recklessly or intentionally, or by reason of negligence, disregards any provision of this title, or any regulation promulgated under this title, such taxpayer may bring a civil action for damages against the United States in a district court of the United States. Except as provided in section 7432, such civil action shall be the exclusive remedy for recovering damages resulting from such actions.

Note the phrase above “with respect to a taxpayer”, which are no accident. If you are a “nontaxpayer”, then you have no recourse under the above statute. HOWEVER, you still have recourse under the constitution for deprivation of property without due process of law under the Fifth Amendment. If you filed a lawsuit against an IRS agent, your remedy would then have come from citing the Constitution and possibly also cite the criminal code, which is also positive law, but NOT any part of the I.R.C.

2. You cannot call the Internal Revenue Code "law" or a "statute", but only a "code" or a "title". It can only be "law" if you are a "taxpayer". What makes anything "law" is your consent, according to the Declaration of Independence, and calling the IRC "law" is an admission that you consent to its provisions and are subject to them. See sections 5.4.1 through 5.4.6.6 later for details on this scam.
3. You cannot fill out and submit any form that can only be used by "taxpayers" nor can you sign any form that uses the word "taxpayer" to identify you. We have gone through and created substitute versions of most major IRS Forms to remove such false presumptions from the forms at:

4. When you get an IRS notice that either calls you a "taxpayer" or uses a "Taxpayer Identification Number" (TIN), then the notice is in error and you have a duty to bring this to the attention of the IRS. Only "taxpayers" can have a TIN. Below is an example form which satisfies this purpose:

Wrong Party Notice, Form #07.105

5. You must include the following language in all your correspondence with the tax authorities in order to emphasize your status as a "nontaxpayer":

I look forward to being corrected promptly in anything you believe is inconsistent with reality found in this correspondence or any of its attachments. If you do not respond, I shall conclude that you believe I am a "nontaxpayer" who is neither subject to nor liable for any internal revenue tax.

"The revenue laws are a code or system in regulation of tax assessment and collection. They relate to taxpayers, and not to nontaxpayers. The latter are without their scope. No procedure is prescribed for nontaxpayers, and no attempt is made to annul any of their rights and remedies in due course of law. With them Congress does not assume to deal, and they are neither of the subject nor of the object of the revenue laws..."

"The distinction between persons and things within the scope of the revenue laws and those without is vital."

I remind you that your own IRS mission statement says that you can only help "taxpayers" to understand their tax responsibilities and therefore, if you won't talk with me, the only thing I can logically conclude is that I must not be a "taxpayer" and instead am a "nontaxpayer" not subject to any provision within the I.R.C. In that case, thank you for confirming that I am person outside your jurisdiction and not "liable" for any internal revenue tax:

IRS Mission and Basic Organization*

The IRS Mission: Provide America's taxpayers top quality service by helping them understand and meet their tax responsibilities and by applying the tax law with integrity and fairness to all.

6. Any IRS publication addressed to "taxpayers" isn't meant for you and you cannot rely upon it. For instance, IRS Publication 1 is entitled Your Rights as a Taxpayer. The title of this publication is an oxymoron: Taxpayers don't have rights! A "nontaxpayer" cannot cite this pamphlet as authority for defending his rights. We called the IRS and asked them if they have an equivalent pamphlet for "nontaxpayers" and they said no. Then we asked whether the rights mentioned in the pamphlet also apply to "nontaxpayers" and they reluctantly said "yes". Someone wrote an "improved" version of this pamphlet entitled Your Rights as a Nontaxpayer which you may wish to read at:

5.3.2 What is a "return"?

The Internal Revenue Code defines the term "return" as follows:

26 U.S.C. §6213\(g\): Restrictions Applicable to deficiencies; petition to Tax Court

1 (g) Definitions

2 For purposes of this section -

3 (1) Return

4 The term "return" includes any return, statement, schedule, or list, and any amendment or supplement thereto,
5 filed with respect to any tax imposed by subtitle A or B, or chapter 41, 42, 43, or 44.

8 § 6103. Confidentiality and disclosure of returns and return information

9 (b) Definitions For purposes of this section—

10 (1) Return

11 The term "return" means any tax or information return, declaration of estimated tax, or claim for refund required
12 by, or provided for or permitted under, the provisions of this title which is filed with the Secretary by, on behalf
13 of, or with respect to any person, and any amendment or supplement thereto, including supporting schedules,
14 attachments, or lists which are supplemental to, or part of, the return so filed.

15 Consequently, anything that identifies itself as a "statement or list" constitutes a "return" for the purposes of U.S. Tax Court
16 deficiencies. Federal courts have also helped to clarify the meaning of "return", and they imply that if the intention of the 17 submitter was to obtain a "refund" under the authority of any provision of the I.R.C., then the submittal constitutes a "return":

18 Taxpayers argue that § 6702 does not apply to them in that the Form 1040 that they filed was not a "purported
19 return." While taxpayers did write on the forms the words "not a tax return," the form was undeniably filed to
21 §301.6402-3(a)(1) (1983). As stated a district court that recently faced this same situation:

22 Since the plaintiffs' stated purpose was to obtain a refund, the documents submitted must be deemed to be
23 purported tax returns for purposes of Section 6702. It is true that the plaintiffs wrote on the forms that they
24 were not returns, but this disclaimer has no effect in light of the plaintiffs' stated purpose to have the documents
25 treated as returns. If such a disclaimer were sufficient to avoid liability under Section 6702, tax protesters
26 could flood the IRS with frivolous tax returns bearing similar disclaimers without penalty.

27 Nichols v. United States, 575 F.Supp. 320, 322(D.Minn.1983). Thus, the Form 1040 was a purported return, and 28 the district court correctly granted summary judgment on the issue of the penalty under § 6702.
29 [Davis v. U.S., 742 F.2d. 171, 54 A.F.T.R.2d. 84-6084, 84-2 U.S.T.C. P 9808]

30 If you electronically search the entire I.R.C. as we did, in fact, you will also find several references to the phrase "return of 31 income". Even more interesting is the definition of what a "return of income" is. After careful examination of all statutes
32 that mention "returns", we conclude based on the preponderance of evidence that it really means a "return of income", which
33 is a fancy way of describing a "kickback" or "bribe" given by federal "public officers" to their "employer" and franchise tax
34 administrator, the federal government. Below are just a few examples from the "code" that prove that a "return" is actually 35 a payment to the government, and not simply a paper document as the IRS would have you mistakenly believe:

36 26 U.S.C. §6012. Persons required to make returns of income

37 (a) General rule

38 Returns with respect to income taxes under subtitle A shall be made by the following:

39 (1) (A) Every individual having for the taxable year gross income which equals or exceeds the exemption amount,
40 except that a return shall not be required of an individual –

42 26 U.S.C. §7508. Time for performing certain acts postponed by reason of service in combat zone

43 (a) Time to be disregarded

In the case of an individual serving in the Armed Forces of the United States, or serving in support of such Armed Forces, in an area designated by the President of the United States by Executive order as a "combat zone" for purposes of section 112, at any time during the period designated by the President by Executive order as the period of combatant activities in such zone for purposes of such section, or hospitalized as a result of injury received while serving in such an area during such time, the period of service in such area, plus the period of continuous qualified hospitalization attributable to such injury, and the next 180 days thereafter, shall be disregarded in determining, under the internal revenue laws, in respect of any tax liability (including any interest, penalty, additional amount, or addition to the tax) of such individual -

(1) Whether any of the following acts was performed within the time prescribed therefor:

(A) Filing any return of income, estate, or gift tax (except income tax withheld at source and income tax imposed by subtitle C or any law superseded thereby);

26 U.S.C. §6075. Time for filing estate and gift tax returns

(a) Returns relating to large transfers at death

The return required by section 6018 with respect to a decedent shall be filed with the return of the tax imposed by chapter 1 for the decedent's last taxable year or such later date specified in regulations prescribed by the Secretary.

(b) Gift tax returns

(1) General rule

Returns made under section 6019 (relating to gift taxes) shall be filed on or before the 15th day of April following the close of the calendar year.

(2) Extension where taxpayer granted extension for filing income tax return

Any extension of time granted the taxpayer for filing the return of income taxes imposed by subtitle A for any taxable year which is a calendar year shall be deemed to be also an extension of time granted the taxpayer for filing the return under section 6019 for such calendar year.

A "return" within the I.R.C. is therefore in effect and in truth a compelled "bribe" payment to the government for the "privilege" of conducting a "public office" within the federal government or receiving a federal "payment". Recall that the U.S. government is defined in 28 U.S.C. §3002\(15\)\(A\) as a "federal corporation". As you will learn later, "income" is defined by the Sixteenth Amendment as "corporate profit". The IRS fakes most of us out into admitting we are "employees" of this federal corporation on the IRS Form W-4, which says "employee" in the upper left corner. Under 26 U.S.C. §6331\(a\) and 26 C.F.R. §31.3401\(c\)-1, only those who are "public officers", who are "officers of a corporation" can be "employees". All such corporate officers ("taxpayers") are described in the code as being involved in a "trade or business" in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(26\). Therefore, nearly all "taxpayers" under the I.R.C. are engaged in a "trade or business", which is a "public office", within the "United States", which is the United States federal government. Receipt of a federal payment by a "public officer" is then counted as "corporate profit" under the I.R.C. and we as the recipients are in the custody of corporate profit which must be returned to the federal government. The "tax" on this "corporate profit" under the I.R.C. is effectively a "return" or kickback of a percentage of the privileged payment received from the federal government. Until federal "tax" is withheld and paid, we are acting as a "fiduciary" or "transferee" (see 26 U.S.C. §6901) over federal property, and "in rem" federal jurisdiction exists over the property under Article 4, Section 3, Clause 2 of the Constitution. Therefore, an "income tax" is nothing but a federal employee kickback payment. Those private citizens who refuse to commit perjury on an IRS Form W-4 by declaring themselves to be federal "employees" or who refuse to pay this illegal bribe and expose this fraud for what it is are sometimes slandered and fired with no law authorizing such treatment whatsoever.

QUESTION FOR DOUBTERS: If you disagree, please show us a section anywhere in the Internal Revenue Code or Treasury Regulations that defines a "return" as anything OTHER than a kickback payment from federal employees to the federal government. You are not allowed to "presume" otherwise. In the legal field, every statement and belief must be backed up with evidence or it is frivolous.

Why did the government implement the income tax as the equivalent of a federal "employee" or "public officer" kickback? Isn't it easier to just cut the pay of federal "public officer" or "employee" rather than overpay them and ask for the difference back? The answer is that:

1. The only types of entities that the government can write laws which impose duties or obligations upon are its own officers and employees while on official duty, and not private persons in the general public. The U.S. Supreme Court has said that the ability to regulate what it calls "private" conduct is "repugnant to the Constitution":

"The power to "legislate generally upon" life, liberty, and property, as opposed to the "power to provide modes of redress" against offensive state action, was "repugnant" to the Constitution. Id., at 15. See also United States v. Reese, 92 U.S. 214, 218 (1876); United States v. Harris, 106 U.S. 629, 639 (1883); James v. Bowman, 190 U.S. 127, 139 (1903). Although the specific holdings of these early cases might have been superseded or modified, see, e.g., Heart of Atlanta Motel, Inc. v. United States, 379 U.S. 241 (1964); United States v. Guest, 383 U.S. 745 (1966), their treatment of Congress' §5 power as corrective or preventive, not definitional, has not been questioned."

2. The Constitution prohibits direct taxes under Article 1, Section 2, Clause 3 and Article 1, Section 9, Clause 4 and the first direct income tax Congress tried to impose was declared unconstitutional in Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co., 157 U.S. 429 (1895). Therefore, the only way Congress could lawfully collect an income tax was by imposing it upon excise taxable, voluntary, avoidable activities, which the courts call "franchises" and "public rights". The excise taxable activity is called a "trade or business" and it is statutorily defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) as "the functions of a public office".

Therefore, the federal government couldn't impose a lawful or constitutional income tax and never did attempt to tax people in states of the Union using the Internal Revenue Code. Instead, they created a federal "employee" or "public officer" kickback program that only applied in the District of Columbia initially. This first "tax" or kickback program started during the Civil War with the Revenue Act of 1862, and applied only to public officers and excluded federal judges. Since that time, our "weasels in Washington" have abused "words of art", obfuscation of the "code", legal trickery, and corruption of the federal judiciary to unlawfully expand the operation of this kickback "scheme" outside the District of Columbia in what amounts to a conspiracy to destroy the separation of powers between the states and federal government. They did this by fooling people in the states of the Union into believing that they the proper subjects for what amounts to a tax exclusively on federal "public offices", which 4 U.S.C. §72 limits EXCLUSIVELY to the District of Columbia. You may find a complete description of this conspiracy to destroy the separation of powers for financial reasons in the document below:

Government Conspiracy to Destroy the Separation of Powers, Form #05.023

Within the Internal Revenue Code, the only "persons" who earn "income" are those who receive federal payments from or on behalf of the government as "public officers" engaged in the "trade or business" excise taxable franchise. This is confirmed by examining 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1\(a\)\(2\)\(ii\), which says that only those who have "income effectively connected with a trade or business" can earn "gross income":

NORMAL TAXES AND SURTAXES
DETERMINATION OF TAX LIABILITY
Tax on Individuals
Sec. 1.1-1 Income tax on individuals.

(a)(2)(ii) For taxable years beginning after December 31, 1970, the tax imposed by section 1(d), as amended by the Tax Reform Act of 1969, shall apply to the income effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business in the United States by a married alien individual who is a nonresident of the United States for all or part of the taxable year or by a foreign estate or trust. For such years the tax imposed by section 1(c), as amended by such Act, shall apply to the income effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business in the United States by an unmarried alien individual (other than a surviving spouse) who is a nonresident of the United States for all or part of the taxable year. See paragraph (b)(2) of section 1.871-8."

[26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(a)(2)(ii)]

"trade or business" is then defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(26\) as "the functions of a public office" in the U.S. government.

26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(26\)

"The term 'trade or business' includes [is limited to] the performance of the functions of a public office."

1 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(31) also confirms that if we don't earn any income from within the District of Columbia, which is called
 2 the "United States" in the I.R.C., and if that income is not connected to a "trade or business", then it is foreign to the I.R.C.
 3 and outside the jurisdiction of the I.R.S.

 5 §7701. Definitions

6 (a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent
 7 thereof—

8 (31) Foreign estate or trust
 9 (A) Foreign estate

10 The term "foreign estate" means an estate the income of which, from sources without the [federal] United States
 11 which is not effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business within the United States, is not
 12 includible in gross income under subtitle A.

13 Therefore, only those who consent to be "taxpayers" and "public officers" on behalf of the government and who receive a
 14 federal payments greater than the "exemption amount" indicated in 26 U.S.C. §6012 above must make a "return of income"
 15 to the government. The only way a person can earn such "income" and "gross income" is to have earnings "effectively
 16 connected with a trade or business in the [federal] United States", which is lawyer-trickery for saying that a person must be 17 engaged in a political office (in the District of Columbia, which is the what "United States" is defined to mean in 26 U.S.C.
 18 §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10)).

19 QUESTION FOR DOUBTERS: If you think we are wrong in our conclusions relating to a "trade or business" here, then
 20 please explain why 26 U.S.C. §6902(a) and 26 U.S.C. §6901(a)(1)(A)(i) places the burden of proof upon the Secretary of the 21 Treasury in U.S. Tax Court Proceedings to prove that their opponent is a "transferee", which is a fiduciary of federal property
 22 connected to a "public office"? We assert that the only "taxpayer" who can litigate in Tax Court is one who is engaged in a
 23 "trade or business", which is a public office in the U.S. government.

24 Once we understand that a "return" is in fact a kickback payment of federal earnings or payments to "public officers", it
 25 becomes clear why the IRS and the federal courts identify a 1040 form with "no liability" indicated as not a legitimate

27 <http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Evidence/Refunds/1998-053IRSMemoZeroRet.pdf>

28 Below is a section from the IRS' own Internal Revenue Manual describing what a valid return is. Notice that they describe
 29 the requirements applicable to "taxpayers" but not "nontaxpayers". Remember from the previous section that a "taxpayer"
 30 is someone liable and subject to the I.R.C., which we know doesn't describe most Americans. The only thing we can conclude 31 from this is that there are no requirements for what constitutes a valid return for "nontaxpayers".

32 Internal Revenue Manual
 33 Section 25.6.5.5.1 (11-01-2004)
 34 Valid Return

35 1. A taxpayer is not considered to have filed a tax return (which begins the period of limitations on assessment)
 36 until the taxpayer files a valid tax return. A valid return is described at IRM 25.6.2.4.14. In general, a tax return
 37 is considered sufficient for establishing a statute of limitations period if it meets the following criteria:
 38 A. It has data sufficient available to calculate a tax liability,
 39 B. It purports to be a return,
 40 C. It is an honest and reasonable attempt to satisfy the requirements of the tax law, and 41 D. It is signed under penalties of perjury.

42 Note:

43 #While there is no question that an unsigned return is an invalid return; the Service has found it
 44 necessary to process unsigned balance due returns since 1970 in order for the Service to handle the 45 volume of unsigned payment returns received annually. This business decision is reflected in P-2-11
 46 (Approved 10-02-1970), Internal Revenue Manual (I.R.M.), Section 1.2.1.3.6.#

2. A return filed on the wrong form may be a valid return for the purpose of starting the period of limitations if it provides sufficient date to calculate a tax liability.

A. Federal Insurance Contributions Act (FICA) form instead of Railroad Retirement Tax Act (RRTA) form. A FICA return did not start the period on an employer's RRTA tax liability because the FICA return did not include all the information necessary to compute the RRTA tax. See Atlantic Land & Improv. Co. v. United States, 790 F.2d. 853, 860 (11th Cir. 1986).

B. RRTA form instead of FICA form. It appears that a RRTA return filed for a FICA tax liability might be sufficient to start the period on that liability. See the suggestion in Atlantic Land & Improv. Co., 790 F.2d. 860 at footnote 12.

Those who earn no "income", which is a code word within the I.R.C., Subtitle A for:

1. A federal payment to a Social Security Trustee, who is the benefit recipient. See 26 U.S.C. §861\(a\)\(8\).
2. Employment compensation to a federal "employee", as defined in 26 C.F.R. §31.3401\(c\)-1.
3. Corporate profit for the federal corporation called the "United States", as defined in 28 U.S.C. §3002\(15\)\(A\).

...cannot "return" a portion of it. Most people fit in this category and don't even realize it because they believe the deliberate deception contained in the IRS publications instead of reading the I.R.C. for themselves. Such "persons" would be described simply as "not liable" and would not need to file any forms with the IRS. However, a condition of no liability, at least as far as the IRS is concerned, can only exist when all erroneous reports of "income" connected with the "trade or business" franchise coming from private companies or financial institutions have been rebutted. This is accomplished in the case of a W-2 by filing IRS Form W-2C separately or IRS Form 4852 with a tax return or sending in corrected versions of the other types of forms. If these erroneous reports of "income" (federal payments) are never rebutted and if the amount reported exceeds the exemption amount identified in 26 U.S.C. §6012, then:

1. Un-rebutted and erroneous IRS Form W-2, 1042S, 1098, and 1099 information return reports:
  - 1.1. Create a false presumption of the receipt of federal payments.
  - 1.2. Constitute a statement of liability under penalty of perjury. The IRS Form W-3 identifies itself as a "tax statement" and it is signed under penalty of perjury.
  - 1.3. Create a false presumption that the recipient consented to be treated as a federal "employee", which is what it says in the upper left corner of the Form W-4.
  - 1.4. Constitute evidence that the recipient received "income" or "gross income" AND that they consented to have his or her earnings treated as "wages" under 26 C.F.R. §31.3401\(a\)-1.
  - 1.5. The presence of a federal identifying number on the information returns also constitutes consent to treat an SSN as a TIN. There is no regulation or statute authorizing conversion of an SSN into a TIN. Only the recipient can do that by disclosing a number to the payor or the IRS.
  - 1.6. Create a false presumption that the subject of the report filed an IRS Form W-4, which is called a "voluntary withholding agreement".
2. Since the payee of the payment received a copy of these reports and did not rebut it, the government will "presume" that the recipient consented to participate in the federal income tax and therefore has "income effectively connected with a trade or business in the United States".
3. Because consent was present and voluntary, the recipient is a "taxpayer" and is subject to the "code". Enforcement will then be attempted against the recipient and that recipient will be treated as a federal "employee" during the collection process, which under 26 U.S.C. §6331\(a\), is an elected or appointed officer of the federal government.

If you would like to know how to nullify these erroneous reports to rebut the false presumption of being connected with a "trade or business in the United States", see:

Correcting Erroneous Information Returns, Form #04.001
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

Why does the government want to deceive you into believing that a "return" is a piece of paper instead of a kickback of payments from the federal government? Here are a few answers:

- 1 1. When they prosecute people maliciously and wrongfully for “willful failure to file” under 26 U.S.C. §7203, they don't
- 2 have to satisfy the burden of proof that your income was “effectively connected to a trade or business”, which would
- 3 immediately expose their fraud.
- 4 2. They don't have to explain to juries that a “trade or business” is actually a “public office” under 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(26\).
- 5 3. They don't want juries to know that I.R.C., Subtitle A describes a “kickback” and not a legitimate, constitutional income
- 6 tax.

7 Finally, if you would like to know more about this illegal and unethical kickback program, see our section entitled “Public
8 Officer Kickback Position” later starting in section 5.6.10.

9 5.3.3 Summary of Federal Income Tax Filing Status by Citizenship and Residency

10 The table below summarizes the federal jurisdiction to tax organized by citizenship and then residency. It presents the 11 previous table in a somewhat different way. Most people are very surprised when they see this, and you will never see this 12 table in any of the IRS Publications, because they don't want you to know you have been filing incorrectly! That's why we
13 had to do so much research to write this section and build the table below, because the IRS doesn't want you hearing the truth
14 and has done their best to conceal it:

All other income is tax exempt. | This is the natural status we are born with, until we sign our first piece of paper we give any government saying we are "U.S. citizens". Note that our parents can sell us into slavery by claiming on THEIR 1040 form that we are "U.S. citizens" while we are less than 18. After that, we take on status #6 above |

NOTES:

1. Definitions of "United States":
  - 1.1. U.S.*= United States the country (in the family of nations)
  - 1.2. U.S.** = the federal zone=District of Columbia and all federal territories, possessions, and enclaves.
  - 1.3. U.S.*** = the contiguous 50 states of the union outside the federal zone.
2. A person who is a "Citizen of the United States of America" (a state-only citizen) is referred to as a "U.S. national" or simply a "national" but not a statutory "U.S. citizen". He is also called a constitution "citizen of the United States"
3. Foreign national is someone who is a citizen of another country that is outside of the 50 contiguous states of the union.
4. Foreign aliens are typically citizens of other countries who are domiciled in the 50 Union states of the United States of America.
5. The Fourteenth Amendment made everyone born or naturalized in the United States* into citizens of the United States** (and by implication, the United States* and United States***) and the State wherein they reside as follows:

*Section 1. All persons born or naturalized in the United States [the federal zone/U.S.**], and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States[**] and of the state wherein they reside. No state shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States; nor shall any state deprive any person of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws.*

6. If you examine 26 C.F.R. §1.861, which is used for identifying and computing taxable income for ALL sources both within and without the "United States***", you will note that the taxable sources (and all of the examples given in that section) are restricted to those involved in government privileged activities subject to indirect excise taxation. Such activities include [are limited to] service as a public officer of the U.S. government, an officer of U.S.** registered corporations. This is not a mistake or an oversight, but a direct result of the fact that the income tax, according to the Supreme Court, is and always has been an indirect excise tax. U.S. Supreme Court rulings over the years have always identified Subtitle A income taxes as indirect excise taxes, both before and after the passage of the 16th Amendment (see section 5.1.8 for further details on this). These conclusions also agree with Congressional Research Service Report 97-59A appearing on our website, which is the very same report that Congressmen send their constituents when they get questions about income taxes. The rate of tax is determined by 26 U.S.C. Section 871 for nonresident aliens and 26 U.S.C. Section 1 for U.S.** citizens residing in the U.S.**. If you file a 1040 form, then you elect to use 26 U.S.C. Section 1 to compute your rate of tax. If you file a 1040NR, then you are using 26 U.S.C. Section 871(a) to compute the tax rate for income from sources without the "United States" and the rate is 30%. The graduated rate of tax on nonresident aliens found in 26 U.S.C. Section 871(b) only applies to elected or appointed political officials of the U.S. government. Once again, we'd like to review the meaning of "trade or business" as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26):

26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) Definitions. Trade or Business. The term "trade or business" includes [only] the performance of the functions of a public office."

26 U.S.C. §871(b)(2)-GRADUATED RATE OF TAX...

"(2) DETERMINATION OF TAXABLE INCOME.—In determining taxable income...gross income includes ONLY gross income which is effectively connected with the conduct of a TRADE OR BUSINESS within the United States."

Following is a definition of "public office":

*Public Office, pursuant to Black's Law Dictionary, Abridged Sixth Edition, means:

"Essential characteristics of a 'public office' are:

- (1) Authority conferred by law,
- (2) Fixed tenure of office, and
- (3) Power to exercise some of the sovereign functions of government.
- (4) Key element of such test is that "officer is carrying out a sovereign function".
- (5) Essential elements to establish public position as 'public office' are:
  - (a) Position must be created by Constitution, legislature, or through authority conferred by legislature.
  - (b) Portion of sovereign power of government must be delegated to position,
  - (c) Duties and powers must be defined, directly or implied, by legislature or through legislative authority.
  - (d) Duties must be performed independently without control of superior power other than law, and
  - (e) Position must have some permanency."

The vast majority of American nationals domiciled in the 50 Union states, however, DO NOT fall in this category. The rest of us therefore aren't liable for the payment of federal income taxes! Read the section for yourself, because it is very enlightening. There are very good reasons for the above restrictions, including 1:9:4 and 1:2:3 of the u.S. Constitution, which do not allow direct taxes on the sovereign 50 Union states without apportionment! The 16th Amendment, according to the U.S. supreme Court, didn't change that situation at all because it had no enabling clauses and did not modify or qualify these two parts of the constitution.

7. An American National who never claims or has "U.S.** citizen" status under 8 U.S.C. §1401 is equivalent to a "non-resident non-person" for the purposes of the federal income tax. The term for this type of citizen used in the U.S.*** Constitution is capitalized, e.g. "Citizen" and not "citizen".
8. We become a prima facie statutory "U.S.** citizen" whenever we do any of the following and don't fully clarify what we mean:
  - 8.1. We are born or naturalized in the "United States"*/federal zone, but not in the nonfederal areas within the 50 Union states (see the 14th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution).
  - 8.2. Emigrate into the United States** and apply for "U.S. citizenship" and don't clarify that we DO NOT want to be a federal citizen, but only a national of United States* the country or United States*** the 50 Union states.
  - 8.3. Declare on a voter registration that we are a "U.S. citizen" without clarifying what we mean (in fact, we should mean "national" or "state national" and NOT U.S.** citizen).
  - 8.4. Declare on a Driver's license application that we are a "U.S. citizen" without clarifying what we mean (in fact, we should mean "national" or "state national" and NOT U.S.** citizen).

- 1 8.5. Declare on our jury summons that we are a "U.S.** citizen" and don't clarify that we instead are a "national", which means we reside in the country and are 2 state citizens.
- 3 8.6. Declare on any kind of tax return that we are a "U.S. citizen" without clarifying what we mean (in fact, we should mean "national" or "state national" and NOT 4 U.S.** citizen). We can also do this by filing the wrong tax form, in this case a 1040 instead of the correct 1040NR form.
- 5 9. The U.S. constitution, in Article 1, Section 2, Clause 1 (mentioned in section 3.6.7) says:

6 *Article 1, Section 8, Clause 1: "The Congress shall have Power To lay and collect Taxes, Duties, Imposts and Excises, to pay the Debts and provide for the common
7 Defence and general Welfare of the United States; but all Duties, Imposts and Excises shall be uniform throughout the United States; "*

- 8 Did you notice that it says "but all Duties, Imposts and Excises shall be uniform throughout the United States"? If you look in table 5-6 in section 5.2.3, you will see
9 that THE ONLY taxes that are uniform in that table are those for "nonresident aliens" covered in IRS publication 19 and citizens living abroad covered in IRS
10 Publication 54! The only income tax that is NOT uniform and graduated are taxes for statutory "U.S. citizens" and "residents" domiciled in the federal zone (who 11 file 1040 tax forms), which do not fall under the constitutional protections or limitations according to Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901), covered earlier in 12 section 3.16.6.
- 13 10. In the event that definitions of such terms as "U.S.**" or "includes" has you confused about your tax liability or the applicability of the above table, remember that 14 the supreme court said of the rules of statutory construction as found in the case of Spreckels Sugar Refining Co. v. McClain, 192 U.S. 397 (1904):

15 "Keeping in mind the well-settled rule that the citizen is exempt from taxation unless the same is imposed by clear and unequivocal language, and that where the 16 construction of a tax law is doubtful, the doubt is to be resolved in favor of those upon whom the tax is sought to be laid."
17 [Spreckels Sugar Refining Co. v. McClain, 192 U.S. 397 (1904)]

- 18 The reason for this is obvious. The Fifth and Sixth Amendments say that we have a right to due process and to know and understand the charges against us. How 19 can we be assured of a fair trial or justice if we can't definitively even know or limit what the law says in such a way that we can completely understand what is
20 expected of us and obey it? Furthermore, the definition of the word "definition" found in Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 423:

21 "A description of a thing by its properties; an explanation of the meaning of a word or term. The process of stating the exact meaning of a word by means of other 22 words. Such a description of the thing defined, including all essential elements and excluding all nonessential, as to distinguish it from all other things and classes."
23 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 423]

- 24 If the term "includes" found in 26 U.S.C. §7701(c) is used "expansively" everywhere in the IRC as it is defined in 26 U.S.C. Section 7701(c), NOTHING is defined 25 in the Internal Revenue Code ANYWHERE! For such a case the whole code is "Void for Vagueness" as described in section 5.10!

26 For all the above reasons, we strongly suggest that you do the following to ensure that no one can ever legally prove that you are a U.S.** Citizen:

- 27 1. Whenever you sign any kind of tax return, voter registration, or government application for benefits that asks you if you are a "U.S. citizen", add an "A." to the end
28 of "U.S." to emphasize that you are a "national" under 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21) and not a statutory "federal citizen" pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1401. Also, change the word
29 "citizen" to begin with capital letters, so that it appears as "Citizen", which will make you a sovereign American of the 50 Union states. Then put an asterisk next to 30 the term "USA" and make a note at the bottom stating: "Not a statutory citizen under 8 U.S.C. §1401." Most clerks don't pay enough attention to the forms you sign
31 to even notice. You should make a copy of every type of form or application like this that you sign, so you have proof to use in court that you are a natural born State
32 Citizen.
- 33 2. Get a copy of your birth certificate. Examine whether it says anything about you being a "U.S. Citizen". If it does, go to the county recorder where you were born
34 and have them alter or amend it to reflect that you are NOT a U.S.** citizen, but rather a sovereign state Citizen of the U.S.A. Or file an affidavit with the recorder
35 *and have it recorded stating that you are not a 14th Amendment or U.S.** citizen.*

1 3. Follow the guidance in section 4.5.3.13 of the following:

5.3.4 What's Your Proper Federal Income Tax Filing Status?

The proper status from the table above for most Americans who are domiciled in the 50 Union states is #10, the "national" or "state national" who is a "non-resident non-person" of the federal zone and the U.S.**. "nationals" are defined in 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21). People born in the 50 states of the Union should also be filing as "non-resident non-persons" instead of using an IRS Form W-4 form for your employer withholding.

QUESTION FOR DOUBTERS: If the term "United States" as used in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) includes the nonfederal/private areas of the 50 Union states, then why does our own federal government call foreigners domiciled in these areas "nonresident aliens" and ask them to fill out a form 1040NR? Shouldn't they be called "resident aliens"?

We want to emphasize that most citizens are incorrectly deceived by the IRS into filing under status #7 above, which is a U.S.** citizen who *elects to be treated as a resident of the U.S.***. Also recall earlier from section 5.2.14 that the only "residents" within the context of the income tax code are aliens domiciled in the federal "United States". In the tax code, resident=alien. Remember that! Why is this? Here are a few of the many reasons why these assertions are absolutely true:

1. The Internal Revenue Code, in section 7701, defines "United States" as "The term 'United States' when used in a geographical sense includes only the States and the District of Columbia." The same section defines "State" as "The term 'State' shall be construed to include the District of Columbia, where such construction is necessary to carry out provisions of this title." Note that the word "States" is the plural of the word "State". See sections 3.12.1.19 and 3.12.1.23 for further details on this distinction. Suffice it to say that both "States" and "United States" mean the federal zone and/or the District of Columbia and NOT the 50 Union states. See section 4.7 for further background on the meaning of the term "federal zone". The U.S. supreme Court ruled as follows on this issue:

"There is a canon of legislative construction which teaches Congress that, unless a contrary intent appears [legislation] is meant to apply only within the territorial jurisdiction of the United States."
[U.S. v. Spelar, 338 U.S. 217 at 222.]

2. IRS Publication 54: Tax Guide for U.S. Citizens and Resident Aliens Abroad (2000) (which you can download from our website), defines the term "foreign country" as follows on page 12:

"A foreign country usually is any territory (including the air space and territorial waters) under the sovereignty of a government other than that of the United States.... The term 'foreign country' does not include Puerto Rico, Guam, the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, the Virgin Islands, or U.S. possessions such as American Samoa."

[Emphasis added]

All entities mentioned above as being excluded from being foreign countries are federal "States" as far as the Internal Revenue Code is concerned and are areas over which the United States** has exclusive jurisdiction and sovereignty. These federal "States" are all territories, and include Puerto Rico, Guam, and the Virgin Islands to name a few. Do you see the 50 Union states of the United States excluded from the above definition of "foreign country"? No! For the purposes of the Internal Revenue Code, the 50 sovereign states are "foreign countries" with respect to the U.S. Government! This conclusion is also consistent with California's definition of "foreign country" found in section 17019 of the California Revenue and Taxation Code:

Note that California's definition of "United States" in their tax code is the same as the federal government's. Yes, the federal government does have limited subject matter jurisdiction within the Union states, but they do not have territorial jurisdiction and are NOT sovereign over areas within the several Union states that are not federal areas or enclaves. The reason for this, in part, has to do with the fact that the Constitution in Article 4, Section 3 prohibits the establishment of any "State" within another "State":

Article 4, Section 3

1                    "...no new State shall be formed or erected within the Jurisdiction of any other State; nor any State be formed
2                    by the Junction of two or more States, or Parts of States, without the Consent of the Legislatures of the States
3                    concerned as well as of the Congress."

4                    For instance, everything the federal government does with air space and territorial waters surrounding or above states of
5                    the Union is controlled by elected representatives from our state who represent us and who will not be reelected if they
6                    don't represent us adequately. Therefore, the U.S. Government can't be sovereign even over the areas they have
7                    exclusive jurisdiction if they can't independently control who exercises control of those waters. Once again, according
8                    to the Declaration of Independence, the U.S. Government derives its "just powers from the consent of the governed", so
9                    the people, and not the government, are the sovereigns, and they exercise their sovereignty by voting and serving on
10                    jury duty, which in turn indirectly controls everything that the U.S. government does on their behalf. Ultimately, no
11                    government like ours can be wholly sovereign over anything because the people are the real sovereigns in a republican
12                    form of government. The supreme Court agreed with this view in Yick Wo v. Hopkins, 118 U.S. 356, 370 (1885):

13                    "While sovereign powers are delegated to the agencies of government, Sovereignty itself remains with the people,
14                    by whom and for whom all government exists and acts."
15                    [Yick Wo v. Hopkins, 118 U.S. 356 (1886)]

17                    Maryland, 18 U.S. 316, 404, 405.

18                    Jurisdiction and sovereignty are synonymous. Only states of the Union are sovereign over the territory within them and 19                    they exercise plenary/exclusive legislative powers over nearly everything that happens within them (NOTE: We talked 20                    about the subject of jurisdiction earlier in section 5.2.2 if you want to go back and review). That is why:

- 21                    • Direct taxes must be apportioned to the 50 state governments instead of directly on the people inside the states
22                    (see Article 1, Section 9, Clause 4 and Article 1, Section 2, Clause 3 of the Constitution).
- 23                    • The Congress cannot tax exports from any state (see Article 1, Section 9, Clause 5 of the Constitution).
- 24                    • The Congress has no authority to join or divide states without concurrence of the State (see Article 4, Section 25                    3, Clause 1).
- 26                    • Congress only has exclusive legislative jurisdiction (read "sovereignty") in the District of Columbia and other 27                    federal territories as per Article 1, Section 8, Clause 17 of the Constitution:

28                    To exercise exclusive Legislation in all Cases whatsoever, over such District (not exceeding ten Miles square) as
29                    may, by Cession of Particular States, and the Acceptance of Congress, become the Seat of the Government of the 30                    United States, and to exercise like Authority over all Places purchased by the Consent of the Legislature of the 31                    State in which the Same shall be, for the Erection of Forts, Magazines, Arsenals, dock-Yards and other needful
32                    Buildings;

33                    3. The legal dictionary defines "sovereign" as:

34                    "That which is preeminent among all others. 1 Bl. Comm. *241. For instance, in a monarchy, the king as 35                    sovereign has absolute power, the sovereign power. Blackstone, the eighteenth century legal theorist, defined
36                    sovereign power to mean 'the making of laws.' 1 Bl. Comm. *49. In ancient England, the king's word was law, 37                    in today's democratic governments, the law-making function has been taken over by representative bodies such
38                    as Congress."<sup>57</sup>

39                    Is the U.S. Government "preeminent" within the boundaries of the 50 Union states?...NO! As a matter of fact, if you
40                    look in Bouvier's Law Dictionary, Revised Sixth Edition, 1856, which was written by a supreme Court Justice and used
41                    by the Supreme Court for many years, you find the following mentioned under the definition of the term "United States
42                    of America":

43                    6. The states, individually, retain all the powers which they possessed at the formation of the constitution, and
44                    which have not been given to congress. (q.v.)

45                    It sure sounds to us like the states are "sovereign" and "preeminent" within their own geographical boundaries. Does 46                    the U.S. government have exclusive authority to make laws applying within the boundaries of the 50 Union states?...NO!
47                    You will note that as per 1:8:17 of the U.S. Constitution, the only area within which the United States government has

1 “sovereignty” or exclusive/plenary legislative authority is “the federal zone”, which the vast majority of Americans don’t
 2 reside in and which we described in sections 4.8 through 4.9.1 earlier. Therefore, the states of the Union are sovereign
 3 “foreign countries” with respect to the U.S. Government as far as the Internal Revenue Code Subtitle A income taxes are 4 concerned! We talked further about the relationship of the 50 states of the Union being foreign with respect to the U.S.
 5 Government in section 5.2.14 if you want to go back and review again. To repeat what one court said from section
 6 3.12.1.6:

 8 [N.Y. v. re: Merriam, 36 N.E. 505, 141 N.Y. 479, Affirmed 16 S.Ct. 1973, 41 L.Ed. 287, Emphasis added]

- 9 4. The supreme Court of the United States had the following to say about the sovereignty of the 50 Union states relative to 10 the Federal government:

11 “...The states are separate sovereigns with respect to the federal government.”
 12 [Heath v. Alabama, 474 U.S. 82]

- 13 5. By filing a form 1040 and or a W-2 form ONLY instead of a form 2555 attached to your 1040, you are in effect “electing 14 to be a resident” of the “federal zone” and of the “United States**”, which you are perfectly authorized and entitled (but 15 woefully ignorant and misinformed!) to do. This creates a prima facie case in favor of the presumption that you are an 16 “alien” domiciled in the federal zone (see 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(a)(2)(ii)). Remember?: The Income Tax is “voluntary”, and
 17 the heart of its voluntary nature begins by you electing to be treated as a “citizen” and a “resident” of the “United States”
 18 even though you technically are NOT! IRS Publication 54 tells you how to choose to be a resident of the “United States”
 19 on pages 5 through 6 of the Year 2000 version:

20 Nonresident Spouse Treated as a Resident

21 If, at the end of your tax year, you are married and one spouse is a U.S. citizen or a resident alien and the other
 22 is a nonresident alien, you can choose to treat the nonresident as a U.S. resident. This includes situations in which
 23 one of you is a nonresident alien at the beginning of the tax year, but a resident alien at the end of the year, and 24 the other is a nonresident alien at the end of the year.

26 1) You and your spouse are treated, for income tax purposes, as residents for all tax years that the choice is in

29 This means that neither of you can claim tax treaty benefits as a resident of a foreign country for a tax year for 30 which the choice is in effect. You can file joint or separate returns in years after the year in which you make the

32 [...]

33 How To Make the Choice

34 Attach a statement, signed by both spouses, to your joint return for the first tax year for which the choice applies.
 35 It should contain the following:

36 1) A declaration that one spouse was a nonresident alien and the other spouse a U.S. citizen or resident alien on 37 the last day of your tax year, and that you choose to be treated as U.S. residents for the entire tax year, and 2) 38 The name, address, and social security number (or individual taxpayer identification number) of each spouse. (If 39 one spouse died, include the name and address of the person making the choice for the deceased spouse.)

40 You generally make this choice when you file your joint return. However, you can also make the choice by filing
 41 a joint amended return on Form 1040 or Form 1040A. Be sure to write the word “Amended” across the top of 42 the amended return. If you make the choice with an amended return, you and your spouse must also amend any 43 returns that you may have filed after the year for which you made the choice.

44 You generally must file the amended joint return within 3 years from the date you filed your original U.S. income
 45 tax return or 2 years from the date you paid your income tax for that year, whichever is later.

Suspending the Choice

The choice to be treated as a resident alien does not apply to any later tax year if neither of you is a U.S. citizen or resident alien at any time during the later tax year.

Example. Dick Brown was a resident alien on December 31, 1997, and married to Judy, a nonresident alien. They chose to treat Judy as a resident alien and filed a joint 1997 income tax return. On January 10, 1999, Dick became a nonresident alien. Judy had remained a nonresident alien. Dick and Judy can file joint or separate returns for 1999. Neither Dick nor Judy is a resident alien at any time during 2000 and their choice is suspended for that year. For 2000, both are treated as nonresident aliens. If Dick be-comes a resident alien again in 2001, their choice is no longer suspended and both are treated as resident aliens.

Ending the Choice

Once made, the choice to be treated as a resident applies to all later years unless suspended (as explained above) or ended in one of the ways shown in Figure 1-A. If the choice is ended for any of the reasons listed in Figure 1-A, neither spouse can make a choice in any later tax year.

It is very important to note that the above excerpt from IRS Publication 54 indicates that by filing a form 1040 for filing jointly, you are electing to be treated as a resident/domiciliary of the federal United States**/federal zone (not United States of America or the several states, but the United States) for all other tax years! The only way you can revoke that status is to make a Revocation of Election as described under “Ending the Choice” above. We encourage you to obtain this publication and make your Revocation of Election to be treated as a nonresident alien of the United States for tax purposes if you live in any of the 50 Union states. There are big tax advantages to doing this! We have included forms and procedures to facilitate making your Revocation of Election easier both on our website and in Chapters 8 and 14 of this book. Elections to be treated as a resident or citizen of the federal United States are also discussed in 26 U.S.C. §6013(g).

6. The reason Citizens have been abused by the federal courts and made to believe that they are obligated to pay income taxes they in fact don't owe is because Congress has exclusive authority within the “federal zone” and is not bound by constitutional constraints against direct income taxes within the federal zone as per 4:3:2 of the Constitution:

The Congress shall have Power to dispose of and make all needful Rules and Regulations respecting the Territory or other Property belonging to the United States; and nothing in this Constitution shall be so construed as to Prejudice any Claims of the United States, or of any particular State.

This conclusion is also supported by the findings of the U.S. supreme Court in the case of Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901), which we talked about in section 3.17.6 earlier:

“Indeed, the practical interpretation put by Congress upon the Constitution has been long continued and uniform to the effect [182 U.S. 244, 279] that the Constitution is applicable to territories acquired by purchase or conquest, only when and so far as Congress shall so direct. Notwithstanding its duty to 'guarantee to every state in this Union a republican form of government' (art. 4, 4), by which we understand, according to the definition of Webster, 'a government in which the supreme power resides in the whole body of the people, and is exercised by representatives elected by them.' Congress did not hesitate, in the original organization of the territories of Louisiana, Florida, the Northwest Territory, and its subdivisions of Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Illinois, and Wisconsin and still more recently in the case of Alaska, to establish a form of government bearing a much greater analogy to a British Crown colony than a republican state of America, and to vest the legislative power either in a governor and council, or a governor and judges, to be appointed by the President. It was not until they had attained a certain population that power was given them to organize a legislature by vote of the people. In all these cases, as well as in territories subsequently organized west of the Mississippi, Congress thought it necessary either to extend to Constitution and laws of the United States over them, or to declare that the inhabitants should be entitled to enjoy the right of trial by jury, of bail, and of the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus, as well as other privileges of the bill of rights.”
[Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901)]

Why doesn't the IRS tell you in their 1040 booklet that you are “volunteering” to be a “resident” of the “federal zone” when you submit a 1040 form without a form 2555(?)..because then you would refute it with a letter or statement attached to your 1040 tax return because you know it isn't true and that would end their jurisdiction to impose direct taxes on you! Instead, they make the 1040 a generic book that applies to both residents and nonresidents and then hide the “contract to become a resident" in Pub. 54, which most Citizens never read because they would never even imagine that their true status is "foreign" in relation to the United States Government taxing jurisdiction or the federal zone! This is scandalous!

7. The IRS and Congress have used the term "foreign country" in IRS Publication 54 above to confuse the issue with most citizens, so they won't use the 1040NR form to claim their rightful status, even though it does indeed apply to them. Instead, if the IRS and Treasury were completely honest, they would have used the term "non-U.S. area" or "areas outside the federal zone/District United States" in their publications being. We talked about the use of other similar forms like the IRS Form 2555 in sections 5.9.6 entitled "Other Clues", section 5.11.4 entitled "The Sixteenth Amendment says 'from whatever source derived'.. this means the source doesn't matter!", and especially section 6.9.17 entitled "Cover-Up of 1995: Modified Regulations to Remove Pointers to Form 2555 for IRC Section 1 Liability for Foreign Income Tax". We encourage you to go skip to section 6.9.17 and read it now so you know what we are talking about before you continue further.
8. By signing and submitting a form 1040 instead of submitting a 1040NR and a Revocation of Election, we are electing to become "residents" of the "United States", and there is in effect a binding contract between us and the United States Government. The terms of the contract are described in IRS Publication 54. Furthermore, the States are prohibited to interfere with this contract because the U.S. Constitution says in Article 1, Section 10, Clause 1:

"Section. 10. No State shall enter into any Treaty, Alliance, or Confederation; grant Letters of Marque and Reprisal; coin Money; emit Bills of Credit; make any Thing but gold and silver Coin as Tender in Payment of Debts; pass any Bill of Attainder, ex post facto Law, Law impairing the Obligation of Contracts, or grant any Title of Nobility."

[Emphasis added]

The IRS doesn't tell you in their publications that submitting an IRS Form 1040 instead of a 1040NR and a W-8 amounts to a "voluntary contract to become a resident of domiciliary of the federal zone", but that is a fact as documented in IRS Publication 54. Now that you know your rights and that you have been deceived into giving them up, what are you going to do about it, other than bend over and look the other way as they screw you? Are you as mad as we were when we first learned about this deception? We sure hope so, and we hope you are mad enough to go out and do something about it immediately starting with completing your Revocation of Election and filing IRS Form 1040NR from now on, that is, if you don't first use the Request for Refund letter we provide in section 2.9.1 of the following:

Sovereignty Forms and Instructions Manual, Form #10.005

*The heart of the voluntary nature of the income taxes is the very important first step we take by choosing to file an IRS Form 1040 instead of form 1040NR, which as we just explained, in effect amounts to signing an invisible contract declaring ourselves as "citizens" and "residents" of the United States**, which we now know is completely incorrect and untrue. When you think about it, you are admitting to a scientific impossibility. No person can simultaneously be domiciled in two mutually exclusive territorial jurisdictions at the same time!*

This single act is the main source of our tax troubles with the U.S. Government, and it was caused by our own ignorance of the law mainly, and facilitated by deception by the IRS in their publications and the legal profession who are in cahoots with them in order to maximize their business. This is the first act of "volunteering" which subsequently eliminates all of our constitutional rights. Until we regain our rightful status as "non-resident non-persons" for the purposes of the tax code, there will be no end of troubles for us in regaining our rightful status under the law, not to mention our Constitutional protections! The courts know this, but judges also know that they would be committing political and professional suicide to admit it in any or their rulings relating to federal income taxes. Instead, they will not focus or mention in their rulings the residency of the person being tried on tax issues, and make it "appear" that direct taxes are indeed being enforced upon Citizens of the United States in direct violation of the Constitution. This sometimes makes it "appear" like there is a judicial conspiracy to protect the income tax, when in fact, the judges and attorneys on the case may be honoring the law but not telling people the whole story, which is that they elected and "contracted" to be a citizen and resident with the first filing of a form 1040 and so they must pay the consequences of having no constitutional protections and no immunity from income tax. This is a very common practice in the legal profession...abusing people because of their own ignorance, but fully and completely and in fact, honoring and abiding by the law. It's obviously unethical and dishonest, but it's not against the law and it probably never will be, and who knows more about the law than the lawyers? They make the laws!

5.3.5 Summary of State v. Federal Income Tax Liability by Domicile and Citizenship

In order to better clarify the findings of this section and their impact on both state and federal income taxes, we have taken the liberty to research the federal and state taxing statutes and come up with a helpful table for your use in determining the extent of your tax liability and the proper forms to file for both federal and state. The example we show below is for California. Your state may be different. The state portion of the table below is derived from the California Revenue and Taxation Code (R&TC) §§17001-18776 and federal income tax found in 26 U.S.C./IRC. A nonfederal area is anything outside of "State" as defined in California Revenue and Taxation Code, §17018:

*17018. "State" includes the District of Columbia, and the possessions of the United States.
[which don't include the 50 sovereign states but do include federal enclaves within those states]
[California Revenue and Taxation Code, §17018]*

You can read the above for yourself at: <http://www.leginfo.ca.gov/cgi-bin/displaycode?section=rtc&group=17001-18000&file=17001-17039.1>. The federal portion of the table on the right derives mainly from 40 U.S.C. §3112 and sections 5.2.12 and 5.3.1.

Before we begin, we'd like to emphasize that federal and state territorial taxing jurisdictions are mutually exclusive and cannot overlap. The reason is that only ONE government can be sovereign in a territory at any one given time.

*"§79. [. . .] There cannot be two separate and independent sovereignties within the same limits or jurisdiction; nor can there be two distinct and separate sources of sovereign authority within the same jurisdiction. The right of commanding in the last resort can be possessed only by one body of people inhabiting the same territory, and can be executed only by those intrusted with the execution of such authority."

If a person is domiciled in the nonfederal areas of a state of the Union, then he must be considered a "non-resident non-person" for the purpose of federal income taxes, unless of course he "volunteers" through his own stupidity to pay "donations" by falsely admitting he is either a statutory "U.S. citizen" pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1401, a "U.S. resident" (alien), pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A), or a "U.S. person" pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30). All statutory "U.S. persons" and statutory "U.S. citizens" and "U.S. residents" have one thing in common: They all are treated by the federal government as having a domicile in the federal zone and collectively are called "inhabitants". We should ask ourselves, however: "How can a person simultaneously be domiciled in two mutually exclusive and separate territorial jurisdictions and therefore owe tax in both jurisdictions?" The answer is, they can't. Therefore, the correct filing status for most sovereign Americans born in the 50 Union states is the "non-resident non-person" of the federal taxing jurisdiction and the inhabitant (but not "resident") of the state jurisdiction. Remember from section 4.10 earlier that we should never use the word "resident" to describe ourselves for taxation purposes on a federal or state income tax form, because it means we are an "alien" domiciled in the federal zone in the context of the Internal Revenue Code and most state and federal income tax statutes! "Transient foreigner" is a better word. In most states, the implication of properly declaring this status is that the person declaring the status is liable for neither federal nor state income taxes!

In order to fully comprehend the relationship between federal and state income taxes, we must always be aware that federal and state territorial taxing jurisdictions are mutually exclusive and cannot overlap. This is a product of the "separation of powers doctrine" and fundamental to the organization of or "republican form of government" mandated by Article 4, Section 4 of the U.S. Constitution. The reason why these two jurisdictions must be mutually exclusive is that only ONE government can be sovereign over a geographical region at any one given time. Every state of the Union therefore consists of two states:

1. Republic State. Land within the exclusive jurisdiction of the state fall within this area.
2. Corporate State. This area consists of federal areas within the exterior limits of the state. These areas are federal territory not protected by the Constitution of the United States or the Bill of Rights and are "instrumentalities" of the federal government. Jurisdiction over these areas is shared with the federal government under the auspices of the following legal authorities:
  - 2.1. The Assimilated Crimes Act, 18 U.S.C. §13.

- 1 2.2. The Rules of Decision Act, 28 U.S.C. §1652. This act prescribes which of the two conflicting laws shall prevail in 2 the case of crimes on federal territory.
 3 2.3. 28 U.S.C. §2679\(c\) , which says that any action against an officer or employee of the United States in which the 4 officer or employee is acting outside their authority shall be prosecuted in a state court.
 5 2.4. Agreements on Coordination of Tax Administration (A.C.T.A.) between the state and the Secretary of the Treasury.

6 The situation above in respect to a state of the Union is not unlike our national government, which has two mutually exclusive
 7 jurisdictions:

8 *"It is clear that Congress, as a legislative body, exercise two species of legislative power: the one, limited as to
 9 its objects, but extending all over the Union: the other, an absolute, exclusive legislative power over the District
 10 of Columbia. The preliminary inquiry in the case now before the Court, is, by virtue of which of these authorities
 11 was the law in question passed?"*
 12 [Cohens v. Virginia, 19 U.S. 264, 6 Wheat. 265, 5 L.Ed. 257 \(1821\)]

14 "I take leave to say that, if the principles thus announced should ever receive the sanction of a majority of this
 15 court, a radical and mischievous change in our system of government will result. We will, in that event, pass 16 from the era of constitutional liberty guarded and protected by a written constitution into an era of legislative 17 absolutism.."

18 [..]

19 *"The idea prevails with some, indeed it has found expression in arguments at the bar, that we have in this country
 20 substantially two national governments; one to be maintained under the Constitution, with all of its 21 restrictions; the other to be maintained by Congress outside the independently of that instrument, by exercising 22 such powers [of absolutism] as other nations of the earth are accustomed to.."*

23 [..]

24 It will be an evil day for American liberty if the theory of a government outside the supreme law of the land
 25 finds lodgment in our constitutional jurisprudence. No higher duty rests upon this court than to exert its full 26 authority to prevent all violation of the principles of the Constitution."
 27 [Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 \(1901\), Justice Harlan, Dissenting]

28 The hard part is figuring out which of the two jurisdictions that any particular state statute or law applies to. What makes 29 this process difficult are the following complicating factors:

- 30 1. There is no constitutional requirement that the laws passed by the state legislature must clearly state which of the two 31 jurisdiction they apply to. This was also confirmed in the following exhibit, which is a letter from a United States

 34 2. Crafty state legislators deliberately obfuscate the laws they write so as to encourage those within the Republic to obey
 35 laws that in fact only apply to the Corporate state so as to unlawfully increase their revenues, power, and control.
 36 3. Courts of INjustice and the judges who serve in them refuse to acknowledge that most statutes passed by the legislature can only lawfully affect federal areas and persons who consent to be treated as though they inhabit these areas.

37 Within federal law, the Republic portion of each state is referred to as a "foreign state". To wit:

38 "Foreign states. Nations which are outside the United States. Term may also refer to another state; i.e. a sister
 39 state."
 40 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 648]

41 *"Generally, the states of the Union sustain toward each other the relationship of independent sovereigns or
 42 independent foreign states, except in so far as the United States is paramount as the dominating government, and
 43 in so far as the states are bound to recognize the fraternity among sovereignties established by the federal
 44 Constitution, as by the provision requiring each state to give full faith and credit to the public acts, records, and 45 judicial proceedings of the other states..."*
 46 [81A Corpus Juris Secundum \(C.J.S.\), United States, §29 \(2003\)]

3 [19 Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.), Corporations, §884 (2003)]

4 Let's now examine the practical implications of this document in relation to how or if you would file a state or federal tax
5 return and what status you would need to file under. If a person is a domiciliary of the nonfederal areas of his state, which
6 we call the "Republic State" in this document, then he must be considered a "non-resident non-person" for the purpose of 7 federal income taxes, unless of course he "volunteers" through his own stupidity to donate to the federal government by
8 falsely admitting he is either a "U.S. citizen" under 8 U.S.C. §1401 or a "U.S. person" under 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(30\). We 9 should always ask ourselves, however: "How can a person simultaneously be a resident of two mutually exclusive territorial 10 jurisdictions and therefore owe tax in both jurisdictions?" The answer is, they can't. Therefore, the correct filing status for 11 most sovereign Americans/Nationals of the 50 Union states is the "non-resident non-person" of the federal taxing jurisdiction
12 and the "resident" of the state jurisdiction. In most states, the implication of properly declaring this status is that the person
13 declaring the status is liable for neither federal nor state income taxes! The table below summarizes the relationship between 14 federal taxation and state taxation in the case of California. Most other states appear to be similar. This table was extracted
15 from section 5.3.3 earlier. The important things to remember about this table are the following:

- 16 1. Federal and state income taxes presume domicile in the same place, which is the Corporate State. Those domiciled in 17 the Republic State are "nontaxpayers" who are not subject to the federal or state income tax.
- 18 2. The federal personal income tax described in I.R.C., Subtitle A is upon "residents" as defined in 26 U.S.C. 19 §7701\(b\)\(1\)\(A\), who are aliens with a domicile on federal territory.
- 20 3. A person who was born within and domiciled within any of the 50 states or federal territory is not an alien, and therefore 21 not a "resident".
- 22 4. The IRS Form 1040 is ONLY for use by "residents", who are aliens with a domicile on federal territory. This is 23 confirmed by IRS Document 7130, the IRS Published Products Catalog.
- 24 5. A statutory "U.S. citizen" as defined in 8 U.S.C. §1401 when temporarily abroad pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §911 is treated
25 as a "resident" within the Internal Revenue Code. This is because he interfaces to the I.R.C. through a tax treaty with a 26 foreign country and he is an "alien" in relation to that foreign country that he is within.
- 27 6. The federal and state income taxes are indirect excise taxes upon a "trade or business", which is defined in 26 U.S.C.
28 §7701\(a\)\(26\) as "the functions of a public office". If you are not in fact and in deed engaged in a "public office", then:
29 6.1. You are a "nontaxpayer" whose estate is a "foreign estate" not subject to the Internal Revenue Code:

30 TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > § 7701
31 § 7701. Definitions

32 (a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent
33 thereof—

34 (31) Foreign estate or trust

35 (A) Foreign estate

36 The term "foreign estate" means an estate the income of which, from sources without the United States which is 37 not effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business within the United States, is not includible in 38 gross income under subtitle A.

- 39 6.2. You are not required to file a federal income tax return, even if you are domiciled on federal territory.
- 40 7. If you are a statutory "U.S. citizen" who is NOT abroad in a foreign country pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §911, there is no IRS
41 Form you can file, because you are not a "resident" and the only people who can use IRS Form 1040 are "residents",
42 which are "aliens" with a domicile on federal territory. The IRS Form 1040 is for us ONLY by "U.S. individuals", and 43 the term "individual" is defined in 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3) as an "alien". They only place that "individual" is defined
44 as a "citizen" or "U.S. citizen" is when that citizen is abroad in a foreign country under 26 U.S.C. §911(d). Therefore,
45 you would be committing perjury under penalty of perjury to file an IRS Form 1040 if you were a statutory "U.S. citizen"
46 not in a foreign country, because you would be falsely declaring yourself to be an "individual" by filing such a form.

1. A "U.S.** citizen" shown above is one who is a federal citizen born or naturalized in the federal zone and described in 8 U.S.C. §1401. This is NOT the same as a person who is a "national". The Internal Revenue Code only applies to U.S.** citizens and is municipal/special law that does not apply to Sovereign Natural Born Citizens in the 50 Union states.
2. You can read the California Revenue and Taxation Code (R&TC) for yourself on the web at <http://www.leginfo.ca.gov/cgi-bin/calawquery?codesection=rtc&codebody=&hits=20>
3. Why don't the state and federal income tax publications reflect the above considerations? We can only assume that it is because they want to simplify these publications because they want to maximize revenues from income taxation.

5.3.6 How to Revoke Your Election to be Treated as a U.S. Resident (alien) and Become a Nonresident Alien

Those people using this document are “non-resident non-persons” and not “nonresident aliens”. For those who are “nonresident aliens” and who have in the past filed a joint 1040 return with a statutory “U.S.** citizen” spouse under 26 U.S.C. §6013(g), Revocation of Election is required for those who have been filing IRS Form 1040’s and who want to restore their status as nonresident aliens. “Nonresident aliens” are discussed in:

<https://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

The below instructions are derived directly from IRS Publication 54 (2000), p. 6 on how to revoke your election to be treated as a resident of the U.S.** (federal zone). Note that you must also submit an IRS Form W-8 along with the revocation of election in order to properly identify yourself as a “non-resident non-person” to the IRS. Revocation of Election is also treated in 26 U.S.C. §6013(g) and the corresponding regulations found in 26 C.F.R. §1.6013-6(b) and 26 C.F.R. §1.6013-6(a)(3):

1. Either spouse can revoke the choice for any tax year.
2. The revocation must be made by the due date for filing the tax return for that tax year.
3. The spouse who revokes must attach a signed statement declaring that the choice is being revoked.
4. The statement revoking the choice must include the following:
  - 4.1. The name, address, and social security number (or taxpayer identification number) of each spouse.
  - 4.2. The name and address of any person who is revoking the choice for a deceased spouse.
  - 4.3. A list of any states, foreign countries, and possessions that have community property laws in which either spouse is domiciled or where real property is located from which either spouse receives income.
5. If the spouse revoking the choice must file a return, attach the statement to the return for the first year the revocation applies.
6. If the spouse revoking the choice does not have to file a return, but does file a return (for example, to obtain a refund), attach the statement to the return.
7. If the spouse revoking the choice does not have to file a return and does not file a claim for refund, send the statement to the Internal Revenue Service Center where the last joint return was filed.

26 C.F.R. §1.6013-6 Election to treat nonresident alien individual as resident of the United States.

(i) An election under this section shall terminate if either spouse revokes the election. An election that is revoked terminates as of the first taxable year for which the last day prescribed by section 6072(a) and 6081(a) for filing the return of tax has not yet occurred.

(ii) Revocation of the election is made by filing a statement of revocation in the following manner. If the spouse revoking the election is required to file a return under section 6012, the statement is filed by attaching it to the return for the first taxable year to which the revocation applies. If the spouse revoking the election is not required to file a return under section 6012, but files a claim for refund under section 6511, the statement is filed by attaching it to the claim for refund. If the spouse revoking the election is not required to file a return and does not file a claim for refund, the statement is filed by submitting it to the service center director with whom was filed the most recent joint return of the spouses. The revocation may, if the revoking spouse dies after the close of the first taxable year to which the revocation applies but before the return, claim for refund, or statement of revocation is filed, be made by the executor, administrator or other person charged with the property of the deceased spouse.

(iii) A revocation of the election is effective as of a particular taxable year if it is filed on or before the last day prescribed by section 6072(a) and 6081(a) for filing the return of tax for that taxable year. However, the revocation is not final until that last day.

(iv) The statement of revocation must contain a declaration that the election under this section is being revoked. The statement must also contain the name, address, and taxpayer identifying number of each spouse. If the revocation is being made on behalf of a deceased spouse, the statement must contain the name and address of the executor, administrator, or other person revoking the election on behalf of the deceased spouse. The statement must also include a list of the States, foreign countries, and possessions of the United States which have community property laws and in which:

(A) Each spouse is domiciled, or

(B) real property is located from which either of the spouses receives income.

The statement must be signed by the person revoking the election.

(2) Death.

An election under this section shall terminate if either spouse dies. An election that terminates on account of death terminates as of the first taxable year of the surviving spouse following the taxable year in which the death occurred. However, if the surviving spouse is a citizen or resident of the United States who is entitled to the benefits of section 2, the election terminates as of the first taxable year following the last taxable year for which the surviving spouse is entitled to the benefits of section 2. If both spouses die within the same taxable year, the election terminates as of the first day after the close of the taxable year in which the deaths occurred.

(3) Legal separation.

An election under this section terminates if the spouses legally separate under a degree of divorce or of separate maintenance. An election that terminates on account of legal separation terminates as of the close of the taxable year preceding the taxable year in which the separation occurs. The rules in section 1.6013-4(a) are relevant in determining whether two spouses are legally separated.

(4) Inadequate records.

An election under this section may be terminated by the Commissioner if it is determined that either spouse has failed to keep adequate records. An election that is terminated on account of inadequate records terminates as of the close of the taxable year preceding the taxable year for which the Commissioner determines that the election should be terminated. Adequate records are the books, records, and other information reasonably necessary to ascertain the amount of liability for taxes under Chapters 1, 5, and 24 of the code of either spouse for the taxable year. Adequate records also includes the granting of access to the books and records.

(c) Illustrations.

The application of this section is illustrated by the following examples. In each case the individual's taxable year is the calendar year and the spouses are not legally separated.

Example (1). W, a U.S. citizen for the entire taxable year 1979, is married to H, a nonresident alien individual. W and H may make the section 6013(g) election for 1979 by filing the statement of election with a joint return. If W and H make the election, income from sources within and without the United States received by W and H in 1979 and subsequent years must be included in gross income for each taxable year unless the election later is terminated or suspended. While W and H must file a joint return for 1979, joint or separate returns may be filed for subsequent years.

Example (2). H and W are husband and wife and are both nonresident alien individuals. In June 1980 H becomes a U.S. resident and remains a resident for the balance of the year. H and W may make the section 6013(g) election for 1980. If H and W make the election, income from sources within and without the United States received by H and W for the entire taxable year 1980 and subsequent years must be included in gross income for each taxable year, unless the election later is terminated or suspended.

Example (3). W, a U.S. resident on December 31, 1981, is married to H, a nonresident alien. W and H make the section 6013(g) election and file joint returns for 1981 and succeeding years. On January 10, 1987, W becomes a nonresident alien. H has remained a nonresident alien. W and H may file a joint return or separate returns for 1987. As neither W or H is a U.S. resident at any time during 1988, their election is suspended for 1988. If W and H have U.S. source or foreign source income effectively connected with the conduct of a U.S. trade or business in 1988, they must file separate returns as nonresident aliens. W becomes a U.S. resident again on January 5, 1990. Their election no longer is in suspense. Income from sources within and without the United States received by W or H in the years their election is not suspended must be included in gross income for each taxable year.

Example (4). H, a U.S. citizen for the entire taxable year 1979, is married to W, who is not a U.S. citizen. While W believes that she is a U.S. resident, H and W make the section 6013(g) election for 1979 to cover the possibility

1 that later it would be determined that she is a nonresident alien during 1979. The election for 1979 will not be
 2 considered evidence that W was a nonresident alien in prior years. Income from sources within and without the
 3 United States received by H and W in 1979 and subsequent years must be included in gross income for each
 4 taxable year, unless the election later is terminated or suspended.

 8 consenting "taxpayer" to a "nontaxpayer". For details on this scam, see:

13 5.3.7 What Are the Advantages and Consequences of Filing as a Nonresident Citizen?

14 Let us preface this section by saying that although we don't under any circumstances advocate being a federal/U.S.** citizen
 15 under 8 U.S.C. §1401, we are including this section for completeness for those of you who insist on being one anyway. We 16 are suggesting that if you WANT to foolishly be one, then you should at least elect to be a nonresident U.S. citizen who files
 17 the form 2555 along with your 1040 form. Below are some reasons why.

18 Once we complete our Revocation of Election form and become nonresidents for the purposes of the federal income tax, we 19 gain all kinds of advantages that U.S.** (federal zone) residents don't have. This includes the following, derived directly
 20 from IRS Publication 54 (from the year 2000):

- 21 1. To qualify as a resident of a "foreign country", you must pass the "Physical Presence Test", which means that you must 22 be present in that "country" for no less than 330 full days during a period of 12 consecutive months.
- 23 2. You must file an IRS Form 673 (Statement For Claiming Exemption From Withholding on Foreign Earned Income
 24 Eligible for the Exclusions(s) Provided by Section 911) with your employer documenting your nonresidency status. Do
 25 NOT include either a TIN or an SSN on the form and do not fill out either an SS-5, W-7, or W-9 to get a number to put 26 on the 673 form because you don't have to provide a number. TINs are only issued to aliens, which you aren't in most
 27 cases, and SSN's may not be used on tax forms as an identifying number or as a substitute for TINs, as you will learn 28 later in section 5.4.23.
- 29 3. You get all the same deductions on your tax return as "residents" of the United States** ("federal zone").
- 30 4. If you choose to exclude foreign earned income or housing amounts, you cannot deduct, exclude, or claim a credit for 31 any item that can be allocated to or charged against the excluded amounts. This includes any expenses, losses, and other
 32 normally deductible items that are allocable to the excluded income. You can deduct only those expenses connected 33 with earning includible income.
- 34 5. Foreign income taxes (which is what state income taxes are for most Americans):
 35 5.1. If you pay income tax to a foreign country or to one of the 50 Union states, you cannot claim those taxes on your 36 income tax return as U.S. income taxes withheld, but you can make a foreign tax deduction from your taxes paid.
 37 5.2. You cannot take a deduction or credit from the taxes paid on amounts subject to the foreign income or housing 38 exclusion.
 39 5.3. You can deduct foreign property taxes and foreign income taxes using the Schedule A form.
 40 5.4. Foreign income taxes can only be taken as a credit on form 1040, line 43, or as an itemized deduction on Schedule
 41 A for amounts above the foreign income exclusion amount.
 42 5.5. You can use IRS Form 1116 to take a foreign tax credit and file this form with your 1040. This form can be used 43 to figure the amount of foreign tax paid or accrued that you can claim as a foreign tax credit.
 44 5.6. The rules for breaking up credits between earned income and unearned income can be complicated, and we 45 recommend that you refer to IRS Publication 54 for details.
- 46 6. All "foreign income" is classified into three categories:
 47 6.1. Earned income (payments received in exchange for personal services):
 48 6.1.1. Salaries and wages.
 49 6.1.2. Commissions
 50 6.1.3. Bonuses
 51 6.1.4. Professional fees
 52 6.1.5. Tips

- 1 6.2. Unearned income
  - 2 6.2.1. Dividends
  - 3 6.2.2. Interest
  - 4 6.2.3. Capital gains
  - 5 6.2.4. Gambling winnings
  - 6 6.2.5. Alimony
  - 7 6.2.6. Social Security benefits.
  - 8 6.2.7. Pensions
  - 9 6.2.8. Annuities
- 10 6.3. Variable Income
  - 11 6.3.1. Business profits
  - 12 6.3.2. Royalties
  - 13 6.3.3. Rents

- 14 7. You can deduct the full cost of housing minus any reimbursements from your employer or the government.
- 15 8. After you deduct the housing costs, you can apply an exclusion amount of up to $78,000 (in the year 2001) to your remaining earned income (such as wages and payments for personal services).
- 16 9. You can fill out an IRS Form 673 and give it to your employer, which allows them to legally exclude amounts of your income below the $78,000 (in the year 2001) from your income subject to income tax withholding. This form becomes the equivalent of an IRS Form W-4E (exemption from withholding). Here is what IRS Publication 54 (2000 version) says on pages 7 through 9 about this:

 22 foreign country unless the employer is required by law to withhold foreign income tax. Your employer, however,
 23 is not required to withhold U.S. income tax from the portion of your wages earned abroad that are equal to the 24 foreign earned income exclusion and the foreign housing exclusion if your employer has good reason to believe 25 that you will qualify for these exclusions.”

26 Once again, we remind you of the meaning of “U.S.” above, which means the “federal zone”, and includes only the 27 District of Columbia and the federal territories and possessions. If they meant the United States of America or the 50
 28 Union states, then they would have used that term and specified it clearly. They obviously didn't, because they have no
 29 legal authority or jurisdiction or sovereignty within the States to use that term.

- 30 10. Regardless of the fact that you do not owe any federal income tax, you must still file a form 2555 annually if your income
 31 exceeds a specified amount as follows (for the year 2000):

32 Filing Status Amount

|                                          |          |
|------------------------------------------|----------|
| 33 Single                                | $7,200  |
| 34 65 or older                           | $8,300  |
| 35 Head of household                     | $9,250  |
| 36 65 or older                           | $10,350 |
| 37 Qualifying widow(er)                  | $10,150 |
| 38 65 or older                           | $11,250 |
| 39 Married filing jointly                | $12,950 |
| 40 Not living with spouse at end of year | $2,800  |
| 41 One spouse 65 or older                | $13,800 |
| 42 Both spouses 65 or older              | $14,650 |
| 43 Married filing separately             | $2,800  |

- 44 11. Social Security and Medicare taxes apply even when you work in a foreign country.
- 45 12. U.S. payers of earned income excluding wages (other than U.S. government wages) are required to withhold at a flat rate
 46 of 30% of all earnings, including dividends and royalties. If you are a U.S. citizen or resident and this tax is withheld in 47 error from payments to you because you have a foreign address, you should notify the payer of the income to stop the 48 withholding. Use form W-9.
- 49 13. Foreign earned income may NOT include the following:
  - 50 13.1. The previously excluded value of meals and lodging furnished for the convenience of your employer.
  - 51 13.2. Pension or annuity payments including social security benefits.
  - 52 13.3. U.S. Government payments to its employees.
  - 53 13.4. Amounts included in your income because of your employer's contributions to a nonexempt employee trust or to a 54 nonqualified annuity contract.

1 13.5. Recaptured unallowable moving expenses.

2 13.6. Payments received after the end of the tax year following the tax year in which you performed the services that
3 earned the income.

4 (Doubters NOTE: Did you notice that the above (item 13) list DIDN'T exclude from "foreign income" income derived
5 from any of the 50 Union states?)

7 14. For the purposes of the foreign earned income exclusion and the foreign housing exclusion or deduction, foreign earned
8 income does not include any amounts paid by the United States or any of its agencies to its employees. Payments to 9 employees of unappropriated fund activities are not foreign earned income. Nonappropriated fund activities include the 10 following employers:

11 14.1. Armed forces post exchanges.

12 14.2. Officers' and enlisted personnel clubs

14 14.4. Embassy commissaries.

15 15. Amounts paid by the United States or its agencies to persons who are not their employees may qualify for exclusion or 16 deduction.

17 5.3.8 Tactics Useful for Employees of the U.S. Government

18 What's interesting about the earlier sections relative to nonresident alien status is that U.S. government "employees" (5 U.S.C.
19 §2105) are the ones who get screwed by having to pay taxes on "wages" from U.S.**/federal zone sources, which is precisely
20 the opposite of what you would expect as a reward for their patriotism and loyalty. According to dubious IRS publications,
21 U.S. Government employees domiciled outside the federal zone earn "gross income" under Subtitle A of the code if they
22 volunteer to become "taxpayers". Since they are domiciled outside the federal zone and were born there in most cases, they
23 are "non-resident non-persons" by default. By virtue of the public office they hold, they also become "nonresident aliens"
24 and under 26 U.S.C. §871(a), they must then "donate" a flat 30% federal income tax on income sources "within" the federal 25 zone". There are a number of ways that U.S. Government employees can effectively and legally avoid this kind of taxation.
26 Here are some of the ways designed to minimize your tax liability:

- 27 1. Even if you do earn money from "within" the federal United States, there is still no statute under Internal Revenue Code, 28 Subtitle A that makes you liable to pay any funds to the government.
- 29 2. The same source rules described in 26 U.S.C. Sections 861 and 862 apply to federal income. Therefore, your earnings
30 as a person who works for the federal government are still not "income" in a constitutional sense and is still not subject
31 to federal income tax! Refer to sections 5.6.5 and 8.1 for further details.
- 32 3. Remember the definition of "employee" from 26 U.S.C. §3401(c) (the Internal Revenue Code)? It says:

33 26 U.S.C. Sec. 3401

34 (c) Employee

36 For purposes of this chapter, the term "employee" includes [is limited to] an officer, employee, or elected
37 official of the United States, a State, or any political subdivision thereof, or the District of Columbia, or any 38 agency or instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing. The term "employee" also includes an officer of 39 a corporation.

40 (See section 3.12.1.4 for further details on the definition of "employee".) For the purposes of income tax withholding
41 liability, 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(c)-1 defines the term "employee" as elected or appointed political officials of the United 42 States, which most federal employees do not fall under. You must therefore be an elected or appointed official of the 43 U.S. holding public office or an officer of a corporation to be a U.S. Government "employee". Most government
44 "employees" are neither of these, and therefore at least for the purposes of the income tax, they may include their income
45 as "foreign". Also, if we look at the definition of "employee" found in 5 U.S.C. §2105, you must be appointed to civil 46 service by the President, a member of Congress, a member of a uniformed service, or another "employee" who has been.
47 See the following if you would like to learn more:

48 Why Your Government is Either a Thief or You are a "Public Officer" for Income Tax Purposes, Form #05.008
49 <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

- 48 4. Earnings as a federal worker (note we didn't say "employee") paid by the United States actually comes from you! You that redistributes the income that tax payers from the 50 Union states pay to it. That means that the U.S. government didn't really pay this money because it never earned it, and receipt of income that it never earned can't be a privilege. Remember, all rights and privileges we enjoy in the United States come from the PEOPLE and NOT the government. The people and NOT the government are the true sovereigns in our system of government. The Declaration of Independence says so! Therefore, you could say that the income was directly paid by the tax payers, and indirectly by the U.S. government. That is why the federal courts say they have authority to assess "direct" income taxes, in many cases.
49 are a "tax payer" (but not a "taxpayer"). The United States government is just the "independent contractor" for the states

5. One common approach that many government employees use to escape tax withholding and reporting (but not tax liability, because there is no such thing under I.R.C., Subtitle A) is to become independent contractors for the government. As we described in item 10 above, such contractors are not considered employees and therefore their income can be described as "foreign income" which is subject to the "foreign exclusion" amount and housing deductions.

With all of the interesting knowledge gleaned from above, who needs the politicians to give us a tax cut? We can give ourselves a BIG tax cut just by changing our civil status to "non-resident non-person", and IRS Publication 519 tells us exactly how to do it! If we file as "non-resident non-persons" or even "nonresident aliens, then for most of us, our income federal income tax would go to zero! We can also quit jobs with the U.S. Government and become independent contractors to cut our federal taxes. However, we have to make sure that we don't falsely indicate a domicile in the federal zone on any federal or government form, or all these benefits go out the window and we lose our Constitutional rights.

5.4 The Truth About the "Voluntary" Aspect of Income Taxes

5.4.1 The true meaning of "voluntary"

Next, we will analyze what "voluntary" really means. Black's Law Dictionary deceptively defines the word "voluntary" as follows:

voluntary. "Unconstrained by interference; unimpelled by another's influence; spontaneous; acting of oneself. Coker v. State, 199 Ga. 20, 33 S.E.2d. 171, 174. Done by design or intention. Proceeding from the free and unrestrained will of the person. Produced in or by an act of choice. Resulting from free choice, without compulsion or solicitation. The word, especially in statutes, often implies knowledge of essential facts. Without valuable consideration; gratuitous, as a voluntary conveyance. Also, having a merely nominal consideration; as, a voluntary deed."
[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1575]

Remember, lawyers licensed by a corrupted government with a conflict of interest wrote the above and the goal they had was to keep you from seeing the real truth so they could perpetuate their livelihood and prestige. They tip-toed around the real issue by using "free choice" and "free will", without explaining from where these two things originate. This is what we call "legal peek-aboo". The result is that they told you everything about the word "voluntary" except the most important thing, which is the relationship of the word to "consent". You can throw out all that lawyer double-speak crap above and replace the definition with the following, which is very simple and easy to comprehend and which speaks the complete truth:

"voluntary. Proceeding of one's own initiative from consent derived without duress, force, or fraud being applied. Proceeding with the informed and full knowledge and participation of the person or entity against whom any possibly adverse consequences or liabilities may result, and which the consenting party wills and wishes to happen."

The reason duress cannot exist in order for a civil law or contract to be enforceable is that any contract or commitment made in the presence of duress is void or voidable, according to the American Jurisprudence (Am.Jur) Legal Encyclopedia:

"An agreement [consensual contract] obtained by duress, coercion, or intimidation is invalid, since the party coerced is not exercising his free will, and the test is not so much the means by which the party is compelled to execute the agreement as the state of mind induced. <sup>58</sup> Duress, like fraud, rarely becomes material, except where a contract or conveyance has been made which the maker wishes to avoid. As a general rule, duress renders the contract or conveyance voidable, not void, at the option of the person coerced, <sup>59</sup> and it is susceptible of

1                   ratification. Like other voidable contracts, it is valid until it is avoided by the person entitled to avoid it.<sup>60</sup>
 2                   However, duress in the form of physical compulsion, in which a party is caused to appear to assent when he has
 4                   [American Jurisprudence 2d, Duress, §21 (1999)]

5 All governments are established EXCLUSIVELY for the protection of PRIVATE rights. The first step in protecting private
 6 rights, in turn, is to prevent them from being converted into public rights and public property without the consent of the 7 owner. Therefore, anyone in government who calls anything “voluntary” is committing FRAUD if they refuse to protect 8 your right to NOT volunteer by:

- 9 1. Readily recognizing that those who do NOT consent exist. For instance, recognizing and protecting the fact that:
  - 10 1.1. Not everyone is a “driver” under the vehicle code, and it is OK to travel WITHOUT a “license” or permission 11 from the government if you are not using the roadways to conduct business activity.
  - 12 1.2. “nontaxpayers” or “persons other than statutory taxpayers” exist.
  - 13 1.3. You are encouraged and allowed to get married WITHOUT a state license and write your own marriage contract.
 14 The family code is a franchise and a contract. Since you have a right NOT to contract, then you have a right to 15 write your own marriage contract that excludes ANY participation by the government or any right by the 16 government to write the terms of the marriage contract.
- 17 2. Prosecuting those who engage in an of the following activities that injure non-consenting parties:
  - 18 2.1. Institute duress against people who are compelled to misrepresent their status on a government form as a 19 precondition of doing business. Banks and employers do this all the time and it is CRIMINAL.
  - 20 2.2. PRESUME that you are a consenting party and franchisee, such as a “taxpayer”, “driver”, “spouse”, etc. We call 21 this “theft by presumption”, because such a presumption associates you with the obligations of a status you do not 22 have because you didn't consent to have it.
- 23 3. Providing forms and checkboxes on existing forms that recognize those who don't consent or volunteer, such as a 24 “nontaxpayer” or “nonresident non-individual” block on tax withholding forms.
- 25 4. Providing a block on their forms that says “Not subject but not statutorily ‘exempt’”. An “exempt” person is, after all,
 26 someone who is otherwise subject but is given a special exclusion for a given situation. One can be “not subject”
 27 without being statutorily “exempt”.
- 28 5. Providing forms and remedies for those who are either nonresidents or those who have been subjected to duress to 29 misrepresent their status as being a franchisee such as a “taxpayer”.
- 30 6. Providing a REAL, common law, non-franchise court, where those who are not party to the franchise can go to get a
 31 remedy that is just as convenient and inexpensive as that provided to franchisees. Example: U.S. Tax Court Rule
 32 13(a) says that only franchisees called statutory “taxpayers” can petition the court, and yet there is not equally 33 convenient remedy for NONTAXPAYERS and judges in district court harass, threaten and penalize those who are
 34 “nontaxpayer”.

35 It is a maxim of law that gross negligence is equivalent to FRAUD. If they CALL something “voluntary” and yet refuse to 36 ENFORCE all the above, it is gross negligence and therefore fraud under the common law:

 39                   [Bouvier's Maxims of Law, 1856;
 40                   SOURCE: <http://famguardian.org/Publications/BouvierMaximsOfLaw/BouviertsMaxims.htm>]

41 A failure to implement all of the above by those who call themselves “government” is also a violation of the requirement for 42 “equal protection of the law” that is the foundation of the United States Constitution. Any organization that calls itself a
 43 “government” and that does NOT provide ALL the remedies indicated above is a de facto government that is engaging in 44 “selective enforcement” to benefit itself personally and financially and has a criminal conflict of financial interest. Here is 45 how the U.S. Supreme Court describes such a de facto government:

46                   “It must be conceded that there are [PRIVATE] rights [and property] in every free government beyond the control
 47                   of the State [or any judge or jury]. A government which recognized no such rights, which held the lives, liberty
 48                   and property of its citizens, subject at all times to the disposition and unlimited control of even the most

<sup>61</sup> Restatement 2d, Contracts § 174, stating that if conduct that appears to be a manifestation of assent by a party who does not intend to engage in that conduct is physically compelled by duress, the conduct is not effective as a manifestation of assent.

1 democratic depository of power, is after all a despotism. It is true that it is a despotism of the many--of the 2 majority, if you choose to call it so--but it is not the less a despotism."
 3 [Loan Ass'n v. Topeka, 87 U.S. (20 Wall.) 655, 665 (1874)]

4 The de facto government described above that REFUSES to do the MAIN job it was created to do of protecting PRIVATE 5 rights is extensively described in:

De Facto Government Scam, Form #05.043
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

6 The Declaration of Independence says that all just powers of government derive from the "consent" of the governed, which
 7 implies that anything not consensual is unjust. "Consent" is the real issue, not "free will". When a government lawyer is 8 prosecuting a rape perpetrator, he doesn't talk about whether the woman "volunteered" to have sex by failing to fight her
 9 attacker. Instead, he talks about whether she "consented".

10 "As used in the law of rape 'consent' means consent of the will,
 11 and submission under the influence of fear or terror cannot 12 amount to real consent. There must be an exercise of intelligence based on knowledge of its

13 significance and moral quality and there must be a [free, uncoerced] choice between resistance and assent. And 14 if a woman resists to the point where further resistance would be useless or until her resistance is overcome by 15 force or violence, submission thereafter is not 'consent'.
 16 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 305, emphasis added]

17 Somehow, these same federal prosecutors, when THEY become the "financial rapists" of the citizenry, suddenly magically
 18 and mysteriously "forget" about the requirement for the same kind of "consent" in the context of taxes on the labor of a
 19 human being. Like the all too frequent political scandals that haunt American politics, they develop "selective amnesia"
 20 about the fact that slavery and involuntary servitude were outlawed by the Thirteenth Amendment, and that taxes on labor
 21 are slavery. For no explicable or apparent reason that they are willing to admit, they mysteriously replace the forbidden
 22 "consent" word with a nebulous "voluntary compliance" so there is just enough "cognitive dissonance" to keep the jury in
 23 fear and doubt so they can be easily manipulated to do the government's illegal lynching of a fellow citizen. Who better than 24 a lawyer would use language to disguise the criminal nature of their acts? Apparently, financial rape is OK as long as the 25 government is doing the raping and as long as government lawyers are careful to use "politically correct" words to describe
 26 the rape like "voluntary compliance". Do women being raped "voluntarily comply" with their rapists at the point they quit
 27 fighting? We think not, and the same thing could be said of those who do not wish to participate in a corrupted and 28 unconstitutionally administered tax system under protest.

29 In a free country such as we have in America, consent is mandatory in every human interaction. The basis for protecting
 30 rights within such an environment is the free exercise of our power to contract. All law in a society populated by Sovereigns
 31 is based on our right to contract. If we are entering into a consensual relationship with another party where risk may be
 32 involved, we can write a contract or agreement to define the benefits and liabilities resulting from that relationship and use
 33 the court system to ensure adherence to the contract.

34 Contract. An agreement between two or more [sovereign] persons which creates an obligation to do or not to 35 do a particular thing. As defined in Restatement, Second, Contracts §3: "A contract is a promise or a set of 36 promises for the breach of which the law gives a remedy, or the performance of which the law in some way
 37 recognizes as a duty." A legal relationships consisting of the rights and duties of the contracting parties; a
 38 promise or set of promises constituting an agreement between the parties that gives each a legal duty to the other
 39 and also the right to seek a remedy for the breach of those duties. Its essentials are competent parties, subject
 40 matter, a legal consideration, mutuality of agreement, and mutuality of consideration. Lamoureux v. Burrillville
 41 Racing Ass'n, 91 R.I. 94, 161 A.2d. 213, 215.

42 Under U.C.C., term refers to total legal obligation which results from parties' agreement as affected by the Code.
 43 Section 1-201(11). As to sales, "contract" and "agreement" are limited to those relating to present or future
 44 sales of goods, and "contract for sale" includes both a present sale of goods and a contract to sell goods at a 45 future time. U.C.C. §2-106(a).

46 The writing which contains the agreement of parties with the terms and conditions, and which serves as a proof
 47 of the obligation

1 Our personal rights and our ability to protect them through our power to contract is the essence of our sovereignty and our
2 rightful ownership over our life, liberty, and property. There are several ways in which we use our power to contract as a
3 means of protection:

- 4 1. The U.S. Constitution and our state constitutions are all contracts between us and our public servants. Every public
5 servant must swear an oath to uphold and defend this contract. Willful violation of this Contract is called "Treason" and
6 is punishable by death. These contracts, in fact, are the ones responsible for the creation of all federal and state
7 governments. See section 4.4.3 earlier, where Lysander Spooner analyzed the nature of the Constitution as a contract.
- 8 2. Marriage licenses are a contract between us, the state, AND our partner. There are THREE, not TWO parties to this 9 contract. In that sense, getting a marriage license makes us into a polygamist. Signing this contract makes us subject to 10 the Family Code in our state. We cannot be subject to these codes any other way, because Common Law Marriage is 11 not recognized in most states.
- 12 3. Employment agreements are contracts between us and our prospective employer.
- 13 4. Trust deeds on property are contracts between the buyer, the finance company, and the county government.
- 14 5. Citizenship is contract between you and the government. The only party to the contract who can revoke the contract is 15 you, and NOT your government. We talked about this earlier in section 4.11.10 and following.

16 In the Bible, contracts are called "covenants" or "promises" or "commandments". In law, contracts are called "compacts":

17 "Compact, n. An agreement or contract between persons, nations, or states. Commonly applied to working
18 agreements between and among states concerning matters of mutual concern. A contract between parties, which
19 creates obligations and rights capable of being enforced and contemplated as such between the parties, in their
20 distinct and independent characters. A mutual consent of parties concerned respecting some property or right
21 that is the object of the stipulation, or something that is to be done or forborne. See also Compact clause;
22 Confederacy; Interstate compact; Treaty."
23 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 281]

24 In the context of government, we showed earlier in section 4.3.1 that our government is a "government by compact", which
25 is to say that the Constitution is a contract between us, who are the Masters, and our public servants, who are our servants
26 and agents:

27 "In Europe, the executive is synonymous with the sovereign power of a state...where it is too commonly acquired
28 *by force or fraud, or both...In America, however the case is widely different. Our government is founded upon 29 compact [consent expressed in a written contract called a Constitution or in positive law]. Sovereignty was,
30 and is, in the people [as individuals: that's you!]."
31 [Glass v. The Sloop Betsey, 3 (U.S.) Dall 6]

32 The Supreme Court agreed that all laws in any civil society are based on collective consent of the Sovereign within any 33 community when it said:

34 "Undoubtedly no single nation can change the law of the sea. That law is of universal obligation, and no statute
35 *of one or two nations can create obligations for the world. Like all the laws of nations, it rests upon the common 36 consent of civilized communities."
37 [The Scotia, 81 U.S. (14 Wall.) 170 (1871)]

38 The legal profession has been trying to escape revealing the Master/Servant fiduciary relationship established by the contract
39 and trust indenture called our Constitution by removing such important words as "public servant" from the legal dictionary,
40 but the relationship still exists. Ever wonder what happened to that word? Greedy lawyer tyrants and the politicians who 41 license and oppress them don't want you knowing who is in charge or acting like the Master that you are.

42 The Constitution governs our horizontal relationship with our fellow man, which the Bible calls our "neighbor". Likewise,
43 the Bible governs our vertical relationship with our Creator and it is the origin of all our earthly rights. Our rights are Divine
44 rights direct from God Himself. The Declaration of Independence says so. We as believers in God are bound by the contract
45 or covenant called the Bible to obey our Master and Maker, who is God. This makes us into His temporary fiduciaries and 46 servants and ambassadors while we are here on earth.

47 "I am your servant; give me discernment that I may understand your [God's] testimonies [laws]."
48 [Psalm 119:125, Bible, NKJV]

49 "In Your [God's] mercy cut off my enemies, and destroy all those who afflict my soul; for I am Your servant."
50 [Psalm 143:12, Bible, NKJV]

1 If we violate our treaty or contract with God by violating His laws found in the Bible and thereby injure our neighbor or
 2 fellow American, then we must be stripped by God Himself of our stewardship and most of the benefits and blessings of the 3 contract that created it by using the “police powers” we delegated to our public servants. One of the greatest benefits and
 4 rewards of respecting and keeping our contract and covenant with God, of course, is personal sovereignty, liberty, and the 5 right to rule and direct the activities of our public servants:

6 “Now the Lord is the Spirit; and where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty.”
 7 [2 Cor. 3:17, Bible, NKJV]

8 “Humble yourselves in the sight of the Lord, and He will lift you up [above your public servants and 9 government].”
 10 [James 4:10, Bible, NKJV]

11 The reason we must be divested of our sovereignty as a criminal member of society is that we can't be allowed to direct the 12 activities of a government using our political rights unless we continually demonstrate mature love and concern for our fellow
 13 man, because the purpose of government is to protect and not harm our neighbor. Unless we know how to govern ourselves
 14 and protect and love our neighbor and not harm him, then we certainly can't lead or teach our public servants to do it! If we 15 violate the very purpose of government with our own personal actions in hurting others, we simply can't and shouldn't be 16 allowed to direct those who would keep us from being injured by such activities because doing so would be a conflict of 17 interest.

18 It shouldn't come as a surprise that there are limits on our right and power to contract within a republican system of 19 government. These limits apply not only to our private contracts with other sovereign individuals, but also to our ability to 20 delegate authority to the governments we created through the written contract called the U.S. Constitution. The Supreme 21 Court said the following about these limits in respect to our ability to write “law” that can be enforced against society
 22 generally:

23 “In Calder v. Bull, which was here in 1798, Mr. Justice Chase said, that there were acts which the Federal and 24 State legislatures could not do without exceeding their authority [from GOD!], and among them he mentioned
 25 a law which punished a citizen for an innocent act; a law that destroyed or impaired the lawful private [labor]
 26 contracts [and labor compensation, e.g. earnings from employment through compelled W-4 withholding] of 27 citizens; a law that made a man judge in his own case; and a law that took the property from A [the worker],
 28 and gave it to B [the government or another citizen, such as through social welfare programs]. 'It is against 29 all reason and justice,' he added, 'for a people to intrust a legislature with such powers, and therefore it cannot 30 be presumed that they have done it. They may command what is right and prohibit what is wrong; but they
 31 cannot change innocence into guilt, or punish innocence as a crime, or violate the right of an antecedent
 32 lawful private [employment] contract [by compelling W-4 withholding, for instance], or the right of private 33 property. To maintain that a Federal or State legislature possesses
 34 such powers [of THEFT!] if they had not been expressly
 35 restrained, would, in my opinion, be a political heresy altogether
 36 inadmissible in all free republican governments.' 3 Dall. 388.”
 37 [Sinking Fund Cases, 99 U.S. 700 (1878)]

38 In the quote below, the Supreme Court has also held that that no man can be compelled to participate in any government
 39 welfare or social benefit program.

40 “Men are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, -life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness;”
 41 and to 'secure,' not grant or create, these rights, governments are instituted. That property which a man has 42 honestly acquired he retains full control of, subject to these limitations:

43 [1] First, that he shall not use it to his neighbor's injury, and that does not mean that he must use it for his 44 neighbor's benefit;
 45 [2] second, that if he devotes it to a public use, he gives to the public a right to control that use; and 46 [3] third, that whenever the public needs require, the public may take it upon payment of due compensation.
 47 [Budd v. People of State of New York, 143 U.S. 517 (1892)]

48 Notice the Supreme Court held:

49 “he shall not use it [his property or labor or income] to his neighbor's injury, and that does not mean that he 50 must [or can be required by the government] use it for his neighbor's benefit”.

1 Since over 56% of all federal expenditures go to pay for social benefit programs (see section 1.12 earlier), then it also stands
 2 to reason that no one can be compelled to participate in the federal income tax that funds those programs. The secret the
 3 government uses to part a fool and his money through the fraudulent administration of the tax laws is item (2) in the quote
 4 above, whereby the lies of the IRS cause us to unwittingly donate our private property to a "public use" and give the
 5 government free control over it. This is what happens when we inadvertently connect our labor or assets to a "public office"
 6 or a "trade or business" by:

- 7 1. Filing information returns (IRS Forms W-2, 1042-S, 1098, 1099) on ourselves which are FALSE in most cases.
- 8 2. Using government property, the Social Security Number or Taxpayer Identification Number, in connection with our 9 otherwise private labor.
- 10 3. Refusing to correct or remedy those who file false returns in our name in violation of 26 U.S.C. §7434 and 26 U.S.C.
 11 §7206. The prosecution rests its case, your Honor.
- 12 4. Filling out the wrong tax form such as the W-4 and thereby fraudulently misrepresenting oneself as a statutory 13 government "employee" per 26 U.S.C. §3401(c).

14 5.4.2 "Public Law" or "Private Law?"

15 The most important subject to study in the legal field is how to distinguish what is "law" and what is not. This is a subject
 16 that is not taught in law schools, because lawyers and politicians want you to believe that everything they enact into law
 17 imposes an immediate obligation upon you, which is simply not true in the vast majority of cases. Many laws, in fact, are 18 simply "directory in nature", meaning that you have an option to obey them but they cannot be lawfully enforced if you don't.

19 *"Directory. A provision in a statute, rule of procedure, or the like, which is a mere direction or instruction of no
 20 obligatory force, and involving no invalidating consequence for its disregard, as opposed to an imperative or 21 mandatory provision, which must be followed. The general rule is that the prescriptions of a statute relating to 22 the performance of a public duty are so far directory that, though neglect of them may be punishable, yet it does 23 not affect the validity of the acts done under them, as in the case of statute requiring an officer to prepare and 24 deliver a document to another officer on or before a certain day."
 25 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 460]*

26 This section and the following subsections will therefore concern themselves with teaching the reader how discern between
 27 legislation which imposes an affirmative obligation and liability, and that which is merely "directory in nature" and of no
 28 obligatory force. We will prove that the origin of all law in America is informed, voluntary consent and that where there is 29 no consent, there is no enforceable legal right to anything. This is a very important subject, because it will help you to modify 30 your behavior with the goal of freeing you from obeying many legal enactments of your servant government which:

- 31 1. Are not in fact "law" in your specific case.
- 32 2. Are simply "directory in nature" and of no obligatory force.
- 33 3. Are "special law" or "private law" that apply only to a particular group of persons and things that you are not a part of.
- 34 4. Are "private law" disguised as "public law" to deceive you into obedience.
- 35 5. Apply only to government employees and not to the general public as a whole.

36 By helping you to discern what is "obligatory" and what is "directory", we don't mean to suggest any of the following:

- 37 1. That the Internal Revenue Code or the Social Security Act are not "law". They absolutely are.
- 38 2. That there are no persons subject to them.
- 39 3. That I.R.C., Subtitle A doesn't apply to anyone. Rather, the group of persons who are subject to it is far more limited 40 than most people realize.
- 41 4. That "taxpayers" are not subject to the Internal Revenue Code.
- 42 5. That there are no "taxpayers".

43 In covering this important subject, we will learn to distinguish between "Public law" and "private law", and we will 44 demonstrate their relationship to "positive law". We will also hopefully give you the words and tools to argue these issues
 45 in a court of law so that you avoid many of the legal traps that many freedom lovers fall into.

46 5.4.2.1 Public v. Private law

As we said earlier in sections 3.3 and 4.3.3, the purpose of law, like the purpose of government, is to protect us from harming each other, in fulfillment of the second great commandment to love our neighbor found in the Bible in Matt. 22:39. The only means by which law can afford that protection is to:

1. Prohibit and punish harmful behaviors.
2. Leave men otherwise free to regulate and fully control their own lives.

Thomas Jefferson agreed with the above conclusions when he said:

"With all [our] blessings, what more is necessary to make us a happy and a prosperous people? Still one thing more, fellow citizens--a wise and frugal Government, which shall restrain men from injuring one another, shall leave them otherwise free to regulate their own pursuits of industry and improvement, and shall not take from the mouth of labor the bread it has earned. This is the sum of good government, and this is necessary to close the circle of our felicities."

[Thomas Jefferson: 1st Inaugural, 1801. ME 3:320]

In the above sense, law is a negative concept: It provides a remedy for past harm but has no moral authority to prevent or promote or mandate any other type of behavior, including the public good. De jure law acts only upon those who institute past injury. When it acts upon FUTURE conduct or in a PREVENTIVE rather than CORRECTIVE role, it requires the CONSENT of those who are affected by its preventive role. Otherwise, involuntary servitude and theft of property is the result, where "rights" are property.

The very basis of the government's police powers, in fact, is only to provide a remedy for past harm but not to compel any other behavior. Since the Constitution in the Fourteenth Amendment, Section 1 mandates "equal protection of the laws" to everyone, then all laws dealing with such protection must be "public" and affect everyone equally in society:

"Public law. A general classification of law, consisting generally of constitutional, administrative, criminal, and international law, concerned with the organization of the state, the relations between the state and the people who compose it, the responsibilities of public officers to the state, to each other, and to private persons, and the relations of states to one another. An act which relates to the public as a whole. It may be (1) general (applying to all persons within the jurisdiction), (2) local (applying to a geographical area), or (3) special (relating to an organization which is charged with a public interest).

That portion of law that defines rights and duties with either the operation of government, or the relationships between the government and the individuals, associations, and corporations.

That branch or department of law which is concerned with the state in its political or sovereign capacity, including constitutional and administrative law, and with the definition, regulation, and enforcement of rights in cases where the state is regarded as the subject of the right or object of the duty, --including criminal law and criminal procedure, --and the law of the state, considered in its quasi private personality, i.e., as capable of holding or exercising rights, or acquiring and dealing with property, in the character of an individual. That portion of law which is concerned with political conditions; that is to say, with the powers, rights, duties, capacities, and incapacities which are peculiar to political superiors, supreme and subordinate. In one sense, a designation given to international law, as distinguished from the laws of a particular nation or state. In another sense, a law or statute that applies to the people generally of the nation or state adopting or enacting it, is denominated a public law, as contradistinguished from a private law, affecting an individual or a small number of persons.

See also General law. Compare Private bill; Private law; Special law."
[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1230]

In a Republican form of government, passage of all public laws requires the explicit consent of the governed. That consent is provided through our elected representatives and is provided collectively rather than individually. Any measure passed by a legislature:

1. Which does not limit itself to prohibiting and punishing harmful behaviors.
2. Does not apply to everyone equally (equal protection of the laws).
3. Which was passed without the consent of the governed.

...is therefore voluntary and cannot be called a "Public law". Any law that does not confine itself strictly to public protection and which is enforced through the police powers of the state is classified as "Private Law", "Special Law", "Administrative Law", or "Civil Law". The only way that such measures can adversely affect our rights or become enforceable against anyone

1 is by the exercise of our private right to contract. We must consent individually to anything that does not demonstrably
2 prevent harm. Anything that we privately consent to and which affects only those who consent is called "private law".

3 "Private law. That portion of the law which defines, regulates, enforces, and administers relationships among
4 individuals, associations, and corporations. As used in contradistinction to public law, the term means all that
5 part of the law which is administered between citizen and citizen, or which is concerned with the definition,
6 regulation, and enforcement of rights in cases where both the person in whom the right inheres and the person
7 upon whom the obligation is incident are private individuals. See also Private bill; Special law. Compare Public
8 Law."

9 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1196]

10 Those who consent individually to a private law are the only ones subject to its provisions. For them, this enactment is 11 referred to as "special law":

12 "special law. One relating to particular persons or things; one made for individual cases or for particular places
13 or districts; one operating upon a selected class, rather than upon the public generally. A private law. A law is
14 "special" when it is different from others of the same general kind or designed for a particular purpose, or limited
15 in range or confined to a prescribed field of action or operation. A "special law" relates to either particular
16 persons, places, or things or to persons, places, or things which, though not particularized, are separated by any
17 method of selection from the whole class to which the law might, but not such legislation, be applied. Utah Farm
18 Bureau Ins. Co. v. Utah Ins. Guaranty Ass'n, Utah, 564 P.2d. 751, 754. A special law applies only to an individual
19 or a number of individuals out of a single class similarly situated and affected, or to a special locality. Board of
20 County Com'rs of Lemhi County v. Swensen, Idaho, 80 Idaho 198, 327 P.2d. 361, 362. See also Private bill;
21 Private law. Compare General law; Public law."

22 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, pp. 1397-1398]

23 All "special laws" are by individual consent of the parties only. "Special law" is a subset of and a type of "private law". An 24 example of "special law" is a private contract between individuals.

25 In the context of the government, "special laws" usually deal with procuring "privileges" relating to a regulated or licensed
26 activity. An example would be Social Security. You can only become subject to the provisions of the Social Security Act
27 by signing up for it using the SSA Form SS-5. Those who never signed up for it or who quit the program are not subject to 28 any of the codes relating to it. For those who never signed up for or consented to Social Security by applying:

- 29 1. The Social Security Act is NOT "law" and is irrelevant.
- 30 2. The Social Security Act is not enforceable against them and may not adversely affect their rights. It is "foreign" and 31 "alien" to the jurisdiction and forum within which they live.

32 The same arguments apply to Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A, which is the individual income tax:

- 33 1. Only certain selected groups of people are even allowed to consent to the provisions of the code under Subtitle A. Nearly 34 all of these people hold a "public office" in the United States government and are engaged in a "trade or business", which 35 is a privileged, regulated, and taxable activity.
- 36 2. Those who consented to the I.R.C. by procuring the privilege of taking any kind of deductions or credits under 26 U.S.C.
37 sections 32 or 162 or who signed a "contract" called a W-4 or a 1040 become subject to its provisions.
- 38 3. Those subject to the provisions of the I.R.C. are defined as "taxpayers" in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(14) and they must comply 39 with ALL of its provisions, including the criminal provisions.
- 40 4. Those who never consented to be subject to the Internal Revenue Code are called "nontaxpayers". For them:
41 4.1. Its provisions are not "law" and are irrelevant.
42 4.2. They may not be the target of IRS enforcement actions.
43 4.3. All IRS notices directed at "taxpayers" may not be sent to them.
- 44 5. A government which wants to STEAL your money through fraud will try to hide the mandatory requirement for consent
45 so that you falsely believe compliance is mandatory:
46 5.1. They will try to make the process of consenting "invisible" and keep you unaware that you are consenting.
47 5.2. They will remove references to "nontaxpayers" off their website.
48 5.3. When asked about whether the "code" is voluntary, they will lie to you and tell you that it isn't.
49 5.4. They will pretend like a "private law" is a "public law".
50 5.5. They will commit constructive fraud by abuse the rules of statutory construction to include things in definitions
51 that do not appear anywhere within the law in order to make "private law" look like "public law". See:

Legal Deception, Propaganda, and Fraud, Form #05.014

5.6. They will ensure that all paperwork, such as the W-4, in which you consent hides the fact that it is a contract or agreement. Look at the IRS Form W-4: Do you see any reference to the word “agreement” on it? Well guess what, it’s an agreement and you didn’t even know. The regulations at 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(a)-3(a) say it’s an “agreement”, which is a contract. Why didn’t your public SERVANTS tell you this? Because they want to fool you into thinking that participation is mandatory and that the I.R.C. is a “public law”, when in fact, it is a “private law” that you must consent to in order to be subject to.

On a few very rare occasions, some people have gotten employees of the IRS to admit some of the above facts. Below is a link to a remarkable letter signed by an IRS Disclosure Officer, Cynthia Mills, which admits that the Internal Revenue Code is “special law” and is essentially voluntary and avoidable:

SEDM Exhibit #09.023

The other interesting thing to observe about our deceitful public servants is that if they want to trick you into complying, then they will:

1. Want to label everything they pass, including “private law”, as “public law”.
2. Mix and confuse private law with public law and make the two indistinguishable. For instance, when they propose a bill, they will call it a “public law” and then load it down with a bunch of pork barrel “private law” provisions.
3. Make it so confusing and difficult to distinguish what is public law from what is private law, that people will just give up and be forced to assume falsely that everything is “public law”. The result is the equivalent of “government idolatry”: Assuming authority that does not lawfully exist.

Since the foundation of this country, the U.S. Congress has had two sections of laws they pass in the Statutes at Large: Public Law and Private Law. Every year, the Statutes at Large are published in two volumes: Public Law and Private Law. In many cases, a bill they pass will identify itself as “public law” and be published in the volume labeled “Public law” when in fact it has provisions that are actually “private law”. Then they will obfuscate the definitions or not include definitions, called “words of art”, so as to fool you into thinking that what is actually a private law is a public law. In effect, they will procure your consent through constructive fraud and deceit using the very words of the law itself.

“Shall the throne of iniquity, which devises evil by law, have fellowship with You? They gather together against the life of the righteous, and condemn innocent blood. But the Lord has been my defense, and my God the rock of my refuge. He has brought on them their own iniquity, and shall cut them off in their own wickedness; the Lord our God shall cut them off.”
 [Psalm 94:20-23, Bible, NKJV]

Question: Who else but wicked lawmakers could the Bible be referring to in the above scripture? Now do you know why the book of Revelation refers to the “kings of the earth” as “the Beast” in Rev. 19:19?

We’ll now provide an enlightening table comparing “public law” and “private law” as a way to summarize what we have learned so far:

Table 5-33: Public Law v. Private/Special Law

Now let's apply what we have learned in this section to a famous example: The Ten Commandments. We will demonstrate for you how to deduce the nature of each commandment as being either "public law" or "private law". The rules are simple:

1. Everything that says “thou shalt NOT” or uses the word “no” and carries with it a punishment is a “public law”.
2. Everything that says “thou shalt” is a “private law” that is essentially a voluntary contract. It has no punishment for disobedience but usually has a blessing for obedience.

To start off, we will list each of the ten commandments, from Exodus 20:3-17, NKJV:

1. "You shall have no other gods before Me.
2. "You shall not make for yourself a carved image--any likeness of anything that is in heaven above, or that is in the earth beneath, or that is in the water under the earth; <sup>5</sup>you shall not bow down to them nor serve them. For I, the LORD your God, am a jealous God, visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children to the third and fourth generations of those who hate Me, <sup>6</sup>but showing mercy to thousands, to those who love Me and keep My commandments.
3. "You shall not take the name of the LORD your God in vain, for the LORD will not hold him guiltless who takes His name in vain.
4. "Remember the Sabbath day, to keep it holy. Six days you shall labor and do all your work, but the seventh day is the Sabbath of the LORD your God. In it you shall do no work: you, nor your son, nor your daughter, nor your male servant, nor your female servant, nor your cattle, nor your stranger who is within your gates. For in six days the LORD made the heavens and the earth, the sea, and all that is in them, and rested the seventh day. Therefore the LORD blessed the Sabbath day and hallowed it.
5. "Honor your father and your mother, that your days may be long upon the land which the LORD your God is giving you.
6. "You shall not murder.
7. "You shall not commit adultery.
8. "You shall not steal.
9. "You shall not bear false witness against your neighbor.
10. "You shall not covet your neighbor's house; you shall not covet your neighbor's wife, nor his male servant, nor his female servant, nor his ox, nor his donkey, nor anything that is your neighbor's."

1. Commandments 1,2,3,6,7,8,9,10 are “public law”. They are things you cannot do and which apply equally to everyone. Disobeying these laws will harm either ourself or our neighbor, will offend God, and carry with them punishments for disobedience.
2. Commandments 4 and 5 are “private law”, and apply only to those who consent. Blessings flow from obeying them but no punishment is given for disobeying them anywhere in the Bible. Below is an example of the blessings of obedience to this “private law”:

"Honor your father and your mother, that your days may be long upon the land which the LORD your God is giving you"
[Exodus 20:12, Bible, NKJV].

"Honor your father and your mother, as the LORD your God has commanded you, that your days may be long, and that it may be well with you in the land which the LORD your God is giving you."
[Deut. 5:16, Bible, NKJV]

3. The first four commandments deal with our vertical relationship with God, our Creator, in satisfaction of the first Great Commandment to love our God found in Matt. 22:37.
4. The last six commandments deal with our horizontal, earthly relationship with our neighbor, in satisfaction of the second of two Great Commandments to love our neighbor found in Matt. 22:39.

How do we turn a “private law” into a “public law”? Let’s use the fifth commandment above to “honor your father and mother”. Below is a restatement of that “private law” that makes it a “public law”. A harmful behavior of “cursing” is being given the punishment of death:

"He who curses father or mother, let him be put to death."
[Exodus 21:17, Bible, NKJV]

One last important concept needs to be explained about how to distinguish Public Law or Private law. When reading a statute or code, if the law uses such phrases as “All persons..” or “Everyone..” or “All individuals..”, then it applies equally to everyone and therefore is most likely a “public law”. If the code uses such phrases as “An individual...” instead of “All individuals..”, then it is probably a private or special law that only applies to those who consent to it. The only element necessary in addition to such language in order to make such a section of code into “law” is the consent of the governed, which means the section of code must be formally enacted by the sovereigns within that system of government. If it was never enacted through such consent of the governed, then it can't be described as “law”, except possibly to those specific individuals who, through either an explicit signed written agreement or their conduct, express their consent to be bound by it.

5.4.2.2 Why and how the government deceives you into believing that “private law” is “public law” in order to PLUNDER and ENSLAVE you unlawfully

Your public servants in the Legislative Branch know that the only way they can lawfully through legislation reach inside the “cookie jar”, which are the “foreign states” called states of the Union, is through the operation of “private law” for nearly all subject matters except interstate and foreign commerce. They also know that since private law requires explicit consent and that most people would not voluntarily give up their life, liberty, property, or sovereignty, that the only way they are going to procure such consent is by fooling them into believing that private law is public law that everyone MUST obey. They do this by the following means:

1. They will pretend like a “private law” is a “public law”.
2. They will deny attempts to characterize their activities truthfully as “private law” both in the laws they publish and their court rulings.
3. They will call their enactment a “code” but never refer to it as a “law”. It doesn't become “law” for anyone until they explicitly consent to it. All “law” implicitly conveys rights to the parties, and no rights exist where there is no one who consents to a “code”! Look at 1 U.S.C. §204 and you will see that Title 26 of the Internal Revenue Code is never referred to as a “law”.
4. They will call those who consent “residents” and those who don't consent “aliens” or “transient foreigners”. By doing this, they aren't implying that you LIVE within their jurisdiction, but instead that you are a party to their private law contract who has a “res”, which is a collection of rights and benefits “ident”ified within their jurisdiction. Sneaky, huh?

Resident. “Any person who occupies a dwelling within the State, has a present intent to remain within the State for a period of time, and manifests the genuineness of that intent by establishing an ongoing physical presence within the State together with indicia that his presence within the State is something other than merely transitory in nature. The word “resident” when used as a noun means a dweller, habitant or occupant; one who resides or dwells in a place for a period of more, or less, duration; it signifies one having a residence, or one who resides or abides. [Hanson v. P.A. Peterson Home Ass'n, 35 Ill.App.2d. 134, 182 N.E.2d. 237, 240] [Underlines added]*

Word “resident” has many meanings in law, largely determined by statutory context in which it is used. Kelm v. Carlson, C.A.Ohio, 473, F.2d. 1267, 1271 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1309]

The term “the State” they are referring to in the case of most private law usually means “the government” and not the people that it serves. Everyone who is party to the private law or special law usually are agents, public officers, or “employees” of the government in one form or another. See the following for proof:

Why Your Government is Either a Thief or You are a “Public Officer” for Income Tax Purposes, Form #05.008

5. They will try to make the process of consenting “invisible” and keep you unaware that you are consenting.
6. When you contact them to notify them that you have withdrawn your consent and rescinded your signatures on any forms you filled out, they will LIE to you by telling you that there is no way to quit the program.
7. They will remove references to people who don't consent off their website and from their publications. They will also forbid their employees, through internal policy, from recognizing, helping, or communicating with those who did not consent. For instance, they will refuse to recognize the existence of “nontaxpayers” or people who are not “licensed” or privileged in some way. These people are the equivalent of “aliens” as far as they are concerned.
8. When asked about whether the “code” is voluntary, they will lie to you and tell you that it isn't, and that EVERYONE is obligated to obey it, even though only those who consent in fact are.
9. They will commit constructive fraud by abuse the rules of statutory construction to include things in definitions that do not appear anywhere within the law in order to make “private law” look like “public law” that applies to everyone. See:

Legal Deception, Propaganda, and Fraud, Form #05.014

10. They will ensure that all paperwork that you sign in which you consent hides the fact that it is a contract or agreement. Look at the IRS Form W-4: Do you see any reference to the word “agreement” on it? Well guess what, it's an agreement and you didn't even know. The regulations at 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(a)-3(a) say it's an “agreement”, which is a contract.

Why didn't your public SERVANTS tell you this? Because they want to fool you into thinking that participation is mandatory and that the I.R.C. is a "public law", when in fact, it is a "private law" that you must consent to in order to be subject to.

The government will play all the above games because deep down, they know their primary duty is to protect you, and that the only people they can really regulate or control are their own employees in the process of protecting you. Therefore, they have to make you into one of their own employees or agents or contractors in order to get ANY jurisdiction over you:

"The power to "legislate generally upon" life, liberty, and property, as opposed to the "power to provide modes of redress" against offensive state action, was "repugnant" to the Constitution. Id., at 15. See also United States v. Reese, 92 U.S. 214, 218 (1876); United States v. Harris, 106 U.S. 629, 639 (1883); James v. Bowman, 190 U.S. 127, 139 (1903). Although the specific holdings of these early cases might have been superseded or modified, see, e.g., Heart of Atlanta Motel, Inc. v. United States, 379 U.S. 241 (1964); United States v. Guest, 383 U.S. 745 (1966), their treatment of Congress' §5 power as corrective or preventive, not definitional, has not been questioned."

How can we know this is happening for any given interaction with the government? It's really quite simple. Let us give you an example. Just about every municipality in the country has a system of higher education. Every one of them charges TWO rates for their tuition: 1. Resident; 2. Nonresident. The Constitution in Section 1 of the Fourteenth Amendment requires "equal protection", which means EVERYONE, resident or nonresident, is EQUAL under the law. It's logical to ask:

"How can they discriminate against nonresidents by charging them a significantly higher rate of college tuition than residents without violating the equal protection clauses of the Constitution? Why hasn't someone litigated this in court already and fixed this injustice?"

The answer is that:

1. The municipality has created a PRIVATE corporation under the authority of PRIVATE law.
2. Those who partake of the benefits of this PRIVATE corporation are partaking of a PRIVILEGE, and can only procure the PRIVILEGE by consenting to the contract codified within the laws of the municipality.
3. The written application for the benefit constitutes the "consent" to the contract, even though the complete terms of the contract do not appear on the contract itself. In practice, the terms of the contract, like the laws themselves, are so voluminous that it would be impractical to publish them on the form used to apply for the benefit. Therefore, the terms are deliberately left out so that the applicant, in practical effect, is signing a BLANK CHECK! The government, by rewriting its laws, can change the terms of the contract at any time without your explicit consent!

CALIFORNIA CIVIL CODE
 DIVISION 3. OBLIGATIONS
 PART 2. CONTRACTS
 CHAPTER 3. CONSENT

1589. A voluntary acceptance of the benefit of a transaction is equivalent to a consent to all the obligations arising from it, so far as the facts are known, or ought to be known, to the person accepting.

4. The method for providing "reasonable notice" of the terms of the "constructive contract" or "implied contract" is by publication of a "code" by the municipality within its municipal ordinances. They call it a "code" because it isn't law until someone consents to it! In that sense, it is an "invisible contract", because most people never read the laws that their government publishes and couldn't read or research the law if their life depended on it. The federal and state courts have repeatedly affirmed that everyone has a duty to seek out, read, and know the law:

But it must be remembered that all are presumed to know the law, and that whoever deals with a municipality*643 is bound to know the extent of its powers. Those who contract with it, or furnish it supplies, do so with reference to the law, and must see that limit is not exceeded. With proper care on their part and on the part of the representatives of the municipality, there is no danger of loss."

"Every citizen of the United States is supposed to know the law. . ."

[Floyd Acceptances, 7 Wall (74 U.S. 169) 666 (1869)]

"Of course, ignorance of the law does not excuse misconduct in any one, least of all in a sworn officer of the law. But this is a quasi criminal action, and in fixing the penalty to be imposed the court should properly take into account the motives and purposes which actuated the accused. Applying these considerations, we think the requirements of the situation will be satisfied by a judgment suspending the respondent from practice for a limited time."

It is one of the fundamental maxims of the common law that ignorance of the law excuses no one. If ignorance of the law could in all cases be the foundation of a suit in equity for relief, there would be no end of litigation, and the administration of justice would become in effect impracticable. There would be but few cases in which one party or the other would not allege it as a ground for exemption from legal liability, and the extent of the legal knowledge of each individual suitor would be the material fact on which judgment would be founded. Instead of trying the facts of the case and applying the law to such facts, the time of the court would be occupied in determining whether or not the parties knew the law at the time the contract was made or the transaction entered into. The administration of justice in the courts is a practical system for the regulation of the transactions of life in the business world. It assumes, and must assume, that all persons of sound and mature mind know the law, otherwise there would be no security in legal rights and no certainty in judicial investigations."

[Daniels v. Dean, 2 Cal.App. 421, 84 P. 332 (1905)]

"Every man is supposed to know the law. A party who makes a contract with an officer [of the government] without having it reduced to writing is knowingly accessory to a violation of duty on his part. Such a party aids in the violation of the law."

[Clark v. United States, 95 U.S. 539 (1877) ]

Even the Bible itself condemns those who don't read, learn, or obey the law!:

"One who turns his ear from hearing the law [God's law or man's law], even his prayer is an abomination."
[Prov. 28:9, Bible, NKJV]

"But this crowd that does not know [and quote and follow and use] the law is accursed."
[John 7:49, Bible, NKJV]

"Salvation is far from the wicked, For they do not seek Your statutes."
[Psalm 119:155, Bible, NKJV]

The fundamental injustices in the above SCHEME are the following:

1. The contract, BEFORE IT WAS SIGNED, was not "law" for the applicant, but simply a "code". Private law is not "law" for those who are not subject to it. Only those who explicitly consent to it are subject and only for them can it be called "law". The contract "activates" and becomes "law" only AFTER it is consented to. Before it is consented to, it is simply a "proposal" or an "offer".
2. It is therefore unreasonable for any court of law to infer that the person has a "duty" to read or learn or know that which is not "law" for him or that doesn't pertain to him. Therefore, there is no way that it can use the maxim of law that "everyone is supposed to know the law" as an excuse to PRESUME that he the applicant had "reasonable notice" of the terms of a contract that were never spelled out on the application itself. No court, we might add, has ever said:

"Every citizen of the United States is supposed to read and know and learn 'codes' but not 'laws' that don't pertain to him."

3. The municipality has deprived other PRIVATE corporations of equal protection who are engaged in the same competitive activity as the government's competitive PRIVATE corporation. For instance:
  - 3.1. Other competing private corporations are not allowed to publish their administrative regulations within the municipal code like the government does. Why not?
  - 3.2. Other private corporations do not enjoy the same kind of subsidies from the municipality as the state-run schools do.
  - 3.3. Other private corporations cannot assert "sovereign immunity" to protect their PRIVATE business activities like the government can.

1 The way out of the above quagmire for people dealing with the government is simply to write the following on every
2 government form, so that you don't surrender any rights under it:

3 "All rights reserved without prejudice, U.C.C. §1-308"

4 There are yet other ways that the government abuses this deception to unlawfully protect and enlarge its PRIVATE business
5 pursuits, such as junior college, Social Security, Medicare, etc. The Supreme Court has created a judicial doctrine not found
6 within the Constitution called "sovereign immunity", which requires that both the federal government and the states of the 7 Union may not be sued in their own courts without their consent.

8 The exemption of the United States from being impleaded without their consent is, as has often been affirmed by 9 this court, as absolute as that of the crown of England or any other sovereign. In Cohens v. Virginia, 6 Wheat.
10 264, 411, Chief Justice MARSHALL said: 'The universally-received opinion is that [106 U.S. 196, 227] no
11 suit can be commenced or prosecuted against the United States.' In Beers v. Arkansas, 20 How. 527, 529, Chief
12 Justice TANEY said: 'It is an established principle of jurisprudence, in all civilized nations, that the sovereign
13 cannot be sued in its own courts, or in any other, without its consent and permission; but it may, if it thinks proper,
14 waive this privilege, and permit itself to be made a defendant in a suit by individuals, or by another state. And as
15 this permission is altogether voluntary on the part of the sovereignty, it follows that it may prescribe the terms
16 and conditions on which it consents to be sued, and the manner in which the suit shall be conducted, and may 17 withdraw its consent whenever it may suppose that justice to the public requires it.' In the same spirit, Mr. Justice
18 DAVIS, delivering the judgment of the court in Nichols v. U.S. 7 Wall. 122, 126, said: 'Every government has an 19 inherent right to protect itself against suits, and if, in the liberality of legislation they are permitted, it is only on
20 such terms and conditions as are prescribed by statute. The principle is fundamental, applies to every sovereign
21 power, and, but for the protection which it affords, the government would be unable to perform the various duties
22 for which it was created.' See, also, U.S. v. Clarke, 8 Pet. 436, 444; Cary v. Curtis, 3 How. 236, 245, 256; U.S. v.

31 The inherent nature of sovereignty prevents actions against a state by its own citizens without its consent. [491
32 U.S. 39] In Atascadero, 473 U.S. at 242, we identified this principle as an essential element of the constitutional 33 checks and balances:

34 The "constitutionally mandated balance of power" between the States and the Federal Government was adopted
35 by the Framers to ensure the protection of "our fundamental liberties." [Garcia v. San Antonio Metropolitan 36 Transit Authority, 469 U.S. 528, 572 (Powell, J., dissenting)]. By guaranteeing the sovereign immunity of the
38 [Great Northern Ins. Co. v. Read, 322 U.S. 47, 51 (1944)]

39 States and the federal government both have historically abused the confusion between "private law" and "public law" so
40 that they could unlawfully and unjustly assert "sovereign immunity" to protect what actually amounts to PRIVATE business
41 enterprises and PRIVATE municipal and federal corporations they have set up for their own pecuniary benefit. The U.S.
42 Supreme Court has repeatedly said that when a government engages in PRIVATE business concerns, it surrenders its 43 sovereign immunity to suit and devolves to that of a private business corporation as far as standing in court:

44 When a State engages in ordinary commercial ventures, it acts like a private person, outside the area of its 45 "core" responsibilities, and in a way unlikely to prove essential to the fulfillment of a basic governmental
47 [College Savings Bank v. Florida Prepaid Postsecondary Education Expense, 527 U.S. 666 (1999)]
48

49 "What, then, is meant by the doctrine that contracts are made with reference to the taxing power resident in the 50 State, and in subordination to it? Is it meant that when a person lends money to a State, or to a municipal division
51 of the State having the power of taxation, there is in the contract a tacit reservation of a right in the debtor to 52 raise contributions out of the money promised to be paid before payment? That cannot be, because if it could, the 53 contract (in the language of Alexander Hamilton) would 'involve two contradictory things: an obligation to do,
54 and a right not to do; an obligation to pay a certain sum, and a right to retain it in the shape of a tax. It is against
55 the rules, both of law and of reason, to admit by implication in the construction of a contract a principle which 56 goes in destruction of it.' The truth is, States and cities, when

1 they borrow money and contract to repay it with
 2 interest, are not acting as sovereignties. They come down to the

3 level of ordinary individuals. Their contracts have the same meaning as that of similar contracts between private
 4 persons. Hence, instead of there being in the undertaking of a State or city to pay, a reservation of a sovereign
 5 right to withhold payment, the contract should be regarded as an assurance that such a right will not be exercised.

6 A promise to pay, with a reserved right to deny or change the effect of the 7 promise, is an absurdity."

8 Is, then, property, which consists in the promise of a State, or of a municipality of a State, beyond the reach of 9 taxation? We do not affirm that it is. A State may undoubtedly tax any of its creditors within its jurisdiction for 10 the debt due to him, and regulate the amount of the tax by the rate of interest the debt bears, if its promise be left
 11 unchanged. A tax thus laid impairs no obligation assumed. It leaves the contract untouched. But until payment of 12 the debt or interest has been made, as stipulated, we think no act of State sovereignty can work an exoneration
 13 from what has been promised to the [446] creditor; namely, payment to him, without a violation of the 14 Constitution. 'The true rule of every case of property founded on contract with the government is this: It must first
 15 be reduced into possession, and then it will become subject, in common with other similar property, to the right
 16 of the government to raise contributions upon it. It may be said that the government may fulfil this principle by
 17 paying the interest with one hand, and taking back the amount of the tax with the other. But to this the answer is,
 18 that, to comply truly with the rule, the tax must be upon all the money of the community, not upon the particular
 19 portion of it which is paid to the public creditors, and it ought besides to be so regulated as not to include a lien
 20 of the tax upon the fund. The creditor should be no otherwise acted upon than as every other possessor of money;

21 and, consequently, the money he receives from the public can then only be a fit subject of
 22 taxation when it is entirely separated' (from the contract), 'and 23 thrown undistinguished into the common mass.' <sup>3</sup> Hamilton, Works, 514 et seq.

24 Thus only can contracts with the State be allowed to have the same meaning as all other similar contracts have.
 25 [Murray v. City of Charleston, 96 U.S. 432 (1877)]

27 Moreover, if the dissent were correct that the sovereign acts doctrine permits the Government to abrogate its 28 contractual commitments in "regulatory" cases even where it simply sought to avoid contracts it had come to
 29 regret, then the Government's sovereign contracting power would be of very little use in this broad sphere of 30 public activity. We rejected a virtually identical argument in Perry v. United States, 294 U.S. 330 (1935), in which 31 *Congress had passed a resolution regulating the payment of obligations in gold. We held that the law could not
 32 be applied to the Government's own obligations, noting that "the right to make binding obligations is a

34 See also Clearfield Trust Co. v. United States, 318 U.S. 363, 369 (1943) ("The United States does business on 35 business terms") (quoting United States v. National Exchange Bank of Baltimore, 270 U.S. 527, 534 (1926)); 36 Perry v. United States, supra at 352 (1935) ("When the United States, with constitutional authority, makes 37 contracts, it has rights and incurs responsibilities similar to those of individuals who are parties to such 38 instruments. There is no difference . . . except that the United States cannot be sued without its consent")
 39 (citation omitted); United States v. Bostwick, 94 U.S. 53, 66 (1877) ("The United States, when they contract with 40 their citizens, are controlled by the same laws that govern the citizen in that behalf"); Cooke v. United States, 41 91 U.S. 389, 398 (1875) (explaining that when the United States "comes down from its position of sovereignty, 42 and enters the domain of commerce, it submits itself to the same laws that govern individuals there").

43 See Jones, 1 Cl.Ct. at 85 ("Wherever the public and private acts of the government seem to commingle, a citizen
 44 or corporate body must by supposition be substituted in its place, and then the question be determined whether
 45 the action will lie against the supposed defendant"); O'Neill v. United States, 231 Ct.Cl. 823, 826 (1982)
 46 (sovereign acts doctrine applies where, "[w]ere [the] contracts exclusively between private parties, the party hurt
 47 by such governing action could not claim compensation from the other party for the governing action"). The 48 dissent ignores these statements (including the statement from Jones, from which case Horowitz drew its 49 reasoning literally verbatim), when it says, post at 931, that the sovereign acts cases do not emphasize the need
 50 to treat the government-as-contractor the same as a private party.
 51 [United States v. Winstar Corp., 518 U.S. 839 (1996)]

52 How does the government abuse sovereign immunity to protect PRIVATE business activities? Let's use the Internal Revenue
 53 Code, for example, which we now know is "private law":

- 54 1. The Internal Revenue Code is identified as a "code" and not a "law" in 1 U.S.C. §204. In fact, it is a "code" of repealed
 55 laws. 53 Stat. 1 REPEALED the entire Internal Revenue Code, leaving no "law" left to enforce.
- 56 2. No court ruling we have ever read at the supreme court or district court level acknowledges whether the Internal Revenue
 57 Code is either "private law" or "public law". This is deliberate, because they want to perpetuate the FRAUD and FALSE

1 PRESUMPTION in the minds of the American public and the legal profession that it is “public law” that applies to 2 everyone.

- 3 3. Those persons who claim to be “nontaxpayers” not subject to the private law that is the Internal Revenue Code preserve
4 all their constitutional rights and are free to challenge the constitutionality of the enforcement of any provision of this
5 “code” against them in any court of law.

6 *"The revenue laws are a code or system in regulation of tax assessment and collection. They relate to taxpayers,
7 and not to nontaxpayers. The latter are without their scope. No procedure is prescribed for nontaxpayers, and no
8 attempt is made to annul any of their rights and remedies in due course of law. With them Congress does not 9 assume to deal, and they are neither of the subject nor of the object of the revenue laws..."*
10 [Long v. Rasmussen, 281 F. 236 (1922)]

11 "Revenue Laws relate to taxpayers [officers, employees, and elected officials of the Federal Government] and 12 not to non-taxpayers [American Citizens/American Nationals not subject to the exclusive jurisdiction of the 13 Federal Government]. The latter are without their scope. No procedures are prescribed for non-taxpayers and 14 no attempt is made to annul any of their Rights or Remedies in due course of law."
15 [Economy Plumbing & Heating v. U.S., 470 F.2d. 585 (1972)]

- 16 4. When “nontaxpayers” have historically challenged the constitutionality of UNLAWFULLY enforcing provisions of the 17 “contract” called the Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A against those who never consented to it, federal courts have 18 repeatedly and unlawfully invoked provisions within the contract itself that don't apply to the litigant as an excuse to 19 circumvent the challenge. For instance, the Anti-Injunction Act, 26 U.S.C. §7421 says that federal courts may not restrain 20 or interfere with the assessment or collection of any “tax”.

22 § 7421. Prohibition of suits to restrain assessment or collection

24 Except as provided in sections 6015 (e), 6212 (a) and (c), 6213 (a), 6225 (b), 6246 (b), 6330 (e)(1), 6331 (i), 6672
25 (c), 6694 (c), and 7426 (a) and (b)(1), 7429 (b), and 7436, no suit for the purpose of restraining the assessment
26 or collection of any tax shall be maintained in any court by any person, whether or not such person is the person
27 against whom such tax was assessed.

28 (b) Liability of transferee or fiduciary

29 No suit shall be maintained in any court for the purpose of restraining the assessment or collection (pursuant to 30 the provisions of chapter 71) of—

31 (1) the amount of the liability, at law or in equity, of a transferee of property of a taxpayer in respect of any
32 internal revenue tax, or

33 (2) the amount of the liability of a fiduciary under section 3713 (b) of title 31, United States Code <sup>41</sup> in respect of 34 any such tax.

- 35 5. In effect, the courts in unlawfully enforcing provisions of the contract against those who are not parties to it are abusing
36 legislatively created sovereign immunity to protect PRIVATE business activity. This is CLEARLY unconstitutional if 37 it injures the Constitutionally guaranteed rights of litigants who are “nontaxpayers” not subject to the “code”/“contract”.

38 The net result of the abuse of sovereign immunity to protect the PRIVATE business activity documented within the Internal 39 Revenue Code, Subtitle A is:

- 40 1. Involuntary servitude in violation of the Thirteenth Amendment.
41 2. Peonage in violation of 18 U.S.C. §1581 and 42 U.S.C. §1994.
42 3. Enticement into slavery in violation of 18 U.S.C. §1583. The W-4 says nothing about the fact that it is an “agreement”
43 or contract even though the regulations at 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(a)-3 and statute at 26 U.S.C. §3402(p) identify it as such.
44 If the IRS tells anyone that they HAVE to sign and consent to what is actually a voluntary agreement, they are enticing
45 the person into slavery, and yet the federal courts refuse to hold them accountable for such criminal activity.
46 4. Conspiracy against rights in violation of 18 U.S.C. §241.
47 5. Conflict of interest on the part of federal judges, who are both “taxpayers” subject to the extortion and recipients of 48 benefits and laundered money proceeding from the extortion, in violation of 28 U.S.C. §§144 and 455.
49 6. Racketeering and extortion in violation of 18 U.S.C. §1951.

7. Kidnapping in violation of 18 U.S.C. §1201. 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(39) and 26 U.S.C. §7408(d) both allow federal judges to “kidnap” the legal identities of persons subject to the I.R.C. and make them into the equivalent of domiciliaries of the District of Columbia for the purposes of the Internal Revenue Code. By imposing these provisions against parties who do not consent to be “taxpayers” and who are “nontaxpayers” not subject to any provision of the I.R.C., they are engaging in kidnapping and identity theft. Do you REALLY think the I.R.C. would need provisions like this if the federal government REALLY had jurisdiction within states of the Union to collect income taxes pursuant to I.R.C., Subtitle A?

Judges in federal courts must certainly be aware of all of the above, which is why they positively refuse their constitutional duty to protect your rights by admitting that I.R.C., Subtitle A is “private law” and not “public law”, that only applies to those who consent, and then explaining to the parties to the lawsuit EXACTLY what form that consent takes so that they receive reasonable notice of the rights they are surrendering by engaging in PRIVATE business activity with a government that has made a BUSINESS out of effectively STEALING from you under the color but without the actual authority of law. This is the biggest travesty of justice in our time. Through this constructive fraud, they have effectively criminalized personal responsibility and exclusively enjoying your own life, liberty, and property, thus making slaves out of us all. The Civil War did not end slavery by any means. It has simply taken a slightly altered and more “stealthy” form. Some things never change, do they? Of this FRAUD and abuse of law to deceive and enslave people, Lysander Spooner said:

It is an assumption by one man, or body of men, of absolute, irresponsible dominion over all other men whom they can subject to their power.

It is an assumption by one man, or body of men, of a right to subject all other men to their will and their service.

It is an assumption by one man, or body of men, of a right to abolish outright all the natural rights, all the natural liberty of all other men; to make all other men their slaves; to arbitrarily dictate to all other men what they may, and may not do; what they may, and may not, have; what they may, and may not, be.

It is, in short, the assumption of a right to banish the principle of human rights, the principle of justice itself, from off the earth, and set up their own personal will, pleasure, and interest in its place.

All this, and nothing less, is involved in the very idea that there can be any such thing as legislation that is obligatory upon those upon whom it is imposed.”

5.4.2.3 Comity

An important form of official “consent” is called “comity” in the legal field. Black’s Law Dictionary defines “comity” as follows:

“comity. Courtesy; complaisance; respect; a willingness to grant a privilege, not as a matter of right, but out of deference and good will. Recognition that one sovereignty allows within its territory to the legislative, executive, or judicial act of another sovereignty, having due regard to rights of its own citizens. Nowell v. Nowell, Tex.Civ.App., 408 S.W.2d. 550, 553. In general, principle of “comity” is that courts of one state or jurisdiction will give effect to laws and judicial decisions of another state or jurisdiction, not as a matter of obligation, but out of deference and mutual respect. Brown v. Babbitt Ford, Inc., 117 Ariz. 192, 571 P.2d. 689, 695. See also Full faith and credit clause.”
[Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 267]

Comity is the reason why countries and even sister states of the Union do the following for each other, even though no law requires them to:

1. Extradite criminals wanted in another country.
2. Provide military aid.
3. Accept immigrants or refugees from other countries.

Comity is usually used to describe the actions of states of the Union in relation to the federal government. Below is how the U.S. Supreme Court describes the sovereignty of the states, and the fact that it cannot compel states to do anything in relation to each other:

"This court has declined to take jurisdiction of suits between states to compel the performance of obligations which, if the states had been independent nations, could not have been enforced judicially, but only through the political departments of their governments. Thus, in Kentucky v. Dennison, 24 How. 66, where the state of Kentucky, by her governor [127 U.S. 265, 289] applied to this court, in the exercise of its original jurisdiction, for a writ of mandamus to the governor of Ohio to compel him to surrender a fugitive from justice, this court, while holding that the case was a controversy between two states, decided that it had no authority to grant the writ."

The U.S. Supreme Court also said that "comity" may not be employed to enlarge the powers of the federal government in relation to the states.

Where Congress exceeds its authority relative to the States, therefore, the departure from the constitutional plan cannot be ratified by the "consent" of state officials. An analogy to the separation of powers among the branches of the Federal Government clarifies this point. The Constitution's division of power among the three branches is violated where one branch invades the territory of another, whether or not the encroached-upon branch approves the encroachment. In Buckley v. Valeo, 424 U.S. 1, 118-137 (1976), for instance, the Court held that Congress had infringed the President's appointment power, despite the fact that the President himself had manifested his consent to the statute that caused the infringement by signing it into law. See National League of Cities v. Usery, 426 U.S., at 842, n. 12. In INS v. Chadha, 462 U.S. 919, 944-959 (1983), we held that the legislative veto violated the constitutional requirement that legislation be presented to the President, despite Presidents' approval of hundreds of statutes containing a legislative veto provision. See id., at 944-945. The constitutional authority of Congress cannot be expanded by the "consent" of the governmental unit whose domain is thereby narrowed, whether that unit is the Executive Branch or the States.

State officials thus cannot consent to the enlargement of the powers of Congress beyond those enumerated in the Constitution. Indeed, the facts of this case raise the possibility that powerful incentives might lead both federal and state officials to view departures from the federal structure to be in their personal interests. Most citizens recognize the need for radioactive waste disposal sites, but few want sites near their homes. As a result, while it would be well within the authority of either federal or state officials to choose where the disposal sites will be, it is likely to be in the political interest of each individual official to avoid being held accountable to the voters for the choice of location. If [505 U.S. 144, 183] a federal official is faced with the alternatives of choosing a location or directing the States to do it, the official may well prefer the latter, as a means of shifting responsibility for the eventual decision. If a state official is faced with the same set of alternatives - choosing a location or having Congress direct the choice of a location - the state official may also prefer the latter, as it may permit the avoidance of personal responsibility. The interests of public officials thus may not coincide with the Constitution's intergovernmental allocation of authority. Where state officials purport to submit to the direction of Congress in this manner, federalism is hardly being advanced. "

A departure from the Constitutional plan for taxation therefore cannot be ratified by the acquiescence or "comity" of a state without violating the Constitution. Only We the People individually and personally can ratify such a departure. When they do this, their consent must be fully informed and procured completely absent duress. The only way we can ratify such a departure as a "state" or nation is therefore to amend the Constitution. We cannot write a "code", such as the Internal Revenue Code, that circumvents the Constitution, breaks down the separation of powers, and does so through compulsion or enforcement. Consequently, we cannot lawfully:

1. Write a "private law", command or allow our public servants to deceive the public by portraying it as a "public law", and then empower an independent contractor, which is not an agency of the federal government, such as the IRS, to enforce it against those who do not consent individually to obey it absent duress.
2. Allow our state government to look the other way and acquiesce to abuses or usurpations by the federal government.

Below is how the U.S. Supreme Court describes how "comity" can affect the tax system, from a case where it was talking about Social Security. Notice they don't mention anything about "consent" of the state, or where or how that consent is procured from the state or the individual who might be the subject of the tax. In that sense, they have violated the very purpose of the Constitution, which is to respect and protect the requirement for consent in every human interaction:

A nondiscriminatory taxing measure that operates to defray the cost of a federal program by recovering a fair approximation of each beneficiary's share of the cost is surely no more offensive to the constitutional scheme than is either a tax on the income earned by state employees or a tax on a State's sale of bottled water. 18 The National Government's interest in being compensated for its expenditures is only too apparent. More significantly perhaps, such revenue measures by their very nature cannot possess the attributes that led Mr. Chief Justice Marshall to proclaim that the power to tax is the power [435 U.S. 444, 461] to destroy. There is no danger that such measures will not be based on benefits conferred or that they will function as regulatory devices unduly burdening essential state activities. It is, of course, the case that a revenue provision that forces a State to pay its own way when performing an essential function will increase the cost of the state activity. But Graves v. New York ex rel. O'Keefe, and its precursors, see 306 U.S., at 483 and the cases cited in n. 3, teach that an economic burden on traditional state functions without more is not a sufficient basis for sustaining a claim of immunity. Indeed, since the Constitution explicitly requires States to bear similar economic burdens when engaged in essential operations, see U.S. Const., Amdts. 5, 14; Pennsylvania Coal Co. v. Mahon, 260 U.S. 393 (1922) (State must pay just compensation when it "takes" private property for a public purpose); U.S. Const., Art. I, 10, cl. 1; United States Trust Co. v. New Jersey, 431 U.S. 1 (1977) (even when burdensome, a State often must comply with the obligations of its contracts), it cannot be seriously contended that federal exactions from the States of their fair share of the cost of specific benefits they receive from federal programs offend the constitutional scheme.

Our decisions in analogous context support this conclusion. We have repeatedly held that the Federal Government may impose appropriate conditions on the use of federal property or privileges and may require that state instrumentalities comply with conditions that are reasonably related to the federal interest in particular national projects or programs. See, e. g., Ivanhoe Irrigation Dist. v. McCracken, 357 U.S. 275, 294-296 (1958); Oklahoma v. Civil Service Comm'n, 330 U.S. 127, 142-144 (1947); United States v. San Francisco, 310 U.S. 16 (1940); cf. National League of Cities v. Usery, 426 U.S. 833, 853 (1976); Fry v. United States, 421 U.S. 542 (1975). A requirement that States, like all other users, pay a portion of the costs of the benefits they enjoy from federal programs is surely permissible since it is closely related to the [435 U.S. 444, 462] federal interest in recovering costs from those who benefit and since it effects no greater interference with state sovereignty than do the restrictions which this Court has approved.

A clearly analogous line of decisions is that interpreting provisions in the Constitution that also place limitations on the taxing power of government. See, e. g., U.S. Const., Art. I, 8, cl. 3 (restricting power of States to tax interstate commerce); 10, cl. 3 (prohibiting any state tax that operates "to impose a charge for the privilege of entering, trading in, or lying in a port." Clyde Mallory Lines v. Alabama ex rel. State Docks Comm'n, 296 U.S. 261, 265-266 (1935)). These restrictions, like the implied state tax immunity, exist to protect constitutionally valued activity from the undue and perhaps destructive interference that could result from certain taxing measures. The restriction implicit in the Commerce Clause is designed to prohibit States from burdening the free flow of commerce, see generally Complete Auto Transit, Inc. v. Brady, 430 U.S. 274 (1977), whereas the prohibition against duties on the privilege of entering ports is intended specifically to guard against local hindrances to trade and commerce by vessels. See Packet Co. v. Keokuk, 95 U.S. 80, 85 (1877).

Our decisions implementing these constitutional provisions have consistently recognized that the interests protected by these Clauses are not offended by revenue measures that operate only to compensate a government for benefits supplied. See, e. g., Clyde Mallory Lines v. Alabama, supra (flat fee charged each vessel entering port upheld because charge operated to defray cost of harbor policing); Evansville-Vanderburgh Airport Authority v. Delta Airlines, Inc., 405 U.S. 707 (1972) ($1 head tax on explaining commercial air passengers upheld under the Commerce Clause because designed to recoup cost of airport facilities). A governmental body has an obvious interest in making those who specifically benefit from its services pay the cost and, provided that the charge is structured to compensate the government for the benefit conferred, there can be no danger of the kind of interference [435 U.S. 444, 463] with constitutionally valued activity that the Clauses were designed to prohibit.

[Massachusetts v. United States, 435 U.S. 444 (1978)]

The U.S. Supreme Court also agreed that one of the may consequences of the Social Security system was to break down the separation of powers between the states and the federal government and allow the feds to coerce and intimidate the states. This result alone ought be sufficient reason not to participate in the system:

"A state may enter into contracts; but a state cannot, by contract or statute, surrender the execution, or a share in the execution, of any of its governmental powers either to a sister state or to the federal government, any more than the federal government can surrender the control of any of its governmental powers to a foreign nation. The power to tax is vital and fundamental, and, in the highest degree, governmental in character. Without it, the state could not exist. Fundamental also, and no less important, is the governmental power to expend the moneys realized from taxation, and exclusively to administer the laws in respect of the character of the tax and the methods of laying and collecting it and expending the proceeds.

The people of the United States, by their Constitution, have affirmed a division of internal governmental powers between the federal government and the governments of the several states-committing to the first its powers by express grant and necessary implication; to the latter, or [301 U.S. 548, 611] to the people, by reservation, 'the powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States.' The Constitution thus affirms the complete supremacy and independence of the state within the field of its powers. Carter v. Carter Coal Co., 298 U.S. 238, 295, 56 S.Ct. 855, 865. The federal government has no more authority to invade that field than the state has to invade the exclusive field of national governmental powers; for, in the oft-repeated words of this court in Texas v. White, 7 Wall. 700, 725, 'the preservation of the States, and the maintenance of

1 their governments, are as much within the design and care of the Constitution as the preservation of the Union
 2 and the maintenance of the National government.' The necessity of preserving each from every form of illegitimate
 3 intrusion or interference on the part of the other is so imperative as to require this court, when its judicial power
 4 is properly invoked, to view with a careful and discriminating eye any legislation challenged as constituting such
 5 an intrusion or interference. See South Carolina v. United States, 199 U.S. 437, 448, 26 S.Ct. 110, 4 Ann.Cas.
 6 737.

8 By these various provisions of the act, the federal agencies are authorized to supervise and hamper the 9 administrative powers of the state to a degree which not only does not comport with the dignity of a quasi
 10 sovereign state—a matter with which we are not judicially concerned—but which deny to it that supremacy and 11 freedom from external interference in respect of its affairs which the Constitution contemplates—a matter of very 12 definite judicial concern. I refer to some, though by no means all, of the cases in point.

13 In the License Cases, 5 How. 504, 588, Mr. Justice McLean said that the federal government was supreme within 14 the scope of its delegated powers, and the state governments equally supreme in the exercise of the powers not 15 delegated nor inhibited to them; that the states exercise their powers over everything connected with their social 16 and internal condition; and that over these subjects the federal government had no power. 'They appertain to the 17 State sovereignty as exclusively as powers exclusively delegated appertain to the general government.'

18 In Tarble's Case, 13 Wall. 397, Mr. Justice Field, after pointing out that the general government and the state
 19 are separate and distinct sovereignties, acting separately and independently of each other within their respective 20 spheres, said that, except in one particular, they stood in the same independent relation to each other as they 21 would if their authority embraced distinct territories. The one particular referred to is that of the supremacy of 22 the authority of the United States in case of conflict between the two.

23 In Farrington v. Tennessee, 95 U.S. 679, 685, this court said, 'Yet every State has a sphere of action where the 24 authority of the national government may not intrude. Within that domain the State is as if the union were not.
 25 Such are the checks and balances in our complicated but wise system of State and national polity.'

26 'The powers exclusively given to the federal government,' it was said in Worcester v. State of 27 Georgia, 6 Pet. 515, 570, 'are limitations upon the state authorities. But [301 U.S. 548,
 28 615] with the exception of these limitations, the states are supreme; and their sovereignty
 29 can be no more invaded by the action of the general government, than the action of the state
 30 governments can arrest or obstruct the course of the national power.'

31 The force of what has been said is not broken by an acceptance of the view that the state is not coerced by the 32 federal law. The effect of the dual distribution of powers is completely to deny to the states whatever is granted
 33 exclusively to the nation, and, conversely, to deny to the nation whatever is reserved exclusively to the states.
 34 'The determination of the Framers Convention and the ratifying conventions to preserve complete and
 35 unimpaired state self-government in all matters not committed to the general government is one of the plainest
 36 facts which emerges from the history of their deliberations. And adherence to that determination is incumbent
 37 equally upon the federal government and the states. State powers can neither be appropriated on the one hand
 38 nor abdicated on the other.' Carter v. Carter Coal Co., supra, 298 U.S. 238, at page 295, 56 S.Ct. 855, 866.
 39 The purpose of the Constitution in that regard does not admit of doubt or qualification; and it can be thwarted 40 no more by voluntary surrender from within than by invasion from without.

41 Nor may the constitutional objection suggested be overcome by the expectation of public benefit resulting from 42 the federal participation authorized by the act. Such expectation, if voiced in support of a proposed constitutional
 43 enactment, would be quite proper for the consideration of the legislative body. But, as we said in the Carter Case,
 44 supra, 298 U.S. 238, at page 291, 56 S.Ct. 855, 864, 'nothing is more certain than that beneficent aims, however
 45 great or well directed, can never serve in lieu of constitutional power.' Moreover, everything which the act seeks 46 to do for the relief of unemployment might have been accomplished, as is done by this same act for the relief of 47 the misfortunes of old age, with- [301 U.S. 548, 616] out obliging the state to surrender, or share with another
 48 government, any of its powers.

49 If we are to survive as the United States, the balance between the powers of the nation and those of the states
 50 must be maintained. There is grave danger in permitting it to dip in either direction, danger-if there were no
 51 other-in the precedent thereby set for further departures from the equipoise. The threat implicit in the present
 52 encroachment upon the administrative functions of the states is that greater encroachments, and encroachments
 53 upon other functions, will follow.

 55 [Steward Machine Company v. Davis, 301 U.S. 548 (1937)]

56 5.4.2.4 Positive Law

1 There are only two types of governments: government by consent (contract) or government by force/fraud. All governments
2 that operate by force or fraud rather than consent are terrorist governments. The Bible describes all such terrorist governments
3 as “The Beast” in Rev. 19:19. The Declaration of Independence says that all just powers of the United States government
4 derive from the consent of the governed.

5 *“That to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent
6 of the governed.”
7 [Declaration of Independence]*

8 Absent individual, explicit, and voluntary consent for everything that government does in this country, a law may not be
9 enforced and may not adversely affect our Constitutional rights to life, liberty or property. In a Republic of free and sovereign
10 People who have rights, any government that disregards the requirement for consent is essentially acting unjustly and 11 involving itself in organized crime, extortion, and terrorism. A law which is enforceable because the people either
12 individually or collectively consented explicitly to it is called positive law:

13 *“Positive law. Law actually and specifically enacted or adopted [consented to] by proper authority for the 14 government of an organized jural society. See also Legislation.”
15 [Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1162]*

16 “Proper authority” above is the people’s elected representatives, because all power in this country derives from We The 17 People.

18 *“In the United States, sovereignty resides in the people...the Congress cannot invoke sovereign power of the 19 People to override their will as thus declared.”
20 [Perry v. U.S., 294 U.S. 330 (1935)]*

21 *“Sovereignty itself is, of course, not subject to law, for it is the author and source of law...While sovereign 22 powers are delegated to...the government, sovereignty itself remains with the people.”
23 [Yick Wo v. Hopkins, 118 U.S. 356 (1886)]*

24 *“The words ‘people of the United States’ and ‘citizens,’ are synonymous terms, and mean the same thing. They
25 both describe the political body who, according to our republican institutions, form the sovereignty, and who
26 hold the power and conduct the government through their representatives. They are what we familiarly call the
28 [Boyd v. State of Nebraska, 143 U.S. 135 (1892)]*

29 There is only one exception to the above rule, which is that a person who commits a crime that injures the rights of a fellow
30 sovereign thereby surrenders his own rights because he has broken his covenant with God to “love his neighbor” (see Gal 31 5:14), which is one of only two great commandments in the Bible (see Matt. 22:39, Bible). Such an exception as this,
32 however, does not at all apply to so-called “crimes” within the Internal Revenue Code, because no one’s “rights” are adversely
33 impacted by those who refuse to pay such government “extortion under the color of law”. If you choose not to consent to 34 become a “taxpayer”, you may cause other “taxpayers” to lose “privileges” (government socialist handouts) by refusing to
35 participate, but other “taxpayers” don’t lose any of their constitutional rights if you refuse to subsidize the evil and socialism
36 that is embodied in the Internal Revenue Code. In fact, the “crimes” listed in 26 U.S.C. §§7201 to 7217 are not even “tax 37 crimes”, because:

- 38 1. Those who are “nontaxpayers” are not subject to it. We’ll cover this further later.
- 39 2. There is no statute which creates a liability and there is no evidence of consent to abide by it. Therefore, it is not law for 40 those who have not consented in some way, who therefore become “nontaxpayers”. See:

Your Rights as a “Nontaxpayer”, IRS Publication 1a, Form #08.008
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

- 41 3. Subtitle A of the Internal Revenue does not describe a “tax” as legally defined by the Supreme Court, because revenues
42 collected are being paid to private people who are not federal “employees” or a “public purpose”. See:

Why Your Government is Either a Thief or You are a “Public Officer” for Income Tax Purposes, Form #05.008
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

43 When federal courts choose to illegally enforce the criminal provisions of the Internal Revenue Code, which is not positive
44 law, against those in states of the Union who are not in fact and in deed “public officers” engaged in a “trade or business”
45 within the United States government, they are prosecuting people for what is called “malum prohibitum acts”. They are also involved in treason against the Constitution if they acquiesce to or aid in the prosecution of private parties who are not in fact federal “employees”, who live in states of the Union and outside of federal territorial jurisdiction.

“Malum prohibitum. A wrong prohibited; a thing which is wrong because prohibited; an act which is not inherently immoral, but becomes so because its commission is expressly forbidden by positive law; an act involving an illegality resulting from positive law. Compare Malum in se.”
[Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 960]

Treason, by the way, is punishable by death under 18 U.S.C. §2381. See section 5.1.2 earlier for a complete explanation of this concept. They are committing treason because they are not enforcing a “tax” as legally defined. “Taxes” can ONLY go to support public employees on official business and cannot constitutionally be used for any other purpose:

“To lay, with one hand, the power of the government on the property of the citizen, and with the other to bestow it upon favored individuals to aid private enterprises and build up private fortunes, is none the less a robbery because it is done under the forms of law and is called taxation. This is not legislation. It is a decree under legislative forms.

Nor is it taxation. ‘A tax,’ says Webster’s Dictionary, ‘is a rate or sum of money assessed on the person or property of a citizen by government for the use of the nation or State.’ ‘Taxes are burdens or charges imposed by the Legislature upon persons or property to raise money for public purposes.’ Cooley, Const. Lim., 479.”
[Loan Association v. Topeka, 20 Wall. 655 (1874)]

The legislation passed by Congress in pursuance of the authority delegated to it by the Constitution of the United States (which is “positive law”) is organized by subject in the 50 titles of the U.S. Code. Each title of the U.S. Code covers a different subject area. For instance, Title 26 covers Internal Revenue: that is, revenue gathered within the territorial jurisdiction of the federal government, which is limited to the territories and possessions of the United States and the District of Columbia, collectively called the “federal zone” throughout this book.

Within the U.S. Code, certain titles are enacted into “positive law” while others are not. Those that are not enacted into positive law may safely be regarded as “private law”. Those that are should be regarded as “public law”. The legislative notes under 1 U.S.C. §204 list which Titles are positive law and which are not. Only those titles that are enacted into positive law have the potential to become binding generally upon all legal “persons” within the territorial jurisdiction of the federal government. However, before this can happen, an agency of the federal government within the Executive Branch must choose to step forward under the leadership of the President of the United States and voluntarily consent to take responsibility for executing the statute by writing implementing regulations giving the statutes force and effect, and publishing those enforcement regulations in the Federal Register for public review and comment. Below is a definition of the Federal Register from Black’s Law Dictionary:

[Black’s Law Dictionary, Fifth Edition]

The above description explains that the Federal Register also serves as the means by which notice is given to the general public that laws by Congress can and will be enforced by rules and regulations that may adversely affect their rights. “Due notice” to all of the affected parties is considered an essential and fundamental element of Constitutional “due process”. Here is how the U.S. Supreme Court describes it:

“An elementary and fundamental requirement of due process in any proceeding which is to be accorded finality is notice reasonably calculated, under the circumstances, to apprise interested [and affected] parties of the pendency of the action and afford them an opportunity to present their objections.”
[Mullane v. Central Hanover Bank & Trust Co., 339 U.S. 306, 314 (1950)]

These regulations are then subsequently published in the Code of Regulations (hereafter C.F.R.) after they are published in the Federal Register. The C.F.R. then becomes the means by which Federal Government employees are informed of the limits of their conduct when implementing the laws they are authorized and required to enforce under the authority of the Constitution. The public record built during the public review process then becomes the means by which the courts enforce the regulations against the public, because it helps establish legislative intent of both the agency and the public.

44 U.S.C. §1505(a) (which is positive law) requires that every document or order which has “general applicability and legal effect” to all persons must be printed in the Federal Register. In other words, if the statute and the regulations that implement it haven't been published in the Federal Register, then the statute is unenforceable against the general public. This means that all positive laws, including both the statutes and the regulations that implement them, must appear in the Federal Register before one can reasonably conclude that the general public has been properly placed on notice about a law according to which they must control their conduct.

TITLE 44 > CHAPTER 15 > Sec. 1505.
Sec. 1505. - Documents to be published in Federal Register

(a) Proclamations and Executive Orders; Documents Having General Applicability and Legal Effect; Documents Required To Be Published by Congress.

There shall be published in the Federal Register -

(1) Presidential proclamations and Executive orders, except those not having general applicability and legal effect or effective only against Federal agencies or persons in their capacity as officers, agents, or employees thereof;

(2) documents or classes of documents that the President may determine from time to time have general applicability and legal effect; and

(3) documents or classes of documents that may be required so to be published by Act of Congress.

For the purposes of this chapter every document or order which prescribes a penalty has general applicability and legal effect.

If a positive law statute was passed by the Legislative branch for which no agency in the Executive Branch ever claimed responsibility and for which no implementing regulations were ever published in the Federal Register, that statute would be a “dead law” that effectively is unenforceable against anything but federal employees. Note that paragraph (a)(1) in the above statute says no implementing regulations are required in the context of federal officers, agents, or employees.

“...the Act's civil and criminal penalties attach only upon violation of the regulation promulgated by the Secretary; if the Secretary were to do nothing, the Act itself would impose no penalties on anyone...The Government urges that since only those who violate these regulations [not the Code] may incur civil or criminal penalties, it is the actual regulations issued by the Secretary of the Treasury, and not the broad authorizing language of the statute, which are to be tested against the standards of the Fourth Amendment; and that when so tested they are valid.”

An example of such “dead laws” are the campaign finance reforms passed during the early 2000's by Congress. They are not enforced. Does that surprise you? There is one important exception to these general rules for positive law, and that exception is that any act of Congress that affects only federal employees in the Executive branch acting only in their official capacity need not be published in the Federal Register and need not have implementing regulations in order to be enforceable. This exception is found in 44 U.S.C. §1505(a)(1), which we showed above. This same exception also appears a second time in 5 U.S.C. §553(a)(2):

TITLE 5--GOVERNMENT ORGANIZATION AND EMPLOYEES
 PART I--THE AGENCIES GENERALLY
 CHAPTER 5--ADMINISTRATIVE PROCEDURE
 SUBCHAPTER II--ADMINISTRATIVE PROCEDURE
 Sec. 553. Rule making

(a) This section applies, according to the provisions thereof, except to the extent that there is involved--
 (1) a military or foreign affairs function of the United States; or
(2) a matter relating to agency management or personnel or to public property, loans, grants, benefits, or contracts.

Some say that while the Internal Revenue Code may not be “positive law”, there ARE or at least MAY BE sections within it that ARE positive law. They will look at the legislative notes on a section of the code and find the Congressional Acts that it references and conclude that because the Act that the section was based on was a positive law and because it was passed

1 AFTER the Internal Revenue Code was repealed in 1939, then that section and only that section is “positive law”. That may
2 very well be true. However, the government has the burden of proving in each case, usually as the moving party, that the
3 section they are citing is positive law for each case or instance where they use it. To do otherwise would be to violate due
4 process of law and disrespect the requirement for consent in every aspect of government..

5 1 U.S.C. §204 describes the applicability of statutes within the U.S. Code based on whether they are “positive law”, which
6 we will now show below. We have broken 1 U.S.C. §204(a) into two clauses, with each one numbered in the cite below.
7 Everything after the “[1]” would be clause 1 and everything after the “[2]” would be clause 2.

An example of wording that can be used to make law positive is in the Fifth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution. By starting out "No person..." it is clear that no one is excluded. In statutes, a phrase such as "any person is required" is used to indicate that the statute applies to anyone. When Congress omits the word "is" from such a phrase, making it read "any person required" (as in 26 U.S.C. §7203), it is saying that this law only applies to a specific person. This is not a positive law, it is a "special law" or "private law" which became "law" by virtue of the consent of that specific individual. It only applies to the person who exercised his personal choice (sovereignty) to become effectively connected with it by accepting some duty that made him a "person required," i.e. the person in section 7343 of the I.R. Code who is under a duty to perform the act in respect of which the violation occurs.

Acquiescence to the legal consequence of non-positive law legislation is possible only when a person makes himself subject to that legislation, i.e. a Federal Government "employee" or contractor, as to income belonging to the U.S. Government. Once a person is effectively connected with a law, he is required to obey it. If a person is not "effectively connected" with such a law, a violation of that law is not legally possible. For example, it is impossible for a person who is not connected with the U.S. Government's (called a "trade or business") income or within federal jurisdiction to be under a legal obligation or condition to perform some act or duty with regard to such income. When no legal duty exists, the consequences of section 7203 cannot be legally forced upon him.

Lastly, if you are engaged in litigation against "the Beast", be very careful in your use of the word "law". Anyone who refers to any code section within the I.R.C. as "law" during a court trial:

1. Is making a "presumption" that cannot be supported with evidence. All "presumption" is a violation of due process in the legal realm. An unchallenged presumption becomes fact in any legal proceeding. Watch out!

"The principle that there is a presumption of innocence in favor of the accused is the undoubted law, axiomatic and elementary, and its enforcement lies at the foundation of the administration of our criminal law."
[Coffin v. United States, 156 U.S. 432, 453 (1895)]

"It is apparent, this court said in the Bailey Case ( 219 U.S. 239, 31 S.Ct. 145, 151) 'that a constitutional prohibition cannot be transgressed indirectly by the creation of a statutory presumption any more than it can be violated by direct enactment. The power to create presumptions is not a means of escape from constitutional restrictions.'
[Heiner v. Donnan, 285 U.S. 312 (1932)]

Thus the Court held that presumptions, while often valid (and some of which, I think, like the presumption of death based on long unexplained absence, may perhaps be even salutary in effect), must not be allowed to stand where they abridge or deny a specific constitutional guarantee. It is one thing to rely on a presumption to justify conditional administration of the estate of a person absent without explanation for seven years, see Cunnius v. Reading School District, 198 U.S. 458; compare Scott v. McNeal, 154 U.S. 34; it would be quite another to use the presumption of death from seven years' absence to convict a man of murder. I do not think it can be denied that use of the statutory presumptions in the case before [380 U.S. 63, 81] us at the very least seriously impaired Gainey's constitutional right to have a jury weigh the facts of his case without any congressional interference through predetermination of what evidence would be sufficient to prove the facts necessary to convict in a particular case. [ . . . ]

For all the foregoing reasons, I think that these two statutory presumptions by which Congress has tried to relieve the Government of its burden of proving a man guilty and to take away from courts and juries the function and duty of deciding guilt or innocence according to the evidence before them, unconstitutionally encroach on the functions of courts and deny persons accused of crime rights which our Constitution guarantees them. The most important and most crucial action the courts take in trying people for crime is to resolve facts. This is a judicial, not a legislative, function. I think that in passing these two sections Congress stepped over its constitutionally limited bounds and encroached on the constitutional power of courts to try cases. I would therefore affirm the judgment of the court below and grant Gainey a new trial by judge and jury with all the protections accorded by the law of the land.
United States v. Gainly, [380 U.S. 63 (1965)]

Legislation declaring that proof of one fact of group of facts shall constitute prima facie evidence of an ultimate fact in issue is valid if there is a rational connection between what is proved and what is to be inferred. A prima facie presumption casts upon the person against whom it is applied the duty of going forward with his evidence on the particular point to which the presumption relates. A statute creating a presumption that is arbitrary, or that operates to deny a fair opportunity to repel it, violates the due process clause of the Fourteenth Amendment. Legislative fiat may not take the place of fact in the judicial determination of issues involving life, liberty, or property. Manley v. Georgia, 279 U.S. 1, 49 S.Ct. 215, 73 L.Ed. -, and cases cited.

"[I]t is unconstitutional for a legislature to remove from the jury the assessment of facts that increase the prescribed range of penalties to which a criminal defendant is exposed. It is equally clear that such facts must be established by proof beyond a reasonable doubt."
McMillan v. Pennsylvania, [477 U.S. 79 (1986)]

2. Has transformed "prima facie evidence" of law into legally admissible evidence if unchallenged. See 1 U.S.C. §204, legislative notes, which says that the I.R.C. is "prima facie" evidence, which means "presumed to be true" unless rebutted.
3. Is implying that you, the litigant, gave your consent in some form to be bound by the legal provision which they are referring to. This makes you look like a bad American and a criminal if you don't challenge their presumption.
4. When their presumption of the existence of "law" is challenged, the moving party must shoulder the burden of showing what form the consent was given. If they do not meet the burden of proof, then you should object to their use of the word "law" in any and all cases. You should refer to all statements about such "law" as "hearsay" until proven with other than "prima facie evidence".

Let us now summarize some important things we have learned about positive law:

1. Whether a statute is positive law is helpful in establishing WHERE it may lawfully be enforced. Statutes which are not positive law may not be lawfully enforced in states of the Union.
2. Statutes which are not positive law may be enforced only in the District of Columbia.
3. The Internal Revenue Code is not positive law. Therefore, it is "law" for those subject to it within the limits of the general sovereignty of the national government, but may not be lawfully enforced inside states of the Union, except possibly against "federal employees", who according to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b) are subject to the laws of the District of Columbia when acting in a representative capacity for the federal corporation called the "United States", and which is defined in 28 U.S.C. §3002(15)(A). That federal corporation is a "U.S. citizen" under 8 U.S.C. §1401, and so they become "U.S. citizens" when representing the corporation as federal "employees".

5.4.2.5 Justice

The whole notion of "justice" implies the requirement of positive law in all dealings with the public. The only way that positive law can be enacted is through the consent of those it is enforced against, which the Declaration of Independence calls "the consent of the governed". Below is a definition of "justice" from Easton's Bible Dictionary which clearly proves this:

JUSTICE — is rendering to every one [equally, whether citizen or alien] that which is his due. It has been distinguished from equity in this respect, that while justice means merely the doing [of] what positive law demands, equity means the doing of what is fair and right in every separate case.<sup>62</sup>
[Easton's Bible Dictionary, 1996]

We would also add to the above definition that:

1. Enforcing anything BUT “positive law”.
2. Enforcing anything unequally against one group or class of persons more than another.
3. Taking more tax as a percentage from one group than another.

... equates with INjustice or the OPPOSITE of justice, in our view. When we look up the definition of “justice” in the legal dictionary, however, lawyers try to hide its relationship to “positive law”. Below is the definition of “justice” from Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition:

Justice, n. Title given to judges, particularly judges of U.S. and state supreme courts, and as well to judges of appellate courts. The U.S. Supreme Court, and most state supreme courts are composed of a chief justice and several associate justices.

Proper administration of laws. In jurisprudence, the constant and perpetual disposition of legal matters or disputes to render every man his due.

Commutative justice concerns obligations as between persons (e.g., in exchange of goods) and requires proportionate equality in dealings of person to person; Distributive justice concerns obligations of the community to the individual, and requires fair disbursement of common advantages and sharing of common burdens; Social justice concerns obligations of individual to community and its end is the common good.

In Feudal law, jurisdiction; judicial cognizance of causes or offenses. High justice was the jurisdiction or right of trying crimes of every kind, even the highest. This was a privilege claimed and exercised by the great lords or barons of the middle ages. Law justice was jurisdiction of petty offenses.

See also Miscarriage of justice; Obstructing justice.
[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 864]

Apparently, only pastors can be trusted to tell the truth about the meaning of “justice”, because Pharisees/lawyers with Mercedes payments to make aren't going to undermine their livelihood and make their job moot by telling the truth. Common to both the ecclesiastical and the legal dictionary definitions of “justice” above, however, is the notion of “rendering to every man his due”. The world owes NOTHING to any man. As we said at the beginning of section 4.1 earlier:

[Mark Twain]

The only thing that can be “owed” or “due” to a man is that which he has earned or procured under contract to some other free agent. What is owed to him is considered “property”, and the government's most fundamental obligation is to protect our right to property. Therefore, the whole notion of “justice” originates from the exercise of our right to contract. All law, in fact, is an extension of our right to contract, as we said in the previous sections, because it is created with our consent, behaves as a contract, and conveys to us certain rights and benefits that courts have a sacred duty to protect. Even the U.S. Supreme Court recognized this fact, when it said:

“Independent of these views, there are many considerations which lead to the conclusion that the power to impair contracts [either the Constitution or the Holy Bible], by direct action to that end, does not exist with the general [federal] government. In the first place, one of the objects of the Constitution, expressed in its preamble, was the establishment of justice, and what that meant in its relations to contracts is not left, as was justly said by the late Chief Justice, in Hepburn v. Griswold, to inference or conjecture. As he observes, at the time the Constitution was undergoing discussion in the convention, the Congress of the Confederation was engaged in framing the ordinance for the government of the Northwestern Territory, in which certain articles of compact were established between the people of the original States and the people of the Territory, for the purpose, as expressed in the instrument, of extending the fundamental principles of civil and religious liberty, upon which the States, their laws and constitutions, were erected. By that ordinance it was declared, that, in the just preservation of rights and property, 'no law ought ever to be made, or have force in the said Territory, that shall, in any manner, interfere with or affect private contracts or engagements bona fide and without fraud previously formed. The same provision, adds the Chief Justice, found more condensed expression in the prohibition upon the States [in Article 1, Section 10 of the Constitution] against impairing the obligation of contracts, which has ever been recognized as an efficient safeguard against injustice; and though the prohibition is not applied in terms to the government of the United States, he expressed the opinion, speaking for himself and the majority of the court at the time, that it was clear 'that those who framed and those who adopted the Constitution intended that the spirit of this prohibition should pervade the entire body of legislation, and that the justice which the Constitution was ordained to establish was not thought by them to be compatible with legislation for judicial precedent] of an opposite tendency.' 8 Wall. 623. [99 U.S. 700, 765] Similar views are found expressed in the opinions of other judges of this court."

[Sinking Fund Cases, 99 U.S. 700 \(1878\)]

The reason the U.S. Supreme Court had to state the above is that if it did not, it would be sanctioning public servants to violate the right to contract of We the People, by disrespecting the Constitution itself, which is a contract. The Supreme Court also recognized that state Constitutions are "contracts" as well, when it said:

"A state can no more impair the obligation of a contract by her organic law [constitution] than by legislative enactment; for her constitution is a law within the meaning of the contract clause of the national constitution. Railroad Co. v. [115 U.S. 650, 673] McClure, 10 Wall. 511; Ohio Life Ins. & T. Co. v. Debolt, 16 How. 429; Sedg. St. & Const. Law, 637 And the obligation of her contracts is as fully protected by that instrument against impairment by legislation as are contracts between individuals exclusively. State v. Wilson, 7 Cranch, 164; Providence Bank v. Billings, 4 Pet. 514; Green v. Biddle, 8 Wheat. 1; Woodruff v. Trapnall, 10 How. 190; Wolff v. New Orleans, 103 U.S. 358."
[New Orleans Gas Company v. Louisiana Light Company, 115 U.S. 650 \(1885\)]

You can also electronically search, as we have, the entire 50+ volume legal encyclopedia called American Jurisprudence 2d for a definition of "justice" and you will not find one. Think about just how absurd this is: The entire purpose of law, government, and the legal profession is justice, as revealed by the founding fathers in Federalist Paper #51:

"Justice is the end of government. It is the end of civil society. It ever has been, and ever will be pursued, until it be obtained, or until liberty be lost in the pursuit."
[James Madison, The Federalist No. 51 (1788)]

...and yet the largest legal reference and encyclopedia on law in the country, American Jurisprudence 2d, doesn't even define exactly what "justice" is as revealed here! The foundation of justice is enforcing ONLY positive law. The foundation of positive law is consent. Therefore, to ignore the requirement for positive law is to ignore the requirement for "consent of the governed", which is the very foundation of our system of government starting with the Declaration of Independence and going down from there. Here, in fact, is how the U.S. Supreme Court describes the relationship of the Declaration of Independence to our system of jurisprudence:

"No language is more worthy of frequent and thoughtful consideration than these words of Mr. Justice Matthews, speaking for this court, in Yick Wo v. Hopkins, 118 U.S. 356, 369, 6 S.Sup.Ct. 1064, 1071: 'When we consider the nature and the theory of our institutions of government, the principles upon which they are supposed to rest, and review the history of their development, we are constrained to conclude that they do not mean to leave room for the play and action of purely personal and arbitrary power.' The first official action of this nation declared the foundation of government in these words: 'We hold these truths to be self-evident, [165 U.S. 150, 160] that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.' While such declaration of principles may not have the force of organic law, or be made the basis of judicial decision as to the limits of right and duty, and while in all cases referenced must be had to the organic law of the nation for such limits, yet the latter is but the body and the letter of which the former is the thought and the spirit, and it is always safe to read the letter of the constitution in the spirit of the Declaration of Independence. No duty rests more imperatively upon the courts than the enforcement of those constitutional provisions intended to secure that equality of rights which is the foundation of free government."
[Gulf, C. & S.F.R. Co. v. Ellis, 165 U.S. 150 \(1897\)]

Ignoring the requirement for positive law in all interactions of the government with its citizens and subjects is therefore Injustice, not justice. Now do you understand Jesus' condemnation of the Pharisees/Lawyers, when he said:

"Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees [lawyers], hypocrites! For you pay tithes of mint and anise and cummin, and have neglected the weightier matters of the [God's] law: justice and mercy and faith. These you ought to have done [FIRST], without leaving the others undone."
[Matthew 23:23, Bible, NKJV]

This is very telling indeed. If lawyers and judges had to admit what REAL justice was and that it consisted of enforcing ONLY "positive law" enacted with the full authority of "consent of the governed", then they would have to admit that most of what our present day government does amounts to INjustice, because they are implementing that which is not specifically authorized by any public law, and which therefore only applies to those who individually consent to it. To give you just a few examples of private law that is wrongfully enforced as though it were positive public law, consider the following important private laws:

1. Title 42, which contains the Social Security, FICA, and Medicare codes, is not positive law. Therefore, these are strictly voluntary programs that no one can be compelled to participate in, and certainly not those domiciled in a state of the Union. The U.S. Supreme Court confirmed this, when it called Social Security “not coercive”, which means unenforceable unless individual consent is provided:

"There remain for consideration the contentions that the state act is invalid because its enactment was coerced by the adoption of the Social Security Act, and that it involves an unconstitutional surrender of state power. Even though it be assumed that the exercise of a sovereign power by a state, in other respects valid, may be rendered invalid because of the coercive effect of a federal statute enacted in the exercise of a power granted to the national government, such coercion is lacking here. [301 U.S. 495, 526] It is unnecessary to repeat now those considerations which have led to our decision in the Chas. C. Steward Machine Co. Case, that the Social Security Act has no such coercive effect. As the Social Security Act is not coercive in its operation, the Unemployment Compensation Act cannot be set aside as an unconstitutional product of coercion. The United States and the State of Alabama are not alien governments. They coexist within the same territory. Unemployment within it is their common concern. Together the two statutes now before us embody a cooperative legislative effort by state and national governments for carrying out a public purpose common to both, which neither could fully achieve without the cooperation of the other. The Constitution does not prohibit such cooperation."
[Carmichael v. Southern Coal and Coke Co, 301 U.S. 495 (1937)]

2. Title 50, which contains the Military Selective Service Act and describes how men may be “drafted”, is not positive law. Therefore, participation is voluntary for people in states of the Union. The only persons it can pertain to are statutory “U.S. citizens” domiciled in the federal zone. See:

Why You Aren't Subject to the Draft of Selective Service Program
<http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Military/Draft/NotSubjectToDraft.htm>

3. Title 26, which is the Internal Revenue Code, is not positive law. Neither has there ever been any attempt by any court that we are aware of to decide which of its provisions are indeed positive law. Therefore, its provisions must be voluntary for everyone, and especially for those domiciled in states of the Union.

Instead, our public “servants” have turned our government into a money-making corporation (see 28 U.S.C. §3002(15)(A)) intent on maximizing “corporate profit” by plundering the most that it can from people it is supposed to instead be protecting, rather than plundering. They have become PREDATORS, not PROTECTORS.

Lastly, there are only two ways that courts can lawfully ignore the requirement for “consent of the governed”. Those two ways are:

1. To fool you into signing away your rights via a contract or to involve yourself in some act that creates a presumption that you waived your rights. Most often, this method relies on some government benefit program such as Social Security to make you a federal “employee”. Participating in such benefit programs makes participation in federal taxation “quasi-contractual”, as the Supreme Court calls it. See Milwaukee v. White, 296 U.S. 268 (1935)
2. To kidnap your legal identity and “domicile” and to physically place it in a location where consent of the governed is not legally required. That place is the “federal zone”, as revealed throughout this book. See, for instance, 26 U.S.C. §7408(d) or 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(39), and 26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1(g) for examples of how this type of devious fraud is effected against those domiciled in states of the Union and outside of exclusive/general federal jurisdiction.

As you will learn throughout the remainder of this chapter, both of the above devious and dishonest tactics are used to assault and undermine the sovereignty of the people both in the Internal Revenue Code and daily in the federal courts. Whichever of the above two devious tricks they pull on you, we wish to remind the readers of the following fact, that most people overlook when litigating to defend their rights:

"In all legal actions bearing upon legal rights, the moving party asserting the right, which is the government in most cases, has the burden of proving with a preponderance of evidence that the defendant gave his consent in some form, or that you maintained a legal domicile in a place where consent was not required. Absent such proof, there is no way to enforce a government regulation or statute that is not positive law against the defendant. Strictly satisfying this requirement in all legal proceedings is the very essence and definition of 'due process' as we understand it."

5.4.2.6 Invisible consent: The weapon of tyrants

We established in the last few sections that only consent in some form can produce a “law” within a Republican government populated by Sovereigns. Where people are Sovereign, the only way you can lose rights is to give them away by exercising your right to contract. The type of consent provided determines the type of “law” that is produced by the act of consenting. Collective consent produces “public law”. Individual consent produces “private law” or “special law”. In section 5.4.2.1, we also showed that within the realm of private law, the consent that produces the individual contractual obligation can be manifested or implied in several ways:

1. By a signed instrument that identifies itself as a contract or agreement. For instance, the W-4 is identified in Treasury Regulations 26 C.F.R. §31.3401\(a\)-3\(a\) as an “agreement”, which means a private contract between you and uncle Sam to procure “social insurance”. The only people who are allowed to procure social insurance under the Internal Revenue Code are “employees”, so when you procure such insurance, you have to consent to be treated as a federal “employee”. Note, for instance, that 26 U.S.C. Subtitle C, Chapter 21, Subchapter A, which is the FICA program, is entitled “Tax on Employees”, which means you are a federal “employee” if you participate in the program. 5 U.S.C. §552a(a)(13), which is the Privacy Act, also identifies you as “federal personnel”. You become the equivalent of an uncompensated federal “employee” until you begin collecting retirement benefits.
2. By certain behavior which implicates a person as being associated with the contract. For instance:
  - 2.1. The only people with a legal obligation to file tax returns are those “subject to” and “liable for” something under the Internal Revenue Code. If you are a “nontaxpayer” and you file one of these, you implicitly imply yourself to be a “taxpayer”.
  - 2.2. The only people who litigate in family court are those who volunteered to be subject to the Family Code. The only people subject to the Family Code in most states are those who obtained a state marriage license. Many states that issue marriage licenses do not recognize common law marriage. This means you can only become subject to the Family Code and government control of your family by volunteering.
3. By applying for a license to engage in a privileged, regulated, or taxable activity. For instance:
  - 3.1. Applying for a business license implies intent to be subject to business taxation, because a Taxpayer Identification Number is asked for on the application and the application implies that failure to provide the number will result in the application not being granted.
  - 3.2. Applying for driver’s license implies that you are engaged in revenue-taxable commercial activities upon the public roadways and that you agree to pay taxes upon such activity. That is why you must supply a Socialist Security Number when you apply for a Driver’s License: so they can enforce the payment of taxes upon your commercial activities.

Of the above three methods of manifesting consent, the last two are not recognized as a voluntary process by the average American, but in fact they are. A government run by covetous tyrants will do everything that it can to make the process of consenting to something invisible or to make the activity look involuntary or unavoidable. Therefore, they will usually elect the last two of the above three methods to in effect force or compel people to become privileged, regulated, and taxable. In most cases, this process of compelled consent is illegal, but few Americans realize why it is illegal and therefore do not prosecute the abuse. Tyrannical governments make the process of procuring consent invisible by:

1. Not mentioning anything about “agreement” or “contract” on the form, but only in the regulations that usually only the agency will read. This is the case of the IRS Form W-4. How many of you knew that the IRS Form W-4 was indeed a binding legal contract?
2. Destroying or interfering with all other alternatives to what the government is offering so that you must accept the government’s offer. For instance
  - 2.1. Those who do not wish to get a state-issued marriage license may lawfully draft their own private contract and record it at the county recorder. The government’s method for interfering with this process is to refuse to record anything at the recorder’s office other than government-issued applications. In many cases, they will not allow parties to record private contracts, because it undermines their monopoly.
  - 2.2. Those who do not wish to obtain a Taxpayer Identification Number are often refused in opening bank accounts as a matter of bank policy rather than as a requirement of law. This forces private individuals into becoming taxpayers subject to IRS supervision just in order to conduct their financial affairs.
  - 2.3. Those who do not wish to pay property tax may elect to quitclaim their property to an unnamed third party and file the quitclaim with the county recorder. At that point, the government cannot enforce the payment of property taxes because it does not know who the property owner is. Some county governments interfere with this tactic by refusing to record such documents, even though this is perfectly legal and an extension of our protected right to

- 1 contract. We have a right to keep our private contracts secret from the government if we wish, and to not have the 2 government account for or track who owns our property if we choose.
- 3 3. Making false presumptions about the status of a person based on their behavior. For instance:
- 4 3.1. If you send in a tax return, then the IRS will “assume” that you must be a “taxpayer” who has income exceeding
 5 the exemption amount. Therefore, the penalty provisions of the I.R.C. apply to you. In fact, this is not true if the 6 amount of gross income on the return is zero. You can't be a taxpayer without taxable income. Without taxable
 7 income, regardless of whether you sent in a return or not, you can't be subject to any other provision of the I.R.C.
- 8 3.2. When the IRS sends you a collection notice and you don't respond, then they will assume that you agree and 9 basically “Default” you. In most cases, you don't, but they in effect assume that you therefore “consent” to 10 whatever determination they might make about you that results from your failure to respond.
- 11 3.3. If your employer sent the IRS a form W-2, then the I.R.S. will assume that you completed a W-4 and are subject to 12 the I.R.C. contract. This is simply not true, and in fact, we show later in this chapter that those who never signed a 13 W-4 should never have W-2's filed on them and if they do have any such forms, the amount of “wages” must be 14 zero.
- 15 3.4. If you apply for a Social Security Number, then you must maintain a “domicile” in the federal zone. This also is 16 untrue, because the SSA Form SS-5 and the SSA Program Operations Manual does not tell the whole truth about
 17 what a “U.S. citizen” is, and the fact that Americans born in the states of the Union on nonfederal land are NOT 18 statutory “U.S. citizens” as defined under 8 U.S.C. §1401.
- 19 3.5. If you receive an IRS Form 1099, then you must be engaged in a privileged activity called a “trade or business”.
 20 This also is untrue, as we explain later in section 5.6.12 and following.
- 21 3.6. If you send in an IRS Form 1040, then the IRS will assume that you have a domicile in the District of Columbia,
 22 even though you actually live elsewhere. According to IRS Publication 7130, the 1040 form may only be used by 23 either citizens (U.S. citizens under 8 U.S.C. §1401) or residents (aliens), both of whom have a domicile in the 24 “United States”, which is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) as the District of Columbia.
- 25 4. Inviting you to attend a court hearing at “federal church”, also called “district court:
- 26 4.1. The judge will use non-positive law assume that you are a “taxpayer” unless you prove you are not. See 26 U.S.C.
 27 §7491. This is a prejudice to your constitutional rights and according to the Supreme Court, is a violation of due
 28 process. See:
 29 <http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/CitesByTopic/Presumption-RPG-Federal.pdf>
- 30 4.2. If you show up and do not do any of the following, the judge will usually falsely assume that you are subject to 31 exclusive and general federal jurisdiction.
- 32 4.2.1. Appear by special rather than general appearance. A general appearance subjects you to the general rather 33 than special jurisdiction of the court.
- 34 4.2.2. Do not challenge jurisdiction in your response. Jurisdiction is “assumed” if you do not challenge it.
- 35 4.2.3. Do not claim diversity jurisdiction under Article III Section 2 of the Constitution and NOT 28 U.S.C. §1332.
 36 Consequently, they will assume you are a domiciliary of the federal zone and that you are subject to the 37 exclusive jurisdiction of the federal government.
- 38 4.3. The judge will falsely assume that you are subject to whatever code or title you quote in your pleading. You can't 39 cite a code or statute that you aren't subject to.
- 40 4.4. The judge will falsely assume that you agree with everything you didn't explicitly disagree with in your response
 41 to the government's Complaint. This creates a tremendous burden of effort to deflect false government charges if 42 the government's pleading is long.

43 Consequently, we must be very aware of the use of the above tactics in procuring or establishing evidence of our consent.
 44 We can give consent without even realizing it, if we are ignorant of the law and of legal process and especially the false
 45 presumptions which it employs. The key to preserving our God-given rights is to understand how these tactics of procuring 46 “invisible consent” by false presumption operate and to openly and forcefully challenge their exercise on every occasion that 47 they are employed.

48 If you want to learn more about how corrupted public dis-servants eliminate or avoid the need or requirement for consent,
 49 you can go back and read sections 4.3.16 through 4.3.16.9 earlier in this book.

50 5.4.3 Understanding Administrative Law<sup>63</sup>

1 What you are about to read is very provocative and likely to shock, but educate, many of you. Some of you will likely be
2 inspired to do likewise, but just as you see those disclaimers which say, "Experts - do not try this at home," so I say, "Do not
3 try mimicking this at home. Remember, when reality and common sense run up against politics and money, the former two
4 will not register in the courts."

5 We have all heard the term "Administrative Law." Administrative Law is everywhere in society, and affects everyone of us.
6 But despite our familiarity, how many people really know what "Administrative Law" is? Most people see the word "Law"
7 and automatically think it is some kind of a special law passed by either Congress, our state legislators, or our city councils,
8 etc. No matter where we are in our experience and knowledge of Administrative Law, we all tend to feel deep down inside,
9 "I just do not like it." It is that same sort of feeling when we drive down the highway and pass a police car with its lights
10 flashing, having pulled over a car. You don't naturally think, "Boy, I'm pleased to see that police officer out here on the 11 highway performing us a public service." Rather, you are more likely to think, "Boy, I'm glad it's him he pulled over, and not 12 me." Just as hearing from the Internal Revenue Service, "public service" is probably the last thing that enters your mind.

13 Administrative Law demands things of us that intrude into our personal lives, our homes, our businesses. It makes us comply
14 with certain codes, inspects us, demands arbitrary taxes and payment in advance of establishing liability, calls us into account 15 before boards composed of political appointees having conflicts of interests, all without the benefit of a trial by jury of your 16 peers.

17 Administrative Law governs us, to name only a few, in our relation to our children through CPS, our right to contract through 18 the State Contractor's License Board, our businesses through Business Licenses and Worker's Compensation Boards which
19 provide a feeding frenzy for lawyers, and even our pleasurable moments through Fishing and Gaming Licenses, our travel
20 through DMV, etc, etc, and so on without end. In fact, all of our lives in every area is governed by administrative agencies
21 and their "laws," and there is near nothing that is not regulated and licensed by some agency. It would almost seem that life's
22 existence itself is but a special privilege of government that is revocable upon whim. Whatever happened to "... governments 23 are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed..."?

24 As some of you may already know, none of the protections set forth in the U.S. Constitution has any application whatsoever
25 upon the enforcement and carrying out of "Administrative Law." So we shout with outrage at the government, "You're 26 violating my Constitutional rights," and you ask, "What gives? Is Administrative Law superior to, and above, the Constitution
27 of the United States, which is the supreme Law of this Land?"

28 I am now going to pull the veil off the mystery of "Administrative Law," and let you in on a secret that no government wants
29 you to know. Some of you are going to laugh at the simplicity of the matter, once I tell you. "Administrative Law" is not 30 some esoteric law passed by some legislative body. "Administrative Law" simply means "Contract Agreement." But if 31 government called it what it really was, everyone would know what is going on. But by the government calling it
32 "Administrative Law," few understand it, and think, "Oh my goodness, I don't want to go to jail because I violated
33 Administrative Law." What you must implicitly remember is that Administrative Law and Police Powers are diametrically
34 opposed to each other. They cannot co-exist in the same context. Like oil and water, they can never mix. But governments
35 do not want you to know that. If there were any form of police power exerted to enforce "Administrative Law," it would 36 clearly fly in the face of the Constitution. So all governments exercise fraud when they take "Administrative Law" beyond
37 "the consent of the governed," Declaration of Independence.

38 Every time you hear the term "Administrative Law," you must correctly think "Contract Agreement." If everyone thought
39 that way, people would automatically ask themselves the logical question: "Where's the contract?". But government does
40 not want you to think in terms of "Contracts," nor the fact that there can ever be police powers involved in the enforcement
41 of a contract. If you fail to show up for work, can your boss call up the police and send them out to arrest you? No! This is 42 true even if your boss happens to be the city, or the chief of police. Police powers are limited only to criminal acts, never 43 contract disputes. These are totally separate and exclusive jurisdictions.

44 The U.S. Constitution specifically forbids all fifty states of this country from passing any law that interferes with any 45 individual's right of contract, or, if the person so chooses, the right not to contract.

47 [Constitution Article I, Sec. 10, Clause 1]*

1 "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof;"
2 [Constitution, First Amendment]

3 so also in Article I, Sec. 10, it says that no state shall make any law that impairs the free exercise of the right to contract or 4 not to contract. Now how does this Constitutional prohibition to states apply to such state administrative agencies as the
5 "State Contractor's License Board?" Ah, yes, and note, we are not here even challenging this as an Administrative Law, but
6 rather the very authority of the State itself to even "make" such an administrative agency that presumes to govern the right to
7 contract. In other words, the Legislature was acting unconstitutionally when they even considered "making" such a law,
8 whether the law passed by a majority vote or not. In other words, it was null and void the very moment it was "passed." One
9 could just imagine the untold hundreds of billions of dollars that would invigorate the entire economy of this country if states
10 could not interfere with, or tax our constitutional right to contract, or not to contract, with whosoever we pleased.

11 Contracts are very much a necessary part of all of our lives, and we all understand the meaning of agreements and keeping 12 our word. Contracts always must contain a consideration, and are made voluntarily for the mutual benefit of each of the 13 parties entering them.

14 I am going to explain the legitimate uses of contracts, and then proceed to what they have been transmuted into by the State.
15 In a legitimate contract, for instance, and I speak to those married, remember the days when you went out on dates with that 16 special person that made your heart throb? You fell in love and the two of you decided, for the mutual benefit of both of you,
17 to get married. You voluntarily appeared before a minister who asked you the question, "Do you, Sharon, take Steven to be 18 your lawfully wedded husband?" In which you replied, "I do!" You were under no obligation to agree. Remember, wherever 19 one may say "Yes" or "I do" they equally have the right to say, "No," or "I don't," to wit, "Do you, Steven, take Sharon to be 20 your lawfully wedded wife?" which could equally be responded to by, "No, I do not!" Of course, what a way to shock
21 everyone and ruin a marriage ceremony. Without both parties agreeing equally to the full terms and conditions, there can be
22 no "Administrative Law," oops, I mean, "Contract Agreement."

23 (For the benefit of those of you reading this who are ministers, I would like to take a sidebar. What are those commonly heard
24 words that come from your lips, "...lawfully wedded wife?" I ask you, is there an "unlawfully wedded wife," or an "unlawfully
25 wedded husband?" How did those words get in the marriage vow? Why not just ask, "Do you, Steven, take Sharon to be your 26 wife?" Ah, it is the State trying to stick their foot in the door and become a third party to the marriage "Contract Agreement."
27 I ask you, is it a crime to get married? Must couples have government's permission to get married? The government thinks 28 so. But does the government have constitutional authority to do so? Absolutely not.

29 Consider the marriage license. A license is a special grant of permission from the government to do that which is otherwise
30 illegal. People are now being convicted of "practicing law without a license," so I ask you, are couples who refuse marriage
31 licenses guilty of practicing marriage without a license? We are instructed in the Bible, "Whoso findeth a wife findeth a good
32 thing, and obtaineth favour of the LORD." Prov. 18:22. Yes, and remember that famous quote, "Render therefore unto Caesar
33 the things which are Caesar's; and unto God the things that are God's, Matt. 22:21, and "What therefore God hath joined 34 together, let not man put asunder." Matt. 19:6. Would it not be just as appropriate if God were to say, "What therefore God
35 has 'licensed,' let not man license?" Of course! Are you not therefore rendering to Caesar that which is God's? And are you
36 not doing it "By the power vested in you by the State of [fill in state], I now pronounce you man and wife." And what about 37 this so-called doctrine beaten into our heads by the courts of "Separation of Church and State?" End of sidebar.)

38 Let's next turn to the "Contract Agreement" of Civil Service Employment. You open the newspaper and see an ad placed by 39 the City of Ten Buck Two, saying "Now hiring." You go and apply for the job and you are hired. Whether it be secretary,
40 street cleaner, or police officer, you enter a Civil Service Contract, and receive a mutual benefit, i.e, a paycheck. If you were 41 to receive no consideration from the city, you would be merely a slave. Neither the city nor you were under duress, you both
42 receive a consideration, and established a legitimate "Contract Agreement." The city wishes to call it "Administrative Law."
43 After being hired, if there arises a dispute, you cannot shout, "My Constitutional Rights were violated," for you are now under 44 Civil Service protection, and are not entitled to a jury trial nor any of the protections of the Constitution, for now it is 45 Administrative Law that controls, and the Constitution has no application whatsoever.

46 Now let's take this a step further, and talk about a ticket. I once was mailed a ticket through the mail offering me an 47 "Administrative Review." I wrote back to this administrative agency by certified mail with return receipt, and with a sworn 48 declaration attached stating that I had never entered into a "Contract Agreement" with them, and that such contract did not
49 exist. I further demanded that they respond with a counter-declaration stating that I had indeed entered into a "Contract
50 Agreement" with them, and thus bring the question into issue. (An uncontested declaration stands as the truth. No counter-

1 declaration, no dispute.) I also demanded that they attach of copy of the contract we had between us as evidence to support
2 their contention.

3 This administrative agency just did not know what to do, so they just declared my "request for an Administrative Review"
4 untimely, despite the certified mail proving otherwise. They then stated that I now owed them more than twice the amount
5 they originally demanded of me. However, as you note, I did not ask for an "Administrative Review." Rather my only issue
6 was the appropriateness and legitimacy of the agency "offering" me the administrative review. If you received a letter from 7 Moscow, Russia accusing you of failing to possess a license from the Moscow Aviation Flight Board, and offering you an 8 administrative review, would you ask for an administrative review?

9 Further, in my communication to this administrative body, which further baffled them, I asked:

10 "When you say you are offering me an 'Administrative Review,' it implies I am now on appeal. Was there a trial
11 in which I have already been found guilty, and that I now should appeal that decision? I never received a notice
12 of such trial. When was the trial? Who sat in judgment? What was the basis of his or her findings? What is the 13 particular clause in the "Contract Agreement" I have been found guilty of violating?"

14 You see, my questions were entirely logical and practical, but they just did not know how to deal with me. So they just forged
15 ahead with enforcement as if I said nothing. This resulted in my lawsuit against them which went all the way to the U.S.
16 Supreme Court twice, once through the state courts, and then all the way through the federal, the issue in federal court being
17 deprivation of due process of law. There was not one court, neither state, nor federal, that would address a single issue I
18 presented in my lawsuit. This suit resulted in five long years of litigation, and the agency admittedly spent over $100,000.00
19 defending itself, and demanded of me that I should pay them for their time from what started out to be $55.

20 This case resulted in my filing a criminal complaint against the defendants with the U.S. Attorney, and petitioning Congress
21 to open impeachment proceedings against five federal judges for conspiracy to commit extortion, accompanied with a copy
22 of the proposed Federal J.A.I.L. Bill, with my instant case as an example of why Congress should pass J.A.I.L. into law.
23 Everything grew very quiet. No one would say anything.

24 All this over the implied assumption that I had entered into a "Contract Agreement" that did not exist, and never did exist.

25 Here in Los Angeles, the city dispenses bureaucrats throughout the city to search your home. However, the city likes to refer 26 to it as "inspection." Although the U.S. Constitution provides:

27 "The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers and effects, against unreasonable searches
28 and seizure shall not be violated, and no warrants shall issue, but upon probable cause, supported by oath or 29 affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, and the persons or things to be seized"
30 [Fourth Amendment]

31 . . .these bureaucrats come to you "for your good," as a "public service." They charge you money for their services, and 32 exercise police power, having neither oath or affirmation, warrant, or probable cause, mandating you "volunteer" to accept
33 their searches. If you refuse to volunteer, they turn you over to the city prosecutor who will prosecute you for failure to 34 comply with the program. If you think these bureaucrats are bribe-free, you have a shock coming. Many hint at and suggest 35 that they can arrange special treatment for you, or that they can make things very bad for you.

36 We have now come to the point in this country where the public's common acceptance that we are administrative subjects,
37 that a mere suggestion by a government bureaucrat has now become law, and one is guilty by the simple allegation of whatever
38 charge these bureaucrats wish to lay upon them without appeal to the Constitution.

39 Approximately seven years ago I was stopped by a police officer. He "offered" to engage me into a contract with him. The 40 problem with his contract offer was that it was imposed upon me by the threat of my going immediately to jail, and that of 41 having my car stolen. Under criminal constitutional standards he was required to take me before a magistrate at least within 42 48 hours of his conducting my arrest. He did not wish to do that however, so for his convenience, not mine, he asked me to 43 enter into a contract with him. But what was my consideration in this contract? Was it that I didn't have to go to jail
44 immediately? Nay, for that is like placing a gun to one's head and asking them to voluntarily write a check, which is called 45 "Robbery" in the criminal codes.

1 This nice policeman told me that by signing his ticket, I was not waiving any of my rights. I read it, and all it said was that I
2 promised to appear before the clerk of the court authorized to receive bail by a certain date. I went ahead and took the
3 comfortable route, and signed his contract under duress, "agreeing" to appear before the court clerk as opposed to going to
4 jail. I then went to the clerk of the court by the date specified and asked if she was the clerk of the court authorized to accept
5 bail. She said "Yes." I then told her who I was, and that since she was the authorized person before whom I had promised to
6 appear, I needed her signature showing I had fulfilled my promise. She refused. Gee, what's wrong with these people? They
7 demand my signature to show up before them under threat of going to jail. I show up as they ask and request their signature
8 to show that I have complied, and they refuse. They do not respect you for keeping your promise to them. It seems they are 9 not satisfied, and they want something more from you than they made you promise. Hmmm, it seems to me that not all the 10 terms of the contract were revealed when the officer said all I had to do was appear in front of the clerk. I must have been 11 defrauded.

12 What they really wanted, and now demanded, was that I appear before a commissioner, not a judge, when originally I was 13 entitled under the Constitution to appear before a magistrate for a determination of probable cause of my arrest by the kind
14 police officer. The officer must have lied to me when I was clearly told that I would not be waiving any of my rights. But a
15 waiver of my rights under the Constitution requires my voluntary and knowledgeable consent with a consideration in the pie
16 for me. But I never got the pie. This "Contract Agreement" does not seem to be like saying "I do" at the altar and getting a
17 wife, or "I agree" at the Civil Service interview, and getting a paycheck.

18 This commissioner bullied me, trying to induce me by force to enter into his offered contract agreement, when in no way was 19 he qualified to act or perform pursuant to the Fourth Amendment requirements of a magistrate.

20 When he failed to convince me that it was in my best interest that I should voluntarily agree to his contract, he proceeded to 21 unilaterally enter me into his contract whether I agreed to it or not. And of course, it was done with "my best interest at 22 heart." He's an educated man, and has graduated from law school. So why didn't he know that a contract requires my 23 voluntary consent? Having waived my rights for me (which is an impossibility), he now tells me that I am going to appear
24 for trial on the date he chose for me, and that I am going to sign a promise to appear. I told him, "NO! I am not going to sign
25 such a contract agreement!" He became very wroth, and I was immediately arrested, chained to thieves, con artists, and 26 extortionists and thrown into jail for not agreeing to sign.

27 At least one of the sheriff's deputies handling me expressed disbelief at what she was hearing that I was arrested for not
28 agreeing to sign on to the commissioner's offer. Here they were digging through my pockets and relieving me of all my 29 possessions, and my crime is failing to accept an offer. This could only be a civil charge at best, but refusing to contract is 30 not a violation of a contract. I had not even agreed to the deprivation of a magistrate to appear before this commissioner.

31 No sooner had they illegally processed me into the Los Angeles County jail system, that they wanted to get rid of me. Under 32 California statute, no person can be jailed on an alleged infraction, but here I was in jail. The fact is, neither the courts nor 33 the administrative boards know how to deal with the rare individual who sensibly raises questions about the existence of a
34 contract, so they just bully forward with police power enforcement, and address nothing.

35 The deputies told me they were putting me out of jail, but that I must come back to court on the date specified by the 36 commissioner. I told them "No! I did not agree to appear." They told me that if I did not appear, I would be arrested. I said
37 that I was already under arrest, so just keep me in jail until you are finished with me. They said, we can't do that, we don't 38 have the money to keep you here. I said, "I'm not here to save you money. If you want me, just keep me here. If you don't 39 want me, put me out." So they threw me out of jail to get rid of me, and I never showed up later. In the meantime, I
40 commenced suit against the commissioner for kidnapping, holding me hostage and demanding ransom for my release. (His 41 ransom was my signature, for he said when I gave him my signature, I would be free to go. Of course, that was why I was in 42 jail because I did not agree to that.)

43 In my civil suit against the commissioner, I had him totally defenseless, and the trial judge hearing the case knew it. There
44 was absolutely no way the commissioner could lawfully wiggle off, but since when do judges do things lawfully? The trial
45 judge knew the commissioner was naked, and had no jurisdiction whatsoever for what he did to me. He slammed his hands
46 down on the bench and said, "Mr. Branson, in all my twenty years' career on the bench, I have never met a person like you."
47 He then quoted the words found in my complaint, "Just keep me in jail until you are finished with me."

48 This judge could see the potential chaotic conditions if every person which was stopped by the cops stated "Just keep me in 49 jail until you are finished with me." I was supposed to fear losing my job, my reputation and companionship and capitulate.

1 He knew that if everybody did what I was doing, the entire system would fall apart. I was suddenly costing government
2 mucho money to the tune of thousands upon thousands of dollars when the whole idea was to make some money from me.
3 This lawsuit continued for years all the way up to the U.S. Supreme Court, yet not one judge would address the issues of my 4 contract case.

5 I now refer to a humorous situation that sounds like make-believe. An acquaintance of mine was called into court by one of
6 the ABC "public service" administrative agencies to be cross-examined to discover information from him to be used against
7 him. He was asked to take the witness stand. They asked him to raise his right hand after which the clerk of the court said,
8 "Do you solemnly swear to tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, so help you God?" He responded, "No,
9 I do not!" Everyone in the court gasped. (Remember, the right to say "Yes" also includes the right to say "No!") The judge
10 instructed the clerk to re-read the swearing-in again, supposing that he just did not understand the question. He responded
11 the second time, "I heard you the first time, and my answer is, No, I do not!" You can imagine the uncomfortable and 12 embarrassing situation into which this placed the judge. He asked why he would not swear to tell the truth, and he said, "The 13 Bible says, 'Let God be true, but every man a liar,' " (referring to Rom. 3:4), and "I am a man, and a liar."

14 The judge came unglued and threatened him with jail if he did not swear to tell the truth. He responded,

15 "Judge, you asked me a straight-forward question requiring either a yes, or a no answer. I gave you a straight-
16 forward answer to your question, and that was No, I do not. You can't say I did not answer your question, for I
17 did answer it, but you just don't like my answer. If you didn't want to hear my answer, then don't ask me the 18 question. And judge, on what basis do you threatened me with jail? Is it because I answered your question
19 truthfully? Or is it because you wanted me to lie, and I didn't do it? Or is it because you believe I am lying to you
20 when I tell you I am a man, and a liar?"

21 The judge threw him in jail for three days, after which he brought him forth to swear him in again. He said, "Judge, my answer
22 to you is still the same as three days ago. I am still a man, and still a liar, and no amount of jail time can change that. The 23 judge again threatened him with jail, to which he responded:

24 "On what basis do you threaten me with jail? Is it because I answered your question truthfully, and you want me
25 to lie? Or is it because you believe I am lying to you when I tell you I am a man, and a liar?"

26 The system just does not know how to handle people who question the actions of government when all the government is 27 only trying to get your approval to what they do to you. If you don't agree to the Contract Agreement, then they do you the 28 favor of "agreeing" for you even if it is against your will, without consideration. As I say, this is not quite like you saying "I 29 do" at the altar, but the judge spake and it was so.

30 Other examples are, when you are called to jury duty, the judge makes you raise your right hand and agree to follow the law
31 as interpreted to you by the judge. But wait, it is not the judge or the jurors who are entitled to a jury trial, but the defendant
32 who is constitutionally entitled to a fully informed and unencumbered jury which must judge on both the law and the facts.
33 Here we have a judge seeking to induce the defendant's jurors to conspire with him against the defendant. How can the judge,
34 in conspiracy with the jurors, lawfully agree to waive the rights of the defendant? They can't. It is the defendant that is 35 entitled to a fair and impartial trial, "In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy ... an impartial jury." Jurors who 36 have been induced to conspire with the judge cannot possibly be "an impartial jury." Fifth Amendment, U.S. Constitution.

37 Then there are the various taxing agencies who want you to enter into a "Contract Agreement" with them. They kindly 38 provide you with a pre-printed line on their forms to agree with their offer of a "Contract Agreement." But if you choose not 39 to accept their offer, can one go to jail? Not constitutionally. However, they somehow want you to believe that if you do not
40 accept their offer, then you are obligated to comply with their "Imposed Criminal Administrative Law," for after all, you don't 41 want to go to jail because you violated the law.

42 Remember, anything that requires your signature, or a swearing thereto in order to give it application, is not law, but a 43 contract. A contract must entail:

- 44 1. Being fully cognizant of all its terms.
- 45 2. Agreeing to all those terms.
- 46 3. Having equal right to say yes or no.
- 47 4. Offering you a consideration to which you would rather have than retaining your constitutional rights and saying no.
- 48 5. Being totally done without duress in any way.

1 Anything otherwise fails the test of a contract.

2 5.4.4 The three methods for exercising our Constitutional right to contract

3 Within the legal field, there are three distinct ways that we exercise our right to contract and thereby surrender a portion of 4 our private rights or become the target of enforcement actions by the government.:

- 5 1. Contract between two private parties: see Article 1, Section 10 of the Constitution. We can sign a contract or consent to 6 a contract by our behavior, and thereby forfeit our rights in pursuit of the benefits or special privileges that result from 7 availing ourself of the contract.
- 8 2. Government “codes” or “statutes” which are not enacted positive law and which therefore are a voluntary private contract
9 between you and the state. An example is marriage licenses and the family law codes in most states which implement
10 them are in fact entirely voluntary. If you don't volunteer or consent to get a marriage license, then you aren't obligated 11 to comply with the family code in most states, and especially those that do not recognize “common law marriage”.
- 12 3. Enacted positive law. Law which the people directly or indirectly consented to because their elected representatives 13 “enacted” it into positive law.

14 The above list is in order of priority. The first two are based on our private right to contract. The last one is based on our
15 ability to contract collectively as a group called a “state” with the public servants who will enforce and protect our rights
16 using the law/contract. The parties to the contract are our representatives and the public servants who will enforce the contract
17 they enact called a “Public law”. In a society such as we have which is populated with sovereigns, our private power to 18 contract supersedes enacted positive law and in some cases is also used as a substitute for positive law in cases where positive
19 law cannot be enacted. No government, as we pointed out earlier in section 5.4.1, has the power to interfere with our private 20 right to contract. Likewise, no state has the ability to interfere with the right of the federal government to contract with private 21 people in the states to provide “social services” such as Medicare, Social Security, etc.

22 Below is a tabular summary that graphically depicts who the parties are to each of the above three types of contracts and what 23 form the contract takes in each case. The purpose of each of the tree types of contract is to protect and defend the rights of 24 the parties:

25 Table 5-35: The three methods for exercising our right to contract

|---|--------------------------------------------|---------------------------------------|---------------------------------------|-------------------------|----------------------------------------------------|-------------------------------------------|
|   |                                            |                                       |                                       | Two consenting parties  | The government and individually consenting parties | The “state” and every person individually |
| 1 | Contract between two private parties       | Private, notarized, recorded contract | Parties to contract and their counsel | X                       |                                                    |                                           |
| 2 | Government “code” that is not positive law | Government application for benefits   | IRS, Social Security Administration   |                         | X                                                  |                                           |
| 3 | Enacted positive law                       | Positive laws                         | Attorney General                      |                         |                                                    | X                                         |

27 *“Adhesion contract. Standardized contract form offered to consumers of [government] goods and services on 28 essentially “take it or leave it” basis without affording consumer realistic opportunity to bargain and under such 29 conditions that consumer cannot obtain desired product or services except by acquiescing in form contract.
30 Distinctive features of adhesion contract is that weaker party has no realistic choice as to its terms. Cubic Corp.
31 v. Marty, 4 Dist., 185 C.A.3d 438, 229 Cal.Rptr. 828, 833; Standard Oil Co. of Calif. V. Perkins, C.A.Or., 347
32 F.2d. 379, 383. Recognizing that these contracts are not the result of traditionally “bargained” contracts, the 33 trend is to relieve parties from onerous conditions imposed by such contracts. However, not every such contract
35 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 40]*

Adhesion contracts have only come into vogue in the last century because of the corporatization of America and the monopolistic power that these large corporations have over the economy. If we didn't have such large, government sanctioned, corporate monopolies within specific segments of our economy, the sovereign People would have enough choice that they would never knowingly consent to an "adhesion contract" because they could entertain other competitive options. This concept of monopolistic coercion of the public also applies to the federal government. 28 U.S.C. §3002(15)(A) identifies the "United States" government as a "corporation". It also happens to be the largest corporation in the world which has a virtual monopoly in certain market segments. It has abused this monopolistic power to coerce people into complying with what amounts to an "invisible adhesion contract" called the Infernal Revenue Code. What makes this particular contract "invisible" is the fact that our public servants positively refuse to help you or notify you of precisely what activity or action makes you a party to this private contract. They do this because they don't want anyone escaping their control so that everyone will be trapped in their usurping spider web of tyranny, lies, and deceit. Hence, we had to write this entire book so you would understand all the nuances of this invisible contract and thus make an informed choice about whether you wish to be party to it. In response to publishing the terms of this "stealth contract" within our book, the government has repeatedly harassed, threatened, and persecuted us in an effort to keep the truth away from public view. Earlier in this book, in section 4.3.2, we revealed some of the many devious ways that dishonest and evil public servants attempt to conceal, avoid, or hide the requirement for consent in their interactions with the public. If you haven't read that section, then we recommend going back and doing so now before you proceed further.

On the subject of "invisible adhesion contracts", you might want to visit our website and read a fascinating series of articles by George Mercier on the subject at:

Our public dis-servants often use the second option above, the "invisible adhesion contract", quite deviously in order to pass statutes that "appear" to impose a mandatory obligation on their surface, but which in fact are not "law" and are entirely voluntary and only simply "directory" in nature:

Directory. A provision in a statute, rule of procedure, or the like, which is a mere direction or instruction of no obligatory force, and involving no invalidating consequence for its disregard, as opposed to an imperative or mandatory provision, which must be followed. The general rule is that the prescriptions of a statute relating to the performance of a public duty are so far directory that, though neglect of them may be punishable, yet it does not affect the validity of the acts done under them, as in the case of statute requiring an officer to prepare and deliver a document to another officer on or before a certain day.*
[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 460]

The second option above, by the way, is an extension of both our and the government's right to contract. The government writes the contract as a statute but doesn't enact it into positive law. This makes it simply a "proposal" that we can choose to accept or not to accept. The contract provides some benefit or "privilege" that people or the states want, which is usually some form of protection or some entitlement to a financial benefit. An example would be welfare "benefits". When a person or a state accept the benefit of the statute, then they must obey the REST of the contract, even if they did not explicitly consent in writing to the rest of the contract. In the case of receipt of federal welfare benefits, one requirement is that all states who want to receive the benefit MUST require those applying for driver's licenses to provide a Slave Surveillance Number, for instance. This approach is simply a devious legal extension of the Golden Rule:

"He who owns the gold rules."

In the case of our current federal government, by the way, the gold they are ruling with is stolen! It is loot! Here is how the Supreme Court describes it:

"The Government urges that the Power Company is estopped to question the validity of the Act creating the Tennessee Valley Authority, and hence that the stockholders, suing in the right of the corporation, cannot [297 U.S. 323] maintain this suit. .... The principle is invoked that one who accepts the benefit of a statute cannot be heard to question its constitutionality. Great Falls Manufacturing Co. v. Attorney General, 124 U.S. 581; Wall v. Parrot Silver & Copper Co., 244 U.S. 407; St. Louis Casting Co. v. Prendergast Construction Co., 260 U.S. 469."
[Ashwander v. Tennessee Valley Auth., 297 U.S. 288 (1936)]

"...when a State willingly accepts a substantial benefit from the Federal Government, it waives its immunity under the Eleventh Amendment and consents to suit by the intended beneficiaries of that federal assistance."
[Papasan v. Allain, 478 U.S. 265 (1986)]

In effect, a statute that is not positive law but which confers a government “privilege” or a “benefit”, becomes a “roach trap”. They set the trap by writing the statute that implements the benefit program, and those who walk into the legal trap must obey their new landlord to get out of the trap. We call this kind of trickery “privilege-induced slavery” earlier in section 4.3.12. We will simply refer to it as the “roach trap statutes” throughout the rest of this book. Do you want your public servants treating you like an insect because that is what you have become? The easiest way to avoid the “roach trap” is never to accept any government benefit. Those who are sovereign cannot be dependent in any respect and won’t walk into such a trap to begin with. Another way to avoid “roach trap statutes” is to qualify one’s consent when applying for the benefit by explicitly stating the terms under which one consents. If the receiving agency accepts your application, then they accepted the terms of your proposed new or replacement “contract”. This, by the way, is the vehicle we recommend for those who insist on filing “tax returns” with the government: making them into conditional self-assessments with tons of strings attached.

IMPORTANT!: Only those who are party to “roach trap” statutes and the “constructive contract” they describe should be using or citing anything from them! If you aren’t a “taxpayer”, and are not subject to the Internal Revenue Code, then don’t go citing anything from the I.R.C. in a court federal or state court pleading or in correspondence with the government. The minute you claim any “privilege” or “benefit” from using or quoting any part of the Internal Revenue Code is the minute you become a “taxpayer”! WATCH OUT! People who aren’t subject to federal law shouldn’t be benefiting from it in any way. The only exception to this rule are positive laws elsewhere in the U.S. Code such as Title 18, the Criminal Code, which applies to all crimes committed by federal employees or on federal property. We cover this subject of not citing federal statutes to protect your rights earlier in section 4.2.6 entitled “Why you shouldn’t cite federal statutes as authority for protecting your rights.”

The U.S. Supreme Court has also agreed with the conclusions of this section, by declaring that the payment of taxes is “quasi-contractual”, which means that the Internal Revenue Code must be the contract!

“Even if the judgment is deemed to be colored by the nature of the obligation whose validity it establishes, and we are free to re-examine it, and, if we find it to be based on an obligation penal in character, to refuse to enforce it outside the state where rendered, see Wisconsin v. Pelican Insurance Co., 127 U.S. 265, 292, et seq. 8 S.Ct.

1370, compare Fauntleroy v. Lum, 210 U.S. 230, 28 S.Ct. 641, still the obligation to pay taxes is not penal. It is a statutory liability, quasi contractual in nature, enforceable, if there is no exclusive statutory remedy, in the civil courts by the common-law action of debt or indebitatus assumpsit. United States v. Chamberlin, 219 U.S. 250, 31 S.Ct. 155; Price v. United States, 269 U.S. 492, 46 S.Ct. 180; Dollar Savings Bank v. United States, 19 Wall. 227; and see Stockwell v. United States, 13 Wall. 531, 542; Meredith v. United States, 13 Pet. 486, 493. This was the rule established in the English courts before the Declaration of Independence. Attorney General v. Weeks, Bunbury’s Exch. Rep. 223; Attorney General v. Jewers and Batty, Bunbury’s Exch. Rep. 225; Attorney General v. Hatton, Bunbury’s Exch. Rep. [296 U.S. 268, 272] 262; Attorney General v. —, 2 Ans.Rep. 558; see Comyn’s Digest (Title ‘Dett,’ A. 9); 1 Chitty on Pleading, 123; cf. Attorney General v. Sewell, 4 M.&W. 77. “ [Milwaukee v. White, 296 U.S. 268 (1935)]

“Quasi contract. An obligation which law creates in absence of agreement; it is invoked by courts where there is unjust enrichment. Andrews v. O’Grady, 44 Misc.2d. 28, 252 N.Y.S.2d. 814, 817. Sometimes referred to as implied-in-law contracts (as a legal fiction) to distinguish them from implied-in-fact contracts (voluntary agreements inferred from the parties’ conduct). Function of “quasi-contract” is to raise obligation in law where in fact the parties made no promise, and it is not based on apparent intention of the parties. Fink v. Goodson-Todman Enterprises, Limited, 9 C.A.3d 996, 88 Cal.Rptr. 679, 690. See also Contract.” [Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1245]

The weak point of roach trap laws and the point upon which we can attack and undermine them is that the benefit must indeed be a tangible, measurable benefit. Simply “perceiving” it as a benefit does not in fact make it into a benefit. The benefit also cannot derive from the absence of force, fraud, or illegal duress upon the person in receipt of the benefit. Compelled receipt of a benefit is nothing but slavery and involuntary servitude cleverly disguised as government “benevolence”. Without some mutual tangible benefit voluntarily and freely accepted, which is called “consideration” in the legal field, a valid contract cannot be formed. Every valid legal contract must include an offer, acceptance, mutual consideration, and mutual informed consent. In the case of the Internal Revenue Code, it ought to be quite obvious that if payment is voluntary and consensual under Subtitle A, there is absolutely no tangible benefit whatsoever that can result from “volunteering” or “consenting” to

1 become a federal serf as a person domiciled in a state of the Union. The only people who could possibly "benefit" from this
 2 corrupt communistic and socialistic system, in fact, are parasites and thieves who intend from the beginning to draw more
 3 out of the government than they put in. God's law, however, tells us that no righteous government has any moral authority
 4 to be taxing and pillaging the successful members of society in order to subsidize and reward this kind of thievery, failure,
 5 and government dependency:

6 "My son, if sinners [socialists, in this case] entice you,

7 Do not consent [do not abuse your power of choice]

8 If they say, "Come with us,

28 [Proverbs 1:10-19, Bible, NKJV]

29 Furthermore, the U.S. Supreme Court has said several times that the government cannot manipulate Constitutional rights out
 30 of existence either directly or indirectly, which means they can't abuse their taxing powers or their power to contract in order
 31 to deceive people into bargaining away their Constitutional rights:

32 "It has long been established that a State may not impose a penalty upon those who exercise a right guaranteed
 33 by the Constitution." Frost & Frost Trucking Co. v. Railroad Comm'n of California, 271 U.S. 583. "Constitutional
 34 rights would be of little value if they could be indirectly denied,' Smith v. Allwright, 321 U.S. 649, 644, or

37 When we signed our first tax return or IRS Form W-4, which were knowingly false as far as our public dis-servants were 38 concerned, the government didn't explicitly inform us as "nationals" and "non-resident non-persons" who have rights that
 39 we would be giving away those rights by lying to the government in admitting that we are a "U.S. individual" in the upper 40 left corner of the form. In fact, the government didn't even want you to know that you were consenting to anything by 41 submitting the form. Did you ever notice, for instance, that the upper left corner of the IRS Form W-4 says "Employee's 42 Withholding Allowance Certificate", and yet within the Treasury Regulations that the government knows you will probably 43 never read in your lifetime, they instead call this same form a "Withholding Agreement"? Sneaky, huh?

44 26 C.F.R. Sec. 31.3401(a)-3 Amounts deemed wages under *voluntary withholding
 45 agreements.

46 (a) IN GENERAL. Notwithstanding the exceptions to the definition of wages specified in section 3401(a) and the 47 regulations thereunder, the term "wages" includes the amounts described in paragraph (b)(1) of this section
 48 with respect to which there is a voluntary withholding agreement in effect under section 3402(p). References
 49 in this chapter to the definition of wages contained in section 3401(a) shall be deemed to refer also to this section
 50 (Section 31.3401(a)-3).

52 (1) Except as provided in subparagraph (2) of this paragraph, the amounts referred to in paragraph (a) of this
 53 section include any remuneration for services performed by an employee for an employer which, without

performed by an agricultural worker or a domestic worker in a private home (amounts which are specifically excluded from the definition of wages by section 3401(a)(2) and (3), respectively) are amounts with respect to which a voluntary withholding agreement may be entered into under section 3402(p). See Sections 31.3401(c)-1 and 31.3401(d)-1 for the definitions of "employee" and "employer".

Who is doing the agreeing here, anyway? IT'S YOU!! Your public servants don't want you to know that they need your consent to take your money. They want the process of giving consent to be "invisible" to you so that you are tricked into believing that participation in payroll withholding is mandatory. Your devious politicians and government lawyer "servants" have been playing tricks on you like this for decades, and most Americans have been blissfully unaware of these devious machinations until this book came out. Consequently then, it must be presumed in the context of the W-4 fraud documented above that we never provided sufficiently informed or voluntary consent, which the Supreme Court interprets to mean that we never made any choice or provided any "consent" at all:

"Waivers of constitutional rights not only must be voluntary but must be knowing, intelligent acts done with sufficient awareness of the relevant circumstances and likely consequences."

Laws that are not "positive law" are described simply as "prima facie evidence of law" and may not be cited as admissible evidence in any criminal or civil trial. Prima facie evidence is rebuttable evidence:

1 U.S.C. §204

Sec. 204. - Codes and Supplements as evidence of the laws of United States and District of Columbia; citation of Codes and Supplements

In all courts, tribunals, and public offices of the United States, at home or abroad, of the District of Columbia, and of each

State, Territory, or insular possession of the United States -

(a) United States Code. -

The matter set forth in the edition of the Code of Laws of the United States current at any time shall, together with the then current supplement, if any, establish prima facie [by presumption] the laws of the United States, general and permanent in their nature, in force on the day preceding the commencement of the session following the last session the legislation of which is included: Provided, however, That whenever titles of such Code shall have been enacted into positive law the text thereof shall be legal evidence of the laws therein contained, in all the courts of the United States, the several States, and the Territories and insular possessions of the United States.

Of the above three methods for exercising our right to contract, the Internal Revenue Code falls into the category of item 3 above: Legislation or statutes which is not enacted into positive law and which are therefore not "law", and whose enforcement provisions are not published in the Federal Register. See the following for evidence of the missing enforcement regulations at:

IRS Due Process Meeting Handout, Form #03.008

Consequently, the Internal Revenue Code, because it is neither "positive law" nor "law" and because there are no enforcement provisions published in the Federal Register, can only be enforced against federal "employees" who are "effectively connected" to U.S. government income if it is enforced at all. The reason is because federal employees basically must observe their employment contract, which includes the implied agreement to pay "kickbacks" to the federal government out of their pay called "income taxes". These "kickbacks" are recorded and accounted for on a "return", which is a return of the government's property to its rightful owner. For all persons other than federal "employees", the I.R.C. is nothing more than a voluntary contract which each individual must choose for himself or herself whether he or she individually wants the "benefits" of. Those who choose to avail themselves of the benefits of this constructive voluntary private "contract" reveal their consent and intent by declaring themselves to be federal "employees" on the IRS Form W-4 and submitting it directly to the IRS or indirectly, through their private, non-federal employer. When they elect to avail themselves of this contract, they will be treated by the government in every respect relating to "taxes" like any typical federal "employee", even if they in fact are not and even if they deny having done so. Note, however, that in the vast majority of cases, those who submit the IRS Form W-4 had to LIE in order to avail themselves of the contract because there are 280+ million Americans but only

1 about 2,000 elected or appointed "public officers" who lawfully hold public office. Once they perjure themselves on the W-
2 4 by claiming they are federal "employees" under penalty of perjury, now the government has them trapped because they
3 have given the government court-admissible evidence that they are federal "employees". If they then later claim they were 4 deceived or tricked in filling out the form, the government can try to blackmail them by saying they committed perjury on
5 the form. Checkmate!

6 Another way to challenge the "roach trap" in court is simply to show that statistically, the statute one is subject to does not
7 "benefit", but instead harms people and societies. Once you can prove that it isn't a benefit but in fact a harm to the people,
8 the government loses its ability to enforce its' contract upon the recipient. The sole purpose of both law and government is 9 to protect and not harm society. Government cannot exceed that boundary no matter what. The Supreme Court explained
10 why this is as follows:

11 "The great principle is this: because the constitution will not permit a state to destroy, it will not permit a law 12 involving the power to destroy."
13 [Providence Bank v. Billings, 29 U.S. 514 (1830)]

14 The last point we want to make about "roach trap statutes" in relation to income taxation is that the Supreme Court has already 15 said that their main benefit, which is the Social Security and Medicare benefits that go with the payment of income taxes, is 16 NOT, and I repeat NOT, a contract.

17 "We must conclude that a person covered by the Act has not such a right in benefit payments... This is not to 18 say, however, that Congress may exercise its power to modify the statutory scheme free of all constitutional 19 restraint."
20 [Flemming v. Nestor, 363 U.S. 603 (1960)]

21 Therefore, payment by the government of benefits is not contractual, it is discretionary according to the Supreme Court.
22 Where there is no contract, there can be no breach of contract or harm to the benefit recipient. Therefore, payment to the 23 government for these so-called "benefits" through income taxation cannot be contractual either. Equal protection of the laws
24 guaranteed by Section 1 of the Fourteenth Amendment demands this. Not only that, but anyone who takes out anything more
25 than exactly what they put in, is a THIEF! The Bible says that all such thieves MUST be forced to pay back DOUBLE what 26 they stole to the victims of the theft:

27 "If a man [the government, in this case] delivers to his neighbor [a citizen, in this case] money or articles to keep,
28 and it is stolen out of the man's house [our out of his paycheck], if the thief is found, he shall pay double. If the 29 thief is not found, then the master of the house shall be brought to the judges to see whether he has put his hand
30 into his neighbor's goods."
31 [Exodus 22:7-8, Bible, NKJV]

32 The "victim" of the theft, in this case, are all the "nontaxpayers" who never wanted to participate in this bankrupt
33 humanistic/socialist tax and welfare-state system to begin with. If people cannot lawfully be permitted to take out more than 34 they put in because it would be theft, then why have the socialist program to begin with? All it will do is encourage those 35 who receive the benefit to abuse their voting power to compel the government to STEAL from their fellow working citizens,
36 in violation of 18 U.S.C. §597, which IS positive law, by the way.

37 5.4.5 Federalism

38 Federalism is the mechanism by which the sovereignty of the States and the People are preserved out of respect for the 39 requirements of the Tenth Amendment to the United States Constitution, which states:

40 United States Constitution
41 Tenth Amendment

42 The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved
43 to the States respectively, or to the people.

44 Federalism is advanced primarily but not exclusively through the following means:

- 45 1. Requirement for comity when acting extra-territorially. Whenever the federal government wishes to exercise
46 extraterritorial jurisdiction within a state of the Union, which is a foreign state for the purposes of federal legislative jurisdiction, it must respect the requirement for "comity", which means that it must pursue the consent of the parties to the action.

"Every State or nation possesses an exclusive sovereignty and jurisdiction within her own territory, and her laws affect and bind all property and persons residing within it. It may regulate the manner and circumstances under which property is held, and the condition, capacity, and state of all persons therein, and also the remedy and modes of administering justice. And it is equally true that no State or nation can affect or bind property out of its territory, or persons not residing [domiciled] within it. No State therefore can enact laws to operate beyond its own dominions, and if it attempts to do so, it may be lawfully refused obedience. Such laws can have no inherent authority extraterritorially. This is the necessary result of the independence of distinct and separate sovereignties."

"Now it follows from these principles that whatever force or effect the laws of one State or nation may have in the territories of another must depend solely upon the laws and municipal regulations of the latter, upon its own jurisprudence and polity, and upon its own express or tacit consent."
Dred Scott v. John F.A. Sanford, [60 U.S. 393 (1856)]

"Judge Story, in his treatise on the Conflicts of Laws, lays down, as the basis upon which all reasonings on the law of comity must necessarily rest, the following maxims: First 'that every nation possesses an exclusive sovereignty and jurisdiction within its own territory'; secondly, 'that no state or nation can by its laws directly affect or bind property out of its own territory, or bind persons not resident therein, whether they are natural born subjects or others.' The learned judge then adds: 'From these two maxims or propositions there follows a third, and that is that whatever force and obligation the laws of one country have in another depend solely upon the laws and municipal regulation of the latter; that is to say, upon its own proper jurisdiction and polity, and upon its own express or tacit consent.' Story on Conflict of Laws §23."

2. The separation of powers between the states and the federal government in order to preserve a "diffusion of sovereign power". This means that a state may not delegate any of its powers conferred by the Constitution to the Federal Government, and likewise, that the federal government may not delegate any of its powers to any state of the Union:

"To the contrary, the Constitution divides authority between federal and state governments for the protection of individuals. State sovereignty is not just an end in itself: "Rather, federalism secures to citizens the liberties that derive from the diffusion of sovereign power." Coleman v. Thompson, 501 U.S. 722, 759 \(1991\) (BLACKMUN, J., dissenting). "Just as the separation and independence of the coordinate branches of the Federal Government serve to prevent the accumulation of excessive power in any one branch, a healthy balance of power between the States and the Federal Government will reduce the risk of tyranny and abuse from either front." Gregory v. [505 U.S. 144, 182] Ashcroft, 501 U.S., at 458. See The Federalist No. 51, p. 323. (C. Rossiter ed. 1961).

Where Congress exceeds its authority relative to the States, therefore, the departure from the constitutional plan cannot be ratified by the "consent" of state officials. An analogy to the separation of powers among the branches of the Federal Government clarifies this point. The Constitution's division of power among the three branches is violated where one branch invades the territory of another, whether or not the encroached-upon branch approves the encroachment. In Buckley v. Valeo, 424 U.S. 1, 118 -137 (1976), for instance, the Court held that Congress had infringed the President's appointment power, despite the fact that the President himself had manifested his consent to the statute that caused the infringement by signing it into law. See National League of Cities v. Usery, 426 U.S., at 842, n. 12. In INS v. Chadha, 462 U.S. 919, 944 -959 (1983), we held that the legislative veto violated the constitutional requirement that legislation be presented to the President, despite Presidents' approval of hundreds of statutes containing a legislative veto provision. See id., at 944-945. The constitutional authority of Congress cannot be expanded by the "consent" of the governmental unit whose domain is thereby narrowed, whether that unit is the Executive Branch or the States.

State officials thus cannot consent to the enlargement of the powers of Congress beyond those enumerated in the Constitution. Indeed, the facts of this case raise the possibility that powerful incentives might lead both federal and state officials to view departures from the federal structure to be in their personal interests. Most citizens recognize the need for radioactive waste disposal sites, but few want sites near their homes. As a result, while it would be well within the authority of either federal or state officials to choose where the disposal sites will be, it is likely to be in the political interest of each individual official to avoid being held accountable to the voters for the choice of location. If [505 U.S. 144, 183] a federal official is faced with the alternatives of choosing a location or directing the States to do it, the official may well prefer the latter, as a means of shifting responsibility for the eventual decision. If a state official is faced with the same set of alternatives - choosing a location or having Congress direct the choice of a location - the state official may also prefer the latter, as it may permit the avoidance of personal responsibility. The interests of public officials thus may not coincide with the Constitution's intergovernmental allocation of authority. Where state officials purport to submit to the direction of Congress in this manner, federalism is hardly being advanced. "

3. Parties domiciled in states of the Union may not consent to the jurisdiction of the federal courts where no subject matter jurisdiction exists within the Constitution, because it would unlawfully enlarge the jurisdiction of the federal government beyond the clear boundaries enumerated in the Constitution of the United States.

Pacemaker argues that in the federal system a party may not consent to jurisdiction, so that the parties cannot waive their rights under Article III. The maxim that parties may not consent to the jurisdiction of federal courts is not applicable here. The rule is irrelevant because it applies only where the parties attempt to confer upon an Article III court a subject matter jurisdiction that Congress or the Constitution forbid. See, e.g., Jackson v. Ashton, 33 U.S. (8 Peters), 148, 148-49, 8 L.Ed. 898 (1834); Mansfield, Coldwater & Lake Michigan Railway Co. v. Swan, 111 U.S. 379, 28 L.Ed. 462, 4 S.Ct. 510 (1884). The limited jurisdiction of the federal courts and the need to respect the boundaries of federalism underlie the rule. In the instant case, however, the subject matter, patents, is exclusively one of federal law. The Supreme Court has explicitly held that Congress may "confer upon federal courts jurisdiction conditioned upon a defendant's consent." Williams v. Austrian, 331 U.S. 642, 652, 91 L.Ed. 1718, 67 S.Ct. 1443 (1947); see Harris v. Avery Brundage Co., 305 U.S. 160, 83 L.Ed. 100, 59 S.Ct. 131 (1938). The litigant waiver in this case is similar to waiver of a defect in jurisdiction over the person, a waiver federal courts permit. Hoffman v. Blaski, 363 U.S. 335, 343, 4 L.Ed.2d. 1254, 80 S.Ct. 1084 (1960). [Pacemaker Diagnostic Clinic of America Inc. v. Instromedix Inc., 725 F.2d. 537 (9th Cir. 02/16/1984)]

By the authority vested in me as President by the Constitution and laws of the United States of America, and in order to restore the division of governmental responsibilities between the national government and the States that was intended by the Framers of the Constitution and to ensure that the principles of federalism established by the Framers guide the Executive departments and agencies in the formulation and implementation of policies, it is hereby ordered as follows:

Section 1. Definitions. For purposes of this Order:

- (a) "Policies that have federalism implications" refers to regulations, legislative comments or proposed legislation, and other policy statements or actions that have substantial direct effects on the States, on the relationship between the national government and the States, or on the distribution of power and responsibilities among the various levels of government.*
- (b) "State" or "States" refer to the States of the United States of America, individually or collectively, and, where relevant, to State governments, including units of local government and other political subdivisions established by the States.*

Sec. 2. Fundamental Federalism Principles. In formulating and implementing policies that have federalism implications, Executive departments and agencies shall be guided by the following fundamental federalism principles:

- (a) Federalism is rooted in the knowledge that our political liberties are best assured by limiting the size and scope of the national government.*
- (b) The people of the States created the national government when they delegated to it those enumerated governmental powers relating to matters beyond the competence of the individual States. All other sovereign powers, save those expressly prohibited the States by the Constitution, are reserved to the States or to the people.*
- (c) The constitutional relationship among sovereign governments, State and national, is formalized in and protected by the Tenth Amendment to the Constitution.*
- (d) The people of the States are free, subject only to restrictions in the Constitution itself or in constitutionally authorized Acts of Congress, to define the moral, political, and legal character of their lives.*
- (e) In most areas of governmental concern, the States uniquely possess the constitutional authority, the resources, and the competence to discern the sentiments of the people and to govern accordingly. In Thomas Jefferson's words, the States are "the most competent administrations for our domestic concerns and the surest bulwarks against antirepublican tendencies."*
- (f) The nature of our constitutional system encourages a healthy diversity in the public policies adopted by the people of the several States according to their own conditions, needs, and desires. In the search for enlightened public policy, individual States and communities are free to experiment with a variety of approaches to public issues.*
- (g) Acts of the national government--whether legislative, executive, or judicial in nature--that exceed the enumerated powers of that government under the Constitution violate the principle of federalism established by the Framers.*
- (h) Policies of the national government should recognize the responsibility of--and should encourage opportunities for--individuals, families, neighborhoods, local governments, and private associations to achieve their personal, social, and economic objectives through cooperative effort.*
  - (i) In the absence of clear constitutional or statutory authority, the presumption of sovereignty should rest*

1 with the individual States. Uncertainties regarding the legitimate authority of the national government
2 should be resolved against regulation at the national level.

3 Sec. 3. Federalism Policymaking Criteria. In addition to the fundamental federalism principles set forth in section
4 2, Executive departments and agencies shall adhere, to the extent permitted by law, to the following criteria when 5 formulating and implementing policies that have federalism implications:

- 6 (a) There should be strict adherence to constitutional principles. Executive departments and agencies should 7 closely examine the constitutional and statutory authority supporting any Federal action that would limit the 8 policymaking discretion of the States, and should carefully assess the necessity for such action. To the extent
9 practicable, the States should be consulted before any such action is implemented. Executive Order No. 12372
10 ("Intergovernmental Review of Federal Programs") remains in effect for the programs and activities to which 11 it is applicable.
- 12 (b) Federal action limiting the policymaking discretion of the States should be taken only where constitutional 13 authority for the action is clear and certain and the national activity is necessitated by the presence of a 14 problem of national scope. For the purposes of this Order:
- 15 (1) It is important to recognize the distinction between problems of national scope (which may justify Federal 16 action) and problems that are merely common to the States (which will not justify Federal action because 17 individual States, acting individually or together, can effectively deal with them).
- 18 (2) Constitutional authority for Federal action is clear and certain only when authority for the action may be 19 found in a specific provision of the Constitution, there is no provision in the Constitution prohibiting 20 Federal action, and the action does not encroach upon authority reserved to the States.
- 21 (c) With respect to national policies administered by the States, the national government should grant the States
22 the maximum administrative discretion possible. Intrusive, Federal oversight of State administration is 23 neither necessary nor desirable.
- 24 (d) When undertaking to formulate and implement policies that have federalism implications, Executive 25 departments and agencies shall:
- 26 (1) Encourage States to develop their own policies to achieve program objectives and to work with 27 appropriate officials in other States.
- 28 (2) Refrain, to the maximum extent possible, from establishing uniform, national standards for programs and,
29 when possible, defer to the States to establish standards.
- 30 (3) When national standards are required, consult with appropriate officials and organizations representing 31 the States in developing those standards.

32 Sec. 4. Special Requirements for Preemption.

- 33 (a) To the extent permitted by law, Executive departments and agencies shall construe, in regulations and 34 otherwise, a Federal statute to preempt State law only when the statute contains an express preemption
35 provision or there is some other firm and palpable evidence compelling the conclusion that the Congress
36 intended preemption of State law, or when the exercise of State authority directly conflicts with the exercise
37 of Federal authority under the Federal statute.
- 38 (b) Where a Federal statute does not preempt State law (as addressed in subsection (a) of this section),
39 Executive departments and agencies shall construe any authorization in the statute for the issuance of 40 regulations as authorizing preemption of State law by rule-making only when the statute expressly
41 authorizes issuance of preemptive regulations or there is some other firm and palpable evidence compelling
42 the conclusion that the Congress intended to delegate to the department or agency the authority to issue
43 regulations preempting State law.
- 44 (c) Any regulatory preemption of State law shall be restricted to the minimum level necessary to achieve the 45 objectives of the statute pursuant to which the regulations are promulgated.
- 46 (d) As soon as an Executive department or agency foresees the possibility of a conflict between State law and 47 Federally protected interests within its area of regulatory responsibility, the department or agency shall 48 consult, to the extent practicable, with appropriate officials and organizations representing the States in an 49 effort to avoid such a conflict.
- 50 (e) When an Executive department or agency proposes to act through adjudication or rule-making to preempt
51 State law, the department or agency shall provide all affected States notice and an opportunity for 52 appropriate participation in the proceedings.

53 Sec. 5. Special Requirements for Legislative Proposals. Executive departments and agencies shall not submit to 54 the Congress legislation that would:

- 55 (a) Directly regulate the States in ways that would interfere with functions essential to the States' separate and 56 independent existence or operate to directly displace the States' freedom to structure integral operations in 57 areas of traditional governmental functions;
- 58 (b) Attach to Federal grants conditions that are not directly related to the purpose of the grant; or
- 59 (c) Preempt State law, unless preemption is consistent with the fundamental federalism principles set forth in 60 section 2, and unless a clearly legitimate national purpose, consistent with the federalism policymaking
61 criteria set forth in section 3, cannot otherwise be met.

62 Sec. 6. Agency Implementation.

- 63 (a) The head of each Executive department and agency shall designate an official to be responsible for ensuring 64 the implementation of this Order.
- 65 (b) In addition to whatever other actions the designated official may take to ensure implementation of this Order,
66 the designated official shall determine which proposed policies have sufficient federalism implications to 67 warrant the preparation of a Federalism Assessment. With respect to each such policy for which an

1 affirmative determination is made, a Federalism Assessment, as described in subsection (c) of this section,
2 shall be prepared. The department or agency head shall consider any such Assessment in all decisions
3 involved in promulgating and implementing the policy.

4 (c) Each Federalism Assessment shall accompany any submission concerning the policy that is made to the Office
5 of Management and Budget pursuant to Executive Order No. 12291 or OMB Circular No. A-19, and shall:

6 (1) Contain the designated official's certification that the policy has been assessed in light of the principles,
7 criteria, and requirements stated in sections 2 through 5 of this Order;

8 (2) Identify any provision or element of the policy that is inconsistent with the principles, criteria, and 9 requirements stated in sections 2 through 5 of this Order;

10 (3) Identify the extent to which the policy imposes additional costs or burdens on the States, including the 11 likely source of funding for the States and the ability of the States to fulfill the purposes of the policy; and

12 (4) Identify the extent to which the policy would affect the States' ability to discharge traditional State
13 governmental functions, or other aspects of State sovereignty.

14 Sec. 7. Government-wide Federalism Coordination and Review.

15 (a) In implementing Executive Order Nos. 12291 and 12498 and OMB Circular No. A-19, the Office of 16 Management and Budget, to the extent permitted by law and consistent with the provisions of those 17 authorities, shall take action to ensure that the policies of the Executive departments and agencies are 18 consistent with the principles, criteria, and requirements stated in sections 2 through 5 of this Order.

19 (b) In submissions to the Office of Management and Budget pursuant to Executive Order No. 12291 and OMB
20 Circular No. A-19, Executive departments and agencies shall identify proposed regulatory and statutory 21 provisions that have significant federalism implications and shall address any substantial federalism
22 concerns. Where the departments or agencies deem it appropriate, substantial federalism concerns should 23 also be addressed in notices of proposed rule-making and messages transmitting legislative proposals to the

25 Sec. 8. Judicial Review.

26 This Order is intended only to improve the internal management of the Executive branch, and is not intended to 27 create any right or benefit, substantive or procedural, enforceable at law by a party against the United States, its 28 agencies, its officers, or any person.

29 An example of the operation of Federalism to constrain the extraterritorial jurisdiction of the federal government in a judicial 30 setting is found in the Supreme Court ruling below. Note that the court is addressing a situation where Congress is acting
31 extraterritorially upon land within a state of the Union that is not within its exclusive or general jurisdiction of the federal
32 government:

33 Respondents contend that Congress is without power, in view of the immunity doctrine, thus to subject a State to 34 suit. We disagree. Congress enacted the FELA in the exercise of its constitutional power to regulate [377 U.S.
35 191] interstate commerce. Second Employers' Liability Cases, 223 U.S. 1. While a State's immunity from suit
36 by a citizen without its consent has been said to be rooted in "the inherent nature of sovereignty," Great
37 Northern Life Ins. Co. v. Read, supra, 322 U.S. 47, 51,(9) the States surrendered a portion of their sovereignty
38 when they granted Congress the power to regulate commerce.

39 This power, like all others vested in congress, is complete in itself, may be exercised to its 40 utmost extent, and acknowledges no limitations other than are prescribed in the constitution. .
41 . . . If, as has always been understood, the sovereignty of congress, though limited to specified 42 objects is plenary as to those objects, the power over commerce with foreign nations, and 43 among the several States, is vested in congress as absolutely as it would be in a single 44 government, having in its constitution the same restrictions on the exercise of the power as 45 are found in the constitution of the United States.

46 Gibbons v. Ogden, 9 Wheat. 1, 196-197. Thus, as the Court said in United States v. California, supra, 297 U.S.
47 at 184-185, a State's operation of a railroad in interstate commerce

48 must be in subordination to the power to regulate interstate commerce, which has been 49 granted specifically to the national government. The sovereign power of the states is 50 necessarily diminished to the extent of the grants of power to the federal government in the 51 Constitution. . . . [T]here is no such limitation upon the plenary power to regulate commerce
52 [as there is upon the federal power to tax [377 U.S. 192] state instrumentalities]. The state
53 can no more deny the power if its exercise has been authorized by Congress than can an
54 individual.

55 By empowering Congress to regulate commerce, then, the States necessarily surrendered any portion of their 56 sovereignty that would stand in the way of such regulation. Since imposition of the FELA right of action upon 57 interstate railroads is within the congressional regulatory power, it must follow that application of the Act to such
58 a railroad cannot be precluded by sovereign immunity.{10}

Recognition of the congressional power to render a State suable under the FELA does not mean that the immunity doctrine, as embodied in the Eleventh Amendment with respect to citizens of other States and as extended to the State's own citizens by the Hans case, is here being overridden. It remains the law that a State may not be sued by an individual without its consent. Our conclusion is simply that Alabama, when it began operation of an interstate railroad approximately 20 years after enactment of the FELA, necessarily consented to such suit as was authorized by that Act. By adopting and ratifying the Commerce Clause, the States empowered Congress to create such a right of action against interstate railroads; by enacting the FELA in the exercise of this power, Congress conditioned the right to operate a railroad in interstate commerce upon amenability to suit in federal court as provided by the Act; by thereafter operating a railroad in interstate commerce, Alabama must be taken to have accepted that condition and thus to have consented to suit.

[B]y engaging in interstate commerce by rail, [the State] has subjected itself to the commerce power, and is liable for a violation of the . . . Act, as are other [377 U.S. 193] carriers. . . .

United States v. California, supra, 297 U.S. at 185; California v. Taylor, supra, 353 U.S. at 568. We thus agree that

[T]he State is liable upon the theory that, by engaging in interstate commerce by rail, it has subjected itself to the commerce power of the federal government.

It would be a strange situation indeed if the state could be held subject to the [Federal Safety Appliance Act] and liable for a violation thereof, and yet could not be sued without its express consent. The state, by engaging in interstate commerce, and thereby subjecting itself to the act, must be held to have waived any right it may have had arising out of the general rule that a sovereign state may not be sued without its consent.

Maurice v. State, 43 Cal.App.2d at 275, 277, 110 P.2d. at 710-711. Accord, Higginbotham v. Public Belt R. Comm'n, supra, 192 La. 525, 550-551, 188 So. 395, 403; Mathewes v. Port Utilities Comm'n, supra. [11] [377 U.S. 194]

Respondents deny that Alabama's operation of the railroad constituted consent to suit. They argue that it had no such effect under state law, and that the State did not intend to waive its immunity or know that such a waiver would result. Reliance is placed on the Alabama Constitution of 1901, Art. I, Section 14 of which provides that "the State of Alabama shall never be made a defendant in any court of law or equity"; on state cases holding that neither the legislature nor a state officer has the power to waive the State's immunity; [12] and on cases in this Court to the effect that whether a State has waived its immunity depends upon its intention and is a question of state law [377 U.S. 195] only. Chandler v. Dix, 194 U.S. 590; Palmer v. Ohio, 248 U.S. 32; Ford Motor Co. v. Department of Treasury, 323 U.S. 459, 466-470. We think those cases are inapposite to the present situation, where the waiver is asserted to arise from the State's commission of an act to which Congress, in the exercise of its constitutional power to regulate commerce, has attached the condition of amenability to suit. More pertinent to such a situation is our decision in Petty v. Tennessee-Missouri Bridge Comm'n, supra. That was a suit against a bi-state authority created with the consent of Congress pursuant to the Compact Clause of the Constitution. We assumed arguendo that the suit must be considered as being against the States themselves, but held nevertheless that, by the terms of the compact and of a proviso that Congress had attached in approving it, [13] the States had waived any immunity they might otherwise have had. In reaching this conclusion, we rejected arguments, like the one made here, based on the proposition that neither [377 U.S. 196] of the States, under its own law, would have considered the language in the compact to constitute a waiver of its immunity. The question of waiver was, we held, one of federal law. It is true that this holding was based on the inclusion of the language in an interstate compact sanctioned by Congress under the Constitution. But such compacts do not present the only instance in which the question whether a State has waived its immunity is one of federal law. This must be true whenever the waiver is asserted to arise from an act done by the State within the realm of congressional regulation; for the congressional power to condition such an act upon amenability to suit would be meaningless if the State, on the basis of its own law or intention, could conclusively deny the waiver and shake off the condition. The broad principle of the Petty case is thus applicable here: where a State's consent to suit is alleged to arise from an act not wholly within its own sphere of authority, but within a sphere -- whether it be interstate compacts or interstate commerce -- subject to the constitutional power of the Federal Government, the question whether the State's act constitutes the alleged consent is one of federal law. Here, as in Petty, the States by venturing into the congressional realm "assume the conditions that Congress under the Constitution attached." 359 U.S. at 281-282. [Parden v. Terminal R. Co., 377 U.S. 184 (1964)]

Note in the above case that extraterritorial jurisdiction was procured by the federal government within the exterior limits of a "foreign state", which was a state of the Union, by the commission of an act by the state in the context of its private business ventures, which act constituted interstate commerce. The state indicated that it did not consent to the jurisdiction of the federal government, but their consent was implied by the combination of the Constitution, which is a "contract" or "compact", as well as an act falling within the Constitution for which Congress was granted exclusive authority over the state by the state's own ratification of said "compact" as a member of the Union. In that sense, the Constitution creates the equivalent of

1 an “implied contract” or “quasi contract” which can be used to regulate all activities covered by the contract extraterritorially,
 2 even among parties who were unaware of the implied contract and did not explicitly or individually consent. Below is a
 3 definition of “implied contract” from Black’s Law Dictionary:

4 *CONTRACT. [ . . . ] An implied contract is one not created or evidenced by the explicit agreement of the parties,
 5 but inferred by the law, as a matter of reason and justice from their acts or conduct, the circumstances
 6 surrounding the transaction making it a reasonable, or even a necessary, assumption that a contract existed
 7 between them by tacit understanding. Miller’s Appeal, 100 Pa. 568, 45 Am.Rep. 394; Landon v. Kansas City Gas
 8 Co., C.C.A.Kan., 10 F.2d. 263, 266; Caldwell v. Missouri State Life Ins. Co., 230 S.W. 566, 568, 148 Ark. 474;
 9 Cameron, to Use of Cameron, v. Eynon, 332 Pa. 529, 3 A.2d. 423, 424; American La France Fire Engine Co., to 10 Use of American La France & Foamite Industries, v. Borough of Shenandoah, C.C.A.Pa., 115 F.2d. 886, 867.*

11 *Implied contracts are sometimes subdivided into those “implied in fact” and those “implied in law,” the former
 12 being covered by the definition just given, while the latter are obligations imposed upon a person by the law, not
 13 in pursuance of his intention and agreement, either expressed or implied, but even against his will and design,
 14 because the circumstances between the parties are such as to render it just that the one should have a right, and 15 the other a corresponding liability, similar to those which would arise from a contract between them. This kind
 16 of obligation therefore rests on the principle that whatsoever it is certain a man ought to do that the law will
 17 suppose him to have promised to do. And hence it is said that, while the liability of a party to an express contract
 18 arises directly from the contract, it is just the reverse in the case of a contract “implied in law,” the contract there
 19 being implied or arising from the liability. Bliss v. Hoy, 70 Vt. 534, 41 A. 1026; Kellum v. Browning’s Adm’r. 231
 20 Ky. 308. 21 S.W.2d. 459, 465. But obligations of this kind are not properly contracts at all, and should not be so
 21 denominated. There can be no true contract without a mutual and concurrent intention of the parties. Such
 22 obligations are more properly described as “quasi contracts.” Union Life Ins. Co. v. Glasscock, 270 Ky. 750, 110

25 If you want to investigate the matter of federalism further, we highly recommend the following succinct summary from the 26 Liberty University, Item #2.4:

Cooperative Federalism, Gerald Brown, Ed.D.
<http://sedm.org/LibertyU/CooperativeFederalism.pdf>

27 5.4.6 The Internal Revenue Code is not Public or Positive Law, but Private Law

28 5.4.6.1 Proof that the I.R.C. is not positive law

29 You can find a list of specific titles of the U.S. Code that are positive law by examining the legislative Notes under 1 U.S.C.
 30 §204. In addition, each Title of the U.S. Code indicates whether or not it contains positive law. As an example, Title One,

32 *“This title has been made positive law by section 1 of the act of July 30, 1947, ch. 388, 61 Stat. 633, which 33 provided in part that: ‘Title 1 of the United States Code entitled ‘General Provisions,’ is codified and enacted
 34 into positive law and may be cited as ‘1 U.S.C. Sec....’”*

35 Whereas Title 26 makes no statement that it is positive law. Congress just says that I.R. Codes were “enacted” and how they 36 may be cited, but never explicitly says they are “positive law”. That means they don’t obligate you to anything without your 37 explicit consent in some form. In that sense, they are “private law” and amount essentially to a contract for federal 38 employment.

39 If you trace the history of the current Internal Revenue Code, you will find that it began with the 1939 code. All revenue
 40 laws prior to the 1939 I.R.C. were repealed when the 1939 code was enacted. See Section 4 of the 1939 code, 53 Stat. 1. In 41 addition to repealing all the previous revenue laws, the 1939 code repealed itself! You can see this for yourself by viewing
 42 the 1939 code in section 4:

44 There have been two major revisions of the I.R.C. since the 1939 code: 1954 and 1986. Both of these codes referred to 45 themselves simply as “amendments”, but what they amended was a repealed code that was dead! If you look at the list of 46 amendments in the 1954 code, it doesn’t even list the sections of the previous 1939 code that were changed, and the reason
 47 it doesn’t is because it is amending a dead, inactive, and repealed code! That is why the Internal Revenue Code is not only not positive law, but is not law at all. Instead, it is a “code of repealed laws” that have no force and effect at all against anyone who does not explicitly consent in some way. Consequently, any legal trials based on the Internal Revenue Code are simply religious inquisitions and not valid legal proceedings by any stretch of the imagination. We will cover this startling fact in the next section to show all the similarities between a historical religious inquisition and a modern tax trial.

No reference to the I.R. Code being positive law either in 1 U.S.C. §204 legislative notes or in the “Title” itself confirms that it is “private law” that applies to specific persons rather than “all persons generally”. These specific persons are those who chose to become “effectively connected” with the U.S. Government income and the only “individual” mentioned in the I.R. Code is a person with the specific status of a Federal Government employee. This is confirmed, for instance, by:

1. 26 U.S.C. §6331(a), which is the ONLY person against whom levy and distraint (enforcement) may be instituted.
2. 26 U.S.C. §7343, which defines “person” for the purposes of the criminal provisions of the I.R.C. as:

“ . . . an officer or employee of a corporation, or a member or employee of a partnership, who as such officer, employee, or member is under a duty to perform the act in respect of which the violation occurs.”

3. 26 U.S.C. §6671(b), which defines “person” for the purposes of the penalty provisions of the I.R.C. as:

“ . . . an officer or employee of a corporation, or a member or employee of a partnership, who as such officer, employee, or member is under a duty to perform the act in respect of which the violation occurs.”

Incidentally, the “duty” they are talking about above is fiduciary duty as a “transferee” over federal payments. This fiduciary duty is then defined in 26 U.S.C. §6903. The fiduciary duty was created when you signed up to be a “trustee” for the Social Security Trust by signing and submitting SSA Form SS-5. A trustee is a person who has a fiduciary duty to the Beneficiary of the trust. Your elected representatives in the District of Criminals are the beneficiary of the trust, which has a domicile in the District of Columbia. See the following for exhaustive details on this scam:

<http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Forms/Emancipation/SSTrustIndenture.pdf>

Another very important point about codes that are not “positive law” needs to be made here, which is that those codes within the U.S. code which are not “positive law”, such as the Internal Revenue Code, are described simply as “prima facie evidence” of law. 1 U.S.C. §204 and the notes thereunder describe the I.R.C. as a “code” or a “title”, but NEVER as a “law”. Below is the text of 1 U.S.C. §204 to demonstrate this:

TITLE 1 > CHAPTER 3 > §204
§204. Codes and Supplements as evidence of the laws of United States and District of Columbia; citation of Codes and Supplements

In all courts, tribunals, and public offices of the United States, at home or abroad, of the District of Columbia, and of each State, Territory, or insular possession of the United States—

(a) United States Code.—

The matter set forth in the edition of the Code of Laws of the United States current at any time shall, together with the then current supplement, if any, establish prima facie the laws of the United States, general and permanent in their nature, in force on the day preceding the commencement of the session following the last session the legislation of which is included: Provided, however, That whenever titles of such Code shall have been enacted into positive law the text thereof shall be legal evidence of the laws therein contained, in all the courts of the United States, the several States, and the Territories and insular possessions of the United States.

The term “prima facie evidence” is a fancy legal term or “word of art” that simply means “presumed to be law until rebutted with substantive evidence”. Based on our discussion of “presumption” earlier in section 2.8.2 and our detailed coverage of “due process” starting later in section 5.4.14 and following, we know that anything involving “presumption” is not only a Biblical sin under Psalm 19:12-13 and Numbers 15:30, but also is a violation of “due process”.

[New York Times v. Sullivan, 376 U.S. 254 (1964)]

*“But where the conduct or fact, the existence of which is made the basis of the statutory presumption, itself falls within the scope of a provision of the Federal Constitution, a further question arises. It is apparent that a constitutional prohibition cannot be transgressed indirectly by the creation of a statutory presumption any more than it can be violated by direct enactment. The power to create presumptions is not a means of escape from constitutional restrictions. And the state may not in this way interfere with matters withdrawn from its authority by the Federal Constitution, or subject an accused to conviction for conduct which it is powerless to proscribe.”

[Bailey v. State of Alabama, 219 U.S. 219 (1911)]

“Conclusive presumptions affecting protected interests: A conclusive presumption may be defeated where its application would impair a party's constitutionally-protected liberty or property interests. In such cases, conclusive presumptions have been held to violate a party's due process and equal protection rights. Vlandis v. Kline (1973) [412 US 441, 449, 93 S.Ct. 2230, 2235; Cleveland Bd. of Ed. v. LaFleur (1974) 414 US 632, 639-640, 94 S.Ct. 1208, 1215-presumption under Illinois law that unmarried fathers are unfit violates process]”

Under the rules of Constitutional due process, an unsubstantiated presumption of any kind cannot act as a substitute for hard physical evidence or else the Constitution has been violated. In a system of jurisprudence such as we have where people are “presumed” to be innocent until proven guilty with evidence, any “presumption” to the contrary is a violation of due process. It is a violation of due process to “assume” or “presume” that anything is “law” unless it was enacted into positive law and proof is entered on the record of same. Positive law is the only legitimate or admissible evidence that the people ever consented to the enforcement of an enactment, and without such explicit consent, no enactment is enforceable nor may it adversely affect a person's rights. Once again, the Declaration of Independence says that all just powers derive from “consent”, which implies that any compulsion by government absent consent is unjust. The only exception to this rule is the criminal laws, which could not function properly if consent of the criminal was required. “Presumption”, in fact, is the OPPOSITE of “due process”, as the definition of “due process” admits in Black's Law Dictionary:

“Due process of law. Law in its regular course of administration through courts of justice. Due process of law in each particular case means such an exercise of the powers of the government as the settled maxims of law permit and sanction, and under such safeguards for the protection of individual rights as those maxims prescribe for the class of cases to which the one in question belongs. A course of legal proceedings according to those rules and principles which have been established in our systems of jurisprudence for the enforcement and protection of private rights. To give such proceedings any validity, there must be a tribunal competent by its constitution—that is, by the law of the creation—to pass upon the subject-matter of the suit; and, if that involves merely a determination of the personal liability of the defendant, he must be brought within its jurisdiction by service of process within the state, or his voluntary appearance. Pennoyer v. Neff, 95 U.S. 714, 24 L.Ed. 565. Due process of law implies the right of the person affected thereby to be present before the tribunal which pronounces judgment upon the question of life, liberty, or property, in its most comprehensive sense; to be heard, by testimony or otherwise, and to have the right of controverting, by proof, every material fact which bears on the question of right in the matter involved. If any question of fact or liability be conclusively be presumed [rather than proven] against him, this is not due process of law.”

How do we rebut the false “presumption” that the Internal Revenue Code is law using admissible evidence? One way to rebut the fact that the Internal Revenue Code is “law” is to present section 4 of the 1939 Internal Revenue Code itself, located in 53 Stat. 1, and show that the code repealed all prior revenue laws as well as itself, and therefore is unenforceable. You can also present the legislative notes for 1 U.S.C. §204 to show that it is not “law” or “positive law”, but is “presumed to be law”. Since all presumption which prejudices Constitutional rights is a violation of due process, then the code cannot be used as a substitute for real positive law evidence. The only reason this wouldn't work in a court of law is because a tyrant judge with a conflict of interest (in violation of 18 U.S.C. §208 and 28 U.S.C. §455) who is subject to IRS extortion won't allow such evidence to be admitted at trial because it is too likely to reduce his federal retirement benefits. However, if we put the evidence in our IRS administrative record BEFORE the trial by attaching it to the certified mail correspondence we send them, and keep the original correspondence and the notarized proof that we mailed it, then the corrupt judge can no longer keep it out of evidence and may not grant a motion “in limine” by the Department of Injustice to exclude it as evidence at trial. Our administrative record with the IRS is ALWAYS admissible as evidence.

The authority of the IRS is limited to seeing that a proper “return” (kickback) of U.S. Government property (income) is made by Federal Government “employees” and fiduciaries (Trustees) in the name of “tax”. The tax is actually corporate profit that is kicked back to the mother corporation, which is defined as the “United States” in 28 U.S.C. §3002(15)(A). When IRS employees act upon property not within the authority given them by the I.R. Code, they are NOT acting in behalf of the U.S. government and must personally accept the consequences of their illegal actions.

1 IRS employees and government welfare recipients such as tax attorneys have invented a number of specious and false
 2 arguments relating to the fact that the I.R.C. is not "positive law". They will try to exploit your legal ignorance in order to
 3 deceive you into thinking that it IS positive law by any one of the following statements. We observed these false statements
 4 being made by Mr. Rookyard (http://www.geocities.com/b\_rookard/) as we debated him on the Sui Juris Forums
 5 (<http://suijuris.net>). We used the information below to "checkmate" him on each of these issues and thereby exposed his 6 fraud to the large audience there. We have cataloged each false statement and provided a rebuttal you can use against it:

- 7 1. FALSE STATEMENT #1: "Everything in the Statutes at Large is 'positive law'. The IRC was published in the Statutes
 8 at Large. Therefore, the I.R.C. MUST be positive law."
- 9 2. REBUTTAL TO FALSE STATEMENT #1: Not everything in the Statutes at Large is "positive law", in fact. Both 10 the current Social Security Act and the current Internal Revenue Code (the 1986 code) were published in the Statutes at 11 Large and 1 U.S.C. §204 legislative notes indicate that NEITHER Title 26 (the I.R.C.) nor Title 42 (the Social Security 12 Act) of the U.S. Code are "positive law". Therefore, this is simply a false statement. If you would like to see the evidence 13 for yourself, here it is:
  - 14 2.1. 1 U.S.C. §204 Legislative Notes:
 15 <https://www.law.cornell.edu/uscode/text/1/204>
  - 16 2.2. 1986 Internal Revenue Code, 100 Stat 2085:
 17 <https://sedm.org/law-dvd/Federal/RevenueActs/Revenue%20Act%20of%201986.pdf>
  - 18 2.3. Current Social Security Act: http://www.ssa.gov/OP\_Home/ssact/comp-toc.htm
- 19 3. FALSE STATEMENT #2: "The Statutes at Large, 53 Stat. 1, say the 1939 Internal Revenue Code was 'enacted'.
 20 Anything that is 'enacted' is 'law'. Therefore, the 1939 I.R.C. and all subsequent versions of it MUST be positive law."
- 21 4. REBUTTAL TO FALSE STATEMENT #2: A repeal of a statute can be enacted, and it produces no new "law".
 22 Seeing the word "enacted" in the Statutes of Law does not therefore necessarily imply that new "law" was created. In
 23 fact, you can go over both the current version of 1 U.S.C. §204 legislative notes and all of its predecessors all the way
 24 back to 1939 and you will not find a single instance where the Internal Revenue Code has ever been identified as "positive
 25 law". If you think we are wrong, then show us the proof or shut your presumptuous and deceitful mouth.
- 26 5. FALSE STATEMENT #3: "The Internal Revenue Code does not need to be 'positive law' in order to be enforceable.
 27 Federal courts and the I.R.S. call it 'law' so it must be 'law'."
- 28 6. REBUTTAL TO FALSE STATEMENT #3: The federal courts are a foreign jurisdiction with respect to a state national 29 domiciled in his state on land not subject to exclusive federal jurisdiction under Article 1, Section 8, Clause 17 and who 30 has no contracts or fiduciary relationships with the federal government. This is covered extensively in the Tax Fraud
 31 Prevention Manual, Form #06.008, Chapter 7. Your statement represents an abuse of caselaw for political rather than 32 legal purposes as a way to deceive people. Even the IRS' own Internal Revenue Manual (I.R.M.), Section 4.10.7.2.9.8
 33 says that cases below the Supreme Court may not be cited to sustain a position. Furthermore, if you read the cases to 34 which you are referring, you will find out that the party they were talking about was a "taxpayer". Because the Internal 35 Revenue Code has no liability statute under Subtitle A, then the only way a person can become a "taxpayer" is by 36 consenting to abide by the Code. If he consented, then the code becomes "law" for him. This is why even the U.S.
 37 Supreme Court itself refers to the income tax as "voluntary" in Flora v. United States, 362 U.S. 145 (1960). Consent is 38 the ONLY thing that can produce "law", as we covered in previous sections. The I.R.C. is private law, special law, and
 39 contract law that only applies to those who explicitly consent by signing a contract vehicle, such as a W-4, an SS-5, or a
 40 1040. Since all of these forms produce an obligation, then all of them are contracts. The obligation cannot exist without 41 signing them, nor can the IRS lawfully or unilaterally assess a person on a 1040 form under 26 U.S.C. §6020(b) who 42 does not first consent. See section 5.3.1 earlier for details on this scam.

43 5.4.6.2 The "Tax Code" is a state-sponsored Religion, not a "law"

44 "Preach the Word; be prepared in season and out of season [by diligent study of this book and God's Word];
 45 correct, rebuke and encourage—with great patience and careful instruction. For the time will come when men
 46 [in the legal profession or the judiciary] will not put up with sound [legal] doctrine [such as that found in this
 47 book]. Instead, to suit their own desires, they [our covetous public dis-servants] will gather around them a 48 great number of teachers [court-appointed "experts", "licensed" government whores called attorneys and
 49 CPA's, and educators in government-run or subsidized public schools and liberal universities] to say what
 50 their itching ears want to hear. They will turn their ears away from the truth and turn aside to [government
 51 and legal-profession] myths and fables]. But you [the chosen of God and His servants must], keep your head
 52 in all situations, endure hardship, do the work of an evangelist, discharge all the duties of your [God's]
 53 ministry."
 54 [2 Tim. 4:2-5, Bible, NKJV]

As a consequence of the considerations in the previous section about the requirement for “positive law”, one may safely conclude the following with regard to the Internal Revenue “Code”:

1. The Internal Revenue Code is not positive law, and therefore imposes no obligation upon anyone except federal “public officers”, agents, and contractors and those who consented (called “elected” in IRS publications) to be treated as one of these, even if they in fact are not. Instead, it is “special law”, which applies to particular persons and things and not to all people generally throughout the country. Personal consent is required to give the I.R.C. the status of enforceable law, and we can choose to withhold our consent with no adverse legal consequence.
2. The I.R.C. effectively amounts to an offer and a proposal by the government to put you under their “special protection” from the abuses and tyranny of the IRS. If you accept their offer, you are a party to a private contract with them and are in receipt of taxable federal privileges. The privilege you agreed to accept was that of being left alone and not harassed by the IRS for your decision to keep or retain whatever money and property is left over after the Federal Mafia has raped and pillaged their share from your estate.
3. Every contract requires four things to be valid:
  - 3.1. An offer: The Internal Revenue Code.
  - 3.2. Informed and voluntary Consent/Acceptance. Both parties must voluntarily accept the terms of the offer and duress may not be used to procure consent.
  - 3.3. Mutual Consideration: Something valuable that both parties receive from the agreement.
  - 3.4. Mutual assent. Both parties were fully informed about the rights they were surrendering and the consideration they were receiving in return, and all terms of the contract were fully disclosed in writing.
4. In the case of the voluntary contract called the Internal Revenue Code, the consideration is the right to be left alone after you pay the IRS a large bribe and that essentially amounts to “protection money”. Keeping whatever is left over after you bribe them and pay them their extortion is the consideration you derive from this private contract. This is not, however, true consideration, mind you, because it is not an exercise of free will. Instead, if you don't accept the contract, then you become the target of IRS harassment and terrorism, may lose your job (especially your federal job) and be persecuted by your coworkers for being a “crackpot”. Voluntary consent is impossible under such conditions. Therefore, it is impossible for you to agree to such a legal contract, which is why the government never bothers to disclose it to begin with!
5. The contract is also void on its face because it was not based on informed consent. The IRS and the government never fully disclosed to you the terms of their “invisible adhesion contract”, and chances are you never even read any part of the contract by reading Title 26 for yourself. As a matter of fact, they have exercised every opportunity available to stifle and persecute those freedom advocates who were trying to educate others about the nature of this contract. Consequently, like the marriage license you never should have gotten, you signed away your whole life and all your rights by filing your first 1040 or IRS Form W-4 and thereby declaring yourself to be a “taxpayer” under penalty of perjury.

[Brady v. U.S., 397 U.S. 742 (1970)]

6. The decision to accept the terms of the I.R.C. contract also involved fraud on the part of the government. The employees of the IRS who directly or indirectly influenced you to make the decision to accept the contract also never fully disclosed to you that they had no authority to enforce the Internal Revenue Code to begin with. If they never had authority to enforce the I.R.C. against a private citizen who is not employed by the federal government, then they couldn't offer to stop doing that which they were never authorized to do to begin with! Therefore, they deceived you to believe that they really were giving you something of value (a “benefit” or “consideration”) that they had the legal authority to provide, which is the absence of lawful enforcement actions directed against you. In effect, they convinced you to pay for something that they didn't have the legal authority to provide to begin with! It's all based on fraud.

Unquestionably, the concealment of material facts that one is, under the circumstances, bound to disclose may constitute actionable fraud. 3 Indeed, one of the fundamental tenets of the Anglo-American law of fraud is that fraud may be committed by a suppression of the truth (suppressio veri) as well as by the suggestion of falsehood (suggestio falsi). 4 It is, therefore, equally competent for a court to relieve against fraud whether it is committed by suppression of the truth—that is, by concealment—or by suggestion of falsehood. 5

Where failure to disclose a material fact is calculated to induce a false belief, the distinction between concealment and affirmative misrepresentation is tenuous. Both are fraudulent. 11 An active concealment has the same force and effect as a representation which is positive in form. 12 The one acts negatively, the other positively; both are calculated, in different ways, to produce the same result. 13 The former, as well as the latter, is a violation of the principles of good faith. It proceeds from the same motives and is attended with the same consequences; 14 and the deception and injury may be as great in the one case as in the other. [37 American Jurisprudence 2d, Fraud and Deceit, §144 (1999)]

"Fraud vitiates every transaction and all contracts. Indeed, the principle is often stated, in broad and sweeping language, that fraud destroys the validity of everything into which it enters, and that it vitiates the most solemn contracts, documents, and even judgments. 8 Fraud, as it is sometimes said, vitiates every act, which statement embodies a thoroughly sound doctrine when it is properly applied to the subject matter in controversy and to the parties thereto and in a proper forum. As a general rule, fraud will vitiate a contract notwithstanding that it contains a provision to the effect that no representations have been made as an inducement to enter into it, or that either party shall be bound by any representation not contained therein, or a similar provision attempting to nullify extraneous representations. Such provisions do not, in most jurisdictions, preclude a charge of fraud based on oral representations." [37 American Jurisprudence 2d, Fraud and Deceit, §144 (1999)]

Since the people domiciled in the states never enacted the Internal Revenue Code into "positive law", then they as the "sovereigns" in our system of government never consented to enforce it upon themselves collectively. "Positive law" is the only evidence that the people ever explicitly consented to enforcement actions by their government, because legislation can only become positive law by a majority of the representatives of the sovereign people voting (consenting) to enact the law. Since the people never consented, then the "code" cannot be enforced against the general public. The Declaration of Independence says that all just powers of government derive from the "consent" of the governed. Anything not consensual is, ipso facto, unjust by implication. In fact, the sovereign People REPEALED, not ENACTED the Internal Revenue Code. It has been nothing but a repealed law since 1939, in fact. An examination of the Statutes at Large, 53 Stat. 1, Section 4, reveals that the Internal Revenue Code and all prior revenue laws were REPEALED. See:

Even state legislatures recognize that the Internal Revenue Code is not law. Below is a cite from the Oregon Revised Statutes (ORS), section 316.012, which refers to the Internal Revenue Code. Notice below the use of the phrase "laws of the United States or to the Internal Revenue Code". If the Internal Revenue Code were "law", then that phrase would be redundant, now wouldn't it?:

316.012 Terms have same meaning as in federal laws; federal law references. Any term used in this chapter has the same meaning as when used in a comparable context in the laws of the United States relating to federal income taxes, unless a different meaning is clearly required or the term is specifically defined in this chapter. Except where the Legislative Assembly has provided otherwise, any reference in this chapter to the laws of the United States or to the Internal Revenue Code:

(1) Refers to the laws of the United States or to the Internal Revenue Code as they are amended and in effect:

(a) On December 31, 2002; or

(b) If related to the definition of taxable income and attributable to a change in the laws of the United States or in the Internal Revenue Code that is enacted after December 31, 2005, as applicable to the tax year of the taxpayer.

(2) Refers to the laws of the United States or to the Internal Revenue Code as they are amended and in effect and applicable for the tax year of the taxpayer, if the reference relates to:

If the Internal Revenue Code is not "positive law", but a voluntary contract, then what exactly is it? It is a de facto state-sponsored Federal/Political Religion. Below is how one Christian Writer describes this state-sponsored de facto religion:

1                    "There is a war on. Since 1975, hundreds of thousands of Christians in the United States have become aware of
 2 the threat to Christianity posed by humanism. It is amazing how long it took for Christians to recognize that
 3 humanism is a rival religion: about a century."

6 You can read the above free book yourself on our website at:

8 The Internal Revenue Code is "de facto" because there is no positive law passed by Congress that actually implements it.
 9 Only those who consent to follow it can have any legal obligation to follow it, because it prescribes no legal duties upon
 10 anyone but federal "employees", contractors, agencies, and benefit recipients. Its existence outside of the federal workplace,
 11 such as in the lives of private Americans living or working in the states of the Union, was created and continues to be
 12 maintained by constructive fraud using "judge-made law", which is de facto law put in place by the edicts of covetous
 13 criminals sitting on the federal bench. This type of law can only exist as long as there are guns and prisons in the hands of 14 government thieves and idolaters, but as soon as the unlawful duress stops, so does the "[in]voluntary compliance", as the 15 government likes to call it. Remember what the First Amendment says?:

16                    "Congress shall make no law respecting the establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof."
 17 [First Amendment]

18 The First Amendment doesn't say anything at all about "judges making law", so that is exactly what our corrupted state and
 19 federal judiciaries have done! A religion is simply a "voluntary" association of people who espouse certain common beliefs
 20 and behaviors, the object of which is to reverence or hold in high esteem a "superior being". If that superior being is anything
 21 but the true living God mentioned in the Bible, then we are involved in pagan idol worship.

22                    "Religion. Man's relation to Divinity, to reverence, worship, obedience, and submission to mandates and precepts
 23 of supernatural or superior beings. In its broadest sense includes all forms of belief in the existence of superior
 24 beings exercising power over human beings by volition, imposing rules of conduct, with future rewards and
 25 punishments. Bond uniting man to God, and a virtue whose purpose is to render God worship due him as source
 26 of all being and principle of all government of things. Nikulnikoff v. Archbishop, etc., of Russian Orthodox Greek
 27 Catholic Church, 142 Misc. 894, 255 N.Y.S. 653, 663."
 28 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1292, emphasis added]

29 Our society is based on "equal protection of the laws" (see section 4.3.2 earlier), so there simply can't be any "superior
 30 beings" in America, but the judiciary has changed all that with "judge made law" so that judges become the object of idol
 31 worship. We call this "neo-religion" or state-sponsored pagan federal religion "The Civil Religion of Socialism". This 32 religion is thoroughly described in detail in the free pamphlet below:

33 Socialism: The New American Civil Religion, Form #05.016
 34 <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

35 Unlike Christianity, the foundation of this state-sponsored judicial religion is fear, not love. This state religion of humanism
 36 and socialism is based entirely on "the power to destroy", which is why it produces fear and why people comply at all. In 37 that sense, it is Satanic and evil. The only basis for a righteous justice system is "the power to create" and not the "power to 38 destroy", as we pointed out at the beginning of this chapter in section 5.1.1.

39                    "The great principle is this: because the constitution will not permit a state to destroy, it will not permit a law
 40 involving the power to destroy. [ . . . ] They decided against the tax; because the subject had been placed beyond
 41 the power of the states, by the constitution. They decided, not on account of the subject, but on account of the 42 power that protected it; they decided that a prohibition against destruction was a prohibition against a law
 43 involving the power of destruction."
 44 [Providence Bank v. Billings, 29 U.S. 514 (1830)]

45 The "law" described above that is doing the destruction to our society presently is "judge made law", and not statutes passed
 46 by Congress. The superior being that is being worshipped in this false religion is "The Beast", mentioned in the book of 47 Revelation chapters 17 and 18 in the Bible. That book describes "The Beast" as the political rulers (politicians, Congressmen, Judges, and the President) of the earth. The worship and servitude of this "Beast" occurs mostly out of fear but also because of ignorance and laziness, as we showed earlier in section 4.3.10.

1 "And I saw the beast, the kings [political rulers] of the earth, and their armies [of nonbelievers under a
 2 democratic form of government], gathered together to make war against Him [God] who sat on the horse and
 3 against His army."
 4 [Revelation 19:19, Bible, NKJV]

5 Those who took the mark of this "Beast", the Socialist Security Number, will be the first to be judged and condemned by 6 God, as described in Revelation 16:1-2. See our book as follows available for free downloading at:

Social Security: Mark of the Beast, Steven Miller
<http://famguardian.org/Publications/SocialSecurity/TOC.htm>

7 This Beast is personified by the corruption evident in the political realm and the Federal and state Judiciaries in their
 8 treasonous and illegal enforcement of our revenue codes (not "laws", but "codes"). The judges in courts everywhere have
 9 become the "Priests" of this pagan neo-religion, and by virtue of the fact that they are ignoring the federal and state
 10 Constitutions and are not being held accountable for such Treason, everything that comes out of their mouth becomes law,
 11 or "common law" or "judge-made law":

12 "Judge-made law. A phrase used to indicate judicial decisions which construe away the meaning of statutes, or 13 find meanings in them the legislature never intended. It is perhaps more commonly used as meaning, simply, the 14 law established by judicial precedent and decisions. Laws having their source in judicial decisions as opposed
 15 to laws having their source in statutes or administrative regulations."
 16 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 841]

17 This "judge-made law" has created a new, "de facto" government that is in complete conflict with the "de jure" government
 18 described by our federal and state Constitutions and the public acts that implement them. We show this process of corruption
 19 graphically later on in section 6.1, where we show the history of how the Executive, Legislative, and Judicial branches have 20 conspired over the last 100 years to strip us of our Constitutional rights and thereby make us into tax slaves residing on the 21 "federal plantation" called the federal zone. Only a pagan "god" called a "judge" can create law out of nothing and without 22 explicit consent of the people found in the Constitution. Only a pagan "god" called a "judge" can deprive the people of 23 "equal protection" by protecting IRS wrongdoers while coercing those who refuse to consent to their abuses. Only a pagan
 24 "god" can create man-made "law" which conflicts with the Ten Commandments and the Constitution and do so with impunity.

25 "...it must be recognized that in any culture the source of law is the god of that society. If law has its source
 26 in man's reason, then reason is the god of that society. If the source is an oligarchy, or in a court, senate, or 27 ruler, then that source is the god of that system.

29 Modern humanism, the religion of the state, locates law in the state and thus makes the state, or the people as 30 they find expression in the state, the god of the system. As Mao Tse-Tung has said, "Our God is none other than 31 the masses of the Chinese people." [2] In Western culture, law has steadily moved away from God to the people
 32 (or the state) as its source, although the historic power and vitality of the West has been in Biblical faith and law.

33 "Third, in any society, any change of law is an explicit or implicit change of religion. Nothing more clearly
 34 reveals, in fact, the religious change in a society than a legal revolution. When the legal foundations shift from 35 Biblical law to humanism, it means that the society now draws its vitality and power from humanism, not from

37 "Fourth, no disestablishment of religion as such is possible in any society. A church can be disestablished, and 38 a particular religion can be supplanted by another, but the change is simply to another religion. Since the 39 foundations of law are inescapably religious, no society exists without a religious foundation or without a law-
 40 system which codifies the morality of its religion."
 41 [The Institutes of Biblical Law, Rousas John Rushdoony, 1973, pp. 4-5]

42 The purpose of the "Civil Religion of Socialism" is to steal the sovereignty of the People and to replace it with a dictatorship
 43 and a totalitarian police state devoid of individual rights. This is accomplished through "judge-made law" and social 44 engineering in the tax "code". The result is that the people comply out of their desire to take the path of least resistance which 45 minimizes fear and personal liability. The Internal Revenue Code is just such a voluntary federal religion. When we join
 46 this feudal religion and figuratively move our "domicile" and our primary political "allegiance" to the federal plantation
 47 under 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10), 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(39) and 26 U.S.C. §7408(d). By doing so, we surrender our 48 sovereignty, turn it over to the Congress, and become "subjects" who live on the "federal plantation" (federal zone), which 49 we call the "matrix". To join such a state-sponsored religion, we need only lie about our status as federal "employees" on

1 either a W-4 or submit a 1040 form with a nonzero liability. Once we shift our primary allegiance from God to the “state”,
 2 Congress becomes our new “king” because they can pass any statute and it will apply to us, including those statutes that are
 3 not “positive law”, and they can disregard the need for implementing regulations because they don’t need implementing
 4 regulations for federal “employees”. The benefits of this religion are that we are insulated from responsibility for ourselves
 5 and from fear of the IRS or the government. Acceptance of this religion represents a formal and complete transfer of 6 sovereignty over your person, labor and property from you to your public “dis-servants”. You turn over responsibility for 7 yourself to the government in exchange for them taking care of you when you get old or unemployed. You become federal
 8 property: a slave, in effect, through the operation of a voluntary contract called the Internal Revenue Code. This, friends, is 9 nothing short of idolatry, in stark violation of the First Commandment in the Ten commandments (see Exodus 20 in the Bible)
 10 to not have any other idols before God. We are supposed to trust God, not government, to provide for us. Trusting
 11 government is putting the vanity of man ahead of the grace and majesty and sovereignty of God.

12 “It is better to trust the Lord
 13 Than to put confidence in man.
 14 It is better to trust in the Lord
 15 Than to put confidence in princes [or government, or the ‘state’].”
 16 [Psalm 118:8-9]

17 Such man-centric (rather than God-centric) idolatry is the worst of all sins described in the Bible, and a sin for which God
 18 repeatedly and violently killed those who committed it. Refer to sections 4.1 and 4.3.1 through 4.3.13 for an in-depth
 19 exposition backing up these conclusions. This type of idolatry describes the original sin of Lucifer, who wanted to do it “his 20 [man’s] way” instead of God’s way.<sup>64</sup> God pronounced a death sentence upon us for the original sin of Adam and Eve, and 21 He said life would be a struggle as a consequence of this death sentence meted out under His sovereign Law.

22 “Cursed is the ground for your sake;
 23 In toil you shall eat of it
 24 All the days of your life.
 25 Both thorns and thistles it shall bring forth for you,
 26 And you shall eat the herb of the field.
 27 In the sweat of your face you shall eat bread
 28 Till you return to the ground,
 29 For out of it you were taken;
 30 For dust you are,
 31 And to dust you shall return.”
 32 [Genesis 3:17-19, Bible, NKJV]

33 Ever since the original fall described above, we have been trying to escape God’s sovereign judgment and punishment for 34 our sin by escaping liability for ourselves and accountability to Him. We have been doing this by making an atheistic
 35 government into our false god, parent, caretaker, and social insurance company. The purpose of law within a society based 36 on this “Civil Religion of Socialism” is to facilitate irresponsibility and thereby undermine God’s sovereignty by interfering
 37 with the curse He put on us for our original sin and disobedience against His sovereign command. We talked about this much
 38 more thoroughly earlier in section 4.3.10, entitled “The Unlimited Liability Universe” if you would like to investigate further.
 39 In so doing, we fornicate with the Beast, which is the political rulers of the world. Black’s Law Dictionary defines 40 “commerce” as “intercourse”.

41 “Commerce. ...Intercourse by way of trade and traffic between different peoples or states and the citizens
 42 or inhabitants thereof, including not only the purchase, sale, and exchange of commodities, but also the 43 instrumentalities [governments] and agencies by which it is promoted and the means and appliances by which it 44 is carried on...”
 45 [Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 269]

46 When we, as natural persons, send our money to the government or receive money from the government, we are involved in 47 “intercourse”. The Bible in Isaiah 54:5-6 describes God as the “husband” of believers and it describes believers as His 48 “bride”. We as His bride are committing adultery and fornication when we conduct “commerce” with the government as 49 private individuals. See section 4.3.1 earlier for a complete explanation of this analogy that is quite frightening and
 50 completely fulfills the prophesy found in the book of Revelation in the Bible.

51 Now that we have established that the “Tax Code” is in fact a state sponsored religion, we will now document the core
 52 “beliefs” that make up this false religion. We will also show why every one of these beliefs not only cannot be substantiated

1 with facts or law, but also that the opposite can be established with admissible evidence, scientifically provable facts, and
2 law. This comparison and analysis builds upon our earlier article in section 4.3.13 entitled “Our Government has become
3 Idolatry and a False Religion”, where we proved that our government has become a god, and that this was done essentially
4 by destroying the “equal protection of the laws” that is the foundation of freedom in this country, and thereby making the
5 public servants into gods because they do not have to abide by the same rules as everyone else does.

| View of freedom in this country | Declaration of Independence says all just powers are based on the "consent of the governed". I am free because no one forces me to do anything. | Americans are not free because taxes on labor are slavery in violation of the Thirteenth Amendment. The IRS collects without the authority of law or the explicit consent of the people. Consent is required and therefore the IRS is a terrorist organization because it ignores the requirement for consent. If you want to find out how "free" you are, then just                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | 5.4.1 to 5.4.6.4                                                                                                                                                                                                 |

| View of American justice system | Our justice system is fair and lawful. There is no conflict of interest anywhere.                                                               | Conflict of interest occurs every day all day in federal courtrooms. It is a conflict of interest in violation of 18 U.S.C. §208 for any judge or jurist to hear a case in which they have a financial interest, and yet federal judges and jurors routinely participate in tax trials while at the same time either being "taxpayers" who are jealous of the accused for not paying his "fair share", or they are in receipt of socialist benefits derived from other people who participate in the IRS scam. This scam started in 1918, which was the first year that federal judges were made into "taxpayers" and subject to IRS extortion. As long as a federal judge risks an audit by IRS for not helping them prosecute tax resisters, justice is impossible in any courtroom. As long as attorneys are licensed by the government, it is impossible to get impartial representation in a court either. Attorney licensing started about the same time as judges became "taxpayers", during the 1930's in this country. | 6.9 to 6.9.12                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
| Nature of IRS publications      | The IRS and the government tell the truth in the IRS publications and in their phone support..                                                  | The IRS publications are deceptive because they omit the most important parts of the truth.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | 3.19                                                                                                                                                                                                             |

| IRS authority                                        | IRS has legal authority to enforce the income tax, including assessments, penalties, and require people to keep records.   | The Internal Revenue Code is not positive law, but special law. The entire title was never enacted into positive law (see 1 U.S.C. §204 legislative notes) and can't be, because abuse of the government's taxing power to accomplish theft can never be made into law. The I.R.C. was repealed in 1939 and now essentially amounts to a state-sponsored federal religion which is by the federal judiciary using "malicious abuse of legal process".                                                                                                                                                                      | 5.4.15 to 5.4.18, Chapter 7            |
| Requirement to pay taxes                             | Everyone should pay their "fair share". This is a political, not legal requirement., which makes it a religion, not a law. | "Fair share" is determined by law, and we don't have a law. The Internal Revenue Code, which is not law, also has no enforcement regulations so that even if it was law, it could not be enforced by the IRS. Therefore, there is no requirement for the average American to pay anything under the Internal Revenue Code.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | 5.1.2, 5.4.1 to 5.4.6.4, 5.6 to 5.6.21 |
| Requirement to file a return                         | Everyone, and especially patriotic "U.S. citizens", must file a return                                                     | There must be a legal "liability" existing in a positive law federal statute that applies to American in the states before there is a liability to file a return. No such statutes, nor regulations that implement them, exist. All prosecutions for willful failure to file amount to "malicious abuse of legal process" and "terrorism" by government judges and prosecutors in the absence of positive law.                                                                                                                                                                                                             | 5.5 to 5.5.10                          |
| Relationship between religious belief and government | God comes first in my life as a Christian.                                                                                 | God comes second in the lives of those who pay federal taxes, because the government gets the "first fruits" before God gets His, in violation of Prov. 3:9-10. This is idolatry in violation of the first four commandments.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | 4.1, 4.3.3 to 4.3.15                   |
| View of my church's relationship to the government   | My pastor is neutral and objective in his view of government, and is under no duress at all by the government.             | Most pastors are extensions of the government because they are privileged under 26 U.S.C. §501(c)(3). With this privileged status comes an obligation to not speak out against the government or corruption in the government, for fear of losing tax exempt status that was never really needed anyway because the federal government had no jurisdiction over them to begin with. There is no separation of church and state as long as IRS is able to abuse its power to persecute churches who expose their illegal activities by pulling their I.R.C. §501(c)(3) status and subjecting them to audits and harassment. | 4.3.6 to 4.3.13                        |

1 One of the things you hear church pastors talk about quite often is how Satan is the great imitator. Satan imitates God's
2 design for everything. Satan, in fact, is quoted as saying:

3 *"I will ascend into heaven,
4 I will exalt my throne above the stars of God;
5 I will also sit on the mount of the congregation
6 On the farthest sides of the north;
7 I will ascend above the heights of the clouds,
8 I will be like the Most High.
9 [Isaiah 14:13-14, Bible, NKJV]*

10 The Bible also says that Satan is in control of this world and the governments of the world. See Matt. 4:8-11, John 14:30-31.
11 Our tax system, in fact, is an imitation of God's design for the church and has all the trappings of a church. Going back to 12 our definition of "religion" once again to prove this:

13 *"Religion. Man's relation to Divinity, to reverence, worship, obedience, and submission to mandates and 14 precepts of supernatural or superior beings. In its broadest sense includes all forms of belief in the existence of 15 superior beings exercising power over human beings by volition, imposing rules of conduct, with future rewards
16 and punishments. Bond uniting man to God, and a virtue whose purpose is to render God worship due him as 17 source of all being and principle of all government of things. Nikulnikoff v. Archbishop, etc., of Russian Orthodox 18 Greek Catholic Church, 142 Misc. 894, 255 N.Y.S. 653, 663."
19 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1292]*

20 Based on the criteria in the above table, we can see that the Internal Revenue Code has all the essential characteristics of a 21 "religion" and a church and thereby imitates God's design:

- 22 1. "Belief" in a superior being, which is the federal judge and our public "servants". This reversal of roles, whereby the 23 public "servants" become the ruling class is called a "dulocracy" in law.

24 *"Dulocracy. A government where servants and slaves have so much license and privilege that they domineer."
25 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 501]*

- 26 2. The capitol, Washington D.C., is the "political temple" or headquarters of this false religious cult. Don't believe us?
27 During the Congressional debates of the Sixteenth Amendment in 1909, one Congressman amazingly admitted as much.
28 The Sixteenth Amendment is the income tax amendment that was later fraudulently ratified in 1913. Notice the use of 29 the words "civic temple" and "faith" in his statement, which are no accident.

30 *"Now, Mr. Speaker, this Capitol is the civic temple of the people, and we are here by direction of the people to 31 reduce the tariff tax and enact a law in the interest of all the people. This was the expressed will of the people at 32 the polls, and you promised to carry out that will, but you have not kept faith with the American people."
33 [44 Cong.Rec. 4420, July 12, 1909; Congressman Heflin talking about the enactment of the Sixteenth
34 Amendment]*

- 37 3. This false and evil religion meets all the criteria for being described as a "cult", because:
38 3.1. The cult imposes strict rules of conduct that are thousands of pages long and which are far more restrictive than 39 any other religious cult.
40 3.2. Participating in it is harmful to our rights, liberty, and property.
41 3.3. The "cult" is perpetuated by keeping the truth secret from its members. This book contains 1,900 pages of secrets
42 that our public servants and the federal judiciary have done their best to keep cleverly hidden and obscured from 43 public view and discourse. When these secrets come out in federal courtrooms, the judges make the case
44 unpublished so the American people can't learn the truth about the misdeeds of their servants in government. Don't 45 believe us? Read the proof for yourself:
46 <http://www.nonpublication.com/>
47 3.4. Those who try to abandon this harmful cult are threatened and harassed illegally and unconstitutionally by covetous
48 public dis-servants. For an example, see:
49 <http://www.irs.gov/compliance/enforcement/article/0,,id=119332,00.html>
50 4. No scientifically proven basis for belief. False belief is entirely based on false presumption, which in turn is promoted 51 by:

- 1 4.1. "Prima facie" law such as the Internal Revenue Code. "Prima facie" means "presumed to be law".
 2 4.2. Propaganda and "brainwashing" by the media and public schools and cannot stand public scrutiny or scientific
 3 investigation because it cannot be substantiated.
 4 4.3. Deceptive IRS publications that don't tell the whole truth. See section 3.19 earlier for proof.
 5 5. The false government "god" is the "source of all being and principle of all government". Those who refuse to comply
 6 are illegally stripped of their property rights, their security, and their government employment by a lawless federal
 7 judiciary in retaliation for demanding the rule of written positive law. They cease to have a commercial existence or 8 "being" as a punishment for demanding the "rule of law" instead of "rule of men" in our country. Their credit rating is 9 destroyed and their property is illegally confiscated as punishment for failure to comply with the whims, wishes, and
 10 edicts of an "imperial judiciary" and its henchmen, the IRS.
 11 6. The false religion has its own "bible", which is all 9,500 pages of the "Infernal (Satanic) Revenue Code". This "scripture"
 12 or "bible" was written by the false prophets, who are our political leaders in Congress. It was written to further their 13 own political (church) ends. Former Treasury Secretary Paul O'Neil calls the I.R.C.:

14 "9,500 pages of gibberish."

- 15 7. Federal courtrooms are where "worship services" are held for the cult. Even the seats are the same as church pews! This 16 worship service amounts to devil worship, because its purpose is to help criminals working for the government to enforce
 17 in a federal courtroom that which is neither law nor which can be proven to create any obligation on the part of anyone.
 18 In that sense, we are participating in Treason against the Constitution by aiding and abetting it. By subsidizing this 19 madness and fraud, we are also bribing public officials in violation of 18 U.S.C. §201.

20 7.1. Worship services begin with a religious event.

21 7.1.1. The taking of an oath is a religious event.

23 To swear is to call God to witness, and is an act of religion. 3 Co. Inst. 165. Vide 3 Bouv. Inst. n. 3180, note; 1
 24 Benth. Rat. of Jud. Ev. 376, 371, note.

25 [Bouvier's Maxims of Law, 1856;

26 SOURCE: <http://famguardian.org/Publications/BouvierMaximsOfLaw/BouviereMaxims.htm>]

27 7.1.2. Before the worship services begin, observers and the jury must stand up when the judge enters the room. This 28 too is an act of "worshipping and reverencing" their superior being, who in fact is a pagan deity.

29 Religion. Man's relation to Divinity, to reverence, worship, obedience, and submission to mandates and
 30 precepts of supernatural or superior beings [JUDGES, in this case]. In its broadest sense includes all forms of 31 belief in the existence of superior beings exercising power over human beings by volition, imposing rules of 32 conduct, with future rewards and punishments. Bond uniting man to God, and a virtue whose purpose is to render 33 God worship due him as source of all being and principle of all government of things. Nikulnikoff v. Archbishop,
 34 etc., of Russian Orthodox Greek Catholic Church, 142 Misc. 894, 255 N.Y.S. 653, 663.
 35 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1292]

36 7.2. The worship ceremony, at least in the context of taxes, is conducted in the figurative dark, like a séance. The Bible
 37 describes Truth as "light". Any ceremony where the entire truth is not considered is conducted in the dark.

38 7.2.1. The judge is gagged by the law from speaking the truth by the legislature. 28 U.S.C. §2201\(a\).

39 7.2.2. The judge forbids others from speaking the ONLY truth, which is the law itself. In tax trials, judges very 40 commonly forbid especially defendants from quoting or using the law in front of the jury. Those who 41 disregard this prohibition are sentenced to contempt of court.

42 "One who turns his ear from hearing the law [God's law or man's law], even his prayer [and ESPECIALLY his 43 trial] is an abomination."

44 [Prov. 28:9, Bible, NKJV]

45 7.2.3. Jurists who have never read or learned the law in public school are not even aware of what they are enforcing.
 46 Therefore, they become agents of the judge instead of the law.

47 7.2.4. The law library in the court building forbids jurors from going in and reading the law they are enforcing, and 48 especially while serving as jurors. They are supposed to be supervising the judge in executing the law, and 49 they can't fulfill that duty as long as they have never learned and are forbidden from reading the law while 50 serving as jurors.

7.2.5. The judge does everything in his power to destroy the weapons of the nongovernmental opponent by excluding everything he can and excluding none of the government's evidence. This basically results in a vacuum of truth in the courtroom.

[Prov. 18:17, Bible, NKJV]

"The hypocrite with his mouth destroys his neighbor, But through knowledge the righteous will be delivered."
[Prov. 11:9, Bible, NKJV]

8. The "deacons" of the church are attorneys who are "licensed" to practice law in the church by the chief priests of the church.
- 8.1. They too have been "brainwashed" in both public school and law school to focus all their effort on procedure, presentation, and managing their business. They learn NOTHING about history, legislative intent, or natural law, which are the very foundations of law.
- 8.2. The Statutes At Large published by Congress are the only real law and legally admissible evidence, in most cases. See 1 U.S.C. §204. Yet, it is so expensive and inconvenient to read the Statutes At Large online that for all practical purposes, it is off limits to all attorneys. For instance, it costs over $7 per page to even VIEW the Statutes at Large in the largest online legal reference service, Westlaw.
- 8.3. Because they are licensed to practice law, the license is used as a vehicle to censor and control the attorneys from speaking the truth in the courtroom. Consequently, they usually blindly follow what the priest, ahem, I mean "judge" orders them to do and when they don't, they have their license pulled and literally starve to death.
9. The greatest sin in the government church called court is willful violations of the law. All tax crimes carry "willfulness" as a prerequisite. God's law and Christianity work exactly the same way. The greatest sin in the Holy Bible is to blaspheme the Holy Spirit, which is equivalent of doing something that you KNOW is wrong. See Matt. 12:32, Mark 3:29, Luke 12:10.
10. The judge, like the church pastor, wears a black robe and chants in Latin. Many legal maxims are Latin phrases that have no meaning to the average citizen, which is the very same thing that happens in Catholic churches daily across the country.
11. The jury are the twelve disciples of the judge, rather than of the Truth or the law or their conscience. Their original purpose was as a check on government abuse and usurpation, but judges steer them away from ruling in such a manner and being gullible sheep raised in the public "fool" system, they comply to their own injury.
- 11.1. Those who are not already members of the cult are not allowed to serve on juries. The judge or the judge's henchmen, his "licensed attorneys" who are "officers of the court", dismiss prospective jurists who are not cult members during the voir dire (jury selection) phase of the tax trial. The qualifications that prospective jurists must meet in order to be part of the "cult" are at least one of the following:
- 11.1.1. They collect government benefits based on income taxes and don't want to see those benefits reduced or stopped. The only people who can collect federal benefits under enacted law and the Constitution are federal employees. Therefore, they must be federal employees. Since jurists are acting as "voters", then receipt of any federal benefits makes them into a biased jury in the context of income taxes and violates 18 U.S.C. §597, which makes it illegal to bribe a voter. The only way to eliminate this conflict of interest is to permanently remove public assistance or to recuse/disqualify them as jurists.
- 11.1.2. They faithfully pay what they "think" are "income taxes". They are blissfully unaware that in actuality, the 1040 return is a federal employment profit and loss statement.
- 11.1.3. They believe or have "faith" in the cult's "bible", which is the Infernal Revenue Code and falsely believe it is "law". Instead, 1 U.S.C. §204 legislative notes says it is NOT positive law, but simply "presumed" to be law. Presumption is a violation of due process and therefore illegal under the Sixth Amendment.
- 11.1.4. They are ignorant of the law and were made so in a public school. They therefore must believe whatever any judge or attorney tells them about "law". This means they will make a good lemming to jump off the cliff with the fellow citizen who is being tried.
- 11.2. Juries are FORBIDDEN in every federal courthouse in the country from entering the law library while serving on a jury because judges don't want jurists reading the law and finding out that judges are misrepresenting it in the courtroom. Don't believe us? Then call the law library in any federal court building and ask them if jurists are allowed to go in there and read the law while they are serving. Below are the General Order 228C for the Federal District Court in San Diego proving that jurors are not allowed to use the court law library while serving. Notice jurors are not listed as authorized to use the library in this order:

General Order 228C, San Diego Federal District Court

11.3. Unlike every other type of federal trial, judges forbid discussing the law in a tax trial. Could it be because we don't have any and he doesn't want to admit it?

11.4. Public (government) schools deliberately don't teach law or the Constitution either, so that the public become sheep that the government can shear and rape and pillage.

11.5. Federal judges also warn juries these days NOT to vote on their conscience, as juries originally did and were encouraged to do. He does this to steer or direct the jury to do his illegal and unconstitutional dirty work. He turns the jury effectively into an angry lynch mob and thereby maliciously abuses legal process for his own personal benefit in violation of 18 U.S.C. §208. He helps get the jury angry at the defendant by giving them the idea that their "tax" bill will be bigger because the defendant refuses to "pay their fair share".

12. Those who refuse to worship the false god and false religion (which the Bible describes in the book of Revelation as "the Beast") are "exorcised" from society by being put into jail so that they don't spread the truth about the total lack of lawful authority to institute income taxation within states of the Union. They are jailed as political prisoners by communist judges and socialist fellow citizens, just like in the Soviet Union. You can read more about this at:

Social Security: Mark of the Beast, Form #11.407

<http://famguardian.org/Publications/SocialSecurity/TOC.htm>

13. The lawyers representing both sides are licensed by the pope/judge and therefore will pay homage to and cooperate with him fully or risk losing their livelihood and becoming homeless. Every tax trial has THREE prosecutors who are there to prosecute you: your defense attorney, the opposing U.S. attorney, and the judge, all of whom are on the take. Attorneys have a conflict of interest and it is therefore impossible for them to objectively satisfy the fiduciary duty to their clients which they have under the law. You can read more about this scam at:

Petition for Admission to Practice, San Diego Federal District Court

14. "Future rewards and punishments", which are political persecution in a courtroom using our uninformed neighbors acting as jurors as a weapon against us and by exploiting their fear of the government, envy and jealousy directed against the rich or those who dare to demand the authority of law before they will pay "their fair share", or those who challenge being compelled to subsidize the government benefit payments to these jurors with their labor.

15. Tax preparation businesses all over the country like H.R. Block are where "confession" is held annually to "deacons" of the federal church/cult.

16. Representatives of this church/cult, such as the Department of Justice and the IRS, dress the same as Mormon missionaries.

17. Those who participate in this cult can write-off or deduct their contributions just like donations to any church. State income taxes, for instances, are deductible from federal gross income.

18. The false god/idol called government gets the "first fruits" of our labor, before the Lord even gets one dime, using payroll deductions. Some employers treat the payroll deduction program like it is a law to be followed religiously, even though it is not. This is a violation of Prov. 3:9, which says:

"Honor the LORD with your possessions, And with the firstfruits of all your increase;"
[Prov. 3:9, Bible, NKJV]

Yes, people, the government has made itself into a religion and a church, at least in the realm of taxation. The problem with this corruption of our government is that the U.S. Supreme Court said they cannot do it:

"The "establishment of religion" clause of the First Amendment means at least this: neither a state nor the Federal Government can set up a church. Neither can pass laws which aid one [state-sponsored political] religion, aid all religions, or prefer one religion over another. Neither can force or influence a person to go to or to remain away from church against his will, or force him to profess a belief or disbelief in any religion. No person can be punished for entertaining or professing religious beliefs or disbeliefs, for church attendance or non-attendance. No tax in any amount, large or small, can be levied to support any religious activities or institutions, whatever they may be called, or whatever form they may adopt to teach or practice religion. Neither a state nor the Federal Government can, openly or secretly, participate in the affairs of any religious organizations or groups and vice versa."
[Everson v. Bd. of Ed., 330 U.S. 1, 15 (1947)]

"[T]he Establishment Clause is infringed when the government makes adherence to religion relevant to a person's standing in the political community. Direct government action endorsing religion or a particular religious practice is invalid under this approach, because it sends a message to nonadherents that they are outsiders, not full members of the political community, and an accompanying message to adherents that they are insiders, favored members of the political community".
[Wallace v. Jaffree, 472 U.S. 38 (1985)]

1 Can we prove with evidence that this false political religion is a “cult”? Below is the definition of “cult” from Easton’s Bible
2 Dictionary:

3 “cults, illicit non-Israelite forms of worship. Throughout the history of ancient Israel, there were those who
4 participated in and fostered the growth of cults (cf. 2 Kings 21). These cults arose from Canaanite influence in
5 the land of Israel itself and from the influence of neighboring countries. One of the main tasks of the prophets
6 was to return the people to the proper worship of God and to eliminate these competing cults (1 Kings 18:20-40).
7 See also Asherah; Baal; Chemosh; Harlot; High Place; Idol; Milcom; Molech; Queen of Heaven; Tammuz;
8 Topheth; Worship; Zeus.<sup>65</sup> “

9 Since the belief and worship of people is directed at other than a monotheistic Christian God, the government has become a
10 “cult”. It has also become a dangerous or harmful cult. Below is the description of “dangerous cults” from the Microsoft
11 Encarta Encyclopedia 2005:

12 “V. Dangerous Cults

13 Some cults or alternative religions are clearly dangerous: They provoke violence or antisocial acts or place their
14 members in physical [or financial] danger. A few have caused the deaths of members through mass suicide or 15 have supported violence, including murder, against people outside the cult. Sociologists note that violent cults
16 are only a small minority of alternative religions, although they draw the most media attention.

17 Dangerous cults tend to share certain characteristics. These groups typically have an exceedingly 18 authoritarian leader who seeks to control every aspect of members’ lives and allows no questioning of 19 decisions. Such leaders may hold themselves above the law or exempt themselves from requirements made of 20 other members of the group. They often preach a doomsday scenario that presumes persecution from forces
21 outside the cult and a consequent need to prepare for an imminent Armageddon, or final battle between good and
22 evil. In preparation they may hoard firearms. Alternatively, cult leaders may prepare members for suicide, which 23 the group believes will transport it to a place of eternal bliss”

25 To summarize then:

- 26 1. A “cult” is “dangerous” if it promotes activities that are harmful. Giving away one’s earnings and sovereignty is harmful
27 if not done knowingly, voluntarily, and with full awareness of what one was giving up. This is exactly what people do 28 who file or pay monies to the government that no law requires them to pay.
- 29 2. Dangerous cults are authoritarian and have stiff mainly “political penalties” for failure to comply. The federal judiciary 30 dishes out stiff penalties to people who refuse to join or participate in the dangerous cult, even though there is no “law”
31 or positive law authorizing them to do so and no implementing regulation that authorizes any kind of enforcement action
32 for the positive law. These penalties are as follows:
33 2.1. Jail time.
34 2.2. Persecution from a misinformed jury who has been deliberately tampered with by the judge to cover up government
35 wrongdoing and prejudice the case against the accused.
36 2.3. Exorbitant legal fees paying for an attorney in order to resist the persecution.
37 2.4. Loss of reputation, credit rating, and influence in society.
38 2.5. Deprivation of property and rights to property because of refusal to comply.
- 39 3. The dangerous cult of the Infernal (Satanic) Revenue Code also seeks to control every aspect of the members lives. The 40 tax code is used as an extensive, excessive, and oppressive means of political control over the spending and working
41 habits of working Americans everywhere. The extent of this political control was never envisioned or intended by our 42 Founding Fathers, who wanted us to be completely free of the government. Members of the cult falsely believe that 43 there is a law requiring them to report every source of earnings, every expenditure in excruciating detail. They have to 44 sign the report under penalty of perjury and be thrown in jail for three years if even one digit on the report is wrong. The 45 IRS, on the other hand, isn’t responsible for the accuracy of anything, including their publications, phone support, or 46 even their illegal assessments. In that sense, they are a false god, because they play by different and lesser rules than 47 everyone else.
- 48 4. The cult of the Infernal Revenue Code also “preaches a doomsday scenario that presumes persecution from forces outside 49 the cult”. This is a religion based on fear, and the fear originates both from ignorance about the law and with what will
50 happen to the members who leave the cult or refuse to comply with all the requirements of the cult. The doomsday messages are broadcast from the IRS and DOJ website, public affairs section, where they target famous personalities for persecution because of failure to participate in the cult, and when successful, use the result as evidence that they too will be severely persecuted for failure to participate. This is no different than what the Communists did in Eastern Europe, where they put a big wall around East Berlin 100 miles long to force people to remain under communist rule. They patrolled the wall by guards, dogs, and weapons, and highly publicized all escape attempts in which people were killed, maimed, or murdered. This negative publicity acted as a warning and deterrent against those who might think of escaping.

5. The cult of the Infernal (Satanic) Revenue Code also prepares people for spiritual suicide and Armageddon. Remember, the term “Armageddon” comes from the Bible book of Revelation, where doomsday predictions describe what will happen to those who allowed government to become their false god. Those who did so, and who accepted the government’s “mark” called the Socialist INSecurity Number, will be the first to be judged and persecuted and injured, according to Revelation. This is the REAL Armageddon folks!

“So the first [angel] went and poured out his bowl [of judgment] upon the earth, and a foul and loathsome sore came upon the men who had the mark of the beast [political rulers] and those who worshiped his image [on the money].”

[Rev. 16:2, Bible, NKJV]

Only those who do not accept the government’s mark will reign with Christ in Heaven:

“And I saw thrones, and they sat on them, and judgment was committed to them. Then I saw the souls of those who had been beheaded for their witness to Jesus and for the word of God, who had not worshiped the beast or his image, and had not received his mark on their foreheads or on their hands. And they lived and reigned with Christ for a thousand years.”

[Rev. 20:4, Bible, NKJV]

Surprisingly, the U.S. Congress, who are the REAL criminals and cult leaders who wrote the “Bible” that started this dangerous “cult of the Infernal Revenue Code”, also described the cult as a form of “communism”. Here is the unbelievable description, right from the Beast’s mouth, of the dastardly corruption of our legal and political system which it willfully did and continues to perpetuate and cover up:

TITLE 50 > CHAPTER 23 > SUBCHAPTER IV > Sec. 841.

The Congress finds and declares that the Communist Party of the United States [consisting of the IRS, DOJ, and a corrupted federal judiciary], although purportedly a political party, is in fact an instrumentality of a conspiracy to overthrow the [de jure] Government of the United States [and replace it with a de facto government ruled by the judiciary]. It constitutes an authoritarian dictatorship [IRS, DOJ, and corrupted federal judiciary in collusion] within a [constitutional] republic, demanding for itself the rights and privileges [including immunity from prosecution for their wrongdoing in violation of Article 1, Section 9, Clause 8 of the Constitution] accorded to political parties, but denying to all others the liberties [Bill of Rights] guaranteed by the Constitution. Unlike political parties, which evolve their policies and programs through public means, by the reconciliation of a wide variety of individual views, and submit those policies and programs to the electorate at large for approval or disapproval, the policies and programs of the Communist Party are secretly [by corrupt judges and the IRS in complete disregard of the tax laws] prescribed for it by the foreign leaders of the world Communist movement [the IRS and Federal Reserve]. Its members [the Congress, which was terrorized to do IRS bidding recently by the framing of Congressman Traficant] have no part in determining its goals, and are not permitted to voice dissent to party objectives. Unlike members of political parties, members of the Communist Party are recruited for indoctrination [in the public schools by homosexuals, liberals, and socialists] with respect to its objectives and methods, and are organized, instructed, and disciplined [by the IRS and a corrupted judiciary] to carry into action slavishly the assignments given them by their hierarchical chieftains. Unlike political parties, the Communist Party [thanks to a corrupted federal judiciary] acknowledges no constitutional or statutory limitations upon its conduct or upon that of its members. The Communist Party is relatively small numerically, and gives scant indication of capacity ever to attain its ends by lawful political means. The peril inherent in its operation arises not from its numbers, but from its failure to acknowledge any limitation as to the nature of its activities, and its dedication to the proposition that the present constitutional Government of the United States ultimately must be brought to ruin by any available means, including resort to force and violence [for using income taxes]. Holding that doctrine, its role as the agency of a hostile foreign power [the Federal Reserve and the American Bar Association (ABA)] renders its existence a clear present and continuing danger to the security of the United States. It is the means whereby individuals are seduced into the service of the world Communist movement, trained to do its bidding, and directed and controlled in the conspiratorial performance of their revolutionary services. Therefore, the Communist Party should be outlawed

That’s right folks: We now live under communism stealthily disguised as “democracy”, and which is implemented exactly the same way it was done in Eastern Europe. It’s just a little better hidden than it was in Europe, but it’s still every bit as real

1 and evil. Go back and review section 2.7.1 earlier if you want to compare our system of government with Pure Communism.
 2 The “wall” between east and west like the one in Berlin is an invisible “legal wall” maintained by the federal judiciary and
 3 the legal profession, who keep people (the “slaves” living on the federal plantation) from escaping the communism and
 4 regaining their freedom and complete control over their property, their labor, and their lives. Those who participate in the 5 federal income tax system by living on this figurative “federal plantation” essentially are treated as government “employees”.
 6 In order to join this dangerous cult, all they have to do is use a federal W-4 or 1040 form to lie or deceive the federal
 7 government into believing that they are “U.S. citizens” and “employees”, who under the I.R.C. are actually and only
 8 privileged “public officers” of the United States government. This is what it means to have income “effectively connected
 9 with a trade or business”, as described throughout the code, because “trade or business” is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26)
 10 as “the functions of a [privileged, excise taxable] public office [in the United States Government]”. If you would like to 11 know how this usurious and unconstitutional federal employee kickback program is used to perpetuate the fraud, read section
 12 5.6.10 later. A whole book has been written about how the “federal employee kickback program” works called *IRS Humbug:
 13 Weapons of Enslavement, Frank Kowalik*, written by Frank Kowalik, and it is a real eye opener that we highly recommend.

14 All the earnings of these slaves living on this federal plantation are treated in law (not physically, but by the courts) as
 15 originating from a gigantic monopoly called the “United States” government which, based on the way it has been acting, is
 16 actually nothing but a big corporation (see 28 U.S.C. §3002(15)(A)) a million times more evil than what happened to Enron
 17 and which will eventually destroy everyone, including those who refuse to participate in the “cult”, if we continue to
 18 complacently tolerate its usurpations and violations of the Constitution and God’s laws. The book of Revelation in the Bible
 19 describes exactly how the destruction will occur, and it even gives this big corporation a name called “The Beast”. The 20 people living on the federal corporate plantation are called “Babylon the Great Harlot”, which is simply an assembly of 21 ignorant, lazy, irresponsible, and dependent people living under a pure, atheistic commercial democracy who are ignorant
 22 and complacent about government, law, truth, and justice. They have been dumbed-down in the school system and taught to 23 treat government as their friend, not realizing that this same government has actually become the worst abuser of their rights.

24 Wake up people!

25 "And I heard another voice from heaven [God] saying, 'Come out of her [Babylon the Great Harlot, a democratic 26 state full of socialist non-believers], my people [Christians], lest you share in her sins, and lest you receive of her 27 plagues.'"
 28 [Revelation 18:4, Bible, NKJV]

29 5.4.6.3 How you were duped into signing the contract and joining the state-sponsored religion and what the 30 contract says

31 It might surprise you to find that if you are a “taxpayer”, then at one point or another, you probably unknowingly volunteered
 32 to become a federal “employee”, even if you never set foot in a federal building or worked for the federal government! That
 33 process of volunteering is accomplished using the Form W-4, which says at the top “Employee Withholding Allowance
 34 Certificate” and this is the nexus that connects you to the Beast. When you signed that IRS Form W-4 and submitted it with 35 a perjury oath in violation of Matt. 5:34, then:

- 36 1. You consented to be treated as an “employee” of the federal government. All “employees” are elected or appointed 37 under 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(c)-1. That makes you into a “public officer” and the federal government has always had nearly 38 totalitarian authority over its officers and employees, and can compel them to surrender ALL of their constitutional rights
 39 in the lawful exercise of their duties.

40 *“The restrictions that the Constitution places upon the government in its capacity as lawmaker, i.e., as the 41 regulator of private conduct, are not the same as the restrictions that it places upon the government in its capacity
 42 as employer. We have recognized this in many contexts, with respect to many different constitutional guarantees.
 43 Private citizens perhaps cannot be prevented from wearing long hair, but policemen can. Kelley v. Johnson, 425
 44 U.S. 238, 247 (1976). Private citizens cannot have their property searched without probable cause, but in many
 45 circumstances government employees can. O'Connor v. Ortega, 480 U.S. 709, 723 (1987) (plurality opinion); id.,
 46 at 732 (SCALIA, J., concurring in judgment). Private citizens cannot be punished for refusing to provide the 47 government information that may incriminate them, but government employees can be dismissed when the

1 Every action you do after signing up to be a federal "employee", including your earnings from private life, are considered
2 to be "done on official federal business" at that point. Your new boss and idol to be worshipped is the federal government,
3 and not God. Your continued obedience to the IRS is evidence that you worship this false god.

- 4 2. By virtue of being a federal "employee", then you became "effectively connected with a trade or business" because
5 "trade or business" is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) as "the functions of a public office". 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(a)(2)(ii)
6 reveals that only "aliens" (residents) and "nonresident aliens" (nationals domiciled in states of the Union engaged in a 7 public office) with income "effectively connected with a trade or business" can have "taxable income" or be the proper
8 subject of the code. The process of becoming "effectively connected" with federal income was done through what is 9 called an "election" in the Internal Revenue Code. This "election" is made upon either filing a form W-4 that authorizes
10 withholding or a 1040 form that indicates a nonzero liability. This contractual act of "election" can be revoked using the 11 procedures described later in section 5.3.6, which are further described in our Tax Fraud Prevention Manual, Form
12 #06.008.
- 13 3. Once your earnings contractually became "effectively connected with a trade or business", at least a portion of them
14 became "public property" and the federal government gained "in rem" jurisdiction over them by virtue of Article 4,
15 Section 3, Clause 2 of the U.S. Constitution, even if that property is not situated on federal land or otherwise within 16 exclusive federal jurisdiction. The portion of your earnings that are considered "public property" over which they have
17 jurisdiction is that portion which you owe in "taxes" (kickbacks) at the end of the year. If you resist efforts to collect
18 property in your custody that always has belonged to the government, then all actions against you will be a "replevin",
19 meaning an action against the property under your control and not against the "person", which is you.

20 "Replevin. An action whereby the owner or person entitled to repossession of goods or chattels may recover
21 those goods or chattels from one who has wrongfully distrained or taken or who wrongfully detains such goods
22 or chattels. Jim's Furniture Mart, Inc. v. Harris, 42 Ill.App.3d. 488, 1 Ill.Dec. 175, 176, 356 N.E.2d. 175, 176.
23 Also refers to a provisional remedy that is an incident of a replevin action which allows the plaintiff at any time
24 before judgment to take the disputed property from the defendant and hold the property pendente lite. Other
25 names for replevin include Claim and delivery, Detinue, Revendication, and Sequestration (q.v.)."
26 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1299]

- 27 4. Because your earnings as a federal "employee" are "public property", then under 5 U.S.C. §553(a)(2) and 44 U.S.C.
28 §1505(a)(1), there is no need to publish implementing regulations in the Federal Register governing the management of 29 that property. Because you volunteered to be treated as a federal "employee", you already consented to the terms of the 30 implied employment agreement found in the Internal Revenue Code between your new "employer" (the federal 31 government) and you. Those who don't want to be "effectively connected" simply don't pursue federal employment or 32 volunteer to fill out any forms that would indicate they are "effectively connected".
- 33 5. Because you are an "employee" and are treated under the I.R.C., Subtitles A and C as a "person" whose every action is 34 in the context of federal employment, then all monies paid to the IRS at that point literally do support the "government",
35 because everything you do in your private life is done essentially as a government "employee". Therefore, the Internal 36 Revenue Code literally does describe a "tax" at that point because it does support only the government, of which you are 37 part 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. The only thing the government can spend money on is a "public purpose", which 38 means the only thing they can compensate you for is services as a federal "employee":

39 "Public purpose. In the law of taxation, eminent domain, etc., this is a term of classification to distinguish the 40 objects for which, according to settled usage, the government is to provide, from those which, by the like usage,
41 are left to private interest, inclination, or liberality. The constitutional requirement that the purpose of any tax,
42 police regulation, or particular exertion of the power of eminent domain shall be the convenience, safety, or
43 welfare of the entire community and not the welfare of a specific individual or class of persons [such as, for
44 instance, federal benefit recipients as individuals]. "Public purpose" that will justify expenditure of public money
45 generally means such an activity as will serve as benefit to community as a body and which at same time is directly
46 related function of government. Pack v. Southwestern Bell Tel. & Tel. Co., 215 Tenn. 503, 387 S.W.2d. 789, 794.

47 The term is synonymous with governmental purpose. As employed to denote the objects for which taxes may be
48 levied, it has no relation to the urgency of the public need or to the extent of the public benefit which is to follow;
49 the essential requisite being that a public service or use shall affect the inhabitants as a community, and not
50 merely as individuals. A public purpose or public business has for its objective the promotion of the public*
51 health, safety, morals, general welfare, security, prosperity, and contentment of all the inhabitants or residents
52 within a given political division, as, for example, a state, the sovereign powers of which are exercised to promote 53 such public purpose or public business."
54 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1231, Emphasis added]

- 55 6. As a federal statutory "employee" (5 U.S.C. §2105(a)), you surrendered your sovereign immunity as a "non-resident 56 non-person" and made an election (elected yourself into public office) under 26 U.S.C. §6013(g) to be treated as a

1 privileged "alien" and a "resident" who no longer has control over his earnings. Here is how the U.S. Supreme Court
2 describes it:

3 A nondiscriminatory taxing measure that operates to defray the cost of a federal program by recovering a fair
4 approximation of each beneficiary's share of the cost is surely no more offensive to the constitutional scheme
5 than is either a tax on the income earned by state employees or a tax on a State's sale of bottled water. 18 The
6 National Government's interest in being compensated for its expenditures is only too apparent. More
7 significantly perhaps, such revenue measures by their very nature cannot possess the attributes that led Mr.
8 Chief Justice Marshall to proclaim that the power to tax is the power [435 U.S. 444, 461] to destroy. There is
9 no danger that such measures will not be based on benefits conferred or that they will function as regulatory
10 devices unduly burdening essential state activities. It is, of course, the case that a revenue provision that forces a
11 State to pay its own way when performing an essential function will increase the cost of the state activity. But 12 Graves v. New York ex rel. O'Keefe, and its precursors, see 306 U.S., at 483 and the cases cited in n. 3, teach that 13 an economic burden on traditional state functions without more is not a sufficient basis for sustaining a claim of 14 immunity. Indeed, since the Constitution explicitly requires States to bear similar economic burdens when 15 engaged in essential operations, see U.S. Const., Amdts. 5, 14; Pennsylvania Coal Co. v. Mahon, 260 U.S. 393
16 (1922) (State must pay just compensation when it "takes" private property for a public purpose); U.S. Const., Art.
17 I, 10, cl. 1; United States Trust Co. v. New Jersey, 431 U.S. 1 (1977) (even when burdensome, a State often must 18 comply with the obligations of its contracts), it cannot be seriously contended that federal exactions from the 19 States of their fair share of the cost of specific benefits they receive from federal programs offend the 20 constitutional scheme.

21 Our decisions in analogous context support this conclusion. We have repeatedly held that the Federal
22 Government may impose appropriate conditions on the use of federal property or privileges and may require
23 that state instrumentalities comply with conditions that are reasonably related to the federal interest in
24 particular national projects or programs. See, e. g., Ivanhoe Irrigation Dist. v. McCracken, 357 U.S. 275, 294 -
25 296 (1958); Oklahoma v. Civil Service Comm'n, 330 U.S. 127, 142 -144 (1947); United States v. San Francisco,
26 310 U.S. 16 (1940); cf. National League of Cities v. Usery, 426 U.S. 833, 853 (1976); Fry v. United States, 421
27 U.S. 542 (1975). A requirement that States, like all other users, pay a portion of the costs of the benefits they
28 enjoy from federal programs is surely permissible since it is closely related to the [435 U.S. 444,
29 462] federal interest in recovering costs from those who benefit and since it effects no greater interference
30 with state sovereignty than do the restrictions which this Court has approved.

31 A clearly analogous line of decisions is that interpreting provisions in the Constitution that also place limitations
32 on the taxing power of government. See, e. g., U.S. Const., Art. I, 8, cl. 3 (restricting power of States to tax 33 interstate commerce); 10, cl. 3 (prohibiting any state tax that operates "to impose a charge for the privilege of 34 entering, trading in, or lying in a port." Clyde Mallory Lines v. Alabama ex rel. State Docks Comm'n, 296 U.S.
35 261, 265 -266 (1935)). These restrictions, like the implied state tax immunity, exist to protect constitutionally
36 valued activity from the undue and perhaps destructive interference that could result from certain taxing
37 measures. The restriction implicit in the Commerce Clause is designed to prohibit States from burdening the free
38 flow of commerce, see generally Complete Auto Transit, Inc. v. Brady, 430 U.S. 274 (1977), whereas the 39 prohibition against duties on the privilege of entering ports is intended specifically to guard against local 40 hindrances to trade and commerce by vessels. See Packet Co. v. Keokuk, 95 U.S. 80, 85 (1877).

41 Our decisions implementing these constitutional provisions have consistently recognized that the interests
42 protected by these Clauses are not offended by revenue measures that operate only to compensate a government
43 for benefits supplied. See, e. g., Clyde Mallory Lines v. Alabama, supra (flat fee charged each vessel entering 44 port upheld because charge operated to defray cost of harbor policing); Evansville-Vanderburgh Airport
45 Authority v. Delta Airlines, Inc., 405 U.S. 707 (1972) ($1 head tax on explaining commercial air passengers
46 upheld under the Commerce Clause because designed to recoup cost of airport facilities). A governmental body
47 has an obvious interest in making those who specifically benefit from its services pay the cost and, provided that 48 the charge is structured to compensate the government for the benefit conferred, there can be no danger of the 49 kind of interference [435 U.S. 444, 463] with constitutionally valued activity that the Clauses were designed to 50 prohibit.
51 [Massachusetts v. United States, 435 U.S. 444 (1978)]

- 52 7. As an employee, the federal courts exercise jurisdiction over you as a federal "employee", trustee, and fiduciary as 53 described in 26 U.S.C. §6903. If you fail to properly discharge your duties and return profits of your employment to the 54 mother corporation, you violate your fiduciary duty and your employment contract, the I.R.C., and become subject to 55 federal but not state jurisdiction. Below is how the legal encyclopedia American Jurisprudence 2d describes claims by 56 the United States against its employees and officers:

57 "The interest to be recovered as damages for the delayed payment of a contractual obligation to the United States
58 is not controlled by state statute or local common law."<sup>66</sup> In the absence of an applicable federal statute, the

1 federal courts must determine according to their own criteria the appropriate measure of damages.<sup>67</sup> State
 2 law may, however, be adopted as the federal law of decision in some instances.<sup>68</sup>
 3 [American Jurisprudence 2d, United States, §42: Interest on Claim (1999)]

4 The same process above is also accomplished by completing and signing and submitting the IRS Form 1040 to the IRS. 26
 5 C.F.R. §1.1-1(a)(2)(ii) specifically says that the only biological people who earn “taxable income” are those with income
 6 “effectively connected with a trade or business”, and these are the only sections anywhere in the I.R.C. or implementing
 7 regulations which we could find that refer to the earnings of a biological person as being taxable. By submitting a 1040 with
 8 a nonzero “taxable income” to the IRS or a W-4 to an “employer”, you are essentially signing a contract with the federal
 9 government. Below are the terms of that “adhesion contract”:

10 “For you, brethren, have been called to liberty; only do not use liberty as an opportunity for the flesh, but through 11 love serve one another.”
 12 [Gal. 5:13, Bible, NKJV]

13 1. Benefits/consideration:

14 1.1. You can surrender responsibility for yourself to your public servants and live a life of luxury and complacency at 15 government expense. That life of luxury is described in Rev. 18:3:

16 1.1.1. Your new false god, the government, will now take care of you like it takes care of the rest of its own:
 17 counterfeiting money or stealing it from your neighbor to take care of you when you get old. You have joined 18 the Mafia’s retirement system and they will take care of you, so long as you are politically correct.

19 1.1.2. You have imperceptibly and unknowingly joined Babylon the Great Harlot, and the process was transparent
 20 to you so you don’t have to fear the inevitable consequences of God’s wrath for your decision. To wit:

21 For all the nations [and socialist peoples] have drunk of the wine of the wrath of her fornication, the kings
 22 [political rulers] of the earth have committed fornication [commerce] with her, and the merchants
 23 [corporations] of the earth have become rich through the abundance of her luxury.”
 24 And I heard another voice from heaven saying, “Come out of her, my people, lest you share in her sins, and lest
 25 you receive of her plagues. For her sins have reached<sup>21</sup> to heaven, and God has remembered her iniquities.”
 26 [Rev. 18:3-5, Bible, NKJV]

27 1.2. Your life while on earth will be a comfortable and “safe” life free of consequence or responsibility. It will be a 28 life that rewards failure, dependency, and irresponsibility, and punishes, taxes, and persecutes success and 29 entrepreneurship. You will be a “subject federal citizen” who surrendered all his rights and abdicated his godly 30 stewardship:

31 TITLE 42 > CHAPTER 21 > SUBCHAPTER 1 > Sec. 1981.
 32 Sec. 1981. - Equal rights under the law

33 (a) Statement of equal rights

34 All persons within the jurisdiction of the United States [ . . . ], shall be subject to like punishment, pains, penalties,
 35 taxes, licenses, and exactions [and IRS extortions] of every kind, and to no other.

36 You will live in a very temporary man-made, egalitarian socialist utopia free of God or liability to obey His laws.
 37 Those churches who criticize this result as immoral are persecuted by pulling their 501(c)(3) exemption and raping
 38 and pillaging and seizing their assets. The government will enforce with its unjust laws not only equality of 39 opportunity, but equality of RESULT, by abusing its taxing powers to redistribute wealth from the “haves” to the 40 “have-nots and parasites” of society.

41 1.3. Your political “mafia protectors” will abuse their lawmaking power to indemnify you from liability for all of the 42 following sins and violations of God’s eternal laws. Their lawmaking power will be used as a “license to sin” free
 43 of consequence:

44 1.3.1. Bad parenting. The government will take care of your kids if you screw up. They will become “wards of the 45 state” who won’t come knocking on your door when you get older because Uncle will take care of them
 46 instead.

47 1.3.2. Selfishness in churches. The government will take over the charity business with Welfare, Medicare, and 48 Social Security so that churches don’t have to bother with charity anymore and can keep all their tithes for

1.3.3. Homosexuality. Leviticus 18:22 forbids homosexuality and says it is an abomination to be hated and for which God will judge. The government, on the other hand, will decriminalize it and even promote gay marriages, causing eternal damnation for all those who practice it after they die. Your politicians will either decriminalize it or offer to do so in order to procure your votes at election time.

1.3.4. Abortion. Exodus 20:13 and Prov. 31:8-9 say abortion is murder and violates God's law. Politicians promise to decriminalize it in order to bribe promiscuous single people to vote for them.

1.3.5. Adultery. The Ten Commandments in Exodus 20:14 makes adultery a sin. King David was punished and persecuted by God for his violation of this law. Yet government, in race to bribe voters for votes, has replaced lifelong Holy Matrimony with temporary civil unions, thus making

1.3.5.1. Marriage into a form of legalized prostitution

1.3.5.2. Marriage licenses into prostitution licenses

1.3.5.3. Family court judges into "pimps"

1.3.5.4. Family law attorneys into tax collectors for the pimp.

Without Holy Matrimony virtually eliminated and replaced with temporary civil unions, there can be no such thing as adultery. All children born to parents practicing this form of prostitution give birth to bastard children under God's law who have no right to inheritance. Consequently, the state will steal their inheritance through inheritance taxes. See:

<http://famguardian.org/Subjects/FamilyLaw/Marriage/InDefenseOfMarriage.htm>

1.3.6. Fornication. God says in 1 Cor. 6:18 and 1 Thess. 4:3-6 not to fornicate. Yet the government panders to the sinful nature of people by loosening FCC rules for lewdness on TV, teaching children in high school sex education class how to fornicate without having babies. They teach "safe sex", but avoid teaching "abstinence", thus contributing to the decay of society and the sacredness of Holy Matrimony.

1.3.7. Laziness. No need to be in a hurry to find a job because government will support me indefinitely if I don't.

"The hand of the diligent will rule, but the lazy man will be put to forced labor [government slavery!]."
[Prov. 12:24, Bible, NKJV]

1.3.8. Borrowing money. We showed earlier in section 2.8.11 that God's laws, such as Rom. 13:8, Deut. 15:6, Deut. 28:12, Deut. 23:19 say we should not borrow or go into debt or charge interest to our brother. Yet our politicians actually encourage debt through the tax code by allowing write-offs.

1.4. You gain the right to demand that the government subsidize and encourage your sinful behaviors by offering you "tax deductions" for sins that it wants you to commit in its name. For instance:

1.4.1. You can demand on your tax return the "privilege" to demand that the government allow you to exempt or deduct interest on debt, as a way to encourage you to go into debt, even though debt violates God's laws found in Rom. 13:8, Deut. 15:6, Deut. 28:12, Deut. 23:19.

1.4.2. You can "write off" those kids you never wanted by claiming them as deductions, as long as you make them into "taxpayers" and government "whores" by giving them "Slave Surveillance Numbers". The government will then use the SSN as a way to chain your kids and their kids to the federal plantation for the rest of their lives. Is that kind of treachery of your kids worth $3,000 in deductions per year? Shouldn't they have the right to make an informed choice when they reach adulthood whether or not they want to be "taxpayers" or have an SSN?

2. Responsibilities and Liabilities:

2.1. You must accept the Mark of the Beast, the Slave Surveillance Number (SSN). This number is simply a number used to track federal property, which you then become.

2.2. You become a federal "employee" on official business 24 hours a day, 7 days a week because:

2.2.1. When "employed", you become a subcontractor to the federal government and a fiduciary over earnings that actually belong to the government and which are paid to you as a "trustee" of federal property by your federal "employer".

2.2.2. Your "straw man", who has the Slave Surveillance Number (SSN) attached to it, actually becomes the recipient of your earnings and you become the "trustee". The straw man has "legal title" and you have "equitable title". You cease to be the "trustee" and achieve "legal title" ONLY AFTER you have given the government their "fair share" according to whatever your benefactors at the IRS say you are entitled to keep. In other words, you get the "spoils" and the "leftovers" after the government has taken whatever it wants and picked the bones clean.

2.2.3. Any money you spend on yourself that came from the government disguised as an "entitlement" or "benefit" and which you did not directly earn with your own personal labor in effect becomes "employment income" that controls your private, personal behavior. The Supreme Court said in Loan Assoc. v. Topeka, 87 U.S. \(20 Wall.\) 655, 665 (1874), that a legitimate “tax” can only be spent on the support of the “government”. If you spend government entitlements on yourself instead of in furtherance of an official government function, then you become a thief and a criminal who is abusing government funds for personal gain. Therefore, it must be presumed that you are on “official business” 24 hours a day, 7 days a week or you would have to be thrown in jail for embezzlement.

- 2.3. Because you are a federal “employee” 24 hours a day, 7 days a week, then you, all of your earnings, and your personal and real property become federal property subject to federal jurisdiction under Article 4, Section 3, Clause 2 of the U.S. Constitution, regardless of where it physically exists. The government has an “equity interest” in your property which you gave to them by identifying yourself as a federal “employee” with a Slave Surveillance Number.
- 2.4. You become an “officer of a corporation”, which is the federal corporation called the United States government as defined in 28 U.S.C. §3002(15)(A). As such, you become the proper legal subject of most penalty statutes within the Internal Revenue Code such as 26 U.S.C. §6671(b) and 26 U.S.C. §7343, which only apply penalties to “officers of corporations”.
- 2.5. You become a “resident” (alien) living on the federal plantation situated in the District of Columbia (see 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(39)) and 26 U.S.C. §7408(d). None of the property or labor the government “harvests” from its slaves on the plantation can be considered stolen property, because everyone living on the federal plantation presumably “volunteered” to be there by signing the form W-4 and 1040.
- 2.6. You and your property become surety for endless government debt in violation of Prov. 6:1-5. The whole function of the IRS, in fact, is to manufacture fraudulent debt instruments called “assessments” without lawful authority and to thereby put people into perpetual debt slavery to their government in violation of the Thirteenth Amendment prohibition against “peonage” (slavery to pay off a debt), and “involuntary servitude”.
- 2.7. You become “an individual” and a “natural person” in the context of the Internal Revenue Code and become subject to the code in its entirety. This is called being “effectively connected with a trade or business” in the code.
- 2.8. Since you already admitted you are a “taxpayer”, which is a government “whore”, by furnishing a federal identifying number and specifying a liability on a tax form, then the burden of proof shifts to you to prove that you don't earn “Taxable income” under 26 U.S.C. §7491. Your Constitutional right of being “innocent until proven guilty” is now completely reversed. You are guilty of being a government “whore” until you prove you are innocent.
- 2.9. All of your earnings become “effectively connected with a trade or business in the [federal] United States”, which means they are treated as though they originated from the Federal Government, even if they didn't. All those who are “effectively connected” are essentially parties to an implied “employment” contract with the federal government. In effect, you became a federal “contractor” and the money you earn is theirs until you settle accounts with the prime contractor by submitting a tax return. This “return” is actually a return of property actually belonging to the federal government:

“THE”+ “IRS”= “THEIRS”

- 2.10. Whenever you are given a political or a legal choice as a jurist or voter or a parent, you have an obligation to do whatever you must in order to ensure the flow of your share of the stolen “loot” from the public servant thieves you work for in the federal judiciary and the IRS.
  - 2.10.1. As a jurist, you must rule against all those people who try to exit the fraudulent revenue collection system or who try to reform the corruption within the system.
  - 2.10.2. As a voter, you must vote for the candidate who promises the most stole “loot”.
  - 2.10.3. As a parent, you must train your children that they have a duty to participate in the tax system, because that is where your retirement is going to come from!

The above is EVIL! It is the essence of socialism. Christians cannot be socialists. All socialists worship government as their false god. This is Satan worship and idolatry, because it is man/government-centric instead of God centric. The Bible calls such rebellion and mutiny of God's laws “witchcraft” in 1 Sam 15:22-23. Such idolatry is punishable by death under God's law (see Ezekial 9 in the Bible). The same kind of rebellion by our public servants of the Constitution is also punishable by death under 18 U.S.C. §2381.

Based on the above analysis, the only ethical and moral way to avoid the “roach trap statute” called the Internal Revenue Code is to not accept any social welfare benefit. This is a very important point. The Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act (F.S.I.A.), codified in 28 U.S.C. Chapter 97, in fact, clearly identifies why this is the case. 28 U.S.C. §1605, part of the act, contains a list of exceptions whereby a foreign sovereign forfeits its sovereign immunity in courts of justice. Two exceptions in particular reveal why we can't accept federal benefits or be "U.S. citizens". To wit:

1. 28 U.S.C. §1605(a)(2) says that if you conduct "commerce" within the legislative jurisdiction of the "United States" (meaning the federal zone), then you lose your sovereign immunity. Receiving government benefits or paying for them through taxation qualifies as "commerce". 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(39) and 26 U.S.C. §7408(d) place all "persons" subject to the tax code squarely within the District of Columbia regardless of where they live, which is what the "United States" is defined as in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10):

§ 1605. General exceptions to the jurisdictional immunity of a foreign state

A foreign state shall not be immune from the jurisdiction of courts of the United States or of the States in any case—

(2) in which the action is based upon a commercial activity carried on in the United States by the foreign state; or upon an act performed in the United States in connection with a commercial activity of the foreign state elsewhere; or upon an act outside the territory of the United States in connection with a commercial activity of the foreign state elsewhere and that act causes a direct effect in the United States;

For further confirmation of the fact that your domicile as a federal "employee" is the District of Columbia, see Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b), which says that those acting in a representative capacity for a federal corporation, which in this case is the "United States", become subject to the laws for the domicile of the corporation, which is the District of Columbia under 4 U.S.C. §72 and Article 1, Section 8, Clause 17 of the Constitution:

IV. PARTIES > Rule 17.

Rule 17. Parties Plaintiff and Defendant; Capacity

Capacity to sue or be sued is determined as follows:

(1) for an individual who is not acting in a representative capacity, by the law of the individual's domicile;

(2) for a corporation[or an officer of the corporation such as the Social Security Trustee], by the law under which it was organized; and

(3) for all other parties, by the law of the state where the court is located, except that:

(A) a partnership or other unincorporated association with no such capacity under that state's law may sue or be sued in its common name to enforce a substantive right existing under the United States Constitution or laws; and

(B) 28 U.S.C. §§ 754 and 959(a) govern the capacity of a receiver appointed by a United States court to sue or be sued in a United States court.

2. 28 U.S.C. §1603(b), also part of the act, defines an "agency or instrumentality" of a foreign state as an entity (1) which is a separate legal person, corporate or otherwise, and (2) which is an organ of a foreign state or political subdivision thereof, or a majority of whose shares or other ownership interest is owned by a foreign state or political subdivision thereof, and (3) which is neither a citizen of the a state of the United States as defined in 28 U.S.C. §1332(c) and (d) nor created under the laws of any third country.

(a) A "foreign state", except as used in section 1608 of this title, includes a political subdivision of a foreign state or an agency or instrumentality of a foreign state as defined in subsection (b).

(b) An "agency or instrumentality of a foreign state" means any entity—

(1) which is a separate legal person, corporate or otherwise, and

(2) which is an organ of a foreign state or political subdivision thereof, or a majority of whose shares or other ownership interest is owned by a foreign state or political subdivision thereof, and

(3) which is neither a citizen of a State of the United States as defined in section 1332 (c) and (d) of this title, nor created under the laws of any third country.

Based on the above, when you are acting effectively as a federal “employee”, you are not a “separate legal person”, but instead are just an extension of the federal government. Consequently, you cannot be part of a “foreign state” and maintain judicial immunity in a federal court if you accept federal employment as a person engaged in a “trade or business”. Likewise, you will lose your sovereign immunity if you allow yourself to be a statutory “citizen of the United States” under 8 U.S.C. §1401. That is why we suggested in the preceding chapter that you MUST correct your citizenship status to expatriate statutory citizenship in favor of Constitutional citizenship. Watch out!

We can't take what we didn't earn, and so if we are willing to accept a “benefit” (government bribe), then we should be just as willing to accept the responsibility to pay for it or else we are definitely a thief. No devout Christian can be a thief. Some people try to compromise on this principle by calculating how much they paid in, inflation adjusting it, and then only taking out exactly what they put in and no more. This is another alternative, but the cleanest way to separate from the Beast is simply to:

1. Completely abandon all entitlement to government social welfare “benefits”. You can abandon Social Security Participation, for instance, using the following form:

Resignation of Compelled Social Security Trustee, Family Guardian Fellowship

2. Consider all contributions so far as simply donations to charity.
3. Completely abandon allegiance to the Beast. When we say “abandon allegiance”, we mean abandon allegiance to the lawless de facto government we have now but maintain our allegiance to the de jure “state”, which is all the people that our public servants work for and who are the true “sovereigns” in our system of government. If we have allegiance to them instead of our political rulers, then we will want to do what is best for them but taking them off their sinful addiction to plundered loot stolen by our covetous public servants.
4. Vow to take complete and exclusive responsibility for ourselves from this day forward. This is what the Bible requires:

“Make it your ambition to lead a quiet life, to mind your own business and to work with your hands, just as we told you, so that your daily life may win the respect of outsiders and so that you will not be dependent on anybody.”
 [1 Thess. 4:9-12, Bible, NIV]

“Go to the ant, you sluggard! Consider her ways and be wise, which, having no captain, overseer or ruler, provides her supplies in the summer, and gathers her food in the harvest, how long will you slumber, O sluggard? When will you rise from your sleep? A little sleep, a little slumber, a little folding of the hands to sleep--SO shall your poverty come on you like a prowler [and government dependence], and your need like an armed man.”*

[Prov. 6:6-11, Bible, NKJV]

[INTERPRETATION: Laziness allows us to be robbed of our heritage and our birthright, our dignity and our sovereignty, because we are victimized by it and will end up surrendering our rights to the government out of desperation in order to get the sustenance that we were otherwise unwilling to earn. This makes the government into a Robinhood, which using the tools of democracy, turns a sword against its own citizens to rob from the rich to give to the poor. This leads to the downfall of democracy eventually because the government becomes an agent of plunder.]

A search of the Federal Register and the C.F.R. will not find criminal sections 7201 (tax evasion) and 7203 (willful failure to file) of Title 26 (the I.R. Code) anywhere. This fact seems to contradict the mandate of 44 U.S.C. §1505(a), which says, “for the purposes of this chapter (Sec. 1501 et seq.) every document or order which prescribes a penalty has generally applicability and legal effect” and that those “having general applicability and legal effect” are “required to be published.” From this it would appear as though these penalty statutes should have been published in the Federal Register and the C.F.R. if they were to be enforced against the public at large, but Congress very deliberately limited the application of these penalty statutes and all of chapter 75 of the I.R. Code to a person described in section 7343 of the I.R. Code—a person who is “under a duty to perform the act in respect of which the violation occurs.” The person under a duty is only a person who “effectively connected” himself with the U.S. Government income, an act called a “trade or business”, and willfully made some of that income part of their own estate by criminal conduct, such as fraud or perjury. Upon proof of fraud or perjury, the additional punishment of these statutes is applicable. Hence, sections 7201 and 7203 are not statutes of primary punishment, they only provide for additional punishment after a primary criminal act has been charged and proven. Only then does the U.S. Court

1 have authority to impose the additional punishment under section 7201 (tax evasion) and section 7203 (willful failure to file)
2 upon such a person, and no other.

3 The Federal Government “employee” who works in the federal zone and is responsible for handling part of the U.S.
4 Government’s income is the most likely candidate to be in a position to act fraudulently with regard to that income. Such
5 person is in a fiduciary relationship with regard to the U.S. Government income and 44 U.S.C. §1501(a)(2) excepted statutes
6 that are “effective only against Federal agencies or persons in their capacity as officers, agents, or employees thereof.” So,
7 technically, section 1505(a) does not require section 7201 and section 7203 of the I.R. code to be in the Federal Register or 8 C.F.R. if it is only being enforced against federal “employees”.

9 If these statutes prescribed primary rather than secondary punishment, they would have general applicability and would be
10 required to be noticed. But, these statutes state they are additional punishment, so they cannot lawfully be used as primary
11 punishment. The fact that they are not noticed in the Federal Register as required for other types of penalties is conclusive
12 evidence that they can only be applied upon the specific persons described in section 7343 and only upon specific U.S.
13 Government income. Section 7343, in turn, only specifies that “officer or employee of a corporation” is the party who has 14 the duty to perform, and that person is holding “public office” in the United States government ONLY. Absence in the 15 Federal Register tells that the subject matter is limited to internal revenue service and not possible to use for external (to the 16 Federal Government) revenue service.

17 With I.R.C. Sections 7201 and 7203 being applied generally through malicious prosecutions and malicious abuse of legal
18 process, there remains only one source of authority being used by Federal Government employees against Americans
19 domiciled in states of the Union and outside of federal jurisdiction. Unlawfulness notwithstanding, Federal Government
20 employees must be relying on authority received by judicial decisions, referred to as “case law” or “judge-made law” by 21 lawyers within and without the U.S. Government.

29 5.4.6.4 No one in the government can lawfully consent to the contract

30 As we proved earlier in section 5.4.4, the U.S. Supreme Court held in Milwaukee v. White, 296 U.S. 268 (1935) that the 31 obligation to pay income taxes is “quasi-contractual in nature”. In that case, they said

32 “Even if the judgment is deemed to be colored by the nature of the obligation whose validity it establishes, and
33 we are free to re-examine it, and, if we find it to be based on an obligation penal in character, to refuse to enforce
34 it outside the state where rendered, see Wisconsin v. Pelican Insurance Co., 127 U.S. 265, 292, et seq. 8 S.Ct.

35 1370, compare Fauntleroy v. Lum, 210 U.S. 230, 28 S.Ct. 641, still the obligation to pay
36 taxes is not penal. It is a statutory liability, quasi contractual in 37 nature, enforceable, if there is no exclusive statutory remedy, 38 in the civil courts by the common-law action of debt or

41 Stockwell v. United States, 13 Wall. 531, 542; Meredith v. United States, 13 Pet. 486, 493. This was the rule

46 [Milwaukee v. White, 296 U.S. 268 (1935)]

47 The phrase “indebitatus assumpsit” is fancy Latin for “assumed debt”. In other words, the government, in collecting taxes,
48 is “assuming” or “presuming” that you contracted a debt to pay for their services, even if you did not intend to use or contract

1 for or consent to receive any of their services. In this section, we will expand the notion that income taxes are contractual to
2 show that even if you did explicitly consent, there is no one in the government who could consent to the agreement or contract.

3 Any valid contract requires the following minimum elements:

- 4 1. An offer.
- 5 2. Mutual consideration.
- 6 3. Fully informed consent/assent.
- 7 4. Voluntary acceptance. This implies no penalty for failing to participate.
- 8 5. Legal age.

9 The Constitution for the United States divides the federal government into three distinct branches: Legislative, Executive,
10 and Judicial. This broke "Humpty Dumpty" into three pieces. The reasonable question arises as to which of these three 11 pieces has the lawfully delegated authority to contract for or on behalf of the U.S. government in the context of income taxes.

13 "The Government may carry on its operations through conventional executive agencies or through corporate
14 forms especially created for defined ends. See Keifer & Keifer v. Reconstruction Finance Corp., 306 U.S. 381,
15 *390, 518. Whatever the form in which the Government functions, anyone entering into an arrangement with 16 the Government takes the risk of having accurately ascertained that he who purports to act for the Government
17 stays within the bounds of his authority. The scope of this authority may be explicitly defined by Congress or
18 be limited by delegated legislation, properly exercised through the rule-making power. And this is so even*
19 though, as here, the agent himself may have been unaware of the limitations upon his authority. See, e.g., Utah
20 Power & Light Co. v. United States, 243 U.S. 389, 409, 391; United States v. Stewart, 311 U.S. 60, 70, 108, and 21 see, generally, In re Floyd Acceptances, 7 Wall. 666."
22 [Federal Crop Ins. v. Merrill, 332 U.S. 380 (1947)]
23

24 Justice Holmes wrote: "Men must turn square corners when they deal with the Government." Rock Island, A. &
25 L. R. Co. v. United States, 254 U.S. 141, 143 (1920). This observation has its greatest force when a private party
26 seeks to spend the Government's money. Protection of the public fisc requires that those who seek public funds
27 act with scrupulous regard for the requirements of law; respondent could expect no less than to be held to the 28 most demanding standards in its quest for public funds. This is consistent with the general rule that those who
29 deal with the Government are expected to know the law and may not rely on the conduct of Government agents
30 contrary to law. 17. [467 U.S. 51, 64]

32 The appropriateness of respondent's reliance is further undermined because the advice it received from Travelers
33 was oral. It is not merely the possibility of fraud that undermines our confidence in the reliability of official action
34 that is not confirmed or evidenced by a written instrument. Written advice, like a written judicial opinion, requires
35 its author to reflect about the nature of the advice that is given to the citizen, and subjects that advice to the 36 possibility of review, criticism, and reexamination. The necessity for ensuring that governmental agents stay
37 within the lawful scope of their authority, and that those who seek public funds act with scrupulous exactitude,
38 argues strongly for the conclusion that an estoppel cannot be erected on the basis of the oral advice that underlay
39 respondent's cost reports. That is especially true when a complex program such as Medicare is involved, in which 40 the need for written records is manifest.
42

43 In their answers some of the defendants assert that when the forest reservations were created an understanding
44 and agreement was had between the defendants, or their predecessors, and some unmentioned officers or agents
45 of the United States, to the effect that the reservations would not be an obstacle to the construction or operation
46 of the works in question; that all rights essential thereto would be allowed and granted under the act of 1905;
47 that, consistently with this understanding and agreement, and relying thereon, the defendants, or their
48 predecessors, completed the works and proceeded with the generation and distribution of electric energy, and
49 that, in consequence, the United States is estopped to question the right of the defendants to maintain and operate
50 the works. Of this it is enough to say that the United States is neither bound nor estopped by acts of its officers
51 or agents in entering into an arrangement or agreement to do or cause to be done what the law does not

1 "It is contended that since the contract provided that the government 'inspectors will keep a record of the work
2 done,' since their estimates were relied upon by the contractor, and since by reason of the inspector's mistake the
3 contractor was led to do work in excess of the appropriation, the United States is liable as upon an implied
4 contract for the fair value of the work performed. But the short answer to this contention is that since no official
5 of the government could have rendered it liable for this work by an express contract, none can by his acts or
6 omissions create a valid contract implied in fact. The limitation upon the authority to impose contract
7 obligations upon the United States is as applicable to contracts by implication as it is to those expressly made.
8 [Sutton v. U.S., 256 U.S. 575 (1921)]

10 Undoubtedly, the general rule is that the United States are neither bound nor estopped by the acts of their 11 officers and agents in entering into an agreement or arrangement to do or cause to be done what the law does
12 not sanction or permit. Also, those dealing with an agent of the United [294 U.S. 120, 124] States must 13 be held to have had notice of the limitation of his authority. Utah Power & Light Co. v. United States, 243 U.S.
14 389, 409, 37 S.Ct. 387; Sutton v. United States, 256 U.S. 575, 579, 41 S.Ct. 563, 19 A.L.R. 403.

15 How far, if at all, these general rules are subject to modification where the United States enter into transactions
16 commercial in nature (Cooke v. United States, 91 U.S. 389, 399; White v. United States, 270 U.S. 175, 180, 46
17 S.Ct. 274) we need not now inquire. The circumstances presented by this record do not show that the assured was 18 deceived or misled to his detriment, or that he had adequate reason to suppose his contract would not be enforced
19 or that the forfeiture provided for by the policy could be waived. New York Life Insurance Co. v. Eggleston, 96
20 U.S. 572; Phoenix Mut. Life Insurance Co. v. Doster, 106 U.S. 30, 1 S.Ct. 18. The grounds upon which estoppel
21 or waiver are ordinarily predicated are not shown to exist.
22 [Wilbur Natl Bank v. U.S., 294 U.S. 120 (1935)]

23 Based on the foregoing, we can safely conclude:

- 24 1. Only law or legislative enactment can bind the government to a contract.
- 25 2. Persons doing business with the government are presumed to know the law, and the law is the vehicle for notifying the 26 public about the limitations imposed upon the authority of agents working for or on behalf of the government.
- 27 3. Oral contracts with the government are unenforceable.
- 28 4. Only written contracts with the government are enforceable.
- 29 5. Officers of the U.S. government who have no delegated authority to bind the government cannot lawfully be party to any 30 agreement or contract.
- 31 6. Any contract or agreement entered into with an agent who had no lawful authority to bind the government is null and 32 void ab initio.
- 33 7. Even among officers of the U.S. government who have delegated authority from their supervisor to bind the government 34 through contracts, if either they or their supervisors are acting outside of the authority of law, the contracts are 35 unenforceable and create no rights or remedies for the parties.

36 In addition to the above, no branch of government can delegate any of its powers to another branch. This requirement
37 originates from the Separation of Powers Doctrine:

38 "To the contrary, the Constitution divides authority between federal and state governments for the protection
39 of individuals. State sovereignty is not just an end in itself: "Rather, federalism secures to citizens the liberties
40 that derive from the diffusion of sovereign power." Coleman v. Thompson, 501 U.S. 722, 759 (1991)
41 (BLACKMUN, J., dissenting). "Just as the separation and independence of the coordinate branches of the Federal 42 Government serve to prevent the accumulation of excessive power in any one branch, a healthy balance of power between the States and the Federal Government will reduce the risk of tyranny and abuse from either front." Gregory v. [505 U.S. 144, 182] Ashcroft, 501 U.S., at 458. See The Federalist No. 51, p. 323. (C. Rossiter ed. 1961).

46 Where Congress exceeds its authority relative to the States, therefore, the departure from the constitutional
47 plan cannot be ratified by the "consent" of state officials. An analogy to the separation of powers among the 48 branches of the Federal Government clarifies this point. The Constitution's division of power among the three
49 branches is violated where one branch invades the territory of another, whether or not the encroached-upon
50 branch approves the encroachment. In Buckley v. Valeo, 424 U.S. 1, 118 -137 (1976), for instance, the Court
51 held that Congress had infringed the President's appointment power, despite the fact that the President himself
52 had manifested his consent to the statute that caused the infringement by signing it into law. See National League
53 of Cities v. Usery, 426 U.S., at 842, n. 12. In INS v. Chadha, 462 U.S. 919, 944 -959 (1983), we held that the 54 legislative veto violated the constitutional requirement that legislation be presented to the President, despite 55 Presidents' approval of hundreds of statutes containing a legislative veto provision. See id., at 944-945. The 56 constitutional authority of Congress cannot be expanded by the "consent" of the governmental unit whose domain
57 is thereby narrowed, whether that unit is the Executive Branch or the States.

State officials thus cannot consent to the enlargement of the powers of Congress beyond those enumerated in the Constitution. Indeed, the facts of this case raise the possibility that powerful incentives might lead both federal and state officials to view departures from the federal structure to be in their personal interests. Most citizens recognize the need for radioactive waste disposal sites, but few want sites near their homes. As a result, while it would be well within the authority of either federal or state officials to choose where the disposal sites will be, it is likely to be in the political interest of each individual official to avoid being held accountable to the voters for the choice of location. If [505 U.S. 144, 183] a federal official is faced with the alternatives of choosing a location or directing the States to do it, the official may well prefer the latter, as a means of shifting responsibility for the eventual decision. If a state official is faced with the same set of alternatives - choosing a location or having Congress direct the choice of a location - the state official may also prefer the latter, as it may permit the avoidance of personal responsibility. The interests of public officials thus may not coincide with the Constitution's intergovernmental allocation of authority. Where state officials purport to submit to the direction of Congress in this manner, federalism is hardly being advanced. " [New York v. United States, 505 U.S. 144 (1992)]

The only persons within the government who can bind the government are "public officers" acting under the authority of law. These officials exercise broad discretion in the execution of the "public trusts" under their stewardship as elected or appointed officials of the U.S. government:

"As expressed otherwise, the powers delegated to a public officer are held in trust for the people and are to be exercised in behalf of the government or of all citizens who may need the intervention of the officer. 69 Furthermore, the view has been expressed that all public officers, within whatever branch and whatever level of government, and whatever be their private vocations, are trustees of the people, and accordingly labor under every disability and prohibition imposed by law upon trustees relative to the making of personal financial gain from a discharge of their trusts. 70 That is, a public officer occupies a fiduciary relationship to the political entity on whose behalf he or she serves. 71 and owes a fiduciary duty to the public. 72 It has been said that the fiduciary responsibilities of a public officer cannot be less than those of a private individual. 73 Furthermore, it has been stated that any enterprise undertaken by the public official which tends to weaken public confidence and undermine the sense of security for individual rights is against public policy.74" [63C American Jurisprudence 2d, Public Officers and Employees, §247 (1999)]

An employee who is not a "public official" has no authority to bind the government because he has no fiduciary duty to act in the best interests of the government. It is worth noting that the ONLY person in the IRS who is a "public official" is the IRS commissioner himself. He is appointed by the President pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §7803\(a\)\(1\)\(A\). Everyone below him has no statutory authority to serve and DO NOT serve even as federal "employees". This is confirmed by the 1939 Internal Revenue Code, which is the basis for the current Internal Revenue Code and was never repealed. All laws prior to that relating to federal taxation were repealed by the Revenue Act of 1939. See 53 Stat. 1, the Revenue Act of 1939. Below is what it says about Revenue Agents in the 1939 Code, in section 4000, 53 Stat. 489:

Section 4000 Appointment

The Commissioner may, whenever in his judgment the necessities of the service so require, employ competent agents, who shall be known and designated as internal revenue agents, and, except as provided for in this title, no general or special agent or inspector of the Treasury Department in connection with internal revenue, by whatever designation he may be known, shall be appointed, commissioned, or employed.

1 “Competent agents”? What a joke! If they were “competent”, then they would:

- 2 1. Know and follow the law and be fired if they didn't.
- 3 2. Work as an “employee” for a specific Congressman in the House of Representatives who was personally accountable
- 4 for their actions. “Taxation and representation” must coincide to preserve the original intent of the Constitution and the
- 5 separation of powers doctrine.
- 6 3. Have delegated statutory authority of law to serve.
- 7 4. Would be public officers with a fiduciary duty to the public who they serve.

8 You can read the above statute yourself on the Family Guardian website at:

9 <https://sedm.org/law-dvd/Federal/RevenueActs/Revenue%20Act%20of%201939.pdf>

10 If “Revenue Agents” are not “appointed, commissioned, or employed”, then what exactly are they? We'll tell you what they

11 are: They are independent consultants who operate on commission. They get a commission from the property they steal

12 from the American People, and their stolen “loot” comes from the Department of Agriculture. See the following response to

14 <http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Evidence/OrgAndDuties/USDAPaysIRS.pdf>

15 Why would the Congress NOT want to make Revenue Agents “appointed, commissioned, or employed”? Well, if they are

16 effectively STEALING property from the American people and if they are not connected in any way with the federal

17 government directly, have no statutory authority to exist under Title 26, and are not “employees”, then the President of the

18 United States and all of his appointees in the Executive Branch cannot then be held personally liable for the acts and abuses

19 of these thieves. What politician in his right mind would want to jeopardize his career by being held accountable for a mafia

20 extortion ring whose only job is to steal money from people absent any legal authority?

21 The upside of all this is that if IRS agents are not “appointed, commissioned, or employed”, then they have no authority to

22 obligate the government to anything. This is true of EVERYONE in the IRS who serves below the IRS Commissioner. The

23 implications of this are HUGE. Most people become “taxpayers” through the operation of private/special law, as we said

24 earlier. This happens usually by them signing an “agreement” of some kind that makes them subject to the I.R.C., such as:

25 IRS Form 1040, SSA Form SS-5, IRS Form W-4, etc. The Regulations for the IRS Form W-4, for instance, identify this

26 form as an “agreement”:

27 26 C.F.R. §31.3402\(p\)-1

 33 Subpart E

34 Sec. 31.3402(p)-1 Voluntary withholding agreements.

 36 (a) In general. An employee and his employer may enter into an agreement under section 3402(b) to provide for 37 the withholding of income tax upon payments of amounts described in paragraph (b)(1) of Sec. 31.3401(a)-3, 38 made after December 31, 1970. An agreement may be entered into under this section only with respect to 39 amounts which are includible in the gross income of the employee under section 61, and must be applicable to
 40 all such amounts paid by the employer to the employee. The amount to be withheld pursuant to an agreement
 41 under section 3402(p) shall be determined under the rules contained in section 3402 and the regulations
 42 thereunder. (b) Form and duration of agreement. (1)(i) Except as provided in subdivision (ii) of this 43 subparagraph, an employee who desires to enter into an agreement under section 3402(p) shall furnish his 44 employer with Form W-4 (withholding exemption certificate) executed in accordance with the provisions of 45 section 3402(f) and the regulations thereunder. The furnishing of such Form W-4 shall constitute a request for 46 withholding.

47 How can this agreement be an agreement with the government without anyone in the IRS who can bind the government to 48 the agreement? Does the IRS sign this form? NO! Did the government make you personally an offer to accept this agreement.

49 NO! Who, then, are the parties to this agreement and by what authority does the government become a party to it?

1 "But the short answer to this contention is that since no official of the government could have rendered it
 2 liable for this work by an express contract, none can by his acts or omissions create a valid contract implied in
 3 fact. The limitation upon the authority to impose contract obligations upon the United States is as applicable
 4 to contracts by implication as it is to those expressly made."
 5 [Sutton v. U.S., 256 U.S. 575 (1921)]

6 Let us give an important example of how this concept operates. The Legislative Branch cannot delegate its taxing or tax
 7 collection powers to the Executive Branch. Article 1, Section 8, Clauses 1 and 3 of the Constitution of the United States
 8 gives ONLY to Congress the power to "lay AND collect taxes". This means that if Congress wants to collect taxes from 9 within states of the Union, the taxation and representation must coincide in the SAME physical person, who works in the 10 House of Representatives. The U.S. Constitution Article 1, Section 7, Clause 1 requires that all spending bills must originate
 11 in the House of Representatives, and by implication, all taxes must be collected by the House of Representatives to pay for 12 everything in the spending bill. The House Ways and Means Committee is responsible to ensure that both sides of this 13 equation will balance out so that we have a balanced budget. The reason that members of the House or Representatives are 14 reelected every two years is that if they get too aggressive in collecting taxes within their district, we can throw the bastards
 15 out of office immediately. This reasoning was ably explained by James Madison in Federalist Paper #58, when he said:

16 "The House of Representatives cannot only refuse, but they alone can propose, the supplies requisite for the 17 support of government. They, in a word, hold the purse that powerful instrument by which we behold, in the 18 history of the British Constitution, an infant and humble representation of the people gradually enlarging the 19 sphere of its activity and importance, and finally reducing, as far as it seems to have wished, all the overgrown
 20 prerogatives of the other branches of the government. This power over the purse may, in fact, be regarded as the 21 most complete and effectual weapon with which any constitution can arm the immediate representatives of the 22 people, for obtaining a redress of every grievance, and for carrying into effect every just and salutary measure.
 23 But will not the House of Representatives be as much interested as the Senate in maintaining the government in 24 its proper functions, and will they not therefore be unwilling to stake its existence or its reputation on the pliancy
 25 of the Senate? Or, if such a trial of firmness between the two branches were hazarded, would not the one be as 26 likely first to yield as the other? These questions will create no difficulty with those who reflect that in all cases
 27 the smaller the number, and the more permanent and conspicuous the station, of men in power, the stronger must 28 be the interest which they will individually feel in whatever concerns the government.."
 29 [Federalist Paper #58, James Madison]

30 Neither the Senate nor the House of Representatives can lawfully, through legislative enactment, separate the tax
 31 COLLECTION function from the REPRESENTATION function in the context of states of the Union by delegating either
 32 function to another one of the two remaining branches of government. This would destroy the separation of powers and be 33 unconstitutional. If they do, it must be presumed that they are acting upon territory not within the "United States" (states of 34 the Union) within the meaning of the Constitution and which is part of the federal zone, and therefore are not bound by the 35 limitations imposed by the Constitution. This is exactly the situation with the present income tax described in I.R.C., Subtitle
 36 A: It applies mainly if not exclusively to persons engaged in a "trade or business" or "public office", which means people
 37 who are contractors, agents, public officers, or employees of the federal government. These people serve primarily within 38 the Executive Branch, which is limited to the District of Columbia pursuant to 4 U.S.C. §72. The IRS is in the Executive 39 Branch as well, under the Treasury Department. When the IRS was first created in 1862, the Congress called it a "Bureau",
 40 which implies that it exists not to interface directly with people in states of the Union, but to service business operations
 41 WITHIN the government itself. Hence the name INTERNAL Revenue Service.

42 Therefore, we must conclude that even if we did agree to the "quasi contract" to procure the protection of government by 43 consenting to participate in the Subtitle A income tax, there would be NO ONE within the federal government who could 44 lawfully act for or obligate the government, since the only parties who could lawfully do it are in the Legislative Branch.
 45 This is also confirmed by the following:

46 "Every man is supposed to know the law. A party who makes a contract with an officer [of the government]
 47 without having it reduced to writing is knowingly accessory to a violation of duty on his part. Such a party aids
 48 in the violation of the law."
 49 [Clark v. United States, 95 U.S. 539 (1877)]

50 When you submit any kind of tax form to the government, none of them require the signature of an agent of the government.
 51 Therefore, the government acquires no rights or remedies pursuant to any law as a non-party to the transaction.

53 This section will build upon sections 4.3.12 and 5.4.6.1 earlier, in which we showed that our government has become idolatry,
 54 a false religion, and false god and that its "Bible" has become the Infernal and Satanic Revenue Code. In it, we will prove

1 that so-called "income tax" trials are not in fact legal proceedings at all, but essentially amount to religious inquisitions against
 2 those who do not consent to participate in the official state-sponsored federal religion called the Internal Revenue Code. We
 3 will start off by defining what a valid legal proceeding is, and then show you why today's tax trials do not even come close
 4 to meeting these requirements, and are conducted more like religious inquisitions than valid legal proceedings. We will even
 5 compare modern tax trials to the early "witch trials" to show quite graphically just how similar that they are to religious
 6 inquisitions. We will then close the section by giving you a tabular comparison showing all the similarities between how
 7 federal tax trials of today are conducted and the way the inquisitions were conducted in the 1600's so that the facts are crystal
 8 clear in your mind. This will form the basis to describe modern tax trials not only as religious inquisitions, but also as a
 9 "malicious abuse of legal process" that is the responsibility of mainly federal judges.

10 At the heart of the notion of religious liberty and the First Amendment is the freedom from "compelled association". We can
 11 only be "holy" in God's eyes, if we separate ourselves from pagan people and governments around us. Here are a few
 12 authorities from the Bible on this subject of separation of "church", which is us as believers, from "state", which is all the 13 pagan nonbelievers living under our system of government:

14 "Come out from among them [the unbelievers]

15 And be separate, says the Lord.

16 Do not touch what is unclean,

17 And I will receive you.

18 I will be a Father to you,

19 And you shall be my sons and daughters,

20 Says the Lord Almighty."

21 [2 Corinthians 6:17-18, Bible, NKJV]

22 "Do not love the world or the things in the world. If anyone loves [is a citizen of] the world, the love of the 23 Father is not in Him. For all that is in the world--the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eyes, and the pride of life--
 24 is not of the Father but is of the world. And the world is passing away, and the lust of it; but he who does the 25 will of God abides forever."

26 [1 John 2:15-17, Bible, NKJV]

27 "Adulterers and adulteresses! Do you now know that friendship [and "citizenship"] with the world is enmity
 28 with God? Whoever therefore wants to be a friend [citizen or "taxpayer"] of the world makes himself an 29 enemy of God."

30 [James 4:4, Bible, NKJV]

31 "Pure and undefiled religion before God and the Father is this: to visit orphans and widows in their trouble, 32 and to keep oneself unspotted from the world [and the corrupted governments and laws of the world]."

33 [James 1:27, Bible, NKJV]

34 "And you shall be holy to Me, for I the Lord am holy, and have separated you from the peoples, that you
 35 should be Mine."

36 [Leviticus 20:26, Bible, NKJV]

37 "I am a stranger in the earth;

38 Do not hide Your commandments from me."

39 [Psalm 119:19, Bible, NKJV]

40 "I have become a stranger to my brothers,

41 And an alien to my mother's children;

42 Because zeal for Your house has eaten me up,

43 And the reproaches of those who reproach You have fallen on me."

44 [Psalm 69:8-9, Bible, NKJV]

45 A graphical example of the need for this separation of "church" and "state" is illustrated in the Bible book of Nehemiah, in 46 which the Jews tried to rebuild the wall that separated them, who were believers, from the pagan people, governments, and 47 rulers around them who were enslaving them with taxes, persecuting, and ridiculing them. Does this scenario sound familiar?
 48 It should because that is exactly the scenario Christians in America are beginning to be exposed to. Those who want to be
 49 holy and sanctified therefore cannot associate themselves with a pagan or socialist state without violating God's laws, sinning,
 50 and alienating themselves from God. The First Amendment says the right to refuse to associate, which in this case is a
 51 "religious practice", is protected. Below is what a prominent First Amendment reference book says on this subject:

52 Just as there is freedom to speak, to associate, and to believe, so also there is freedom not to speak, associate, or
 53 believe. "The right to speak and the right to refrain from speaking [on a government tax return, and in
 54 violation of the Fifth Amendment when coerced, for instance] are complementary components of the broader

12 All of the harassment, financial terrorism, and evil instituted by the IRS and the legal skirmishes happening in courtrooms
 13 across the country relating to income taxes is all designed with one very specific, singular purpose in mind: to force and
 14 terrorize people into associating with, subsidizing, and having allegiance to a pagan, socialist, EVIL government, and to 15 thereby commit idolatry in making government one's new false god and using that false god as a substitute for the Living
 16 God. We are being forced to choose between one of two competing sovereigns: the true, living God, or a pagan and evil
 17 government, and we can only choose ONE:

18 "No one can serve two masters; for either he will hate the one and love the other, or else he will be loyal to the 19 one and despise the other. You cannot serve God and mammon [unrighteous gain or any other false god]."<sup>75</sup>
 20 [Jesus in Matt. 6:24, Bible, NKJV]

21 "Bravery or slavery, take your pick, because your covetous government is going to force you to choose one!"
 22 [Family Guardian Fellowship]

23 We must remember what the Bible says about this choice we have:

24 "You shall not follow a [socialist or democratic] crowd[or "mob"] to do evil; nor shall you testify in a dispute 25 so as to turn aside after many to pervert justice."
 26 [Exodus 23:2, Bible, NKJV]

27 "Away with you, Satan! For it is written, You shall worship the Lord your God, and Him ONLY [NOT the 28 government!] you shall serve [with your labor or your earnings from labor]."<sup>75</sup>
 29 Jesus in [Matt. 4:10, Bible, NKJV]

30 Therefore, there is only one righteous choice of who our "Master" can be as believers, and it isn't man, or anything including 31 governments, that is made by man. If it isn't God, then you have violated your contract and covenant with God in the Bible.
 32 When you choose government as your Master, the tithes you used to pay to God then are diverted to subsidize your new 33 pagan god, the government, in the form of "income taxes". Once you understand this important concept completely, the 34 picture becomes quite clear and the purposes behind the abuse of legal process relating to illegal income tax enforcement and 35 collection will be clear in your mind. What we are dealing with in the court system then, is essentially not a legal, but a
 36 political and ideological war. The apostle Paul warned us about this inevitable ideological war, when he said:

37 "For we do not wrestle against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of 38 the darkness of this age, against spiritual hosts of wickedness in the heavenly [and government] places."
 39 [Eph. 6:12, Bible, NKJV]

40 In the context of individual taxation, we now know from the preceding sections that there are no "positive laws" at the federal 41 level, other than perhaps the Constitution itself. The Internal Revenue Code is therefore a religion, and not a law, as we
 42 concluded earlier. The disciples of that religion are all those who benefit financially from it by receiving socialist government
 43 benefits, which are really just bribes paid from stolen money generated by this false religion. Among the victims of this
 44 socialist bribery effected with loot stolen from our fellow Americans are judges, lawyers, and jurors. To validate our analysis
 45 here, we will therefore prove to you scientifically in the remainder of this section that modern tax trials are more "political 46 campaigns" and "religious inquisitions" rather than valid legal processes. In a society without tax laws where "voluntary

1 compliance” must be maintained, some method of discipline must be used, and since it can't be “law”, then the tools of
2 discipline and enforcement must then degenerate into political persecution and religious inquisition.

3 A valid legal proceeding in a federal court against a sovereign National who lives in a state of the Union and not on land
4 within federal territorial jurisdiction must meet all the following prerequisites to be a valid:

5 1. The statute which is being enforced must be a “positive law” which they are obligated to observe. See 1 U.S.C. §204(a).
6 Positive law means that the people consented to the enforcement of the law and its adverse impact against their rights.
7 If the statute being enforced is not a “positive law”, then the government must disclose on the record how and why the
8 defendant comes under the contractual or voluntary jurisdiction of the statute. They must prove, for instance, beyond a
9 reasonable doubt, why the person is a federal “employee” in order to enforce a “special law” statute such as the Internal 10 Revenue Code that only applies to federal employees.

11 2. Implementing regulations must be published in the federal register for the positive law statute that allow the statute to be 12 enforced. Without publishment in the federal register, no law may prescribe any kind of penalty, as we learned earlier.
13 See the following for exhaustive treatment of this subject:

IRS Due Process Meeting Handout, Form #03.008

14 3. Jurisdictional boundaries and requirements must be strictly observed by the court:

15 3.1. The violation of a “positive law” must occur within federal jurisdiction on land that the government can prove 16 belonged to the federal government at the time of the offense. Such records are in the possession of the Department
17 of Justice.

18 3.2. If the government is exercising extraterritorial jurisdiction, it must provide evidence of consent to the law in some 19 form, so that it is enforcing the equivalent of “private law”/contract law within a foreign jurisdiction. This 20 requirement is the essence of what the courts call “federalism”.

21 3.3. Federal judges who hear federal tax trials must maintain a domicile on federal land within the district where they 22 serve, and are unqualified to serve if they do not.

23 3.4. Since federal law applies mainly inside the federal zone, then the only people who can serve as jurors on a federal 24 trial are people born in and residing within the federal zone, and very few people meet this requirement.

25 4. The result of violating the positive law statute must harm a specific, flesh and blood individual. This is the foundation
26 of the notion of “common law”. Laws are there to protect the “sovereign”, which in this country is the People and not
27 the government. This means that if the government is proceeding as the injured party, then it must produce a “verified 28 complaint” alleging a specific injury to other than itself in order to enforce a statute.

29 5. A confession or a critical statement or act by the accused upon which a conviction depends must be made completely
30 voluntarily and the subject who made the confession or committed the act may not be under any kind of duress or undue
31 influence, especially by the government who is hearing the case. It is considered prejudicial and a violation of due 32 process to rely upon evidence that was obtained under duress and involuntarily.

33 6. No presumptions may be made about the status of the individual involved, because assumption and presumption violate
34 due process of law under the Fifth Amendment and are also a religious sin (see Numbers 15:30, Bible). All evidence
35 admitted, even if it is signed under penalty of perjury by the National, must be verified to be true and correct and the 36 individual must agree that no duress was involved in the production of the evidence in order for it to be admissible.

37 6.1. “prima facie” evidence of law, such as the Internal Revenue Code, are not admissible. “prima facie” means
38 “presumed”. See the legislative notes under 1 U.S.C. §204.

39 6.2. The accused cannot be “presumed” to be an statutory “U.S. citizen” pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1401, without a showing 40 with credible evidence that he was born within federal jurisdiction, on land under the exclusive jurisdiction of the 41 federal government.

42 6.3. The jury may not make any presumptions. Jurists must be warned in advance that they should not make any 43 presumptions about what the tax code says, which means they must be:

44 6.3.1. Shown that the code is not positive law but special law, and therefore may not be used generally, but only 45 against persons who effectively connected themselves to the code by working for the government.

46 6.3.2. Shown the code themselves.

47 6.3.3. Shown why the individual on trial is subject to the code by being shown the liability statute or by proving that 48 he is a federal “employee”

49 6.4. See the following for details on how “presumption” is abused by federal courts to DESTROY your rights:

Presumption: Chief Weapon for Unlawfully Enlarging Federal Jurisdiction, Form #05.017

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

50 7. The voir dire jury selection and judge selection process must remove all persons from the legal process who have any 51 kind of conflict of interest:

1 7.1. Judges who receive retirement benefits or pay from illegal collection activity must recuse themselves.

2 7.2. Jurists who receive any kind of government benefit or who file tax returns and therefore are subject to influence by
3 the IRS must be removed from the trial. The only people who can serve on the jury are those not subject to extortion
4 or influence by the IRS. Consequently, the IRS must agree in writing not to institute any kind of collection action
5 or retaliation against any of the jurists for any adverse decisions they might make against the IRS.

6 8. The judge:

7 8.1. May not pay or receive benefits from Subtitle A federal income taxes, nor be subject to any kind of collection action
8 by the IRS. Even the possibility that such retaliation could happen by the IRS would severely prejudice the rights
9 of the accused if he is opposing the IRS.

10 8.2. Must have an appointment affidavit making him an Article III judge, which is admitted into evidence prior to the 11 start of the trial for the jury and the accused to see.

12 8.3. Must be a member of the Judicial Branch and not the Executive Branch. Consequently, he cannot be an "employee"
13 of the Executive branch and may not have a SF-61 form on file with the executive branch. Instead, all of his records
14 and pay must be handled by the Judicial branch and not any federal agency in the Executive Branch.

15 9. If the judge is either a "taxpayer" or does not demonstrate a willingness to recuse himself as a person who receives
16 financial benefit from the operation of the I.R.C. against persons who do not consent or volunteer, then the jury must be
17 advised that because a clear conflict of interest is present and that they have the right to rule on both the facts and the
18 law. Ordinarily, the judge would rule on the law and the jury would rule only on the facts, but if the judge has a clear
19 conflict of interest, then Thomas Jefferson and John Jay, one of our first chief Justices of the Supreme Court, both said
20 that the jury can and should rule on BOTH the facts AND the law to prevent tyranny by the judge:

21 "It is left... to the juries, if they think the permanent judges are under any bias whatever in any cause, to take
22 on themselves to judge the law as well as the fact. They never exercise this power but when they suspect
23 partiality in the judges; and by the exercise of this power they have been the firmest bulwarks of English
24 liberty."

25 [Thomas Jefferson to Abbe Arnoux, 1789. ME 7:423, Papers 15:283]

26 The judicial process we have today for hearing tax cases in federal district courts does not even remotely resemble most of 27 what is listed above. For instance:

- 28 1. Federal judges commonly treat the Internal Revenue Code as "law" and admit it into evidence at tax trials against 29 "nontaxpayers" who are not subject to it, which is very prejudicial of the rights of the accused.
- 30 2. Federal judges seldom if ever recuse themselves even though they are "taxpayers" and even though them being 31 "taxpayers" and receiving benefits based on illegal enforcement of Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A creates a conflict
32 of interest in violation of 18 U.S.C. §208.
- 33 3. Jurors are seldom excused from tax trials because they are either "taxpayers" or are in receipt of benefits derived from 34 income taxes which might create a conflict of interest. This prejudices the rights of the accused in favor of the 35 government.
- 36 4. Few of the jurors or judges are domiciled or born on federal land that is within the judicial district or Internal Revenue
37 District in question. Consequently, the trial is moot and illegal from the beginning. Many of them said on their jury
38 summons that they are "U.S. citizens", but the government never defines anywhere exactly what it means to be a "U.S.
39 citizen" in any positive law statute pertaining to jury selection. Consequently, the federal government uses deliberately
40 vague laws and the false presumption they generate to induct illegal jurors to serve on federal tax trials, thereby 41 destroying the separation of powers between state and federal governments.
- 42 5. The criminal statutes that are being enforced, found in 26 U.S.C. §7201 through 7217 have no implementing regulations
43 published in either the Federal Register or the Code of Federal Regulations, and therefore are unenforceable against 44 anyone but federal "employees". Likewise, the judge prejudices the rights of the accused by not requiring the government
45 to prove that the accused is a federal employee who is the proper subject of the Internal Revenue Code.
- 46 6. The federal judge not only doesn't prevent, but actually encourages false presumption and prejudice by the jury by:
- 47 6.1. DOJ prosecutors and the judge work as a team to encourage jealousy and contempt in the jurists against the accused 48 by telling them that they are "taxpayers" but "this bozo refuses to pay his fair share!".
- 49 6.2. Judges refuse to allow jurists to see the actual laws that the accused is being tried for, because there simply are none
50 in most cases.

51 The above abuses of the legal process are primarily the responsibility of the judge hearing the case. If you want to blame
52 anyone or prosecute anyone for the abuse, prosecute the judge himself as a private individual for exceeding his lawful
53 authority and thereby injuring your rights. All of the above abuses of the legal process are described in the legal dictionary
54 as follows:

1 “Malicious abuse of legal process. Willfully misapplying court process to obtain object not intended by law.
 2 The wilful misuse or misapplication of process to accomplish a purpose not warranted or commanded by the writ.
 3 The malicious perversion of a regularly issued process, whereby a result not lawfully or properly obtained on a
 4 writ is secured; not including cases where the process was procured maliciously but not abused or misused after
 5 its issuance. The employment of process where probable causes exists but where the intent is to secure objects
 6 other than those intended by law. Hughes v. Swinehart, D.C.Pa., 376 F.Supp. 650, 652. The tort of “malicious
 7 abuse of process” requires a perversion of court process to accomplish some end which the process was not
 8 designed to accomplish some end which the process was not designed to accomplish, and does not arise from a
 9 regular use of process, even with ulterior motives. Capital Elec. Co. v. Cristaldi, D.C.Md., 157 F.Supp. 646, 648.
 10 See also Abuse (Process); Malicious prosecution. Compare Malicious use of process.”

12 The federal Injustice system we have is meant only as a counterfeit that is intended to deceive the people and give them a 13 false sense of security and confidence in our legal system:

14 “GOVERNMENT ANNOUNCEMENT April 15, 2004

15 [Washington, D.C.] The federal government announced today that it is changing its emblem from an eagle to a 16 condom, because that more clearly reflects its political stance.

17 A condom stands up to inflation, halts production, destroys the next generation, protects a bunch of pricks, and 18 gives you a sense of security while it's actually screwing you.”

19 Consequently, we contend that most federal tax trials are not a judicial or even a lawful proceeding. This is further described 20 in the free Memorandum of law below:

Political Jurisdiction, Form #05.004
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

21 In fact, based on several Freedom of Information Act Requests (FOIA) about the status of numerous federal district court
 22 “judges” we have, who hear such tax cases, most of the judges do not have a valid appointment document, never took any
 23 oath as required by positive law, and aren’t even listed as “judges” in the records of the government! Don’t believe us? Send 24 in a Freedom Of Information Act (FOIA) request yourself and find out! Throughout the remainder of this section, we will
 25 refer to these imposters simply as “pseudo judges”. Therefore, our “United States District Courts” have simply become the 26 equivalent of administrative federal office buildings that are part of the Executive, and not Judicial, branch of the government.
 27 A truly sovereign and independent Article III Judicial Branch can’t even be mentioned in any federal statute, because of the 28 separation of powers doctrine, and yet we have a whole Title of the U.S. Code, Title 28, which defines and prescribes what 29 pseudo judges in these bogus “courts” can and can’t do. The Supreme Court says the existence of such laws proves that such 30 “courts” aren’t really judicial tribunals. Notice the statement “the ONLY judicial power vested in Congress” below:

31 “As the only judicial power vested in Congress is to create courts whose judges shall hold their offices during 32 *good behavior, it necessarily follows that, if Congress authorizes the creation of courts and the appointment of 33 judges for limited time, it must act independently of the Constitution upon territory which is not part of the 34 United States within the meaning of the Constitution.”
 35 [O’Donoghue v. United States, 289 U.S. 516, 53 S.Ct. 740 (1933)]

36 Title 28 not only “creates” all the district and circuit courts of the United States, but it in fact even defines what the “judges”
 37 CANNOT rule on. See 28 U.S.C. §2201(a), which plainly states that federal judges CANNOT rule on rights in the context
 38 of income taxes. Excuse our language here, but what the HELL is a judge for if he can’t defend or rule on our rights(!)?
 39 We’ll give you a hint: The only “rights” he is there to protect are the governments “right” to STEAL your money and use it
 40 to subsidize socialism. The only type of court over which the Congress could have such absolute legislative power over
 41 judges is in an Article IV (of the Constitution), territorial court, and this in fact exactly describes our present District and 42 Circuit federal court systems. Our present federal District and Circuit courts were created to rule ONLY over issues relating 43 to federal territory and property under Article 1, Section 8, Clause 17, and Article 4, Section 3, Clause 2 of the Constitution.
 44 They are all “legislative” rather than “constitutional” or “judicial” courts. They are part of the Executive Branch of the 45 government, and which have no authority to even address Constitutional rights. They are NOT part of the “judicial branch”,
 46 and this is a deception. The entire Judicial Branch, in fact, is composed exclusively of the seven justices of the Supreme 47 Court. A very exclusive club, we might add!

48 “The United States District Court has only such jurisdiction as Congress confers [by legislation].”
 49 [Eastern Metals Corp. v. Martin, 191 F.Supp. 245 (D.C.N.Y. 1960)]

1 If the pseudo judges who hear tax trials aren't even part of the Judicial branch, were never appointed, and are simply
 2 "employees" of the Executive Branch, then what exactly are they? They are simply imposters who are there to create the
 3 illusion that there is even a remote possibility of equity and justice in the courtroom relating to an income tax issue. To
 4 preserve some semblance of civil order and prevent a massive civil revolt, the government has to maintain some kind of
 5 façade so that the people don't lose faith in a government that in fact has already become totally corrupted in the area of 6 money and commerce. Keep in mind that deceit in commerce is the most offensive and abominable sin that God hates the 7 most. Below is an excerpt from Matthew Henry's commentary on the Bible demonstrating why this is:

8 "As religion towards God is a branch of universal righteousness (he is not an honest man that is not devout), so
 9 righteousness towards men is a branch of true religion, for he is not a godly man that is not honest, nor can he
 10 expect that his devotion should be accepted; for, 1. Nothing is more offensive to God than deceit in commerce.
 11 A false balance is here put for all manner of unjust and fraudulent practices [of our public dis-servants] in 12 dealing with any person [within the public], which are all an abomination to the Lord, and render those
 13 abominable [hated] to him that allow themselves in the use of such accursed arts of thriving. It is an affront
 14 to justice, which God is the patron of, as well as a wrong to our neighbour, whom God is the protector of. Men
 15 [in the IRS and the Congress] make light of such frauds, and think there is no sin in that which there is money
 16 to be got by, and, while it passes undiscovered, they cannot blame themselves for it; a blot is no blot till it is hit,
 17 Hos. 12:7, 8. But they are not the less an abomination to God, who will be the avenger of those that are 18 defrauded by their brethren. 2. Nothing is more pleasing to God than fair and honest dealing, nor more
 19 necessary to make us and our devotions acceptable to him: A just weight is his delight, He himself goes by a
 20 just weight, and holds the scale of judgment with an even hand, and therefore is pleased with those that are herein
 21 followers of him. A balance cheats, under pretence of doing right most exactly, and therefore is the greater 22 abomination to God."
 23 [Matthew Henry's Commentary on the Whole Bible; Henry, M., 1996, c1991, under Prov. 11:1]

24 Back in the 1600's in our country and elsewhere in Europe, there were several notable occasions where so-called "witches"
 25 were tried and finally executed for practicing "witchcraft". The nature of the proceedings strongly resembled the religious
 26 "inquisitions" that preceded them throughout Europe in the 1400's. In fact, witchcraft trials evolved out of these religious 27 inquisitions and first began to appear in the late 1400's. A History Channel special on witches aired on October 29, 2004,
 28 identified the following common characteristics about how these "witch trials" were conducted:

29 1. Historical foundations of the public outcry against witchcraft:

- 30 1.1. The peak of the witch trials occurred in the late 1600's. The period from the late 1400's to the late 1600s were 31 known as the "Burning Times" because witch hunts and executions were so prevalent during this period. The most 32 common places for witch trials were in the rural villages of France and Germany, but they also occurred in America
 33 in the late 1600's.
 34 1.2. The basis for the persecution of witches had a primarily "religious" foundation. The Bible forbids witchcraft in 35 Deut. 19:10. Witches were believed to have a covenant with the devil and worship the devil and to be involved in 36 harmful activities that were a threat to society as a whole.
 37 1.3. The practice of witchcraft was viewed as the worst type of religious heresy and was punishable by death by 38 execution. The reason it had this status was because the practice of witchcraft was made to appear as a threat not 39 just to the church, but to the whole society. Activities of accused "witches" were viewed as a competing "religion"
 40 and the worship of the devil. Witchcraft was also viewed as a threat to the predominantly Christian religion and 41 evidence of possession by the "devil".

42 2. Social status of witches:

- 43 2.1. Hatred against and fear of witchcraft was most prevalent among uneducated or under-informed people, who are 44 most susceptible to false belief, presumption, government propaganda, and superstition.
 45 2.2. Mobilizing the public against witchcraft was done by encouraging and exploiting intense fear and hatred towards
 46 immoral or harmful activities and by associating witches with such immoral and harmful activities. This was done 47 by exploiting the ignorance, presumptions, and prejudices of the people by religious and political leaders.
 48 2.3. The people who were accused of witchcraft, in fact, were most often those who were accomplishing most to help
 49 their community. These people were often the most prominent political targets and opponents and accusing them
 50 of witchcraft was a way to retaliate politically against them. Most were older, single, or widowed and therefore 51 didn't fit the mold that most other women did. They did deviant things like use herbs and folk remedies to heal
 52 people magically. They had fewer friends and therefore were more vulnerable to false accusations and persecution,
 53 because they did not have a social network of friends who could help defend them.

54 3. How criminal charges of witchcraft were initiated:

- 55 3.1. Search for the witch began when a person was observed to have psychological fits and delirium and the society
 56 could not explain the cause of the fits. Observers then would assume it was a supernatural possession by the devil

- (rather than simply a psychological illness) and would then begin searching for supernatural phenomenon and “witches” to explain the possession.
- 3.2. Witch trials were often initiated at the request of an upstanding citizen or someone having deliriums who wanted to politically retaliate against an opponent. Most of the accusations of witchcraft came from people who only superficially knew the accused “witches” and therefore were suspicious and fearful of them. An even larger number of accusations came from those accused of witchcraft themselves and who were under torture to make a confession.
  - 3.3. The government fomented and facilitated the witch trials. There was a lot of political propaganda that was intended to smear and denigrate suspected “witches” by associating them with the following harmful activities:
    - 3.3.1. Immoral activity.
    - 3.3.2. The taking of hallucinogenic drugs.
    - 3.3.3. Promiscuous sex, sometimes with the devil.
    - 3.3.4. Murder and cannibalism of innocent infants.
    - 3.3.5. Nocturnal worship of the devil as a deity. This worship was called either the “Witch’s Sabbath” or the “Black Sabbath”.
    - 3.3.6. Secret invisible societies that created fear, suspicion, and insecurity in the people.
4. How witches were identified, arrested, convicted and punished:
- 4.1. The basis for determining who was a witch was described in an early book called the Malleus Maleficarum, which is translated to mean “The hammer against witches”. The book was published in 1486 by two Dominican monks in Germany named Jacob Springer and Heinrich Kramer. The book described women as the most vulnerable to becoming witches. It described the source of all witchcraft as the carnal lust of women, which it said was insatiable. The book was second in popularity only to the Bible, and served as the equivalent of a bible for witch hunters for over 200 years. Witches were described in the book as being:
    - 4.1.1. Evil.
    - 4.1.2. Lecherous
    - 4.1.3. Vain
    - 4.1.4. Lustful
  - 4.2. The physical evidence required to prove that a person was a “witch” was very subjective and it was very difficult to prove with physical evidence that a person was a witch. Witch trials were more a matter of personal opinion and religious belief than a scientifically provable matter. Evidence that a person was a witch was often fabricated or imagined, and not real.
  - 4.3. When witches were arrested, they:
    - 4.3.1. Were stripped and searched.
    - 4.3.2. Prodded with needles to find the mark of the devil.
    - 4.3.3. Any suspicious wart, mole, or birth mark could be enough to condemn someone to death.
    - 4.3.4. Any questionable character reference from a political opponent could doom a person to death.
  - 4.4. Prerequisite for confession. Civil law required that a “witch” could not be prosecuted without first making a “voluntary” confession. Because few people would voluntarily confess to being “witches”, the government sanctioned and condoned an elaborate system of painful physical torture against the accused “witches” to compel them to give a “voluntary” confession. This was the very same type of persecution and torture that was instituted against heretics during the inquisitions in Spain and elsewhere in Europe. The following hideous instruments of torture were used to extract the “confession”:
    - 4.4.1. Thumb screws
    - 4.4.2. Leg screws
    - 4.4.3. Head clamps
    - 4.4.4. Iron maiden
  - 4.5. During the torture:
    - 4.5.1. The Malleus Maleficarum warned the torturer never to look a witch in the eye. This was a devious way to ensure that empathy or sympathy or compassion would not be employed towards those accused of witchcraft. This made the witch trials and those who could be accused of witchcraft very terrified and prejudiced the rights of those accused. The torture used to extract the coerced confessions was also used to implicate other innocent people, and this led to the uncontrollable spread of witch trials throughout France and Germany.
    - 4.5.2. Many people confessed to the crime of witchcraft who in fact were not witches, simply to avoid further suffering and torture. When the pain of torture is severe enough, people will confess to almost anything.
  - 4.6. The English devised a very prejudicial method for determining if someone was a witch called “swimming the witch”. A person accused of witchcraft was thrown in deep water. If she swam and survived then she was proven to be a witch. If she sank and drowned, then she was innocent. Either way, the suspect was doomed and had no chance of survival.

- 1 4.7. Witnesses and political opponents were allowed to show up at the trials and act out being “possessed” by Satan in 2 front of everyone in the courtroom.
- 3 4.8. Once a person confessed to being a “witch”, then they were usually burned at the stake in a very public way in 4 order to terrorize the rest of the population into “compliance” with the wishes of whoever made the accusation of
5 witchcraft to begin with. The reason for burning, was that it was believed that the witches evil spirit could only be 6 destroyed if she was burned into ashes.
- 7 5. Political motivation for witch trials explains why they spread:
- 8 5.1. The government abused the laws against witchcraft, especially in Europe, as follows:
- 9 5.1.1. Church clergy in Christian churches were accused because they were political opponents of the government.
- 10 5.1.2. Witch hunters received a bounty for each witch they found and prosecuted.
- 11 5.1.3. The property and lands of executed witches were confiscated by the government and used to enrich public 12 servants. This is a big reason that explains the promotion and spread of the witch hunts and witch trials by 13 the government.
- 14 5.2. The largest witch trial ever occurred in the town of Wurzburg in Germany, in which an overzealous magistrate tried 15 nearly the whole town on witchcraft charges! 600 people were condemned to death. 19 were priests and 41 were 16 children. In some towns in Germany, there were no women left after the inquisitors came through. Some scholars
17 estimate that between 60,000 and 300,000 people were executed as witches during the “Burning Years” in Europe.
- 18 5.3. The largest witch trial in America occurred in 1692 in Salem, Massachusetts, in which 200 people were burned at 19 the stake. Salem was a Puritan town torn by Indian and land wars and political controversy. The Salem witch trial 20 investigations began in the home of a Puritan minister, Rev. Samuel Paris. His daughters became allegedly 21 possessed after playing a household game with the family slave and they went into a frenzy, which spread
22 throughout the town. The Puritan minister then launched an investigation to find out who had instigated the 23 possession, leading to three women being tried on witchcraft based on the accusations of the possessed girls. All
24 three of the accused witches were outsiders and deviants who were easy targets for suspicion and retaliation.
25 Historians agree that the investigation into witches in this incident was used to conceal a political agenda. The 26 agenda involved a private dispute, and the witch allegation was used as a means to gain political advantage. After 27 this incident, the witch hysteria spread to 200 other accused witches in 24 other surrounding villages. 27 witches
28 were found guilty and 19 were hanged. The witch trials ended in America when the accusers began accusing
29 prominent people, such as the wife of the governor of Massachusetts. At that point, political leaders abruptly 30 stopped the trials because they were not only not benefiting from them, but began being hurt by them.
- 31 6. Why witch trials eventually ended and how these matters are handled today:
- 32 6.1. Two factors contributed to the end of the witch trials in America:
- 33 6.1.1. Scientific investigation and knowledge ultimately was what brought witch trials to an end. Science eliminated 34 the role of superstition in attributing harmful events to supernatural and magical powers.
- 35 6.1.2. The wife of the governor of Massachusetts was accused of witchcraft. Once government officials saw that 36 they could no longer benefit, but would be harmed by spreading the witch trials, they put them to an abrupt 37 end.
- 38 6.2. Today, people who would have been accused as witches in the 1600’s would now simply be identified by a mental 39 health expert as mentally ill. Unlike the early witch trials, in which the accusers and inquisitors were often religious 40 figures, today’s accusers usually work in the government and they use as their justification the testimony of a mental 41 health professional who:
- 42 6.2.1. Would be undermining his livelihood and his income by giving a person a clean mental bill of health.
- 43 6.2.2. Has no moral or religious training.
- 44 6.2.3. Has a conflict of interest because he is licensed by the same government that is doing the false accusing.

45 As we examined the above list of characteristics that describe witchcraft, some striking similarities became obvious between 46 the way the government treated “witches” back then and the way the same government treats “tax freedom advocates” of 47 today. Below is a table summarizing the many similarities between the two, organized in the same sequence as the above
48 list:

The book is deliberately deceptive because it does not reveal the most important aspects about the legal basis for federal taxation as documented in this book. "Tax protesters" described in the book as vain, contemptible, ignorant, and impulsive.                     |

| 4.2 | Physical evidence required to prove guilt | A confession by the accused, imagined events by persons who were haunted by accused witch, subjective personal opinions, warts and moles, testimony of clergy, very biased questioning techniques.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | 1099 and W-2 forms that are not signed by the reporters and are therefore "hearsay" evidence that is inadmissible. | 4.3 | Method of arrest and confinement          | Stripped, searched, prodded with needles. Physically tortured until confessed.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | Stripped, searched, prodded with needles. Financially tortured by having all assets seized and being forced into financial slavery to a legal professional to represent them. While in federal prison, not able to do own legal research and defense because deprived of proper resources, computers, and legal references. High legal fees act as punishment, torture, and coercion against accused to settle quickly and falsely admit guilt to end the financial bleeding.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| 4.4 | Prerequisite for conviction               | A confession from the accused "witch", often extracted under severe physical torture. Even though testimony is coerced, judges still prejudicially admitted it anyway and thereby violated the due process rights of the accused.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | Proving that tax crimes committed "willfully" by accused, meaning they were deliberate, defiant acts of disobedience to a known "lawful" duty. Willfulness is proven prejudicially and unfairly by using inadmissible evidence such as: 1. IRS publications which the IRS is not held responsible for the accuracy of; 2. Judicial opinions from courts outside the jurisdiction of the accused; 3. Correspondence and advice from the IRS which the government readily admits it cannot and should not be held accountable for the accuracy of; 4. Advice from government licensed "experts" with a severe conflict of interest such as attorneys, mental health professionals, etc.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| 4.5 | Method and result of the torture          | Physical torture conducted using hideous devices. Many accused died while imprisoned and before trial. Brutality and no compassion were shown during physical torture. Witches were dehumanized and torturers would not look witches in the eye. Many accused would make a false confession simply to end the torture. Prisoners could also not leave the prison until they reimbursed the state for the cost of holding them there, which is a double punishment. | Accused is financially tortured by being forced to hire an attorney and pay more than $300 per hour for services that he would not need if the prison provided or allowed computers, internet research, and an extensive law library. Prisoners do not have and are not allowed same legal research tools as attorneys and so are compelled to hire attorney. Once attorney is hired, accused loses right to challenge jurisdiction and becomes "ward of the state", and this prejudices his case. While in prison, employer of accused usually terminates him, bills mount up, and result is that house is confiscated by banks and all equity is lost. Accused is slandered and has a hard time finding future work because of false charges of "willful failure to file" and "tax evasion" by government. Credit rating is destroyed, making it difficult to buy home or obtain credit in the future. Most torture is therefore financial, but it is still torture and done unjustly, because people who don't pay money that no law requires them to pay are not a threat to society and do not need to be imprisoned. In fact, federal jailhouses have become the equivalent of "debtors prisons" for fraudulently created tax debts. "Debtors prisons", including those for tax debts, were outlawed in 1868 by the passage of the Thirteenth Amendment, which outlawed not only slavery but all such involuntary servitude. Yet, the U.S. government STILL allows these debtor's prisons to continue. |

| 4.6 | Prejudicial methods for determining guilt | "Swimming the witch". Accused witches were thrown in deep water and if they survived, they were guilty, but if they drowned, they were innocent.                          | Judges refusing to admit any of the evidence of the accused during preliminary motions in limine before trial while admitting all the government's evidence. This leaves the accused essentially defenseless and a prejudiced attorney whose livelihood will be destroyed by having his license pulled if he objects to or exposes the tactics of the judge in front of the jury.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| 4.7 | Violations of due process at trial        | Witnesses and political opponents of the accused were allowed to show up at witch trial and act out being possessed in front of everyone, in order to prejudice the case. | Government parades its own prejudiced "experts" in front of the jury and builds its case not on what the law says, but primarily on the subjective opinions of "experts" who nothing but slanders cleverly disguised as credentialed scientists or specialists. Like the judge himself, all these experts have a conflict of interest because they are usually licensed by the government and will lose their license if they turn on the government, or they are "taxpayers" and they know the IRS will turn on them if they turn on the government. The trial then simply devolves more into a mud-slinging political campaign and the judge and the prosecutor work as a tag team to convict the accused because both of them benefit financially from doing so. If the judge doesn't help the prosecutor get the conviction, then he will end up on the IRS' hit list.                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| 4.8 | Political propaganda following the trial  | Witches executed by burning or hanging in a very public way. This terrorizes all present to avoid being accused themselves.                                               | IRS and DOJ have a "Press Releases" section where they slander those convicted. Newspapers are called up and results are published to make sure public is warned that they better not buck the Gestapo. The news stories are often deliberately vague so that they look like they apply to everyone instead of the very small subset of people who are actually affected. Sometimes, even the judges will participate in this grandstanding and political propaganda by the way they write their rulings, which are often nothing but rubber-stamped versions of the proposed orders written by the Department of Injustice prosecutor himself. They do this to increase their chances of a promotion or new political appointment to a higher court by winning the favor of the Executive branch in "bringing home the stolen loot". Public is therefore terrorized and coerced into compliance with laws that they are not even subject to, in order to spread the federal slavery and expand the power and control of politicians and judges over the general populace. |

| 5.1      | Witch trials used to punish political targets and dissidents | Religious factions and rivalry within small rural villages lead to the witch hunts, and they were directed at political targets. Accusers were usually disadvantaged parties in a dispute who wanted upper hand. Government capitalized on these rivalries by plundering the estates of the accused witches. When specific government officials were accused as witches and they found out they could no longer remain neutral in the dispute and could no longer benefit or avoid being harmed, the trials abruptly ended. | Political factions and rivalries between "socialists" (Democrats) and "capitalists" (Republicans and independents) are exploited by the government during tax trials as a way to encourage convictions. Tax trials are turned into a type of class warfare between the "haves" (rich) and the "have nots" (poor). Jealousy, greed, ignorance, fear, and envy are the main tool the government uses to motivate juries into convictions. Since there is no risk for the government participants and judges protect and shield IRS employees from the consequences of their unlawful behavior, then the abuses continue. This is called the "judicial conspiracy to protect the income tax" and it is described later in section 6.9 and following. |
| 5.2      | Largest trials                                               | Occurred in rural areas where political factions and rivalries existed. Witch laws were used to settle political scores. Nepotism between the judges and the town marshal in the case of the Salem trials contributed to the spread of the witch hunts. The Salem marshal plundered the estates of the accused witches.                                                                                                                                                                                                     | Largest tax trials occur around tax time on April 15 and are used as a means to propagandize and scare Americans into paying extortion and bribery money to the government that no law requires. Big cities are most prevalent places for the convictions, because this is where the following types of dysfunctional types of citizens and government sheep congregate:1. Socialists and government dependents on Social Security and Medicare;2. People educated in public schools by the government, who are dysfunctional citizens, and who trust government too much.                                                                                                                                                                |

| 6.1      | Cause of the end of trials                                   | Scientific discoveries ended the role of superstition and the mass hysteria that the superstition caused. Also, when high officials in the government began to be implicated and risked conviction, the government quickly ended the trials.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Still ongoing, primarily because the same kind of ignorance and superstition about law and legal process exists as that which existed about supernatural events in the 1600's.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
| 6.2      | How witches are identified then and now                      | Back then, subjective opinions and superstition, strong religious beliefs, and political revenge motivated identification of "witches". Since the field of psychology had not yet evolved, psychological disorders could not be attributed as the cause of the abnormal behavior that initiated the investigations.                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Today, atheistic and biased psychological "experts" are used as pawns by the government to slander the accused. Juries are deceived into believing that freedom advocates are irresponsible (won't pay their "fair share"), deviant, mentally unstable, anti-social, and disrespectful of all authority. They are also made to appear as though they are a threat to the prevailing social order and the personal financial benefits of the jurists. Who wouldn't vote against an accused that threatened the social security check of a jurist?                                                                                                                                                                                                  |

1 Isn't it fascinating just how many similarities there are between the trial of a modern-day freedom advocate and the witch
 2 trials in the 1600's? The only thing new is the history that you do not know. There is nothing new under the sun. This
 3 section, we believe, provides a compelling demonstration that in fact:

- 4 1. The Internal Revenue Code is a government-sponsored religion whose main purpose is to promote socialism, humanism,
 5 and the theft of the sovereignty of the individual and the transfer of that sovereignty to the government and the legal 6 profession.
- 7 2. Modern day tax trials are nothing but "religious inquisitions".
- 8 3. The government wins in modern day tax trials by using the same prejudicial techniques as witch hunters used against 9 witches: Exploiting the ignorance, fear, and superstition of the general public about law and legal process.
- 10 4. Confessions are still obtained under duress the same way they were with the witch trials, but instead of the duress and 11 torture being physical, it is now primarily financial. The results, however, are the same: A confession or "compliance"
 12 by the accused results primarily as a way to stop the torture, rather than because they actually committed any kind of 13 crime.

5. The motivation for the witch hunts, insofar as the government is concerned, was the same as the motivation for modern day tax trials: Greed and covetousness. When the government executed a witch, they confiscated all their property and enriched themselves. When the government wins a tax trial, they enrich themselves and rape and pillage the assets of the accused and slander and destroy the credit rating of the accused.
6. Like the witch trials of the 1600's, the only thing that will end the injustice is:
  - 6.1. Public education about law in the schools, so that the scientific method and due process may return to the federal courtroom and ignorance, superstition, and fear may no longer be exploited by the government to convict the accused.
  - 6.2. The financial incentives and rewards for the government must be removed from the process, so that judges will no longer act essentially as a partner to the prosecutors. Judges must be recused who are either "taxpayers" or who will receive benefits from illegal enforcement of the Internal Revenue Code. Judges pay must derive exclusively from lawful constitutional activities, which are exclusively taxes on imports, excises.
  - 6.3. Due process must return to the courtroom, meaning that ambiguity of the Internal Revenue Code must be eliminated and they must be considerably simplified, so that "experts" are no longer required and so that the general public can easily discern what they mean. This will eliminate the role of ignorance, superstition, and fear in the courtroom that lead to the kind of hysteria present during the witch trials.

To help underscore and support assertions made in this section, consider the prosecution of Dr. Phil Roberts, which we will cover later in section 6.11.1. We provide excerpts from the transcript of his trial for tax evasion in that section. The federal judge kept telling the counsel of the defendant that he couldn't talk about "the law" in the courtroom during the trial with the jury present. As a matter of fact, he threatened the counsel with disbarment if he continued to insist on quoting the law! By doing so, the judge was accomplishing the following:

1. Preventing the jury from learning that the Internal Revenue Code is not "law".
2. Encouraging superstition, bias, and prejudice on the part of the jury. Absent an objective standard such as enacted positive law, the judge is ensuring that the jury reaches a "political" rather than a "legal" verdict. This makes those convicted of tax crimes into "political prisoners" rather than "criminals".
3. Preventing enforcement of the Constitution, which is law and a contract, by the jury and against the government, in reaching a verdict. Indirectly, this is a violation of the judge's oath of office to support and defend the Constitution, and amounts to Treason. You can't in good faith uphold that which you refuse to discuss.
4. Ensuring that the result of the trial would be evil and unjust. The bible says that when "law" is removed from public life, the result will be "abominable":

*"One who turns his ear from hearing the law, even his prayer is an abomination."
[Prov. 28:9, Bible, NKJV]*

This is only the tip of the iceberg of courtroom corruption, folks. In 2004, we also visited a federal district courthouse in San Diego and noted that it had an extensive law library. We walked into the law library as a private citizen to see if we could read the law for ourselves in the books there while serving as a jurist. Remember, this is a PUBLIC building that is PUBLIC, not private property, which any citizen should have access to provided he does not take it or misuse it or interfere with use by others. There was NO ONE in the law library except the clerk. We were intercepted at the door by an inquisitive and nervous clerk, who asked us why we were there. We said we were serving on jury duty and that we wanted to read what the law says for ourselves rather than trust the biased judge or the attorneys. Here is what she the clerk told us, and what she said completely stunned us:

1. Federal jurists are NOT allowed to read the law while serving as a jurist.
2. Federal jurists are NOT allowed to enter the courthouse law library while serving as jurists. The clerk running the law library is under strict orders from the chief justice NOT to allow jurists into the courthouse law library. When we asked her why that was, she could not explain the reasoning.
3. Jurists who read the law while serving can be impeached from serving on the jury.

The above statements by the clerk of the district court law library, friends, and the orders from the Chief Justice that lead her to say what she said to us, are not only Treason punishable by death under 18 U.S.C. §2381, but amount to jury tampering in violation 18 U.S.C. §§1503 and 1504. Law is the solemn expression of the will of the "sovereign" within any system of government.

"Law. . . That which is laid down, ordained, or established. A rule or method according to which phenomenon or actions co-exist or follow each other. Law, in its generic sense, is a body of rules of action or conduct"

prescribed by controlling authority, and having binding legal force. United States Fidelity and Guaranty Co. v. Guenther, 281 U.S. 34, 50 S.Ct. 165, 74 L.Ed. 683. That which must be obeyed and followed by citizens subject to sanctions or legal consequences is a law. Law is a solemn expression of the will of the supreme power of the State. Calif. Civil Code, §22.”
[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 884]

The “State” above is “We the People”, and does not include our public servants at all. In our system of government, the “sovereign” is the People both individually and collectively, and is NOT anyone serving in government. Any federal judge who prevents law from being discussed in a courtroom is refusing to recognize the sovereignty of the People who ordained that law, and is interfering with the definition and protection of their sovereign will in courts of justice. All law is a “compact” or a “contract” between the sovereign People and their servants in government. Refusing to discuss tax laws in a court trial is every bit as ludicrous as trying to enforce a contract without the contract. In effect, federal judges who refuse to discuss law in the courtroom are interfering with the right to contract of the sovereign “People”, because law is a “compact” or “contract” between us as Sovereigns and our public servants. Here is what the Supreme Court said about the authority of the government to impair the obligation of such contracts, and in particular the main contract between the sovereign People and their government servants called the Constitution:

“Independent of these views, there are many considerations which lead to the conclusion that the power to impair contracts [either the Constitution or the Holy Bible], by direct action to that end, does not exist with the general [federal] government. In the first place, one of the objects of the Constitution, expressed in its preamble, was the establishment of justice, and what that meant in its relations to contracts is not left, as was justly said by the late Chief Justice, in Hepburn v. Griswold, to inference or conjecture. As he observes, at the time the Constitution was undergoing discussion in the convention, the Congress of the Confederation was engaged in framing the ordinance for the government of the Northwestern Territory, in which certain articles of compact were established between the people of the original States and the people of the Territory, for the purpose, as expressed in the instrument, of extending the fundamental principles of civil and religious liberty, upon which the States, their laws and constitutions, were erected. By that ordinance it was declared, that, in the just preservation of rights and property, 'no law ought ever to be made, or have force in the said Territory, that shall, in any manner, interfere with or affect private contracts or engagements bona fide and without fraud previously formed.' The same provision, adds the Chief Justice, found more condensed expression in the prohibition upon the States [in Article 1, Section 10 of the Constitution] against impairing the obligation of contracts, which has ever been recognized as an efficient safeguard against injustice; and though the prohibition is not applied in terms to the government of the United States, he expressed the opinion, speaking for himself and the majority of the court at the time, that it was clear 'that those who framed and those who adopted the Constitution intended that the spirit of this prohibition should pervade the entire body of legislation, and that the justice which the Constitution was ordained to establish was not thought by them to be compatible with legislation [for judicial precedent] of an opposite tendency.’ 8 Wall. 623. [99 U.S. 700, 765] Similar views are found expressed in the opinions of other judges of this court.”
[Sinking Fund Cases, 99 U.S. 700 (1878)]

Now some people might respond to these observations by saying that since the Internal Revenue Code is not “positive law”, then the judge is actually preventing a biased trial by keeping discussions of it out of the courtroom. This is partially true, but if the judge either won't allow the Internal Revenue Code to be identified as not being “law”, or won't allow other types of real, positive law, such as the Constitution, to be discussed in the courtroom, then he is impairing the right to contract of the sovereign “People” who delegated authority to their government using that positive law. The only basis for interfering with discussing the Constitution as “law” in a federal courtroom is that:

1. Neither party to the suit inhabits areas in a state of the Union where the Constitution applies....AND
2. The crime occurred within exclusive federal jurisdiction within a territory or possession of the federal government.

In nearly all tax trials, the above false presumptions are invisibly made by both the U.S. attorney prosecutor and the judge. It is made either because of ignorance or because of deliberate malice on the part of the judge. Either way, the resulting tax trial devolves into a witch hunt that is a completely political proceeding that is not founded in any way upon positive law. Don't believe us? Well then watch the movie on our website entitled “How to Keep 100% of Your Earnings”, at:

In the above movie, a jurist at a state income tax trial testifies that the judge manipulated the case against a person accused of willful failure to file by preventing the jurists from seeing the law he was accused of violating. She says on tape that this was a tacit admission by the judge that there is no law requiring anyone to pay income tax!

1 Therefore, any judge, whether state or federal, who interferes with discussing the Constitution at a federal tax trial can only
2 justify such action based on a usually false presumption that the accused is a statutory "citizen" under 8 U.S.C. §1401 who
3 does not inhabit the states of the Union and therefore is not a party to the Federal Constitution. It is up to you to understand
4 and challenge all the false presumptions that your federal persecutors are going to make and to challenge them as early on as
5 possible and get them into your administrative record in all your correspondence. Furthermore, also understand that federal
6 tax trials are unique and different from other types of federal trials. We have sat through several other types of trials in federal
7 district court and found through personal observation that tax trials are the only types of trials where the judges are so
8 tenacious in keeping the discussion of law out of the courtroom. It's perfectly OK to discuss law or the Constitution in most
9 other types of trials, but not in tax trials. As a matter of fact, we sat next to a U.S. attorney who handled criminal law on an
10 airplane flight. We asked them if it was OK to discuss criminal law in the courtroom, and she said "Of course. I've never 11 heard of a trial that operated any other way". She obviously hadn't sat through any tax trials! Do you smell a rat here? WE 12 DO!

13 The only thing left when positive law is completely removed from tax trials are the following unreliable and Satanic forces:

- 14 1. Ignorance
- 15 2. Prejudice
- 16 3. Conflict of interest
- 17 4. Bias on the part of the judge
- 18 5. The opinions of biased "experts" who are subject to IRS and judicial extortion.

19 On that last item above, we must consider what the Bible says about the use of "experts" in court:

20 "Preach the Word; be prepared in season and out of season; correct, rebuke and encourage—with great patience
21 and careful instruction. For the time will come when men [in the legal profession or the judiciary] will not put 22 up with sound [legal] doctrine [such as that found in this book]. Instead, to suit their own desires, they [our 23 covetous public dis-servants] will gather around them a great number of teachers [court-appointed "experts",
24 "licensed" government whores called attorneys and CPA's, and educators in government-run or subsidized
25 public schools and liberal universities] to say what their itching ears want to hear. They will turn their ears
26 away from the truth and turn aside to [government and legal-profession myths and fables]. But you [the chosen
27 of God and His servants must], keep your head in all situations, endure hardship, do the work of an evangelist,
28 discharge all the duties of your [God's] ministry."
29 [2 Tim. 4:2-5, Bible, NKJV]

30 Instead of ensuring justice, keeping law out of the courtroom and replacing it with subjective opinions of biased "experts"
31 who have a conflict of interest simply transforms the court into a unruly lynch mob of angry "tax consumers" and federal
32 benefit recipients ("taxpayers") who want to keep their tax bill down by inducting other tax slaves to join them and share the 33 burden of supporting the federal plantation. This is exactly the tactic, in fact, that was used against Jesus at his trial. A major
34 subject at Jesus' trial was his attitude about taxes, in fact:

35 And they [the angry democratic lynch mob of atheistic socialists] began to accuse Him [Jesus], saying, "We found
36 this fellow perverting the nation, and forbidding to pay taxes to Caesar, saying that He Himself is Christ, a King 37 [sovereign]."
38 [Luke 23:2, Bible, NKJV]

39 The priests, who were the political enemies of Jesus, fomented negative public opinion against Jesus and caused an angry
40 mob of atheists to bring Jesus before the courts and governor Pilate so that he could be tried for things that weren't even
41 crimes. These vindictive priests turned an exclusively religious ministry of Jesus into a political persecution by an angry
42 lynch mob in order to silence dissent and challenges to their power and authority. The persecution of Jesus literally was a
43 "witch hunt", and not a valid legal process. The goal of his persecutors was to strip Him of His sovereignty, dignity, and life.
44 For further information on this subject, see our article entitled "The Trial of Jesus" at the address below, where a real judge
45 analyzed how Jesus was treated:

46 <http://famguardian.org/Subjects/LawAndGovt/History/TrialOfJesus.htm>

47 What the Department of Justice has learned how to do in terrorizing and illegally persecuting tax honesty advocates is to 48 institutionalize the kind of tyranny, despotism, and violation of due process which Jesus experienced. They have made every 49 tax trial into a witch hunt that exactly replicates the one Jesus experienced. Tax honesty advocates want their sovereignty
50 and rights respected, while the government wants to destroy it and make them into federal serfs who are falsely "presumed"

1 to inhabit the federal plantation called the "United States" as "U.S. citizens". Remember: Jesus was a tax protester! See 2 section 1.10.1 earlier for evidence of this fact.

3 5.4.6.6 How to skip out of "government church worship services"

4 It ought to be clear by now that government is simply another type of church and religion. We call it a "civil religion" and
5 we have written an entire book to describe this religion:

Socialism: The New American Civil Religion, Form #05.016
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

6 Those who don't want to join the church simply change their domicile to be outside the state-sponsored church:

Why Domicile and Becoming a "Taxpayer" Require Your Consent, Form #05.002
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

7 Those who are not part of the church but who appear before the priests of the church, who are the judges in the government's 8 courts, are presumed to consent to their jurisdiction if they make an "appearance" before a judge:

appearance. A coming into court as a party to a suit, either in person or by attorney, whether as plaintiff or defendant. The formal proceeding by which a defendant submits himself to the jurisdiction of the court. The voluntary submission to a court's jurisdiction.

In civil actions the parties do not normally actually appear in person, but rather through their attorneys (who enter their appearance by filing written pleadings, or a formal written entry of appearance). Also, at many stages of criminal proceedings, particularly involving minor offenses, the defendant's attorney appears on his behalf. See e.g., Fed.R.Crim.P. 43.

*An appearance may be either general or special; the former is a simple and unqualified or unrestricted submission to the jurisdiction of the court, the latter is a submission to the jurisdiction for some specific purpose only, not for all the purposes of the suit. A special appearance is for the purpose of testing or objecting to the sufficiency of service or the jurisdiction of the court over defendant without submitting to such jurisdiction; a general appearance is made where the defendant waives defects of service and submits to the jurisdiction of court. Insurance Co. of North America v. Kunin, 175 Neb. 260, 121 N.W.2d. 372, 375, 376.
[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 97]*

23 If you are compelled to appear before a priest of the state-sponsored church, all you have to do is make a "special visitation"
24 rather than an "appearance". This deprives the priest of your "worship and obedience". One of our readers sent us information
25 about a very interesting technique he uses when he gets involuntarily invited to a government "worship service" in a federal 26 church called "District Court". The intent of the interchange is to emphasize that we don't consent and therefore are not 27 subject to the jurisdiction of the court. We repeat it below for your edification and education.

What I'm talking about is actually a legal strategy that we ALL should be employing in the Courts, but very few of us do. It all has to do with CONTRACT law. I've actually known about this for a long time, but just recently did an in-depth study.

As I said, it's all built around contracts. EVERY State, and EVERY City in the United States of America is a for-profit corporation. It is the goal of every for-profit corporation to conduct "business" in order to obtain profits. It is impossible for any "business" to be conducted without a contract of some type in place. ALL businesses (contracts) are governed by the Uniform Commercial Code. For example, when you go to the grocery store, you offer to discharge your debt for the items you select by offering to give the clerk a certain amount of Federal Reserve Notes. This is a verbal contract which is consummated by both of your actions. You have made an exchange of equal value.

The same type of thing applies in the Courts. Courts, whether "of record" (state), or not "of record" (municipal/city), are all corporations, doing business for a profit. The only way a corporation can force you to do business with them is IF THEY HAVE YOU UNDER CONTRACT. A judge will always ask you your name, and if you understand the charges. If you give a name, and indicate that you understand the charges, you have entered into a contract to do business with the Court, and the Court will always protect its government corporations. The judge is nothing more than a third party debt collector corporate employee. If you do not enter into a contract to do business with the Court, then the Court cannot proceed against you, as it is not a party. Below is a sample transcript of how one might proceed to deny jurisdiction to the Courts using this approach.

1 J = Judge

2 PA = Prosecuting Attorney

3 C = Citizen

4 5.4.7 No Taxation Without Consent<sup>76</sup>

5 Once you give it a little thought, one should conclude that a self-governing people must consent to their own taxes. After all,
6 what do conquered people do? They pay tribute to their conquerors right? Self-governing people don't pay tribute, as they
7 consent to their own taxation.

8 Today in America, what tax is it that takes the largest bite out of the typical American's wallet? What tax is it that is the most 9 invasive? What tax is it that incarcerates more Americans than any other tax? It is the income tax! Did we consent to this tax,
10 or are we paying tribute as conquered people do?

11 The answer to this question is both yes and no. Yes, we consented to an indirect income tax on the net income from business
12 and on the net income from investment. (However, this assumes that the 16th Amendment was properly and legally ratified, 13 which is doubtful.) The amount of such income is determined by subtracting from the gross revenue all business expenses,
14 depreciation, taxes, interest payments, etc., and then severing that income from the underlying asset that produced the income
15 in the first place. Producing taxable net income is kind of like producing wine. There is an intricate process one must go
16 through to get the final result, and there are some good years and bad years.

17 But the answer to the "consent question" is also no. The American People never consented to a direct tax on our wages and 18 salaries. Call it an income tax, call it a capitation tax, call it whatever you want to call it, the American People never consented
19 to a direct tax exempted from the apportionment rule required by the Constitution for direct taxes.

20 In order to understand the dynamics of this question, we must realize that some income taxes are direct, while other income
21 taxes are indirect. The issue is actually quite simple. A direct tax is direct. The tax falls directly on the person or the thing
22 taxed. The one who is obligated to pay such a tax is not in a position to shift it to another.

23 On the contrary, an indirect tax may either be avoided or shifted to another. A trucking company shifts the excise tax on fuel
24 to the customer who ships his product by way of the trucking company. The excise tax on cigarettes is avoided by choosing
25 not to smoke. How is the wage earner going to shift the taxes deducted out of his paycheck to another? He can't. Therefore,
26 the tax imposed directly by the government on the wage earner is a direct tax.

27 The idea that a free people would be taxed without their consent defies all logic. It simply can't be true. From the beginning
28 of recorded history people have paid taxes without their consent to their conquering masters. Today Americans are paying an 29 income tax on their wages and salaries to which they never consented to. The saddest part about this state of affairs is that 30 the American people are unaware of this fact. Thomas Jefferson was right when he said:

31 "If a nation expects to be ignorant and free... it expects what never was and never will be."

32 The remainder of this article is actually a segment out of a Petition for Writ of Certiorari filed with the Supreme Court on 33 June 21, 2002. This section covers pages 12 thru 17 of the Petition. The case is Philip Lewis Hart v. Commissioner of Internal 34 Revenue. As of this date, the case has not been given a docket number. The Petition was limited to 30 pages, which is 35 extremely short when considering that the Internal Revenue Code and supporting regulations are approximately some 20,000
36 pages. One cannot do justice to such a complex subject in only 30 pages. The following section is excerpted from the Petition:

37 No tax may be imposed on the American People without their consent.

38 In the Declaration of Independence, one of the Grievances against King George III listed by the American Colonists was,
39 'For imposing taxes on us without our consent.' The Declaration of Independence further states, "That to secure these rights, 40 governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed."

<sup>76</sup> Extract from an article by the same name written by Phil Hart, whose website is at:

1 This Court has previously ruled that those Grievances listed in the Declaration of Independence provide a foundation as to
2 the purpose of the American government and also the boundaries as to its power. The Declaration of Independence is
3 America's Great Charter; the Constitution is America's by-laws. Government has only that power for which the People have 4 consented to delegate to it.

5 The idea that taxes may not be levied unless the People consent to them dates back 800 years to another great charter, that of 6 the Magna Carta of 1215. King John, a disorganized ruler, had just suffered an expensive and humiliating defeat by losing
7 Normandy to the French. He desperately needed money and was pressing all in his kingdom with higher taxes.

8 "Magna Carta was the culmination of a protest against the arbitrary rule of King John, who was using
9 governmental powers which had been established by the great builders of the English nation, William the 10 Conqueror, Henry I, and Henry II, for selfish and tyrannical purposes. In general these abuses took the pattern
11 of increasing customary feudal obligations and decreasing established feudal rights and privileges. The Barons
12 were forced to pay higher taxes above the usual rate... The merchants of London were burdened with heavy
13 taxes... In addition, John's administration was disorganized and inefficient, and he employed unscrupulous 14 foreign adventurers as royal officers and as sheriffs and bailiffs in every county of the land."
16 1991)]

17 The requirement that taxes cannot be levied unless the people consent to them appears in Magna Carta at chapters 12 and 14.
18 But Magna Carta itself was a result of not only abusive and unjust taxation, but also taxation that was in violation of the 19 Charter of Liberties of King Henry I. Henry I became king in 1100 A.D. when his brother, King William, was removed from 20 the throne because of "unjust exactions."

21 Unfortunately it is the habit of government to exceed its lawful boundaries and by 1297 the administration of Edward I was 22 levying taxes in violation of Magna Carta. The abuses were serious. In August of 1297, while the barons were formally
23 presenting their grievances to the king, they were also arming and preparing for revolution. Revolution was avoided when 24 on November 5, 1297, King Edward signed Confirmatio Cartarum.

25 "The events leading up to Confirmatio Cartarum, like those which led up to Magna Carta, show that the king's 26 violation of established laws oppressed the community as a whole and caused the barons and the clergy to unite
27 in demanding the observance of the law. As was also true of Magna Carta, this oppression often took the form of 28 illegal and unreasonable taxation.

29 "Confirmatio Cartarum has had two principal effects upon the development of the liberties of the citizen. First it
30 established Parliament as a truly representative organ of government by providing in Section 6 that the taxes
31 must be raised by the common assent of the realm. The imposition of direct taxes without the consent of the 32 people's representatives in Parliament was now against the very letter of the law."
33 [Perry; Cooper, supra at 24-6]

34 The principle that government must have the consent of the People before levying any tax showed up on the American 35 continent in 1618 with the Ordinances for Virginia.

36 "The governor should not be allowed to levy taxes on the colony without the consent of the assembly."
37 [Perry, Cooper, supra at 50.]

38 The Petition of Right of 1628 was yet another attempt by the English people to compel the administration of Charles I to obey
39 the law. Again, one of the abuses was taxation without the consent of the governed. At Section X the document states, "That 40 no man hereafter be compelled to make or yield any gift, loan, benevolence, tax or such-like charge, without common consent
41 by act of Parliament."

42 The Charter of Massachusetts Bay of 1629 provided for taxation only when consented to by the assembly of freemen. So did
43 the Charter of Maryland of 1632. Other colonies declared that the colonists had all the rights of Englishmen and that Magna
44 Carta and all subsequent documents that secured those rights applied to the freemen of the colonies including the Bill of 45 Rights of 1689.

46 The Bill of Rights of 1689 was the culmination of a revolution that took place in England which overthrew James II. Again,
47 one of the major abuses of the absolute rule of James II was illegal and abusive taxation. The preamble and forth clause of 48 the 1689 Bill of Rights states,

1                   “WHEREAS the late King James the Second, by the assistance of divers, evil counselors, judges, and ministers
2 employed by him, did endeavor to subvert and extirpate the protestant religion, and the laws and liberties of this
3 kingdom... 4. By levying money for and to the use of the crown, by pretence of prerogative, for other time, and in 4 other manner, than the same was granted by parliament.”
5 [Bill of Rights of 1689]

6 The remedy provided by the Bill of Rights of 1689 was that taxes could not be levied except:

7                   “4. That levying money for or to the use of the crown, by pretence or prerogative, without the grant of parliament,
8 for longer time, on in other manner than the same is or shall be granted, is illegal.”

9 Back on the American continent was the Resolutions of the Stamp Act Congress of 1765. American Colonists objected to the 10 Stamp Act as it imposed taxes on them without their consent. “John Adams denounced the Stamp Act as a violation of Magna 11 Carta.” Perry; Cooper, supra at 10.

12 Various colonial assemblies passed resolutions condemning the Stamp Act. The Virginia House of Burgesses was the first.
13 Four of seven resolutions offered by Patrick Henry were passed including number 1 and number 3 below:

14                   “(1) That the first settlers of Virginia brought with them all the liberties, privileges, franchises, and immunities
15 of British subjects; (3) that under the British constitution taxes could be levied only by the people or their 16 representatives.”

17 Most of the other colonies passed varying degrees of the Henry resolutions. They also called for a congress of representatives
18 to meet in New York and condemn the Stamp Act. Nine of the colonies sent representatives to the congress.

19                   “There was little difference of opinion as to the fundamental questions involved... Resolutions 2 thru 8 expressed
20 the constitutional theory of the colonists that all taxation... without the consent of the people's representatives
21 was illegal... 'No nation ought to be taxed against its own consent. England had passed through many a year of 22 civil war in defence of the proposition'”
23 [Perry; Cooper, supra at 266-7]

24 The actual text of the Resolutions of the Stamp Act Congress of October 19, 1765 stated:

25                   “2d. That his majesty's liege subjects in these colonies are entitled to all the inherent rights and privileges of his 26 natural born subjects within the kingdom of Great Britain,

27                   “3d. That it is inseparably essential to the freedom of a people, and the undoubted rights of Englishmen, that no
28 taxes should be imposed on them, but with their own consent, given personally, or by their representatives.”

29 Likewise the Declaration and Resolves of the First Continental Congress of 1774 contained similar language about the 30 necessity of consent for taxation. Additionally, Sir William Blackstone wrote in his Commentaries on the Laws of England,

31                   “No subject of England can be constrained to pay any aids or taxes, even for the defence of the realm or the 32 support of government, but such as are imposed by his own consent, or that of his representatives in parliament...
33 And as this fundamental law had been shamefully evaded under many succeeding princes, by compulsive loans,
34 and benevolences extorted without a real and voluntary consent, it was made an article in the petition of right.”
35 [Blackstone's Commentaries on the Laws of England, Book I, p. 140 (1st edition, 1765)]

36 This principle was memorialized in the Declaration of Independence. This is one of the great principles upon which the entire 37 system of self-government rests: The consent of the governed must be given to the taxes they must pay. When this principle
38 is not in place, self-government does not exist. Tyranny exists in its place.

39 The Commissioner claims that his authority to collect the tax in the instant case comes from the Sixteenth Amendment. As 40 part of the Constitution, the Sixteenth Amendment must be interpreted using the everyday language and common dictionaries
41 of the time. There are no “words of art” or “terms of art” in the Constitution, as it is We the People who determine what the 42 Constitution means or doesn't mean. We the People don't speak using “words of art.” We the People just use everyday
43 language. Therefore the consent for the scope of the meaning of the Sixteenth Amendment is vested in the People, and that 44 meaning will be plain for anyone to see once the evidence has been examined.

45 An exhaustive review of the Congressional Record during the time of the debates on the Sixteenth Amendment reveals no
46 credible evidence that the members of Congress were contemplating a direct tax on the wages and salaries of the American

1 People. An exhaustive review of other congressional documents during the ratification process yields no evidence that
2 Congress contemplated using the Sixteenth Amendment as a vehicle to place an unapportioned direct tax on the wages and 3 salaries of the American People.

4 An exhaustive review of law journal articles of the time produced no articles that indicated Congress or the American People
5 were contemplating a nonapportioned direct tax on the wages and salaries of the American People. No evidence was found
6 in the journals on political economy and economics. Nor was any such evidence discovered in an exhaustive search of New
7 York Times articles, which are all cataloged in yearbooks as the New York Times is a New York Times articles, which are
8 all cataloged in yearbooks as the New York Times is a "newspaper of record."

9 As there is no evidence that can be found anywhere indicating that the American People sought to place an unapportioned
10 direct tax on their wages and salaries, we can conclude that the American People never consented to the very tax that the 11 Commissioner is attempting to collect in the instant case [Hart v. Commissioner].

12 The entire weight of evidence as to the purpose of the Sixteenth Amendment indicates that its objective was to place income
13 taxes on net income from unincorporated business and investment into the classification of indirect taxes. Pollock was 14 overturned by the 16th Amendment. No more and no less. The purpose of the Sixteenth Amendment was to shift the tax
15 burden off of consumption and onto incomes from the accumulated wealth of the country such as to bring tax relief to wage
16 earners.

17 Since the signing of Magna Carta 800 years ago, it has been a well-established principle of self-government among the 18 English speaking people that the people must consent to their taxes. According to author R.L. Perry in Sources of Our 19 Liberties:

20 "The liberties of the American citizen depend upon the existence of established and known rules of law limiting
21 the authority and discretion of men wielding the power of government. Magna Carta announced the rule of law;
22 this was its great contribution. It is this characteristic which has provided throughout the years the foundation
23 on which has come to rest the entire structure of Anglo-American constitutional liberties." supra at 1.

24 That Magna Carta and all subsequent documents that secured our liberties are relevant to the American Citizen today is borne
25 out by the fact that the single monument on the meadow of Runnymede, between Windsor and Staines, commemorating
26 Magna Carta was designed, paid for and erected by the American Bar Association. The American People never consented
27 to this unapportioned direct tax on their wages and salaries. Therefore the Commissioner is wholly without any delegated 28 authority whatsoever to collect such a tax within the several union states.

29 5.4.8 Why "domicile" and becoming a "taxpayer" require your consent<sup>77</sup>

30 5.4.8.1 Introduction

31 The purpose of establishing government is solely to provide "protection". Those who wish to be protected by a specific 32 government must expressly consent to be protected by choosing a domicile within the civil jurisdiction of that specific
33 government.

- 34 1. Those who have made such a choice and thereby become "customers" of the protection afforded by government are 35 called by any of the following names under the civil laws of the jurisdiction they have nominated to protect them:
  - 36 1.1. "citizens", if they were born somewhere within the country which the jurisdiction is a part.
  - 37 1.2. "residents" (aliens) if they were born within the country in which the jurisdiction is a part.
  - 38 1.3. "inhabitants", which encompasses both "citizens", and "residents" but excludes foreigners.
  - 39 1.4. "persons".
  - 40 1.5. "individuals".
- 41 2. Those who have not become "customers" or "protected persons" of a specific government are called by any of the 42 following names within the civil laws of the jurisdiction they have refused to nominate as their protector and may NOT 43 be called by any of the names in item 1 above:
  - 44 2.1. "nonresidents".
  - 45 2.2. "transient foreigners".

<sup>77</sup> Source: Why Domicile and Becoming a "Taxpayer" Require Your Consent, Form #05.002; <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>.

- 1 2.3. "stateless persons".
- 2 2.4. "in transitu".
- 3 2.5. "transient".
- 4 2.6. "sojourner".
- 5 2.7. "civilly dead".

6 In law, the process of choosing a domicile within the jurisdiction of a specific government is called "animus manendi". Latin
7 is used to describe the process because judges don't want you knowing that you can choose NOT to be protected by the civil
8 statutory law. That choice makes you a consenting party to the "civil contract", "social compact", and "private law" that
9 attaches to and therefore protects all "inhabitants" and things physically situated on or within that specific territory, venue,
10 and jurisdiction. In a sense then, your consent to a specific jurisdiction by your choice of domicile within that jurisdiction is 11 what creates the statutory "person", "individual", "citizen", "resident", or "inhabitant" which is the only proper subject of the 12 civil statutory laws enacted by that government. In other words, choosing a domicile within a specific jurisdiction causes an 13 implied waiver of sovereign immunity, because the courts admit that the term "person" does not refer to the "sovereign":

14 "Since in common usage, the term person does not include the sovereign, statutes not employing the phrase are 15 ordinarily construed to exclude it."
16 [United States v. Cooper Corporation, 312 U.S. 600 (1941)]

17 "Sovereignty itself is, of course, not subject to law for it is the author and source of law;"
18 [Yick Wo v. Hopkins, 118 U.S. 356 (1886)]

19 "There is no such thing as a power of inherent Sovereignty in the government of the United States. In this country
20 sovereignty resides in the People, and Congress can exercise no power which they have not, by their Constitution
21 entrusted to it: All else is withheld."
22 [Juilliard v. Greenman, 110 U.S. 421 (1884)]

23 Those who have become customers of government protection by choosing a civil domicile within a specific government then 24 owe a duty to pay for the support of the protection they demand. The method of paying for said protection is called "taxes".
25 In earlier times this kind of sponsorship was called "tribute".

26 "TRIBUTE. Tribute in the sense of an impost paid by one state to another, as a mark of subjugation, is a common
27 feature of international relationships in the biblical world. The tributary could be either a hostile state or an ally.
28 Like deportation, its purpose was to weaken a hostile state. Deportation aimed at depleting the man-power. The 29 aim of tribute was probably twofold: to impoverish the subjugated state and at the same time to increase the 30 conqueror's own revenues and to acquire commodities in short supply in his own country. As an instrument of 31 administration it was one of the simplest ever devised: the subjugated country could be made responsible for the 32 payment of a yearly tribute. Its non-arrival would be taken as a sign of rebellion, and an expedition would then 33 be sent to deal with the recalcitrant. This was probably the reason for the attack recorded in Gn. 14.
34 [New Bible Dictionary. Third Edition. Wood, D. R. W., Wood, D. R. W., & Marshall, I. H. 1996, c1982, c1962;
35 InterVarsity Press: Downers Grove]

36 Domicile is an EXTREMELY important subject to learn because it defines and circumscribes:

- 37 1. The boundary between what is legislatively "foreign" and legislatively "domestic" in relation to a specific 38 jurisdiction. Everyone domiciled OUTSIDE a specific jurisdiction is legislatively and statutorily "foreign" in relation 39 to that civil jurisdiction. Note that you can be DOMESTIC from a CONSTITUTIONAL perspective and yet ALSO be
40 FOREIGN from a legislative jurisdiction AT THE SAME TIME. This is true of the relationship of most Americans 41 with the national government.
- 42 2. The boundary between what is LEGAL speech and POLITICAL speech. For everyone not domiciled in a specific 43 jurisdiction, the civil law of that jurisdiction is POLITICAL and unenforceable. Since real constitutional courts cannot
44 entertain political questions, then they cannot act in a political capacity against nonresidents.

45 So let us begin our coverage of this MOST important subject.

46 5.4.8.2 Definition

47 Domicile is legally defined as follows. We also include the definition of "situs" to help clarify its meaning:

48 "domicile. A person's legal home. That place where a man has his true, fixed, and permanent home and
49 principal establishment, and to which whenever he is absent he has the intention of returning. Smith v. Smith,

1 206 Pa.Super. 310, 213 A.2d. 94. Generally, physical presence within a state and the intention to make it one's
 2 home are the requisites of establishing a "domicile" therein. The permanent residence of a person or the place
 3 to which he intends to return even though he may actually reside elsewhere. A person may have more than one
 4 residence but only one domicile. The legal domicile of a person is important since it, rather than the actual
 5 residence, often controls the jurisdiction of the taxing authorities and determines where a person may exercise
 6 the privilege of voting and other legal rights and privileges.
 7 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 485]

9 "Situs. Lat. Situation; location; e.g. location or place of crime or business. Site; position; the place where a
 10 thing is considered, for example, with reference to jurisdiction over it, or the right or power to tax it. It imports
 11 fixedness of location. Situs of property, for tax purposes, is determined by whether the taxing state has sufficient
 12 contact with the personal property sought to be taxed to justify in fairness the particular tax. Town of Cady v.
 13 Alexander Const. Co., 12 Wis.2d. 236, 107 N.W.2d. 267, 270."

14 Generally, personal property has its taxable "situs" in that state where owner of it is domiciled. Smith v. Lummus,
 15 149 Fla. 660, 6 So.2d. 625, 627, 628. Situs of a trust means place of performance of active duties of trustee.
 16 Campbell v. Albers, 313 Ill.App. 152, 39 N.E.2d. 672, 676.
 17 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1387]

18 Notice in the definition of "domicile" above the absence of the word "consent" and replacing it with the word "intent" to 19 disguise the true nature of what they are saying. Lawyers and politicians don't want you to know that they need your consent
 20 to make you into a "taxpayer" with a "domicile" within their jurisdiction, even though this is in fact the case. More on this 21 later.

22 An exhaustive academic treatise on the subject of domicile also candidly admits that there is no all-encompassing definition
 23 for "domicile".

24 §57. Difficulty of Defining Domicil.--

25 The difficulty, if not impossibility, of arriving at an entirely satisfactory definition of domicile has been
 26 frequently commented upon. Lord Alvanley, in Somerville v. Somerville, praised the wisdom of Bynkershoek in 27 not hazarding a definition; and Dr. Lushington, in Maltass v. Maltass, speaking of the various attempts of jurists
 28 in this direction, considered himself justified in the remarkable language of Hertius: "Verum in iis definiendis
 29 mirum est quam sudant doctores." Lord Chelmsford, speaking, as late as 1863, in the case of Moorhouse v. Lord, 30 says: "The difficulty of getting a satisfactory definition of domicil, which will meet every case, has often been 31 admitted, and every attempt to frame one has hitherto failed."

32 [Treatise on the Law of Domicil, §57, pp. 93-98; M.W. Jacobs, 1887; Little Brown and Company

34 The above admission is not surprising, given the fact that the main purpose for inventing the concept of domicile is to infer
 35 or imply consent of the subject to the civil law that has never expressly been given in writing and cannot be proven to
 36 exist. No government or judge is going to give a definition, because then people would use that definition to prove that they
 37 DON'T have a domicile and that would destroy the source of all the government's civil and taxing authority over the people
 38 who employ the definition to break the chains that bind them to their pagan tyrant rulers.

39 The concept of domicile we inherit primarily from the feudal Roman law system in which the king or emperor or lord claimed
 40 ownership over all territory entrusted to him or her by divine right. Everyone occupying said territory therefore became a
 41 "subject" of the king and owed him "allegiance" as compensation for the "privilege" or franchise associated with use of his
 42 property. That allegiance expressed itself as "tribute" paid to the king, which we know of today as "taxes". What were once
 43 "subjects" of the king in Great Britain and the Roman Empire are now called "citizens", and we fired the King when the 44 Declaration of Independence declared all men equal. At that point, everyone became equal and the sovereign transitioned
 45 from the former King of England to "We the People" as individuals. Consequently, we no longer have a landlord and the 46 government that serves us cannot therefore lawfully charge us "rent" for the use of the land or territory that we occupy if we 47 own it.

48 "The people of this State, as the successors of its former sovereign, are entitled to all the rights which formerly
 49 belonged to the King by his prerogative. Through the medium of their Legislature they may exercise all the

8 "The sovereignty of a state does not reside in the persons who fill the different departments of its government, but 9 in the People, from whom the government emanated; and they may change it at their discretion. Sovereignty, then 10 in this country, abides with the constituency, and not with the agent; and this remark is true, both in reference to 11 the federal and state government."

12 [Spooner v. McConnell, 22 F. 939 @ 943]

13 "In Europe, the Executive is almost synonymous with the Sovereign power of a State; and, generally, includes
14 legislative and judicial authority. When, therefore, writers speak of the sovereign, it is not necessarily in 15 exclusion of the judiciary; and it will often be found, that when the Executive affords a remedy for any wrong, it
16 is nothing more than by an exercise of its judicial authority. Such is the condition of power in that quarter of 17 the world, where it is too commonly acquired by force, or fraud, or both, and seldom by compact. In America,
18 however, the case is widely different. Our government is founded upon compact. Sovereignty was, and is, in 19 the people. It was entrusted by them, as far as was necessary for the purpose of forming a good government, to 20 the Federal Convention; and the Convention executed their trust, by effectually separating the Legislative,
21 Judicial, and Executive powers; which, in the contemplation of our Constitution, are each a branch of the 22 sovereignty. The well-being of the whole depends upon keeping each department within its limits."

24 5.4.8.3 Domicile is a First Amendment choice of political affiliation

25 Another very important observation is in order at this point, which is that our choice of "domicile" is a strictly political and 26 not legal matter. It is a matter of our political choice and affiliation. The Supreme Court has ruled that no government may 27 dictate our choice of political affiliations, as revealed in the American Jurisprudence Legal Encyclopedia:

28 "The right to associate or not to associate with others solely on the basis of individual choice, not being absolute,
29 may conflict with others, or to prohibit one from associating with others, in order to accomplish what the state deems to be the common good. The Supreme Court,
30 though rarely called upon to examine this aspect of the right to freedom of association, has nevertheless 31 established certain basic rules which will cover many situations involving forced or prohibited associations.
32 Thus, where a sufficiently compelling state interest, outside the political spectrum, can be accomplished only by 33 requiring individuals to associate together for the common good, then such forced association is constitutional.
34 79 But the Supreme Court has made it clear that compelling an individual to become a member of an 35 organization with political aspects, or compelling an individual to become a member of an organization which 36 financially supports, in more than an insignificant way, political personages or goals which the individual does 37 not wish to support, is an infringement of the individual's constitutional right to freedom of association. 80
38 The First Amendment prevents the government, except in the most compelling circumstances, from wielding its 39 power to interfere with its employees' freedom to believe and associate, or to not believe and not associate; it is 40 not merely a tenure provision that protects public employees from actual or constructive discharge. 81 Thus,

1 First Amendment principles prohibit a state from compelling any individual to associate with a political party,
 2 as a condition of retaining public employment. 82 The First Amendment protects nonpolicymaking public
 3 employees from discrimination based on their political beliefs or affiliation. 83 But the First Amendment protects
 4 the right of political party members to advocate that a specific person be elected or appointed to a particular
 5 office and that a specific person be hired to perform a governmental function. 84 In the First Amendment context,
 6 the political patronage exception to the First Amendment protection for public employees is to be construed
 7 broadly, so as presumptively to encompass positions placed by legislature outside of "merit" civil service.
 8 Positions specifically named in relevant federal, state, county, or municipal laws to which discretionary authority
 9 with respect to enforcement of that law or carrying out of some other policy of political concern is granted, such 10 as a secretary of state given statutory authority over various state corporation law practices, fall within the 11 political patronage exception to First Amendment protection of public employees. 85 However, a supposed 12 interest in ensuring effective government and efficient government employees, political affiliation or loyalty, or 13 high salaries paid to the employees in question should not be counted as indicative of positions that require a 14 particular party affiliation. 86"
 15 [American Jurisprudence 2d, Constitutional law, §546: Forced and Prohibited Associations (1999)]

16 One's choice of "domicile" certainly has far-reaching legal consequences and ramifications, but our choice of domicile is 17 not a legal matter to be decided by any court. No court whether it be a federal or state court, has jurisdiction over strictly 18 political matters. Below is what the U.S. Supreme Court has to say on this very subject:

19 "But, fortunately for our freedom from political excitements in judicial duties, this court [the U.S. Supreme 20 Court] can never with propriety be called on officially to be the umpire in questions merely political. The 21 adjustment of these questions belongs to the people and their political representatives, either in the State or 22 general government. These questions relate to matters not to be settled on strict legal principles. They are 23 adjusted rather by inclination, or prejudice or compromise, often."

24 [ . . . ]

25 Another evil, alarming and little foreseen, involved in regarding these as questions for the final arbitrament
 26 of judges would be that, in such an event, all political privileges and rights would, in a dispute among the 27 people, depend on our decision finally. We would possess the power to decide against, as well as for, them, and,
 28 under a prejudiced or arbitrary judiciary, the public liberties and popular privileges might thus be much
 29 perverted, if not entirely prostrated. But, allowing the people to make constitutions and unmake them, allowing 30 their representatives to make laws and unmake them, and without our interference as to their principles or policy
 31 in doing it, yet, when constitutions and laws are made and put in force by others, then the courts, as empowered
 32 by the State or the Union, commence their functions and may decide on the rights which conflicting parties can
 33 legally set up under them, rather than about their formation itself. Our power begins after theirs [the Sovereign

1 People] ends. Constitutions and laws precede the judiciary, and we act only under and after them, and as to
 2 disputed rights beneath them, rather than disputed points in making them. We speak what is the law,
 3 ius dicere, we speak or construe what is the constitution, after both are made, but we
 4 make, or revise, or control neither. The disputed rights beneath constitutions already
 5 made are to be governed by precedents, by sound legal principles, by positive legislation
 6 e.g. "positive law"], clear contracts, moral duties, and fixed rules; they are per se
 7 questions of law, and are well suited to the education and habits of the bench. But the other
 8 disputed points in making constitutions, depending often, as before shown, on policy, inclination, popular resolves
 9 and popular will and arising not in respect to private rights, not what is meum and tuum, but in relation to politics,
 10 they belong to politics, and they are settled by political tribunals, and are too dear to a people bred in the school
 11 of Sydney and Russel for them ever to intrust their final decision, when disputed, to a class of men who are so far
 12 removed from them as the judiciary, a class also who might decide them erroneously, as well as right, and if in 13 the former way, the consequences might not be able to be averted except by a revolution, while a wrong decision
 14 by a political forum can often be peacefully corrected by new elections or instructions in a single month; and
 15 if the people, in the distribution of powers under the constitution, should ever think of making judges supreme
 16 arbiters in political controversies when not selected by nor, frequently, amenable to them nor at liberty to follow
 17 such various considerations in their judgments as [48 U.S. 53] belong to mere political questions, they will 18 dethrone themselves and lose one of their own invaluable birthrights; building up in this way -- slowly, but 19 surely -- a new sovereign power in the republic, in most respects irresponsible and unchangeable for life, and 20 one more dangerous, in theory at least, than the worst elective oligarchy in the worst of times. Again, 21 instead of controlling the people in political affairs, the judiciary in our system was 22 designed rather to control individuals, on the one hand, when encroaching, or to defend
 23 them, on the other, under the Constitution and the laws, when they are encroached upon.
 24 And if the judiciary at times seems to fill the important station of a check in the government, it is rather a check
 25 on the legislature, who may attempt to pass laws contrary to the Constitution, or on the executive, who may violate
 26 both the laws and Constitution, than on the people themselves in their primary capacity as makers and amenders
 27 of constitutions."
 28 Luther v. Borden, [48 U.S. 1 (1849)]

29 Consequently, no court of law can interfere with your choice of legal domicile, which is a strictly political matter. To do
 30 otherwise would constitute compelled association in violation of the First Amendment as well as direct interference in the 31 affairs of a political party, which is YOU. You are your own independent political party and a sovereignty separate and 32 distinct from the federal or state sovereignties. A court of law is certainly not the proper forum, for instance, in which to 33 question or politically ridicule one's choice of domicile, whether it be in front of a jury or a judge.

34 "Petitioners contend that immunity from suit in federal court suffices to preserve the dignity of the States. Private 35 suits against nonconsenting States, however, present "the indignity of subjecting a State to the coercive process
 36 of judicial tribunals at the instance of private parties." In re Ayers, supra, at 505; accord, Seminole Tribe, 517
 37 U. S., at 58, regardless of the forum. Not only must a State defend or default but also it must face the prospect of 38 being thrust, by federal fiat and against its will, into the disfavored status of a debtor, subject to the power of 39 private citizens to levy on its treasury or perhaps even government buildings or property which the State
 40 administers on the public's behalf.

41 [. . .]

42 "Underlying constitutional form are considerations of great substance. Private suits against nonconsenting
 43 States--especially suits for money damages--may threaten the financial integrity of the States. It is indisputable
 44 that, at the time of the founding, many of the States could have been forced into insolvency but for their 45 immunity from private suits for money damages. Even today, an unlimited congressional power to authorize 46 suits in state court to levy upon the treasuries of the States for compensatory damages, attorney's fees, and 47 even punitive damages could create staggering burdens, giving Congress a power and a leverage over the States
 48 that is not contemplated by our constitutional design. The potential national power would pose a severe and 49 notorious danger to the States and their resources."
 50 Alden v. Maine, [527 U.S. 706 (1999)]

51 The Supreme Court said that the sovereignty of We The People is every bit as sacred as that of the states, so why should they 52 not merit the same level of sovereign immunity from suit and dignity, especially in their choice of domicile, as that of the 53 States? To wit:

54 "The rights of individuals and the justice due to them, are as dear and precious as those of states. Indeed the 55 latter are founded upon the former; and the great end and object of them must be to secure and support the rights
 56 of individuals, or else vain is government."
 57 [Chisholm v. Georgia, 2 U.S. (2 Dall.) 419, 1 L.Ed. 440 (1793)]

1 "We The People" certainly cannot be "Sovereign" in any sense of the word if legal process can be maliciously and habitually
 2 abused by the government at great financial injury and inconvenience to them in the process of questioning or ridiculing their
 3 choice of domicile. In spite of this fact, this very evil happens daily in state and federal courts in the context of tax trials.
 4 We cannot restore the sovereignty of the people unless and until this chronic malicious abuse of legal and judicial process is 5 ended immediately.

6 In recognition of the concepts in this section, the following book on the common law starkly admits that being a CIVIL
 7 STATUTORY "PERSON" is optional, and implies MEMBERSHIP in the body politic. If only lawyers now were as honest
 8 as those back at the founding of this country!:

9 CHAPTER II.

10 CIVIL PERSON.

11 The state is represented in the person of its chief magistrate, who is at the same time a member of it. Thus the 12 king or president possesses two kinds of rights, a university of rights as a corporation [PUBLIC rights], and 13 individual rights [PRIVATE rights] as a man. As the former become more and more confounded with the 14 latter, so government advances towards some form of monarchy. A bishop also is a sole corporation, but the 15 man holding the office has also his individual rights. The word person neither according to its accurate
 16 meaning nor in law is identical with man. A man may possess at the same time different classes of rights. On 17 the other hand, two or more men may form only one legal person, and have one estate, as partners or corporators.
 18 Upon this difference of rights between the person and the man, the individual and the partner, corporator, tenant
 19 in common, and joint tenant, depends the whole law of these several classes. The same person has perfect power
 20 of alienation, of forming contracts, of disposing by last will and testament of his individual estate, but not of the 21 corporate, nor of his own share in it, unless such power be expressed or implied in the contract by which the 22 university of rights and duties is created. The same distinction divides all public from private property, and 23 distinguishes the cases in which the corporation or civil person may sue from those in which the individual
 24 alone can be the party ; - although there are instances in which the injury complained of may, in reference to 25 the difference of character, be such as to authorize the suit to be instituted either by the civil person or the 26 individual, or by both. Thus, violence to the person may be punished either as a wrong to the state or to the
 27 individual.

28 The true meaning of the word person is also exemplified in the matter of contracts. It is said, generally, that all
 29 persons may contract; but that is not true in the sense that all human beings may contract. Thus, a married
 30 woman, an infant, a lunatic, cannot contract. Again, a slave of mature age, sound intellect, with the consent of 31 his master, cannot make a contract binding on himself, although as an agent he may bind his master. These 32 matters are important only as they serve clearly to show that the civil person may have rights distinct from those 33 which he possesses as an individual ; - and that his rights or duties as an individual may consequently become 34 opposed to his rights and duties as a civil person. Thus, a partnership of three persons may own, for example, a
 35 moiety of a ship, and one of them the other moiety. In case of a difference between them as to its use, the rights
 36 of the one as a partner, and his right as an individual owner of another moiety, are directly opposed. In order,
 37 therefore, in any case, to perceive the application of a rule of law, it must be considered whether the person or 38 the individual, or both, is the possessor of the right. For it may be asserted as absolutely true, that the rights of 39 the man are not recognized by that law which is termed the municipal. It recognizes them only as they grow
 40 out of, or are consistent with, his character as a civil person. In other words, this is the distinction between the 41 Common Law and the law of nature. Nor is this a fanciful distinction, inasmuch as the rudest tribes, as well
 42 as the most civilized nations, have always distinguished between the rights and duties of their members, and of 43 those who were not members of the body politic. Even after the philosophical jurists of antiquity had polished
 44 and improved the jurisprudence of aristocratic republican Rome by the philosophy of the Portico, Cicero,
 45 statesman, philosopher, and jurisconsult, exclaims with indignation against the confusion of rights of person
 46 that the age witnessed: " In urbem nostrum est infusa peregrinitas; nunc vero etiam braccatis et transalpinis 47 nationibus ut nullum veteris leporis vestigium appareat."

48 The Common Law, as well as the Civil, recognizes as a person an unborn child, when it concerns its interests
 49 either as to life or property. " Qui in utero est perinde ac si in rebus humanis esset, custoditur, quotiens de
 50 commodis ipsius partus queeritur." And both systems provide the same remedies to protect the child and those 51 with whom its birth may interfere. In case of a limitation to the child of which a woman is now pregnant, if twins
 52 should be born, the Common Law gives the estate to the first-born; by our law, they would take moieties. Now,
 53 as these rights are acquired before the birth of the child or children, there is a double fiction ; not only in
 54 considering the unborn as born, but in distinguishing under the Common Law the eldest from the youngest born.
 55 Whilst, therefore, the law regards the unborn as born, yet, to transmit the estate, he must be born as a man, alive
 56 and capable of living. The law does not presume the life or death of an individual; when his existence has been
 57 established, his death also must be proved. * But the birth of an individual and the commencement of his character
 58 as a person do not necessarily concur. Thus, an alien of any age is not a person, in relation to a contract
 59 concerning lands, nor in any case is an infant ; so a woman marrying before she attains her legal maturity may 60 die of old age without having become a person. On the other hand, a person may suffer civil death before
 61 physical death; totally, where he becomes a monk; partially, as a penalty for the commission of an infamous
 62 crime; and perpetually or temporarily, as in case of outlawry. * Where a person has not been heard of for seven years, and under circumstances which contradict the probability of his being alive, a court may consider this sufficient proof of death (Stark. Ev. 4 pl. 457). The presumptions which arise in such cases do not concern the death of the person., but the time of his death, as where several die by one shipwreck or other casualty. On this point the rules are, - 1st. In case of parents and children, that children below the age of puberty died before, and adult children after, their parents. 2d. Persons not being parents and children, and the rights of one being dependent upon the previous death of the other, this precedent condition must be proved. 3d. If a grant is to be delated by the act of the grantor, as in case of a donatio inter virum et uxorem, or a donatio, ortis causa, the donor is presumed, in the absence of testimony, to have died first. #### 5.4.8.4 You can only have one Domicile and that place and government becomes your main source of CIVIL protection

In this section, we will establish that you can only have a domicile in ONE place at a time and therefore, you can only be a STATUTORY "citizen" of one place at a time. The most instructive case on this point that we have found is the following:

'Section 2. No person shall be eligible to the office of Governor who . . . shall not have been . . . a citizen and resident of this State for five years next preceding the day of election.'

[. . .]

The constitutional requirement that a person be both a citizen and a resident, for a period of time, as a prerequisite to being eligible for the office of Governor had its origin in the Constitution of 1790.<sup>87</sup> Present Article IV, section 2 of the Constitution was adopted in the general election of 1972 and ratified in 1973. The pertinent language therein parallels the language of prior South Carolina Constitutions and is identical with that of the Constitution of 1895. Thus the meaning and intent of the terms 'citizen' and 'resident' as used in those earlier documents is highly persuasive, if not controlling. When the Constitution of 1895 was drafted it is clear that in judicial concept the terms 'citizen' and 'resident' were not the same. Nor did one necessarily include the other.

Shortly before the ratification of the Constitution of 1895, Justice McIver noted the distinction's existence when, in discussing a statutory requirement that non-resident plaintiffs give security for court costs, he wrote:

The provisions relate only to residence, and not to citizenship which are entirely different things. As was said by Mr. Justice Grier in Parker v. Overman, 18 How. 127 [265 S.C. 375] (137) 15 L.Ed. 318: 'citizenship and residence are not synonymous terms.' Cummings v. Wingo, 31 S.C. 427, 10 S.E. 107, 110 (1889).

The Wingo opinion clearly reflected substantial agreement in the contemporary legal community that 'citizenship' and 'residence' were separate and distinguishable. E.g., Menarde v. Goggan, 121 U.S. 253, 7 S.Ct. 873, 30 L.Ed. 914 (1887); Grace v. American Ins. Co., 109 U.S. 278, 3 S.Ct. 207, 27 L.Ed. 932 (1883); Robertson v. Cease, 97 U.S. 646, 24 L.Ed. 1057 (1878); Holt v. Tennallytown & R. Ry. Co., 81 Md. 219, 31 A. 809 (1895); Robinson v. Oceanic Steam Nav. Co., 112 N.Y. 315, 19 N.E. 625, 2 L.R.A. 636 (1889). See generally, 10 Cent. Dig., Constitutional Law, secs. 625--648, at 2036--2070.

Citizenship in the first instance is founded upon actual residence and thereafter as long as one retains his residence even in a domiciliary sense, he [265 S.C. 377] remains a citizen. If the framers of the particular constitutional provision meant to require nothing more than a domicile they could have stopped after using the word 'citizen' and omitted the words 'and resident'. 'Resident', in the domiciliary sense is embodied within the term 'citizen'. It follows therefore that if the words 'and resident' be construed as meaning anything other than a requirement of actual physical residence such language would be surplusage. Accordingly the language permits of no other construction because we are not at liberty to treat any portion of the Constitution as surplusage. Admittedly Mr. Ravenel does not meet the requirement of actual residence in this State for the

Sec. 2. No person shall be eligible to the office of governor unless he * * * Hath resided within this State And been a citizen thereof, ten years * * *

S.C. Constitution Art. III, sec. 3 (1868) provided:

Sec. 3. No person shall be eligible to the office of governor who * * * at the time of such election * * * shall not have been a citizen of the United States and a Citizen and Resident of this State for two years next preceding the day of election. . . .

necessary five year period, and without more it conclusively follows that he is not eligible to be elected to the office of Governor.

The purpose of requiring actual residence is, we think, plain. By requiring a durational five year actual residency, the people have reserved to themselves the right to scrutinize the person who seeks to govern them. Obviously the people desired such a period to observe a gubernatorial candidate's conduct, to learn of his habits, his strengths, his weaknesses, his ideals, his abilities, his leanings, and his political philosophy--a period of time in which to consider, not only his words, but his acts and activities in community and public affairs. Correspondingly, they wanted a candidate to actually live in the state for five years immediately preceding the election in order that he might become acquainted with the state's problems, its people, its industries, its finances, its institutions, its agencies, its laws and its Constitution, and become acquainted with other officials with whom he must work if he is to serve effectively.

In Chimento v. Stark, 353 F.Supp. 1211 (N.H.D.1973) affirmed, 414 U.S. 802, 94 S.Ct. 125, 38 L.Ed.2d. 39, a three judge Federal court dealt with a seven year durational residency provision of the New Hampshire Constitution as a condition of eligibility to serve as [265 S.C. 378] governor of that state. The opinion of the court points out that '29 states require five or more years, 10 states require seven or more years and two states require ten years' residency before one may serve as Governor. In commenting upon the purpose of such a requirement the court said 'it ensures that the chief executive officer of New Hampshire is exposed to the problems, needs, and desires of the people whom he is to govern, and it also gives the people of New Hampshire a chance to observe him and gain firsthand knowledge about his habits and character.'

Ravenel relies in part on Article I, section 6 of the State Constitution that provides, inter alia, '(t)emporary absence from the State shall not forfeit a residence once obtained.' Even independent of this constitutional provision, temporary absences normally do not bring about a forfeiture of either citizenship or residency. Under the admitted facts, we do not think that this constitutional provision has any application in this case because we are not convinced that Ravenel's prolonged absence from the State could reasonably be held to be a temporary absence within the purview of the constitutional provision. If his contention in this respect and his further contention as to only domicile being required be held sound, it would follow that a native born citizen could leave the state and as long as he did not establish a domicile elsewhere, stay away for many years, and not return to the state until after his election as Governor, but still be eligible for such office. Such construction of the constitutional provisions would completely defeat the obvious purpose of the durational residency requirement for eligibility. Another elementary rule of construction is that no construction is permissible which will lead to an absurd result.

Even if we assume, as contended by Ravenel, that the word 'resident' as used in the Constitution should be construed to only require that he have a [265 S.C. 379] domicile for the prerequisite period of time he did not meet this test. As we have already held that the Constitution required him to be an actual resident, and not merely a domiciliary, we need deal only briefly with the law as to domicile. In Gasque v. Gasque, 246 S.C. 423, 143 S.E.2d 811 (1965) (a divorce case) our Court had occasion to define the word domicile as follows:

'And '(t)he term 'domicile' means the place where a person has his true, fixed and permanent home and principal establishment, to which he has, whenever he is absent, an intention of returning.'

Such is a generally accepted definition of the term. It is generally recognized, as we did in Gasque, that intent is a most important element in determining the domicile of any individual. It is also elementary, however, that any expressed intent on the part of a person must be evaluated in the light of his conduct which is either consistent or inconsistent with such expressed intent. Other elementary propositions which require no citation of authority are that a person can have only one domicile at a time; one maintains his prior domicile until he establishes or acquires a new one. A person may have more than one residence, but cannot have more than one domicile or be a citizen of more than one state at the same moment. Despite his sincere intention to return to his native state some day the overwhelming weight of the evidence is to the effect that in November, 1969, the beginning of the crucial period of time, Mr. Ravenel was an actual resident of, domiciled in and a citizen of the State of New York.

Based on the above, we make the following conclusions of law:

1. "Citizenship" is founded upon actual residence and thereafter as long as one retains his residence even in a domiciliary sense, he remains a "citizen" in a statutory sense.
2. "citizenship" and "residence" are not interchangeable terms.
3. "residence" or "resident" used in reference to a "citizen" implies PHYSICAL PRESENCE IN ADDITION to DOMICILE.
4. You can only have a domicile in one place at a time.
5. You can only be a "citizen" of one place at a time.
6. If you are a state citizen as described above, you cannot ALSO be a STATUTORY citizen under the laws of Congress.

7. Temporary absences from the place of one's domicile do NOT automatically bring about a change of "citizenship" or "residency". However, if the absence is also accompanied by other acts that indicate a change in domicile, then a loss of citizenship and residency is automatic and implied.

Now do you know why the Bureau of Immigration Services (BIS) was renamed to the U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Service (USCIS) when the Department of Homeland Security (BHS) was created by Congress? They wanted to create the false presumption that EVERYONE in states of the Union is physically present on federal territory whenever they say they have "citizenship" in the U.S. Remember, "citizenship" implies physical presence in the STATUTORY "United States", meaning federal territory. In effect, they wanted to institutionalize GOVERNMENT IDENTITY THEFT by the abuse of "words of art"! See:

Government Identity Theft, Form #05.046

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

Therefore, the reason why government forms will ask you your domicile is explained as follows:

1. A person can only have "allegiance" towards one and only one "sovereign". The U.S. Supreme Court confirmed this when it said:

"Citizenship is a political tie; allegiance is a territorial tenure. [...] The doctrine is, that allegiance cannot be due to two sovereigns; and taking an oath of allegiance to a new, is the strongest evidence of withdrawing allegiance from a previous, sovereign...."

This is also consistent with the Bible, which says on this subject:

"No servant can serve two masters; for either he will hate the one and love the other, or else he will be loyal to the one and despise the other. You cannot serve God and mammon."

[Jesus [God] speaking in Luke 16:13, Bible, NKJV]

2. Choosing a "domicile" in a place is what makes a person a STATUTORY "citizen" or "resident" under the laws of that place. Because you can only have a "domicile" in one place at a time, then you can only be a "citizen" in one place at a time. Becoming a statutory "citizen" is what makes you "subject" to the civil laws in that place and is the origin of your authority and privilege to vote, serve on jury duty, and pay income taxes in that place. For instance, Mexicans visiting the United States for temporary and who have not changed their "domicile" to the United States are called "Mexican Nationals" while they are here. When they return to the place of their domicile, they are called "Mexican citizens".

3. A legal means needs to be established to pay for the protection afforded by the sovereign to whom we claim allegiance. "Taxes" are the legal vehicle by which "protection" is paid for. In earlier times, in fact, "taxes" were called "tribute". When we pay "tribute", we are expressing "allegiance" to our personal "sovereign" by offering it our time and money. Below is a very revealing quote from a famous Bible dictionary which explains the meaning of the word "tribute" in a Biblical context:

"TRIBUTE. Tribute in the sense of an impost paid by one state to another, as a mark of subjugation, is a common feature of international relationships in the biblical world. The tributary could be either a hostile state or an ally. Like deportation, its purpose was to weaken a hostile state, Deportation aimed at depleting the man-power. The aim of tribute was probably twofold: to impoverish the subjugated state and at the same time to increase the conqueror's own revenues and to acquire commodities in short supply in his own country. As an instrument of administration it was one of the simplest ever devised: the subjugated country could be made responsible for the payment of a yearly tribute. Its non-arrival would be taken as a sign of rebellion, and an expedition would then be sent to deal with the recalcitrant. This was probably the reason for the attack recorded in Gn. 14.

[New Bible Dictionary. Third Edition. Wood, D. R. W., Wood, D. R. W., & Marshall, I. H. 1996, c1982, c1962; InterVarsity Press: Downers Grove]

Therefore, establishing a "domicile" or "residence" also establishes a voluntary "tax home" as well. There are several problems with the above worldly approach that conflict with Christianity:

1. Luke 16:13 above implies that those who demonstrate allegiance become "servants" of those they demonstrate "allegiance" towards. We have a saying for this:

1 "Protection draws subjection."

- 2 2. God said we can serve only Him, and therefore we cannot have "allegiance" to anything but Him.

3 "Away with you, Satan! For it is written, 'You shall worship the Lord your God, and Him ONLY [NOT the
4 government or its vain laws!] you shall serve.'
5 [Matt. 4:10, Bible, NKJV]"

- 6 3. Serving anyone but God amounts to idolatry in violation of the first four commandments found in the Ten
7 Commandments. Idolatry is the worst of all sins documented in the Bible. In the Old Testament book of Ezekiel, God
8 killed people and destroyed whole cities whose inhabitants committed idolatry.
9 4. The government cannot compel us to consent to anything or to demonstrate "allegiance" toward it. Allegiance must 10 always be completely voluntary.
11 5. It is against the Bible for Christians to claim allegiance to any "man" and by implication a civil ruler. That is why the 12 founding fathers declared us to be a "society of law and not men" as declared by the U.S. Supreme Court in Marbury v.
13 Madison. Christians can ONLY have allegiance to God and His laws, which then gives rise to an INDIRECT obligation
14 to love and therefore protect our "neighbor" as indicated in Matt. 22:36-40.

15 "Thus saith the LORD; Cursed be the man that trusteth in man [we are a man], and maketh flesh his arm, and 16 whose heart departeth from the LORD."
17 [Jeremiah 17:5, Bible, KJV]

18 "That your faith should not stand in the wisdom of men, but in the power of God."
19 [1 Corinthians 2:5, Bible, KJV]

20 "It is better to trust in the Lord, than to put confidence in man. It is better to trust in the Lord, than to put 21 confidence in princes for political rulers, who are but "men"."
22 [Psalm 118:8-9, Bible, NKJV]

23 "Trust in the Lord with all your heart, and lean not on your own understanding [because YOU are a 24 "man"]. In all your ways acknowledge Him, And He [RATHER THAN THE winds of political opinion] shall 25 direct your paths."
26 [Prov. 3:5, Bible, NKJV]

27 "The Moloch [socialist] state simply represents the supreme effort of man to command [or PREDICT] the future,
28 to predestine the world, and to be as God [which was Lucifer's original sin]. Lesser efforts, divination, spirit-
29 questing, magic, and witchcraft, are equally anathema to God. All represent efforts to have the future on other
30 than God's terms, to have a future apart from and in defiance of God. They are assertions that the world is not 31 of God but of brute factuality, and that man can somehow master the world and the future by going directly to 32 the raw materials thereof. Thus King Saul outwardly conformed to God's law by abolishing all black arts, but,
33 when faced with a crisis, he turned to the witch of Endor (1 Sam. 28). Saul knew where he stood with God: in 34 rebellion and unrepentant. Saul knew moreover the judgment of the law and of the prophet Samuel concerning
35 him (1 Sam. 15:10-35). Samuel alive had declared God's future to Saul. In going to the witch of Endor, Saul
36 attempted to reach Samuel dead, in the faith and hope that Samuel dead was now in touch with and informed
37 concerning a world of brute factuality outside of God which could offer Saul a God-free, law-free future. But 38 the word from the grave only underscored God's law-word (1 Sam. 28:15-19): it was the word of judgment."
39 [The Institutes of Biblical Law, Rousas John Rushdoony, 1973, p. 35]

40 Therefore, Christians cannot be expected or required to either accept, consent to, or pay for protection that God says comes 41 ONLY from Him. They cannot allow government to assume an authority equal or superior to God in their lives, including 42 in the area of protection. The only purpose for government is "protection".

43 "Allegiance and protection are, in this connection, reciprocal obligations. The one is a compensation for the 44 other; allegiance for protection and protection for allegiance."
45 [Minor v. Happersett, 88 U.S. (21 Wall.) 162, 166-168 (1874)]

46 Any government form that asks us what our "domicile" is indirectly is asking us to whom we have exclusive "allegiance".
47 Any government that passes a law compelling "allegiance" or requiring us to consent to laws or a government or protection 48 that we don't want is:

- 49 1. Implementing slavery in violation of the Thirteenth Amendment, 18 U.S.C. §1581, 18 U.S.C. §1583, and 42 U.S.C.
50 §1994.

2. Making themselves into an organized crime syndicate that earns its revenues from “protection”. This is called a “protection racket” and it is a federal crime under 18 U.S.C. §1951.
3. Violating the antitrust laws at 15 U.S.C. §2, by making themselves into a monopoly that is the only source of “protection”.

The Bible describes such an organized crime syndicate as “the Beast”, which Rev. 19:19 defines as “the kings of the earth”. In modern times, this would be our political rulers.

5.4.8.5 Domicile and taxation

Both state and federal income taxation is based almost entirely upon what is called “domicile”. Domicile is a choice we make that requires our consent and participation, and because it requires our consent, then becoming a “taxpayer” who owes a tax requires our consent. We will explain this shortly. An examination of the Internal Revenue Code and implementing regulations confirms that there are only two proper legal “persons” who are the subject of the I.R.C., and that these two “persons” have a “domicile” in the “United States”. By “United States” as used in this document, we mean the government of the “United States” and not the “United States” in the geographical sense as used in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d):

Table 5-38: Taxable persons under I.R.C.

| # | Proper legal person? <sup>88</sup> | Tax status          | Place of inhabitanace                                     | Declared domicile                              | Conditions under which subject to I.R.C. Options 1 and 2 above have a civil “domicile” within the statutory but not constitutional “United States”, meaning federal territory that is no part of any state of the Union, as a prerequisite. People born in and domiciled within states of the Union fall under status 3. If “nationals” (who are not statutory “citizens” under 8 U.S.C. §1401) domiciled in states have no earnings from the “United States” government or federal territory, then even if they choose to volunteer, they cannot be “liable” to pay any of their earnings to the IRS. Note also that the “aliens” mentioned in option 4 above, even if they live in the “United States” (federal territory), are not even mentioned in the I.R.C. They only become subject to the code by either becoming involved in a “trade or business”, which is a public office and a voluntary activity involving federal contracts and employment, or by declaring the “United States” (federal territory) to be their legal “domicile”. Making the “United States” (federal territory) into their “domicile” or engaging in a “trade or business” (which is defined as a public office) are the only two activities that can transform “aliens” into “residents” subject to the Internal Revenue Code. “Aliens” or “nonresident aliens”

17 We also caution that a "non-resident non-person" or a "nonresident alien" can also unwittingly become a "U.S. person" with 18 an effective domicile in the "United States" (federal territory) by incorrectly declaring his or her citizenship status on a
19 government form as that of either a statutory "U.S. citizen" under 8 U.S.C. §1401 or a statutory "resident alien" under 26
20 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A), instead of a "non-resident non-person" or "non-resident national" under 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21). This
21 results in a surrender of sovereign immunity under 28 U.S.C. §1603(b)(3), which says that "U.S. citizens" and "residents"
22 may not be treated as "foreign states". This is by far the most frequent mechanism that your unscrupulous government uses
23 to maliciously destroy the sovereignty of persons in states of the Union and undermine the Separation of Powers Doctrine:
24 Using ambiguous terms on government forms and creating and exploiting legal ignorance of the people. This process by

26 5.4.8.6 The three sources of government civil jurisdiction

27 There are THREE sources of government CIVIL protection:

- 28 1. Constitutional law. Includes the Bill of Rights. Cannot be surrendered if right is "unalienable".
- 29 2. Common law. Does not require consent, but mere physical presence on the land.
- 30 3. Civil statutory law (protection franchise). Requires consent by choosing a domicile.

31 We cover all law systems in:

Four Law Systems, Form #12.039
<https://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

32 In the case of item 3 above, even for civil statutory laws that are enacted with the consent of the majority of the governed as 33 the Declaration of Independence requires, we must still explicitly and individually consent to be subject to them before they 34 can be enforced against us.

35 "When a change of government takes place, from a monarchial to a republican government, the old form is 36 dissolved. Those who lived under it, and did not choose to become members of the new, had a right to refuse their 37 allegiance to it, and to retire elsewhere. By being a part of the society subject to the old government, they had not
38 entered into any engagement to become subject to any new form the majority might think proper to adopt. That
39 the majority shall prevail is a rule posterior to the formation of government, and results from it. It is not a rule
40 upon mankind in their natural state. There, every man is independent of all laws, except those prescribed by 41 nature. He is not bound by any institutions formed by his fellowmen without his consent"
42 [Cruden v. Neale, 2 N.C., 2 S.E. 70 (1796)]

1 This requirement for the consent to the protection afforded by government is the foundation of our system of government,
2 according to the Declaration of Independence: consent of the governed. The U.S. Supreme Court admitted this when it said:

3 “The people of the United States resident within any State are subject to two governments: one State, and the
4 other National; but there need be no conflict between the two. The powers which one possesses, the other does
5 not. They are established for different purposes, and have separate jurisdictions. Together they make one whole,
6 and furnish the people of the United States with a complete government, ample for the protection of all their rights
7 at home and abroad. True, it may sometimes happen that a person is amenable to both jurisdictions for one and
8 the same act. Thus, if a marshal of the United States is unlawfully resisted while executing the process of the 9 courts within a State, and the resistance is accompanied by an assault on the officer, the sovereignty of the United
10 States is violated by the resistance, and that of the State by the breach of peace, in the assault. So, too, if one
11 passes counterfeit coin of the United States within a State, it may be an offence against the United States and
12 the State: the United States, because it discredits the coin; and the State, because of the fraud upon him to whom
13 it is passed. This does not, however, necessarily imply that the two governments possess powers in common, or 14 bring them into conflict with each other. It is the natural consequence of a citizenship [92 U.S. 542, 551] which 15 *owes allegiance to two sovereignties, and claims protection from both. The citizen cannot 16 complain, because he has voluntarily submitted himself
17 to such a form of government. He owes allegiance to the two departments, so to 18 speak, and within their respective spheres must pay the penalties which each exacts for disobedience to its laws.
19 In return, he can demand protection from each within its own jurisdiction.”
20 [United States v. Cruikshank, 92 U.S. 542 (1875) [emphasis added]

21 How, then, did you “voluntarily submit” yourself to such a form of government and thereby contract with that government
22 for “protection”? If people fully understood how they did this, many of them would probably immediately withdraw their
23 consent and completely drop out of the corrupted, inefficient, and usurious system of government we have, now wouldn't
24 they? We have spent six long years researching this question, and our research shows that it wasn't your nationality as a
25 “national” of a legislatively but not constitutionally foreign state pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21) that made you subject to 26 their civil laws. Well then, what was it?

27 It was your voluntary choice of domicile!

28 How do we know this? Look at the language above:

29 “The people of the United States resident within any State are subject to two governments”

30 There are therefore TWO prerequisites to becoming a “subject” under the civil statutory protection franchise:

- 31 1. You must have the civil status of “resident” under the statutes of the state, and that status is VOLUNTARY. If it is 32 coerced, the First Amendment prohibition against compelled association and the prohibition against compelled 33 contracting under the “social compact” is violated.
- 34 2. You must be DOMICILED within the state because you can't have a civil status WITHOUT such a domicile.
35 Domicile, like civil statuses, is also voluntary and cannot be compelled.<sup>89</sup>

36 In fact, the following types of Americans DO have the right to complain if:

- 37 1. The government calls “citizen” status voluntary but positively refuses to recognize or protect your right to NOT be a 38 STATUTORY “citizen” while retaining your nationality and “national” status. This:
  - 39 1.1. Violates the First Amendment and effectively compels you to contract with the government for civil protection.
  - 40 1.2. Makes the statement on their part that “citizen” status is voluntary a FRAUD.
- 41 2. The government PRESUMES that domicile and residence are equivalent, in order to:
  - 42 2.1. Usurp civil jurisdiction over you that they do not otherwise have.
  - 43 2.2. Evade the requirement to satisfy their burden of proving on the record that you were “purposefully” and 44 consensually availing yourself of commerce within their civil jurisdiction with people who wanted to be regarded 45 as protected “citizens” or “residents” in the context of YOUR interactions with them. They aren't required to be 46 “citizens” or “residents” for ALL PURPOSES, but only for those that they want to be.

3. The government refuses to recognize your right to be a STATUTORY "citizen" for some purposes but a statutory "non-resident non-person" for other purposes. Since you have a constitutional right to NOT contract and NOT associate, then you ought to be able to choose in each specific case or service offered by government whether you want that specific service, rather than being forced to be a "customer" of government for EVERYTHING if you sign up for ANYTHING. That's called an unconscionable or adhesion contract. The U.S. Supreme Court has also held that not being able to do this is a violation of what they call the "Unconstitutional Conditions Doctrine".
4. You were treated as a statutory "citizen" without your consent.
5. You were PRESUMED to be a statutory citizen absent your express written consent.
6. You are PRESUMED to have a civil domicile within the jurisdiction of a court you are appearing before. In the case of federal courts, this presumption is usually false.
7. Your government opponent PRESUMES that STATUTORY citizens and CONSTITUTIONAL citizens are equivalent. They are NOT.
8. The government PRESUMES that because you are born or naturalized in a place, that you are a STATUTORY "citizen". This presumption is FALSE. Those born or naturalized are CONSTITUTIONAL citizens but not necessarily STATUTORY citizens subject to federal law.
9. The government does not provide a way on ALL of its forms to describe those who do NOT consent to statutory citizen status or ANY civil status subject to government law.
10. The government interferes with or refuses to protect your right to change your status to remove yourself from their civil jurisdiction.

The "citizen" the Supreme Administrative Court is talking about above is a statutory "citizen" and not a constitutional "citizen", and the only way you can become subject to statutory civil law is to have a domicile within the jurisdiction of the sovereign. Below is a legal definition of "domicile":

"domicile. A person's legal home. That place where a man has his true, fixed, and permanent home and principal establishment, and to which whenever he is absent he has the intention of returning. Smith v. Smith, 206 Pa.Super. 310, 213 A.2d. 94. Generally, physical presence within a state and the intention to make it one's home are the requisites of establishing a "domicile" therein. The permanent residence of a person or the place to which he intends to return even though he may actually reside elsewhere. A person may have more than one residence but only one domicile. The legal domicile of a person is important since it, rather than the actual residence, often controls the jurisdiction of the taxing authorities and determines where a person may exercise the privilege of voting and other legal rights and privileges."
[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 485]

"This right to protect persons having a domicile, though not native-born or naturalized citizens, rests on the firm foundation of justice, and the claim to be protected is earned by considerations which the protecting power is not at liberty to disregard. Such domiciled citizen pays the same price for his protection as native-born or naturalized citizens pay for theirs. He is under the bonds of allegiance to the country of his residence, and, if he breaks them, incurs the same penalties. He owes the same obedience to the civil laws. His property is, in the same way and to the same extent as theirs, liable to contribute to the support of the Government. In nearly all respects, his and their condition as to the duties and burdens of Government are undistinguishable."
[Fong Yue Ting v. United States, 149 U.S. 698 (1893)]

Notice the phrase "civil laws" above and the term "claim to be protected". What they are describing is a contract to procure the protection of the government, from which a "claim" arises. Those who are not party to the domicile/protection contract have no such claim and are immune from the civil jurisdiction of the government. In other words, they have no "civil status" under the laws of that protectorate:

"There are certain general principles which control the disposition of this case. They are, in the main, well settled; the difficulty lies in their application to the particular facts of the case in hand. It is elementary that every state has an undoubted right to determine the status, or domestic and social condition, of the persons domiciled within its territory, except in so far as the powers of the states in this respect are restrained, or duties and obligations imposed upon them by the constitution of the United States." Strader v. Graham, 10 How. 93. Again, the civil status is governed universally by one single principle, namely, that of domicile, which is the criterion established by law for the purpose of determining the civil status; for it is on this basis that the personal rights of a party, — that is to say, the law which determines his majority or minority, his marriage, succession, testacy, or intestacy, — must depend. Udney v. Udney, L. R., 1 H. L. Sc. 457.
[Woodward v. Woodward, 11 S.W. 892, 87 Tenn. 644 (Tenn., 1889)]

Another implication of the above is that if the STATES have the right to determine civil status, then the people AS INDIVIDUALS from which all their power was delegated have the right to determine their OWN civil status. This right derives from the right to contract and associate and every sovereignty has it. See:

Your Exclusive Right to Declare or Establish Your Civil Status, Form #13.008
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

In fact, there are two categories and four unique ways to become subject to the civil STATUTORY jurisdiction of a specific government. These ways are:

1. Domicile by choice: Choosing domicile within a specific jurisdiction.
2. Domicile by operation of law. Also called domicile of necessity:
  - 2.1. Representing an entity that has a domicile within a specific jurisdiction even though not domiciled oneself in said jurisdiction. For instance, representing a federal corporation as a public officer of said corporation, even though domiciled outside the federal zone. The authority for this type of jurisdiction is, for instance, Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b).
  - 2.2. Becoming a dependent of someone else, and thereby assuming the same domicile as that of your care giver. For instance, being a minor and dependent and having the same civil domicile as your parents. Another example is becoming a government dependent and assuming the domicile of the government paying you the welfare check.
  - 2.3. Being committed to a prison as a prisoner, and thereby assuming the domicile of the government owning or funding the prison.

In addition to the above, one can ALSO become subject involuntarily to the COMMON LAW and not CIVIL STATUTORY jurisdiction of a specific court by engaging in commerce on the territory protected by a specific government and thereby waiving sovereign immunity under:

1. The Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act (F.S.I.A.), 28 U.S.C. §1605.
2. The Minimum Contacts Doctrine, which implements the Fourteenth Amendment. See International Shoe Co. v. Washington, 326 U.S. 310 (1945).
3. The Longarm Statutes of the state jurisdiction where you are physically situated at the time. For a list of such state statutes, see:
  - 3.1. SEDM Jurisdictions Database, Litigation Tool #09.003
<http://sedm.org/Litigation/LitIndex.htm>
  - 3.2. SEDM Jurisdictions Database Online, Litigation Tool #09.004
<http://sedm.org/Litigation/LitIndex.htm>

We allege that if the above rules are violated then the following consequences are inevitable:

1. A crime has been committed. That crime is identity theft against a nonresident party and it involves using a person's legal identity as a "person" for the commercial benefit of someone else without their express consent. Identity theft is a crime in every jurisdiction within the USA. The SEDM Jurisdictions Database, Litigation Tool #09.003 indicated above lists identity theft statutes for every jurisdiction in the USA.
2. If the entity disregarding the above rules claims to be a "government" then it is acting instead as a private corporation and must waive sovereign immunity and approach the other party to the dispute in EQUITY rather than law, and do so in OTHER than a franchise court. Franchise courts include U.S. District Court, U.S. Circuit Court, Tax Court, Traffic Court, and Family Court. Equity is impossible in a franchise court.

United States*, supra at 352 (1935) ("When the United States, with constitutional authority, makes contracts for franchises, it has rights and incurs responsibilities similar to those of individuals who are parties to such instruments. See Jones, 1 Cl.Ct. at 85 ("Wherever the public and private acts of the government seem to commingle, a citizen or corporate body must by supposition be substituted in its place, and then the question be determined whether the action will lie against the supposed defendant"); O'Neill v. United States, 231 Ct.Cl.

1 823, 826 (1982) (sovereign acts doctrine applies where, "[w]ere [the] contracts exclusively between private
 2 parties, the party hurt by such governing action could not claim compensation from the other party for the 3 governing action"). The dissent ignores these statements (including the statement from Jones, from which case
 4 Horowitz drew its reasoning literally verbatim), when it says, post at 931, that the sovereign acts cases do not
 5 emphasize the need to treat the government-as-contractor the same as a private party.
 6 [United States v. Winstar Corp., 518 U.S. 839 (1996)]

7 Even those who have not chosen a domicile within a specific jurisdiction and therefore chosen NOT to become the following 8 in relation to ONLY that jurisdiction:

- 9 1. Among those "governed" by the civil laws.
- 10 2. Statutory "citizens" or "residents".
- 11 3. A "member" of the body politic if they are statutory "citizens". We call the "body politic" by the affectionate term 12 "the club".

13 . . . are called "exclusively private". Such parties have been acknowledged by the U.S. Supreme Court to be beyond the civil 14 control of the government. Notice they only recognize the right to "regulate" activity of STATUTORY "citizens" and NOT
 15 "ALL PEOPLE" or "ALL HUMANS":

16 When one becomes a member of society, he necessarily parts with some rights or privileges which, as an
 17 individual not affected by his relations to others, he might retain. "A body politic," as aptly defined in the 18 preamble of the Constitution of Massachusetts, "is a social compact by which the whole people covenants with 19 each citizen, and each citizen with the whole people, that all shall be governed by certain laws for the common
 20 good." This does not confer power upon the whole people to control rights which are purely and exclusively
 21 private, Thorpe v. R. & B. Railroad Co., 27 Vt. 143; but it does authorize the establishment of laws requiring 22 each citizen to so conduct himself, and so use his own property, as not unnecessarily to injure another. This is 23 *the very essence of government, and 125*125 has found expression in the maxim sic utere tuo ut alienum non*
 24 laedas. From this source come the police powers, which, as was said by Mr. Chief Justice Taney in the License
 25 Cases, 5 How. 583, "are nothing more or less than the powers of government inherent in every sovereignty, . . .
 26 . . . that is to say, . . . the power to govern men and things." Under these powers the government regulates the 27 conduct of its citizens one towards another, and the manner in which each shall use his own property, when such
 28 regulation becomes necessary for the public good. In their exercise it has been customary in England from time
 29 immemorial, and in this country from its first colonization, to regulate ferries, common carriers, hackmen, bakers,
 30 millers, wharfingers, innkeepers, &c., and in so doing to fix a maximum of charge to be made for services
 31 rendered, accommodations furnished, and articles sold. To this day, statutes are to be found in many of the States
 32 upon some or all these subjects; and we think it has never yet been successfully contended that such legislation
 33 came within any of the constitutional prohibitions against interference with private property. With the Fifth
 34 Amendment in force, Congress, in 1820, conferred power upon the city of Washington "to regulate . . . the rates
 35 of wharfage at private wharves, . . . the sweeping of chimneys, and to fix the rates of fees therefor, . . . and the 36 weight and quality of bread," 3 Stat. 587, sect. 7; and, in 1848, "to make all necessary regulations respecting 37 hackney carriages and the rates of fare of the same, and the rates of hauling by cartmen, wagoners, carmen, and 38 draymen, and the rates of commission of auctioneers," 9 id. 224, sect. 2.

41 Below is an explanation by a federal court of how a "nonresident" from a foreign country who is "exclusively private" invokes
 42 the protections of the Constitution but NOT the civil statutory laws. This is the approach that state nationals or state citizens
 43 not domiciled on federal territory and not subject to federal law would procure protection against the extraterritorial (outside 44 of federal territory, not outside the COUNTRY) enforcement by the national government outside their geographical 45 limitations:

46 The Due Process Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment limits the power of a state court to exert personal
 47 jurisdiction over a nonresident defendant. "[T]he constitutional touchstone" of the determination whether an 48 exercise of personal jurisdiction comports with due process "remains whether the defendant purposefully
 49 *established 'minimum contacts' in the 109*109 forum State." Burger King Corp. v. Rudzewicz, 471 U.S. 462, 474*
 50 (1985), quoting International Shoe Co. v. Washington, 326 U.S., at 316. Most recently we have reaffirmed the 51 oft-quoted reasoning of Hanson v. Denckla, 357 U.S. 235, 253 (1958), that minimum contacts must have a 52 basis in "some act by which the defendant purposefully avails itself of the privilege of conducting activities
 53 within the forum State, thus invoking the benefits and protections of its laws." Burger King, 471 U.S., at 475.
 54 "Jurisdiction is proper . . . where the contacts proximately result from actions by the defendant himself that 55 create a 'substantial connection' with the forum State." Ibid., quoting McGee v. International Life Insurance
 56 Co., 355 U.S. 220, 223 (1957)(emphasis in original).
 57 [Asahi Metal Industry Co. v. Superior Court of Cal., Solana City, 480 U.S. 102 (1987)]

58 If you DO NOT want a "substantial connection within the forum state" and and wish to avoid the civil statutory protection 59 of that state but not the constitutional protections, then all you have to do is:

1. Identify yourself as a “nonresident”.
2. State that you waive the “benefits, privileges, and protections of the civil statutory laws”.
3. Ensure that all the people you do business with sign a contract waiving the civil statutory protections and agree ONLY to invoke the Constitution and/or the common law.

Beyond that point, the state, as indicated above, will not be able to assert “personal jurisdiction” for anything OTHER than offenses against the Constitution or the Common law and will have to dismiss the case for lack of personal jurisdiction if a civil statute is invoked in the complaint. The above provisions function somewhat like a “binding arbitration” or a “private membership Association”, both of which are perfectly legal. Even churches can use the above tactics within their church to literally contract the government’s civil statutes, taxes, and regulation out of their relationship. See Serbian E. Orthodox Diocese v. Milivojevich, 426 U.S. 696, 708–09, 724–25, 96 S.Ct. 2372, 49 L.Ed.2d. 151 \(1976\).

The reason the government MUST respect your right to waive the civil statutory protections is not only because of the First Amendment right to politically and legally DISASSOCIATE, and your constitutional right NOT to contract, but also because it is a maxim of the common law that you have a right to NOT receive or pay for a “benefit” and that right is founded upon ownership of yourself and the right to exclude any and all others from using or benefitting from your PRIVATE property. If it REALLY is YOUR property that is absolutely owned, then you and only you get to determine HOW and BY WHAT “laws” it is protected and to exercise your “right to exclude” that is the foundation of ownership itself to EXCLUDE the law systems that injure you or your property.

5.4.8.7 The Social Contract/Compact

5.4.8.7.1 Introduction

The end of the previous section referred to what the U.S. Supreme Court called "the social compact". What most judges won't tell you about the above requirement for establishing jurisdiction is that the “social compact” is one means of satisfying the need for a “contract” in order to establish civil jurisdiction over you. In law, the words “compact” and “contract” are equivalent:

1           “Compact, n. An agreement or contract between persons, nations, or states. Commonly applied to working
2 agreements between and among states concerning matters of mutual concern. A contract between parties, which
3 creates obligations and rights capable of being enforced and contemplated as such between the parties, in their
4 distinct and independent characters. A mutual consent of parties concerned respecting some property or right
5 that is the object of the stipulation, or something that is to be done or forborne. See also Compact clause;
6 Confederacy; Interstate compact; Treaty.”
7 [Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 281]

8 All civil societies are based on “compact” and therefore “contract”. Here is how the U.S. Supreme Court describes this 9 compact and therefore contract.

10           “Yet, it is to be remembered, and that whether in its real origin, or in its artificial state, allegiance, as well as 11 fealty, rests upon lands, and it is due to persons. Not so, with respect to Citizenship, which has arisen from the 12 dissolution of the feudal system and is a substitute for allegiance, corresponding with the new order of things.
13 Allegiance and citizenship, differ, indeed, in almost every characteristic. Citizenship is the effect of compact
14 [CONTRACT!]; allegiance is the offspring of power and necessity. Citizenship is a political tie; allegiance is 15 a territorial tenure. Citizenship is the charter of equality; allegiance is a badge of inferiority. Citizenship is 16 constitutional; allegiance is personal. Citizenship is freedom; allegiance is servitude. Citizenship is 17 communicable; allegiance is repulsive. Citizenship may be relinquished; allegiance is perpetual. With such 18 essential differences, the doctrine of allegiance is inapplicable to a system of citizenship; which it can neither
19 serve to controul, nor to elucidate. And yet, even among the nations, in which the law of allegiance is the most 20 firmly established, the law most pertinaciously enforced, there are striking deviations that demonstrate the 21 invincible power of truth, and the homage, which, under every modification of government, must be paid to the 22 inherent rights of man .....The doctrine is, that allegiance cannot be due to two sovereigns; and taking an oath
23 of allegiance to a new, is the strongest evidence of withdrawing allegiance from a previous, sovereign....”

27 Note the sentence: “Citizenship is the effect of compact [CONTRACT!]”. By calling yourself a STATUTORY “citizen”
28 or “person”, you:

- 29 1. Identify yourself as a consenting party to the social compact/contract.
- 30 2. Abandon any claim for damage resulting from the ENFORCEMENT of the social compact/contract.

31           “Voluntati non fit injuria.
32 He who consents cannot receive an injury. 2 Bouv. Inst. n. 2279, 2327; 4 T. R. 657; Shelf. on mar. & Div. 449.

33           “Consensus tollit errorem.
34 Consent removes or obviates a mistake. Co. Litt. 126.

36 It is better to suffer every wrong or ill, than to consent to it. 3 Co. Inst. 23.

38 One cannot complain of having been deceived when he knew the fact and gave his consent. Dig. 50, 17, 145.”
39 [Bouvier’s Maxims of Law, 1856;
40 SOURCE: <http://famguardian.org/Publications/BouvierMaximsOfLaw/BouviereMaxims.htm>]

- 41 3. Consent to be “civilly governed” by the sovereignty executing and enforcing that social contract. Those who consent 42 to the compact/contract/franchise are called a statutory “citizen” or “resident”, who collectively are called “persons” or 43 “inhabitants”.
- 44 4. Convey the “force of law” to the civil statutes IN YOUR SPECIFIC CASE. It is private law for everyone else who 45 didn’t consent but PUBLIC law for you:

46           “Consensus facit legem. Consent makes the law. A contract is a law between the parties, which can acquire force
47 only by consent.”

49 SOURCE: <http://famguardian.org/Publications/BouvierMaximsOfLaw/BouviereMaxims.htm>]

- 50 5. Make yourself “subject” to the civil statutes that implement the civil protection contract or compact or franchise.

51           “Protectio trahit subjectionem, subjectio projectionem. Protection draws to it subjection, subjection, protection.
52 Co. Litt. 65.”

- 3 6. Consent to receive the "benefits" of the civil law protection franchise. Acceptance of the "benefit" of civil statutory 4 franchise protection is what can later be used to obligate you to obey the franchise.

5 "Cujus est commodum ejus debet esse incommodum. He who receives the benefit should also bear the

- 9 7. Abandon the protections of the common law, because all those who accept a statutory "benefit" or privilege always do 10 so.

11 The words "privileges" and "immunities," like the greater part of the legal phraseology of this country, have been

20 Even the author of the Law Of Nations, which is the document upon which the USA Constitution was based by the founding
21 fathers, acknowledged that all civilizations are based upon compact and contract, called this contract the "social compact",
22 and said that when the government fails to be accountable for the protection sought, those being protected have a right to
23 leave said society. Notice that the author, Vattel, refers to the parties to the social compact as "contracting parties".

24 The Law of Nations, Book I: Of Nations Considered in Themselves
25 § 223. Cases in which a citizen has a right to quit his country.

26 There are cases in which a citizen has an absolute right to renounce his country, and abandon it entirely — a
27 *right founded on reasons derived from the very nature of the social compact.

28 1. If the citizen cannot procure subsistence in his own country, it is undoubtedly lawful for him to seek it elsewhere.
29 For, political or civil society being entered into only with a view of facilitating to each of its members the means
30 of supporting himself, and of living in happiness and safety, it would be absurd to pretend that a member, whom
31 it cannot furnish with such things as are most necessary, has not a right to leave it.

32 2. If the body of the society, or he who represents it, absolutely fail to discharge their obligations [of protection]
33 towards a citizen, the latter may withdraw himself. For, if one of the contracting parties does not observe his 34 engagements, the other is no longer bound to fulfil his; as the contract is reciprocal between the society and its
35 members. It is on the same principle, also, that the society may expel a member who violates its laws.

36 3. If the major part of the nation, or the sovereign who represents it, attempt to enact laws relative to matters
37 in which the social compact cannot oblige every citizen to submission, those who are averse to these laws have
38 a right to quit the society, and go settle elsewhere. For instance, if the sovereign, or the greater part of the nation,
39 will allow but one religion in the state, those who believe and profess another religion have a right to withdraw,
40 and take with them their families and effects. For, they cannot be supposed to have subjected themselves to the 41 authority of men, in affairs of conscience;<sup>3</sup> and if the society suffers and is weakened by their departure, the blame
42 must be imputed to the intolerant party; for it is they who fail in their observance of the social compact — it is
43 they who violate it, and force the others to a separation. We have elsewhere touched upon some other instances
44 of this third case, — that of a popular state wishing to have a sovereign (§ 33), and that of an independent nation
45 taking the resolution to submit to a foreign power (§ 195).

5.4.8.7.2 Government violation of the Social Contract/Compact

Item #2 at the end of the previous section, in which a government fails to discharge its obligation of “protection”, includes any one or more of the following:

1. Government refuses to protect you from GOVERNMENT abuses or violations of your rights.
2. Government refuses to recognize or protect EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE rights.
  - 2.1. Confuses NATURAL “rights” with statutory franchise “privileges” by calling them BOTH “rights”.
  - 2.2. Interferes with common law protections for private rights and compels ONLY statutory remedies. Hence, they compel all those who are injured to become public officers in the government and surrender all their private rights and private property, because statutory remedies only apply to public officers in the government and not private humans. See:

Why Statutory Civil Law is Law for Government and Not Private Persons, Form #05.037
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

- 2.3. Makes a business or profitable franchise out of alienating PRIVATE rights that are supposed to be inalienable according to the Declaration of Independence. This is most often done through either offering or enforcing public franchises anywhere, and especially within states of the Union. Franchises, by definition, convert PRIVATE rights into PUBLIC rights, usually WITHOUT the consent of the owner. This causes government to do the OPPOSITE for which it was established, which is the protection of ONLY PRIVATE rights.
- 2.4. Makes a crime out of exercising PRIVATE or CONSTITUTIONAL rights. For instance, they make it a crime to operate a conveyance WITHOUT PERMISSION from the government in the form of a license. The license in turn is then used to ILLEGALLY make you into a public officer called a “driver” without your consent and often without your knowledge.
3. Government enforces unequal authority or rights to itself that they refuse to recognize that you also have.
  - 3.1. Absolute equality is the foundation of ALL of your freedom, as held by the U.S. Supreme Court. Gulf, C. & S.F.R. Co. v. Ellis, 165 U.S. 150 (1897).
  - 3.2. Inequality under the law violates the constitutional requirement for equal protection and equal treatment.
  - 3.3. Inequality causes government to become a civil religion in which you are the worshipper, and they are the god with superior or supernatural powers.
  - 3.4. The main method of introducing inequality is offering or enforcing franchises within a constitutional state, which is prohibited by the U.S. Supreme Court. License Tax Cases, 72 U.S. 462, 18 L.Ed. 497, 5 Wall. 462, 2 A.F.T.R. 2224 (1866).
  - 3.5. They will undermine equality by refusing to enforce your equal right to sovereign immunity or their burden of proving that you consensually waived it. In a government of delegated powers, they can have no more rights than you have and if they violate this concept, they are creating a religion in which taxes are tithes.
4. Government lies with impunity about anything, and especially about what the law requires or about their responsibilities under the law.
5. Government refuses to be responsible for the injuries they cause you or abuse sovereign immunity to protect themselves from culpability for said injuries.
6. Government refuses to allow you to stop subsidizing it or stop being a “customer” of its protection called a “citizen” or “resident”, and hence indirectly interferes with the ONLY method of peacefully procuring relief from their usurpations. This leaves no option OTHER than violence, and hence anarchy. Hence, they promote violence and anarchy with such policies.

"If money is wanted by Rulers who have in any manner oppressed the People, [the People] may retain [their money] until their grievances are redressed, and thus peaceably procure relief, without trusting to despised petitions or disturbing the public tranquility."
[Journals of the Continental Congress, Wednesday, October 26, 1774]

7. Government refuses to allow you to abandon any and all civil statuses or franchises to which public rights attach. This includes:
  - 7.1. Hides statuses on government forms that would allow you to NOT be a customer for the specific service they are offering.
  - 7.2. Hides forms or not offering forms to quit.
  - 7.3. Says you can't quit.
  - 7.4. Presumes that any or all people have the civil status that allows them to regulate and control you, and that you can acquire said status WITHOUT your express consent in some form.
  - 7.5. Calls participation “voluntary” and yet hypocritically refuses to protect your right to NOT volunteer.

- 1 8. Government kidnaps your civil legal identity and transports it to a legislatively foreign jurisdiction by enforcing
 2 legislatively foreign law upon you. They do this by:
 3 8.1. Quotes or enforces foreign law not from your domicile against you.
 4 8.2. Violates Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b).
 5 8.3. Uses irrelevant law or case law from a foreign jurisdiction as the equivalent of “political propaganda” designed to 6 mislead people into obedience to it.
 7 8.4. Violates or misrepresents choice of law rules.
 8 9. Government PRESUMES that any or all of the above are a “benefit” and then forces you to pay for it in the form of 9 “taxes”, even though YOU identify it as an INJURY and NOT a “benefit”. All such “presumptions” are a violation of 10 due process of law.

11 “Cujus est commodum ejus debet esse incommodum.
 12 He who receives the benefit should also bear the disadvantage.”

13 “Que sentit commodum, sentire debet et onus.
 14 He who derives a benefit from a thing, ought to feel the disadvantages attending it. 2 Bouv. Inst. n. 1433.”

18 5.4.8.7.3 Rousseau’s description of the Social Contract/Compact

19 The terms of the “social compact” at the heart of every civilized society are exhaustively described in the following classic
 20 book by Rousseau written just before the U.S. Constitution was written:

The Social Contract or Principles of Political Right, Jean Jacques Rousseau, 1762
 HTML: <http://famguardian.org/Publications/TheSocialContract-Rousseau/Rousseau%20Social%20Contract.htm>
 PDF: http://famguardian.org/Publications/TheSocialContract-Rousseau/The\_social\_contract.pdf

21 Rousseau is also widely regarded as the father of socialism. In chapter 8 of the above book he even describes all governments
 22 as what he calls a “civil religion”. Here is the way Rousseau describes the “social compact” that forms the foundation of all
 23 societies:

24 There is but one law which, from its nature, needs unanimous consent. This is the social compact; for civil
 25 association is the most voluntary of all acts. Every man being born free and his own master, no one, under any
 26 pretext whatsoever, can make any man subject without his consent. To decide that the son of a slave is born a
 27 slave is to decide that he is not born a man.

28 If then there are opponents when the social compact is made, their opposition does not invalidate the contract,
 29 but merely prevents them from being included in it. They are foreigners among citizens. When the State is
 30 instituted, residence constitutes consent; to dwell within its territory is to submit to the Sovereign.<sup>91</sup>

 32 contract itself. But it is asked how a man can be both free and forced to conform to wills that are not his own.
 33 How are the opponents at once free and subject to laws they have not agreed to?

34 *I retort that the question is wrongly put. The citizen gives his consent to all the laws, including those which are
 35 passed in spite of his opposition, and even those which punish him when he dares to break any of them. The
 36 constant will of all the members of the State is the general will; by virtue of it they are citizens and free<sup>92</sup>. When
 37 in the popular assembly a law is proposed, what the people is asked is not exactly whether it approves or rejects
 38 the proposal, but whether it is in conformity with the general will, which is their will. Each man, in giving his
 39 vote, states his opinion on that point; and the general will is found by counting votes. When therefore the opinion
 40 that is contrary to my own prevails, this proves neither more nor less than that I was mistaken, and that what I
 41 thought to be the general will was not so. If my particular opinion had carried the day I should have achieved the
 42 opposite of what was my will; and it is in that case that I should not have been free.

<sup>91</sup> This should of course be understood as applying to a free State; for elsewhere family, goods, lack of a refuge, necessity, or violence may detain a man in a country against his will; and then his dwelling there no longer by itself implies his consent to the contract or to its violation.

This presupposes, indeed, that all the qualities of the general will still reside in the majority: when they cease to do so, whatever side a man may take, liberty is no longer possible.

In my earlier demonstration of how particular wills are substituted for the general will in public deliberation, I have adequately pointed out the practicable methods of avoiding this abuse; and I shall have more to say of them later on. I have also given the principles for determining the proportional number of votes for declaring that will. A difference of one vote destroys equality; a single opponent destroys unanimity; but between equality and unanimity, there are several grades of unequal division, at each of which this proportion may be fixed in accordance with the condition and the needs of the body politic.

There are two general rules that may serve to regulate this relation. First, the more grave and important the questions discussed, the nearer should the opinion that is to prevail approach unanimity. Secondly, the more the matter in hand calls for speed, the smaller the prescribed difference in the numbers of votes may be allowed to become: where an instant decision has to be reached, a majority of one vote should be enough. The first of these two rules seems more in harmony with the laws, and the second with practical affairs. In any case, it is the combination of them that gives the best proportions for determining the majority necessary.

[The Social Contract or Principles of Political Right, Jean Jacques Rousseau, 1762, Book IV, Chapter 2]

Note how Rousseau describes those who are not party to the social contract as “foreigners”:

“If then there are opponents when the social compact is made, their opposition does not invalidate the contract, but merely prevents them from being included in it. They are foreigners among citizens. When the State is instituted, residence constitutes consent; to dwell within its territory is to submit to the Sovereign.”

We also clarify the following about Rousseau’s comments above:

1. Those who are parties to the social compact are called “citizens” if they were born in the country and “residents” if they were born in a foreign country, who together are called “inhabitants” or “domiciliaries”.
2. The “foreigner” he is talking about is either a statutory “alien” (foreign national), a “nonresident”, or a “non-resident non-person” in the case of a state domiciled state national.
3. When Rousseau says “Apart from this primitive contract, the vote of the majority always binds all the rest.”, what he means by “the rest” is “the rest of the inhabitants, citizens, or residents”, but NOT “nonresidents” or “transient foreigners”. This is implied by his other statement: “If then there are opponents when the social compact is made, their opposition does not invalidate the contract, but merely prevents them from being included in it. They are foreigners among citizens.”
4. Rousseau says that: “When the State is instituted, residence constitutes consent; to dwell within its territory is to submit to the Sovereign.” Here are some key points about this statement:
  - 4.1. What he means by “residence” is a political and voluntary act of association and consent, and NOT physical presence in a specific place.
  - 4.2. Those who have made this choice of “residence” and thereby politically associated with and joined with a specific political “state” acquire the status under the social contract called “resident” or “citizen”. Those who have not associated are called “transient foreigners”, “strangers”, or “in transitu”.
  - 4.3. The choice of “residence” is protected by the First Amendment right of association and freedom from compelled association. Those who are humans physically on land protected by the Constitution cannot lawfully be FORCED to acquire any civil status under the civil statutes of any government, INCLUDING “resident” or “residence”. Note that this prohibition does not affect artificial entities or fictions of law, such as businesses or especially corporations.
5. All rights under the social contract attach to the statuses under the contract called “citizen”, “resident”, “inhabitant”, or “domiciliary”. In that sense, the contract behaves as a franchise or what we call a “protection franchise”. You are not protected by the franchise unless you procure a civil status under the franchise called “citizen” or “resident”.
6. In a legal sense, to say that one is “in the state” or “dwelling in the state” really means that:
  - 6.1. A human being has consented to the social contract and thereby become a “government contractor”.
  - 6.2. Consent creates the “res” or legal fiction called “person” within the civil statutory codes/franchises.
  - 6.3. The legal fiction of “person” created by your consent is an officer or public officer within the government corporation. The U.S. Supreme Court associates two civil statuses to all governments: 1. “Body corporate”; 2. Body politic.<sup>93</sup>

<sup>93</sup> “Both before and after the time when the Dictionary Act and § 1983 were passed, the phrase “bodies politic and corporate” was understood to include the [governments of the] States. See, e.g., J. Bouvier, 1 A Law Dictionary Adapted to the Constitution and Laws of the United States of America 185 (11th ed. 1866); W. Shumaker & G. Longsdorf, Cyclopedic Dictionary of Law 104 (1901); Chisholm v. Georgia, 2 U.S. (2 Dall.) 419, 447, 1 L.Ed. 440 (1793) (Iredell, J.); id., at 468 (Cushing, J.); Cotton v. United States, 52 U.S. (11 How.) 229, 231, 13 L.Ed. 675 (1851) (“Every sovereign State is of necessity a body politic, or artificial person”); Poindexter v. Greenhow, 114 U.S. 270, 288, 5 S.Ct. 903, 29 L.Ed. 185 (1885); McPherson v. Blacker,

- 1 6.4. The legal fiction of “person” created by your consent is called the “straw man”,<sup>94</sup>
- 2 6.5. The legal fiction of “person” created by your consent is legally but not physically “within” that corporation
- 3 because it represents the corporation.
- 4 6.6. The effective domicile of the legal fiction of “person” is the place of incorporation of the state it represents under
- 5 Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17.
- 6 6.7. The government, as author of the statute conveying the privilege of the statutes, is the creator. It is therefore the
- 7 OWNER of all those who exercise the privilege by virtue of invoking the statutes of “person” in pursuit of
- 8 remedies under the franchise.<sup>95</sup>
- 9 7. Your corrupt politicians have therefore written this social contract in such a way that consenting to it makes you a
- 10 public officer within the government, even though such a corruption of the de jure system is clearly beyond its
- 11 legislative intent. See:

De Facto Government Scam, Form #05.043
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

- 12 8. It is a violation of due process of law, theft, slavery, and even identity theft to:
- 13 8.1. PRESUME that by virtue of physically occupying a specific place, that a person has consented to take up
- 14 “residence” there and thereby consented to the social contract and the civil laws that implement it.
- 15 8.2. Interfere with one’s choice of political association and consent to the social compact by refusing to accept any
- 16 piece of paper that declares one a “nonresident”.
- 17 8.3. Impose the status of “citizen” or “resident” against those who do not consent to the social contract.
- 18 8.4. Enforce any provision of the social contract against a non-consenting party.
- 19 8.5. Connect the status of “citizen” or “resident” with a public office in the government or use that unlawfully created
- 20 office as method to impose any duty upon said party. Why? Because the Thirteenth Amendment forbids
- 21 “involuntary servitude”.

22 The above considerations are the ONLY reason why Abraham Lincoln could truthfully claim in his famous Gettysburg

23 Address that the United States government is “a government of the people, by the people, and for the people”.

24 5.4.8.7.4 Breaches of the Social Compact subject to judicial remedy

25 If you are injured and take the party who injured you into a civil court, the judge, in fact, is really acting as a trustee of the 26 social contract/compact in enforcing that contract between you and the other party. All governments in the USA, in fact, are

27 “trustees”:

146 U.S. 1, 24, 13 S.Ct. 3, 6, 36 L.Ed. 869 (1892); Heim v. McCall, 239 U.S. 175, 188, 36 S.Ct. 78, 82, 60 L.Ed. 206 (1915). See also United States v. Maurice, 2 Brock. 96, 109, 26 F.Cas. 1211 (CC Va.1823) (Marshall, C.J.) (“The United States is a government, and, consequently, a body politic and corporate”); Van Brocklin v. Tennessee, 117 U.S. 151, 154, 6 S.Ct. 670, 672, 29 L.Ed. 845 (1886) (same). Indeed, the very legislators who passed § 1 referred to States in these terms. See, e.g., Cong. Globe, 42d Cong., 1st Sess., 661-662 (1871) (Sen. Vickers) (“What is a State? Is *79 it not a body politic and corporate?”); id., at 696 (Sen. Edmunds) (“A State is a corporation”).

The reason why States are “bodies politic and corporate” is simple: just as a corporation is an entity that can act only through its agents, “[t]he State is a political corporate body, can act only through agents, and can command only by laws.” Poindexter v. Greenhow, supra, 114 U.S., at 288, 5 S.Ct. at 912-913. See also Black’s Law Dictionary 159 (5th ed. 1979) (“[B]ody politic or corporate”: “A social compact by which the whole people covenants with each citizen, and each citizen with the whole people, that all shall be governed by certain laws for the common good”). As a “body politic and corporate,” a State falls squarely within the Dictionary Act’s definition of a “person.”

While it is certainly true that the phrase “bodies politic and corporate” referred to private and public corporations, see ante, at 2311, and n. 9, this fact does not draw into question the conclusion that this phrase also applied to the States. Phrases may, of course, have multiple referents. Indeed, each and every dictionary cited by the Court accords a broader realm-one **2317 that comfortably, and in most cases explicitly, includes the sovereign-to this phrase than the Court gives it today. See 1B. Abbott, Dictionary of Terms and Phrases Used in American or English Jurisprudence 155 (1879) (“[T]he term body politic is often used in a general way, as meaning the state or the sovereign power, or the city government, without implying any distinct express incorporation”); W. Anderson, A Dictionary of Law 127 (1893) (“[B]ody politic”: “The governmental, sovereign power: a city or a State”); Black’s Law Dictionary 143 (1891) (“[B]ody politic”: “It is often used, in a rather loose way, to designate the state or nation or sovereign power, or the government of a county or municipality, without distinctly connoting any express and individual corporate charter”); 1A. Burrill, A Law Dictionary and Glossary 212 (2d ed. 1871) (“[B]ody politic”: “A body to take in succession, framed by policy”; “[p]articularly*80 applied, in the old books, to a Corporation sole”); id., at 383 (“Corporation sole” includes the sovereign in England).

"Whatever these Constitutions and laws validly determine to be property, it is the duty of the Federal Government, through the domain of jurisdiction merely Federal, to recognize to be property.

"And this principle follows from the structure of the respective Governments, State and Federal, and their reciprocal relations. They are different agents and trustees of the people of the several States, appointed with different powers and with distinct purposes, but whose acts, within the scope of their respective jurisdictions, are mutually obligatory."
[Dred Scott v. Sandford, 60 U.S. 393 (1856)]

Both parties to the lawsuit must be parties to the social contract and therefore "citizens" or "residents" within the jurisdiction you are civilly suing. If the defendant you are suing is NOT party to the social contract, they are called a "nonresident" who is therefore protected from being civilly sued by:

1. The "Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act", codified at 28 U.S.C. Part IV, Chapter 97 starting at section 1602.
2. The "Minimum Contacts Doctrine" elucidated by the U.S. Supreme Court in International Shoe Co. v. Washington, 326 U.S. 310 (1945). This doctrine states that it is a violation of due process to bring a nonresident into a foreign court to be sued unless certain well defined standards are met. Here is how the federal courts describe this doctrine:

In International Shoe Co. v. Washington, 326 U.S. 310 (1945), the Supreme Court held that a court may exercise personal jurisdiction over a defendant consistent with due process only if he or she has "certain minimum contacts" with the relevant forum "such that the maintenance of the suit does not offend 'traditional notions of fair play and substantial justice.' " Id. at 316 (quoting Milliken v. Meyer, 311 U.S. 457, 463 (1940)). Unless a defendant's contacts with a forum are so substantial, continuous, and systematic that the defendant can be deemed to be "present" in that forum for all purposes, a forum may exercise only "specific" jurisdiction - that is, jurisdiction based on the relationship between the defendant's forum contacts and the plaintiff's claim.

In this circuit, we analyze specific jurisdiction according to a three-prong test:

- (1) The non-resident defendant must purposefully direct his activities or consummate some transaction with the forum or resident thereof; or perform some act by which he purposefully avails himself of the privilege of conducting activities in the forum, thereby invoking the benefits and protections of its laws;
- (2) the claim must be one which arises out of or relates to the defendant's forum-related activities; and
- (3) the exercise of jurisdiction must comport with fair play and substantial justice, i.e. it must be reasonable.

Schwarzenegger v. Fred Martin Motor Co., 374 F.3d. 797, 802 (9th Cir. 2004) (quoting Lake v. Lake, 817 F.2d. 1416, 1421 (9th Cir. 1987)). The first prong is determinative in this case. We have sometimes referred to it, in shorthand fashion, as the "purposeful availment" prong. Schwarzenegger, 374 F.3d. at 802. Despite its label, this prong includes both purposeful availment and purposeful direction. It may be satisfied by purposeful availment of the privilege of doing business in the forum; by purposeful direction of activities at the forum; or by some combination thereof.

[Yahoo! Inc. v. La Ligue Contre Le Racisme Et L'Antisemitisme, 433 F.3d. 1199 (9th Cir. 01/12/2006)]

Why does all this matter? Because what if you are a nonresident and the U.S. government wants to sue you for a tax liability? They can't take a nonresident (in relation to federal territory) and a "nontaxpayer" into a Federal District Court and must instead sue you in a state court under the above requirements. Even their own Internal Revenue Manual says so:

*Internal Revenue Manual
9.13.1.5 (09-17-2002)
Witnesses In Foreign Countries*

1. Nonresident aliens physically present in a foreign country cannot be compelled to appear as witnesses in a United States District Court since they are beyond jurisdiction of United States officials. Since the Constitution requires confrontation of adverse witnesses in criminal prosecutions, the testimony of such aliens may not be admissible until the witness appears at trial. However, certain testimony for the admissibility of documents may be obtained under 18 USC §3491 et seq. without a "personnel" appearance in the United States. Additionally, 28 USC §1783 et seq. provides limited powers to induce the appearance of United States citizens physically present in a foreign country.

[SOURCE: <http://www.irs.gov/irm/part9/ch13s01.html>]

1 The other great thing about being a nonresident, is that the statute of limitations under civil law DO NOT apply to you and 2 do not limit your rights or the protection of those rights.

- 3 1. If you invoke the common law rather than statutory law, you have an unlimited amount of time to sue a federal actor
4 for a tort. All such statutes of limitations are franchises to which BOTH parties to the suit must be contractors under 5 the social contract/compact in order to enforce.
- 6 2. If only one party is a "citizen" or a "resident" protected by the social contract, and the other party is protected by the 7 Constitution but not the civil law implementing the social contract, then the Constitution trumps the civil law and
8 becomes self-executing. Remedies which are "self-executing" need no statute as a basis to sue and cannot be 9 LIMITED by statute.

10 The design of the Fourteenth Amendment has proved significant also in maintaining the traditional separation of
11 *powers 524*524 between Congress and the Judiciary. The first eight Amendments to the Constitution set forth
12 self-executing prohibitions on governmental action, and this Court has had primary authority to interpret those
13 prohibitions. The Bingham draft, some thought, departed from that tradition by vesting in Congress primary*
14 power to interpret and elaborate on the meaning of the new Amendment through legislation. Under it, "Congress,
15 and not the courts, was to judge whether or not any of the privileges or immunities were not secured to citizens
16 in the several States." Flack, supra, at 64. While this separation-of-powers aspect did not occasion the widespread
17 resistance which was caused by the proposal's threat to the federal balance, it nonetheless attracted the attention
18 of various Members. See Cong. Globe, 39th Cong., 1st Sess., at 1064 (statement of Rep. Hale) (noting that Bill of
19 *Rights, unlike the Bingham proposal, "provid[e]s safeguards to be enforced by the courts, and not to be
20 exercised by the Legislature"); id., at App. 133 (statement of Rep. Rogers) (prior to Bingham proposal it "was*
21 left entirely for the courts . . . to enforce the privileges and immunities of the citizens"). As enacted, the Fourteenth
22 Amendment confers substantive rights against the States which, like the provisions of the Bill of Rights, are self-
23 executing. Cf. South Carolina v. Katzenbach, 383 U. S., at 325 (discussing Fifteenth Amendment). The power to 24 interpret the Constitution in a case or controversy remains in the Judiciary.

25 [City of Boerne v. Flores, 521 U.S. 507 (1997)]

26 Why do we say these things? Because what you think of as civil law, in most cases, is really only a private law franchise for 27 government officers, agents, instrumentalities, and/or statutory "employees", as exhaustively proven in the following
28 document:

29 Why Statutory Civil Law is Law for Government and Not Private Persons, Form #05.037
30 <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

31 Under the concepts in the above document, a "statute of limitations" is an example of an "privilege and immunity" afforded
32 to ONLY government officers and statutory "employees" when the OTHER party they injure is also a government officer or 33 employee in some capacity. If the injured party is not party to the social compact and franchise but is protected by the 34 Constitution, then the statutes of limitations cannot be invoked under the franchise.

35 5.4.8.7.5 TWO social compacts in America

36 In the United States (the country), there are, in fact TWO "social contracts" or "social compacts", and each protects a different 37 subset of the overall population.

38 "It is clear that Congress, as a legislative body, exercise two species of legislative power: the one, limited as to
39 its objects, but extending all over the Union: the other, an absolute, exclusive legislative power over the District
40 of Columbia. The preliminary inquiry in the case now before the Court, is, by virtue of which of these authorities
41 was the law in question passed?"
42 [\[Cohens v. Virginia, 19 U.S. 264, 6 Wheat. 265, 5 L.Ed. 257 \(1821\)\]](#)

43 You can only be a party to ONE of these two social contracts/compacts at a time, because you can only have a domicile in 44 ONE jurisdiction at a time. These two jurisdictions that Congress legislates for are:

- 45 1. The states of the Union under the requirements of the Constitution of the United States. In this capacity, it is called the 46 "federal/general government".
- 47 2. The U.S. government, the District of Columbia, U.S. possessions and territories, and enclaves within the states. In this 48 capacity, it is called the "national government". The authority for this jurisdiction derives from Article 1, Section 8,
49 Clause 17 of the United States Constitution. All laws passed essentially amount to municipal laws for federal property, and in that capacity, Congress is not restrained by either the Constitution or the Bill of Rights. We call the collection of all federal territories, possessions, and enclaves within the states “the federal zone” throughout this document.

The “separation of powers doctrine” is what created these two separate and distinct social compacts and jurisdictions. Each has its own courts, unique types of “citizens”, and laws. That doctrine is described in:

Government Conspiracy to Destroy the Separation of Powers, Form #05.023
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

The U.S. Supreme Court has identified the maintenance of separation between these two distinct jurisdictions as THE MOST IMPORTANT FUNCTION OF ANY COURT. Are the courts satisfying their most important function, or have they bowed to political expediency by abusing deception and words of art to entrap and enslave you in what amounts to a criminal conspiracy against your constitutional rights? Have the courts become what amounts to a modern day Judas, who sold the truth for the twenty pieces of silver they could STEAL from you through illegal tax enforcement by abusing word games?

“I take leave to say that, if the principles thus announced should ever receive the sanction of a majority of this court, a radical and mischievous change in our system of government will result. We will, in that event, pass from the era of constitutional liberty guarded and protected by a written constitution into an era of legislative absolutism..”

“The idea prevails with some, indeed it has found expression in arguments at the bar, that we have in this country substantially two national governments; one to be maintained under the Constitution, with all of its restrictions; the other to be maintained by Congress outside the independently of that instrument, by exercising such powers [of absolutism] as other nations of the earth are accustomed to..

[. . .]

It will be an evil day for American liberty if the theory of a government outside the supreme law of the land finds lodgment in our constitutional jurisprudence. No higher duty rests upon this court than to exert its full authority to prevent all violation of the principles of the Constitution.”
 [Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901), Justice Harlan, Dissenting]

WHICH of the two social compacts are you party to? Your choice of domicile determines that. It CAN'T legally be both because you can only have a domicile in ONE place at a time. Furthermore, if you have been deceived by corrupt politicians and “words of art” into becoming a party to BOTH social compacts, you are serving TWO masters, which is forbidden by the Holy Bible:

“No one can serve two masters [two employers, for instance]; for either he will hate the one and love the other, or else he will be loyal to the one and despise the other. You cannot serve God and mammon [government].”
 [Matt. 6:24, Bible, NKJV. Written by a tax collector]

5.4.8.7.6 The TWO social contracts/compacts CANNOT lawfully overlap and you can't be subject to BOTH at the same time

We might also add that franchises and the right to contract that they are based upon cannot lawfully be used to destroy the separation between these two distinct jurisdictions. Preserving that separation is, in fact, the heart and soul of the United States Constitution. That is why the U.S. Supreme Court held the following:

“Thus, Congress having power to regulate commerce with foreign nations, and among the several States, and with the Indian tribes, may, without doubt, provide for granting coasting licenses, licenses to pilots, licenses to trade with the Indians, and any other licenses necessary or proper for the exercise of that great and extensive power; and the same observation is applicable to every other power of Congress, to the exercise of which the granting of licenses may be incident. All such licenses confer authority, and give rights to the licensee.

But very different considerations apply to the internal commerce or domestic trade of the States. Over this commerce and trade Congress has no power of regulation nor any direct control. This power belongs exclusively to the States. No interference by Congress with the business of citizens transacted within a State is warranted by the Constitution, except such as is strictly incidental to the exercise of powers clearly granted to the legislature. The power to authorize [e.g. LICENSE as part of a franchise] a business within a State is plainly repugnant to the exclusive power of the State over the same subject. It is true that the power of Congress to tax

1 is a very extensive power. It is given in the Constitution, with only one exception and only two qualifications.
 2 Congress cannot tax exports, and it must impose direct taxes by the rule of apportionment, and indirect taxes by
 3 the rule of uniformity. Thus limited, and thus only, it reaches every subject, and may be exercised at discretion.
 4 But, it reaches only existing subjects. Congress cannot authorize [e.g. LICENSE] a trade or business within a
 5 State in order to tax it.
 6 [License Tax Cases, 72 U.S. 462, 18 L.Ed. 497, 5 Wall. 462, 2 A.F.T.R. 2224 (1866)]

7 Notice the language "Congress cannot authorize [e.g. LICENSE] a trade or business within a State in order to tax it.".
 8 All licensed activities are, in fact, franchises and excise taxes are what implement them and pay for them. The income tax
 9 itself, in fact, is such a franchise. See the following for exhaustive proof:

The "Trade or Business" Scam, Form #05.001
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

10 On the subject of whether Christians can be party to or consent to what the courts call "the social compact" and contract, God
 11 Himself says the following:

12 "You shall make no covenant [contract or franchise] with them [foreigners, pagans], nor with their [pagan
 13 government] gods [laws or judges]. They shall not dwell in your land [and you shall not dwell in theirs by
 14 becoming a "resident" or domiciliary in the process of contracting with them], lest they make you sin against 15 Me [God]. For if you serve their [government] gods [under contract or agreement or franchise], it will surely 16 be a snare to you."
 17 [Exodus 23:32-33, Bible, NKJV]

18 Why did God warn Christians in this way? Because Rev. 19:19 identifies political rulers as "The Beast", and contracting
 19 with them MAKES you an officer of and one of them. And as their officer or public officer participating in their franchises,
 20 you can't avoid "serving them", and hence, violating the First Commandment NOT to serve other pagan gods, among which 21 are included civil rulers or governments.

22 Now let's discuss how the courts treat the issue of the social compact to confirm what we have said in this section. The first
 23 federal corporation established outside of federal territory was the original Bank of the United States commissioned by 24 Congress. That bank invaded the state of Ohio and began operating there. The state sought to penalize and tax it out of 25 existence and the bank refused to pay the state penalties and taxes. When the state seized assets of the bank for nonpayment
 26 of taxes, the case went before the U.S. Supreme Court. The court held that the bank:

- 27 1. Was a federal but not state corporation and therefore NOT a constitutional "person" or "citizen" under the judiciary
- 28 clauses of the Constitution.
- 29 2. Was an office within the national government.
- 30 3. Was exempt from state taxes and penalties.

31 The case also held that the ONLY way that federal law can be enforced within a state of the Union was if EITHER a public
 32 office was involved (which is federal government property), OR if the bank had a contract with the government (which is 33 ALSO federal government property).

34 "All the powers of the government [including ALL of its civil enforcement powers against the public] must be
 35 carried into operation by individual agency, either through the medium of public officers, or contracts made
 36 with [private] individuals."
 37 [Osborn v. Bank of U.S., 22 U.S. 738 (1824)]

38 The above holding brings up some crucial points about civil jurisdiction in courts of justice:

- 39 1. The government can only regulate and control its own agents. That control is exercised through the civil statutes it
- 40 enacts, in fact.
- 41 2. Federal corporations, such as the original Bank of the United States that was the subject of the above case, are creations
- 42 of, agents of, and instrumentalities of the national government.
- 43 3. Contracts with the government create agency BUT NOT NECESSARILY PUBLIC OFFICE on behalf of the
- 44 government. Public offices are also evidence of agency on behalf of the government.
- 45 4. If you are not a public officer and have no contracts with the government, they can't civilly regulate or control you
- 46 because you are PRIVATE and they have no jurisdiction over EXCLUSIVELY private conduct.

5. If a government takes you into civil court seeking to enforce an obligation they claim you have to the government, then they as the moving party MUST satisfy the burden of proving ONE or more of the following two things in order to establish their jurisdiction:

- 5.1. That you are lawfully occupying a public office OR...
- 5.2. You have a contract with them and therefore are acting as their agent.

5.4.8.7.7 Challenging the enforcement of the Social Contract in a Court of law

The Social Contract is enforced, usually illegally, by judges and government prosecutors in court against unwitting and often unwilling and non-consenting parties. By "Social Compact" in this section, we mean and intend the following. We DO NOT mean the CRIMINAL code or criminal law:

1. Civil statutory "code".
2. Civil franchises.
3. Penal code.
4. Rules of court.

The boundary between what is lawful and unlawful in a civil context is determined solely by whether there is a flesh and blood PHYSICAL injured party.

For the commandments, "You shall not commit adultery," "You shall not murder," "You shall not steal," "You shall not bear false witness," "You shall not covet," and if there is any other commandment, are all summed up in this saying, namely, "You shall love your neighbor as yourself."

Love does no harm to a neighbor; therefore love is the fulfillment of the law.
[Romans 13:9-10, Bible, NKJV]

"Do not strive with [or try to regulate or control or enslave] a man without cause, if he has done you no harm."
[Prov. 3:30, Bible, NKJV]

"With all [our] blessings, what more is necessary to make us a happy and a prosperous people? Still one thing more, fellow citizens--a wise and frugal Government, which shall restrain men from injuring one another, shall leave them otherwise free to regulate their own pursuits of industry and improvement, and shall not take from the mouth of labor the bread it has earned. This is the sum of good government, and this is necessary to close the circle of our felicities."
[Thomas Jefferson: 1st Inaugural, 1801. ME 3:320]

"The makers of our Constitution undertook to secure conditions favorable to the pursuit of happiness. They recognized the significance of man's spiritual nature, of his feelings and of his intellect. They knew that only a part of the pain, pleasure and satisfactions of life are to be found in material things. They sought to protect Americans in their beliefs, their thoughts, their emotions and their sensations. They conferred, as against the Government, the right to be let alone - the most comprehensive of rights and the right most valued by civilized men."
[Olmstead v. United States, 277 U.S. 438, 478 (1928) (Brandeis, J., dissenting); see also Washington v. Harper, 494 U.S. 210 (1990)]

If there is no injured party, then all of the above types of civil franchises have no "force of law" against a non-consenting party and any legal proceeding to enforce them constitutes an INJUSTICE rather than JUSTICE.

PAULSEN, ETHICS (Thilly's translation), chap. 9.

"Justice, as a moral habit, is that tendency of the will and mode of conduct which refrains from disturbing the lives and interests of others, and, as far as possible, hinders such interference on the part of others. This virtue springs from the individual's respect for his fellows as ends in themselves and as his co equals. The different spheres of interests may be roughly classified as follows: body and life; the family, or the extended individual life; property, or the totality of the instruments of action; honor, or the ideal existence; and finally freedom, or the possibility of fashioning one's life as an end in itself. The law defends these different spheres, thus giving rise to a corresponding number of spheres of rights, each being protected by a prohibition. . . . To violate the rights, to interfere with the interests of others, is injustice. All injustice is ultimately directed against the life of the neighbor; it is an open avowal that the latter is not an end in itself, having the same value as the individual's own life. The general formula of the duty of justice may therefore be stated as follows: Do no wrong yourself, and permit no wrong to be done, so far as lies in your power; or, expressed positively: Respect and protect the right."
[Readings on the History and System of the Common Law, Second Edition, Roscoe Pound, 1925, p. 2]

1 Some questions you can ask to reveal the false presumptions protecting that enforcement and the illegality of that enforcement
2 of the above types of "rules" include the following:

3 "At this point it behooves us to consider the myth of the "social contract". Many apologists for the status quo
4 assert that we are all born as parties to a contract – and that, as a consequence, we are all subject to liabilities
5 defined by the state or [national] government. In other words, in return for the various benefits, real or imagined,
6 that we receive from the government, we owe the government a portion of whatever resources we derive from our
7 experience of life. We should note that the only people who promote this myth are those who want to spend our
8 money or to exercise power over us through the enforcement of edicts forbidding mala prohibita. They would 9 have us believe that they have a valid claim on the money that we receive in exchange for our creativity and 10 productivity."

11 Those enforcing the social contract or statutory franchise "benefits" are therefore demanded to answer the 12 following questions on the record to justify and validate the alleged "force of law" they claim to have be

29 3. Who gets to decide what a "benefit" is? You or the government? If the people are the "sovereigns" according

5.4.8.8 "Domicile"= "allegiance" and "protection"

46 The U.S. Supreme Court describes the relationship of domicile to taxation as follows:

47 "Thus, the Court has frequently held that domicile or residence, more substantial than mere presence in transit
 48 or sojourn, is an adequate basis for taxation, including income, property, and death taxes. Since the Fourteenth
 49 Amendment makes one a citizen of the state wherein he resides, the fact of residence creates universally
 50 reciprocal duties of protection by the state and of allegiance and support by the citizen. The latter obviously 51 includes a duty to pay taxes, and their nature and measure is largely a political matter. Of course, the situs of 52 property may tax it regardless of the citizenship, domicile, or residence of the owner, the most obvious illustration
 53 being a tax on realty laid by the state in which the realty is located."
 54 [Miller Brothers Co. v. Maryland, 347 U.S. 340 (1954)]

The first thing to notice about the above ruling is that the essence of being a “citizen” is one’s domicile, not just their place of birth or naturalization or the NATIONALITY these two things produce. “Domicile” establishes your LEGAL status within a municipal government while “nationality” (being a “national”) establishes your POLITICAL status and association with a specific nation under the law of nations.

“Nationality. That quality or character which arises from the fact of a person's belonging to a nation or state. Nationality determines the political status of the individual, especially with reference to allegiance; while domicile determines his civil status. Nationality arises either by birth or by naturalization. See also Naturalization.”
[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1025]

The U.S. Supreme Court admitted that an alien with a domicile in a place is treated as a native or naturalized “citizen” in nearly every respect. We call this type of “citizen” simply a “domiciled citizen” to distinguish it from anything resembling nationality. Note that they use the phrase “This right to protect persons having a domicile”, meaning they DON'T have a right to protect people who choose NOT to have a domicile and therefore are UNABLE to render protection because they can ONLY “govern” people who consent to be governed by choosing a domicile within their protection.

“This right to protect persons having a domicile, though not native-born or naturalized citizens, rests on the firm foundation of justice, and the claim to be protected is earned by considerations which the protecting power is not at liberty to disregard. Such domiciled citizen pays the same price for his protection as native-born or naturalized citizens pay for theirs. He is under the bonds of allegiance to the country of his residence, and, if he breaks them, incurs the same penalties. He owes the same obedience to the civil laws. His property is, in the same way and to the same extent as theirs, liable to contribute to the support of the Government. In nearly all respects, his and their condition as to the duties and burdens of Government are undistinguishable.”
[Fong Yue Ting v. United States, 149 U.S. 698 (1893)]

Note also the key role of the word “intention” within the meaning of domicile. A person can have many “abodes”, which are the place they temporarily “inhabit”, but only one legal “domicile”. You cannot have a legal “domicile” in a place without also having an intention (also called “consent”) to live there “permanently”, which implies allegiance to the people and the laws of that place.

What the U.S. supreme Court essentially is describing above is a contract to procure the civil protection of a specific government, and it is giving that contract a name called “domicile”. What makes the contract binding is the fact that each party to the contract both gives and receives specific and measurable “consideration”. You manifest your consent to the contract by voluntarily calling yourself a “subject”, “inhabitant”, “citizen”, or “resident”, all of which have in common a domicile within the jurisdiction that those terms relate to. You give “allegiance” and the support (e.g. “taxes”) that go with that allegiance, and in return, the government has an implied legal duty to protect and serve you. All contracts require both mutual consent and mutual consideration. Without both demonstrated elements, the contract is unenforceable. The contract is therefore only enforceable if both parties incur reciprocal duties that are enforceable in court as “rights”. Below is how the U.S. Supreme Court again describes this “protection contract”:

The reason why States are “bodies politic and corporate” is simple: just as a corporation is an entity that can act only through its agents, “[t]he State is a political corporate body, can act only through agents, and can command only by laws.” Pointdexter v. Greenhow, supra, 114 U.S., at 288, 5 S.Ct. at 912-913. See also Black's Law Dictionary 159 (5th ed. 1979) (“[B]ody politic or corporate”: “A social compact by which the whole people covenants with each citizen, and each citizen with the whole people, that all shall be governed by certain laws for the common good”). As a “body politic and corporate,” a State falls squarely within the Dictionary Act's definition of a “person.”
[Will v. Michigan Dept. of State Police, 491 U.S. 58, 109 S.Ct. 2304 (U.S.Mich., 1989)]

The interesting thing about allegiance is that in every circumstance where you try to document it on a government form, the covetous government tries to create the false impression that it must be PERMANENT, so that you can't choose WHEN and under what circumstances you have it or under what circumstances you want protection and have to pay for protection. In other words, you aren't allowed to request protection for specific circumstances and you have to give them essentially a blank check and make the relationship permanent. Here are some examples:

1. Most government forms ask for your “Permanent address”, meaning the place where your allegiance is permanent and not temporary.

2. The statutory term “national of the United States**” is defined in 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(22) as someone who owes “permanent allegiance” to the “United States**” government. These people include both state nationals (8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(22)(B)), statutory citizens (8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(22)(A)), and those in outlying possessions (8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(22)(B)).

8 U.S.C. §1101 Definitions [for the purposes of citizenship]

(a) As used in this chapter—

(22) The term “national of the United States” means

(A) a citizen of the United States, or

(B) a person who, though not a citizen of the United States, owes permanent allegiance to the United States.

3. 8 U.S.C. §1436 requires that the only way a resident of an outlying possession may be naturalized to become a STATUTORY “non-citizen national of the United States**” is to have “permanent allegiance”.

We must remember, however, that for the purposes of Title 8, even the word “permanent” is not really permanent and can be withdrawn by you on a whim.

8 U.S.C. §1101 Definitions [for the purposes of citizenship]

(a) As used in this chapter—

(31) The term “permanent” means a relationship of continuing or lasting nature, as distinguished from temporary, but a relationship may be permanent even though it is one that may be dissolved eventually at the instance either of the United States**] or of the individual, in accordance with law.

When might you want to withdraw your allegiance and the CIVIL statutory protection that goes with it? How about if you are going abroad and DO NOT want Uncle Sam’s protection or the bill (taxes) that go with that protection. Some people, including us, even fill out their DS-11 Passport Application to indicate that they waive any and all claim to protection of the national government while they are abroad and thereby temporarily WITHDRAW their allegiance while abroad. Why would they do this? Because they don’t want to be “privileged” or in receipt of any government “benefit” that could lead essentially to them having to hand Uncle a blank check to steal ANYTHING they have. What gives them the right to demand “taxes” of a STATUTORY “citizen” while they are abroad? The answer is that such “citizen” is an officer of the government managing government property. THAT property is ALL of his/her property! Here is the proof:

The Law of Nations, Book II: Of a Nation Considered in Her Relation to Other States

Even the property of the individuals is, in the aggregate, to be considered as the property of the nation, with respect to other states. It, in some sort, really belongs to her, from the right she has over the property of her citizens, because it constitutes a part of the sum total of her riches, and augments her power. She is interested in that property by her obligation to protect all her members. In short, it cannot be otherwise, since nations act and treat together as bodies in their quality of political societies, and are considered as so many moral persons. All those who form a society, a nation being considered by foreign nations as constituting only one whole, one single person, — all their wealth together can only be considered as the wealth of that same person. And this is to true, that each political society may, if it pleases, establish within itself a community of goods, as Campanella did in his republic of the sun. Others will not inquire what it does in this respect: its domestic regulations make no change in its rights with respect to foreigners nor in the manner in which they ought to consider the aggregate of its property, in what way soever it is possessed.

The above document is the document upon which the Founding Fathers wrote the Constitution. It is even mentioned in Article I of the Constitution. The implications of the above document are that calling yourself a “citizen” makes you a presumed officer of the government holding temporary title to government property, which is ALL of your property while you are abroad and being protected by the nation you are a “member” or STATUTORY “citizen” of. The implication is that:

- 1 1. If you want to own property at all while abroad and have it protected by the national government, you must consent to
 2 become an officer of the government called a “citizen” and effectively convert or transmute all your property to
 3 PUBLIC property. The U.S. Supreme Court, in fact, has defined such a “citizen” as an officer of the government:

4 "Under our own systems of polity, the term 'citizen', implying the same or similar relations to the government and
 5 to society which appertain to the term, 'subject' in England, is familiar to all. Under either system, the term used
 6 is designed to apply to man in his individual character and to his natural capacities -- to a being or agent [of
 7 government, also called a PUBLIC OFFICER!] possessing social and political rights and sustaining social,
 8 political, and moral obligations. It is in this acceptance only, therefore, that the term 'citizen', in the article of 9 the Constitution, can be received and understood. When distributing the judicial power, that article extends it
 10 to controversies between 'citizens' of different states. This must mean the natural physical beings composing 11 those separate communities, and can by no violence of interpretation be made to signify artificial, incorporeal,
 12 theoretical, and invisible creations. A corporation, therefore, being not a natural person, but a mere creature
 13 of the mind, invisible and intangible, cannot be a citizen of a state, or of the United States, and cannot fall
 14 within the terms or the power of the above mentioned article, and can therefore neither plead nor be impleaded
 15 in the courts of the United States."

16 [Rundle v. Delaware & Raritan Canal Company, 55 U.S. 80, 99 (1852) from dissenting opinion by Justice Daniel]

- 17 2. You must share ownership with the government if you want to be a STATUTORY “citizen” and receive the 18 “benefit”/franchise of the government’s CIVIL STATUTORY protection WHILE ABROAD.
 19 3. You aren’t allowed by law to ABSOLUTELY own ANY private property while abroad. The essence of ownership is 20 “the right to exclude”, according to the U.S. Supreme Court. See Nollan v. California Coastal Comm'n, 483 U.S. 825
 21 (1987) and Kaiser Aetna v. United States, 444 U.S. 164 (1979).<sup>96</sup> That means you aren’t allowed to exclude the
 22 government from using or benefitting from the use of the property and the government is the REAL owner. Would
 23 you hire a security guard called “government” if the cost of the protection was to transfer ownership TO the security
 24 guard? NOT! Hence, this is what we call a “supernatural power” that makes the government literally a pagan deity 25 over all property.
 26 4. The GOVERNMENT gets to determine how much of the property you want protected THEY own or control, and how
 27 much is left over for you. That is because they write the laws that regulate the use of all PUBLIC property. You are a 28 mere equitable rather than absolute owner of the property.

29 The sharing of ownership in legal terms is called a “moiety”. With these factors in mind, why the HELL would anyone want
 30 to call themselves a STATUTORY “citizen”? Isn’t the purpose of forming government to protect PRIVATE property and 31 PRIVATE rights? Isn’t the ability to own property the essence of “happiness” itself according to the Declaration of 32 Independence? How can you be “happy” if you have to share ownership of EVERYTHING with the government and turn
 33 EVERYTHING you own essentially into PUBLIC property to have any protection at all? For details on sharing ownership
 34 with the government, see:

Separation Between Public and Private, Form #12.025
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

35 Obviously, the “price” of government protection is too high, and therefore a rational and informed person would have to 36 conclude that having “allegiance” and requesting “protection” from the government as a security guard over their property is 37 something that they should NOT want. So how do we withdraw that allegiance and our request for protection? A good place
 38 to start is studying the laws on passports.

39 On the other hand, when obtaining a USA passport, one only needs “allegiance” and no requirement for permanence is 40 mandated, other than, of course, the Address field on the DS-11 Form, which asks for a “permanent address”. If you don’t
 41 fill out anything in that field because your allegiance is temporary and you DO NOT WANT their protection, then you can 42 make your allegiance temporary and changeable.

<sup>96</sup> “We have repeatedly held that, as to property reserved by its owner for private use, “the right to exclude [others is] ‘one of the most essential sticks in the bundle of rights that are commonly characterized as property.’” Loretto v. Teleprompter Manhattan CATV Corp., 458 U.S. 419, 433 (1982), quoting Kaiser Aetna v. United States, 444 U.S. 164, 176 (1979). “[Nollan v. California Coastal Comm'n, 483 U.S. 825 (1987)]

“In this case, we hold that the “right to exclude,” so universally held to be a fundamental element of the property right,[11] falls within this category of interests that the Government cannot take without compensation.” [Kaiser Aetna v. United States, 444 U.S. 164 (1979)]

[11] See, e. g., United States v. Pueblo of San Ildefonso, 206 Ct.Cl. 649, 669-670, 513 F.2d. 1383, 1394 (1975); United States v. Lutz, 295 F.2d. 736, 740 (CA5 1961). As stated by Mr. Justice Brandeis, “[a]n essential element of individual property is the legal right to exclude others from enjoying it.” International News Service v. Associated Press, 248 U.S. 215, 250 (1918) (dissenting opinion).

1 "No passport shall be granted or issued to or verified for any other persons than those owing allegiance, whether
 2 citizens or not, to the United States."
 3 [22 U.S.C. §212]

4 See the following for details on how to WITHDRAW allegiance when abroad in the passport application process:

Getting a USA Passport as a "state national", Form #10.013
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

5 Now let's look at the domicile "protection contract" or "protection franchise" a little closer. Does it meet all the requisite
 6 legal elements of a legally enforceable contract? In fact, after you declare your exclusive allegiance to the "state" by declaring
 7 a "domicile" within that state so that you can procure "protection", ironically, the courts continue to forcefully insist that your
 8 public SERVANTS STILL have NO LEGAL OBLIGATION to protect you! This is what Franklin Delano Roosevelt, the 9 traitor, calls "The New Deal", and what we call "The RAW Deal". Below is the AMAZING truth right from the horse's 10 mouth, the courts, proving that police officers cannot be sued if they fail to come to your aid after you call them when you
 11 have a legitimate need for their protection:

Do You Have a Right to Police Protection?
<http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Crime/Articles/PoliceProtection.htm>

12 Consequently, the "protection contract" is unenforceable as a duty upon you because it imposes no reciprocal duty upon the 13 government. On the one hand, the government throws people in jail for failing to pay for protection in the form of "taxes",
 14 while on the other hand, it refuses to prosecute police officers for failing to provide the protection that was paid for, even 15 though their willful or negligent refusal to protect us could have far more injurious and immediate effects than simply failing
 16 to pay for protection. This is a violation of the equal protection of the laws. If it is a crime to not pay for protection, then it
 17 ought to equally be a crime to not provide it! Who would want to live in a country or be part of a "state" that would condone
 18 such hypocrisy? That is why we advocate "divorcing the state". It is precisely this type of hypocrisy that explains why
 19 prominent authorities will tell you that taxes are not "contractual": because the courts treat it like a contract and a criminal 20 matter to not pay taxes for "taxpayers", but refuse to hold public servants equally liable for their half of the bargain, which is
 21 protection:

22 "A tax is not regarded as a debt in the ordinary sense of that term, for the reason that a tax does not depend upon
 23 the consent of the taxpayer and there is no express or implied contract to pay taxes. Taxes are not contracts
 24 between party and party, either express or implied; but they are the positive acts of the government, through its 25 various agents, binding upon the inhabitants, and to the making and enforcing of which their personal consent
 26 individually is not required."
 27 [Cooley, Law of Taxation, Fourth Edition, pgs 88-89]

28 The above is a deception at best and a LIE at worst. A "taxpayer" is legally defined as a person liable, and it is true that for 29 such a person, taxes are not consensual and in no way "voluntary". HOWEVER, the choice about whether one wishes to 30 BECOME a "taxpayer" as legally defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(14) is based on domicile and the excise taxable activities
 31 one voluntarily engages in, both of which in fact ARE voluntary actions and choices. By their careful choice of words, they 32 have misrepresented the truth so they could get into your pocket. What else would you expect of greedy LIARS, I mean
 33 "lawyers"? We would also like to take this opportunity to clarify for whom taxes are "voluntary" in order to further clarify
 34 the title of this section:

- 35 1. Income taxes under I.R.C., Subtitle A are not voluntary for "taxpayers".
- 36 2. Income taxes under I.R.C., Subtitle A are not voluntary for everyone, because some subset of everyone are "taxpayers".
- 37 3. Income taxes under I.R.C., Subtitle A are voluntary for those who are "nontaxpayers", who we define here as those 38 persons who are NOT the "taxpayer" defined in 26 U.S.C. §§7701(a)(14) and 1313.

39 "Revenue Laws relate to taxpayers [officers, employees, instrumentalities, and elected officials of the Federal 40 Government] and not to non-taxpayers [American Citizens/American Nationals not subject to the exclusive 41 jurisdiction of the Federal Government]. The latter are without their scope. No procedures are prescribed for 42 non-taxpayers and no attempt is made to annul any of their Rights or Remedies in due course of law."
 43 [Economy Plumbing & Heating v. U.S., 470 F.2d. 585 (1972)]

44 Some other points to consider about this "Raw Deal" scam:

1. You can't be a statutory "citizen" or a "resident" without having a legally enforceable right to protection.
2. Since the government won't enforce the rendering of the ONLY consideration required to make you a "citizen" or a "resident", then the protection contract is unenforceable and technically, you can't lawfully therefore call yourself a "citizen".
3. Since you can't be a member of a "state" without being a "citizen", then technically, there is no de jure "state", no de jure government that serves this "state", and no "United States". It's just "US", friends, cause there ain't no "U.S.!"
4. The implication is that your government has legally abandoned you and you are an orphan, because they didn't complete their half of the protection contract bargain. Without a government, God is back in charge. The Bible says He owns the earth anyway, which leaves us as "nonresidents" and "transient foreigners" in respect to any jurisdiction that claims to be a "government" because we know they're lying.
5. The Bible says of this "Raw Deal" the following: You've been HAD, folks!

*For thus says the LORD: "You have sold yourselves for nothing, And you shall be redeemed without money."
[Isaiah 52:3, Bible, NKJV]*

The U.S. Supreme Court has also held that "allegiance" is completely incompatible with any system of "citizenship" in a republican form of government, and that it is "repulsive". Consequently, we must conclude that allegiance to anything but God is therefore to be avoided at all costs.

*"Yet, it is to be remembered, and that whether in its real origin, or in its artificial state, allegiance, as well as fealty, rests upon lands, and it is due to persons. Not so, with respect to Citizenship, which has arisen from the dissolution of the feudal system and is a substitute for allegiance, corresponding with the new order of things. Allegiance and citizenship, differ, indeed, in almost every characteristic. Citizenship is the effect of compact [CONTRACT!]; allegiance is the offspring of power and necessity. Citizenship is a political tie; allegiance is a territorial tenure. Citizenship is the charter of equality; allegiance is a badge of inferiority. Citizenship is constitutional; allegiance is personal. Citizenship is freedom; allegiance is servitude. Citizenship is communicable; allegiance is repulsive. Citizenship may be relinquished; allegiance is perpetual. With such essential differences, the doctrine of allegiance is inapplicable to a system of citizenship; which it can neither serve to controul, nor to elucidate. And yet, even among the nations, in which the law of allegiance is the most firmly established, the law most pertinaciously enforced, there are striking deviations that demonstrate the invincible power of truth, and the homage, which, under every modification of government, must be paid to the inherent rights of man.... The doctrine is, that allegiance cannot be due to two sovereigns; and taking an oath of allegiance to a new, is the strongest evidence of withdrawing allegiance from a previous, sovereign...."

Consequently, we must conclude that allegiance to anything but God is therefore to be avoided at all costs. Notice also that they say that citizenship is the effect of "compact", which is a type of contract. If "domicile" is the basis of citizenship, and citizenship is the effect of "compact", then "domicile" amounts to the equivalent of a "contract". This leads us right back to the conclusion that the voluntary choice of one's "domicile" is a "contract" to procure man-made protection and fire God as our protector:

*"Compact, n. An agreement or contract between persons, nations, or states. Commonly applied to working agreements between and among states concerning matters of mutual concern. A contract between parties, which creates obligations and rights capable of being enforced and contemplated as such between the parties, in their distinct and independent characters. A mutual consent of parties concerned respecting some property or right that is the object of the stipulation, or something that is to be done or forborne. See also Compact clause; Confederacy; Interstate compact; Treaty."
[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 281]*

The Bible is consistent with the Supreme Court above in its disdain for "allegiance". It has a name for those expressing "allegiance": It is called an "oath". When a person becomes a naturalized citizen of the United States, he must by law (see 8 U.S.C. §1448) take an "oath" of "allegiance" and be "sworn in". When a person signs an income tax return, he must swear a perjury oath. Jesus, on the other hand, commanded believers not to take "oaths" to anything but God, and especially not to earthly Kings, and said that doing otherwise was essentially Satanic:

*"Again you have heard that it was said to those of old, 'You shall not swear falsely, but shall perform your oaths to the Lord.' But I say to you, do not swear at all: neither by heaven, for it is God's throne; nor by the earth, for it is His footstool; nor by Jerusalem, for it is the city of the great King. Nor shall you swear by your head, because you cannot make one hair white or black. But let your 'Yes' be 'Yes,' and your 'No,' 'No.' For whatever is more than these is from the evil one [Satan]."
[Matt. 5:33-37, Bible, NKJV]

1 God also commanded us to take oaths ONLY in His name and no others:

2 "You shall fear the LORD your God and serve [only] Him, and shall take oaths in His name."
3 [Deut. 6:13, Bible, NKJV]

4 "If a man makes a vow to the LORD, or swears an oath to bind himself by some agreement, he shall not break
5 his word; he shall do according to all that proceeds out of his mouth."
6 [Numbers 30:2, Bible, NKJV]

7 Israel's first King, Saul, in fact, distressed the people because one of his first official acts was to try to put the people under 8 oath to him instead of God.

9 "And the men of Israel were distressed that day, for Saul had placed the people under oath"
10 [1 Sam. 14:24, Bible, NKJV]

11 God's response to the Israelites electing a King/protector to whom they would owe "allegiance", in fact, was to say that they 12 sinned:

13 Then all the elders of Israel gathered together and came to Samuel at Ramah, and said to him, "Look, you are 14 old, and your sons do not walk in your ways. Now make us a king to judge us like all the nations [and be OVER 15 them]".

16 But the thing displeased Samuel when they said, "Give us a king to judge us." So Samuel prayed to the Lord. And
17 the Lord said to Samuel, "Heed the voice of the people in all that they say to you; for they have rejected Me
18 [God], that I should not reign over them. According to all the works which they have done since the day that I
19 brought them up out of Egypt, even to this day—with which they have forsaken Me and served other gods [Kings,
20 in this case]—so they are doing to you also [government becoming idolatry]. Now therefore, heed their voice.
21 However, you shall solemnly forewarn them, and show them the behavior of the king who will reign over
22 them."

23 So Samuel told all the words of the LORD to the people who asked him for a king. And he said, "This will be the
24 behavior of the king who will reign over you: He will take [STEAL] your sons and appoint them for his own
25 chariots and to be his horsemen, and some will run before his chariots. He will appoint captains over his 26 thousands and captains over his fifties, will set some to plow his ground and reap his harvest, and some to 27 make his weapons of war and equipment for his chariots. He will take [STEAL] your daughters to be
28 perfumers, cooks, and bakers. And he will take [STEAL] the best of your fields, your vineyards, and your olive 29 groves, and give them to his servants. He will take [STEAL] a tenth of your grain and your vintage, and give 30 it to his officers and servants. And he will take [STEAL] your male servants, your female servants, your finest
31 young men, and your donkeys, and put them to his work [as SLAVES]. He will take [STEAL] a tenth of your 32 sheep. And you will be his servants. And you will cry out in that day because of your king whom you have 33 chosen for yourselves, and the LORD will not hear you in that day."

34 Nevertheless the people refused to obey the voice of Samuel; and they said, "No, but we will have a king over us,
35 that we also may be like all the nations, and that our king may judge us and go out before us and fight our battles."
36 [1 Sam. 8:4-20, Bible, NKJV]

37 Notice above the repeated words "He [the new King] will take...". God is really warning them here that the King they elect
38 will STEAL from them, which is exactly what our present day government does! Some things never change, do they?

39 Since God clearly states that it violates His law to have a king ABOVE you, then by implication, Christians are FORBIDDEN
40 by His sacred law from becoming a "subject" under any civil statutory law system that allows any government or civil ruler
41 to engage in any of the following types of anarchy, lawlessness, or superiority:

- 42 1. Are superior in any way to the people they govern UNDER THE LAW.
- 43 2. Are not directly accountable to the people or the law. They prohibit the PEOPLE from criminally prosecuting their 44 own crimes, reserving the right to prosecute to their own fellow criminals. Who polices the police? THE 45 CRIMINALS.
- 46 3. Enact laws that exempt themselves. This is a violation of the Constitutional requirement for equal protection and equal 47 treatment and constitutes an unconstitutional Title of Nobility in violation of Article 1, Section 9, Clause 8 of the 48 United States Constitution.
- 49 4. Only enforce the law against others and NOT themselves, as a way to protect their own criminal activities by 50 persecuting dissidents. This is called "selective enforcement". In the legal field it is also called "professional 51 courtesy". Never kill the goose that lays the STOLEN golden eggs.

5. Break the laws with impunity. This happens most frequently when corrupt people in government engage in “selective enforcement”, whereby they refuse to prosecute or interfere with the prosecution of anyone in government. The Department of Justice (D.O.J.) or the District Attorney are the most frequent perpetrators of this type of crime.
6. Are able to choose which laws they want to be subject to, and thus refuse to enforce laws against themselves. The most frequent method for this type of abuse is to assert sovereign, official, or judicial immunity as a defense in order to protect the wrongdoers in government when they are acting outside their delegated authority, or outside what the definitions in the statutes EXPRESSLY allow.
7. Impute to themselves more rights or methods of acquiring rights than the people themselves have. In other words, who are the object of PAGAN IDOL WORSHIP because they possess “supernatural” powers. By “supernatural”, we mean that which is superior to the “natural”, which is ordinary human beings.
8. Claim and protect their own sovereign immunity, but refuse to recognize the same EQUAL immunity of the people from whom that power was delegated to begin with. Hypocrites.
9. Abuse sovereign immunity to exclude either the government or anyone working in the government from being subject to the laws they pass to regulate everyone ELSE'S behavior. In other words, they can choose WHEN they want to be a statutory “person” who is subject, and when they aren't. Anyone who has this kind of choice will ALWAYS corruptly exclude themselves and include everyone else, and thereby enforce and implement an unconstitutional “Title of Nobility” towards himself. On this subject, the U.S. Supreme Court has held the following:

"No man in this country [including legislators of the government as a legal person] is so high that he is above the law. No officer of the law may set that law at defiance with impunity. All the officers of the government, from the highest to the lowest, are creatures of the law and are bound to obey it. It is the only supreme power in our system of government, and every man who by accepting office participates in its functions is only the more strongly bound to submit to that supremacy, and to observe the limitations which it imposes upon the exercise of the authority which it gives." 106 U.S., at 220. "Shall it be said... that the courts cannot give remedy when the Citizen has been deprived of his property by force, his estate seized and converted to the use of the government without any lawful authority, without any process of law, and without any compensation, because the president has ordered it and his officers are in possession? If such be the law of this country, it sanctions a tyranny which has no existence in the monarchies of Europe, nor in any other government which has a just claim to well-regulated liberty and the protection of personal rights," 106 U.S., at 220, 221.
[United States v. Lee, 106 U.S. 196, 1 S. Ct. 240 (1882)]

10. Have a monopoly on anything, INCLUDING “protection”, and who turn that monopoly into a mechanism to force EVERYONE illegally to be treated as uncompensated public officers in exchange for the “privilege” of being able to even exist or earn a living to support oneself.
11. Can tax and spend any amount or percentage of the people's earnings over the OBJECTIONS of the people.
12. Can print, meaning illegally counterfeit, as much money as they want to fund their criminal enterprise, and thus to be completely free from accountability to the people.
13. Deceive and/or lie to the public with impunity by telling you that you can't trust anything they say, but force YOU to sign everything under penalty of perjury when you want to talk to them. 26 U.S.C. §6065.

Jesus Himself agreed that we cannot allow civil rulers to be ABOVE us in any way, when He said:

"You know that the rulers of the Gentiles lord it over them, and those who are great exercise authority over them. Yet it shall not be so among you; but whoever desires to become great among you, let him be your servant. And whoever desires to be first among you, let him be your slave— just as the Son of Man did not come to be served, but to serve, and to give His life a ransom for many."
[Matt. 20: 25-28, Bible, NKJV. See also Mark 10:42-45]

Jesus' words above are very descriptive of the RESULT of allowing rulers to be ABOVE those they serve:

1. He identifies his reference as referring to civil rulers.
2. “Authority over” refers to authority ABOVE that possessed by mere natural humans. In other words, the powers exercised are “supernatural”. “Super” means ABOVE and “natural” means above you, who are a natural human being.
3. The phrase “Lord it over” means that they in effect are “gods” who are OVER or ABOVE those who “worship” them by obeying their man-made STATUTES or CIVIL CODES. The source of law in any society is, in fact, the god of that society.

The nature and substance of any government that violates the above admonition of Jesus is described in the following:

1 ONLY when the people are in deed EQUAL in every way to those in the government can anyone be truly FREE in any sense
2 of the word. The U.S. Supreme Court confirmed this when it held:

3 "No duty rests more imperatively upon the courts than the enforcement of those constitutional provisions intended
4 to secure that equality of rights which is the foundation of free government."
5 [Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Ellis, 165 U.S. 150 (1897) ]

8 5.4.8.9 Choice of Domicile is a voluntary and SERIOUS choice

9 "The rights of the individual are not derived from governmental agencies, either municipal, state or federal, or 10 even from the Constitution. They exist inherently in every man, by endowment of the Creator, and are merely
11 reaffirmed in the Constitution, and restricted only to the extent that they have been voluntarily surrendered by 12 the citizenship to the agencies of government. The people's rights are not derived from the government, but the 13 *government's authority comes from the people.*946 The Constitution but states again these rights already* 14 existing, and when legislative encroachment by the nation, state, or municipality invade these original and
15 permanent rights, it is the duty of the courts to so declare, and to afford the necessary relief. The fewer restrictions
16 that surround the individual liberties of the citizen, except those for the preservation of the public health, safety,
17 and morals, the more contented the people and the more successful the democracy."
18 [City of Dallas v Mitchell, 245 S.W. 944 (1922)]

19 The law and government that a person voluntarily consents or "intends" to be subject to determines where their "legal home"
20 is under this concept. This choice must be completely voluntary and not subject to coercion or intimidation because all just 21 powers of any free government derive from the "consent of the governed", as the Declaration of Independence indicates.

22 § 143. Id. Actual Choice. - Third. There must be actual choice. In order to effect a change of domicil a person
23 must not only be capable of forming the proper intention and free to do so, but he must actually form such 24 intention.
25 [A Treatise on the Law of Domicil, National, Quasi-National, and Municipal, M.W. Jacobs, Little, Brown, and
26 Company, 1887, p. 208]

27 This form of consent is called "allegiance" in the legal field. A voluntary choice of allegiance to a place amounts to a choice
28 to join or associate with a group of people called a "state" and to respect, be subject to, and obey all positive laws passed by
29 the citizens who dwell there. The First Amendment guarantees us a right of free association, and therefore, only we can 30 choose the group of people we wish to associate with and be protected by as a result of choosing a "domicile". The First
31 Amendment also guarantees us a right of freedom from "compelled association", which is the act of forcing a person to join
32 or be part of any group, including a "state".

33 Just as there is freedom to speak, to associate, and to believe, so also there is freedom not to speak, associate, or
34 believe "The right to speak and the right to refrain from speaking [on a government tax return, and in violation
35 of the Fifth Amendment when coerced, for instance] are complementary components of the broader concept
36 of "individual freedom of mind." Wooley v. Maynard [430 U.S. 703] (1977). Freedom of conscience dictates
37 that no individual may be forced to espouse ideological causes with which he disagrees:

38 "[A]t the heart of the First Amendment is the notion that the individual should be free to believe as he will, and 39 that in a free society one's beliefs should be shaped by his mind and by his conscience rather than coerced by the 40 State [through illegal enforcement of the revenue laws]." Abood v. Detroit Board of Education [431 U.S. 209]
41 (1977)

42 Freedom from compelled association is a vital component of freedom of expression. Indeed, freedom from 43 compelled association illustrates the significance of the liberty or personal autonomy model of the First
44 Amendment. As a general constitutional principle, it is for the individual and not for the state to choose one's 45 associations and to define the persona which he holds out to the world.
46 [First Amendment Law, Barron-Dienes, West Publishing, ISBN 0-314-22677-X, pp. 266-267]

47 The California FTB Publication 1031, Guidelines for Determining Resident Status, Year 2013 confirms that the government
48 CANNOT determine the status for you and that only you can determine the status:

1                   "The FTB will not issue written opinions on whether you are a California resident for a particular period of time
2                   because residency is a question of fact, not law. The information included in this publication is provided to help
3                   you with this determination."

4                   [Guidelines for Determining Resident Status, Publication 1031 (2013), p. 1, California Franchise Tax Board
5                   (FTB)]

6           Therefore, no government has lawful authority to compel us to choose a "domicile" that is within its legislative jurisdiction
7           or to have allegiance towards it, because that would be compelled association. The right to choose what political group or
8           country we wish to join and have allegiance to and protection from also implies that we can reject all the earthly options and
9           simply elect to join God's followers and be subject ONLY to His laws. This type of government would be called a
10          "theocracy". This, in fact, is the goal of this entire publication: Establishing an ecclesiastical state separate from the corrupted
11          governments that plague our land. It is a stark reality that what you define as protection might amount to its opposite for 12          someone else. Therefore, each person is free to:

- 13       1. Define what "protection" means to them.
- 14       2. Choose to join a political group or country that agrees most with their definition of "protection". This makes them into 15       "nationals" of that country who profess "allegiance" to the "state" and thereby merit its protection.
- 16       3. Choose a "domicile" within that country or group, and thereby become subject to its laws and a benefactor of its 17       protection.

18          The notion of freedom to choose one's allegiances and protectors is a natural consequence of the fact that a "state" can consist
19          of any number of people, from one person to millions or even billions of people. The political landscape constantly changes
20          precisely because people are constantly exercising their right to change their political associations. A single person is free to 21          create his own "state" and pass his own laws, and to choose a domicile within that created state. The boundaries of that
22          created "state" might include only himself, only his immediate family, or encompass an entire city, county, or district. He
23          might do this because he regards the society in which he lives to be so corrupt that it's laws, morality, and norms are injurious
24          rather than protective. Such a motive, in fact, is behind an effort called the "Free State Project", in which people are trying
25          to get together to create a new and different type of state within the borders of our country. The U.S. Supreme Court, in fact,
26          has ruled that when the laws of a society become more injurious than protective to us personally, then we cease to have any
27          obligation to obey them and may lawfully choose other allegiances and domiciles that afford better protection. To wit:

28                   "By the surrender, the inhabitants passed under a temporary allegiance to the British government and were bound
29                   *by such laws and such only as it chose to recognize and impose. From the nature of the case, no other laws
30                   could be obligatory upon them, for where there is no protection or allegiance or sovereignty, there can be no
31                   claim to obedience."*

32                   [Hanauer v. Woodruff, 82 U.S. (15 Wall.) 439 (1872)]

33          If a person decides that the laws and the people of the area in which he lives are injurious of his life, liberty, and property,
34          then he is perfectly entitled to withhold his allegiance and shift his domicile to a place where better protection is
35          afforded. When a person has allegiance and domicile to a place or society other than where he lives, then he is considered
36          "foreign" in that society and all people comprising that society become "foreigners" relative to him in such a case. He becomes 37          a "transient foreigner" and the only laws that are obligatory upon him are the criminal laws and the common law and no other.
38          Below is what the U.S. Supreme Court said about the right of people to choose to disassociate with such "foreigners" who 39          can do them harm. Note that they say the United States government has the right to exclude foreigners who are injurious.
40          This authority, it says, comes from the Constitution, which in turn was delegated by the Sovereign People. The People cannot 41          delegate an authority they do not have; therefore they must individually ALSO have this authority within their own private 42          lives of excluding injurious peoples from their legal and political life by changing their domicile and citizenship. This act of 43          excluding such foreigners becomes what we call a "political divorce" and the result accomplishes the equivalent of 44          "disconnecting from the government matrix":

45                   "The government, possessing the powers which are to be exercised for protection and security, is clothed with
46                   authority to determine the occasion on which the powers shall be called forth; and its determinations, so far as
47                   *the subjects affected are concerned, are necessarily conclusive upon all its departments and officers. If, therefore,
48                   the government of the United States, through its legislative department, considers the presence of foreigners
49                   of a different race in this country, who will not assimilate with us, to be dangerous to its peace and security,
50                   their exclusion is not to be stayed because at the time there are no actual hostilities with the nation of which
51                   the foreigners are subjects. The existence of war would render the necessity of the proceeding only more obvious
52                   and pressing. The same necessity, in a less pressing degree, may arise when war does not exist, and the same
53                   authority which adjudges the necessity in one case must also determine it in the other. In both cases its 54                   determination is conclusive upon the judiciary. If the government of the country of which the foreigners excluded 55                   are subjects is dissatisfied with this action, it can make complaint to the executive head of our government, or*

1 resort to any other measure which, in its judgment, its interests or dignity may demand; and there lies its only 2 remedy.

3 The power of the government to exclude foreigners from the country whenever, in its judgment, the public interests
4 require such exclusion, has been asserted in repeated instances, and never denied by the executive or legislative 5 departments.

6 [ . . . ]

7 The power of exclusion of foreigners being an incident of sovereignty belonging to the government of the 8 United States as a part of those sovereign powers delegated by the constitution, the right to its exercise at any
9 time when, in the judgment of the government, the interests of the country require it, cannot be granted away
10 or restrained on behalf of any one. The powers of government are delegated in trust to the United States, and 11 are incapable of transfer to any other parties. They cannot be abandoned or surrendered. Nor can their exercise
12 be hampered, when needed for the public good, by any considerations of private interest. The exercise of these 13 public trusts is not the subject of barter or contract."
14 Chae Chan Ping v. U.S., [130 U.S. 581 (1889)]

15 Notice above the phrase:

16 "If the government of the country of which the foreigners excluded are subjects is dissatisfied with this action, it
17 can make complaint to the executive head of our government, or resort to any other measure which, in its 18 judgment, its interests or dignity may demand; and there lies its only remedy."

19 The court is tacitly admitting that there is NO legal remedy in the case where a foreigner is expelled because the party
20 expelling him has an absolute right to do so. This inalienable right to expel harmful foreigners is just as true of what happens
21 on a person's private property as it is to what they want to do with their ENTIRE LIFE, property, and liberty. This same
22 argument applies to us divorcing ourselves from the state where we live. There is absolutely no legal remedy in any court
23 and no judge has any discretion to interfere with your absolute authority to divorce not only the state, but HIM! This is BIG,
24 folks! You don't have to prove that a society is injurious in order to disassociate from it because your right to do so is absolute,
25 but if you want or need a few very good reasons why our present political system is injurious that you can show to a judge
26 or a court, read through chapter 2 of this book.

27 The following authority establishes that a change in domicile is a SERIOUS choice that can have drastic effects upon people:

28 "§ 124. A Change of Domicil a Serious Matter, and presumed against –

29 But in any case a change of domicil, whether domicil of origin or of choice, national or quasi-national, is a
30 very serious matter, involving as it may, and as it frequently does, an entire change of personal [CIVIL] law.
31 The validity and construction of a man's testamentary acts and title disposition of his personal property in case
32 of intestacy; his legitimacy in some cases and, if illegitimate, his capacity for legitimation; the rights and (in the 33 view of some jurists) the capacities of married women; jurisdiction to grant divorces, and, according to the more
34 recent English view, capacity to contract marriage, all these and very many other legal questions depend for their
35 solution upon the principle of domicil; I so that upon the determination of the question of domicil it may depend
36 oftentimes whether a person is legitimate or illegitimate, married or single, testate or intestate, capable or
37 incapable of doing a variety of acts and possessing a variety of rights. To the passage quoted .. in the last section
38 Kindersley, V. C., adds: "In truth, to hold that a man has acquired a domicil in a foreign country is a most serious 39 matter, involving as it does the consequence that the validity or invalidity of his testamentary acts and the 40 disposition of his personal property are to be governed by the laws of that foreign country. No doubt the evidence
41 may be so strong and conclusive as to render such a decision unavoidable. But the consequences of such a 42 decision may be, and generally are, so serious and so injurious to the welfare of families, that it can only be 43 justified by the clearest and most conclusive evidence."

44 [A Treatise on the Law of Domicil, National, Quasi-National, and Municipal, M.W. Jacobs, Little, Brown, and
45 Company, 1887, p. 186]

46 Lastly, we emphasize that there is no method OTHER than domicile available in which to consent to the civil laws of a 47 specific place. None of the following conditions, for instance, may form a basis for a prima facie presumption that a specific 48 human being consented to be civilly governed by a specific municipal government:

- 49 1. Simply being born and thereby becoming a statutory "national" (per 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21)) of a specific country is 50 NOT an exercise of personal discretion or an express act of consent.
- 51 2. Simply living in a physical place WITHOUT choosing a domicile there is NOT an exercise of personal discretion or an 52 express act of consent.

5.4.8.10 Theological significance of Domicile

5.4.8.10.1 Domicile in the Bible

Throughout the Bible, the terms “dwell”, “dwelling”, “abode”, or “refuge” are used as a synonym for the legal concept of CIVIL DOMICILE. Below are some examples:

1. Numbers 35:29: The “statutes” are God’s law, meaning that God’s law takes precedence over the local man-made laws wherever the Israelites went.

*‘And these things shall be a statute of judgment to you throughout your generations in all your dwellings [domiciles].
[Numbers 35:29, Bible, NKJV]*

2. Deut. 12:5: The place God chooses is the Kingdom of Heaven, and we are to take THAT instead of a civil ruler as our “dwelling” or “domicile”.

*“But you shall seek the place where the Lord your God chooses, out of all your tribes, to put His name for His dwelling place; and there you shall go.
[Deut. 12:5, Bible, NKJV]*

3. Nehemiah 1:6-11: When the people restore God’s law to its proper role above man’s law, God gathers them together in ONE place and under ONE law. In a legal sense, this means that they all share the same civil domicile in the Kingdom of Heaven. The below scripture describes the reestablishment of a theocracy that put God in charge and King instead of a heathen King. Those who don’t have a domicile in God’s jurisdiction are not REQUIRED to keep His laws or “fear him”, which this scripture describes as “acting corruptly”.

*“Both my father’s house and I have sinned. <sup>7</sup> We have acted very corruptly against You, and have not kept the commandments, the statutes, nor the ordinances which You commanded Your servant Moses. <sup>8</sup> Remember, I pray, the word that You commanded Your servant Moses, saying, ‘If you are unfaithful, I will scatter you among the nations; but if you return to Me, and keep My commandments and do them, though some of you were cast out to the farthest part of the heavens, yet I will gather them from there, and bring them to the place which I have chosen as a dwelling for My name.’ Now these are Your servants [officers] and Your people, whom You have redeemed by Your great power, and by Your strong hand. O Lord, I pray, please let Your ear be attentive to the prayer of Your servant, and to the prayer of Your servants who desire to fear Your name; and let Your servant prosper this day, I pray, and grant him mercy in the sight of this man.”
[Neh. 1:6-11, Bible, NKJV]*

4. Job 8:22: The dwelling place (domicile) of the wicked will bring them shame. That dwelling place is under an earthly King RATHER than under God. It is a SIN to have an Earthly King above:

*“Those who hate you will be clothed with shame, And the dwelling place of the wicked will come to nothing.”
[Job 8:22, Bible, NKJV]*

5. Psalm 33:13-15: God’s domicile is the Kingdom of Heaven:

“The LORD looks from heaven;
He sees all the sons of men.
From the place of His dwelling He looks
On all the inhabitants of the earth;
He fashions their hearts individually;
He considers all their works.”
[Psalm 33:13-15, Bible, NKJV]*

6. Joel 3:17: God “dwells” in a holy mountain. Mountains are symbol of political kingdoms in the bible.

*“So you shall know that I am the Lord your God, Dwelling in Zion My holy mountain. Then Jerusalem shall be holy, And no aliens shall ever pass through her again.”
[Joel 3:17, Bible, NKJV]*

7. Jude 1:5-7: Those who abandon a domicile in the Kingdom of Heaven are cursed. An example would be those who abandon a civil domicile in God’s kingdom in exchange for the protection of an earthly King:

Old and New Apostates

But I want to remind you, though you once knew this, that the Lord, having saved the people out of the land of Egypt, afterward destroyed those who did not believe. And the angels who did not keep their proper domain, but left their own abode, He has reserved in everlasting chains under darkness for the judgment of the great day; as Sodom and Gomorrah, and the cities around them in a similar manner to these, having given themselves over to sexual immorality and gone after strange flesh, are set forth as an example, suffering the vengeance of eternal fire.

[Jude 1:5-7, Bible, NKJV]

8. John 14: The phrase “in my Father” means being LEGALLY WITHIN God as a “person” and as His AGENT under the laws of agency. In other words, Jesus is God’s representative, officer, and agent and are joined together LEGALLY but not PHYSICALLY to be within one corporate body. That corporate body is called “The Kingdom of Heaven”. “make our abode with him” in the following scripture means that God is LEGALLY PRESENT with you as a protector when you obey His commandments.

At that day ye shall know that I am in my Father, and ye in me, and I in you.

He that hath my commandments, and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me: and he that loveth me shall be loved of my Father, and I will love him, and will manifest myself to him.

Judas saith unto him, not Iscariot, Lord, how is it that thou wilt manifest thyself unto us, and not unto the world?

Jesus answered and said unto him, If a man love me, he will keep my words: and my Father will love him, and we will come unto him, and make our abode with him.

[John 14:20-23, Bible, KJV]

9. Psalm 90:1: Devout Christians make God their domicile and “dwelling place” throughout all time no matter where they physically are:

“Lord, You have been our dwelling place in all generations.”

[Psalm 90:1, Bible, NKJV]

10. Psalm 91: To have Heaven as your domicile means you are “abiding in the shadow of the Almighty” and taking “refuge” under the protection of his civil laws.

He who dwells in the secret place of the Most High
Shall abide under the shadow of the Almighty.

[. . .]

Because you have made the LORD, who is my refuge,
Even the Most High, your dwelling place,

No evil shall befall you,

Nor shall any plague come near your dwelling;

For He shall give His angels charge over you,

To keep you in all your ways.

In their hands they shall bear you up,

Lest you dash your foot against a stone.

You shall tread upon the lion and the cobra,

The young lion and the serpent you shall trample underfoot.

“Because he has set his love upon Me, therefore I will deliver him;

I will set him on high, because he has known My name.

He shall call upon Me, and I will answer him;

I will be with him in trouble;

I will deliver him and honor him.

With long life I will satisfy him,

And show him My salvation.”

[Psalm 91:1-2, 9-16, Bible, NKJV]

Your DOMICILE is the “dwelling place” of your LEGAL NAME. That name in legal parlance is called “person”. Your PROPERTY attaches legally to your birth name. Two things were created when you were born: 1. Your physical body; 2. Your identity as a “person” under a system of laws:

1 "They have set fire to Your sanctuary; They have defiled the dwelling place of Your name to the ground."
2 [Psalm 74:7, Bible, NKJV]

3 Since you can only have ONE civil domicile, then if your CIVIL domicile is in "The Kingdom of Heaven", then it BY 4 DEFINITION IS NOT within any man-made government. Here is an example:

5 "For our citizenship [domicile] is in heaven, from which we also eagerly wait for the Savior, the Lord Jesus
6 Christ, who will transform our lowly body that it may be conformed to His glorious body, according to the 7 working by which He is able even to subdue all things to Himself."
8 [Phil. 3:20-21, Bible, NKJV]

9 Since John 14 above says our "dwelling" as Christians must be with the Lord in the Kingdom of Heaven, then it by definition
10 CANNOT be in any man-made government or any earthly political entity. This is the essence of what it means to be
11 "sanctified" as a Christian: We are not joined legally through consent or contract with any part of the corrupt governments
12 of the world. That concept is the foundation of separation of church and state, in fact:

13 "Pure and undefiled religion before God and the Father is this: to visit orphans and widows in their trouble, and 14 to keep oneself unspotted from the world [and the governments and corruption of the world]."
15 [James 1:27, Bible, NKJV]

17 "I [God] brought you up from Egypt [slavery] and brought you to the land of which I swore to your fathers; and
18 I said, 'I will never break My covenant with you. And you shall make no covenant [contract or franchise or
19 agreement of ANY kind] with the inhabitants of this [corrupt pagan] land; you shall tear down their
20 [man/government worshipping socialist] altars.' But you have not obeyed Me. Why have you done this?"

21 "Therefore I also said, 'I will not drive them out before you; but they will become as thorns [terrorists and 22 persecutors] in your side and their gods will be a snare [slavery!] to you.'"

23 So it was, when the Angel of the LORD spoke these words to all the children of Israel, that the people lifted up
24 their voices and wept.
25 [Judges 2:1-4, Bible, NKJV]

26
27 "You shall make no covenant [contract or franchise] with them [foreigners, pagans], nor with their [pagan
28 government] gods [laws or judges]. They shall not dwell in your land [and you shall not dwell in theirs by
29 becoming a "resident" or domiciliary in the process of contracting with them], lest they make you sin against Me
30 [God]. For if you serve their [government] gods [under contract or agreement or franchise], it will surely be a
31 snare to you."
32 [Exodus 23:32-33, Bible, NKJV]

33 5.4.8.10.2 Biblical criteria for a civil domicile in the Kingdom of Heaven

34 It may surprise the reader to learn that there is a specific biblical criteria by which people may lawfully claim a civil domicile
35 in the Kingdom of Heaven. Below is the scripture, which is one of our favorites. We include this scripture in our Statement
36 of Faith, in fact.<sup>97</sup> We have boldfaced the important words to show the connection with domicile and a government or 37 theological or political kingdom.

38 The Character of Those Who May Dwell with the Lord

39 Lord, who may abide in Your tabernacle?
40 Who may dwell in Your holy hill?
41 He who walks uprightly,
42 And works righteousness,
43 And speaks the truth in his heart;
44 He who does not backbite with his tongue,
45 Nor does evil to his neighbor,
46 Nor does he take up a reproach against his friend;
47 In whose eyes a vile person is despised,
48 But he honors those who fear the Lord;

1 He who swears to his own hurt and does not change;
 2 He who does not put out his money at usury,
 3 Nor does he take a bribe against the innocent.
 4 He who does these things shall never be moved.
 5 [Psalm 15, Bible, NKJV]

6 We established in the previous section that the word “dwell” means a civil domicile. The Kingdom of Heaven is represented
 7 by the phrases “Your tabernacle” and “holy hill”. The words “hill” or “mountain” in the bible are equated many times as a
 8 metaphor for a political kingdom. Below is an article on the subject of Mystery Babylon from our Pastor’s Corner that shows
 9 us this:

10 Revelation 17:9 And here is the mind which hath wisdom. The seven heads are seven mountains, on which the 11 woman sitteth.

12 The concept of seven hills would be unmistakably identified as Rome by the seven churches. Identifying the seven
 13 hills as the city of Rome was a substantial fact known to all in the first century. The detail sounded a note of 14 authenticity to John’s readers. They knew from firsthand experience the cruelty of Rome. Rome was the center of 15 world trade in that part of the globe. She was rich in merchandise. Everything you can imagine was bought, sold,
 16 or traded in the city of Rome. At the hub of the chariot wheel, Rome joined Europe, Asia, and the Middle East.
 17 From Rome came legislation and executive orders. The armies of the world took their marching orders from 18 Rome. Rome’s politics was the subject at every tavern and grill in the Mediterranean. Her mountains were known 19 to the world.

20 Others interpret the “mountain” to refers to other nations. This concept of mountains as representing powers
 21 or kingdoms also has merit (Psalm 30:7; Jeremiah 51:25; and Daniel 2:35). It is easy to understand the seven
 22 hills to represent seven empires and the kings who ruled them. Possibly, John is referring to the great empires
 23 that threatened God’s people in Biblical times before the arrival of Rome on the map of history.

24 [Revelation 17: Mystery Babylon and The Great Whore, Nike Insights;
 25 SOURCE: <http://nikeinsights.famguardian.org/forums/topic/revelation-17-the-great-whore/>]

26 Back in the time that Apostle John wrote Rev. 17:9, many governments were theocracies and there was no separation between 27 church and state. Hence, “hills” and “mountains” were synonymous with either churches or governments or civil or papal 28 rulers that presided over them.

29 The phrase “dwell in” is a term synonymous with JOINING or ASSOCIATING with. Obviously, “hill” does NOT mean a
 30 physical hill, because you can’t realistically live inside a physical hill. This is the same symbology the present de facto
 31 government uses when they say you are “in this State” or are a “resident” within “this State”. “resident” means a contractor
 32 or covenant member:

33 26 C.F.R. §301.7701-5 Domestic, foreign, resident, and nonresident persons.

34 A domestic corporation is one organized or created in the United States, including only the States (and during 35 the periods when not States, the Territories of Alaska and Hawaii), and the District of Columbia, or under the
 36 law of the United States or of any State or Territory. A foreign corporation is one which is not domestic. A
 37 domestic corporation is a resident corporation even though it does no business and owns no property in the
 38 United States. A foreign corporation engaged in trade or business within the United States is referred to in the
 39 regulations in this chapter as a resident foreign corporation, and a foreign corporation not engaged in trade or
 40 business within the United States, as a nonresident foreign corporation. A partnership engaged in trade or
 41 business within the United States is referred to in the regulations in this chapter as a resident partnership, and a
 42 partnership not engaged in trade or business within the United States, as a nonresident partnership. Whether a
 43 partnership is to be regarded as resident or nonresident is not determined by the nationality or residence of its
 44 members or by the place in which it was created or organized.

45 [Amended by T.D. 8813, Federal Register: February 2, 1999 (Volume 64, Number 21), Page 4967-4975]

46 [IMPORTANT NOTE!: Whether a "person" is a "resident" or "nonresident" has NOTHING to do with the 47 nationality or residence, but with whether it is engaged in a "trade or business"]

CHAPTER 1. General Provisions and Definitions [6001 - 6024] ( Chapter 1 added by Stats. 1941, Ch. 36. )

"In this State" or "in the State" means within the exterior limits of the State of California and includes all territory within these limits owned by or ceded to the United States of America.

Now that we know what a "hill" or "mountain" is, we have a whole new perspective on the following statement by Jesus:

So Jesus answered and said to them, "Have faith in God. For assuredly, I say to you, whoever says to this mountain, 'Be removed and be cast into the sea,' and does not doubt in his heart, but believes that those things he says will be done, he will have whatever he says. Therefore I say to you, whatever things you ask when you pray, believe that you receive them, and you will have them.
[Mark 11:22-24, Bible, NKJV]

Then the disciples came to Jesus privately and said, "Why could we not cast it out?"

So Jesus said to them, "Because of your unbelief; for assuredly, I say to you, if you have faith as a mustard seed, you will say to this mountain, 'Move from here to there,' and it will move; and nothing will be impossible for you. However, this kind does not go out except by prayer and fasting."
[Matt. 17:19-21, Bible, NKJV]

Jesus indirectly was referencing a prayer that would bring an evil political kingdom down and destroy it. Obviously, He wasn't referring to a righteous government, because elsewhere in the Bible, we are told to submit ourselves ONLY to political rulers WHO ARE OBEYING GOD'S LAWS. Those rulers or governments who are NOT obeying God's laws or who write laws in CONFLICT with God's laws we are commanded to rebel against:

Submission to Government

Therefore submit yourselves to every ordinance of man [which is ONLY] for the Lord's sake, whether to the king as supreme, or to governors, as to those who are sent by him for the punishment of evildoers and for the praise of those who do good. For this is the will of God, that by doing good you may put to silence the ignorance of foolish men—as free, yet not using liberty as a cloak for vice, but as bondservants of God. Honor all people. Love the brotherhood. Fear God. Honor the king.\

[1 Peter 2:13-17, Bible, NKJV]

Then the captain went with the officers and brought them without violence, for they feared the people, lest they should be stoned. And when they had brought them, they set them before the council. And the high priest asked them, saying, "Did we not strictly command you not to teach in this name? And look, you have filled Jerusalem with your doctrine, and intend to bring this Man's blood on us!"

But Peter and the other apostles answered and said: "We ought to obey God rather than men. The God of our fathers raised up Jesus whom you murdered by hanging on a tree. Him God has exalted to His right hand to be Prince and Savior, to give repentance to Israel and forgiveness of sins. And we are His witnesses to these things, and so also is the Holy Spirit whom God has given to those who obey Him."
[Acts 5:26-32, Bible, NKJV]

An example of the prayer Jesus is talking about in Mark 11:22-24 to punish an unrighteous government or civil ruler is described in the following sermons:

1. Imprecatory Prayer, Part 1, Pastor John Weaver

To summarize the criteria for a civil domicile in the Kingdom of Heaven INSTEAD of in Caesar's kingdom, you must:

- 1 1. Walk uprightly. By this, we believe it means walk confidently and derive your confidence and trust from ONLY faith
- 2 in God.
- 3 2. Work righteousness.
- 4 3. Speak the truth in your heart. Brutally honest to yourself about everything.
- 5 4. Not backbite with your tongue. By this we believe it means you don't gossip or insult anyone.
- 6 5. Do no evil to your neighbor.
- 7 6. Not take up a reproach against your friend. In other words, do not seek revenge.
- 8 7. Despise vile or evil people.
- 9 8. Honor those who fear the Lord.
- 10 9. Swear to your own hurt and do not change.
- 11 10. Not put out your money at usury,
- 12 11. Take no bribe against the innocent.

13 5.4.8.10.3 Biblical mandate of equal treatment REQUIRES no civil statutes and only common law and 14 criminal law

15 In his wonderful course on justice and mercy that we highly recommend, Pastor Tim Keller analyzes the elements that make 16 up "justice" from both a legal and a biblical perspective.

Doing Justice and Mercy-Pastor Tim Keller
<http://sedm.org/doing-justice-and-mercy-timothy-keller/>

17 At 19:00 he begins covering biblical justice and introduces the subject by quoting Lev. 24:22:

18 "You shall have the same law for the stranger and for one from your own country; for I am the LORD your God."
 19 [Lev. 24:22, Bible, NKJV]

20 The above scripture may seem innocuous at first until you consider what a biblical "stranger" is. In legal terms, it means a
 21 "nonresident". A "nonresident", in turn, is a transient wanderer who is not domiciled in the physical place that he or she is
 22 physically located. To have the SAME law for both nonresident and domiciliary means they are BOTH treated equally by 23 the government and the court. This scripture therefore advocates equality of protection and treatment between nonresidents
 24 and domiciliaries. We cover the subject of equality of protection and treatment in:

Requirement for Equal Protection and Equal Treatment, Form #05.033
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

25 The legal implications of Lev. 24:22 is the following:

- 26 1. A biblical "stranger" is called a "nonresident" in the legal field.
- 27 2. A biblical stranger is therefore someone WITHOUT a civil domicile in the place he is physically located.
- 28 3. The Bible says in Lev. 24:22 that you must have the SAME "law" for both the stranger and the domiciliary.
- 29 4. The civil statutory code acquires the "force of law" only upon the consent of those who are subject to it. Hence, the
- 30 main difference between the nonresident and the domiciliary is consent.
- 31 5. The only type of "law" that is the SAME for both nonresidents and domiciliaries is the common law and the criminal
- 32 law, because:
  - 33 5.1. Neither one of these two types of law requires consent of those they are enforced against.
  - 34 5.2. Neither one requires a civil domicile to be enforceable. A mere physical or commercial presence is sufficient to
  - 35 enforce EITHER.

36 The conclusion is therefore inescapable that the only way the nonresident and the domiciliary can be treated EXACTLY 37 equally in a biblical sense is if:

- 38 1. The only type of "law" God authorizes is the criminal law and the common law. This means that God Himself defines
- 39 "law" as NOT including the civil statutes or protection franchises.
- 40 2. Anything OTHER than the criminal law and common law is not "law" but merely a compact or contract enforceable
- 41 only against those who individually and expressly consent. Implicit in the idea of consent is the absence of duress,

1 coercion, or force of any kind. This means that the government offering civil statutes or “protection franchises”
2 MUST:

3 2.1. NEVER call these statutes “law” but only an offer to contract with those who seek their “benefits”.

4 2.2. Only offer an opportunity to consent to those who are legally capable of lawfully consenting. Those in states of 5 the Union whose rights are UNALIENABLE are legally incapable of consenting.

6 2.3. RECOGNIZE WHERE consent is impossible, which means among those whose PRIVATE or NATURAL rights
7 are unalienable in states of the Union.

8 2.4. RECOGNIZE those who refuse to consent.

9 2.5. Provide a way administratively to express and register their non-consent and be acknowledged with legally
10 admissible evidence that their withdrawal of consent has been registered..

11 2.6. PROTECT those who refuse to consent from retribution for not “volunteering”.

12 3. The civil statutory code may NOT be created, enacted, enforced, or offered against ANYONE OTHER than those who
13 LAWFULLY consented and had the legal capacity to consent because either abroad or on federal territory, both of 14 which are not protected by the Constitution. Why? Because it is a “protection franchise” that DESTROYS equality of 15 treatment of those who are subject to it. We cover this in Government Instituted Slavery Using Franchises, Form 16 #05.030.

17 4. Everyone in states of the Union MUST be conclusively presumed to NOT consent to ANY civil domicile and therefore 18 be EQUAL under ALL “laws” within the venue.

19 5. Both private people AND those in government, or even the entire government are on an equal footing with each other
20 in court. NONE enjoys any special advantage, which means no one in government may assert sovereign, official, or 21 judicial immunity UNLESS PRIVATE people can as well.

22 6. Anyone who tries to enact, offer, or enforce ANY civil statutory “codes” and especially franchises is attempting what
23 the U.S. Supreme Court calls “class legislation” that leads inevitably to strife in society:

24 “The income tax law under consideration is marked by discriminating features which affect the whole law. It
25 discriminates between those who receive an income of $4,000 and those who do not. It thus vitiates, in my 26 judgment, by this arbitrary discrimination, the whole legislation. Hamilton says in one of his papers (the 27 Continentalist): ‘The genius of liberty reprobates everything arbitrary or discretionary in taxation. It exacts that 28 every man, by a definite and general rule, should know what proportion of his property the state demands;
29 whatever liberty we may boast of in theory, it cannot exist in fact while [arbitrary] assessments continue.’ 1
30 Hamilton’s Works (Ed. 1885) 270. The legislation, in the discrimination it makes, is class legislation. Whenever 31 a distinction is made in the burdens a law imposes or in the benefits it confers on any citizens by reason of 32 their birth, or wealth, or religion, it is class legislation, and leads inevitably to oppression and abuses, and to
33 general unrest and disturbance in society. It was hoped and believed that the great amendments to the 34 constitution which followed the late Civil War had rendered such legislation impossible for all future time.”
35 [Pollock v. Farmers’ Loan and Trust Co., 157 U.S. 429 (1895)]

36 7. Any attempt to refer to the civil code as “law” in a biblical sense by anyone in the legal profession is a deception and a 37 heresy. They are LYING!

38 8. The only proper way to refer to the civil statutory code is as “PRIVATE LAW” or “SPECIAL LAW”, but not merely 39 “law”. Any other description leads to deception.

40 “Private law. That portion of the law which defines, regulates, enforces, and administers relationships among
41 individuals, associations, and corporations. As used in contradistinction to public law, the term means all that
42 part of the law which is administered between citizen and citizen, or which is concerned with the definition,
43 regulation, and enforcement of rights in cases where both the person in whom the right inheres and the person
44 upon whom the obligation is incident are private individuals. See also Private bill; Special law. Compare Public
45 Law.”
46 [Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1196]

47 “special law. One relating to particular persons or things; one made for individual cases or for particular places
48 or districts; one operating upon a selected class, rather than upon the public generally. A private law. A law is
49 “special” when it is different from others of the same general kind or designed for a particular purpose, or limited
50 in range or confined to a prescribed field of action or operation. A “special law” relates to either particular
51 persons, places, or things or to persons, places, or things which, though not particularized, are separated by any
52 method of selection from the whole class to which the law might, but not such legislation, be applied. Utah Farm
53 Bureau Ins. Co. v. Utah Ins. Guaranty Ass’n, Utah, 564 P.2d. 751, 754. A special law applies only to an individual
54 or a number of individuals out of a single class similarly situated and affected, or to a special locality. Board of
55 County Com’rs of Lemhi County v. Swensen, Idaho, 80 Idaho 198, 327 P.2d. 361, 362. See also Private bill;
56 Private law. Compare General law; Public law.”
57 [Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, pp. 1397-1398]

1 9. Anyone who advocates creating, offering, or enforcing the civil statutory code in any society corrupts society, usually
2 for the sake of the love of money. In effect, they seek to turn the civil temple of government into a WHOREHOUSE.
3 Justice is only possible when those who administer it are impartial and have no financial conflict of interest. The 4 purpose of all franchises is to raise government revenue, usually for the "benefit" mainly of those in the government,
5 and not for anyone else.

6 "As expressed otherwise, the powers delegated to a public officer are held in trust for the people and are to be
7 exercised in behalf of the government or of all citizens who may need the intervention of the officer. <sup>98</sup>
8 Furthermore, the view has been expressed that all public officers, within whatever branch and whatever level
9 of government, and whatever be their private vocations, are trustees of the people, and accordingly labor under
10 every disability and prohibition imposed by law upon trustees relative to the making of personal financial gain
11 from a discharge of their trusts. <sup>99</sup> That is, a public officer occupies a fiduciary relationship to the political
12 entity on whose behalf he or she serves. <sup>100</sup> and owes a fiduciary duty to the public. <sup>101</sup> It has been said that
13 the fiduciary responsibilities of a public officer cannot be less than those of a private individual. <sup>102</sup>
14 Furthermore, it has been stated that any enterprise undertaken by the public official which tends to weaken public
15 confidence and undermine the sense of security for individual rights is against public policy. <sup>103</sup> "

QUESTION FOR DOUBTERS: If the analysis in this section is NOT accurate, then why did God say the following about either rejecting or disobeying His commandments and law or replacing them with man-made commandments and statutes, such as we have today?:

Israel Carried Captive to Assyria

5 Now the king of Assyria went throughout all the land, and went up to Samaria and besieged it for three years. 6 In the ninth year of Hoshea, the king of Assyria took Samaria and carried Israel away to Assyria, and placed them in Halah and by the Habor, the River of Gozan, and in the cities of the Medes.

7 For so it was that the children of Israel had sinned against the Lord their God, who had brought them up out of the land of Egypt, from under the hand of Pharaoh king of Egypt; and they had feared other gods, 8 and had walked in the statutes of the nations whom the Lord had cast out from before the children of Israel, and of the kings of Israel, which they had made. 9 Also the children of Israel secretly did against the Lord their God things that were not right, and they built for themselves high places in all their cities, from watchtower to fortified city. 10 They set up for themselves sacred pillars and wooden images[a] on every high hill and under every green tree. 11 There they burned incense on all the high places, like the nations whom the Lord had carried away before them; and they did wicked things to provoke the Lord to anger, 12 for they served idols, of which the Lord had said to them, "You shall not do this thing."

13 Yet the Lord testified against Israel and against Judah, by all of His prophets, every seer, saying, "Turn from your evil ways, and keep My commandments and My statutes, according to all the law which I commanded your fathers, and which I sent to you by My servants the prophets." 14 Nevertheless they would not hear, but stiffened their necks, like the necks of their fathers, who did not believe in the Lord their God. 15 And they rejected His statutes and His covenant that He had made with their fathers, and His testimonies which He had testified against them; they followed idols, became idolaters, and went after the nations who were all around them, concerning whom the Lord had charged them that they should not do like them. 16 So they left all the commandments of the Lord their God, made for themselves a molded image and two calves, made a wooden image and worshiped all the host of heaven, and served Baal. 17 And they caused their sons and daughters to pass through the fire, practiced witchcraft and soothsaying, and sold themselves to do evil in the sight of the Lord, to provoke Him to anger. 18 Therefore the Lord was very angry with Israel, and removed them from His sight; there was none left but the tribe of Judah alone.

19 Also Judah did not keep the commandments of the Lord their God, but walked in the statutes of Israel which they made. 20 And the Lord rejected all the descendants of Israel, afflicted them, and delivered them into the hand of plunderers, until He had cast them from His sight. 21 For He tore Israel from the house of David, and they made Jeroboam the son of Nebat king. Then Jeroboam drove Israel from following the Lord, and made them commit a great sin. 22 For the children of Israel walked in all the sins of Jeroboam which he did; they did not depart from them, 23 until the Lord removed Israel out of His sight, as He had said by all His servants the prophets. So Israel was carried away from their own land to Assyria, as it is to this day.

[2 Kings 17:5-23, Bible, NKJV]

1 The above analysis is EXACTLY the approach we take in defining what "law" is in the following memorandum:

What is "law"?, Form #05.049
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

2 5.4.8.10.4 It is idolatry for a Christian to have an earthly domicile

3 Note also the use of the word "permanent home" in the definition of "domicile". According to the Bible, "earth" is NOT
 4 permanent, but instead is only temporary, and will eventually be destroyed and rebuilt as a new and different earth:

5 "But the heavens and the earth which are now preserved by the same word, are reserved for fire until the day of 6 judgment and perdition of ungodly men."
 7 [2 Peter 3:7, Bible NKJV]

8 The legal definition of "permanent" also demonstrates that it can mean any length of time one wants it to mean:

9 8 U.S.C. §1101

(a)(31) The term "permanent" means a relationship of continuing or lasting nature, as distinguished from temporary, but a relationship may be permanent even though it is one that may be dissolved eventually at the instance either of the United States or of the individual, in accordance with law.

We believe what they are really describing above is the equivalent of a "protection contract" between you and the government, because the way it functions is that it is terminated when either you or the government insist, which means that while it is in force, your consent is inferred and legally "presumed". Below is how another author describes it, and note that the real meaning of "indefinitely" is "as long as he consents to a protector":

"One resides in one's domicile indefinitely, that is, with no definite end planned for the stay. While we hear 'permanently' mentioned, the better word is 'indefinitely'. This is best seen in the context of a change of domicile."

[Conflicts in a Nutshell, Third Edition, David D. Siegel and Patrick J. Borchers, ISBN 0-314-160669-3, West Publishing, p. 16]

Christians define "permanent" the same way God does. God is eternal so His concept of "permanent" means "eternal". Therefore, no place on earth can be "permanent" in the context of a Christian:

"Do not love [be a permanent inhabitant or resident of] the world or the things in the world. If anyone loves the world, the love of the Father is not in him. For all that is in the world--the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eyes, and the pride of life--is not of the Father but is of the world. And the world is passing away [not permanent], and the lust of it; but he who does the will of God abides forever."
[1 John 2:15, Bible, NKJV]

Christians are only allowed to be governed by God and His laws found in the Bible. Man's laws are simply a vain substitute, but God's laws are our only true and permanent source of protection, and the only type of protection we can consent to or intend to be subject to without violating our covenant and contract with God found in the Holy Bible.

"Away with you, Satan! For it is written, 'You shall worship the Lord your God, and Him ONLY [NOT the government or man's vain laws or an atheistic democratic socialist "state"] you shall serve.'"
[Matt. 4:10, Bible, NKJV]

The main allegiance of Christians is exclusively to Him, and not to any man or earthly law or government. We are citizens of Heaven, and not earth. The most we can be while on earth is "nationals", because "nationals" are not subject to man's laws and only "citizens" are. See:

Citizens v. Nationals, Family Guardian Fellowship

<http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/Citizenship/CitizensVNationals.htm>

Therefore, Heaven can be our only "legal home" or "domicile" or "residence".

"For our citizenship is [not WAS or WILL BE, but PRESENTLY IS] in heaven, from which we also eagerly wait for the Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ"
[Philippians 3:20, Bible, NKJV]

"These all died in faith, not having received the promises, but having seen them afar off were assured of them, embraced them and confessed that they were strangers and pilgrims on the earth."
[Hebrews 11:13, Bible, NKJV]

"Beloved, I beg you as sojourners and pilgrims [temporarily occupying the world], abstain from fleshly lusts which war against the soul..."
[1 Peter 2:1, Bible, NKJV]

"Do you not know that friendship [and citizenship] with the world is enmity with God? Whoever therefore wants to be a friend for "resident" of the world makes himself an enemy of God."
[James 4:4, Bible, NKJV]

"And do not be conformed to this world, but be transformed by the renewing of your mind, that you may prove what is that good and acceptable and perfect will of God."
[Romans 12:2, Bible, NKJV]

The above scriptures say we are "sojourners and pilgrims", meaning we are perpetual travelers while temporarily here as God's ambassadors. Legal treatises on domicile also confirm that while a person is "in transitu", meaning travelling and sojourning temporarily, he cannot choose a domicile and that his domicile reverts to his "domicile of origin". The domicile of origin is the place you were created and existed before you came to Earth, which is Heaven:

§ 114. Id. Domicil of Origin adheres until another Domicil is acquired. - But whether the doctrine of Udney v. Udney be or be not accepted, the law, as held in Great Britain and America, is beyond all doubt clear that domicil of origin clings and adheres to the subject of it until another domicil is acquired. This is a logical deduction from the postulate that "every person must have a domicil somewhere." For as a new domicil cannot be acquired except by actual residence cum animo manendi, it follows that the domicil of origin adheres while the subject of it is in transitu, or, if he has not yet determined upon a new place of abode, while he is in search of one,--"quarens quo se conferat atque ubi constituit." Although this is a departure from the Roman law doctrine, yet it is held with entire unanimity by the British and American cases. It was first announced, though somewhat confusedly, by Lord Alvanley in Somerville v. Somerville: "The third rule I shall extract is that the original domicil . . . or the domicil of origin is to prevail until the party has not only acquired another, but has manifested and carried into execution an intention of abandoning his former domicil and taking another as his sole domicil." The same idea has been expressed by Lord Wensleydale in somewhat different phrase in Aikman v. Aikman: "Every man's domicil of origin must be presumed to continue until he has acquired another sole domicil by actual residence with the intention of abandoning his domicil of origin. This change must be animo et facto, and the burden of proof unquestionably lies upon him who asserts the change." Lord Cranworth observed in the same case: "It is a clear principle of law that the domicil of origin continues until another is acquired; i.e., until the person has made a new home for himself in lieu of the home of his birth." In America similar language has been used. [Treatise on the Law of Domicil, M.W.Jacobs, Little, Brown, and Company, 1887, pp. 174-175; SOURCE: <http://books.google.com/books?id=MFQvAAAAIAAJ&printsec=titlepage/>]

Even the U.S. Supreme Court has held that while a person temporarily occupies a place and is "in transitu" or "in itinere", he or she is not subject to the civil laws of that place.

"It is generally agreed by writers upon international law, and the rule has been judicially applied in a great number of cases, that wherever any question may arise concerning the status of a person, it must be determined according to that law which has next previously rightfully operated on and fixed that status. And, further, that the laws of a country do not rightfully operate upon and fix the status of persons who are within its limits in itinere, or who are abiding there for definite temporary purposes, as for health, curiosity, or occasional business; that these laws, known to writers on public and private international law as personal statutes, operate only on the inhabitants of the country. Not that it is or can be denied that each independent nation may, if it thinks fit, apply them to all persons within their limits. But when this is done, not in conformity with the principles of international law, other States are not understood to be willing to recognize or allow effect to such applications of personal statutes." [Dred Scott v. Sandford, 60 U.S. (19 How.) 393,595 (1856)]

To "consent" or "choose" to be governed by anything but God and His sacred Law is idolatry in violation of the first four Commandments of the Ten Commandments.

"It is better to trust the Lord
Than to put confidence in man.
It is better to trust in the Lord
Than to put confidence in princes [or government, or the 'state']".
[Psalm 118:8-9, Bible, NKJV]

If you can't put confidence in "princes", which we interpret to mean political rulers or governments, then we certainly can't have allegiance to them or put that allegiance above our allegiance to God. We can therefore have no "legal home" or "domicile" or "residence" anywhere other than exclusively within the Kingdom of Heaven and not within the jurisdiction of any corrupted earthly government. Our only law is God's law and Common law, which is based on God's law. Below is an example of how the early Jews adopted this very attitude towards government from the Bible.

"Then Haman said to King Ahasuerus, "There is a certain people [the Jews, who today are the equivalent of Christians] scattered and dispersed among the people in all the provinces of your kingdom; their laws are different from all other people's because they are [God's laws!], and they do not keep the [king's \[unjust\] laws](#). Therefore it is not fitting for the king to let them remain. If it pleases the king, let a decree be written that they be destroyed, and I will pay ten thousand talents of silver into the hands of those who do the work, to bring it into the king's treasuries."
[Esther 3:8-9, Bible, NKJV]

"Those people who are not governed [ONLY] by GOD and His laws will be ruled by tyrants."
[William Penn (after whom Pennsylvania was named)]

"A free people [claim] their rights as derived from the laws of nature [God and His laws], and not as the gift of their chief magistrate [or any government law]."

2 Our acronym for the word BIBLE confirms the above conclusions:

3 B-Basic

4 I-Instructions

5 B-Before

6 L-Leaving

7 E-Earth

8 We are only temporarily here and Heaven is where we intend to return and live permanently. Legal domicile is based only
9 on intent, not on physical presence, and it is only "domicile" which establishes one's legal and tax "home". No one but us
10 can establish our "intent" and this is the express intent. Neither can we as Christians permit our "domicile" to be subject to 11 change under any circumstances, even when coerced. To admit that there is a "permanent home" or "place of abode"
12 anywhere on earth is to admit that there is no afterlife, no God, and that this earth is as good as it gets, which is a depressing
13 prospect indeed that conflicts with our religious beliefs. The Bible says that while we are here, Satan is in control, so this is 14 definitely not a place we would want to call a permanent home or a domicile:

15 "We know that we are of God, and the whole world lies under the sway of the wicked one."
16 [1 John 5:19, Bible, NKJV]

17
18 *"Again, the devil took Him [Jesus] up on an exceedingly high mountain, and showed Him all the kingdoms of the 19 world and their glory. And he said to Him, All these things I will give You if You will fall down and worship
20 me. [Satan]"*

21 Then Jesus said to him, "Away with you, Satan! For it is written, 'You shall worship the LORD your God, and 22 Him only you shall serve.'"

23 *"Then the devil left Him, and behold, angels came and ministered to Him."
24 [Matt. 4:8-11, Bible, NKJV]*

25
26 *"I [Jesus] will no longer talk much with you, for the ruler of this world [Satan] is coming, and he has nothing
27 in Me. But that the world may know that I love the Father, and as the Father gave Me commandment, so I do.
28 Arise, let us go from here."*
29 Jesus in [John 14:30-31, Bible, NKJV]

30 Satan could not have offered the kingdoms of the world to Jesus and tempted Him with them unless he controlled them to 31 begin with. Satan is in control while we are here. Only a fool or an atheist would intend to make a wicked earth controlled
32 by Satan into a "permanent place of abode".

33 "He who loves his life will lose it, and he who hates his life in this world [on earth] will keep it for eternal life."
34 [John 12:25, Bible, NKJV]

35 Only a person who hates this life and the earth as they are and who doesn't want to make it a "permanent place of abode" or 36 "domicile" can inherit eternal life.

37 *"If you were of the world [had a permanent home here], the world would love its own. Yet because you
38 [Christians] are not of the world, but I chose you out of the world, therefore the world hates you [who are a 39 "stranger" and a "foreigner"]."*
40 [John 15:19, Bible, NKJV.]

41 QUESTION: How can you be "chosen out of the world" as Jesus says and yet still have a domicile here?]

42 "Pure and undefiled religion before God and the Father is this: to visit orphans and widows in their trouble, 43 and to keep oneself unspotted from the world [and the governments, laws, taxes, entanglements, and sin in the 44 world]."

45 [James 1:27, Bible, NKVJ]

46 *"So we are always confident, knowing that while we are at home in the body [the physical body] we are absent
47 from the Lord. For we walk by faith, not by sight. We are confident, yes, well pleased rather to be absent from 48 the body and to be present with the Lord [in the Kingdom of Heaven]."*

[2 Cor. 5:6-8, Bible, NKJV]

Even Jesus Himself admitted that earth was not his "domicile" when He said:

Then a certain scribe came and said to Him, "Teacher, I will follow You wherever You go." And Jesus said to him, "Foxes have holes and birds of the air have nests, but the Son of Man has nowhere to lay His head."
[Matt. 8:19-20, Bible, NKJV]

When we become believers, we, like Jesus Himself, become God's "ambassadors" on a foreign mission from the Kingdom of Heaven according to 2 Cor. 5:20. Our house is a foreign embassy:

"Now then, we are ambassadors for Christ, as though God were pleading through us: we implore you on Christ's behalf, be reconciled to God."
[2 Cor. 5:20, Bible, NKJV]

The Corpus Juris Secundum Legal Encyclopedia says that ambassadors have the domicile of those who they represent, which in the case of Christians is the Kingdom of Heaven.

PARTICULAR PERSONS
4. Public Officials and Employees; Members of the Armed Services
§31 Public Officials and Employees

Ambassadors, consuls, and other public officials residing abroad in governmental service do not generally acquire a domicile in the country where their official duties are performed, but retain their original domicile," although such officials may acquire a domicile at their official residence, if they engage in business or commerce inconsistent with, or extraneous to, their public or diplomatic character.
[Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.), Domicile, §31 (2003);
SOURCE: <http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/CitesByTopic/Domicile-28CJS-20051203.pdf>]

Another interesting aspect of domicile explains why the Bible symbolically refers to believers as the "children of God". Below are examples:

"But as many as received Him, to them He gave the right to become children of God, to those who believe in His name"
[John 1:2, Bible, NKJV]

"The Spirit Himself bears witness with our spirit that we are children of God"
[Romans 8:16, Bible, NKJV]

"That is, those who are the children of the flesh, these are not the children of God; but the children of the promise are counted as the seed."
[Romans 9:8, Bible, NKJV]

"Behold what manner of love the Father has bestowed on us, that we should be called children of God!"
[1 John 3:1, Bible, NKJV]

"In this the children of God and the children of the devil are manifest: Whoever does not practice righteousness is not of God, nor is he who does not love his brother."
[1 John 3:10, Bible, NKJV]

"By this we know that we love the children of God, when we love God and keep His commandments."
[1 John 5:2, Bible, NKJV]

The Corpus Juris Secundum Legal Encyclopedia says that those who are children, dependents, minors, or of unsound mind assume the domicile of the sovereign who is their "caretaker". As long as we are called "children of God" and are dependent exclusively on Him, we assume His domicile, which is the Kingdom of God:

PARTICULAR PERSONS
Infants
§20 In General

An infant, being non sui juris, cannot fix or change his domicile unless emancipated. A legitimate child's domicile usually follows that of the father. In case of separation or divorce of parents, the child has the domicile of the parent who has been awarded custody of the child.

[Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.), Domicile, §20 (2003);
SOURCE: <http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/CitesByTopic/Domicile-28CJS-20051203.pdf>]

The Bible treats the government as God's steward for truth and justice under God's laws. The passage below proves this, and it is not referring to ALL governments, but only those that are righteous, which are God's stewards, and who act in a way that is completely consistent and not in conflict with God's holy laws.

Submit to [Righteous] Government [and rebel against Unrighteous Government]

*"Let every soul be subject to the governing authorities. For there is no authority except from God, and the authorities that exist are appointed by God. Therefore whoever resists the authority resists the ordinance of God, and those who resist will bring judgment on themselves. For [righteous] rulers are not a terror to good works, but to evil. [However, unrighteous rulers ARE a terror to good works] Do you want to be unafraid of the [righteous] authority? Do what is good, and you will have praise from the same. For he [ONLY the righteous, not the unrighteous ruler] is God's minister to you for good. But if you do evil, be afraid; for he does not bear the sword in vain; for he is God's minister, an avenger to execute wrath on him who practices evil. Therefore you must be subject, not only because of wrath but also for conscience' sake. For because of this you also pay taxes, for they [the righteous, and not unrighteous rulers] are God's ministers attending continually to this very thing. Render therefore to all [those who are righteous and NOT unrighteous] their due: taxes to whom taxes are due, customs to whom customs, fear to whom fear, honor to whom honor."
[Rom. 13:1-7, Bible, NKJV]*

The term "governing authorities" is synonymous with "God's ministers". The Bible says that the government is on Jesus' shoulders, and therefore God's shoulders, not any man:

*"For God is the King of all the earth: Sing praises with understanding."
[Psalm 47:7, Bible, NKJV]*

*"For the LORD is our Judge, the LORD is our Lawgiver, the LORD is our King; He will save [and protect] us."
[Isaiah 33:22, Bible, NKJV]*

*For unto us a Child is born,
Unto us a Son is given;
And the government will be upon His shoulder.
And His name will be called
Wonderful, Counselor, Mighty God,
Everlasting Father, Prince of Peace.
[Isaiah 9:6, Bible, NKJV]*

The Lord cannot be King where Satan is allowed to rule, even temporarily. Those who are not God's ministers are NOT "governing authorities" but usurpers and representatives of Satan, not God. They are "children of Satan", not God.

*"They have corrupted themselves;
They are not His children,
Because of their blemish:
A perverse and crooked generation."
[Deut. 32:5, Bible, NKJV]*

When government ceases to be a "minister of God's justice" and rather becomes a competitor for pagan idol worship and obedience of the people, then God abandons the government and the result is the equivalent of a legal divorce. This is revealed in the following scripture, which describes those who pursue pagan gods and pagan governments that act like god as "playing the harlot". The phrase "invites you to eat of his sacrifice", in modern day terms, refers to those who receive socialist welfare in any form, most of which is PLUNDER STOLEN from people who became a human sacrifice to the pagan government:

The Covenant Renewed

*And He said: "Behold, I make a covenant. Before all your people I will do marvels such as have not been done in all the earth, nor in any nation; and all the people among whom you are shall see the work of the LORD. For it is an awesome thing that I will do with you. Observe what I command you this day. Behold, I am driving out from before you the Amorite and the Canaanite and the Hittite and the Perizzite and the Hivite and the Jebusite.
Take heed to yourself, lest you make a covenant with the inhabitants of the land where you are going, lest it

1 be a snare in your midst. But you shall destroy their altars, break their sacred pillars, and cut down their
 2 wooden images (for you shall worship no other god, for the LORD, whose name is Jealous, is a jealous God),
 3 lest you make a covenant [engage in a franchise, contract, or agreement] with the inhabitants of the land, and
 4 they play the harlot with their gods and make sacrifice to their gods, and one of them invites you and you eat
 5 of his sacrifice, and you take of his daughters for your sons, and his daughters play the harlot with their gods
 6 and make your sons play the harlot with their gods.

7 [Exodus 34:10-16, Bible, NKJV]

8 "No outsider [person who has not taken the Mark of the Beast] shall eat the holy offering [revenues collected
 9 from involuntary human sacrifices to the pagan cult by the IRS or the SSA]; one who dwells with the priest [judges
 10 are the priests of the civil religion], or a hired servant [licensed attorneys, who are the deacons of the church
 11 appointed by the chief priests at the Supreme Court], shall not eat the holy thing. But if the priest [the judge]
 12 buys a person with his money [his court order to induct a new cult member by compelling participation in excise
 13 taxable activities such as a "trade or business"], he may eat it; and one who is born in his [court] house [or is a 14 fellow "public officer" of the government engaged in a "trade or business"] may eat his food."

15 [Lev. 22:10-11, Bible, NKJV]

16 "He who sacrifices to any god, except to the LORD only, he shall be utterly destroyed."

17 [Exodus 22:20, Bible, NKJV]

18 "They shall no more offer their sacrifices to demons, after whom they have played the harlot. This shall be a 19 statute forever for them throughout their generations."

20 [Lev. 17:7, Bible, NKJV]

21 The result of the divorce of a righteous God from a Pagan government that has become a child of Satan and His competitor
 22 for the worship of the people is that God "hides his face", as the Bible says:

23 "And I will surely hide My face in that day because of all the evil which they have done, in that they have turned 24 to other gods."

25 [Deut. 31:18, Bible, NKJV]

26 "I will hide My face from them. I will see what their end will be, For they are a perverse generation, Children 27 in whom is no faith."

28 [Deut. 32:20, Bible, NKJV]

29 "Then My anger shall be aroused against them in that day, and I will forsake them, and I will hide My face from 30 them, and they shall be devoured. And many evils and troubles shall befall them, so that they will say in that day,
 31 'Have not these evils come upon us because our God is not among us?'"

32 [Deut. 31:17, Bible, NKJV]

33 Below is a fascinating sermon about how and why God "hides his face" or "disappears":

The Disappearing God, Pastor John Weaver, 1 Sam. 3:21
<http://www.sermonaudio.com/sermoninfo.asp?SID=8121351932>

34 Those who follow pagan governments rather than God after the civil "divorce" become the children of Satan, not God and
 35 are practicing idolatry. These people have misread Romans 13 and made government into a pagan substitute for God's 36 protection and adopt the government as their new caretaker, and thereby shift their effective domicile to the government as
 37 its dependents and "children". This is especially true when the government becomes socialist, abuses its power to tax as a
 38 means of wealth transfer, and pays any type of social welfare to the people. At that point, the people become "dependents"
 39 and assume the domicile of their caretaker. One insightful congressman said the following of this dilemma during the debates
 40 over the original Social Security Act:

41 Mr. Logan: "...Natural laws can not be created, repealed, or modified by legislation. Congress should know there 42 are many things which it can not do..."

43 "It is now proposed to make the Federal Government the guardian of its citizens. If that should be done, the 44 Nation soon must perish. There can only be a free nation when the people themselves are free and administer
 45 the government which they have set up to protect their rights. Where the general government must provide 46 work, and incidentally food and clothing for its citizens, freedom and individuality will be destroyed and 47 eventually the citizens will become serfs to the general government..."

1 Any attempt to think about citizenship, domicile, and residence any way other than the way it is described here amounts to a
 2 devious and deceptive attempt by the Pharisees [lawyers] to use the "traditions of men" to entrap Christians and churches and
 3 put them under government laws, control, taxes, and regulation, thereby violating the separation of powers doctrine. The
 4 Separation of Powers Doctrine as well as the Bible itself both require churches and Christians to be totally separate from
 5 government, man's laws, and control, taxation, and regulation by government. See sections 4.3.5 and 4.3.12 of this book for 6 further details on the competition between "church" and "state" for the love and affections and allegiances of the people, and
 7 why separation of these two powers is absolutely essential.

8 *"Stand fast therefore in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made us free, and be not entangled again with the yoke
 9 of bondage to the government or the income tax or the IRS or federal statutes that are not "[positive law" and do
 10 not have jurisdiction over us]."

12 5.4.8.10.5 "Domicile of origin" is in the Kingdom of Heaven and NOT on the present corrupted Earth

13 "Domicile of origin" is a legal term used to connote the FIRST domicile a civil "person" ever had at the time of birth. As a
 14 concept, it is often employed to resolve disputes about the domicile of a deceased party during probate. Below is an example
 15 from the Canadian Courts:

16 The applicable law [20] The law of domicile is well settled:

17 1. A person will always have one, and only one, domicile at any point in his or her life. A person begins with a 18 "domicile of origin", which is generally the place where he or she was born.

19 *2. A domicile of origin can be displaced by the acquisition of a "domicile of choice", a place where a person has 20 acquired a residence in fact in a new place and has the intention to live there indefinitely. 2014 SKQB 64 (CanLII)
 21 - 6 -*

22 3. A person abandons a domicile of choice by ceasing to reside there in fact and by ceasing to intend to reside 23 there permanently or indefinitely.

24 4. A person can lose his or her domicile of choice by abandonment even though a new domicile of choice has not 25 been acquired.

26 *See: Wadsworth v. McCord (1886), 12 S.C.R. 466, [1886] S.C.J. No. 18 (QL); Trottier v. Rajotte, [1940] S.C.R.

 31 N.S.J. No. 28 (QL) (N.S. Div. & Mat. Causes Ct.); Foote Estate (Re), 2011 ABCA 1, [2011] 6 W.W.R. 453. [21]*

32 *The questions here are whether or not Dr. Scott abandoned Saskatoon as his domicile of choice and, if he did,
 33 whether he acquired a new domicile of choice in British Columbia. Finally, if he abandoned Saskatoon but had 34 not acquired a domicile of choice in British Columbia at the time of his death, where was his domicile?*

35 [Vanston v. Scott, Q.B.S. No. 675 of 2012; SOURCE: <https://sedm.org/forums/topic/vanston-v-scott-q-b-s-no-675-of-2012/#post-17209>]

37 The above case ruled that:

38 [*43] The law of domicile is clear. The evidence, though sparse, is clear – Dr. Scott was born in Calgary. The 39 result, on the law and the evidence is that Dr. Scott 2014 SKQB 64 (CanLII) - 13 - was domiciled in Alberta [the 40 place of his birth and his "domicile of origin"] at the time of his death. That, Ryan argues, makes little sense.
 41 After all: Dr. Scott had not lived in Alberta for at least the 25 years preceding his death; none of the estate assets
 42 are in Alberta; none of the interested parties lives in Alberta and neither of the parties wants the law of Alberta
 43 to apply. There was no evidence that Dr. Scott had any connection to Alberta other than being born there. Ryan's 44 counsel invited the court to depart from the well-established law in order to avoid that which he termed to be an 45 "absurd" result (a word used in Foote Estate, supra, at para 34). He did not, however (as requested in my 46 October 8, 2013 fiat), articulate a test that might result in either Saskatchewan or British Columbia being 47 designated as Dr. Scott's domicile.*

1 The thing that most courts such as the above refuse to acknowledge is the biblical concept of “domicile of origin”. You
 2 existed in Heaven BEFORE you came to earth, so the effective “domicile of origin” is NO PLACE on earth. Therefore,
 3 God’s laws of probate apply and not man’s:

4 *“Before I formed you in the womb I knew you;
 5 Before you were born I sanctified you;
 6 I ordained you a prophet to the nations.”*

7 [Jeremiah 1:5, Bible, NKJV; SOURCE:

8 <https://www.biblegateway.com/passage/?search=Jeremiah+1:5&version=NKJV>

 10
 11 *For You formed my inward parts;
 12 You covered me in my mother’s womb.
 13 <sup>14</sup> I will praise You, for I am fearfully and wonderfully made;
 14 Marvelous are Your works,
 15 And that my soul knows very well.
 16 <sup>15</sup> My frame was not hidden from You,
 17 When I was made in secret,
 18 And skillfully wrought in the lowest parts of the earth.
 19 <sup>16</sup> Your eyes saw my substance, being yet unformed.
 20 And in Your book they all were written,
 21 The days fashioned for me,
 22 When as yet there were none of them.*

22 [Psalm 139:13-16, Bible, NKJV;SOURCE:

23 <https://www.biblegateway.com/passage/?search=Psalm+139&version=NKJV%5D>

24 Notice the phrase:

25 “<sup>15</sup> My frame was not hidden from You, When I was made in secret, And skillfully wrought in the lowest parts of 26 the earth.”.

27 “Made in secret” implies that NO MAN was around at the time, INCLUDING the mother! “Lowest parts of the Earth”
 28 implies a place not on the SURFACE of the Earth.

29 The Bible calls Christians sojourners and pilgrims, which means they are temporarily away from their “domicile of origin”
 30 in Heaven or what the scriptures call “The New Jerusalem”. You can only be a “citizen” in the place of your domicile, and 31 you can only have ONE domicile at a time, as the cite above affirms. If we are “citizens of heaven” according to the bible,
 32 then we are not ALLOWED to also be “citizens” under any statutes on earth:

33 *“For our citizenship is in heaven, from which we also eagerly wait for the Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ”
 34 [Philippians 3:20, Bible, NKJV]*

35 *“Now, therefore, you are no longer strangers and foreigners, but fellow citizens with the saints and members of 36 the household of God.”
 37 [Ephesians 2:19, Bible, NKJV]*

38 *“These all died in faith, not having received the promises, but having seen them afar off were assured of them,
 39 embraced them and confessed that they were strangers and pilgrims [transient foreigners] on the earth.”
 40 [Hebrews 11:13, Bible, NKJV]*

41 *“Beloved, I beg you as sojourners and pilgrims, abstain from fleshly lusts which war against the soul...”
 42 [1 Peter 2:11, Bible, NKJV]*

43 The real issue of the case is WHAT LAW applies in the place of the “domicile of origin”: 1. STATUTE law or 2. COMMON
 44 law?

45 The answer depends on the intention of the party as far as LEGALLY associating with the state and thereby becoming a state
 46 officer. If that association was not intended, and the party wishes to remain exclusively private, then the COMMON LAW
 47 and the CONSTITUTION and not STATUTE law would apply. The court didn’t address that issue, because taxation or 48 licensing was not at issue. If it were at issue, then their analysis would need to be much more detailed and on the level of our 49 documents on the subject of franchises, Form #05.030.

We all have PUBLIC and PRIVATE identities, and therefore TWO “personas”, one subject to the common law (private) and one subject to STATUTE law (PUBLIC/officer).

When two rights concur in one person, it is the same as if they were in two separate persons. 4 Co. 118.”

[Bouvier's Maxims of Law, 1856;

SOURCE: <http://famguardian.org/Publications/BouvierMaximsOfLaw/BouviereMaxims.htm>]

It is clearly prejudicial and constitutes criminal identity theft to PRESUME in violation of due process that the party who died was ONLY PUBLIC and had no PRIVATE status or PRIVATE property.

Lastly, on the subject of probate, we apply the domicile concepts of this document to a specific real case of probate in section 5.4.8.13.11. You can also find a copy of the affidavit in that section in:

5.4.8.11 Domicile and civil jurisdiction

5.4.8.11.1 What's so bad about the civil statutory law? Why care about avoiding it or pursuing common law or constitutional law to replace it?

Our investigation into the subject of domicile began with abuse by the family courts and the statutory codes that regulate and control it. This sort of legal abuse by what we now call “legislative franchise courts” such as the family court is what gets most people interested in the freedom subject and our website to begin with. Traffic court is another court that abuses people as well and it too is a “legislative franchise court”. At the time of the abuse, we couldn't figure out exactly what it was about the process that was unjust or unfair, but we resolved to not only thoroughly document it, but to identify how to avoid it and exactly how to prosecute those who instituted the abuse for those who “un-volunteered”. That quest is what gave birth to our entire website and this document, in fact.

The basic principle of justice is to:

1. Govern and support your own life. In other words, ask for nothing from government.
2. Leave other people alone. Respect them and protect their right of self-ownership, choice, and self-government.
3. Only enforce against others against their consent AFTER they injure someone else.
4. Limit all government to recovering the cost of the injury, not government civil penalties on top of it.

So how does the civil code, or what we call the “civil protection franchise” undermine the above, we asked ourselves in studying this important subject?:

1. It grants a monopoly on protection to the government. All monopolies are evil because:
  - 1.1. There is no competition.
  - 1.2. All attempts to privatize selected services are penalized and prosecuted by hostile bureaucrats who want to “protect their turf” and their retirement check.
  - 1.3. The postal service, for instance, has a monopoly on mail but shouldn't have. Lysander Spooner, the founder of libertarian thought and a lawyer, attempted to compete with the postal service and put them to shame, and he was prosecuted for it.
2. It creates and perpetuates an UNEQUAL relationship between the “government grantor” of the civil protection franchise and you.
  - 2.1. You become inferior and subservient to the grantor of the franchise. That is why they call those who are subject to it a “subject”.
  - 2.2. This results in idolatry in violation of the Bible.
3. It destroys ABSOLUTE ownership of PRIVATE property.
  - 3.1. The government becomes the ABSOLUTE owner and you become a CUSTODIAN over THEIR property.
  - 3.2. The PUBLIC OFFICE called “citizen” or “resident” is merely an employment position you fill as custodian over the GOVERNMENT'S property, meaning ALL property.

- 3.3. The use of government identifying number in association with the title to property becomes prima facie evidence that you are engaged in the franchise and that the property is "PRIVATE PROPERTY DONATED TO A PUBLIC USE TO PROCURE THE BENEFITS OF THE CIVIL PROTECTION FRANCHISE".
4. It interferes with your right to contract:
  - 4.1. The parties to every civil contract, when using government ID and associated license numbers, unknowingly insert the government into the relationship as an agent of the protection franchise, often without the knowledge of the parties.
  - 4.2. Those who wish to contract the government OUT of the relationship by negotiating either binding arbitration or invoking the common law and not the statute law are interfered with by corrupt judges who want to pad their pocket by inserting themselves into the relationship not as coaches, but OWNERS of both participants who become "employees" or "officers" under the civil code.
5. The civil protection franchise is abused by politicians as a method to institute class warfare between the people:
  - 5.1. The voting booth and the jury box become a battle ground used by the poor to steal from the rich.
  - 5.2. The tax code is used as a vehicle to abuse the government's taxing power to transfer wealth from the have-nots to the haves.
  - 5.3. The tax code is abused essentially to punish success with taxes and reward failure with subsidies, thus destroying the economy and all incentive to be productive or responsible.
  - 5.4. The promise of "benefits" by campaigning politicians become essentially a vehicle to ILLEGALLY and CRIMINALLY bribe voters with loot STOLEN through the illegal use of the government's taxing powers.
6. It places NO limits on the PRICE you pay for the "benefit" of its "protection". Politicians can and do impose any duty upon those who are subject to it because the premise is that you had to consent to be subject to it.
7. The administrators of the franchise REFUSE to recognize on the forms and processes administering the franchise:
  - 7.1. Your right to NOT participate . . .OR
  - 7.2. Your right to quit. . .OR
  - 7.3. The right to document the existence of duress in signing up on the forms administering the franchise.
Try walking into a Social Security office and ask for forms to quit the system as we have. You will be escorted out by an armed guard and be accused of being a terrorist if you refuse to cooperate!
8. You aren't allowed to QUALIFY or LIMIT HOW MUCH you pay or what specific PRIVATE rights you are willing to give up or can be forced to give up in order to procure its "benefits".
  - 8.1. There is no opportunity to negotiate a better deal.
  - 8.2. You can't go to anyone else for the service to improve your bargaining position.
  - 8.3. It therefore behaves as an "adhesion contract" that is unconscionable.
9. It results in a SURRENDER of ALL common law and natural rights.
  - 9.1. The civil code is predicated on consent
  - 9.2. Anything you consent to cannot form the basis of an injury under the common law or the Constitution.
10. When you sign up for one franchise under the civil statutory protection franchise, such as the vehicle code by getting a marriage license, you are COERCED and expected to be party to ANY and EVERY other government franchise.
  - 10.1. They demand a Social Security Number, and therefore FORCE you to sign up for Social Security as well. The DMV does this.
  - 10.2. This completely destroys your power of choice and your autonomy and self-government.
  - 10.3. It makes it impossible to procure the protection of the vehicle code WITHOUT becoming a public officer who has to do ANYTHING and EVERYTHING congress can dream up to put in your "employment agreement" called the civil code.
11. People who do not want its benefits:
  - 11.1. Are punished with civil penalties that don't apply to them and can't lawfully be enforced against them.
  - 11.2. Are told they are crazy or stupid.
  - 11.3. Are treated unfairly as "anarchists" or even violent or terrorists, as is being done with the "Sovereign Citizen Movement" at this time. This is an unjust and unfair and undeserved stereotype designed mainly and essentially to protect the governments at least perceived authority to essentially use the civil franchise as a way to justify its right to essentially STEAL from the average American.
12. In court, those who refuse to consent to the franchise and who become the illegal target of enforcement of the PROVISIONS of the franchise are maliciously interfered with in violation of the Bill of Rights by:
  - 12.1. Refusing to recognize or protect their unalienable constitutional rights.
  - 12.2. Refusing to recognize their right to invoke the common law against EVERYONE, INCLUDING the government, who at that point is on an EQUAL rather than INFERIOR relationship to them.
  - 12.3. Forcing them into a franchise court such as family court, traffic court, or tax court that CANNOT lawfully hear a matter NOT involving a franchisee.

12.4. Telling them they are crazy, ignorant, or stupid when they try to invoke the common law or the constitution instead of the franchise in their defense.

Is it any surprise that the Roman Empire, which was the origin of the above system of usury under the Roman "jus civile", failed and collapsed? Anyone that would build the security of private property upon such a frail and evil foundation is bound to fail quickly, and every government that has ever tried throughout history has failed for the same reason. Below is a description of HOW that failure happened:

4. The Fall of Rome and Modern Parallels - Stefan Molyneux

Is there a better way? Absolutely. God's law is the PERFECT law of liberty:

*"But he who looks into the perfect law of liberty [God's law] and continues in it, and is not a forgetful hearer but a doer of the work, this one will be blessed in what he does."
[James 1:25, Bible, NKJV]*

*"The Spirit of the Lord God is upon Me [Jesus],
Because the Lord has anointed Me
To preach good tidings to the poor;
He has sent Me to heal the brokenhearted,
To proclaim liberty to the [government] captives [trapped like hunted animals within the civil franchise code],
And the opening of the prison to those who are bound [to a PUBLIC office called "citizen" or "resident"];
[Isaiah 61:1, Bible, NKJV]*

*"The Spirit of the Lord is upon Me,
Because He has anointed Me
To preach the gospel to the poor;
He has sent Me to heal the brokenhearted,
To proclaim liberty to the captives
And recovery of sight to the blind,
To set at liberty those who are [government] oppressed;
To proclaim the acceptable year of the Lord."
[Luke 4:18-19, Bible, NKJV]*

If you would like exhaustive coverage of God's "perfect law of liberty", read the following:

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>
2. Bible Law Course, Form #12.015
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

By the way, "the perfect law of liberty" forbids those subject to it from consenting to or coming under the civil statutory jurisdiction of any other law system, or any ruler who grants or administers it, and says that doing so is IDOLATRY.

"You shall make no covenant [contract or franchise] with them [foreigners, pagans], nor with their [pagan government] gods [laws or judges]. They shall not dwell in your land [and you shall not dwell in theirs by becoming a "resident" or domiciliary in the process of contracting with them], lest they make you sin against Me [God]. For if you serve their [government] gods [under contract or agreement or franchise], it will surely be a snare to you."
[Exodus 23:32-33, Bible, NKJV]*

*"Awake, awake, O Zion, clothe yourself with strength. Put on your garments of splendor, O Jerusalem, the holy city. The uncircumcised and defiled will not enter you again. Shake off your dust; rise up, sit enthroned, O Jerusalem [Christians]. Free yourself from the chains [contracts and franchises] on your neck, O captive Daughter of Zion. For this is what the LORD says: "You were sold for nothing [free government cheese worth a fraction of what you had to pay them to earn the right to "eat" it], and without money you will be redeemed."

1 [Isaiah 52:1-3, Bible, NKJV]

3 "I [God] brought you up from Egypt [government slavery to a civil ruler called Pharaoh] and brought you to the
4 *land of which I swore to your fathers; and I said, 'I will never break My covenant with you. And you shall make
5 no covenant [contract or franchise or agreement of ANY kind] with the inhabitants of this [corrupt pagan]
6 land; you shall tear down their [man/government worshipping socialist] altars.' But you have not obeyed Me.*
7 Why have you done this?

8 "Therefore I also said, 'I will not drive them out before you; but they will become as thorns [terrorists and 9 persecutors] in your side and their gods will be a snare [slavery!] to you.'"

10 So it was, when the Angel of the LORD spoke these words to all the children of Israel, that the people lifted up
11 their voices and wept.
12 [Judges 2:1-4, Bible, NKJV]

13 NOW do you know why we began our search for something BETTER and more EQUAL and JUST than the civil protection
14 franchise or statutory "code"? The amount of INJUSTICE evident in the above list of defects is truly mind-boggling almost 15 to the point of making life not even worth living if called to endure it. That's what George Carlin said about the miserable
16 existence we suffer under presently because of a defective legal system:

I'm divorced from it now, George Carlin
<https://youtu.be/MPA7VvuGBnw>

17 The video below describes the MASSIVE injustices of the present de facto civil franchise system as "The Matrix":

The Matrix, Stefan Molyneux
<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=P772Eb63qIY&>

18 Lastly, lest we be accused of being "narcissistic psychopathic anarchists", let us now emphasize what we DO NOT object to 19 about the civil protection franchise. What we like about it is the opportunity it provides for remedy when an injury occurs
20 between PRIVATE people one to another. That remedy is NOT exclusive, because you can abandon a domicile and instead
21 invoke the common law. Outside of the sphere or remedy for PRIVATE injury, nothing but problems result that are easily
22 remedied by God's "perfect law of liberty". The problems occur mainly when the GOVERNMENT is the party doing the 23 injuring, which happens far more frequently than PRIVATE injury. Like any mafia, the government only protects itself and 24 uses the law as an excuse to persecute political dissidents. This we call "selective enforcement" and it happens all the time,
25 and ESPECIALLY with the IRS. The abuse of discretion to target of conservative groups by the IRS and the scandal that 26 ensued in 2015 comes to mind. That mafia is described in the following funny video:

The Government Mafia, Clint Richardson
<https://sedm.org/government-mafia/>

27 The fact that government essentially is allowed to behave literally as a criminal mafia under the auspices of the civil statutory
28 protection franchise is how the original Roman Empire grew so large to begin with. Look at how the Romans treated Jesus
29 in crucifying Him, and you understand why they were unjust. He refused to pay His "protection money" so they broke His 30 knee caps, even though they could find no legal fault in Him.

31 "Then the whole multitude of them arose and led Him to Pilate. And they began to accuse Him, saying, "We 32 found this fellow perverting the nation, and forbidding to pay taxes to Caesar [TAX PROTESTER], saying that 33 He Himself is Christ, a King [SOVEREIGN]."
34 [Luke 23:2, Bible, NKJV]

5.4.8.11.2 History of our system of civil statutory law

Our system of civil statutory law was inherited from the Roman statutory law, which was called “jus civile”.

Chapter II: The Civil and the Common Law

29. In the original civil law, jus civile, was exclusively for Roman citizens; it was not applied in controversies between foreigners. But as the number of foreigners increased in Rome it became necessary to find some law for deciding disputes among them. For this the Roman courts hit upon a very singular expedient. Observing that all the surrounding peoples with whom they were acquainted had certain principles of law in common, they took those common principles as rules of decision for such cases, and to the body of law thus obtained they gave the name of Jus gentium. The point on which the jus gentium differed most noticeably from the Jus civile was its simplicity and disregard of forms. All archaic law is full of forms, ceremonies and what to a modern mind seem useless and absurd technicalities. This was true of the [civil] law of old Rome. In many cases a sale, for instance, could be made only by the observance of a certain elaborate set of forms known as mancipation; if any one of these was omitted the transaction was void. And doubtless the laws of the surrounding peoples had each its own peculiar requirements. But in all of them the consent of the parties to transfer the ownership for a price was required. The Roman courts therefore in constructing their system of Jus gentium fixed upon this common characteristic and disregarded the local forms, so that a sale became the simplest affair possible.

30. After the conquest of Greece, the Greek philosophy made its way to Rome, and stoicism in particular obtained a great vogue among the lawyers. With it came the conception of natural law (Jus naturale) or the law of nature (jus naturae); to live according to nature was the main tenet of the stoic morality. The idea was of some simple principle or principles from which, if they could be discovered, a complete, systematic and equitable set of rules of conduct could be deduced, and the unfortunate departure from which by mankind generally was the source of the confusion and injustice that prevailed in human affairs. To bring their own law into conformity with the law of nature became the aim of the Roman jurists, and the praetor's edict and the responses were the instruments which they used to accomplish this. Simplicity and universality they regarded as marks of natural law, and since these were exactly the qualities which belonged to the jus gentium, it was no more than natural that the two should to a considerable extent be identified. The result was that under the name of natural law principles largely the same as those which the Roman courts had for a long time been administering between foreigners permeated and transformed the whole Roman law.

The way in which this was at first done was by recognizing two kinds of rights, rights by the civil law and rights by natural law, and practically subordinating the former to the latter. Thus if Caius was the owner of a thing by the civil law and Titius by natural law, the courts would not indeed deny up and down the right of Caius. They admitted that he was owner; but they would not permit him to exercise his legal right to the prejudice of Titius, to whom on the other hand they accorded the practical benefits of ownership; and so by taking away the legal owner's remedies they practically nullified his right. Afterwards the two kinds of laws were more completely consolidated, the older civil law giving way to the law of nature when the two conflicted. This double system of rights in the Roman law is of importance to the student of the English law, because a very similar dualism arose and still exists in the latter, whose origin is no doubt traceable in part to the influence of Roman ideas.

[An Elementary Treatise on the Common Law for the Use of Students, Henry T. Terry, The Maruzen-Kabushiki-Kaisha, 1906, pp. 18-20]

Roman law recognized only TWO classes of persons: statutory “citizens” and “foreigners”. Only those who consented to become statutory “citizens” could become the lawful subject of the jus civile, which was the statutory civil law. Those who were not statutory “citizens” under the Roman Law, which today means those with NO civil domicile within the territory of the author and grantor of the civil law, were regarded as:

1. “foreigners”
2. Not subject to the jus civile or statutory Roman Law.
3. Subject only to the common law, which was called jus gentium.

Note also that the above treatise characterizes TWO classes of rights: Civil rights and Natural rights. Today, these rights are called PUBLIC rights and PRIVATE rights by the courts in order to distinguish them. Public rights, in turn, are granted only to statutory “citizens” who consented to become citizens under the civil statutory law. The civil statutory law, or jus civile, therefore functions in essence as a franchise contract or compact that creates and grants ONLY public rights. Those who do not join the social compact by consenting to become statutory “citizens” therefore are relegated to being protected by natural law and common law, which is much more just and equitable.

Note the emphasis in the above upon the concept that everything exchanged must be paid for:

1 "And doubtless the laws of the surrounding peoples had each its own peculiar requirements. But in all of them
 2 the consent of the parties to transfer the ownership for a price was required."

3 The concept we emphasize in the above cite is that the PUBLIC rights attached to the status of "citizen" under the Roman jus
 4 civile or statutory law constituted property that could not be STOLEN from those who did not consent to become "citizens"
 5 or to accept the "benefits" or "privileges" of statutory citizenship. Such a THEFT by government of otherwise PRIVATE or 6 NATURAL rights would amount to an unconstitutional eminent domain by the government by converting PRIVATE rights
 7 into PUBLIC rights without the consent of the owner and without compensation.

8 5.4.8.11.3 Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17 establishes that civil law is a voluntary franchise

9 Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17 establishes the basis for litigating in all CIVIL courts under ONLY the STATUTORY 10 law.

11 IV. PARTIES > Rule 17.
 12 Rule 17. Parties Plaintiff and Defendant; Capacity

13 (b) Capacity to Sue or be Sued.

14 Capacity to sue or be sued is determined as follows:

15 (1) for an individual who is not acting in a representative capacity, by the law of the individual's domicile;

16 (2) for a corporation, by the law under which it was organized; and

17 (3) for all other parties, by the law of the state where the court is located, except that:

18 (A) a partnership or other unincorporated association with no such capacity under that state's law may sue
 19 or be sued in its common name to enforce a substantive right existing under the United States Constitution
 20 or laws; and

21 (B) 28 U.S.C. §§ 754 and 959(a) govern the capacity of a receiver appointed by a United States court to sue
 22 or be sued in a United States court.

23 [SOURCE: <http://www.law.cornell.edu/rules/frcp/Rule17.htm>]

24 Conspicuously absent from the above federal civil rule are the two MOST important sources of law:

- 25 1. The USA Constitution.
- 26 2. The common law. The common law includes natural rights.

27 Why are these two sources of law NOT explicitly or expressly mentioned in the above civil rule as a source of jurisdiction or 28 standing to sue in a federal CIVIL statutory court? Because these sources of law come from the constitution and are NOT
 29 "granted" or "created" by the government. Anything not CREATED by the government cannot be limited, regulated, or 30 taxed. PRIVATE rights and PRIVATE property, for instance, are NOT "created" by government and instead are created and 31 endowed by God, according to the Declaration of Independence:

32 "We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator
 33 with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.--That to secure
 34 these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed,
 35 -"

36 [Declaration of Independence, 1776]

37 "Men are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, -life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness;"
 38 and to 'secure,' not grant or create, these rights, governments are instituted. That property [or income] which a
 39 man has honestly acquired he retains full control of, subject to these limitations: First, that he shall not use it
 40 to his neighbor's injury, and that does not mean that he must use it for his neighbor's benefit [e.g. SOCIAL
 41 SECURITY, Medicare, and every other public "benefit"]; second, that if he devotes it to a public use, he gives 42 to the public a right to control that use; and third, that whenever the public needs require, the public may take 43 it upon payment of due compensation."

44 [Budd v. People of State of New York, 143 U.S. 517 (1892)]

45 The Constitution or the common law therefore may be cited by ANYONE, including those not domiciled within the civil 46 statutory jurisdiction of the civil court, so long as they were physically present on land protected by the Constitution within 47 the district served by the court at the time they received an injury. Recall that the Constitution attaches to LAND, and not to 48 your status as a statutory "citizen" or "resident":

1                   "It is locality that is determinative of the application of the Constitution, in such matters as judicial procedure,
 2                   and not the status of the people who live in it."
 3                   [Balzac v. Porto Rico, 258 U.S. 298 (1922) ]

4   5.4.8.11.4           Two contexts for legal terms: CONSTITUTIONAL and STATUTORY

5                   "When words lose their meaning [or their CONTEXT WHICH ESTABLISHES THEIR MEANING], people lose
 6                   their freedom."
 7                   [Confucius (551 BCE - 479 BCE) Chinese thinker and social philosopher]

8   It is absolutely crucial to understand that there are TWO contexts in which all legal statuses such as "citizen", "resident", and 9   "alien" can be used:

10   1.   Constitutional.

11       1.1. Relates to one's POLITICAL status.

12       1.2. Relates to NATIONALITY and NOT DOMICILE.

13       1.3. A CONSTITUTIONAL status is established ONLY by being either born or naturalized within the jurisdiction of 14       the specific NATIONAL government that wrote the statute.

15   2.   Statutory.

16       2.1. Relates to ones' CIVIL or LEGAL status.

17       2.2. Relates to DOMICILE and NOT NATIONALITY.

18       2.3. A STATUTORY status is established ONLY by voluntarily choosing a domicile within the jurisdiction of the 19       specific government that wrote the statute.

20   It is CRUCIAL in EVERY interaction with any government to establish WHICH of these two contexts that every term they 21   are using relates to, and ESPECIALLY on government forms. A failure to understand the status can literally mean the 22   difference between SLAVERY and FREEDOM.

23   One can, for instance, be a "citizen" under CONSTITUTION and yet be an "non-resident non-person" under STATUTORY
 24   law in relation to the federal government. This is the status of those who are born in states of the Union and who are domiciled
 25   within the exclusive jurisdiction of a CONSTITUTIONAL state of the Union.

26   The purpose of providing a statutory definition of a legal "term" is to supersede and not enlarge the ordinary, common law,
 27   constitutional, or common meaning of a term. Geographical words of art include:

- 28   1.   "State"
- 29   2.   "United States"
- 30   3.   "alien"
- 31   4.   "citizen"
- 32   5.   "resident"
- 33   6.   "U.S. person"

34   The terms "State" and "United States" within the Constitution implies the constitutional states of the Union and excludes 35   federal territory, statutory "States" (federal territories), or the statutory "United States" (the collection of all federal 36   territory). This is an outcome of the separation of powers doctrine. See:

37   The U.S. Constitution creates a public trust which is the delegation of authority order that the U.S. Government uses to 38   manage federal territory and property. That property includes franchises, such as the "trade or business" franchise. All
 39   statutory civil law it creates can and does regulate only THAT property and not the constitutional States, which are foreign,
 40   sovereign, and statutory "non-resident non-persons" (Form #05.020) for the purposes of federal legislative jurisdiction.

41   It is very important to realize the consequences of this constitutional separation of powers between the states and national 42   government. Some of these consequences include the following:

- 43   1.   Statutory "States" as indicated in 4 U.S.C. §110(d) and "States" in nearly all federal statutes are in fact federal

- 1 territories and the definition does NOT include constitutional states of the Union.
- 2 2. The statutory "United States" defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(9\) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d) includes federal
- 3 territory and excludes any land within the exclusive jurisdiction of a constitutional state of the Union.
- 4 3. Terms on government forms assume the statutory context and NOT the constitutional context.
- 5 4. Domicile is the origin of civil legislative jurisdiction over human beings. This jurisdiction is called "in personam
- 6 jurisdiction".
- 7 5. Since the separation of powers doctrine creates two separate jurisdictions that are legislatively "foreign" in relation to
- 8 each other, then there are TWO types of political communities, two types of "citizens", and two types of jurisdictions
- 9 exercised by the national government.

10 "It is clear that Congress, as a legislative body, exercise two species of legislative power: the one, limited as to

11 its objects, but extending all over the Union: the other, an absolute, exclusive legislative power over the District

12 of Columbia. The preliminary inquiry in the case now before the Court, is, by virtue of which of these authorities

13 was the law in question passed?"

14 [Cohens v. Virginia, 19 U.S. 264, 6 Wheat. 265, 5 L.Ed. 257 (1821)]

- 15 6. A human being domiciled in a Constitutional state and born or naturalized anywhere in the Union. These are:
- 16 6.1. A state national pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1101\(a\)\(21\)
- 17 6.2. A statutory "non-resident non-person" if exclusively PRIVATE and not engaged in a public office.
- 18 6.3. A statutory "nonresident alien" (26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B)) in relation to the national government if they lawfully
- 19 serve in a public office.
- 20 7. You can be a statutory "nonresident alien" pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B) and a constitutional or Fourteenth
- 21 Amendment "Citizen" AT THE SAME TIME. Why? Because the Supreme Court ruled in Hooven and Allison v.
- 22 Evatt, 324 U.S. 652 (1945), that there are THREE different and mutually exclusive "United States", and therefore
- 23 THREE types of "citizens of the United States". Here is an example:

25 *opens with a definition of citizenship—not only citizenship of the United States[***], but citizenship of the*

26 states. No such definition was previously found in the Constitution, nor had any attempt been made to define

27 it by act of Congress. It had been the occasion of much discussion in the courts, by the executive departments

28 and in the public journals. It had been said by eminent judges that no man was a citizen of the United

29 *States[***] except as he was a citizen of one of the states composing the Union. Those therefore, who had*

30 been born and resided always in the District of Columbia or in the territories [STATUTORY citizens], though

31 *within the United States[*], were not [CONSTITUTIONAL] citizens."*

32 [Slaughter-House Cases, 83 U.S. (16 Wall.) 36, 21 L.Ed. 394 (1873)]

33 The "citizen of the United States" mentioned in the Fourteenth Amendment is a constitutional "citizen of the United

34 States", and the term "United States" in that context includes states of the Union and excludes federal territory. Hence,

35 you would NOT be a "citizen of the United States" within any federal statute, because all such statutes define "United

36 States" to mean federal territory and EXCLUDE states of the Union. For more details, see:

Why You are a "national", "state national", and Constitutional but not Statutory Citizen, Form #05.006
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

- 37 8. Your job, if you say you are a "citizen of the United States" or "U.S. citizen" on a government form ( a VERY
- 38 DANGEROUS undertaking!) is to understand that all government forms presume the statutory and not constitutional
- 39 context, and to ensure that you define precisely WHICH one of the three "United States" you are a "citizen" of, and do
- 40 so in a way that excludes you from the civil jurisdiction of the national government because domiciled in a "foreign
- 41 state". Both foreign countries and states of the Union are legislatively "foreign" and therefore "foreign states" in
- 42 relation to the national government of the United States. The following form does that very carefully:

- 43 9. Even the IRS says you CANNOT trust or rely on ANYTHING on any of their forms and publications. We cover this
- 44 in our Reasonable Belief About Income Tax Liability, Form #05.007. Hence, if you are compelled to fill out a
- 45 government form, you have an OBLIGATION to ensure that you define all "words of art" used on the form in such a
- 46 way that there is no room for presumption, no judicial or government discretion to "interpret" the form to their benefit,
- 47 and no injury to your rights or status by filling out the government form. This includes attaching the following forms
- 48 to all tax forms you submit:

The following cite from U.S. v. Wong Kim Ark helps clarify the distinctions between the STATUTORY and CONSTITUTIONAL contexts by admitting that there are TWO components that determine one's "citizenship" status: NATIONALITY and DOMICILE.

In Udny v. Udny (1869) L. R. 1 H. L. Sc. 441, the point decided was one of inheritance, depending upon the question whether the domicile of the father was in England or in Scotland, he being in either alternative a British subject. Lord Chancellor Hatherley said: 'The question of naturalization and of allegiance is distinct from that of domicile.' Page 452. Lord Westbury, in the passage relied on by the counsel for the United States, began by saying: 'The law of England, and of almost all civilized countries, ascribes to each individual at his birth two distinct legal states or conditions,—one by virtue of which he becomes the subject [NATIONAL] of some particular country, binding him by the tie of natural allegiance, and which may be called his political status; another by virtue of which he has ascribed to him the character of a citizen of some particular country, and as such is possessed of certain municipal rights, and subject to certain obligations, which latter character is the civil status or condition of the individual, and may be quite different from his political status.' And then, while maintaining that the civil status is universally governed by the single principle of domicile (domicilium), the criterion established by international law for the purpose of determining civil status, and the basis on which 'the personal rights of the party—that is to say, the law which determines his majority or minority, his marriage, succession, testacy, or intestacy—must depend,' he yet distinctly recognized that a man's political status, his country (patria), and his 'nationality,—that is, natural allegiance,'—'may depend on different laws in different countries.' Pages 457, 460. He evidently used the word 'citizen,' not as equivalent to 'subject,' but rather to 'inhabitant'; and had no thought of impeaching the established rule that all persons born under British dominion are natural-born subjects.

[United States v. Wong Kim Ark, 169 U.S. 649, 18 S.Ct. 456, 42 L.Ed. 890 (1898) ;

So:

1. The Constitution is a POLITICAL and not a LEGAL document. It therefore determines your POLITICAL status rather than your LEGAL/STATUTORY status.
2. Nationality determines your POLITICAL STATUS and whether you are a "subject" of the country.
3. DOMICILE determines your CIVIL and LEGAL and STATUTORY status. It DOES NOT determine your POLITICAL status or nationality.
4. Being a constitutional "citizen" per the Fourteenth Amendment is associated with nationality, not domicile.
5. Allegiance is associated with nationality, not domicile. Allegiance is what makes one a "subject" of a country.
6. Your personal and municipal rights, meaning CONSTITUTIONAL rights, associate with your choice of legal domicile, not your nationality or what country you are a subject of or have allegiance to.
7. Being a statutory "citizen" is associated with domicile, not nationality, because it is associated with being an inhabitant RATHER than a "subject".
8. A statutory "alien" under most acts of Congress is a person with a foreign DOMICILE, not a foreign NATIONALITY. By "foreign", we mean:
  - 8.1. Nationality context: OUTSIDE of COUNTRY United States.
  - 8.2. Domicile context: OUTSIDE of federal territory and the exclusive federal jurisdiction, and NOT outside the Constitutional United States (states of the Union).

For an example of the above, see the following cite referencing territorial citizens in relation to the CONSTITUTIONAL states. Note that it calls them "foreigners". Notice also that these areas are the ONLY place the I.R.C. Subtitle A income tax applies, per the definition of "United States" found in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10), which is why if a state national files an income tax return, they file the 1040 tax as a statutory "individual". All statutory "individuals" are legally defined as "aliens" for the purposes of income tax under 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3)(i):<sup>104</sup>

*"Constitutionally, only those born or naturalized in the United States and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens. Const.Amdt. XIV. The power to fix and determine the rules of naturalization is vested in the Congress. Const.Art. I, sec. 8, cl. 4. Since all persons born outside of the [CONSTITUTIONAL] United States, are "foreigners,"[1] and not subject to the jurisdiction of the United States, the statutes, such as § 1993 and 8 U.S.C.A. §601 [currently 8 U.S.C. §1401], derive their validity from the naturalization power of the Congress. Elk v. Wilkins, 1884, 112 U.S. 94, 101, 5 S.Ct. 41, 28 L.Ed. 643; Wong Kim Ark v. U. S., 1898, 169 U.S. 649, 702, 18 S.Ct. 456, 42 L.Ed. 890. Persons in whom citizenship is vested by such statutes are naturalized citizens and not native-born citizens. Zimmer v. Acheson, 10 Cir. 1951, 191 F.2d 209, 211; Wong Kim Ark v. U. S., supra.”

 [Ly Shew v. Acheson, 110 F.Supp. 50 (N.D. Cal., 1953)]

Understanding the distinction between nationality and domicile, in turn is absolutely critical.

1. Nationality:

- 1.1. Is a political status.
- 1.2. Is defined by the Constitution, which is a political document.
- 1.3. Is synonymous with being a “national” within statutory law.
- 1.4. Is associated with a specific COUNTRY.

2. Domicile:

- 2.1. Is a civil status.
- 2.2. Is not even addressed in the constitution.
- 2.3. Is defined by civil statutory law RATHER than the constitution.
- 2.4. Is in NO WAY connected with one’s nationality.
- 2.5. Is usually connected with the word “person”, “citizen”, “resident”, or “inhabitant” in statutory law.
- 2.6. Is associated with a specific COUNTY and a STATE rather than a COUNTRY.
- 2.7. Implies one is a “SUBJECT” of a SPECIFIC MUNICIPAL but not NATIONAL government.

Nationality and domicile, TOGETHER determine the POLITICAL AND CIVIL/LEGAL status of a human being respectively. These important distinctions are recognized in Black’s Law Dictionary:

 [Black’s Law Dictionary (6th ed. 1990), p. 1025]

The U.S. Supreme Court also confirmed the above when they held the following. Note the key phrase “political jurisdiction”, which is NOT the same as legislative/statutory jurisdiction. One can have a political status of “citizen” under the constitution while NOT being a “citizen” under federal statutory law because not domiciled on federal territory. To have the status of “citizen” under federal statutory law, one must have a domicile on federal territory:

“This section [Fourteenth Amendment, Section 1] contemplates two sources of citizenship, and two sources only, birth and naturalization. The persons declared to be citizens are ‘all persons born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof.’ The evident meaning of these last words is, not merely subject in some respect or degree to the jurisdiction of the United States, but completely subject to their [plural, not singular, meaning states of the Union] political jurisdiction, and owing them [the state of the Union] direct and immediate allegiance. And the words relate to the time of birth in the one case, as they do [169 U.S. 649, 725] to the time of naturalization in the other. Persons not thus subject to the jurisdiction of the United States at the time of birth cannot become so afterwards, except by being naturalized, either individually, as by proceedings under the naturalization acts, or collectively, as by the force of a treaty by which foreign territory is acquired.”
 [U.S. v. Wong Kim Ark, 169 U.S. 649, 18 S.Ct. 456; 42 L.Ed. 890 (1898)]

 [Fong Yue Ting v. United States, 149 U.S. 698 (1893)]

Notice in the last quote above that they referred to a foreign national born in another country as a “citizen”. THIS is the REAL “citizen” that judges and even tax withholding documents are really talking about, rather than the “national” described in the constitution. And also notice that they say in relation to DOMICILE/STATUTORY status the following “He owes the same obedience to the CIVIL laws”, thus establishing that CIVIL law does not apply to those WITHOUT a DOMICILE.

Domicile and NOT nationality is what imputes a status under the tax code and a liability for tax. Tax liability is a civil liability that attaches to civil statutory law, which in turn attaches to the person through their choice of domicile. When you

1 CHOOSE a domicile, you elect or nominate a protector, which in turn gives rise to an obligation to pay for the civil protection
2 demanded. The method of providing that protection is the civil laws of the municipal (as in COUNTY) jurisdiction that you
3 chose a domicile within.

4 *"domicile. A person's legal home. That place where a man has his true, fixed, and permanent home and
5 principal establishment, and to which whenever he is absent he has the intention of returning. Smith v. Smith,
6 206 Pa.Super. 310, 213 A.2d. 94. Generally, physical presence within a state and the intention to make it one's
7 home are the requisites of establishing a "domicile" therein. The permanent residence of a person or the place
8 to which he intends to return even though he may actually reside elsewhere. A person may have more than one
9 residence but only one domicile. The legal domicile of a person is important since it, rather than the actual
10 residence, often controls the jurisdiction of the taxing authorities and determines where a person may exercise
11 the privilege of voting and other legal rights and privileges."
12 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 485]*

13 Later versions of Black's Law Dictionary attempt to cloud this important distinction between nationality and domicile in
14 order to unlawfully and unconstitutionally expand federal power into the states of the Union and to give federal judges
15 unnecessary and unwarranted discretion to kidnap people into their jurisdiction using false presumptions. They do this by 16 trying to make you believe that domicile and nationality are equivalent, when they are EMPHATICALLY NOT. Here is an 17 example:

18 "nationality – The relationship between a citizen of a nation and the nation itself, customarily involving 19 allegiance by the citizen and protection by the state; membership in a nation. This term is often used 20 synonymously with citizenship."
21 [Black's Law Dictionary (8th ed. 2004)]

22 Federal courts regard the term "citizenship" as equivalent to domicile, meaning domicile on federal territory.

23 "The words "citizen" and citizenship," however, usually include the idea of domicile, Delaware, L. & W.R.
24 Co. v. Petrowsky, C.C.A.N.Y., 250 F. 554, 557."
25 [Black's Law Dictionary, Fourth Edition, p. 310]

26 Hence:

- 27 1. The term "citizenship" is being stealthily used by government officials as a magic word that allows them to hide their 28 presumptions about your status. Sometimes they use it to mean NATIONALITY, and sometimes they use it to mean
29 DOMICILE.
- 30 2. The use of the word "citizenship" should therefore be AVOIDED when dealing with the government because its 31 meaning is unclear and leaves too much discretion to judges and prosecutors.
- 32 3. When someone from any government uses the word "citizenship", you should:
  - 33 3.1. Tell them NOT to use the word, and instead to use "nationality" or "domicile".
  - 34 3.2. Ask them whether they mean "nationality" or "domicile".
  - 35 3.3. Ask them WHICH political subdivision they imply a domicile within: federal territory or a constitutional state of 36 the Union.

37 WARNING: A failure to either understand or correctly apply the above concepts can literally mean the difference between 38 being a government pet in a legal cage called a franchise, and being a free and sovereign man or woman.

39 5.4.8.11.5 Changing your domicile changes your relationship from foreign to domestic and changes 40 POLITICAL speech to LEGAL speech in court

41 We said earlier in section 5.4.8.1 that domicile is an EXTREMELY important subject to learn because it defines and 42 circumscribes:

- 43 1. The boundary between what is legislatively "foreign" and legislatively "domestic" in relation to a specific jurisdiction.
44 Everyone domiciled OUTSIDE a specific jurisdiction is legislatively and statutorily "foreign" in relation to that civil
45 jurisdiction. Note that you can be DOMESTIC from a CONSTITUTIONAL perspective and yet ALSO be FOREIGN 46 from a legislative jurisdiction AT THE SAME TIME. This is true of the relationship of most Americans with the 47 national government.

1 2. The boundary between what is POLITICAL speech and LEGAL speech. For everyone not domiciled in a specific
 2 jurisdiction, the civil law of that jurisdiction is POLITICAL and unenforceable. Since real constitutional courts cannot
 3 entertain political questions, then they cannot act in a political capacity against nonresidents.

4 This section will prove these assertions.

5 Throughout our website, we refer to:

- 6 1. The entire Bible as a book about politics and government.
  - 7 1.1. The term "mountain" is synonymous with a "kingdom" or country. It can literally refer to a specific landform,
 8 but more often it refers to the location of a political system: Daniel 2:35; Amos 4:1; 6:1; Micah 4:2;
 9 Matthew 4:8. That is why Moses had to go to the top of Mount Sinai (a mountain, which was symbolic 10 of God's political kingdom) to receive the Ten Commandments in Exodus 19.
  - 11 1.2. The term "hill" is synonymous with city or temple. Psalm 15, 1 Sam. 10:5. This is the same "hill" or "tower of 12 babel" that the first king, Nimrod, built, and which God tried to tear down in Genesis 10.
- 13 2. The "Lawgiver" of any society as literally the "god" of that society:

Why All Law is Religious in Nature, Family Guardian Fellowship
<http://famguardian.org/Subjects/LawAndGovt/ChurchVState/WhyAllManmadeLawRelig.htm>
- 14 3. The Bible as a covenant or contract between Christians and God.
- 15 4. The Bible as a trust indenture. All trusts are special kinds of contracts.
- 16 5. The Heaven and the Earth as the corpus of the trust.
- 17 6. God as the Grantor and the Beneficiary of the Bible trust indenture.
- 18 7. Believers as "trustees" under the Bible trust indenture.
- 19 8. "Worship" as an act of obedience to the trust indenture and within the authorities delegated by the Trust.
- 20 9. Believers as having a "fiduciary relationship" and exercising agency or "office" on behalf of the Beneficiary, who is 21 God, while on Earth.
- 22 10. The blessings found in Deut. 28:1-14 as the periodic and current compensation of trustees under the trust indenture.
- 23 11. Our time on Earth as a proving and testing ground to determine who is faithful to and therefore belongs to God. All 24 those who don't belong to God by definition belong to Satan.
- 25 12. The "blessings of Heaven" as the "deferred compensation" (retirement plan) of trustees under the trust indenture. The 26 Heaven, and the "House of Many Mansions" mentioned by Jesus in John 14:2 is the "retirement home" for believers
 27 after they leave Earth. On this subject, we often jokingly say:

28 "My boss is a Jewish carpenter and His benefits program is OUT OF THIS WORLD!"

- 29 13. Jesus as the "Protector" of the trust indenture. He recruits (calls or hires), qualifies (using His law), and disqualifies 30 (fires) trustees. Those who have not faithfully executed their duties as trustees will not receive the ongoing "benefits"
 31 (blessings) or the deferred (retirement) compensation of the trust.
- 32 14. Those who do things that are forbidden by the trust or refuse to do things that are commanded as:
  - 33 14.1. "sinners": This is what Jesus calls them in Matt. 9. In Spanish, "sin" means "without", and the thing people are 34 "without" when they sin is God and His laws.
  - 35 14.2. "lawless": This is what Jesus called them in Matt. 7:23, Matt. 13:41, Matt. 23:28, and Matt. 24:12.

37 Anyone who does not "worship" (serve ANYONE or ANYTHING ABOVE them, and who in turn possesses superior or 38 supernatural powers) is an atheist. Those who worship the wrong god are called "idolaters". Even those who THINK they 39 are "atheists" often in fact DO worship (obey and serve) a religion without knowing it. The thing they worship is the thing
 40 they put higher in importance than God. This could be SELF, any law system OTHER than God's, money, sex, power, etc.
 41 The idolatry practiced by atheists is described in:

The Bible shows how the transition from FOREIGN to DOMESTIC and POLITICAL to LEGAL happens in relation to God in the following passage:

*2 That at that time ye were without (separated from) Christ, being aliens (shut out) from the commonwealth (Politeo, polis) of Israel, and strangers (xenos or alien) from the covenants of promise, having no hope, and without God (atheist) in the world (cosmos):

13 But now in Christ Jesus ye who sometimes were far off are made nigh by the blood of Christ.

14 For he is our peace, who hath made both one, and hath broken down the middle wall of partition (hedge or fence) between us;

15 Having abolished in his flesh the enmity (hostility), even the law (nomos) of commandments contained in ordinances; for to make in himself of twain one new man (anthropos), so making peace;

16 And that he might reconcile both unto God in one body by the cross, having slain (killed) the enmity thereby:

17 And came and preached peace to you which were afar off, and to them that were nigh.

18 For through him we both have access (freedom or right to enter) by one Spirit unto the Father.

19 Now therefore ye are no more strangers (xenos or foreigner or alien) and foreigners (one who lives in a place without citizenship), but fellow citizens (sumpolitai: from polis) with the saints, and of the household (domestic, blood kindred) of God;

[Eph. 2:2-19, Bible, KJV (amplified)]

The Declaration of Independence says that all just powers of government derive from the CONSENT of the governed. It would be unjust and an act of terrorism to interfere with or even protect the property or rights of those who didn't consent to RECEIVE the protection.                                                                                                                                                   |
| 9  | “the enmity (hostility)”                                                                                                                                               | The jealous insistence of self-government and self-ownership and one's PRIVATE rather than PUBLIC status. Also, the status of being a criminal under God's law who has not yet been arrested or incarcerated. Under God's laws, we are all criminals and deserve death, eternal separation from God, prison, and isolation. That's the story of the Garden of Eden. Adam and Eve had to be kicked out of the Garden after they sinned.                                        |
| 10 | “abolished in his flesh . . . even the law (nomos) of commandments contained in ordinances; for to make in himself of twain one new man (anthropos), so making peace;” | Christ abolished the enmity and separation between God and us by becoming a living sacrifice and paying the penalty for our sin demanded by God's commandments. Hence, we can safely leave the slavery and isolation of our sin and return to fellowship with God. Prisons do the same thing. Criminals must be separated from society by being put in jail. They must fulfill their sentence before they can return to society and fellowship as an equal member once again. |

1 Before we become Christians, we are legally separated from God and outside of the protection and “benefit” (blessing) of 2 His laws:

- 3 1. God’s criminal laws “protect” us. His criminal laws protect us even if we don’t consent to the protection. They attach 4 to the LAND we stand on and therefore are called the “law of the land”. Sin has the effect of “uprooting us” from the 5 “protections” of this “law of the land”:

6 *“For the upright will dwell in the land,
7 And the blameless will remain in it;
8 But the wicked will be cut off from the earth,
9 And the unfaithful will be uprooted from it.”
10 [Prov. 2:21-22, Bible, NKJV]*

- 11 2. God’s civil statutory laws “benefit” or “bless” us. We must consent to become the proper subject of His CIVIL laws, 12 and hence, we must be a party to a COVENANT to receive their “benefits”. Anything that conveys “benefits” or 13 “blessings” is a franchise in legal terminology. Legal evidence of the existence of our covenant with God is the act of 14 baptism. Beyond baptism, our acts of obedience and professed faith also constitutes such legal evidence. James 2.

15 Being “outside” of the protection of a specific system of law as described below is called being “foreign”, a “stranger”,
16 “stateless”, or a “nonresident” in secular legal terms.

17 *2 That at that time ye were without (separated from) Christ, being aliens (shut out) from the commonwealth
18 (Politeo, polis) of Israel, and strangers (xenos or alien) from the covenants of promise, having no hope, and 19 without God (atheist) in the world (cosmos):*

20 13 But now in Christ Jesus ye who sometimes were far off are made nigh by the blood of Christ.

21 14 For he is our peace, who hath made both one, and hath broken down the middle wall of partition (hedge or 22 fence) between us;

23 While we are “foreign”, a “stranger”, “stateless”, and a “nonresident” in relation to God and His laws, we are usually 24 “domestic”, a statutory “person”, and a “subject” in relation to a political ruler. The Apostle Paul refers to the shedding of 25 this legal identity as “putting on the new man”:

26 The New Man

27 *This I say, therefore, and testify in the Lord, that you should no longer walk as the rest of the Gentiles walk, in
28 the futility of their mind, having their understanding darkened, being alienated from the life of God, because of 29 the ignorance that is in them, because of the blindness of their heart; who, being past feeling, have given 30 themselves over to lewdness, to work all uncleanness with greediness.

31 *But you have not so learned Christ, if indeed you have heard Him and have been taught by Him, as the truth is in
32 Jesus: that you put off, concerning your former conduct, the old man which grows corrupt according to the 33 deceitful lusts, and be renewed in the spirit of your mind, and that you put on the new man which was created
34 according to God, in true righteousness and holiness.
35 [Eph. 4:17-24, Bible, NKJV]*

36 After we have shed Caesars/Satans’ authority over us, we are no longer under Caesar’s protection:

37 “But if you are led by the Spirit, you are not under the law.”

38 [. . .]

39 *“But the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, longsuffering, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, gentleness, self-
40 control. Against such there is no law.”
41 [Galatians 5:18, Bible, NKJV]*

42 The “new man” referred to above is actually a TRUSTEE POSITION or “office” within the Bible trust indenture, just like
43 all of man’s civil law. The believer then becomes a “foreigner” in relation to Caesar’s civil statutory franchise codes and no
44 longer an AGENT of Caesar, but rather of God. You can only have ONE King and ONE domicile and ONE allegiance at a
45 time, or you have a conflict of interest:

1                    "All the powers of the government [including ALL of its civil enforcement powers against the public] must be
 2 *carried into operation by individual agency, either through the medium of public officers, or contracts made
 3 with [private] individuals."
 4 [Osborn v. Bank of U.S., 22 U.S. 738 (1824)]

5 To redeem us from the corruption of this pagan system of secular law that enslaves us to worshipping false idols called civil
 6 rulers, Christ shed His blood for us. When we accept His free gift of salvation through faith, we become "domestic" in 7 relation to God and "foreign" in relation to the world:

8                    13 But now in Christ Jesus ye who sometimes were far off are made nigh by the blood of Christ.

9                    14 For he is our peace, who hath made both one, and hath broken down the middle wall of partition (hedge or 10 fence) between us;

11                    15 Having abolished in his flesh the enmity (hostility), even the law (nomos) of commandments contained in 12 ordinances; for to make in himself of twain one new man (anthropos), so making peace;

13                    16 And that he might reconcile both unto God in one body by the cross, having slain (killed) the enmity thereby:

14                    17 And came and preached peace to you which were afar off, and to them that were nigh.

15                    18 For through him we both have access (freedom or right to enter) by one Spirit unto the Father.

16                    19 Now therefore ye are no more strangers (xenos or foreigner or alien) and foreigners (one who lives in a place
 17 without citizenship), but fellow citizens (sumpolitai: from polis) with the saints, and of the household (domestic,
 18 blood kindred) of God;

19 The Biblical political model for government was based on city states rather than "states". Ancient cities had walls around
 20 them and a gate controlling entry and exit. To enter the city, you had to be a STATUTORY "citizen", "resident", or "member"
 21 of the city, and swear allegiance to the ruler.

22                    Blessed are those who do [OBEY] His commandments [LAWS], that they may have the right to the tree of life,
 23 and may enter through the gates into the city. But outside [the city and its protection] are dogs and sorcerers
 24 and sexually immoral and murderers and idolaters, and whoever loves and practices a lie.
 25 [Rev. 22:14-15, Bible, NKJV]

26 The only way to avoid committing idolatry is to ensure that God is the King of the city you want to be a member of. The 27 Bible book of Nehemiah describes how such a city can be and was built. It describes the rebuilding of the wall around 28 Jerusalem and the restoration of God as the King of the Israelites. To do this, all the people in the new city had to:

29 1. Study God's law.

30                    Now all the people gathered together as one man in the open square that was in front of the Water Gate; and they
 31 told Ezra the scribe to bring the Book of the Law of Moses, which the LORD had commanded Israel. So Ezra the 32 priest brought the Law before the assembly of men and women and all who could hear with understanding on the 33 first day of the seventh month. Then he read from it in the open square that was in front of the Water Gate from 34 morning until midday, before the men and women and those who could understand; and the ears of all the people
 35 were attentive to the Book of the Law.

36                    So Ezra the scribe stood on a platform of wood which they had made for the purpose; and beside him, at his right
 37 hand, stood Mattithiah, Shema, Anaiah, Urijah, Hilkiah, and Maaseiah; and at his left hand Pedaiah, Mishael, 38 Malchijah, Hashum, Hashbadana, Zechariah, and Meshullam. And Ezra opened the book in the sight of all the 39 people, for he was standing above all the people; and when he opened it, all the people stood up. And Ezra
 40 blessed the LORD, the great God.

41                    Then all the people answered, "Amen, Amen!" while lifting up their hands. And they bowed their heads and 42 worshiped the LORD with their faces to the ground.
 43 [Nehemiah 8:1-6, Bible, NKJV]

- 44 2. Restore the authority of God's law by SEPARATING themselves from everyone OUTSIDE, meaning the "foreigners", 45 "strangers", and "nonresidents" and confessing their sins. Being SEPARATE and being "sanctified" are equivalent in 46 the context of the Bible. "Sanctified" means "set aside for a purpose", and that purpose is God's purpose.
 47 Sanctification means obedience to Him and His divine law.

The People Confess Their Sins

Now on the twenty-fourth day of this month the children of Israel were assembled with fasting, in sackcloth, and with dust on their heads. Then those of Israelite lineage separated themselves from all foreigners; and they stood and confessed their sins and the iniquities of their fathers. And they stood up in their place and read from the Book of the Law of the Lord their God for one-fourth of the day; and for another fourth they confessed and worshiped the Lord their God.
[Nehemiah 9:1-3, Bible, NKJV]

The Whole Duty of Man

And moreover, because the Preacher was wise, he still taught the people knowledge; yes, he pondered and sought out and set in order many proverbs. The Preacher sought to find acceptable words; and what was written was upright—words of truth. The words of the wise are like goads, and the words of scholars are like well-driven nails, given by one Shepherd. And further, my son, be admonished by these. Of making many books there is no end, and much study is wearisome to the flesh.

Let us hear the conclusion of the whole matter:

Fear God and keep His commandments,
For this is man's all.
For God will bring every work into judgment,
Including every secret thing,
Whether good or evil.
[Eccl. 12:9-14, Bible, NKJV]

On that last item above, now deceased U.S. Supreme Court Justice Antonin Scalia boldly stated at a legal gathering that socialism “deprives Christians of sanctification”. By this he clearly can only mean that it INTERFERES with obeying God’s laws, since sanctification is effected only through obedience to God’s laws. He should know about Christianity because after all, his son is a Catholic Priest and presided over his own funeral:

The basis for our ministry is, in fact, the rebuilding of this wall of separation between church, which is believers as individual humans, and the secular pagan state, which is the heathens around us. See the following discussion about Nehemiah in:

SEDM About Us Page, Section 2: Mission Statement
<http://sedm.org/Ministry/AboutUs.htm>

The Heaven we enter after the final judgment called “The New Jerusalem” is described as such a great city. You can’t enter this walled city without allegiance to its King, who is Jesus, and without obedience to the laws that make it a safe and pleasant place for EVERYONE. If Jesus is your Savior but NOT your Sovereign Lord and KING, then you can’t enter this city!

The New Jerusalem

Then one of the seven angels who had the seven bowls filled with the seven last plagues came to me and talked with me, saying, “Come, I will show you the bride, the Lamb’s wife.” And he carried me away in the Spirit to a great and high mountain, and showed me the great city, the holy Jerusalem, descending out of heaven from God, having the glory of God. Her light was like a most precious stone, like a jasper stone, clear as crystal. Also she had a great and high wall with twelve gates, and twelve angels at the gates, and names written on them, which are the names of the twelve tribes of the children of Israel: three gates on the east, three gates on the north, three gates on the south, and three gates on the west.

Now the wall of the city had twelve foundations, and on them were the names of the twelve apostles of the Lamb. And he who talked with me had a gold reed to measure the city, its gates, and its wall. The city is laid out as a square; its length is as great as its breadth. And he measured the city with the reed: twelve thousand furlongs. Its length, breadth, and height are equal. Then he measured its wall: one hundred and forty-four cubits, according to the measure of a man, that is, of an angel. The construction of its wall was of jasper; and the city was pure gold, like clear glass. The foundations of the wall of the city were adorned with all kinds of precious stones: the first foundation was jasper, the second sapphire, the third chalcedony, the fourth emerald, the fifth sardonyx, the sixth sardius, the seventh chrysolite, the eighth beryl, the ninth topaz, the tenth chrysoprase, the eleventh jacinth,

1 and the twelfth amethyst. The twelve gates were twelve pearls: each individual gate was of one pearl. And the
 2 street of the city was pure gold, like transparent glass.
 3 [Rev. 21:9-21, Bible, NKJV]

4 The wall keeps the sinners, disobedient, and anarchists (in relation to God's laws) OUT of the city. These people are NOT
 5 subject to the laws applicable WITHIN the city, but instead are "foreign", a "stranger", "stateless", or a "nonresident" in
 6 relation to the civil laws of that place. All laws are prima facie territorial, meaning that they DO NOT apply to people not 7 ON that land or at least domiciled there.

8 The foregoing considerations would lead, in case of doubt, to a construction of any statute as intended to be
 9 confined in its operation and effect to the territorial limits over which the lawmaker has general and legitimate
 10 power. 'All legislation is prima facie territorial.' Ex parte Blain, L. R. 12 Ch. Div. 522, 528; State v. Carter, 27
 11 N.J.L. 499; People v. Merrill, 2 Park. Crim. Rep. 590, 596. Words having universal scope, such as 'every 12 contract in restraint of trade,' 'every person who shall monopolize,' etc., will be taken, as a matter of course,
 13 to mean only everyone subject to such legislation, not all that the legislator subsequently may be able to catch.
 14 In the case of the present statute, the improbability of the United States attempting to make acts done in Panama
 15 or Costa Rica criminal is obvious, yet the law begins by making criminal the acts for which it gives a right to sue.
 16 We think it entirely plain that what the defendant did in Panama or Costa Rica is not within the scope of the 17 statute so far as the present suit is concerned. Other objections of a serious nature are urged, but need not be 18 discussed.
 19 [American Banana Co. v. U.S. Fruit, 213 U.S. 347 at 357-358]

20 "The canon of construction which teaches that legislation of Congress, unless a contrary intent appears, is meant
 21 to apply only within the territorial jurisdiction of the United States. Blackmer v. United States, supra, at 437, is a
 22 valid approach whereby unexpressed congressional intent may be ascertained. It is based on the assumption that 23 Congress is primarily concerned with domestic conditions."
 24 [Foley Brothers, Inc. v. Filardo, 336 U.S. 281 (1949)]

25 "The laws of Congress in respect to those matters [outside of Constitutionally delegated powers] do not extend
 26 into the territorial limits of the states, but have force only in the District of Columbia, and other places that are 27 within the exclusive jurisdiction of the national government."
 28 [Caha v. U.S., 152 U.S. 211 (1894)]

29 "There is a canon of legislative construction which teaches Congress that, unless a contrary intent appears
 30 [legislation] is meant to apply only within the territorial jurisdiction of the United States."
 31 [U.S. v. Spelar, 338 U.S. 217 at 222.]

32 In the case of the civil statutory "codes" or protection franchise, you must not only be ON that land, but must CONSENT to 33 be protected by them by consensually choosing a domicile within the jurisdiction of the "state" that civilly protects that land.
 34 If you don't choose such a domicile on the land in which you have injured someone, then:

- 35 1. The party you injured and you are both protected only by the Constitution and the Common law.
- 36 2. You are a "foreign", a "stranger", "stateless", or a "nonresident" in relation to the civil statutory codes of that place.
- 37 3. Those who attempt to enforce the civil statutory "codes" against a non-resident are guilty of compelling you to contract 38 under the terms of the "social compact", meaning the civil statutory protection franchise codes.
- 39 4. Any case law that is quoted against you is merely "political speech" and propaganda designed to deceive you into 40 obedience to franchise codes that don't apply to you. All case law that is quoted in court must derive from parties
 41 "similarly situated", meaning those who are "nonresidents" under the civil statutory franchise codes. This rule is 42 maliciously violated all the time by corrupt judges intent on usurping authority and committing TREASON.
- 43 5. If you are a Christian and Jesus is your only King and therefore lawgiver, then you are an agent of a foreign state called 44 "Heaven" and a public officer of the Kingdom of Heaven. You are from the city of "New Jerusalem".

45 TITLE 28 > PART IV > CHAPTER 97 > Sec. 1603.
 46 Sec. 1603. - Definitions

47 For purposes of this chapter -

48 (a) A "foreign state", except as used in section 1608 of this title, includes a political subdivision of a foreign state
 49 or an agency or instrumentality of a foreign state as defined in subsection (b).

50 (b) An "agency or instrumentality of a foreign state" means any entity -

51 (1) which is a separate legal person, corporate or otherwise, and

(2) which is an organ of a foreign state or political subdivision thereof, or a majority of whose shares or other ownership interest is owned by a foreign state or political subdivision thereof, and

(3) which is neither a citizen of a State of the United States as defined in section 1332 (c) and (d) of this title, nor created under the laws of any third country.

As a public officer, agent, and trustee of God under the Bible trust indenture and someone who is “domestic” in relation to Heaven and “foreign” in relation to Caesar, you are an “ambassador” of God who is subject ONLY to the CIVIL lawgiver you represent.

“Now then, we are ambassadors for Christ, as though God were pleading through us: we implore you on Christ’s behalf, be reconciled to God. For He made Him who knew no sin to be sin for us, that we might become the righteousness of God in Him.”
[2 Cor. 5:20-21, Bible, NKJV]

“Stand therefore, having girded your waist with truth, having put on the breastplate of righteousness, and having shod your feet with the preparation of the gospel of peace; above all, taking the shield of faith with which you will be able to quench all the fiery darts of the wicked one. And take the helmet of salvation, and the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God; praying always with all prayer and supplication in the Spirit, being watchful to this end with all perseverance and supplication for all the saints—and for me, that utterance may be given to me, that I may open my mouth boldly to make known the mystery of the gospel, for which I am an ambassador in chains; that in it I may speak boldly, as I ought to speak.”
[Eph. 6:14-20, Bible, NKJV]

PARTICULAR PERSONS

4. Public Officials and Employees; Members of the Armed Services
§31 Public Officials and Employees

Ambassadors, consuls, and other public officials residing abroad in governmental service do not generally acquire a domicile in the country where their official duties are performed, but retain their original domicile, although such officials may acquire a domicile at their official residence, if they engage in business or commerce inconsistent with, or extraneous to, their public or diplomatic character.
[Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.), Domicile, §31 (2003);

Jesus even described how we became “foreign”, a “stranger”, “stateless”, or a “nonresident”:

“If you were of the world, the world would love its own. Yet because you are not of [domiciled within] the world, but I [Jesus] chose you [believers] out of the world, therefore the world hates you. Remember the word that I said to you, ‘A [public] servant is not greater than his [Sovereign] master.’ If they persecuted Me, they will also persecute you. If they kept My word, they will keep yours also [as trustees of the public trust]. But all these things they will do to you for My name’s sake, because they do not know Him [God] who sent Me.”
[Jesus in John 15:19-21, Bible, NKJV]

The phrase “do not know Him who sent Me” is equivalent to someone who has no commercial or legal relationship with God by virtue of not accepting or nominating Him as their CIVIL protector. These people are domiciled on Earth within Caesar’s jurisdiction rather than in Heaven under God’s civil protection. They are therefore practicing idolatry and are under the control of the “wicked one” as Jesus called Him in Matt. 13, 1 John 2, and 1 John 3. They are “worshipping” a false idol called “Caesar” because they have nominated HIM as their pagan civil lawgiver instead of God. The source of law in any society is the GOD of that society and if Caesar’s law deviates from God’s law, then Caesar is the new pagan god:

Then all the elders of Israel gathered together and came to Samuel at Ramah, and said to him, “Look, you are old, and your sons do not walk in your ways. Now make us a king to judge us like all the nations [and be OVER them].”

But the thing displeased Samuel when they said, “Give us a king to judge us.” So Samuel prayed to the Lord. And the Lord said to Samuel, “Heed the voice of the people in all that they say to you; for they have rejected Me [God], that I should not reign over them. According to all the works which they have done since the day that I brought them up out of Egypt, even to this day—with which they have forsaken Me and served other gods [Kings, in this case]—so they are doing to you also [government becoming idolatry]. Now therefore, heed their voice. However, you shall solemnly forewarn them, and show them the behavior of the king who will reign over them.”
[1 Sam. 8:4-9, Bible, NKJV]

1 The Bible even describes Jesus as NOT having an Earthly domicile:

2 Then a certain scribe came and said to Him, "Teacher, I will follow You wherever You go." And Jesus said to
 3 him, "Foxes have holes and birds of the air have nests, but the Son of Man has nowhere to lay His head."
 4 [Matt. 8:19-20, Bible, NKJV]

5 Consistent with the above analysis, states of the Union:

6 1 Are considered legislatively "foreign" in relation to each other.

7 "For all national purposes embraced by the Federal Constitution, the States and the citizens thereof are one,
 8 united under the same sovereign authority, and governed by the same laws. In all other respects the States are 9 necessarily foreign and independent of each other."
 10 [Buckner v. Finley, 2 Pet. 586 (1829)]

11 Foreign Laws: "The laws of a foreign country or sister state. In conflicts of law, the legal principles of 12 jurisprudence which are part of the law of a sister state or nation. Foreign laws are additions to our own laws,
 13 and in that respect are called 'jus receptum'."
 14 [Black's Law Dictionary, 6th Edition, p. 647]

15 2 Are called "foreign states" in relation to the national government.

16 Foreign States: "Nations outside of the United States...Term may also refer to another state; i.e. a sister state.
 17 The term 'foreign nations', ...should be construed to mean all nations and states other than that in which the 18 action is brought; and hence, one state of the Union is foreign to another, in that sense."
 19 [Black's Law Dictionary, 6th Edition, p. 648]

20 3 Are called "sovereign" because they are legislatively foreign.

21 "Generally, the states of the Union sustain toward each other the relationship of independent sovereigns or
 22 independent foreign states, except in so far as the United States is paramount as the dominating government, and
 23 in so far as the states are bound to recognize the fraternity among sovereignties established by the federal
 24 Constitution, as by the provision requiring each state to give full faith and credit to the public acts, records, and
 25 judicial proceedings of the other states..."
 26 [81A Corpus Juris Secundum \(C.J.S.\), United States, §29 (2003)]

27 4 Can only surrender their "foreign status" WITH THEIR express consent.

28 Before we can proceed in this cause we must, therefore, inquire whether we can hear and determine the 29 matters in controversy between the parties, who are two states of this Union, sovereign within their respective
 30 boundaries, save that portion of power which they have granted to the federal government, and foreign to each
 31 other for all but federal purposes. So they have been considered by this Court, through a long series of years
 32 and cases, to the present term; during which, in the case of The Bank of the United States v. Daniels, this Court
 33 has declared this to be a fundamental principle of the constitution; and so we shall consider it in deciding on the 34 present motion. 2 Peters, 590, 91.

35 Those states, in their highest sovereign capacity, in the convention of the people thereof; on whom, by the 36 revolution, the prerogative of the crown, and the transcendent power of parliament devolved, in a plenitude
 37 unimpaired by any act, and controllable by no authority, 6 Wheat. 651; 8 Wheat. 584, 88; adopted the 38 constitution, by which they respectively made to the United States a grant of judicial power over controversies
 39 between two or more states. By the constitution, it was ordained that this judicial power, in cases where a state
 40 was a party, should be exercised by this Court as one of original jurisdiction. The states waived their exemption
 41 from judicial power, 6 Wheat. 378, 80, as sovereigns by original and inherent right, by their own grant of its 42 exercise over themselves in such cases, but which they would not grant to any inferior tribunal. By this grant,
 43 this Court has acquired jurisdiction over the parties in this cause, by their own consent and delegated authority;
 44 as their agent for executing the judicial power of the United States in the cases specified.
 45 [The State of Rhode Island and Providence Plantations, Complainants v. the Commonwealth of Massachusetts,
 46 Defendant, 37 U.S. 657, 12 Pet. 657, 9 L.Ed. 1233 (1838)]

47 The same distinctions apply to the PEOPLE within those states in relation to their own state government and even the national 48 government, at least from a CIVIL statutory perspective.

49 "The United States Government is a foreign corporation with respect to a state." N.Y. v. [Merriam 36 N.E.
 50 505; 141 N.Y. 479; affirmed 16 S.Ct. 1073; 41 L. Ed. 287] [underlines added]
 51 [19 Corpus Juris Secundum \(C.J.S.\), Corporations, §884 (2003)]

1 Why is the national government a “foreign corporation” in respect to a CONSTITUTIONAL state? Because their first and
 2 MAIN job is to leave you alone, which means treat you as “foreign”, “stateless”, a “nonresident”, and a “stranger” unless
 3 and until you SPECIFICALLY CONSENT, demand, and ask to be civilly protected by selecting a civil domicile. As we
 4 have just proven, you are an IDIOT and an idolater if you ask Caesar to do this, according to God.

10 “Justice, as a moral habit, is that tendency of the will and mode of conduct which refrains from disturbing the
 11 lives and interests of others, and, as far as possible, hinders such interference on the part of others. This virtue
 12 springs from the individual's respect for his fellows as ends in themselves and as his co equals. The different
 13 spheres of interests may be roughly classified as follows: body and life; the family, or the extended individual
 14 life; property, or the totality of the instruments of action; honor, or the ideal existence; and finally freedom, or 15 the possibility of fashioning one's life as an end in itself. The law defends these different spheres, thus giving rise
 16 to a corresponding number of spheres of rights, each being protected by a prohibition. . . . To violate the rights,
 17 to interfere with the interests of others, is injustice. All injustice is ultimately directed against the life of the 18 neighbor; it is an open avowal that the latter is not an end in itself, having the same value as the individual's own
 19 life. The general formula of the duty of justice may therefore be stated as follows: Do no wrong yourself, and 20 permit no wrong to be done, so far as lies in your power; or, expressed positively: Respect and protect the right.”

38 You have to SURRENDER your right to be left alone, fire God as your civil protector, and agree to commit idolatry by asking
 39 Caesar for civil protection. Once you ask, he will make you into a public officer working WITHIN his corporation and 40 therefore “domestic”. Nearly all statutory “persons” are public officers, as we exhaustively prove in:

Why Statutory Civil Law is Law for Government and Not Private Persons, Form #05.037
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

41 If you are not serving WITHIN the above “foreign corporation” of Caesar as a public officer, then you remain “foreign”, a
 42 “stranger”, “stateless”, or a “nonresident” in relation to that corporation. While serving WITHIN that corporation as its agent
 43 and officer, your effective domicile is the domicile of the corporation, which is the District of Columbia under Federal Rule
 44 of Civil Procedure 17(b), as we established earlier in section 5.4.8.8. If you want to REMAIN “foreign”, a “stranger”,
 45 “stateless”, or a “nonresident”, then you MUST ensure that you NEVER contract, meaning “fornicate” with The Beast
 46 Government (Rev. 19:19) for EITHER civil “protection” or civil “benefits”. In other words, you should NEVER consent to 47 surrender your sovereignty or sovereign immunity to become a statutory “person”, “citizen”, or “resident” under the CIVIL 48 statutory franchise codes:

5 "Again, the devil took Him [Jesus] up on an exceedingly high [civil/legal status above all other humans]
6 mountain, and showed Him all the kingdoms of the world and their glory. And he said to Him, "All these things
7 ["BENEFITS"] I will give You if You will fall down [BELOW Satan but ABOVE other humans] and worship
8 [serve as a PUBLIC OFFICER] me."

9 Then Jesus said to him, "Away with you, Satan! For it is written, 'You shall worship the LORD your God, and
10 Him only you shall serve.'"

11 Then the devil left Him, and behold, angels came and ministered to Him."
12 [Matt. 4:8-11, Bible, NKJV]

14 "I [God] brought you up from Egypt [slavery] and brought you to the land of which I swore to your fathers; and
15 I said, 'I will never break My covenant with you. And you shall make no covenant [contract or franchise or
16 agreement of ANY kind] with the inhabitants of this [corrupt pagan] land; you shall tear down their
17 [man/government worshipping socialist] altars.' But you have not obeyed Me. Why have you done this?"

18 "Therefore I also said, 'I will not drive them out before you; but they will become as thorns [terrorists and 19 persecutors] in your side and their gods will be a snare [slavery!] to you.'"

20 So it was, when the Angel of the LORD spoke these words to all the children of Israel, that the people lifted up
21 their voices and wept.

24 "You shall make no covenant [contract or franchise] with them [foreigners, pagans], nor with their [pagan
25 government] gods [laws or judges]. They shall not dwell in your land [and you shall not dwell in theirs by
26 becoming a "resident" or domiciliary in the process of contracting with them], lest they make you sin against Me
27 [God]. For if you serve their [government] gods [under contract or agreement or franchise], it will surely be a
28 snare to you.'"
29 [Exodus 23:32-33, Bible, NKJV]
30

31 'For among My [God's] people are found wicked [covetous public servant] men; They lie in wait as one who 32 sets snares; They set a trap; They catch men. As a cage is full of birds, So their houses are full of deceit.
33 Therefore they have become great and grown rich. They have grown fat, they are sleek; Yes, they surpass the 34 deeds of the wicked; They do not plead the cause, The cause of the fatherless [or the innocent, widows, or the 35 nontaxpayer]; Yet they prosper, And the right of the needy they do not defend. Shall I not punish them for these 36 things?' says the Lord. 'Shall I not avenge Myself on such a nation as this?'

37 "An astonishing and horrible thing Has been committed in the land: The prophets prophesy falsely, And the 38 priests [judges in franchise courts that worship government as a pagan deity] rule by their own power; And My 39 people love to have it so. But what will you do in the end?'"

47 [Voltaire]

1 "The more you want [privileges], the more the world can hurt you."
2 [Confucius]

4 "The Lord is well pleased for His righteousness' sake; He will exalt the law and make it honorable. But this is
5 a people robbed and plundered! All of them are snared in [legal] holes [by the sophistry of greedy government
6 lawyers], and they are hidden in prison houses; they are for prey, and no one delivers; for plunder, and no one
7 says, "Restore!"."

8 Who among you will give ear to this? Who will listen and hear for the time to come? Who gave Jacob for 9 plunder, and Israel to the robbers? Was it not the Lord, He against whom we have sinned? For they would
10 not walk in His ways, nor were they obedient to His law, therefore He has poured on him the fury of His anger
11 and the strength of battle; it has set him on fire all around, yet he did not know; and it burned him, yet he did not 12 take it to heart."
13 [Isaiah 42:21-25, Bible, NKJV]

14 If we don't obey the above commandments, then here is the process of corruption that happens in which we will be 15 DESTROYED. This process of corruption is summarized in an ancient maxim of law:

16 "Protectio trahit subjectionem, subjectio projectionem.
17 Protection draws to it subjection, subjection, protection. Co. Litt. 65."
18 [Bouvier's Maxims of Law, 1856]

19 The above maxim of law is described in 1 Sam. 8:19-20:

20 Nevertheless the people refused to obey the voice of Samuel; and they said, "No, but we will have a king over 21 us, that we also may be like all the nations, and that our king may judge us and go out before us and fight our 22 battles [PROTECT us]."
23 [1 Sam. 8:19-20, Bible, NKJV]

24 The result of trusting Egypt/Babylon/District of Columbia for protection, franchises, or privileges is the following:

25 Israel Demands a King

26 So Samuel told all the words of the Lord to the people who asked him for a king. And he said, "This will be the
27 behavior of the king who will reign over you: He will take your sons and appoint them for his own chariots
28 and to be his horsemen, and some will run before his chariots. He will appoint captains over his thousands 29 and captains over his fifties, will set some to plow his ground and reap his harvest, and some to make his 30 weapons of war and equipment for his chariots. He will take your daughters to be perfumers, cooks, and bakers.
31 And he will take the best of your fields, your vineyards, and your olive groves, and give them to his servants.
32 He will take a tenth of your grain and your vintage, and give it to his officers and servants. 16 And he will take
33 your male servants, your female servants, your finest young men,[a] and your donkeys, and put them to his
34 work. He will take a tenth of your sheep. And you will be his servants. And you will cry out in that day because 35 of your king whom you have chosen for yourselves, and the Lord will not hear you in that day."
36 [1 Sam. 8:10-18, Bible, NKJV]

37
38 Futile Confidence in Egypt [Babylon]

39 "Woe to the rebellious children," says the Lord,
40 "Who take counsel [legal advice], but not of Me,
41 And who devise plans, but not of My Spirit,
42 That they may add sin to sin;
43 Who walk to go down to Egypt [Babylon],
44 And have not asked My advice [God's laws and holy spirit],
45 To strengthen themselves in the strength of Pharaoh [District of Columbia],
46 And to trust in the shadow [franchises] of Egypt!
47 Therefore the strength of Pharaoh
48 Shall be your shame,
49 And trust in the shadow of Egypt
50 Shall be your humiliation.
51 For his princes were at Zoan,
52 And his ambassadors came to Hanes.
53 They were all ashamed of a people who could not benefit [franchises] them,
54 Or be help or benefit,

1                   But a shame and also a reproach.
2                   [Isaiah 30:1-5, Bible, NKJV]

3 Notice the language “no help or benefit” in the last quote above. God is describing an UNFAIR or UNEQUAL trade wrought
4 out of desperation and which produces “USURY”. We describe this as “the raw deal” scam, which is a euphemism for
5 franchises and the FDR “New Deal”. The Bible reiterates this criticism of the government’s “raw deal scam” in the following:

6                   For thus says the LORD: “ You have sold yourselves for nothing, And you shall be redeemed without money.”
7                   [Isaiah 52:3, Bible, NKJV]

8 The same unequal sale for nothing happened during the famine in Egypt, and also in the first city Babylon between Nimrod
9 and his “victims”, where he used the PLUNDER to build his tower to celebrate his vanity. Do you see a pattern here? It’s 10 about USURY. For more on the “raw deal scam” and its origin with “protection”, see section 5.4.8.8 of this document.

11 The only remedy for the usury is:

- 12 1. Love. God is love. He who does not love His neighbor does not know God.
- 13 2. Empathy.
- 14 3. Equality between the governors and the governed from a civil perspective, so that idolatry toward government is 15 IMPOSSIBLE.
- 16 4. Requirement for consent of the governed in any and every interaction between the governed and the governors. See 17 Form #05.003.
- 18 5. Contentment, which is the opposite of covetousness.
- 19 6. “Meekness”, which is a synonym for all the above.

31 5.4.8.11.6           “Domicile” and “residence” compared

32 We know from earlier discussion that one can have only ONE domicile but as many residences as they want. The reason is 33 that:

- 34 1. DOMICILE is associated with PERSONS and implies physical presence and allegiance, which must be undivided.
35 You can only be in one physical place at a time and have undivided allegiance to only one government at a time.
- 36 2. RESIDENCE is associated with CONTRACTS and the statuses they create. Residence is usually a consequence of the 37 exercise of your right to contract with those usually OUTSIDE the place of your domicile. It is a product of the 38 Minimum Contacts Doctrine. Since your right to contract is unlimited, then you can have more than one residence.
39 Each “residence” can, in turn, dictate a different choice of law or government protector.

40                   “Locus contractus regit actum. The place of the contract governs the act.”
41                   [Bouvier’s Maxims of Law, 1856;

1 RESIDENCE. A factual place of abode. Living in a particular locality. Reese v. Reese, 179 Misc. 665, 40 N.Y.S.2d.
2 468, 472; Zimmerman v. Zimmerman, 175 Or. 585, 155 P.2d. 293, 295. It requires only bodily presence as an
3 inhabitant of a place. In re Campbell's Guardianship, 216 Minn. 113, 11 N.W.2d. 786, 789.

4 As "domicile" and "residence" are usually in the same place, they are frequently used as if they had the same
5 meaning, but they are not identical terms, for a person may have two places of residence, as in the city and
6 country, but only one domicile. Residence means living in a particular locality, but domicile means living in that
7 locality with intent to make it a fixed and permanent home. Residence simply requires bodily presence as an 8 inhabitant in a given place, while domicile requires bodily presence in that place and also an intention to make
9 it one's domicile. In re Riley's Will, 266 N.Y.S. 209, 148 Misc. 588.

10 "Residence" demands less intimate local ties than "domicile, but "domicile" allows absence for indefinite period
11 if intent to return remains. Immigration Act 1917. §3, 8 U.S.C.A. .§136 (e, p). Transatlantica Italiana v. Elting,
12 C.C.A.N.Y., 74 F.2d. 732, 733. But see, Ward v. Ward, 115 W.Va. 429. 176 S.E. 708. 709; Southwestern
13 Greyhound Lines v. Craig. 182 Okl. 610, 80 P.2d. 221, 224; holding that residence and domicile are synonymous
14 terms. "Residence" has a meaning dependent on context and purpose of statute. In re Jones, 341 Pa. 329, 19
15 A.2d. 280. 282. Words "residence" and "domicile". may have an identical or variable meaning depending on 16 subject-matter and context of statute. Kemp v. Kemp, 16 N.Y.S.2d. 26, 34, 172 Misc. 738.
17 [Black's Law Dictionary, Revised Fourth Edition, p. 1473]

18 The above definition deliberately clouds the issue of:

- 19 1. Whether residence has consent as a prerequisite or not. We know based on previous analysis that domicile does.
- 20 2. What citizenship, domicile, and nationality status are associated with "residence" in each context.

21 When we look up the definitions for "abode" and "inhabitant" as used in the definition of "residence", they all connect back 22 to domicile and therefore also have consent as a prerequisite.

- 23 1. Definition "inhabitant":

24 "Inhabitant. One who resides actually and permanently in a given place, and has his domicile there. Ex parte
25 Shaw, 145 U.S. 444, 12 S.Ct. 935, 36 L.Ed. 768. The words "inhabitant," "citizen," and "resident," as employed
26 in different constitutions to define the qualifications of electors, means substantially the same thing; and, in 27 general, one is an inhabitant, resident, or citizen at the place where he has his domicile or home. But the terms
28 "resident" and "inhabitant" have also been held not synonymous, the latter implying a more fixed and
29 permanent abode than the former, and importing privileges and duties to which a mere resident would not be
30 subject. A corporation can be an inhabitant only in the state of its incorporation. Sperry Products v. Association
31 of American Railroads, C.C.A.N.Y., 132 F.2d. 408, 411. See also Domicile; Residence.
32 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 782]

- 33 2. Definition of "abode":

34 "Abode. One's home; habitation; place of dwelling; or residence. Ordinarily means "domicile." Living place
35 impermanent in character. Fowler v. Fowler, 156 Fla. 316, 22 So.2d. 817, 818. The place where a person dwells.
36 In re Erickson, 18 N.J.Misc. 5, 10 A.2d. 142, 146. Residence of a legal voter. Pope v. Board of Election Com'rs,
37 370 Ill. 196, 18 N.E.2d. 214, 216. Fixed place of residence for the time being. Augustus Co., for Use of Bourgeois
38 v. Manzella, 19 N.J.Misc. 29, 17 A.2d. 68, 70. For service of process, one's fixed place of residence for the time
39 being; his "usual place of abode." Fed.R. Civil P.4. Kurilla v. Roth, 132 N.J.L. 213, 38 A.2d. 862,864.

40 See Domicile; Residence. General abode. See Residence.
41 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 7]

42 So to say that a "residence" is "A factual place of abode" in the definition of "residence" means one's CHOSEN place of 43 domicile. And to say that "It requires only bodily presence as an inhabitant of a place" in the definition of "residence"
44 ALSO implies domicile and therefore requires consent, because an "inhabitant" is someone who is "domiciled" in a place.

45 The following authorities clarify that "residence", and especially in taxing statutes, is usually associated with 46 CONSTITUTIONAL but not STATUTORY alienage or "alien" status and excludes those who are nationals of the country.

47 The reasons for not allowing to other aliens exemption from the jurisdiction of the country in which they are
48 found' were stated as follows: "When private individuals of one nation [states of the Unions are "nations" under
49 the law of nations] spread themselves through another as business or caprice may direct, mingling
50 indiscriminately with the inhabitants of that other, or when merchant vessels enter for the purposes of trade,
51 it would be obviously inconvenient and dangerous to society, and would subject the laws to continual
52 infraction, and the government to degradation, if such individuals or merchants did not owe temporary and

local allegiance, and were not amenable to the jurisdiction of the country. Nor can the foreign sovereign have any motive for wishing such exemption. His subjects thus passing into foreign countries are not employed by him, nor are they engaged in national pursuits. Consequently, there are powerful motives for not exempting persons of this description from the jurisdiction of the country in which they are found, and no one motive for requiring it. The implied license, therefore, under which they enter, can never be construed to grant such exemption. 7 Cranch, 144.

In short, the judgment in the case of The Exchange declared, as incontrovertible principles, that the jurisdiction of every nation within its own territory is exclusive and absolute, and is susceptible of no limitation not imposed by the nation itself; that all exceptions to its full and absolute territorial jurisdiction must be traced up to its own consent, express or implied; that upon its consent to cede, or to waive the exercise of, a part of its territorial jurisdiction, rest the exemptions from that jurisdiction of foreign sovereigns or their armies entering its territory with its permission, and of their foreign ministers and public ships of war; and that the implied license, under which private individuals of another nation enter the territory and mingle indiscriminately with its inhabitants, for purposes of business or pleasure, can never be construed to grant to them an exemption from the jurisdiction of the country in which they are found. See, also, Carlisle v. U.S. (1872) 16 Wall. 147, 155; Radich v. Hutchins (1877) 95 U.S. 210; Wildenhuis' Case (1887) 120 U.S. 1, 7 Sup.Ct. 385; Chae Chan Ping v. U.S. (1889) 130 U.S. 581, 603, 604, 9 Sup.Ct. 623.
[United States v. Wong Kim Ark, 169 U.S. 649, 18 S.Ct. 456, 42 L.Ed. 890 (1898)]

“Residents, as distinguished from citizens, are aliens who are permitted to take up a permanent abode in the country. Being bound to the society by reason of their dwelling in it, they are subject to its laws so long as they remain there, and, being protected by it, they must defend it, although they do not enjoy all the rights of citizens. They have only certain privileges which the law, or custom, gives them. Permanent residents are those who have been given the right of perpetual residence. They are a sort of citizen of a less privileged character, and are subject to the society without enjoying all its advantages. Their children succeed to their status; for the right of perpetual residence given them by the State passes to their children.”
[The Law of Nations, Vattel, Book 1, Chapter 19, Section 213, p. 87]

We wish to clarify that those who are domiciled within the exclusive jurisdiction of a CONSTITUTIONAL but not STATUTORY “State” relative to federal law and who were born somewhere within the country where the “State” is located are all the following in relation to the national government. This status, by the way, is the status of the AVERAGE American:

1. “Domiciled” but not “resident” within federal STATUTORY law.
2. Have no “residence” under federal STATUTORY law. Only statutory "aliens" can have a "residence".
3. STATUTORY “nationals” per 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21).
4. STATUTORY “non-resident non-persons”.
5. Legislatively but not Constitutional “foreign nationals”.
6. Not STATUTORY:
  - 6.1. “nationals and citizens of the United States** at birth” per 8 U.S.C. §1401
  - 6.2. “citizens of the United States***” per 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(c), and 26 U.S.C. §3121(e) or any other federal law.

It therefore appears to us that the only occasion where “domicile” or “residence” are NOT equivalent is in the case of those who are constitutional but not statutory aliens of the place they are in. Otherwise, they are equivalent. The implication is that constitutional aliens do not need to consent to the civil laws of the place they are in because they are “privileged”, whereas nationals born there do. This appears to violate the notion of equal protection, which may explain why the legal dictionary was so terse in their definition of residence: because they don't want to admit that courts routinely treat people unequally and in violation of the requirement for equal protection.

Below is the ONLY definition of “residence” found anywhere in the Internal Revenue Code. This definition is entirely consistent with the above. The definition does not begin with qualifying language such as “for the purposes of this section” or “for the purposes of this chapter”. Therefore, it is a universal definition that applies throughout the Internal Revenue Code and Treasury Regulations. Note also that the definition is provided ONLY in the context of an “alien”. Therefore, “citizens” or “nationals” cannot have a “residence”. This is VERY important and is completely consistent with the fact that the only kind of “resident” defined anywhere in the Internal Revenue Code (see 26 U.S.C. §7701\(b\)\(1\)\(A\)) is an “alien”:

Title 26: Internal Revenue
PART 1—INCOME TAXES
nonresident alien individuals
§ 1.871-2 Determining residence of alien individuals.

(b) Residence defined.

An alien actually present in the United States who is not a mere transient or sojourner is a resident of the United States for purposes of the income tax. Whether he is a transient is determined by his intentions with regard to the length and nature of his stay. A mere floating intention, indefinite as to time, to return to another country is not sufficient to constitute him a transient. If he lives in the United States and has no definite intention as to his stay, he is a resident. One who comes to the United States for a definite purpose which in its nature may be promptly accomplished is a transient; but, if his purpose is of such a nature that an extended stay may be necessary for its accomplishment, and to that end the alien makes his home temporarily in the United States, he becomes a resident, though it may be his intention at all times to return to his domicile abroad when the purpose for which he came has been consummated or abandoned. An alien whose stay in the United States is limited to a definite period by the immigration laws is not a resident of the United States within the meaning of this section, in the absence of exceptional circumstances.

The phrase "definite purpose" is important in the definition of "residence" above. Those who have a definite purpose because of their eternal covenant with God and their contractual relationship to Him described in the Bible and who know they are only here temporarily can only be classified as "transients" above. This explains why our rulers in government want to get God out of the schools and out of public life: so that the sheep will have no purpose in life other than to serve them and waste themselves away in vain and sinful material pursuits.

*"Then I hated all my labor in which I had toiled under the sun, because I must leave it to the man who will come after me. And who knows whether he will be wise or a fool? Yet he will rule over all my labor in which I toiled and in which I have shown myself wise under the sun. This also is vanity. Therefore I turned my heart and despaired of all the labor in which I had toiled under the sun. For there is a man whose labor is with wisdom, knowledge, and skill; yet he must leave his heritage to a man who has not labored for it. This also is vanity and a great evil. For what has man for all his labor, and for the striving of his heart with which he has toiled under the sun? For all his days are sorrowful, and his work burdensome; even in the night his heart takes no rest. This also is vanity."

Only you, the Sovereign, can determine your "intention" in the context of "residence". Notice the words "definite purpose", "transient" and "temporary" in the definition of "residence" above are nowhere defined in the law, which means that you, and not your public servants, define them. If you do not intend to remain in the "United States", which is defined as federal territory in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(9\) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d) and not expanded elsewhere in Subtitle A to include any other place, then you can't be counted as a "resident", even if you are in fact an "alien". The government cannot determine your intention for you. An intention that is not voluntary is not an intention, but simply a reaction to unjust external authority. This is the basis for why the Supreme Court said:

"The citizen cannot complain [about the laws or the tax system], because he has voluntarily submitted himself to such a form of government. He owes allegiance to the two departments, so to speak, and within their respective spheres must pay the penalties which each exacts for disobedience to its laws. In return, he can demand protection from each within its own jurisdiction."

The California Election Code, Section 349 further clarifies the distinctions between "domicile" and "residence" as follow:

California Election Code, section 349:

349. (a) "Residence" for voting purposes means a person's domicile.

(b) The domicile of a person is that place in which his or her habitation is fixed, wherein the person has the intention of remaining, and to which, whenever he or she is absent, the person has the intention of returning. At a given time, a person may have only one domicile.

(c) The residence of a person is that place in which the person's habitation is fixed for some period of time, but wherein he or she does not have the intention of remaining. At a given time, a person may have more than one residence.

The above definition is consistent with the analysis earlier in this section, but don't make the false assumption that the above definitions apply within income tax codes, because they DON'T. Only statutory "citizens" who have a domicile within the forum can be the subject of the above statute relating to voting and elections, while the Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A applies exclusively to privileged aliens who have a domicile or tax home on federal territory: two COMPLETELY different audiences of people, for which the terms are NOT interchangeable. A "residence" in the I.R.C. is the temporary abode of a privileged alien, while a "residence" in the election code is the temporary abode of a non-privileged Sovereign American National. The worst mistake that you can make as a person born in your country is to believe or think that laws written only

1 for "aliens" or "resident aliens" apply to you. The only types of persons the federal government can write laws for in a state
2 of the Union, in fact, are Constitutional but not statutory aliens and not those born there:

41 5.4.8.11.7 "Domiciliary" v. "Resident"

42 The most instructive case that describes WHEN one has a domicile in a specific place and which distinguishes "domiciliary"
43 from "resident" is District of Columbia v. Murphy, 314 U.S. 441 (1941). Recall that the Internal Revenue Code Subtitle A
44 income tax is upon STATUTORY "residents", including American born parties who are "resident" in foreign countries. The 45 tax is NOT upon their domicile but their "residence", which means the temporary abode or "tax home" (26 U.S.C. §911) of 46 a STATUTORY "alien". All of the "persons" mentioned in 26 U.S.C. §911 are ALIENS, including the "citizens"
47 therein mentioned, because such "citizens" are in fact "aliens" in relation to the foreign country they are in and interface to
48 the Internal Revenue Code through a tax treaty WITH that foreign country. That tax treaty, in fact, constitutes an excise
49 taxable "benefit" for those STATUTORY "citizens" born in the federal zone and travelling abroad while domiciled in the 50 federal zone. See 26 C.F.R. §301.7701(b)-7 for proof. Layered on top of the "national" income tax (not "federal", but 51 "national", meaning federal zone) enforced upon "residents" of the federal zone is the income tax imposed MUNICIPALLY
52 upon those DOMICILED rather than "RESIDENT" locally. This case shows how these two factors work together to 53 determine I.R.C. tax liability and MUNICIPAL tax liability.

1 District of Columbia v. Murphy, 314 U.S. 441 (1941) involved TWO parties in opposite circumstances:

- 2 1. Respondent 58 came to the District of Columbia in 1935 to work as an economist in the Treasury Department. He
3 maintained a domicile in the state of Michigan throughout his time in D.C. and continued to be a registered voter. He 4 owned no property in Michigan or D.C. but had the intention of remaining.
- 5 2. Respondent 59 lived in the District of Columbia 26 years after coming from Pennsylvania to accept a clerical position
6 of indefinite tenure under the Civil Service in the Patent Office. Shortly after marriage the couple purchased as a
7 home, premises at 1426 Massachusetts Avenue, S.E., in the District of Columbia, in which respondent still lived. In
8 about 1925, he purchased a lot at "Selby on the Bay" in nearby Maryland, and before his wife's death he bought a
9 building lot in the District of Columbia, acting on his wife's pleas for a summer place and a better residence. He agreed
10 with his wife that, on his retirement, six months would be spent at Selby. He testified that he never desired to purchase
11 the lot in the District of Columbia, but did so at the insistence of his wife. He put a "For Sale" sign on it when she died,
12 and both lots, which he still owns, are up for sale. He has deposits in three Washington financial institutions and owns
13 first trust notes on property located in Maryland and Virginia. Respondent had resided in Pennsylvania from birth until 14 he left for Washington. He claimed as his "legal residence" the residence of his parents in Harrisburg, where they still 15 keep intact his room in which are kept some of his clothes and childhood toys. Though paying nothing as rent or for 16 lodging, he has from time to time made presents of money to his parents. He has visited his parents' home in 17 Harrisburg over week ends at least eight times a year, and has been there annually between Christmas and the New 18 Year. A registered voter in Pennsylvania, he has voted in all its general elections since he became of age. He paid the 19 Pennsylvania poll tax until it was superseded by an occupational tax, which he has also paid. Payment of such taxes
20 was a prerequisite to voting. He owns jointly with his father a note secured by a mortgage on Pennsylvania real estate.
21 Respondent testified that he expected to retire from Civil Service in four years and intended then to sell his house and
22 "leave Washington."

23 The Board found "as a fact" that, at the end of one year after he came to the District in 1914, respondent "had an 449*449
24 intention to remain and make his home in the District of Columbia for an indefinite period of time and that intention remained
25 with him, at least until the death of his wife." As in No. 58, it considered itself bound by the Sweeney case, supra,<sup>105</sup> and 26 accordingly held "as a matter of law" that the petitioner was not domiciled in the District on December 31, 1939, and never 27 had been.

28 The decisions in both cases were affirmed on review by the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia. 73
29 App.D.C. 345, 347, 119 F.2d. 449, 451. The cases were brought here on writs of certiorari because of the importance of the 30 questions involved. 313 U.S. 556.

31 Although the District of Columbia Income Tax Act made "domicile" the fulcrum of the income tax, the first ever imposed in 32 the District, it set forth no definition of that word. To ascertain its meaning we therefore consider the Congressional history
33 of the Act, the situation with reference to which it was enacted, and the existing judicial precedents, with which Congress
34 may be taken to have been familiar in at least a general way. United States v. Dickerson, 310 U.S. 554, 562.

35 Below is how Congress explained the applicability of the income tax in dispute:

36 The conference agreement was presented to the Senate by Senator Overton, chairman of the Senate conferees,
37 with the following explanation: "Mr. President, I now call attention to the fact that the individual income tax is 38 imposed only on those domiciled in the District of Columbia. It, therefore, necessarily excludes from its imposition
39 all Senators and Members of the House of Representatives, the President of the United States, all Cabinet officers,
40 and Federal employees who have been brought into the District from the various States of the Union to serve
41 their country in the National Capital, provided such employees have not of their volition surrendered their 42 domiciles in the States and have voluntarily acquired domiciles within the District of Columbia." 84 Cong. Rec.
43 8824. Senator Overton also stated: "I took the position before the District of Columbia Committee and in 44 conference that I would not support any legislation which would exempt Senators and Members of the House of 45 Representatives and their official force from an income tax in the District of Columbia but would impose it on all
46 others. I then took the position in conference that if we imposed an income tax only on those domiciled within 47 the District, then we would be imposing it only on those who of their own volition had abandoned their 48 domiciles in the States of their origin and had elected to make their permanent home or domicile here in the 49 District of Columbia. Such persons, it may be justly contended, have no cause to complain against an income
50 *tax that is imposed upon them only because they have 451*451 chosen to establish within the District of*

1 Columbia their permanent<sup>106</sup> places of abode and to abandon their domiciles within the States. 84 Cong. Rec.

3 In the House, Representative Nichols, chairman of the House conferees, and also chairman of the House District
4 Committee in charge of fiscal affairs, submitted the conference report and stated: "Since the question of the effect
5 of the word 'domicile' in this act has been raised, I think the House would probably like to have the legal definition
6 read: Domicile is the place where one has his true, fixed, permanent home and principal establishment and
7 to which, whenever he is absent, he has the intention of returning, and where he exercises his political rights.<sup>107</sup>
8 ... There must exist in combination the fact of residence and animus manendi —' which means residence and 9 his intention to return [sic]; so that under this definition he could certainly live in the District of Columbia and 10 have his legal domicile in any other State in the United States." 84 Cong. Rec. 8974.

11 Representative Bates, another of the House conferees, stated in response to a question regarding the possibility
12 of triple taxation, "We raised that particular point [in conference] because we are much concerned about how 13 those who come from our States would be affected by the income-tax provisions of the new law, and it was 14 distinctly <sup>452</sup>*<sup>452</sup> understood that in this bill there should be no triple taxation .. ." 84 Cong. Rec. 8973.

15 The unusual character of the National Capital, making the income tax a "very explosive and controversial
16 item,"<sup>108</sup> was vividly before the Congress, and must also be considered in construing the statute imposing the tax.

17 The District of Columbia is an exceptional community. It is not a local municipal authority, but was established
18 under the Constitution as the seat of the National Government. Those in Government service here are not engaged
19 in local enterprise, although their service may be localized. Their work is that of the Nation, and their pay comes 20 not from local sources but from the whole country. Because of its character as a Federal City, there is no local 21 political constituency with whose activities those living in it may identify themselves as a symbol of their 22 acceptance of a local domicile.

23 Not all who flock here are birds of a feather. Some enter the Civil Service, finding tenure and pay there more
24 secure than in private enterprise. Political ties are of no consequence in obtaining or maintaining their positions.
25 At the other extreme are those who hold appointive office at the pleasure of the appointing officer. These latter,
26 as well as appointive officers with definite but unprotected tenure, and all elective officers, usually owe their 27 presence here to the intimate and influential part they have played in community life in one of the States.

28 Relatively few persons here in any branch of the Government service can truthfully and accurately lay claim to 29 an intention to sever themselves from the service on any exact date. Persons in all branches usually desire, quite 30 naturally and properly, to continue family life and to have the comforts of a domestic establishment for whatever
31 may be the term of their stay here. This is true of <sup>453</sup>*<sup>453</sup> many Senators and Congressmen, cited by Senator
32 Overton as typical of those whom the limitation of the statute to persons "domiciled" here "necessarily excludes."

33 Turning to the judicial precedents for further guidance in construing "domicile" as used in the statute, we find it
34 generally recognized that one who comes to Washington to enter the Government service and to live here for its 35 duration does not thereby acquire a new domicile. More than a century ago, Justice Parker of New Hampshire
36 observed that "It has generally been considered that persons appointed to public office under the authority of the 37 United States, and taking up their residence in Washington for the purpose of executing the duties of such office,
38 do not thereby, while engaged in the service of the government, lose their domicile in the place where they before
39 resided, unless they intend on removing there to make Washington their permanent<sup>109</sup> residence." See Atherton v.
40 Thornton, 8 N.H. 178, 180. By and large, subsequent cases have taken a like view.<sup>110</sup> It should also be observed
41 <sup>454</sup>*<sup>454</sup> that a policy against loss of domicile by sojourn in Washington is expressed in the constitutions and
42 statutes of many States.<sup>111</sup> Of course, no individual case, constitution, or statute is controlling, but the general
43 trend of these authorities is a significant recognition that the distinctive character of Washington habitation for 44 federal service is meaningful to those who are served as well as to those in the service.

<sup>106</sup> We do not understand "permanent" to have been used in a literal sense. Of course it cannot be known without the gift of prophecy whether a given abode is "permanent" in the strictest sense. But beyond this, it is frequently used in the authorities on domicile to describe that which is not merely "temporary," or to describe a dwelling for the time being which there is no presently existing intent to give up. And further, compare a statement by Representative Dirksen on the floor of the House, 84 Cong. Rec. 8973.

1 From these various data on Congressional intent, it is apparent that the present cases are not governed by the
2 tests usually employed in cases where the element of Federal service in the Federal City is not present.<sup>112</sup> We
3 hold that a man does not acquire a domicile in the District simply by coming here to live for an indefinite period
4 of time while in the Government service. A contrary decision would disregard the statements made on the floor
5 of Congress as to the meaning of the statute, fail to give proper weight to the trend of judicial decisions, with
6 which Congress should be taken to have been cognizant, and result in a wholesale finding of domicile on the part
7 of Government servants quite obviously at variance with Congressional policy. Further, Congress did not intend
8 that one living here indefinitely while in the Government service be held domiciled here simply because he does
9 not maintain a domestic establishment at the place he hails from. Such a rule would result in taxing those unable
10 to maintain two establishments, and exempting those able to meet such a burden — thus reversing the usual
11 philosophy of income tax as one based on ability to pay.

12 On the other hand, we hold that persons are domiciled here who live here and have no fixed and definite intent
13 to return and make their homes where they were formerly domiciled.<sup>113</sup> A decision that the statute lays 14 a tax only on those with an affirmative intent to remain here the rest of their days would be at odds with the 15 prevailing concept of domicile, and would give the statute scope far narrower than Congress must have intended.

16 Cases falling clearly within such broad rules aside, the question of domicile is a difficult one of fact to be settled
17 only by a realistic and conscientious review of the many relevant (and frequently conflicting) indicia of where a 18 man's home<sup>114</sup> is and according to the established modes of proof.
19 [District of Columbia v. Murphy, 314 U.S. 441, 450-451 (1941)]

20 From this case, we learn that:

- 21 1. One does not acquire a domicile in the District of Columbia, within the meaning of the District of Columbia Income
22 Tax Act, merely by coming to the District to live for an indefinite period while in the Government service. P. 453.
- 23 2. The Act does not intend that one living in the District of Columbia indefinitely, while in the Government service, shall 24 be held domiciled there simply because he does not maintain a domestic establishment at the place from which he 25 came. P. 454.
- 26 3. Persons are domiciled in the District of Columbia, within the meaning of the Act, who live there and have no fixed and 27 definite intent to return to their former domiciles and make their homes there. P. 454.
- 28 4. The place where a man lives is, prima facie, his domicile. P. 455.
- 29 5. The taxing authority is warranted in treating as prima facie taxable any person quartered in the District of Columbia on 30 tax day whose status it deems doubtful. P. 455.
- 31 6. In applying this Act, the taxing authority need not find the exact time when the attitude and relationship of person to 32 place which constitute domicile were formed. It is enough that they were formed before the tax day. P. 455.
- 33 7. If one has at any time become domiciled in the District of Columbia, it is his burden to establish any change of status 34 upon which he relies to escape the tax. P. 456.
- 35 8. In order to retain his former domicile, one who comes to the District to perform Government service must always have 36 a fixed and definite intent to return and to take up his home there when separated from the service. A mere sentimental 37 attachment will not hold the old domicile. P. 456.
- 38 9. Whether or not one votes where he claims domicile is highly relevant but not controlling. P. 456.
- 39 10. Of great significance to the question of domicile in the District of Columbia is the nature of the position which brings 40 one to or keeps him in the service of the Government. P. 457.
- 41 11. Manner of living in the District and many other considerations touching relationships, social connections and activities
42 of the person concerned, are suggested in the opinion as among the considerations which are relevant to a
43 determination of the question of domicile. P. 457. 73 App.D.C. 345, 347, 119 F.2d 449, 451, reversed.

44 First, the Murphy case exemplified the importance of the necessary facts, personal knowledge and actual establishment of an
45 individual's domicile as respects the DC income tax act. If the targeted individuals were domiciled in DC on the last day of 46 the taxable year, those individuals were liable to the tax, as the tax was imposed on the taxable income of any individual
47 domiciled in DC on "tax day". It is that simple.

<sup>113</sup> This is not inconsistent with our holding that domicile here does not follow from mere indefiniteness of the period of one's stay. While the intention to return must be fixed, the date need not be; while the intention to return must be unconditional, the time may be, and in most cases of necessity is, contingent. The intention must not waver before the uncertainties of time, but one may not be visited with unwelcome domicile for lacking the gift of prophecy.

1 Since Congress has exclusive legislative jurisdiction over the "District" (see Art. 1 Sec. 8 Cl. 17) it certainly had the "power"
2 to enact such a tax on citizens domiciled in the District. In fact, the constitutionality of the tax was not ever put in issue. The
3 issue in the case turned on whether Mr. Murphy was resident in DC or domiciled there for purposes of that DC
4 ("federal") income tax act. His domicile was held to be in Pennsylvania by the Supreme Court, thus exempting him
5 from the DC Income Tax.

6 Moreover, there are two fairly instructive Revenue Rules spot on the topic of "wherever resident". See Rev.Rul. 489 and
7 Rev.Rul. 357 as follows:

8 No provision of the Internal Revenue Code or the regulations thereunder holds that a citizen of the United States
9 is a resident of the United States for purposes of its tax. Several sections of the Code provide Federal income tax
10 relief or benefits to citizens of the United States who are residents without the United States for some specified
11 period. See sections 911, 934, and 981. These sections give recognition to the fact that not all the citizens of the 12 United States are residents of the United States.
13 [Rev.Rul. 75-489, p. 511]

14 As regards additional support, see Rev.Rul. 75-357 at p. 5, as follows:

15 Sections 1.1-1(b) and 1.871-1 of the Income Tax Regulations provide that all citizens of the United States,
16 wherever resident, and all resident alien individuals are liable to the income taxes imposed by the Internal
17 Revenue Code whether the income is received from sources within or without the United States. See, however,
18 section 911 of the Code. (Emphasis added.)
19 [Rev.Rul. 75-357, p. 5]

20 Being that Rev.Rul. 75-357 quotes 26 C.F.R. § 1.1-1(b) directly, and duly informs every reader to see, 26 U.S.C. § 911, I
21 believe we should visit 26 U.S.C. § 911 and its regulations to locate the appropriate application of the wherever resident
22 feature in that section of federal law. See 26 U.S.C. § 911(d)(1)(A) as follows:

23 (d) Definitions and special rules — For purposes of this section —

24 (1) Qualified individual — The term "qualified individual" means an individual whose tax home is in a foreign
25 country and who is —

26 (A) a citizen of the United States and establishes to the satisfaction of the Secretary that he has been a bona
27 fide resident of a foreign country or countries for an uninterrupted period which includes an entire taxable year.
28 [26 U.S.C. §911(d)(1)(A)]

29 Additionally, as we know, 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(b) states,

30 "All citizens of the United States, wherever resident, are liable to the income taxes imposed by the Internal 31 Revenue Code whether the income is received from sources within or without the United States."
32 [26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(b)]

33 The regulations to section 911 make the distinction between where income is received as opposed to where services are 34 performed. See:

35 26 C.F.R. §1.911-3 Determination of amount of foreign earned income to be excluded.

36 (a) Definition of foreign earned income.

37 For purposes of section 911 and the regulations thereunder, the term "foreign earned income" means earned
38 income (as defined in paragraph (b) of this section) from sources within a foreign country (as defined in §1.911- 39 2(h)) that is earned during a period for which the individual qualifies under §1.911-2(a) to make an election.
40 Earned income is from sources within a foreign country if it is attributable to services performed by an
41 individual in a foreign country or countries. The place of receipt of earned income is immaterial in determining 42 whether earned income is attributable to services performed in a foreign country or countries.

43 The Murphy case also points out the utter arrogance, conceit, and hypocrisy of the federal courts because:

- 44 1. Choosing a civil domicile is how we nominate a protector and become a "customer" of government CIVIL protection.
- 45 2. We don't become a "citizen" or "resident" under the civil statutes of a specific government UNTIL we VOLUNTEER
- 46 to become such a "customer".

- 1 3. If in fact the government is one of delegated powers, WE, and not the GOVERNMENT who serves us, have a right to 2 choose NOT to be a “customer”. This right derives from:
 3 3.1. Your First Amendment right to associate or not associate.
 4 3.2. Your right to contract or not contract. The civil statutes are what the U.S. Supreme court calls a “social
 5 compact”, meaning a “contract” to procure CIVIL protection. You have a right NOT to be party to this CIVIL 6 contract or compact.
 7 4. Those who are NOT party to this contract and not a “customer” of civil statutory protection are:
 8 4.1. STATUTORY “non-resident non-persons” from a civil perspective.
 9 4.2. “stateless” from the civil statutory perspective in relation to the government they are party to.
 10 4.3. NOT “represented” by any elected official, because they are NOT even eligible to vote. DOMICILE is a 11 prerequisite to eligibility to vote.
 12 4.4. Not statutory “taxpayers” and may not be taxed, because taxation without representation is the reason for the 13 American Revolution in 1776.

14 “If money is wanted by rulers who have in any manner oppressed the People, they may retain it until their 15 grievances are redressed, and thus peaceably procure relief, without trusting to despised petitions or disturbing
 16 the public tranquility.”
 18 1774 -1789. Journals 1: 105-13. ]

- 19 5. The court implies the right to decide whether someone is such a “customer” WITHOUT the need to provide express 20 evidence of their consent in proving the domicile of the party. Recall from the Declaration of Independence that ALL
 21 “just” powers of government derive the CONSENT of the people.

22 DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE, 1776

23 “We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator
 24 with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.--That to secure
 25 these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the 26 governed.”
 27 [Declaration of Independence, 1776]

28 Anything that does not derive from EXPRESS WRITTEN CONSENT is therefore inherently UNJUST. Therefore,
 29 every assertion of CIVIL authority requires express evidence of written consent on the record of the proceeding. The 30 government imposes the same burden upon those who are suing it civilly and assert official, judicial, and sovereign
 31 immunity if such consent is NOT demonstrated. Therefore, under the concept of equal protection and equal treatment,
 32 the GOVERNMENT has the SAME burden of proof. For details, see:

Requirement for Consent, Form #05.003
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

- 33 6. The court not once mentioned how such consent can be or is procured, and without doing so, the public are deprived of 34 the constitutional requirement for HOW consent is procured and whether EXPRESS NON-CONSENT can trump
 35 IMPLIED CONSENT. All of the factors they mention in determining civil domicile of the party do NOT derive 36 DIRECTLY from consent and therefore are IRRELEVANT in proving the SAME kind of EXPRESS WRITTEN 37 CONSENT the government demands when you are suing them.
 38 7. If the court will not enforce YOUR sovereign immunity as indicated above, any attempt to enforce THEIRS is 39 hypocritical, suspect, and violates the constitutional requirement for equal protection and equal treatment as explained 40 in:

Requirement for Equal Protection and Equal Treatment, Form #05.033

 42 the Internal Revenue Code Subtitle A, See:

43 5.4.8.11.8 “Subject to THE jurisdiction” in the Fourteenth Amendment

1 The phrase “Subject to THE jurisdiction” is found in the Fourteenth Amendment:

2 U.S. Constitution:
3 Fourteenth Amendment

4 *Section. 1. All persons born or naturalized in the United States[***] and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are
5 citizens of the United States[***] and of the State wherein they reside.*

6 The phrase “subject to THE jurisdiction” in the context of ONLY the Fourteenth Amendment:

7 1. Means “subject to the POLITICAL and not LEGISLATIVE jurisdiction”.

8 “This section contemplates two sources of citizenship, and two sources only,—birth and naturalization. The 9 persons declared to be citizens are 'all persons born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the 10 jurisdiction thereof.' The evident meaning of these last words is, not merely subject in some respect or degree to 11 *the jurisdiction of the United States, but completely subject to their [plural, not singular, meaning states of the 12 Union] political jurisdiction, and owing them [the state of the Union] direct and immediate
13 allegiance. And the words relate to the time of birth in the one case, as they do [169 U.S. 649, 725] to the time*
14 of naturalization in the other. Persons not thus subject to the jurisdiction of the United States at the time of birth
15 cannot become so afterwards, except by being naturalized, either individually, as by proceedings under the 16 naturalization acts, or collectively, as by the force of a treaty by which foreign territory is acquired.”
17 [U.S. v. Wong Kim Ark, 169 U.S. 649, 18 S.Ct. 456; 42 L.Ed. 890 (1898)]

18 2. Requires domicile, which is voluntary, in order to be subject ALSO to the civil LEGISLATIVE jurisdiction of the 19 municipality one is in. Civil status always has domicile as a prerequisite.

20 In Udny v. Udny (1869) L. R., 1 H. L. Sc. 441, the point decided was one of inheritance, depending upon the
21 question whether the domicile of the father was in England or in Scotland, he being in either alternative a British
22 *subject. Lord Chancellor Hatherley said: 'The question of naturalization and of allegiance is distinct from that
23 of domicile.' Page 452. Lord Westbury, in the passage relied on by the counsel for the United States, began by*
24 *saying: 'The law of England, and of almost all civilized countries, ascribes to each individual at his birth two
25 distinct legal states or conditions,—one by virtue of which he becomes the subject [NATIONAL] of some
26 particular country, binding him by the tie of natural allegiance, and which may be called his political status;
27 another by virtue of which he has ascribed to him the character of a citizen of some particular country, and as
28 such is possessed of certain municipal rights, and subject to certain obligations, which latter character is the
29 civil status or condition of the individual, and may be quite different from his political status.' And then, while*
30 maintaining that the civil status is universally governed by the single principle of domicile (domicilium), the
31 criterion established by international law for the purpose of determining civil status, and the basis on which
32 the personal rights of the party—that is to say, the law which determines his majority or minority, his
33 marriage, succession, testacy, or intestacy—must depend,' he yet distinctly recognized that a man's political
34 status, his country (patria), and his 'nationality,—that is, natural allegiance,—'may depend on different laws in
35 different countries.' Pages 457, 460. He evidently used the word 'citizen,' not as equivalent to 'subject,' but rather*
36 to 'inhabitant'; and had no thought of impeaching the established rule that all persons born under British
37 dominion are natural-born subjects.
38 [United States v. Wong Kim Ark, 169 U.S. 649, 18 S.Ct. 456, 42 L.Ed. 890 (1898) ;

40 3. Is a POLITICAL status that does not carry with it any civil status to which PUBLIC rights or franchises can attach.
41 Therefore, the term “citizen” as used in Title 26 is NOT this type of citizen, since it imposes civil obligations. All tax
42 obligations are civil in nature and depend on DOMICILE, not NATIONALITY. See District of Columbia v. Murphy, 43 314 U.S. 441 (1941) and:

Why Domicile and Becoming a “Taxpayer” Require Your Consent, Form #05.002, Section 11.7
<https://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

44 4. Is a product of PERMANENT ALLEGIANCE that is associated with the political status of “nationals” as defined in 8
45 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21). The only thing that can or does establish a political status is such allegiance.

46 8 U.S.C. §1101: Definitions

47 (a) As used in this chapter—

48 (21) The term “national” means a person owing permanent allegiance to a state.

1 "Allegiance and protection [by the government from harm] are, in this connection, reciprocal obligations. The
 2 one is a compensation for the other; allegiance for protection and protection for allegiance."
 3 [Minor v. Happersett, 88 U.S. (21 Wall.) 162, 166-168 (1874)]

- 4 5. Is NOT a product of TEMPORARY allegiance owed by aliens who are sojourners temporarily in the United States and 5 subject to the laws but do not have PERMANENT allegiance. Note the phrase "temporary and local allegiance" in the 6 ruling below:

7 The reasons for not allowing to other aliens exemption 'from the jurisdiction of the country in which they are
 8 found' were stated as follows: 'When private individuals of one nation [states of the Unions are "nations" under
 9 the law of nations] spread themselves through another as business or caprice may direct, mingling
 10 indiscriminately with the inhabitants of that other, or when merchant vessels enter for the purposes of trade,
 11 it would be obviously inconvenient and dangerous to society, and would subject the laws to continual
 12 infraction, and the government to degradation, if such individuals or merchants did not owe temporary and
 13 local allegiance, and were not amenable to the jurisdiction of the country. Nor can the foreign sovereign have
 14 any motive for wishing such exemption. His subjects thus passing into foreign countries are not employed by him,
 15 nor are they engaged in national pursuits. Consequently, there are powerful motives for not exempting persons
 16 of this description from the jurisdiction of the country in which they are found, and no one motive for requiring
 17 it. The implied license, therefore, under which they enter, can never be construed to grant such exemption.' 7
 18 Cranch, 144.

19 In short, the judgment in the case of The Exchange declared, as incontrovertible principles, that the jurisdiction
 20 of every nation within its own territory is exclusive and absolute, and is susceptible of no limitation not imposed
 21 by the nation itself; that all exceptions to its full and absolute territorial jurisdiction must be traced up to its own
 22 consent, express or implied; that upon its consent to cede, or to waive the exercise of, a part of its territorial
 23 jurisdiction, rest the exemptions from that jurisdiction of foreign sovereigns or their armies entering its territory
 24 with its permission, and of their foreign ministers and public ships of war; and that the implied license, under 25 which private individuals of another nation enter the territory and mingle indiscriminately with its inhabitants,
 26 for purposes of business or pleasure, can never be construed to grant to them an exemption from the 27 jurisdiction of the country in which they are found. See, also, Carlisle v. U.S. (1872) 16 Wall. 147, 155; Radich
 28 v. Hutchins (1877) 95 U.S. 210; Wildenhus' Case (1887) 120 U.S. 1, 7 Sup.Ct. 385; Chae Chan Ping v. U.S.
 30 [United States v. Wong Kim Ark, 169 U.S. 649, 18 S.Ct. 456, 42 L.Ed. 890 (1898)]

31
 32 "All persons born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the 33 United States and of the State wherein they reside."

34 The first observation we have to make on this clause is, that it puts at rest both the questions which we stated to 35 have been the subject of differences of opinion. It declares that persons may be citizens of the United States
 36 without regard to their citizenship of a particular State, and it overturns the Dred Scott decision by making all
 37 persons born within the United States and subject to its jurisdiction citizens of the United States. That its main
 38 purpose was to establish the citizenship of the negro can admit of no doubt. The phrase, "subject to its 39 jurisdiction" was intended to exclude from its operation children of ministers, consuls, and citizens or subjects
 40 of foreign States born within the United States.
 41 [Slaughterhouse Cases, 83 U.S. 36 (1873)]

- 42 6. Relates only to the time of birth or naturalization and not to one's CIVIL status at any time AFTER birth or 43 naturalization.
 44 7. Is a codification of the following similar phrase found in the Civil Rights Act of 1866, 14 Stat. 27-30.

45 Civil Right Act of 1866, 14 Stat. 27

46 Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,
 47 That all persons born in the United States and not subject to any foreign power, excluding Indians not taxed,
 48 are hereby declared to be citizens of the United States; and such citizens, of every race and color, without regard
 49 to any previous condition of slavery or involuntary servitude, except as a punishment for crime whereof the party
 50 shall have been duly convicted, shall have the same right, in every State and Territory in the United States, to 51 make and enforce contracts, to sue, be parties, and give evidence, to inherit, purchase, lease, sell, hold, and
 52 convey real and personal property, and to full and equal benefit of all laws and proceedings for the security of 53 person and property, as is enjoyed by white citizens, and shall be subject to like punishment, pains, and penalties,
 54 and to none other, any law, statute, ordinance, regulation, or custom, to the contrary notwithstanding.
 55 [SOURCE: <http://teachingamericanhistory.org/library/document/the-civil-rights-act-of-1866/>]

56 The only way one could be "not subject to any foreign power" as indicated above is to not owe ALLEGIANCE to a
 57 foreign power and to be a CONSTITUTIONAL "citizen of the United States".

8. Does NOT apply to people in unincorporated territories such as Puerto Rico, Guam, American Samoa, etc.

"The Naturalization Clause [of the Fourteenth Amendment] has a geographic limitation: it applies throughout the United States." The federal courts have repeatedly construed similar and even identical language in other clauses to include states and incorporated territories, but not unincorporated territories. In Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244, 21 S.Ct. 770, 45 L.Ed. 1088 (1901), one of the Insular Cases, the Supreme Court held that the Revenue Clause's identical explicit geographic limitation, "throughout the United States," did not include the unincorporated territory of Puerto Rico, which for purposes of that Clause was "not part of the United States." Id. at 287, 21 S.Ct. 770. The Court reached this sensible result because unincorporated territories are not on a path to statehood. See Boumediene v. Bush, 553 U.S. 723, 757-58, 128 S.Ct. 2229, 171 L.Ed.2d. 41 (2008) (citing Downes, 182 U.S. at 293, 21 S.Ct. 770). In Rabang v. I.N.S., 35 F.3d. 1449 (9th Cir.1994), this court held that the Fourteenth Amendment's limitation of birthright citizenship to those "born ... in the United States" did not extend citizenship to those born in the Philippines during the period when it was an unincorporated territory. U.S. Const., 14th Amend., cl. 1; see Rabang, 35 F.3d. at 1451. Every court to have construed that clause's geographic limitation has agreed. See Valmonte v. I.N.S., 136 F.3d. 914, 920-21 (2d Cir.1998); Lacap v. I.N.S., 138 F.3d. 518, 519 (3d Cir.1998); Licudine v. Winter, 603 F.Supp.2d. 129, 134 (D.D.C.2009).

Like the constitutional clauses at issue in Rabang and Downes, the Naturalization Clause is expressly limited to the "United States." This limitation "prevents its extension to every place over which the government exercises its sovereignty." Rabang, 35 F.3d. at 1453. Because the Naturalization Clause did not follow the flag to the CNMI when Congress approved the Covenant, the Clause does not require us to apply federal immigration law to the CNMI prior to the CNRA's transition date. [Eche v. Holder, 694 F.3d. 1026 (2012)]

Lastly, the subject of this section is such an important and pervasive one in the freedom community that we have prepared an entire presentation on the subject matter which we highly recommend that you view, if any questions at all remain about the meaning of the phrase "subject to the jurisdiction" in the Fourteenth Amendment:

Why the Fourteenth Amendment is Not a Threat to Your Freedom, Form #08.015

5.4.8.11.9 "non-resident non-persons" as used in this document are neither PHYSICALLY on federal territory nor LEGALLY present within the United States government as a "person" and office

Throughout this document, we use the term "non-resident non-person" to describe those who are neither PHYSICALLY nor LEGALLY present in either the United States GOVERNMENT or the federal territory that it owns and controls. Hence, "non-resident non-persons" are completely outside the legislative jurisdiction of Congress and hence, cannot even be DEFINED by Congress in any statute. No matter what term we invented to describe such a status, Congress could not and would not ever even recognize the existence of such an entity or “person” or “human”, because it would not be in their best interest to do so if they want to STEAL from you. Such an entity would, in fact be a “non-customer” to their protection racket and they don't want to even recognize the fact that you have a RIGHT not to be a customer of theirs.

Some people object to the use of this “term” by stating that the terms “non-resident” and “non-resident non-person” are not used in the Internal Revenue Code and therefore can't be a correct usage. We respond to this objection by saying that:

1. "non-resident" is a legal word, because that is what the U.S. Supreme Court uses to describe it. If the U.S. Supreme Court can use it, then so can we since we are all equal. Notice that they also call "nonresident aliens" defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B) "non-resident aliens" so that is why WE do it too.

"Neff was then a non-resident of Oregon."
[Pennoyer v. Neff, 95 U.S. 714, 24 L.Ed. 565 (1877)]

"When the contract is 'produced' by a non-resident broker the 'servicing' function is normally performed by the company exclusively."
[Osborn v. Ozlin, 310 U.S. 53, 60 S.Ct. 758, 84 L.Ed. 1074 (1940) ]

"The court below held that the act did not include a non-resident alien, and directed a verdict and judgment for the whole amount of interest."
[Railroad Company v. Jackson, 74 U.S. 262, 19 L.Ed. 88, 7 Wall. 262 (1868) ]

2. We use the term to avoid the statutory language as much as possible and to emphasize that it implies BOTH the absence of a domicile and the absence of a legal presence under the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act (F.S.I.A.), 28 U.S.C. Chapter 97.
3. We wish to avoid being confused with anything in the Internal Revenue Code (I.R.C.), since the term "non-resident" is not used there but "resident" is.
4. The Statutes at Large from which the Internal Revenue Code was written originally in 1939 also use the phrase "non-resident" rather than "nonresident", so we are therefore insisting on the historical rather than present use.
5. The Department of State has told us and our members in correspondence received by them that they don't use the term “nonresident” or “nonresident alien” either. But they DO understand the term “non-resident”. Therefore, we use the term “non-resident non-person” to avoid confusing them also.

5.4.8.11.10 “resident”

The Treasury Regulations define the meaning of “resident” and “residence” as follows:

Title 26: Internal Revenue
PART 1—INCOME TAXES
nonresident alien individuals
§1.871-2 Determining residence of alien individuals.

(B) Residence defined.

An alien actually present in the United States**] who is not a mere transient or sojourner is a resident of the United States for purposes of the income tax. Whether he is a transient is determined by his intentions with regard to the length and nature of his stay. A mere floating intention, indefinite as to time, to return to another country is not sufficient to constitute him a transient. If he lives in the United States and has no definite intention as to his stay, he is a resident. One who comes to the United States for a definite purpose which in its nature may be promptly accomplished is a transient but, if his purpose is of such a nature that an extended stay may be necessary for its accomplishment, and to that end the alien makes his home temporarily in the United States, he becomes a resident, though it may be his intention at all times to return to his domicile abroad when the purpose for which he came has been consummated or abandoned. An alien whose stay in the United States is limited to a definite period by the immigration laws is not a resident of the United States within the meaning of this section, in the absence of exceptional circumstances.

One therefore may only be a “resident” and file resident tax forms such as IRS Form 1040 if they are “present in the United States”, and by “present” can mean EITHER:

1. PHYSICALLY present: meaning within the geographical “United States” as defined by STATUTE and as NOT commonly understood. This would be the United States**, which we also call the federal zone. Furthermore:
  - 1.1. Only physical “persons” can physically be ANYWHERE.

- 1.2. Artificial entities, legal fictions, or other “juristic persons” such as corporations and public offices are NOT physical things, and therefore cannot be physically present ANYWHERE.
2. LEGALLY present: meaning that:
- 2.1. You have CONSENSUALLY contracted with the government as an otherwise NONRESIDENT party to acquire an office within the government as a public officer and a legal fiction. This can ONLY lawfully occur by availing oneself of 26 U.S.C. §6013(g) and (h) , which allows NONRESIDENTS to “elect” to be treated as RESIDENT ALIENS, even though not physically present in the “United States”, IF and ONLY IF they are married to a STATUTORY but not CONSTITUTIONAL “U.S. citizen” per 8 U.S.C. §1401, 26 U.S.C. §3121(e), and 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(c). If you are married to a CONSTITUTIONAL citizen who is NOT a STATUTORY citizen, this option is NOT available. Consequently, most of the IRS Form 1040 returns the IRS receives are FRAUDULENT in this regard and a criminal offense under 26 U.S.C. §§7206 and 7207.
- 2.2. The OFFICE is legally present within the “United States” as a legal fiction and a corporation. It is NOT physically present. Anyone representing said office is an extension of the “United States” as a legal person.

For all purposes other than those above, a nonresident cannot lawfully acquire any of the following “statuses” under the civil provisions of the Internal Revenue Code, Subtitles A through C because: 1. Domiciled OUTSIDE of the forum in a legislatively foreign state such as either a state of the Union or a foreign country; AND 2. Protected by the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act (F.S.I.A.), 28 U.S.C. Chapter 97.

1. “person”.
2. “individual”.
3. “taxpayer”.
4. “resident”.
5. “citizen”.

For more details on the relationship between STATUTORY civil statuses such as those above and one’s civil domicile, see:

Why Domicile and Becoming a “Taxpayer” Require Your Consent, Form #05.002, Section 11
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

5.4.8.11.11 Physically present

As far as being PHYSICALLY present, the “United States” is geographically defined as:

*TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > Sec. 7701. [Internal Revenue Code]
 Sec. 7701. - Definitions*

(9) United States

The term “United States” when used in a geographical sense includes only the States and the District of Columbia.

(10) State

The term “State” shall be construed to include the District of Columbia, where such construction is necessary to carry out provisions of this title.

TITLE 4 - FLAG AND SEAL, SEAT OF GOVERNMENT, AND THE STATES

*CHAPTER 4 - THE STATES

Sec. 110. Same; definitions

1 Anything OUTSIDE of the GEOGRAPHICAL “United States” as defined above is “foreign” and therefore legislatively
 2 “alien”. Included within that legislatively “foreign” and “alien” area are both the constitutional states of the Union AND
 3 foreign countries. Anyone domiciled in a legislatively “foreign” or “alien” jurisdiction, REGARDLESS OF THEIR
 4 NATIONALITY, is a “nonresident” for the purposes of income taxation. If they are a public officer, they are also a 5 “nonresident alien”. Another important thing about the above definition is that:

- 6 1. It relates ONLY to the GEOGRAPHICAL CONTEXT of the word.
- 7 2. Not every use of the term “United States” implies the GEOGRAPHIC context.
- 8 3. The ONLY way to verify which context is implied in each case is if they EXPRESSLY identify whether they mean
 9 “United States****” the legal person or “United States**” federal territory in each case. All other contexts are NOT 10 expressly invoked in the Internal Revenue Code and therefore PURPOSEFULLY EXCLUDED per the rules of 11 statutory construction. The DEFAULT context in the absence of expressly invoking the GEOGRAPHIC context is 12 “United States****” the legal person and NOT a geographic place. This is how they do it in the case of the phrase
 13 “sources within the United States”.

14 5.4.8.11.12 Legally but not physically present

15 One can be “legally present” within a jurisdiction WITHOUT being PHYSICALLY present. For example, you can be
 16 regarded as a “resident” within the Internal Revenue Code, Subtitles A and C without ever being physically present on the 17 only place it applies, which is federal territory not part of any state of the Union. Earlier versions of the Internal Revenue
 18 regulations demonstrate how this happens:

19 26 C.F.R. §301.7701-5 Domestic, foreign, resident, and nonresident persons.

20 A domestic corporation is one organized or created in the United States, including only the States (and during 21 the periods when not States, the Territories of Alaska and Hawaii), and the District of Columbia, or under the
 22 law of the United States or of any State or Territory. A foreign corporation is one which is not domestic. A
 23 domestic corporation is a resident corporation even though it does no business and owns no property in the
 24 United States. A foreign corporation engaged in trade or business within the United States is referred to in the
 25 regulations in this chapter as a resident foreign corporation, and a foreign corporation not engaged in trade
 26 or business within the United States, as a nonresident foreign corporation. A partnership engaged in trade or
 27 business within the United States is referred to in the regulations in this chapter as a resident partnership, and a
 28 partnership not engaged in trade or business within the United States, as a nonresident partnership. Whether a
 29 partnership is to be regarded as resident or nonresident is not determined by the nationality or residence of its
 30 members or by the place in which it was created or organized.

33 The corporations and partnerships mentioned above represent the ONLY “persons” who are “taxpayers” in the Internal 34 Revenue Code, because they are the only entities expressly mentioned in the definition of “person” found at 26 U.S.C.
 35 §6671(b) and 26 U.S.C. §7343. It is a rule of statutory construction that any thing or class of thing not EXPRESSLY 36 appearing in a definition is purposefully excluded by implication:

37 “Expressio unius est exclusio alterius. A maxim of statutory interpretation meaning that the expression of one
 38 thing is the exclusion of another. Burgin v. Forbes, 293 Ky. 456, 169 S.W.2d. 321, 325; Newblock v. Bowles,
 39 170 Okl. 487, 40 P.2d. 1097, 1100. Mention of one thing implies exclusion of another. When certain persons or
 40 things are specified in a law, contract, or will, an intention to exclude all others from its operation may be
 41 inferred. Under this maxim, if statute specifies one exception to a general rule or assumes to specify the effects
 42 of a certain provision, other exceptions or effects are excluded.”
 43 [Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 581]
 44

45 “The United States Supreme Court cannot supply what Congress has studiously omitted in a statute.”
 46 Federal Trade Com. v. Simplicity Pattern Co., [360 U.S. 55, p. 55, 475042/56451 (1959)]

47 These same artificial “persons” and therefore public offices within 26 U.S.C. §§6671(b) and 7343, are also NOT mentioned
 48 in the constitution either. All constitutional “persons” or “people” are human beings, and therefore the tax imposed by the
 49 Internal Revenue Code, Subtitles A and C and even the revenue clauses within the United States Constitution itself at 1:8:1
 50 and 1:8:3 can and do relate ONLY to human beings and not artificial “persons” or corporations:

51 “Citizens of the United States within the meaning of this Amendment must be natural and not artificial
 52 persons; a corporate body is not a citizen of the United States.14

14 Insurance Co. v. New Orleans, 13 Fed.Cas. 67 (C.C.D.La. 1870). Not being citizens of the United States, corporations accordingly have been declared unable "to claim the protection of that clause of the Fourteenth Amendment which secures the privileges and immunities of citizens of the United States against abridgment or impairment by the law of a State." Orient Ins. Co. v. Dagg, 172 U.S. 557, 561 (1869). This conclusion was in harmony with the earlier holding in Paul v. Virginia, 75 U.S. (8 Wall.) 168 (1869), to the effect that corporations were not within the scope of the privileges and immunities clause of state citizenship set out in Article IV, Sec. 2. One is therefore ONLY regarded as a "resident" within the Internal Revenue Code if and ONLY if they are engaged in the "trade or business" activity, which is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) as "the functions of a public office". This mechanism for acquiring jurisdiction is documented in Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b). Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17\(b\) says that when we are representing a federal and not state corporation as "officers" or statutory "employees" per 5 U.S.C. §2105(a), the civil laws which apply are the place of formation and domicile of the corporation, which in the case of the government of "U.S. Inc." is ONLY the District of Columbia:

IV. PARTIES > Rule 17.
Rule 17. Parties Plaintiff and Defendant; Capacity

(b) Capacity to Sue or be Sued.

Capacity to sue or be sued is determined as follows:

(1) for an individual who is not acting in a representative capacity, by the law of the individual's domicile;

(2) for a corporation, by the law under which it was organized; and

(3) for all other parties, by the law of the state where the court is located, except that:

(A) a partnership or other unincorporated association with no such capacity under that state's law may sue or be sued in its common name to enforce a substantive right existing under the United States Constitution or laws; and

(B) 28 U.S.C. §§ 754 and 959\(a\) govern the capacity of a receiver appointed by a United States court to sue or be sued in a United States court.

[Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17\(b\)]

Please note the following very important facts:

1. The "person" which IS physically present on federal territory in the context of Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b)(2) scenario is the PUBLIC OFFICE, rather than the OFFICER who is CONSENSUALLY and LAWFULLY filling said office.
2. The PUBLIC OFFICE is the statutory "taxpayer" per 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(14), and not the human being filling said office.
3. The OFFICE is the thing the government created and can therefore regulate and tax. They can ONLY tax and regulate that which they created.<sup>115</sup> The public office has a domicile in the District of Columbia per 4 U.S.C. §72, which is the same domicile as that of its CORPORATION parent.
4. Because the parent government corporation of the office is a STATUTORY but not CONSTITUTIONAL "U.S. citizen", then the public office itself is ALSO a statutory citizen per 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(c). All creations of a government have the same civil status as their creator and the creation cannot be greater than the creator:

"A corporation is a citizen, resident, or inhabitant of the state or country by or under the laws of which it was created, and of that state or country only."
[19 Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.), Corporations, §886 (2003)]

5. An oath of office is the ONLY lawful method by which a specific otherwise PRIVATE person can be connected to a specific PUBLIC office.

"It is true, that the person who accepts an office may be supposed to enter into a compact [contract] to be answerable to the government, which he serves, for any violation of his duty; and, having taken the oath of office, he would unquestionably be liable, in such case, to a prosecution for perjury in the Federal Courts. But because one man, by his own act, renders himself amenable to a particular jurisdiction, shall another man, who has not incurred a similar obligation, be implicated? If, in other words, it is sufficient to vest a jurisdiction in this court, that a Federal Officer is concerned; if it is a sufficient proof of a case arising under a law of the United States to affect other persons, that such officer is bound, by law, to discharge his duty with fidelity; a source of jurisdiction is opened, which must inevitably overflow and destroy all the barriers between the judicial authorities of the State and the general government. Anything which can prevent a Federal Officer from the punctual, as well as from an impartial, performance of his duty; an assault and battery; or the recovery of a debt, as well as the offer of a bribe, may be made a foundation of the jurisdiction of this court; and, considering the constant disposition of power to extend the sphere of its influence, fictions will be resorted to, when real cases cease to occur. A mere fiction, that the defendant is in the custody of the marshall, has rendered the jurisdiction of the King's Bench universal in all personal actions."

Absent proof on the record of such an oath in any legal proceeding, any enforcement proceeding against a "taxpayer" public officer must be dismissed. The oath of public office:

5.1. Makes the OFFICER into legal surety for the PUBLIC OFFICE.

5.2. Creates a partnership between the otherwise private officer and the government. That is the ONLY partnership within the statutory meaning of "person" found in 26 U.S.C. §7343 and 26 U.S.C. §6671(b).

6. The reason that "United States" is defined as expressly including ONLY the District of Columbia in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) is because that is the ONLY place that "public officers" can lawfully serve, per 4 U.S.C. §72:

TITLE 4 > CHAPTER 3 > § 72

Sec. 72. - Public offices; at seat of Government

All offices attached to the seat of government shall be exercised in the District of Columbia, and not elsewhere, except as otherwise expressly provided by law

7. Even within privileged federal corporations, not all workers are "officers" and therefore "public officers". Only the officers of the corporation identified in the corporate filings, in fact, are officers and public officers. Every other worker in the corporation is EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE and NOT a statutory "taxpayer".
8. The authority for instituting the "trade or business" franchise tax upon public officers in the District of Columbia derives from the following U.S. Supreme Court cite:

"Loughborough v. Blake, 5 Wheat. 317, 5 L.Ed. 98, was an action of trespass or, as appears by the original record, replevin, brought in the circuit court for the District of Columbia to try the right of Congress to impose a direct tax for general purposes on that District. 3 Stat. at L. 216, chap. 60. It was insisted that Congress could act in a double capacity: in one as legislating [182 U.S. 244, 260] for the states; in the other as a local legislature for the District of Columbia. In the latter character, it was admitted that the power of levying direct taxes might be exercised, but for District purposes only, as a state legislature might tax for state purposes; but that it could not legislate for the District under art. 1, 8, giving to Congress the power 'to lay and collect taxes, imposts, and excises,' which 'shall be uniform throughout the United States,' inasmuch as the District was no part of the United States [described in the Constitution]. It was held that the grant of this power was a general one without limitation as to place, and consequently extended to all places over which the government extends; and that it extended to the District of Columbia as a constituent part of the United States. The fact that art. 1, 2, declares that 'representatives and direct taxes shall be apportioned among the several states . . . according to their respective numbers' furnished a standard by which taxes were apportioned, but not to exempt any part of the country from their operation. 'The words used do not mean that direct taxes shall be imposed on states only which are represented, or shall be apportioned to representatives; but that direct taxation, in its application to states, shall be apportioned to numbers.' That art. 1, 9, 4, declaring that direct taxes shall be laid in proportion to the census, was applicable to the District of Columbia, 'and will enable Congress to apportion on it its just and equal share of the burden, with the same accuracy as on the respective states. If the tax be laid in this proportion, it is within the very words of the restriction. It is a tax in proportion to the census or enumeration referred to.' It was further held that the words of the 9th section did not 'in terms require that the system of direct taxation, when resorted to, shall be extended to the territories, as the words of the 2d section require that it shall be extended to all the states. They therefore may, without violence, be understood to give a rule when the territories shall be taxed, without imposing the necessity of taxing them.'" [Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901)]

9. Since the first four commandments of the Ten Commandments prohibit Christians from worshipping or serving other gods, then they also forbid Christians from being public officers in their private life if the government has superior or supernatural powers, immunities, or privileges above everyone else, which is the chief characteristic of any god. The word "serve" in the scripture below includes serving as a public officer. The essence of religious "worship" is, in fact, obedience to the dictates of a SUPERIOR or SUPERNATURAL being. You as a human being are the "natural" in the phrase "supernatural", so if any government or civil ruler has any more power than you as a human being, then they are a god in the context of the following scripture.

"You shall have no other gods [including governments or civil rulers] before Me. You shall not make for yourself a carved image—any likeness of anything that is in heaven above, or that is in the earth beneath, or that is in the water under the earth; you shall not bow down or serve them. For I, the Lord your God, am a jealous God, visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children to the third and fourth generations of those who hate Me, but showing mercy to thousands, to those who love Me and keep My commandments. [Exodus 20:3-6, Bible, NKVJ]

10. Any attempt to compel you to occupy or accept the obligations of a public office without your consent represents several crimes, including:
- 10.1. Theft of all the property and rights to property acquired by associating you with the status of "taxpayer".
  - 10.2. Impersonating a public officer in violation of 18 U.S.C. §912.
  - 10.3. Involuntary servitude in violation of the Thirteenth Amendment.
  - 10.4. Identity theft, because it connects your legal identity to obligations that you don't consent to, all of which are associated with the statutory status of "taxpayer".
  - 10.5. Peonage, if the status of "taxpayer" is surety for public debts, in violation of 18 U.S.C. §1581. Peonage is slavery in connection with a debt, even if that debt is the PUBLIC debt.

Usually false and fraudulent information returns are the method of connecting otherwise alien and nonresident parties to the "trade or business" franchise, and thus, they are being criminally abused as the equivalent of federal election devices to fraudulently "elect" otherwise PRIVATE and nonresident parties to be liable for the obligations of a public office. 26 U.S.C. §6041(a) establishes that information returns which impute statutory "income" may ONLY lawfully be filed against this lawfully engaged in a "trade or business". This is covered in:

Correcting Erroneous Information Returns, Form #04.001
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

5.4.8.11.13 "reside" in the Fourteenth Amendment

"reside" in the Fourteenth Amendment means DOMICILE, not mere physical presence.

That newly arrived citizens "have two political capacities, one state and one federal," adds special force to their claim that they have the same rights as others who share their citizenship.<sup>17</sup> Neither mere rationality nor some intermediate standard of review should be used to judge the constitutionality of a state rule that discriminates against some of its citizens because they have been domiciled in the State for less than a year. The appropriate standard may be more categorical than that articulated in Shapiro, see supra, at 89, but it is surely no less strict.

A bona fide residence requirement simply requires that the person does establish residence before demanding the services that are restricted to residents. The Martinez Court explained that "residence" requires "both physical presence and an intention to remain [domicile]," see id., at 330, and approved a Texas law that restricted eligibility for tuition-free education to families who met this minimum definition of residence, id., at 332 333.

While the physical presence element of a bona fide residence is easy to police, the subjective intent element is not. It is simply unworkable and futile to require States to inquire into each new resident's subjective intent to remain. Hence, States employ objective criteria such as durational residence requirements to test a new resident's resolve to remain before these new citizens can enjoy certain in-state benefits. Recognizing the practical appeal of such criteria, this Court has repeatedly sanctioned the State's use of durational residence requirements before new residents receive in-state tuition rates at state universities. Starns v. Malkerson, 401 U.S. 985 (1971), summarily aff'g 326 F. Supp. 234 (Minn. 1970) (upholding 1-year residence requirement for in-state tuition); Sturgis v. Washington, 414 U.S. 1057, summarily aff'g 368 F. Supp. 38 (WD Wash. 1973) (same). The Court has declared: "The State can establish such reasonable criteria for in-state status as to make virtually certain that students who are not, in fact, bona fide residents of the State, but have come there solely for educational purposes, cannot take advantage of the in-state rates." See Vlandis v. Kline, 412 U.S. 441, 453 454 (1973). The Court has done the same in upholding a 1-year residence requirement for eligibility to obtain a divorce in state courts, see Sosna v. Iowa, 419 U.S. 393, 406 409 (1975), and in upholding political party registration restrictions that amounted to a durational residency requirement for voting in primary elections, see Rosario v. Rockefeller, 410 U.S. 752, 760 762 (1973).

What makes a person a citizen of a state? The fourteenth amendment to the Constitution provides that: "All persons born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States and of the State wherein they reside." United States Const. amend. XIV, § 1. However, "reside" has been interpreted to mean more than to be temporarily living in the state; it means to be "domiciled" there. Thus, to be a citizen of a state within the meaning of the diversity provision, a natural person must be both (1) a citizen of the United States, and (2) a domiciliary of that state. Federal common law, not the law of any state, determines whether a person is a citizen of a particular state for purposes of diversity jurisdiction. 1 J. Moore, Moore's Federal Practice, § 0.74[1] (1996); e.g., Mas v. Perry, 489 F.2d 1396, 1399 (5th Cir.) cert. denied, 419 U.S. 842, 95 S.Ct. 74, 42 L.Ed.2d 70 (1974).
[Corry v. Prot, 85 F.3d. 244 (1996)]

1. The point of reference is the HUMAN and not any offices, agencies, or statuses he or she fills such as "taxpayer", "spouse", etc. under civil franchises. The U.S. Supreme Court held that the only "citizens" mentioned in the Constitution are HUMAN BEINGS and not artificial entities.

"Under our own systems of polity, the term 'citizen', implying the same or similar relations to the government and to society which appertain to the term, 'subject' in England, is familiar to all. Under either system, the term used is designed to apply to man in his individual character and to his natural capacities -- to a being or agent [PUBLIC OFFICER!] possessing social and political rights and sustaining social, political, and moral obligations. It is in this acceptance only, therefore, that the term 'citizen', in the article of the Constitution, can be received and understood. When distributing the judicial power, that article extends it to controversies between 'citizens' of different states. This must mean the natural physical beings composing those separate communities, and can by no violence of interpretation be made to signify artificial, incorporeal, theoretical, and invisible creations. A corporation, therefore, being not a natural person, but a mere creature of the mind, invisible and intangible, cannot be a citizen of a state, or of the United States, and cannot fall within the terms or the power of the above mentioned article, and can therefore neither plead nor be impleaded in the courts of the United States."

2. Any offices or civil statuses filled by the human being in the previous step have a domicile quite independent of the officer or agent filling them as men or women. The PUBLIC OFFICE or PUBLIC AGENCY they fill through consent should always be distinguished separately from the OFFICER filling said office or agency. This gives rise to the PUBLIC "person" and the PRIVATE person respectively.
3. Since DOMICILE is voluntary, even CONSTITUTIONAL nationality and state citizenship is voluntary.
4. It also implies that one can be BORN in a place without being a STATUTORY "citizen" there, if one does not have a domicile there. See:

Why Domicile and Becoming a "Taxpayer" Require Your Consent, Form #05.002
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

5.4.8.11.14 The TWO types of "residents": FOREIGN NATIONAL under the common law or GOVERNMENT CONTRACTOR/PUBLIC OFFICER under a franchise

5.4.8.11.14.1 Introduction

As we pointed out earlier in section 5.1.4.2:

1. CONTEXT is extremely important in the legal field.
2. There are TWO main contexts in which legal terms can be used:
  - 2.1. CONSTITUTIONAL or common law: This law protects exclusively PRIVATE rights.
  - 2.2. STATUTORY: This law protects primarily PUBLIC rights and franchises.

CONTEXT therefore has a HUGE impact upon the meaning of the legal term "resident". Because there are two main contexts in which "resident" can be used, then there are TWO possible meanings for the term.

1. CONSTITUTIONAL or COMMON LAW meaning: A foreign national domiciled within the jurisdiction of the municipal government to which the term "resident" relates. One can be a "resident" under constitutional state law and

- 1 a “nonresident” in relation to the national government because their civil domicile is FOREIGN in relation to that 2 government. This is a product of the separation of powers doctrine.
- 3 2. STATUTORY meaning: Means a man or woman who consented to a voluntary government civil franchise and by 4 virtue of volunteering, REPRESENTS a public office exercised within and on behalf of the franchise. While on
5 official duty on behalf of the government grantor of the franchise, they assume the effective domicile of the public
6 office they are representing, which is the domicile of the government grantor, pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil
7 Procedure 17(b). For instance, the effective domicile of a state franchisee is within the granting state and the domicile
8 of a federal franchisee is within federal territory.

9 Most of the civil law passed by state and federal governments are civil franchises, such as Medicare, Social Security, driver
10 licensing, marriage licensing, professional licensing, etc. All such franchises are actually administered as FEDERAL 11 franchises, even by the state governments. Men and women domiciled within a constitutional state have a legislatively foreign 12 domicile outside of federal territory and they are therefore treated as statutory “non-resident non-persons” in relation to the 13 national government. Once they volunteer for a franchise, they consent to represent a public office within that civil franchise
14 and their civil statutory status changes from being a “non-resident non-person” to being a statutory “domiciled citizen” in 15 relation to federal territory and the national government under the specific franchise they signed up for. The operation of 16 Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b) is what makes them a “domiciled citizen” because the office they occupy or represent 17 is domiciled on federal territory in the District of Columbia per 4 U.S.C. §72.

18 The legal definition of “resident” within Black’s Law Dictionary tries to hint at the above complexities with the following 19 deliberately confusing language:

20 Resident. “Any person who occupies a dwelling within the State, has a present intent to remain within the State
21 for a period of time, and manifests the genuineness of that intent by establishing an ongoing physical presence
22 within the State together with indicia that his presence within the State is something other than merely transitory
23 in nature. The word “resident” when used as a noun means a dweller, habitant or occupant; one who resides or 24 dwells in a place for a period of more, or less, duration; it signifies one having a residence, or one who resides
25 or abides. Hanson v. P.A. Peterson Home Ass’n, 35 Ill.App.2d. 134, 182 N.E.2d. 237, 240.

26 Word “resident” has many meanings in law, largely determined by statutory context in which it is used. [Kelm v.
27 Carlson, C.A.Ohio, 473, F.2d. 1267, 1271]

28 [Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1309]

29 Note the following critical statement in the above, admitting that sleight of hand is involved:

30 “Word “resident” has many meanings in law, largely determined by statutory context in which it is used. [Kelm
31 v. Carlson, C.A.Ohio, 473, F.2d. 1267, 1271”]

32 Within the above definition, the term “the State” can mean one of TWO things:

- 33 1. A PHYSICAL or GEOGRAPHICAL place. This is the meaning that ignorant people with no legal training would 34 naturally PRESUME that it means.
- 35 2. A LEGAL place, meaning a LEGAL PRESENCE as a “person” within a legal fiction called a corporation. For 36 instance, an OFFICER of a federal corporation becomes a “RESIDENT” within the corporation at the moment he or 37 she volunteers for the position and thereby REPRESENTS the corporation. Once they volunteer, Federal Rule of Civil 38 Procedure 17(b) says they become “residents” of the government grantor of the corporation, but only while
39 REPRESENTING said corporation:

40 IV. PARTIES > Rule 17.
41 Rule 17. Parties Plaintiff and Defendant; Capacity

42 (b) Capacity to Sue or be Sued.

43 Capacity to sue or be sued is determined as follows:

- 44 (1) for an individual who is not acting in a representative capacity, by the law of the individual's domicile;
45 (2) for a corporation, by the law under which it was organized; and
46 (3) for all other parties, by the law of the state where the court is located, except that:

(A) a partnership or other unincorporated association with no such capacity under that state's law may sue or be sued in its common name to enforce a substantive right existing under the United States Constitution or laws; and

(B) 28 U.S.C. §§ 754 and 959(a) govern the capacity of a receiver appointed by a United States court to sue or be sued in a United States court.

[SOURCE: <http://www.law.cornell.edu/rules/frcp/Rule17.htm>]

All federal corporations are “created” and “organized” under federal law and therefore are considered “residents” and “domestic” in relation to the national government.

TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > Sec. 7701.
Sec. 7701. - Definitions

(a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof—

(4) Domestic

The term “domestic” when applied to a corporation or partnership means created or organized in the United States or under the law of the United States or of any State unless, in the case of a partnership, the Secretary provides otherwise by regulations.

It is also important to emphasize that ALL governments are corporations as held by the U.S. Supreme Court:

“Corporations are also of all grades, and made for varied objects; all governments are corporations, created by usage and common consent, or grants and charters which create a body politic for prescribed purposes; but whether they are private, local or general, in their objects, for the enjoyment of property, or the exercise of power, they are all governed by the same rules of law, as to the construction and the obligation of the instrument by which the incorporation is made. One universal rule of law protects persons and property. It is a fundamental principle of the common law of England, that the term freemen of the kingdom, includes ‘all persons,’ ecclesiastical and temporal, incorporate, politique or natural; it is a part of their magna charta (2 Inst. 4), and is incorporated into our institutions. The persons of the members of corporations are on the same footing of protection as other persons, and their corporate property secured by the same laws which protect that of individuals. 2 Inst. 46-7. ‘No man shall be taken,’ ‘no man shall be disseised,’ without due process of law, is a principle taken from magna charta, infused into all our state constitutions, and is made inviolable by the federal government, by the amendments to the constitution.”
[Proprietors of Charles River Bridge v. Proprietors of Warren Bridge, 36 U.S. 420 (1837)]

Consequently, when one volunteers to become a public officer within a government corporation, then they acquire a “LEGAL PRESENCE” in the LEGAL AND NOT PHYSICAL PLACE called “United States” as an officer of the corporation. In effect, they are “assimilated” into the corporation as a legal “person” as its representative.

Earlier versions of the Treasury Regulations reveal the operation of the SECOND method for creating “residents”, which is that of converting statutory aliens into statutory residents using government franchises:

26 C.F.R. §301.7701-5 Domestic, foreign, resident, and nonresident persons.

*A domestic corporation is one organized or created in the United States, including only the States (and during the periods when not States, the Territories of Alaska and Hawaii), and the District of Columbia, or under the law of the United States or of any State or Territory. A foreign corporation is one which is not domestic. A domestic corporation is a resident corporation even though it does no business and owns no property in the United States. A foreign corporation engaged in trade or business within the United States is referred to in the regulations in this chapter as a resident foreign corporation, and a foreign corporation not engaged in trade or business within the United States, as a nonresident foreign corporation. A partnership engaged in trade or business within the United States is referred to in the regulations in this chapter as a resident partnership, and a partnership not engaged in trade or business within the United States, as a nonresident partnership. Whether a partnership is to be regarded as resident or nonresident is not determined by the nationality or residence of its members or by the place in which it was created or organized.

The key statement in the above is that the status of “resident” does NOT derive from either nationality or domicile, but rather from whether one is “purposefully and consensually” engaged in the FRANCHISE ACTIVITY called a “trade or business”. This is consistent with the Minimum Contacts Doctrine of the U.S. Supreme Court, which requires “purposeful availment” in order to waive sovereign immunity under the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act (F.S.I.A.), 28 U.S.C. Chapter 97:

A foreign corporation engaged in trade or business within the United States is referred to in the regulations in this chapter as a resident foreign corporation, and a foreign corporation not engaged in trade or business within the United States, as a nonresident foreign corporation. A partnership engaged in trade or business within the United States is referred to in the regulations in this chapter as a resident partnership, and a partnership not engaged in trade or business within the United States, as a nonresident partnership. Whether a partnership is to be regarded as resident or nonresident is not determined by the nationality or residence of its members or by the place in which it was created or organized.

Incidentally, we were the first people we know of who discovered the above mechanisms and as soon as we exposed them on this website, the above regulation was quickly replaced with a temporary regulation to hide the truth. Scum bags!

The deliberately confusing and evasive definition of “resident” in Black’s Law Dictionary is trying to obfuscate or cover up the above process by inventing new terms called “the State”, which they then refuse to define because if they did, they would probably start the second American revolution and destroy the profitability of the government franchise scam that subsidizes the authors within the legal profession! They are like Judas: Selling the truth for 20 pieces of silver.

What we want to emphasize in this section is that:

1. The word “resident” within most government civil law and ALL franchises actually means a government contractor, and has nothing to do with the domicile or nationality of the parties.
2. The “residence” of the franchisee is that of the OFFICE he or she occupies as a statutory but not constitutional alien, and not his or her personal or physical location.

Finally, if you would like to know more about how VOLUNTARY participation in government franchises makes one a “resident”, see:

Government Instituted Slavery Using Franchises, Form #05.030, Sections 6.3, 8, and 11.5.2
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

5.4.8.11.14.2 “Resident” in the Internal Revenue Code “trade or business” civil franchise

The only type of “resident” defined in the Internal Revenue Code is a “resident alien”, as demonstrated below:

26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A) Resident alien

(b) Definition of resident alien and nonresident alien

(1) In general

For purposes of this title (other than subtitle B) -

(A) Resident alien

An alien individual shall be treated as a resident of the United States with respect to any calendar year if (and only if) such individual meets the requirements of clause (i), (ii), or (iii):

(i) Lawfully admitted for permanent residence

Such individual is a lawful permanent resident of the United States at any time during such calendar year.

(ii) Substantial presence test

Such individual meets the substantial presence test of paragraph (3).

Such individual makes the election provided in paragraph (4).

Therefore, the terms “resident”, “alien”, and “resident alien” are all synonymous terms within the Internal Revenue Code. Most state income taxation statutes also use the same definition of “resident”, and therefore the same definition applies for state income taxes as well.

QUESTION FOR DOUBTERS: If you believe we are wrong, then please show us a definition of the term “resident” within either the Internal Revenue Code or the implementing regulations that includes “citizens of the United States” as defined under 8 U.S.C. §1401. There simply isn’t one! You are not free to “presume” or “assume” that “citizens of the United States” are also “residents” without the authority of a positive law that authorizes it. We’ll also give you the hint, that even the Internal Revenue Code is neither “positive law” nor does it have the “force of law” for most people, so you can’t use it as legally evidence of anything. Presumptions are NOT legal evidence and violate due process of law when they become evidence without at least your consent in some form. To make this or any other assumption in a court of law would violate our right to “due process or law”, because “presumption” or “assumption” of anything in the legal realm is a violation of due process. Everything must be proven with evidence, and that which is neither law nor which is explicitly stated cannot be presumed.

1 The only way you can come under the jurisdiction of Subtitle A of the Internal Revenue Code is to meet one or more of the 2 following criterias below:

- 3 1. A "person" domiciled within the "federal zone" as defined under 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(1). This statutory "person" is 4 technically either an "alien" or a federal corporation only. A corporation can also be an "alien" if it was incorporated
5 outside of federal jurisdiction but has a presence inside the federal zone. Under 26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1, these are
6 the only entities who are required to provide any kind of identifying number on their tax return! That regulation
7 requires the furnishing of a "Taxpayer Identification Number" for these legal "persons", but 26 C.F.R. §301.6109-
8 1(d)(3) says that Social Security Numbers are not to be treated as "Taxpayer Identification Numbers". Consequently,
9 natural persons with a Social Security Number do not have to provide any kind of identifying number on their return
10 because they aren't the proper subject of Subtitle A of the Internal Revenue Code. See Great IRS Hoax, Form
11 #11.302, Section 5.4.17 for further details on this scandal.
- 12 2. A "nonresident alien" under 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(a)(2)(ii) who has income "effectively connected with a trade or 13 business", which means a political office in the United States government under 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26). See 26
14 C.F.R. §1.1-1(a)(2)(ii).

15 Under item 1 above, the term "person" is used in describing an "individual", but that "person" is technically only a federal 16 corporation or an office WITHIN that corporation, as confirmed by the following:

- 17 1. The legal encyclopedia, Corpus Juris Secundum confirms that corporations are treated in law as "citizens of the 18 United States":

19 *"A corporation is a citizen, resident, or inhabitant of the state or country by or under the laws of which it was 20 created, and of that state or country only."
21 [19 Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.), Corporations, §886 (2003)]*

- 22 2. The definition of "income" as including only "corporate profit" under our Constitution limits the entire Internal 23 Revenue Code to corporations only. See Great IRS Hoax, Form #11.302, Section 5.6.5 for complete details on this
24 subject.

25 Natural persons (people) who are "citizens of the United States**" under the provisions of 8 U.S.C. §1401 are born only
26 in the District of Columbia or federal territories or possessions. Federal territories and possessions are the only "States" within 27 the Internal Revenue Code as confirmed by 4 U.S.C. §110(d). These statutory "citizens of the United States" cannot legally
28 be classified as "residents"/"aliens" under the Internal Revenue Code and are not authorized by the code to "elect" to be
29 treated as one either. The reason is because the purpose of law is to protect, and a person cannot elect to lose their
30 constitutional rights and protection, even if they want to! However, by filing an IRS form 1040 or 1040A, they in effect
31 make this illegal election anyway, and the IRS looks the other way and does not prosecute such unintentional deceit because 32 they benefit financially from it. The pronouncements of the U.S. Supreme Court also identify this kind of constructive fraud
33 on the part of the IRS as an invalid election if this unwitting choice did not involve fully informed consent. Did you know
34 that you were agreeing to be treated as an "alien" by the IRS when you signed and sent in your first Form 1040 or 1040A?:

35 *"Waivers of Constitutional rights not only must be voluntary, but must be knowing, intelligent acts done with 36 sufficient awareness of the relevant circumstances and likely consequences."
37 [Brady v. U.S., 397 U.S. 742 (1970)]*

38 The reason Constitutional rights are being waived is because people who are "residents"/"aliens" within the federal zone have 39 no constitutional rights in law. The only way to avoid this involuntary election is to instead either file nothing or to file a
40 1040NR form with the IRS instead of a 1040 or 1040A form. You will learn starting in the next section that people who are
41 born in states of the Union are not "nationals and citizens of the United States** at birth" under 8 U.S.C. §1401, but are 42 instead the equivalent of "nationals" under 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21). They are also "nonresident aliens" under the Internal 43 Revenue Code if serving in a public office and non-resident non-persons if not serving in a public office in the national 44 government. "nonresident aliens" file only the 1040NR form if they file anything with the IRS. The rules for electing to be
45 treated as a "resident" or "resident alien" are found in IRS Publication 54: Tax Guide for U.S. citizens and Resident Aliens
46 Abroad. See the Great IRS Hoax, Form #11.302, Sections 5.5.2, 5.5.3, and 5.4.12 for amplification on this subject.

IMPORTANT: If you were born in a state of the Union, NEVER, EVER file a 1040, 1040A, or 1040EZ form unless you want to throw your Constitutional rights in the toilet! If you determine that you must file a tax form with the IRS, then only send in a 1040NR form in order to preserve your status as a “national” under 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21) and “non-resident non-person” who is outside of federal jurisdiction! Nonresident aliens cannot be penalized under the Internal Revenue Code because they don’t reside there! When you send in the 1040NR form, make sure to change the perjury statement at the end to put yourself outside of federal jurisdiction as follows:

“I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the United States of America in accordance with 28 U.S.C. §1746(1) that the foregoing facts are true, correct, and complete to the best of my knowledge and ability, but only when litigated with a jury in a court of a state of the Union and not a federal court.”

You will learn later in Great IRS Hoax, Form #11.302, Section 5.4.5 that the IRS has no legal authority to institute penalties against natural persons because of the prohibition against Bills of Attainder found in Article 1, Section 10 of the Constitution, but they will try to illegally do it anyway. Since IRS likes to try to illegally penalize people for changing the “jurat” or perjury statement at the end of the 1040NR form, then you can accomplish the equivalent of physically modifying the words in the perjury statement by redefining the words in the statement or redefining the whole statement in its entirety in an attached letter. Physically changing the words in the statement is the only thing IRS incorrectly “thinks” they can penalize for, and especially if the return was completed and submitted outside of federal jurisdiction in a state of the Union and the perjury statement accurately reflects that fact. Remember that crimes can only be punished based on where they are committed, and if your perjury statement reflects the fact that you are outside of federal jurisdiction, then IRS can’t penalize you no matter how hard they try or how many threats they make.

So being a “resident of the State” under federal statutes above makes you a nonresident alien in your own state and an “alien” under federal jurisdiction who is the proper subject of both state and federal income taxes codes! Because as a “resident of the State” you are presumed to reside inside the federal zone, you don’t have any constitutional rights according to the U.S. supreme Court. Listen to the dissenting opinion from Justice Harlan in the case of Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901) which ruled that the federal zone doesn’t have constitutional protections:

“I take leave to say that, if the principles thus announced should ever receive the sanction of a majority of this court, a radical and mischievous change in our system of government will result. We will, in that event, pass from the era of constitutional liberty guarded and protected by a written constitution into an era of legislative absolutism..”

[. . .]

“The idea prevails with some, indeed it has found expression in arguments at the bar, that we have in this country substantially two national governments; one to be maintained under the Constitution, with all of its restrictions; the other to be maintained by Congress outside the independently of that instrument, by exercising such powers [of absolutism] as other nations of the earth are accustomed to..”

[. . .]

“It will be an evil day for American liberty if the theory of a government outside the supreme law of the land finds lodgment in our constitutional jurisprudence. No higher duty rests upon this court than to exert its full authority to prevent all violation of the principles of the Constitution.”
[Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901), Justice Harlan, Dissenting]

When you accept the false notion that you are “liable” for federal income taxes under Subtitle A of the Internal Revenue Code and subsequently file a 1040 tax return (bad idea!), you are admitting under penalty of perjury that you are an alien “individual” of your own country (not a “national” or “citizen”) who lives in the federal zone. The only definitions of “individual” found in 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3) and 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(a)(2)(ii) confirm that the only people who are “individuals” in the context of federal income taxes are “aliens”/“residents” residing in the federal “United States”. That lie or mistake on the tax return you never should have submitted to begin with caused you to become the equivalent of a “virtual inhabitant” of the federal zone in law and from that point on you are treated as such by both the federal government and the state government, even if you don’t want to be and never intended to do this! Here is more proof showing that even if you weren't located in the federal zone when you submitted the false 1040 return, you gave your tacit permission to be treated as a resident of the District of Columbia:

Sec. 7701. – Definitions

(39) Persons residing outside [the federal] United States

If any citizen or resident of the United States does not reside in (and is not found in) any United States judicial district, such citizen or resident shall be treated as residing in the District of Columbia for purposes of any provision of this title relating to -

What the above means is that if you filed a 1040 or 1040A form, you are telling the federal government that you are an “alien”/“resident” who lives in the federal zone and consequently, the courts will treat you like you have a domicile in the District of Columbia, which we call the District of Criminals. A similar provision appears under 26 U.S.C. §7408(d):

TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 76 > Subchapter A > § 7408
§7408. Action to enjoin promoters of abusive tax shelters, etc.

(d) Citizens and residents outside the United States If any citizen or resident of the United States does not reside in, and does not have his principal place of business in, any United States judicial district, such citizen or resident shall be treated for purposes of this section as residing in the District of Columbia.

Here is what the 2003 IRS Published Products Catalog says about the proper use of the form 1040A on page F-15, and notice is says it is only for “citizens” and “residents”, neither of which describe those born in and inhabiting states of the Union on land not under federal ownership:

Those who file that false 1040 form are admitting that they are living in the King's Castle and from that point on, they better bow down to the king as slaves by paying “tribute” with all their earnings! Important about the above is the fact that “nationals” and “nonresident aliens” are not included in the phrase “citizens or residents”, because they are outside the jurisdiction of the federal courts! One more big reason why we don't want to be a “U.S. citizen” in the context of federal statutes such as 8 U.S.C. §1401! That false 1040 tax return they submitted, which said “U.S. individual” at the top, became a contract with criminals from the “District of Criminals” (the “D.C.” in “Washington D.C.”) to take themselves out of the Constitutional Republic and out of the protections of the Bill of Rights. They united with or “married” Babylon the Great Harlot mentioned in Rev. 17 and 18 and they live where she lives: inside of a totalitarian socialist democracy devoid of constitutional rights and predicated solely on the love of money and luxury. They declared themselves to be an “employee” of the Harlot, and the false W-4 form they submitted proves that, because the upper left corner says “employee”, and the only people who are statutory “employees” as defined in 26 U.S.C. §3401(c) work for the federal government. It is repugnant to

1 the constitution, as held by the U.S. Supreme Court and therefore they can only be referring to PUBLIC “employees”. They
2 have therefore joined the “Matrix” and become a socialist federal serf. Welcome, comrade!”

3 “You were bought at a price; do not become slaves of men [and remember that government
4 is made up of men].”
5 [1 Cor. 7:23, Bible, NKJV]

6 Who says we don't live in a police state, and not many people even know about this because we have been so deceived by
7 our public “dis-servants”. Can you see how insidious this lawyer deception is? The American people and our media are 8 asleep at the wheel folks!...and it's going to take a lot more to fix than blind and ignorant patriotism and putting an idiotic
9 flag or bumper sticker on your car. That's right: if you are a “resident of the United States” or of “the State”, then you're a
10 federal serf and a ward of the socialist government who is nonresident to his own state! You better to do what you're told,
11 pay your taxes, and shut up, BOY, or we'll confiscate all your property, give you 40 lashes and send you to bed without 12 dinner or a blanket. Watch out!

13 To summarize the preceding discussion of “resident”, for the purposes of taxation, one establishes that they are a “resident”
14 of the federal zone by any of the following techniques:

- 15 1. Filing a form 1040 or 1040a or 1040EZ
- 16 2. Filling out a W-4 form, which is only for use by federal statutory “employees”, all of whom work only in the federal 17 zone.
- 18 3. Claiming to be “U.S. citizen”, “U.S. resident”, or “U.S. person” on any federal form.

19 If you never did any of the above, then it can't be said that you ever consented to participate in the federal income tax system
20 and the federal government has no jurisdiction or proof of jurisdiction over you for the purposes of Subtitle A of the Internal 21 Revenue Code. If they wrongfully proceed at that point over your objections by attempting unlawful collection and/or 22 assessment actions against you in violation of 26 U.S.C. §6020(b) or the Constitution, then they:

- 23 1. Are involved in identity theft because they moved your legal identity under the I.R.C. to a physical place where you 24 neither intend to live or actually live, which is the District of Columbia.
- 25 2. Are involved in:
  - 26 2.1. Racketeering in violation of 18 U.S.C. §1951.
  - 27 2.2. Extortion in violation of 18 U.S.C. §872.
  - 28 2.3. Conspiracy against rights in violation of, 18 U.S.C. §241.
- 29 3. Can and should be prosecuted individually for fraud in violation of 18 U.S.C. §1001, kidnapping in violation of 18 U.S.C.
30 §1201, and all of the above crimes under both state and federal law.

31 5.4.8.11.14.3 “resident”=government employee, contractor, or agent

32 The discussion in the preceding section brings out a very subtle point we would like to further expound upon, which is that
33 “residence” is created ONLY through the operation of private law and your right to contract. We allege that the term
34 “permanent” found in the definition of “domicile” in the previous section really means “consent” to the jurisdiction of the 35 government. Below is the proof, right from the definitions within Title 8 of the U.S. Code, which is entitled “Aliens and 36 Nationality”:

37 TITLE 8 > CHAPTER 12 > SUBCHAPTER I > § 1101
38 § 1101. Definitions

39 (a) As used in this chapter—

40 (31) The term “permanent” means a relationship of continuing or lasting nature, as distinguished from 41 temporary, but a relationship may be permanent even though it is one that may be dissolved eventually at the 42 instance either of the United States or of the individual, in accordance with law.

43 Note that the term “permanent” as used above has no relationship as to time, but instead can exist only in the presence of 44 your voluntary consent. This is one of the implications of the Declaration of Independence, which states that “to secure these 45 rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their JUST powers from the CONSENT of the governed.” What they 46 are pointing out above is that what really makes the relationship “permanent” is your voluntary consent. This consent, the

1 courts call "allegiance". Below is how the U.S. Supreme Court describes the practical effect of choosing or consenting to a
2 "domicile" within the jurisdiction of a specific "state":

3 "Thus, the Court has frequently held that domicile or residence, more substantial than mere presence in transit
4 or sojourn, is an adequate basis for taxation, including income, property, and death taxes. Since the Fourteenth
5 Amendment makes one a [STATUTORY] citizen of the state wherein he resides [IS DOMICILED], the fact of
6 residence creates universally reciprocal duties [e.g. CONTRACTUAL DUTIES!!] of protection by the state
7 and of allegiance and support by the citizen. The latter obviously includes a duty to pay taxes, and their nature
8 and measure is largely a political matter. Of course, the situs of property may tax it regardless of the citizenship,
9 domicile, or residence of the owner, the most obvious illustration being a tax on realty laid by the state in which 10 the realty is located."

11 Miller Brothers Co. v. Maryland, [347 U.S. 340 (1954)]

12 The only legitimate purpose of all law and government is "protection". A person who selects or consents to have a "domicile"
13 or "residence" has effectively contracted to procure "protection" of the "sovereign" or "state" within its jurisdiction. In 14 exchange for the promise of protection by the "state", they are legally obligated to give their allegiance and support. All
15 allegiance must be voluntary and any consequences arising from compelled allegiance may not be enforced in a court of law.
16 When you revoke your voluntary consent to the government's jurisdiction and the "domicile" or "residence" contract, you
17 change your status from that of a "domiciliary" or "resident" or "inhabitant" or "U.S. person" to that of a "transient foreigner".
18 Transient foreigner is then defined below:

19 "Transient foreigner. One who visits the country, without the intention of remaining."
20 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1498]

21 Note again the language within the definition of "domicile" from Black's Law Dictionary found in the previous section
22 relating to the word "transient", which confirms that what makes your stay "permanent" is consent to the jurisdiction of the 23 "state" located in that place:

24 "Domicile. [...] The established, fixed, permanent, or ordinary dwellingplace or place of residence of a person,
25 as distinguished from his temporary and transient, though actual, place of residence. It is his legal residence,
26 as distinguished from his temporary place of abode; or his home, as distinguished from a place to which business
27 or pleasure may temporarily call him. See also Abode; Residence."
28 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 485]

29 Since your Constitutional right to contract is unlimited, then you can have as many "residences" as you like, but you can have 30 only one legal "domicile", because your allegiance must be undivided or you will have a conflict of interest and allegiance.

31 "No one can serve two masters; for either he will hate the one and love the other, or else he will be loyal to the 32 one and despise the other. You cannot serve God and mammon."
33 [Matt. 6:24, Bible, NKJV]

34 Remember, "resident" is a combination of two word roots: "res", which is legally defined as a "thing", and "ident", which 35 stands for "identified".

36 Res. Lat. The subject matter of a trust or will. In the civil law, a thing; an object. As a term of the law, this
37 word has a very wide and extensive signification, including not only things which are objects of property, but also 38 such as are not capable of individual ownership. And in old English law it is said to have a general import,
39 comprehending both corporeal and incorporeal things of whatever kind, nature, or species. By "res," according 40 to the modern civilians, is meant everything that may form an object of rights, in opposition to "persona," which
41 is regarded as a subject of rights. "Res," therefore, in its general meaning, comprises actions of all kinds; while 42 in its restricted sense it comprehends every object of right, except actions. This has reference to the fundamental 43 division of the Institutes that all law relates either to persons, to things, or to actions.

44 Res is everything that may form an object of rights and includes an object, subject-matter or status. In re Riggle's
45 Will, 11 A.D.2d 51 205 N.Y.S.2d. 19, 21, 22. The term is particularly applied to an object, subject-matter, or 46 status, considered as the defendant in an action, or as an object against which, directly, proceedings are taken.
47 Thus, in a prize case, the captured vessel is "the res"; and proceedings of this character are said to be in rem.
48 (See In personam; In Rem.) "Res" may also denote the action or proceeding, as when a cause, which is not
49 between adversary parties, it entitled "In re _____".
50 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, pp. 1304-1306]

51 When you become a "resident" in the eyes of the government, you become a "thing" that is now "identified" and which is 52 within their legislative jurisdiction and completely subject to it. Notice that a "res" is defined as the object of a trust above.
53 That trust is the "public trust" created by the Constitution and all laws passed pursuant to it.

2 "Part 1 -- PRINCIPLES OF ETHICAL CONDUCT

3 "Section 101. Principles of Ethical Conduct. To ensure that every citizen can have complete confidence in the 4 integrity of the Federal Government, each Federal employee shall respect and adhere to the fundamental
5 principles of ethical service as implemented in regulations promulgated under sections 201 and 301 of this order:

6 "(a) Public service is a public trust, requiring employees to place loyalty to the Constitution, the laws, and 7 ethical principles above private gain.

11 PART 2635--STANDARDS OF ETHICAL CONDUCT FOR EMPLOYEES OF THE EXECUTIVE
12 BRANCH--Table of Contents

13 Subpart A--General Provisions

14 Sec. 2635.101 Basic obligation of public service.

15 (a) Public service is a public trust. Each employee has a responsibility to the United States Government and 16 its citizens to place loyalty to the Constitution, laws and ethical principles above private gain. To ensure that 17 every citizen can have complete confidence in the integrity of the Federal Government, each employee shall 18 respect and adhere to the principles of ethical conduct set forth in this section, as well as the implementing 19 standards contained in this part and in supplemental agency regulations.

20 All those who swear an oath as "public officers" are also identified as "trustees" of the "public trust":

21 "As expressed otherwise, the powers delegated to a public officer are held in trust for the people and are to be
22 exercised in behalf of the government or of all citizens who may need the intervention of the officer.<sup>116</sup>
23 Furthermore, the view has been expressed that all public officers, within whatever branch and whatever level
24 of government, and whatever be their private vocations, are trustees of the people, and accordingly labor under
25 every disability and prohibition imposed by law upon trustees relative to the making of personal financial gain
26 from a discharge of their trusts.<sup>117</sup> That is, a public officer occupies a fiduciary relationship to the political
27 entity on whose behalf he or she serves.<sup>118</sup> and owes a fiduciary duty to the public.<sup>119</sup> It has been said that
28 the fiduciary responsibilities of a public officer cannot be less than those of a private individual.<sup>120</sup>
29 Furthermore, it has been stated that any enterprise undertaken by the public official which tends to weaken public
30 confidence and undermine the sense of security for individual rights is against public policy.<sup>121</sup>
31 [63C American Jurisprudence 2d., Public Officers and Employees, §247 (1999)]

32 A person who is "subject" to government jurisdiction cannot be a "sovereign", because a sovereign is not subject to the law,
33 but the AUTHOR of the law. Only citizens are the authors of the law because only "citizens" can vote.

34 "Sovereignty itself is, of course, not subject to law, for it is the author and source of law; but in our system,
35 while sovereign powers are delegated to the agencies of government, sovereignty itself remains with the people,
36 by whom and for whom all government exists and acts. And the law is the definition and limitation of power."
37 [Yick Wo v. Hopkins, 118 U.S. 356 (1886)]

38 The implication is that you cannot be sovereign if you have a "domicile" or "residence" in any earthly place or in any place
39 other than Heaven or the Kingdom of Heaven on Earth. If you choose a "domicile" or "residence" any place on earth, then 40 you become a "subject" in relation to that place and voluntarily forfeit your sovereignty. This is NOT the status you want to

1 have! A “resident” by definition MUST therefore be within the legislative jurisdiction of the government, because the
2 government cannot lawfully write laws that will allow them to recognize or act upon anything that is NOT within their
3 legislative jurisdiction. All law is territorial in nature, and can act only upon the territory under the exclusive control of the 4 government or upon its franchises and contracts, which are “property” under its management and control. The only lawful
5 way that government laws can reach beyond the territory of the sovereign who controls them is through explicit, informed,
6 mutual consent of the individual parties involved, and this field of law is called “private law”.

7 "Judge Story, in his treatise on the Conflicts of Laws, lays down, as the basis upon which all reasonings on the
8 law of comity must necessarily rest, the following maxims: First 'that every nation possesses an exclusive
9 sovereignty and jurisdiction within its own territory'; secondly, 'that no state or nation can by its laws directly
10 affect or bind property out of its own territory, or bind persons not resident therein, whether they are natural
11 born subjects or others.' The learned judge then adds: 'From these two maxims or propositions there follows a
12 third, and that is that whatever force and obligation the laws of one country have in another depend solely upon 13 the laws and municipal regulation of the latter; that is to say, upon its own proper jurisdiction and polity, and
14 upon its own express or tacit consent." Story on Conflict of Laws §23."

16 The very same principles as government operates under with respect to “resident” also apply to Christianity as well. When 17 we become Christians, we consent to the contract or covenant with God called the Bible. That covenant requires us to accept
18 Jesus Christ as our Lord and Savior. This makes us a “resident” of Heaven and “pilgrims and sojourners” (transient 19 foreigners) on earth:

20 "For our citizenship is in heaven, from which we also eagerly wait for the Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ"
21 [Philippians 3:20, Bible, NKJV]

22 "Now, therefore, you are no longer strangers and foreigners, but fellow citizens with the saints and members of 23 the household of God."
24 [Ephesians 2:19, Bible, NKJV]

25 "These all died in faith, not having received the promises, but having seen them afar off were assured of them,
26 embraced them and confessed that they were strangers and pilgrims [transient foreigners] on the earth."
27 [Hebrews 11:13, Bible, NKJV]

28 "Beloved, I beg you as sojourners and pilgrims, abstain from fleshly lusts which war against the soul..."
29 [1 Peter 2:11, Bible, NKJV]

30 For those who consent to the Bible covenant with God the Father, Jesus becomes our protector, spokesperson, Counselor,
31 and Advocate before the Father. We become a Member of His family!

32 Jesus' Mother and Brothers Send for Him

33 While He was still talking to the multitudes, behold, His mother and brothers stood outside, seeking to speak with 34 Him. Then one said to Him, "Look, Your mother and Your brothers are standing outside, seeking to speak with 35 You."

36 But He answered and said to the one who told Him, "Who is My mother and who are My brothers?" 49 And He
37 stretched out His hand toward His disciples and said, "Here are My mother and My brothers! For whoever does 38 the will of My Father in heaven is My brother and sister and mother."
39 [Matt. 12:46-50, Bible, NKJV]

40 By doing God's will on earth and accepting His covenant or private contract with us, which is the Bible, He becomes our 41 Father and we become His children. The law of domicile says that children assume the same domicile as their parents and 42 are legally dependent on them:

A person acquires a domicile of origin at birth.<sup>122</sup> The law attributes to every individual a domicile of origin,<sup>123</sup> which is the domicile of his parents,<sup>124</sup> or of the father,<sup>125</sup> or of the head of his family:<sup>126</sup> or of the person on whom he is legally dependent,<sup>127</sup> at the time of his birth. While the domicile of origin is generally the place where one is born<sup>128</sup> or reared,<sup>129</sup> may be elsewhere.<sup>130</sup> The domicile of origin has also been defined as the primary domicile of every person subject to the common law.<sup>131</sup>

The legal dependence they are talking about is God's Law, which then becomes our main source of protection and dependence on God. We as believers then recognize Jesus' existence as a "thing" we "identify" in our daily life and in return, He recognizes our existence before the Father. Here is what He said on this subject as proof:

Confess Christ Before Men

"Therefore whoever confesses Me [recognizes My legal existence under God's law, the Bible, and acknowledges My sovereignty] before men, him I will also confess before My Father who is in heaven. But whoever denies Me before men, him I will also deny before My Father who is in heaven."

[Matt. 10:32-33, Bible, NKJV]

Let's use a simple example to illustrate our point in relation to the world. You want to open a checking account at a bank. You go to the bank to open the account. The clerk presents you with an agreement that you must sign before you open the account. If you won't sign the agreement, then the clerk will tell you that they can't open an account for you. Before you sign the account agreement, the bank doesn't know anything about you and you don't have an account there, so you are the equivalent of an "alien". An "alien" is someone the bank will not recognize or interact with or help. They can only lawfully help "customers", not "aliens". After you exercise your right to contract by signing the bank account agreement, then you now become a "resident" of the bank. You are a "resident" because:

1. You are a "thing" that they can now "identify" in their computer system and their records because you have an "account" there. They now know your name and "account number" and will recognize you when you walk in the door to ask for help.
2. They issued you an ATM card and a PIN so you can control and manage your "account". These things that they issued you are the "privileges" associated with being party to the account agreement. No one who is not party to such an agreement can avail themselves of such "privileges".
3. The account agreement gives you the "privilege" to demand "services" from the bank of one kind or another. The legal requirement for the bank to perform these "services" creates the legal equivalent of "agency" on their part in doing what you want them to do. In effect, you have "hired" them to perform a "service" that you want and need.
4. The account agreement gives the bank the legal right to demand certain behaviors out of you of one kind or another. For instance, you must pay all account fees and not overdraw your account and maintain a certain minimum balance. The legal requirement to perform these behaviors creates the legal equivalent of "agency" on your part in respect to the bank.
5. The legal obligations created by the account agreement give the two parties to it legal jurisdiction over each other defined by the agreement or contract itself. The contract fixes the legal relations between the parties. If either party violates the agreement, then the other party has legal recourse to sue for exceeding the bounds of the "contractual agency" created by the agreement. Any litigation that results must be undertaken consistent with what the agreement authorizes and in a mode or "forum" (e.g. court) that the agreement specifies.

The government does things exactly the same way. The only difference is the product they deliver. The bank delivers financial services, and the government delivers “protection” and “social” services. The account number is the social security number. You can't have or use a social security number and avail yourself of its benefits without consenting to the jurisdiction of the “contract” that authorized its' issuance, which is the Social Security Act found in Title 42 of the U.S. Code.

CALIFORNIA CIVIL CODE
DIVISION 3. OBLIGATIONS
PART 2. CONTRACTS
CHAPTER 3. CONSENT
Section 1589

1589. A voluntary acceptance of the benefit of a [government benefit] transaction is equivalent to a consent to all the obligations [and legal liabilities] arising from it, so far as the facts are known, or ought to be known, to the person accepting.

Therefore, you can't avail yourself of the “privileges” associated with the Social Security account agreement without also being a “resident” of the “United States”, which means an alien who has signed a contract to procure services from the government. That contract can be explicit, which means a contract in writing, or implicit, meaning that it is created through your behavior. For instance, if you drive on the roads within a state, that act implied your consent to be bound by the vehicle code of that state. In that sense, driving a car became a voluntary exercise of your right to contract.

A mere innocent act can imply or trigger “constructive consent” to a legal contract, and in many cases, you may not even be aware that you are exercising your right to contract. Watch out! For instance, the criminal code in your state behaves like a contract. The “police” are simply there to enforce the contract. As a matter of fact, their job was created by that contract. This is called the “police power” of the state. If you do not commit any of the acts in the criminal or penal code, then you are not subject to it and it is “foreign” to you. You become the equivalent of a “resident” within the criminal code and subject to the legislative jurisdiction of that code ONLY by committing a “crime” identified within it. That “crime” triggers “constructive consent” to the terms of the contract and all the obligations that flow from it, including prison time and a court trial. This analysis helps to establish that in a free society, all law is a contract of one form or another, because it can only be passed by the consent of the majority of those who will be subject to it. The people who will be subject to the laws of a “state” are those with a “domicile” or “residence” within the jurisdiction of that “state”. Those who don't have such a “domicile” or “residence” and who are therefore not subject to the civil laws of that state are called “transient foreigners”. This concept is built extensively upon in Great IRS Hoax, Form #11.302, Sections 5.4 through 5.4.4.5. This is a very interesting subject that we find most people are simply fascinated with, because it helps to emphasize the “voluntary nature” of all law.

5.4.8.11.14.4 Why was the statutory “resident” under civil franchises created instead of using a classical constitutional “citizen” or “resident” as its basis?

After looking at the “resident” government contractor franchise scam, we wondered why they had to do this instead of simply using a classical constitutional “citizen” or “resident” with a domicile within the territory protected by a specific government as the basis for franchises. After careful thought and research, we found that there are many reasons they had to do this:

1. The Constitution forbids what is called “class legislation” relating to constitutional “citizens” or “residents”. The reason is that it violates the requirement for equal protection and equal treatment that is at the heart of the Constitution. Governments are NOT allowed to treat any subset of constitutional citizens or residents differently, or confer or grant “benefits”, and by implication “franchises”, to any SUBSET of them. If participation is in fact voluntary, there is no way they could even offer franchises to constitutional citizens without favoring one group over another and thereby creating an unconstitutional “title of nobility”. Below is how the U.S. Supreme Court described this violation after the first income tax was enacted and declared UNCONSTITUTIONAL by the U.S. Supreme Court:

“The present assault upon capital is but the beginning. It will be but the stepping stone to others larger and more sweeping, until our political contest will become war of the poor against the rich; a war of growing intensity and bitterness. 'If the court sanctions the power of discriminating taxation, and nullifies the uniformity mandate of the constitution,' as said by one who has been all his life a student of our institutions, 'it will mark the hour when the sure decadence of our present government will commence.'”

The legislation, in the discrimination it makes, is class legislation. Whenever a distinction is made in the burdens a law imposes or in the benefits it confers on any citizens by reason of their birth, or wealth, or religion, it is class legislation, and leads inevitably to oppression and abuses, and to general unrest and disturbance in society.”
 [Pollock v. Farmers' Loan and Trust, 157 U.S. 429 (1895)]

2. It has always been unconstitutional to abuse the government's taxing power to pay private individuals. Classical constitutional citizens and residents are inherently PRIVATE individuals.

“His [the individual's] rights are such as existed by the law of the land long antecedent to the organization of the State, and can only be taken from him by due process of law, and in accordance with the Constitution. Among his rights are a refusal to incriminate himself, and the immunity of himself and his property from arrest or seizure except under a warrant of the law. He owes nothing to the public so long as he does not trespass upon their rights.”
 [Hale v. Henkel, 201 U.S. 43 (1906)]

Hence, the government cannot lawfully create any franchise “benefit” offered to PRIVATE constitutional citizens or residents that could be used to redistribute wealth between different groups of otherwise private individuals. For instance, they cannot tax the rich to give to the poor, as the U.S. Supreme Court indicated above and hence, cannot offer franchises to constitutional citizens or residents, or tie eligibility for the franchise to the status of constitutional citizen or resident.

“A tax, in the general understanding of the term and as used in the constitution, signifies an exaction for the support of the government. The word has never thought to connote the expropriation of money from one group for the benefit of another.”
 [U.S. v. Butler, 297 U.S. 1 (1936)]

“To lay with one hand the power of government on the property of the citizen, and with the other to bestow it on favored individuals.. is none the less robbery because it is done under the forms of law and is called taxation. This is not legislation. It is a decree under legislative forms.”
 [Loan Association v. Topeka, 20 Wall. 655 (1874)]

“The king establishes the land by justice, But he who receives bribes [socialist handouts, government “benefits”, or PLUNDER stolen from nontaxpayers] overthrows it.”
 [Prov. 29:4, Bible, NKJV]

3. It has been repeatedly held as unconstitutional for governments to establish a “poll tax”. Poll taxes are fees required to be paid before one may vote in any election. Voting, in turn, is described as a “franchise”. Eligibility to vote is established by the coincidence of both nationality and domicile. If domicile instead of “residence” under a franchise were used as the criteria for income tax obligation, then indirectly the income tax would act for all intents and purposes as a “poll tax” and thereby quickly be declared as unconstitutional.

We conclude that a State violates the Equal Protection Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment whenever it makes the affluence of the voter or payment of any fee an electoral standard. Voter qualifications have no relation to wealth nor to paying or not paying this or any other tax.<sup>132</sup> Our cases demonstrate that the Equal Protection Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment restrains the States from fixing voter qualifications which invidiously discriminate. Thus without questioning the power of a State to impose reasonable residence restrictions on the availability of the ballot (see Pope v. Williams, 193 U.S. 621, 24 S.Ct. 573, 48 L.Ed. 817), we held in Carrington v. Rash, 380 U.S. 89, 85 S.Ct. 775, 13 L.Ed.2d. 675, that a State may not deny the opportunity to vote to a bona fide resident merely because he is a member of the armed services. 'By forbidding a soldier ever to controvert the presumption of non-residence, the Texas Constitution imposes an invidious discrimination in violation of the Fourteenth Amendment.' Id., at 96, 85 S.Ct. at 780. And see Louisiana v. United States, 380 U.S. 145, 85 S.Ct. 817. Previously we had said that neither homesite nor occupation 'affords a permissible basis for distinguishing between qualified voters within the State.' Gray v. Sanders, 372 U.S. 368, 380, 83 S.Ct. 801, 808, 9 L.Ed.2d. 821. We think the same must be true of requirements of wealth or affluence or payment of a fee.

Long ago in Yick Wo v. Hopkins, 118 U.S. 356, 370, 6 S.Ct. 1064, 1071, 30 L.Ed. 220 the Court referred to 'the political franchise of voting' as a 'fundamental political right, because preservative of all rights.' Recently in Reynolds v. Sims, 377 U.S. 533, 561—562, 84 S.Ct. 1362, 1381, 12 L.Ed.2d. 506, we said, 'Undoubtedly, the right of suffrage is a fundamental matter in a free and democratic society. Especially since the right to exercise the franchise in a free and unimpaired manner is preservative of other basic civil and political rights, any alleged <sup>132</sup> Only a handful of States today condition the franchise on the payment of a poll tax. Alabama (Ala. Const., §§ 178, 194, and Amendments 96 and 207; Ala. Code Tit. 17, § 12) and Texas (Tex. Const., Art. 6, § 2; Vernon's Ann. Stat., Election Code, Arts. 5.02, 5.09) each impose a poll tax of $1.50. Mississippi (Miss. Const., §§ 241, 243; Miss. Code §§ 3130, 3160, 3235) has a poll tax of $2. Vermont has recently eliminated the requirement that poll taxes be paid in order to vote. Act of Feb. 23, 1966, amending Vt. Stat. Ann. Tit. 24, § 701.

1 infringement of the right of citizens to vote must be carefully and meticulously scrutinized.' There we were
2 considering charges that voters in one part of the State had greater representation per person in the State
3 Legislature than voters in another part of the State. We concluded:

4 A citizen, a qualified voter, is no more nor no less so because he lives in the city or on the farm. This is the 5 clear and strong command of our Constitution's Equal Protection Clause. This is an essential part of the 6 concept of a government of laws and not men. This is at the heart of Lincoln's vision of 'government of the 7 people, by the people, (and) for the people.' The Equal Protection Clause demands no less than substantially
8 equal state legislative representation for all citizens, of all places as well as of all races.' Id., at 568, 84 S.Ct. at 9 1385.

10 We say the same whether the citizen, otherwise qualified to vote, has $1.50 in his pocket or nothing at all, pays
11 the fee or fails to pay it. The principle that denies the State the right to dilute a citizen's vote on account of his 12 economic status or other such factors by analogy bars a system which excludes those unable to pay a fee to 13 vote or who fail to pay.

15 1965 WL 130114 (1966) ]

- 16 4. Corrupt politicians through abuse of legal “words of art” had to make franchise participation at least “LOOK” like it
17 was somehow connected to citizenship, even though technically it is not, in order to fool people into thinking that
18 participation was mandatory by virtue of their nationality or domicile, even though in fact it is NOT. Therefore they 19 confused the word “resident” and “residence” with a statutory status of a constitutional or classical “alien”, even 20 though they are NOT the same.
- 21 5. Since you can only have a domicile in one place at a time, then if income taxes were based on domicile alone, you
22 could only pay the tax to ONE municipal government at a time. Hence, you could NOT simultaneously owe both
23 STATE and FEDERAL income tax at the same time. The only way to reconcile the conflict under such circumstances
24 is to pay it to the state government only. On the other hand, if taxes are based on “residence” you could owe it to more
25 than one government at a time if you had multiple “residences”. Therefore, they HAD to base the tax upon “residence”
26 and not “domicile” and to make “residence” a product of your consent to contract with a specific government for 27 services or protection under a specific franchise.

28 5.4.8.11.14.5 How the TWO types of “RESIDENTS” are deliberately confused

29 As we pointed out in the previous section, there is a vested financial interest in covetous governments deliberately confusing
30 FOREIGN NATIONALS under the common law with CONTRACTORS under government franchises. Great pains have 31 been taken over time to confuse these two because of these strong motivations to recruit more government franchisee
32 contractors and thus increase revenues. We will discuss these mechanisms in this section.

33 The first technique was already pointed out earlier in section 5.4.8.11.5, where we showed that “residence” is deliberately
34 confused with “domicile”, even though they are NOT equivalent and mutually exclusive under franchise statutes.
35 “Residence” under the Internal Revenue Code “trade or business” franchise, for instance, means the abode of a statutory 36 “alien” and DOES NOT include either “citizens” or even “nonresident aliens”.

37 The second technique is to confuse the word “reside” with “residence” or “domicile”. Reside simply means where one sleeps
38 at night and has NOTHING to do with either their domicile OR their residence:

40 [Black's Law Dictionary, Fourth Edition, p. 1473]

41 You can RESIDE somewhere WITHOUT having EITHER a domicile or a residence there. Here is an example:

42 There are no cases in California deciding whether a foreign corporation can "reside" in a county within the 43 meaning of the recordation sections of the Code. There are cases, however, on the question whether a foreign 44 corporation doing business in California can acquire a county residence within the state for the purpose of venue.
45 The early cases held that such residence could not be acquired.<sup>1</sup> These cases were explained in Bohn v. Better
46 Biscuits, Inc., 26 Cal.App.2d. 61, 78 P.2d. 1177,2 wherein it was finally established that a foreign corporation
47 doing business in California, having designated its principal office pursuant to Section 405 of the California Civil 48 Code provision (passed in 1929), could acquire a county residence in the state for the purpose of venue. The court
49 in that case construed the venue provision of Section 395 of the Code of Civil Procedure which reads as follows:
50 "In all other cases, * * * the county in which the defendants, or some of them, reside at the commencement of the action, is the proper county for the trial of the action. * * * If none of the defendants resides in the State, * * * the action may be tried in any county which the plaintiff may designate in his complaint."

In relation to this section, the court held: "The plaintiff stresses the word 'reside.' It then contends that as the defendant is a foreign corporation having its principal place of business at Grand Rapids, Mich., that place is its residence and it may not be heard to claim that it resides at any other place. If by the use of the word 'reside' one means 'domicil' that contention would be sound. * * * It is not claimed that there is anything in the context showing the word 'reside' was intended to mean 'domicil.' By approved usage of the language 'reside' means: 'Live, dwell, abide, sojourn, stay, remain, lodge.' * * * By a long line of decisions it has been held that a domestic corporation resides at the place where its principal place of business is located. Walker v. Wells Fargo Bank, etc., Co., 8 Cal.2d. 447, 65 P.2d. 1299. The designation of the principal place of business of a domestic corporation is contained in its articles. Civ.Code, § 290 * * * The designation of the principal place of business of a foreign corporation in this state is contained in the statement which it is required to file in the office of the secretary of state before it may legally transact business in this state. Civ.Code, § 405 * * *. Prior to the enactment of sections 405-406a * * * a foreign corporation had no locus in this state. No statute required it to designate, by a written statement duly filed in the office of the secretary of state, the location of its principal place of business in the state. After the enactment of said sections, the principal place of business of foreign corporations as well as domestic corporations was fixed by law. When the reason is the same, the rule should be the same. Civ.Code, § 3511. It follows * * * by reason of the enactment of section 405 et seq. of the Civil Code * * * said section 395 of the Code of Civil Procedure * * * applies to persons both natural and artificial and whether the corporation is a domestic or a foreign corporation." Bohn v. Better Biscuits, Inc., 26 Cal.App.2d. 61, 64, 65, 78 P.2d. 1177, 1179, 80 P.2d. 484.

[Western-Knapp Engineering Co. v. Gilbank, 129 F.2d. 135 (9th Cir., 1942)]

Keep in mind the following important facts about the above case:

1. "Reside" is where the corporation physically does business, not the place of its civil domicile.
2. One can "do business" in a geographic region without having a civil domicile there.
3. The corporation is a creation of and therefore component LEGALLY WITHIN the government that granted it, regardless of where it is physically located or where it does business. This is reflected in Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b).
4. Those "doing business" in a specific geographical region are "deemed to be LEGALLY present" within the forum or civil laws they are doing business in, regardless of whether they have offices in that region under:
  - 4.1. The Minimum Contacts Doctrine in International Shoe Co. v. Washington, 326 U.S. 310 (1945).
  - 4.2. The Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act (F.S.I.A.), 28 U.S.C. Chapter 97.
5. The fact that one "does business" within a specific region does not necessarily mean that you are "purposefully availing yourself" under the laws of that region, and especially if the parties doing business have a contract between them REMOVING the government and its protections from their CIVIL relationship. How might this be done? They could have a "binding arbitration" agreement or contract that relegates all disputes to a private third party, for instance.
6. The civil statutory laws of a place are a social compact, and it would constitute eminent domain without compensation over those who have neither a "domicile" nor a "residence" in the region to impose or enforce these laws against them. That is the foundation of the Minimum Contacts Doctrine itself, in fact.
7. One can be legally present UNDER THE COMMON LAW while being NOT PRESENT under civil statutory law. That would be the condition of a nonresident foreign corporation such as the one in the case above.
8. "Residing" somewhere implies an effective legal "residence" under the Minimum Contacts Doctrine ONLY if one is ALSO "doing business", and ONLY for that specific transaction and for NO other purpose or franchise.

5.4.8.11.14.6 PRACTICAL EXAMPLE 1: Opening a bank account

Let us give you a practical business example of this phenomenon in action whereby a person becomes a "resident" from a legal perspective by exercising their right to contract. You want to open a checking account at a bank. You go to the bank to open the account. The clerk presents you with an agreement that you must sign before you open the account. If you won't sign the agreement, then the clerk will tell you that they can't open an account for you. Before you sign the account agreement, the bank doesn't know anything about you and you don't have an account there, so you are the equivalent of an "alien". An "alien" is someone the bank will not recognize or interact with or help. They can only lawfully help "customers", not "aliens". After you exercise your right to contract by signing the bank account agreement, then you now become a "resident" of the bank. You are a "resident" because:

1. You are a “thing” that they can now “identify” in their computer system and their records because you have an “account” there. A “res” is legally defined as a “thing”. They now know your name and “account number” and will recognize you when you walk in the door to ask for help. Hence “res-ident”.
2. You are the “person” described in their account agreement. Before you signed it, you were a “foreigner” not subject to it.
3. They issued you an ATM card and a PIN so you can control and manage your “account”. These things that they issued you are the “privileges” associated with being party to the account agreement. No one who is not party to such an agreement can avail themselves of such “privileges”.
4. The account agreement gives you the “privilege” to demand “services” from the bank of one kind or another. The legal requirement for the bank to perform these “services” creates the legal equivalent of “agency” on their part in doing what you want them to do. In effect, you have “hired” them to perform a “service” that you want and need.
5. The account agreement gives the bank the legal right to demand certain behaviors out of you of one kind or another. For instance, you must pay all account fees and not overdraw your account and maintain a certain minimum balance. The legal requirement to perform these behaviors creates the legal equivalent of “agency” on your part in respect to the bank.
6. The legal obligations created by the account agreement give the two parties to it legal jurisdiction over each other defined by the agreement or contract itself. The contract fixes the legal relations between the parties. If either party violates the agreement, then the other party has legal recourse to sue for exceeding the bounds of the “contractual agency” created by the agreement. Any litigation that results must be undertaken consistent with what the agreement authorizes and in a mode or “forum” (e.g. court) that the agreement specifies.

5.4.8.11.14.7 PRACTICAL EXAMPLE 2: Creation of the “resident” under a government civil franchise

When two parties execute a franchise agreement or contract between them, they are engaging in “commerce”. The practical consequences of the franchise agreement are the following:

1. The main source of jurisdiction for the government is over commerce.
2. The mutual consideration passing between the parties provides the nexus for government jurisdiction over the transaction.
3. If the exchange involves a government franchise offered by the national government:
  - 3.1. An “alienation” of private rights has occurred. This alienation:
    - 3.1.1. Turns formerly private rights into public rights.
    - 3.1.2. Accomplishes the equivalent of a “donation” of private property to a public use, public purpose, and public office in order to procure the “benefits” of the franchise by the former owner of the property.
  - 3.2. Parties to the franchise agreement cannot engage in a franchise without implicitly surrendering governance over disputes to the government granting the franchise. In that sense, their effective domicile shifts to the location of the seat of the government granting the franchise.
  - 3.3. The parties to the franchise agreement mutually and implicitly surrender their sovereign immunity under the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act (F.S.I.A.), 28 U.S.C. §1605\(a\)\(2\), which says that commerce within the legislative jurisdiction of the “United States” constitutes constructive consent to be sued in the courts of the United States. This is discussed in more detail in the previous section.

Another surprising result of engaging in franchises and public “benefits” that most people overlook is that the commerce it represents, in fact, can have the practical effect of making an “alien” or “nonresident” party into a “resident” for the purposes of statutory jurisdiction. Here is the proof:

In International Shoe Co. v. Washington, 326 U.S. 310 (1945), the Supreme Court held that a court may exercise personal jurisdiction over a defendant consistent with due process only if he or she has "certain minimum contacts" with the relevant forum "such that the maintenance of the suit does not offend 'traditional notions of fair play and substantial justice.'" Id. at 316 (quoting Milliken v. Meyer, 311 U.S. 457, 463 (1940)). Unless a defendant's contacts with a forum are so substantial, continuous, and systematic that the defendant can be deemed to be "present" in that forum for all purposes, a forum may exercise only "specific" jurisdiction - that is, jurisdiction based on the relationship between the defendant's forum contacts and the plaintiff's claim. The parties agree that only specific jurisdiction is at issue in this case.

In this circuit, we analyze specific jurisdiction according to a three-prong test:

- (1) The non-resident defendant must purposefully direct his activities or consummate some transaction with the forum or resident thereof; or perform some act by which he purposefully avails himself of the privilege of conducting activities in the forum, thereby invoking the benefits and protections of its laws;
- (2) the claim must be one which arises out of or relates to the defendant's forum-related activities; and

(3) the exercise of jurisdiction must comport with fair play and substantial justice, i.e. it must be reasonable.

Schwarzenegger v. Fred Martin Motor Co., 374 F.3d. 797, 802 (9th Cir. 2004) (quoting Lake v. Lake, 817 F.2d. 1416, 1421 (9th Cir. 1987)). The first prong is determinative in this case. We have sometimes referred to it, in shorthand fashion, as the "purposeful availment" prong. Schwarzenegger, 374 F.3d. at 802. Despite its label, this prong includes both purposeful availment and purposeful direction. It may be satisfied by purposeful availment of the privilege of doing business in the forum; by purposeful direction of activities at the forum; or by some combination thereof.

We have typically treated "purposeful availment" somewhat differently in tort and contract cases. In tort cases, we typically inquire whether a defendant "purposefully direct[s] his activities" at the forum state, applying an "effects" test that focuses on the forum in which the defendant's actions were felt, whether or not the actions themselves occurred within the forum. See Schwarzenegger, 374 F.3d. at 803 (citing Calder v. Jones, 465 U.S. 783, 789-90 (1984)). By contrast, in contract cases, we typically inquire whether a defendant "purposefully avails itself of the privilege of conducting activities" or "consummate[s] [a] transaction" in the forum, focusing on activities such as delivering goods or executing a contract. See Schwarzenegger, 374 F.3d. at 802. However, this case is neither a tort nor a contract case. Rather, it is a case in which Yahoo! argues, based on the First Amendment, that the French court's interim orders are unenforceable by an American court. [Yahoo! Inc. v. La. Ligue Contre Le Racisme Et L'Antisemitisme, 433 F.3d. 1199 (9th Cir. 01/12/2006) ]

Legal treatises on domicile also confirm that those who are "wards" or "dependents" of the state or the government assume the same domicile or "residence" as their care giver. The practical effect of this is that by participating in government franchises, we become "wards" of the government in receipt of welfare payments such as Social Security, Medicare, etc. As "wards" under "guardianship" of the government, we assume the same domicile as the government who is paying U.S. the "benefits", which means the District of Columbia. Our domicile is whatever the government, meaning the "court" wants it to be for their convenience:

PARTICULAR PERSONS
§ 24. Wards

While it appears that an infant ward's domicile or residence ordinarily follows that of the guardian it does not necessarily do so,<sup>133</sup> as so a guardian has been held to have no power to control an infant's domicile as against her mother.<sup>134</sup> Where a guardian is permitted to remove the child to a new location, the child will not be held to have acquired a new domicile if the guardian's authority does not extend to fixing the child's domicile. Domicile of a child who is a ward of the court is the location of the court.<sup>135</sup>

Since a ward is not sui juris, he cannot change his domicile by removal,<sup>136</sup> nor does the removal of the ward to another state or county by relatives or friends, affect his domicile.<sup>137</sup> Absent an express indication by the court, the authority of one having temporary control of a child to fix the child's domicile is ascertained by interpreting the court's orders.<sup>138</sup>

This change in domicile of those who participate in government franchises and thereby become "wards" of the government is also consistent with the U.S. Supreme Court's view of the government's relationship to those who participate in government franchises. It calls the government a "parens patriae" in relation to them!:

"The proposition is that the United States, as the grantor of the franchises of the company [a corporation, in this case], the author of its charter, and the donor of lands, rights, and privileges of immense value, and as parens patriae, is a trustee, invested with power to enforce the proper use of the property and franchises granted for the benefit of the public."

16 The Internal Revenue Code franchise agreement itself contains provisions which recognize this change in effective domicile
 17 to the District of Columbia within 26 U.S.C. §7408(d) and 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(39).

34 Since your Constitutional right to contract is unlimited, then you can have as many temporary and transient “residences” as 35 you like, but you can have only one legal “domicile”, because your allegiance must be undivided or you will have a conflict
 36 of interest and allegiance.

 39 [Matt. 6:23-25, Bible, NKJV]

40 Now do you understand the reasoning behind the following maxim of law? You become a “subject” and a “resident” under 41 the jurisdiction of a government's civil law by demanding its protection! If you want to “fire” the government as your 42 “protector”, you MUST quit demanding anything from it by filling out government forms or participating in its franchises:

43 Protectio trahit subjectionem, subjectio projectionem.

45 [Bouvier's Maxims of Law, 1856;

46 SOURCE: <http://famguardian.org/Publications/BouvierMaximsOfLaw/BouviersMaxims.htm>]

47 Remember, “resident” is a combination of two word roots: “res”, which is legally defined as a “thing”, and “ident”, which 48 stands for “identified”.

Res. Lat. The subject matter of a trust or will. In the civil law, a thing; an object. As a term of the law, this word has a very wide and extensive signification, including not only things which are objects of property, but also such as are not capable of individual ownership. And in old English law it is said to have a general import, comprehending both corporeal and incorporeal things of whatever kind, nature, or species. By "res," according to the modern civilians, is meant everything that may form an object of rights, in opposition to "persona," which is regarded as a subject of rights. "Res," therefore, in its general meaning, comprises actions of all kinds; while in its restricted sense it comprehends every object of right, except actions. This has reference to the fundamental division of the Institutes that all law relates either to persons, to things, or to actions.

Res is everything that may form an object of rights and includes an object, subject-matter or status. In re Riggle's Will, 11 A.D.2d. 51 205 N.Y.S.2d. 19, 21, 22. The term is particularly applied to an object, subject-matter, or status, considered as the defendant in an action, or as an object against which, directly, proceedings are taken. Thus, in a prize case, the captured vessel is "the res"; and proceedings of this character are said to be in rem. (See In personam; In Rem.) "Res" may also denote the action or proceeding, as when a cause, which is not between adversary parties, is entitled "In re _____".
[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, pp. 1304-1306]

The "object, subject matter, or status" they are talking about above is the ALL CAPS incarnation of your legal birth name and the government-issued number, usually an SSN, that is associated with it. Those two things constitute the "straw man" or "trust" or "res" which you implicitly agree to represent at the time you sign up for any franchise, benefit, or "public right". When the government attacks someone for a tax liability or a debt, they don't attack you as a private person, but rather the collection of rights that attach to the ALL CAPS trust name and associated Social Security Number trust. They start by placing a lien on the number, which actually is THEIR number and not YOURS. That number associates PRIVATE property with PUBLIC TRUST property. Merriam-Webster's Dictionary definition 5(b) for "Trust" is "office":

"Trust: 5 a (1): a charge or duty imposed in faith or confidence or as a condition of some relationship (2): something committed or entrusted to one to be used or cared for in the interest of another b: responsible charge or office c: CARE, CUSTODY <the child committed to her trust.>"
[Merriam-Webster's 11th Collegiate Dictionary]

20 C.F.R. §422.103(d) says the number is THEIR property. They can lien their property, which is public property in your temporary use and custody as a "trustee" of the "public trust". Everything that number is connected to acts as private property donated temporarily to a public use to procure the "benefits" of the franchise. It is otherwise illegal to mix public property, such as the Social Security Number, with private property, because that would constitute illegal and criminal embezzlement in violation of 18 U.S.C. §912.

"Men are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, 'life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness;' and to 'secure,' not grant or create, these rights, governments are instituted. That property [or income] which a man has honestly acquired he retains full control of, subject to these limitations: First, that he shall not use it to his neighbor's injury, and that does not mean that he must use it for his neighbor's benefit; second, that if he devotes it to a public use, he gives to the public a right to control that USE; and third, that whenever the public needs require, the public may take it upon payment of due compensation.

Below is how the U.S. Supreme Court describes the practical effect of creating the trust and placing its "residence" or "domicile" within the jurisdiction of the specific government or "state" granting the franchise:

"Thus, the Court has frequently held that domicile or residence, more substantial than mere presence in transit or sojourn, is an adequate basis for taxation, including income, property, and death taxes. Since the Fourteenth Amendment makes one a citizen of the state wherein he resides, the fact of residence creates universally reciprocal duties [e.g. CONTRACTUAL DUTIES!!] of protection by the state and of allegiance and support by the citizen. The latter obviously includes a duty to pay taxes, and their nature and measure is largely a political matter. Of course, the situs of property may tax it regardless of the citizenship, domicile, or residence of the owner, the most obvious illustration being a tax on realty laid by the state in which the realty is located."
Miller Brothers Co. v. Maryland, [347 U.S. 340 (1954)]

The implication is that you cannot be sovereign if either you or the entities you voluntarily represent have a "domicile" or "residence" in any man-made government or in any place other than Heaven or the Kingdom of Heaven on Earth. If you choose a "domicile" or "residence" any place on earth, then you become a "subject" in relation to that place and voluntarily forfeit your sovereignty. This is NOT the status you want to have! A "resident" by definition MUST therefore be within the legislative jurisdiction of the government, because the government cannot lawfully write laws that will allow them to recognize or act upon anything that is NOT within their legislative jurisdiction.

All law is prima facie territorial in nature, and can act only upon the territory under the exclusive control of the government or upon its franchises, contracts, and real and chattel property, which are "property" under its management and control pursuant to Article 4, Section 3, Clause 2 of the United States Constitution. The only lawful way that government laws can reach beyond the territory of the sovereign who controls them is through explicit, informed, mutual consent of the individual parties involved, and this field of law is called "private law".

"Judge Story, in his treatise on the Conflicts of Laws, lays down, as the basis upon which all reasonings on the law of comity must necessarily rest, the following maxims: First 'that every nation possesses an exclusive sovereignty and jurisdiction within its own territory'; secondly, 'that no state or nation can by its laws directly affect or bind property out of its own territory, or bind persons not resident therein, whether they are natural born subjects or others.' The learned judge then adds: 'From these two maxims or propositions there follows a third, and that is that whatever force and obligation the laws of one country have in another depend solely upon the laws and municipal regulation of the latter; that is to say, upon its own proper jurisdiction and polity, and upon its own express or tacit consent.'" Story on Conflict of Laws §23.

5.4.8.11.15 Legal presumptions about domicile

It is important also to recognize that state and federal law often establishes certain rebuttable "presumptions" about one's "residence" as an "alien"/ "resident". Below is an example from the Arizona Revised Statutes:

*Arizona Revised Statutes
Title 43: Taxation of Income
Section 43-104 Definitions*

19. "Resident" includes:

(a) Every individual who is in this state for other than a temporary or transitory purpose.

(b) Every individual who is domiciled in this state and who is outside the state for a temporary or transitory purpose. Any individual who is a resident of this state continues to be a resident even though temporarily absent from the state.

(c) Every individual who spends in the aggregate more than nine months of the taxable year within this state shall be presumed to be a resident. The presumption may be overcome by competent evidence that the individual is in the state for a temporary or transitory purpose.

The above presumption is rebuttable, and the way to rebut it is to make our intentions known:

"This right of domicile, he continues, is not established unless the person makes sufficiently known his intention of fixing there, either tacitly or by an express declaration. Vatt. Law Nat., pp. 92, 93."
[Fong Yue Ting v. United States, 149 U.S. 698 (1893)]

How do we make our "intentions" known to the protector we are nominating?:

1. By sending the following form according to the instructions:

[Legal Notice of Change in Domicile/Citizenship Records and Divorce from the United States, Form #10.001
http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm](http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm)

- By sending the state a written notification of domicile, or a Department of Motor Vehicles change of address form. Most change of address forms have a block for indicating one's "residence". Line out the word "residence" and replace it with "domicile" or else you will establish yourself as a privileged alien.
- Whenever we write a physical address on any especially government or financial institution form, next to the address we should write "This is NOT my domicile." This is a VERY important habit to get into that will avoid all false presumptions about your legal domicile.
- By revoking our voter registration.

We can also encourage other false presumptions by the government relating to our legal domicile based on the words we use to describe ourself. For instance, if we describe ourself as either a "citizen" or a "resident" or "inhabitant" on any government form, then we are declaring ourself to be a "domiciliary" in respect to the government who is accepting the form. Otherwise, we would be a "transient foreigner" outside of the jurisdiction of that government. This is further explained in the following two articles:

1. You're not a STATUTORY "citizen" under the Internal Revenue Code, Family Guardian Fellowship:
<http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/Citizenship/NotACitizenUnderIRC.htm>
2. You're not a STATUTORY "resident" under the Internal Revenue Code, Family Guardian Fellowship:
<http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/Citizenship/Resident.htm>

Within federal law, persons who are "citizens", "residents", or "inhabitants" are described as:

1. "Individuals". See 5 U.S.C. §552(a)(2) and 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3).

5 U.S.C. §552a\(2\) Records maintained on individuals

(2) the term "individual" means a citizen of the United States or an alien lawfully admitted for permanent residence "[resident"];

2. "U.S. persons". See 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30).

TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > Sec. 7701.
Sec. 7701. - Definitions

(a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof –

(30) United States person

The term "United States person" means -

(A) a citizen or resident of the United States,

(B) a domestic partnership,

(C) a domestic corporation,

(D) any estate (other than a foreign estate, within the meaning of paragraph (31)), and

(E) any trust if -

(i) a court within the United States is able to exercise primary supervision over the administration of the trust, and

(ii) one or more United States persons have the authority to control all substantial decisions of the trust.

3. "domestic". Both "domicile" and "domestic" have the root "dom" as their source. Both imply the same thing. Within the Internal Revenue Code, "domestic" is defined as follows:

TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > Sec. 7701.
Sec. 7701. - Definitions

(a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof –

(4) Domestic

The term "domestic" when applied to a corporation or partnership means created or organized in the United States or under the law of the United States or of any State unless, in the case of a partnership, the Secretary provides otherwise by regulations.

Therefore, "domestic" means "subject to the laws of the United States". Under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b), you cannot be "subject" to the laws without having a domicile in the territory where those laws apply.

Those who are "non-resident non-persons", "nontaxpayers" and "transient foreigners" therefore cannot declare themselves as being either "citizens", "residents", "inhabitants", "U.S. persons", "individuals", or "domestic" on any federal government form, or they forfeit their status and become "taxpayers", "domiciliaries", and "subjects" and tenants living on the king's land. For an important example of how the above concept applies, examine the IRS Form W-8BEN:

<http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Forms/IRS/IRSFormW8ben.pdf>

Block 3 is used by the applicant to declare both the entity type AND their legal domicile as well. The declaration of "domicile" is "hidden" in the word "individual". Notice there is no block on the form for either "human being" or "transient foreigner". The only block a human being can fill out is "individual". 5 U.S.C. §552\(a\)\(2\) identifies an "individual" as either a "citizen" or a "resident", and a person who is a "non-resident non-person" cannot be either, even if they are a "national" born in the country "United States*". Therefore, the form essentially coerces the applicant into committing perjury by not providing an option to accurately describe themselves, such as a box for "transient foreigner" or "human being". This defect is remedied in the amended version of the form available below, which adds to Block 3 an option called "transient foreigner":

<http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Forms/IRS/IRSFormW8BENAmendeds.pdf>

The regulations relating to "aliens" also establish the following presumptions:

- All "aliens" are presumed to be "nonresident aliens" but this may be overcome upon presentation of proof:

Title 26: Internal Revenue
PART 1—INCOME TAXES
nonresident alien individuals
§ 1.871-4

(a) Rules of evidence. The following rules of evidence shall govern in determining whether or not an alien within the United States has acquired residence therein for purposes of the income tax.

(b) Nonresidence presumed. An alien by reason of his alienage, is presumed to be a nonresident alien.

(1) Departing alien. In the case of an alien who presents himself for determination of tax liability before departure from the United States, the presumption as to the alien's nonresidence may be overcome by proof--

- An "alien" who has acquired permanent residence retains that residence until he physically departs from the "United States", which is defined as federal territory in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(9\) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d) and is not expressly expanded anywhere else in the I.R.C. to include any other place. The purpose for this presumption is to perpetuate the jurisdiction to tax aliens:

Title 26: Internal Revenue
PART 1—INCOME TAXES
nonresident alien individuals
§ 1.871-5 Loss of residence by an alien.

An alien who has acquired residence in the United States retains his status as a resident until he abandons the same and actually departs from the United States. An intention to change his residence does not change his status as a resident alien to that of a nonresident alien. Thus, an alien who has acquired a residence in the United States is taxable as a resident for the remainder of his stay in the United States.

If you are state domiciled state national and a "non-resident non-person", don't let the above concern you, because you are not an "alien" as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(b\)\(1\)\(A\), but rather an "non-resident non-person". If you are also engaged in a public office, you become a "nonresident alien" as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(b\)\(1\)\(B\).

5.4.8.11.16 Effect of domicile on citizenship and synonyms for domicile

Now let's summarize what we have just learned so far to show graphically the effect that one's choice of domicile has on their citizenship status. Below are some authorities upon which we will base our summary and analysis.

"Domicile and citizen are synonymous in federal courts, Earley v. Hershey Transit Co., D.C. Pa., 55 F.Supp. 981, 982; inhabitant, resident and citizen are synonymous, Standard Stoker Co. v. Lower, D.C.Md., 46 F.2d. 678, 683."
[Black's Law Dictionary, Fourth Edition, p. 311]

1                    "The term 'citizen', as used in the Judiciary Act with reference to the jurisdiction of the federal courts, is
2                    substantially synonymous with the term 'domicile'. Delaware, L. & W.R. Co. v. Petrowsky, 2 Cir., 250 F. 554,
3                    557."
4                    [Earley v. Hershey Transit Co., 55 F.Supp. 981, D.C.PA. (1944)]

6                    The terms "citizen" and "citizenship" are distinguishable from "resident" or "inhabitant." Jeffcott v. Donovan,
7                    C.C.A.Ariz., 135 F.2d. 213, 214; and from "domicile," Wheeler v. Burgess, 263 Ky. 693, 93 S.W.2d. 351, 354;
8                    First Carolinas Joint Stock Land Bank of Columbia v. New York Title & Mortgage Co., D.C.S.C., 59 F.2d. 350,
9                    351. The words "citizen" and citizenship," however, usually include the idea of domicile, Delaware, L. & W.R.
10                    Co. v. Petrowsky, C.C.A.N.Y., 250 F. 554, 557; citizen inhabitant and resident often synonymous, Jonesboro Trust
11                    Co. v. Nutt, 118 Ark. 368, 176 S.W. 322, 324; Edgewater Realty Co. v. Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad Co., 12                    D.C.Md., 49 F.Supp. 807, 809; and citizenship and domicile are often synonymous. Messick v. Southern Pa. Bus
13                    Co., D.C.Pa., 59 F.Supp. 799, 800.
14                    [Black's Law Dictionary, Fourth Edition, p. 310]

15                    We will now present a table based on the above consistent with the entire content of the document which you can use for all
16                    future reference. The term "Domestic National" in the table below refers to a person born in any state of the Union, or in a
17                    territory or possession of the United States:

NOTES:

1. “United States” is defined as federal territory within 26 U.S.C. §§7701\(a\)\(9\) and (a)(10), 7701\(a\)\(39\), and 7408\(d\), and 4 U.S.C. §110\(d\). It does not include any portion of a Constitutional state of the Union.
2. The “District of Columbia” is defined as a federal corporation but not a physical place, a “body politic”, or a de jure “government” within the District of Columbia Act of 1871, 16 Stat. 419, 426, Sec. 34. See: Corporatization and Privatization of the Government, Form #05.024; <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>.
3. “nationals” of the United States*** of America who are domiciled outside of federal jurisdiction, either in a state of the Union or a foreign country, are “nationals” but not “citizens” under federal law. They also qualify as “non-resident non-persons”. They become “nonresident aliens” under 26 U.S.C. §7701\(b\)\(1\)\(B\) if they CONSENSUALLY and LAWFULLY engage in a public office in the national government. See sections 4.11.2 earlier for details.
4. Temporary domicile in the middle column on the right must meet the requirements of the “Presence test” documented in IRS publications.

5. District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, and the territories and insular possessions of the United States in the above table.
6. The term “individual” as used on the IRS Form 1040 means an “alien” engaged in a “trade or business”. All “taxpayers” are “aliens” engaged in a “trade or business”. This is confirmed by 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3), 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(a)(2)(ii), and 5 U.S.C. §552a(a)(2). Statutory “U.S. citizens” as defined in 8 U.S.C. §1401 are not “individuals” unless temporarily abroad pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §911 and subject to an income tax treaty with a foreign country. In that capacity, statutory “U.S. citizens” interface to the I.R.C. as “aliens” rather than “U.S. citizens” through the tax treaty.

Based on the above table, we can see that when a person within any government identifies you as a “citizen”, they presuppose that you maintain a “domicile” within their jurisdiction. The same thing goes for the term “inhabitant”, which also describes a person with a domicile within the jurisdiction of the local government where he lives. Note the use of the phrase “reside actually and permanently in a given place and has a domicile there” in the definition of inhabitant:

“Inhabitant. One who reside actually and permanently in a given place, and has his domicile there. Ex parte Shaw, 145 U.S. 444, 12 S.Ct. 935, 36 L.Ed. 768.

The words “inhabitant,” “citizen,” and “resident,” as employed in different constitutions to define the qualifications of electors, means substantially the same thing; and, in general, one is an inhabitant, resident, or citizen at the place where he has his domicile or home. But the terms “resident” and “inhabitant” have also been held not synonymous, the latter implying a more fixed and permanent abode than the former, and importing privileges and duties to which a mere resident would not be subject. A corporation can be an inhabitant only in the state of its incorporation. Sperry Products v. Association of American Railroads, C.C.A.N.Y., 132 F.2d. 408, 411. See also Domicile; Residence.”
[Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 782]

The legal dictionary is careful to disguise the requirement for “domicile” in their definition of “resident”. To admit that domicile was a prerequisite for being a “resident”, they would open the door for a mass exodus of the tax system by most people, so they beat around the bush. For instance, here is the definition of “resident” from Black’s Law Dictionary:

Resident. “Any person who occupies a dwelling within the State, has a present intent to remain within the State for a period of time, and manifests the genuineness of that intent by establishing an ongoing physical presence within the State together with indicia that his presence within the State is something other than merely transitory in nature. The word “resident” when used as a noun means a dweller, habitant or occupant; one who resides or dwells in a place for a period of more, or less, duration; it signifies one having a residence, or one who resides or abides. Hanson v. P.A. Peterson Home Ass’n, 35 Ill.App.2d. 134, 182 N.E.2d. 237, 240*

Word “resident” has many meanings in law, largely determined by statutory context in which it is used. Kelm v. Carlson, C.A.Ohio, 473, F.2d. 1267, 1271
[Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1309]

The Law of Nations, which is mentioned in Article 1, Section 8 of our Constitution and was used by the Founding Fathers to write the Constitution, is much more clear in its definition of “resident”, and does essentially admit a requirement for “domicile” in order for an “alien” to be classified as a “resident”:

“Residents, as distinguished from citizens, are aliens who are permitted to take up a permanent abode in the country. Being bound to the society by reason of their [intention of] dwelling in it, they are subject to its laws so long as they remain there, and, being protected by it, they must defend it, although they do not enjoy all the rights of citizenship. They have only certain privileges which the law, or custom, gives them. Permanent residents are those who have been given the right of perpetual residence. They are a sort of citizen of a less privileged character, and are subject to the society without enjoying all its advantages. Their children succeed to their status; for the right of perpetual residence given them by the State passes to their children.”

Since the only definition of “resident” found anywhere in the Internal Revenue Code or the Treasury Regulations is that of a “resident alien”, found in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A), then we:

1. Are not statutory “residents” because we are not “aliens” and do not have a “domicile” in the “United States” (federal territory). Therefore, we do not have a “residence”.

2. Do not have a "residence", because only "aliens" can have a "residence" under 26 C.F.R. §1.871-2\(a\). "nonresident aliens" are NOT a subset of statutory "residents" but a SUPERSET.
3. Are "non-resident non-persons" if not engaged in a public office and "nonresident aliens" under 26 U.S.C. §7701\(b\)\(1\)\(B\) if engaged in a public office.
4. Are "nationals" under 8 U.S.C. §1101\(a\)\(21\) but not statutory "citizens" under 8 U.S.C. §1401.
5. Are "transient foreigners":

5.4.8.11.17 Civil Status

The term "civil status" describes the process by which human beings become "persons" under civil statutory law. It is what the courts call a "res" which gives them civil control over you under one of three different systems of civil law. Civil status is VERY important, because it is the source of civil statutory jurisdiction of courts over you and their right to "personal jurisdiction" over you. It also describes how your actions affect "choice of law" and your "status" in any court cases you bring. This article summarizes the major aspects of this important subject.

Human beings who are "sovereign" in fact:

1. Have no "civil status" under statutory law.
2. Only have a "civil status" under the constitution and the common law.
3. Are governed mainly by the "civil laws" found in the Holy Bible. This is a protected First Amendment right to practice their religion. Laws of the Bible, Litigation Tool #09.001.

You cannot have a "civil status" under the laws of a place WITHOUT:

1. A physical presence in that place. The status would be under the COMMON law.
2. CONSENSUALLY doing business in that place. The status would be under the common law.
3. A domicile in that place. This would be a status under the civil statutes of that place.
4. CONSENSUALLY representing an artificial entity (a legal fiction) that has a domicile in that place. This would be a status under the civil statutes of that place.

If any of the above rules are violated, you are a victim of criminal identity theft:

5.4.8.11.17.1 Basis for your EXCLUSIVE right to declare and establish your civil status<sup>139</sup>

The right to declare and establish your civil and statutory status is tied to the legal definition of "property" itself. "Property" as legally defined is that which you EXCLUSIVELY own and control, and can deprive all others of using or benefitting from:

Property. That which is peculiar or proper to any person; that which belongs exclusively to one. In the strict legal sense, an aggregate of rights which are guaranteed and protected by the government. Fulton Light, Heat & Power Co. v. State, 65 Misc.Rep. 263, 121 N.Y.S. 536. The term is said to extend to every species of valuable right and interest. More specifically, ownership; the unrestricted and exclusive right to a thing; the right to dispose of a thing in every legal way, to possess it, to use it, and to exclude everyone else from interfering with it. That dominion or indefinite right of use or disposition which one may lawfully exercise over particular things or subjects. The exclusive right of possessing, enjoying, and disposing of a thing. The highest right a man can have to anything; being used to refer to that right which one has to lands or tenements, goods or chattels, which no way depends on another man's courtesy.

The word is also commonly used to denote everything which is the subject of ownership, corporeal or incorporeal, tangible or intangible, visible or invisible, real or personal, everything that has an exchangeable value or which goes to make up wealth or estate. It extends to every species of valuable right and interest, and includes real and personal property, easements, franchises, and incorporeal hereditaments, and includes every invasion of one's property rights by actionable wrong. Labberton v. General Cas. Co. of America, 53 Wash.2d. 180, 332 P.2d. 250, 252, 254.

Property embraces everything which is or may be the subject of ownership, whether a legal ownership, or whether beneficial, or a private ownership. Davis v. Davis. TexCiv-App., 495 S.W.2d. 607. 611. Term includes not only ownership and possession but also the right of use and enjoyment for lawful purposes. Hoffmann v. Kinealy, Mo., 389 S.W.2d. 745, 752.

Property, within constitutional protection, denotes group of rights inhering in citizen's relation to physical thing, as right to possess, use and dispose of it. Cereghino v. State By and Through State Highway Commission, 230 Or. 439, 370 P.2d. 694, 697.

Goodwill is property, Howell v. Bowden, TexCiv. App., 368 S.W.2d. 842, &18; as is an insurance policy and rights incident thereto, including a right to the proceeds, Harris v. Harris, 83 N.M. 441,493 P.2d. 407, 408.

Criminal code. "Property" means anything of value. including real estate, tangible and intangible personal property, contract rights, choses-in-action and other interests in or claims to wealth, admission or transportation tickets, captured or domestic animals, food and drink, electric or other power. Model Penal Code. Q 223.0. See also Property of another, infra. Dusts. Under definition in Restatement, Second, Trusts, Q 2(c), it denotes interest in things and not the things themselves.

[Black's Law Dictionary, Fifth Edition, p. 1095]

Note that YOUR BODY, your labor, and all that you own at least STARTS OUT as exclusively your property, and by EXCLUSIVELY we mean that it is PRIVATE property beyond the civil control or regulation of any government. Only by donating it or some portion of it to a "public use", "public purpose", or "public office" can its use be civilly regulated by any government.

"Every man has a natural right to the fruits of his own labor, is generally admitted; and no other person can rightfully deprive him of those fruits, and appropriate them against his will..."
[The Antelope, 23 U.S. 66, 10 Wheat 66, 6 L.Ed. 268 (1825)]

"We have repeatedly held that, as to property reserved by its owner for private use, 'the right to exclude [others is] one of the most essential sticks in the bundle of rights that are commonly characterized as property.'" Loretto v. Teleprompter Manhattan CATV Corp., 458 U.S. 419, 433 (1982), quoting Kaiser Aetna v. United States, 444 U.S. 164, 176 (1979). "
[Nollan v. California Coastal Comm'n, 483 U.S. 825 (1987)]

"In this case, we hold that the "right to exclude," so universally held to be a fundamental element of the property right,<sup>140</sup> falls within this category of interests that the Government cannot take without compensation."
[Kaiser Aetna v. United States, 444 U.S. 164 (1979)]

The only time a government can take away your property without compensation in return and without your consent is when you have hurt someone with it, and that deprivation can only occur AFTER the injury, not BEFORE. Any deprivation

<sup>140</sup> See, e. g., United States v. Pueblo of San Ildefonso, 206 Ct.Cl. 649, 669-670, 513 F.2d. 1383, 1394 (1975); United States v. Lutz, 295 F.2d. 736, 740 (CA5 1961). As stated by Mr. Justice Brandeis, "[a]n essential element of individual property is the legal right to exclude others from enjoying it." International News Service v. Associated Press, 248 U.S. 215, 250 (1918) (dissenting opinion).

BEFORE the injury must involve your express consent to donate the property or some interest in the property to a “public use”, “public purpose”, and/or “public office”. These rules were identified by the U.S. Supreme Court as follows:

“Men are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, - 'life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness;' and to 'secure,' not grant or create, these rights, governments are instituted. That property for income] which a man has honestly acquired he retains full control of, subject to these limitations: First, that he shall not use it to his neighbor's injury, and that does not mean that he must use it for his neighbor's benefit [e.g. SOCIAL SECURITY, Medicare, and every other public “benefit”]; second, that if he devotes it to a public use, he gives to the public a right to control that use; and third, that whenever the public needs require, the public may take it upon payment of due compensation.”

Budd v. People of State of New York, [143 U.S. 517 (1892)]

The only way one can rationally disagree with the conclusions of this section is to advocate one of the following positions, all of which corrupt and destroy the notion of private property that is behind any and every great republic:

1. That there is no PRIVATE property and that EVERYTHING is PUBLIC property owned by the government.
2. That the government is the LEGAL owner of EVERYTHING and that they only LOAN it to you.
3. That “taxes” are the “rent” you pay to use GOVERNMENT property. If you don't pay the taxes, they can take it away from you and thereby EXCLUDE you from using or benefitting from it.

All the above premises are the foundation of socialism, in which the government either completely owns or at least CONTROLS ALL property.

“socialism n (1839) 1: any of various economic and political theories advocating collective or governmental ownership and administration of the means of production and distribution of goods 2 a: a system of society or group living in which there is no private property b: a system or condition of society in which the means of production are owned and controlled by the state 3: a stage of society in Marxist theory transitional between capitalism and communism and distinguished by unequal distribution of goods and pay according to work done.”
[Webster's Ninth New Collegiate Dictionary, 1983, ISBN 0-87779-510-X, p. 1118]

Lastly, we emphasize that the purpose for which ALL governments are established, is to protect PRIVATE rights and PRIVATE property, according to our Declaration of Independence. Anyone who argues with this section indirectly is advocating that we DO NOT have a “government” as defined by our founding documents:

“We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.--That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, --That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness.”
[Declaration of Independence]

Furthermore, anyone who takes the position that there is no PRIVATE property and that the GOVERNMENT owns EVERYTHING, indirectly must advocate atheism and is a THIEF, because the Bible itself says that GOD owns THE WHOLE EARTH AND THE HEAVENS. Caesar cannot own or even control that which does not belong to him:

“Behold, the heaven and the heaven of heavens is the LORD's thy God, the earth also, with all that therein is.”
[Deuteronomy 10:12-14, Bible, NKJV]

“The heavens are Yours, the earth also is Yours; The world and all its fullness, You have founded them.”
[Psalm 89:11, Bible, NKJV]

5.4.8.11.17.2 What do we mean by “civil status”?<sup>141</sup>

A civil status is a term defined or described in the either the constitution or statutes or the common law to which either obligations or rights attach. Examples “civil statuses” would be “person” (under a civil statute), “taxpayer” (under the tax code), “driver” (under the vehicle code), “individual”, etc. Every obligation gives rise to a corresponding right on the part of

1 the entity or person to whom the obligation is owed. An obligation, in turn, could include the requirement to perform a
 2 specific service, or it could include some measure of control over property in your custody or control. Obligations are always
 3 enforceable through some type of legal penalty or administrative or judicial enforcement for non-performance.

4 Civil Code - CIV
 5 DIVISION 3. OBLIGATIONS [1427 - 3272.9]
 6 ( Heading of Division 3 amended by Stats. 1988, Ch. 160, Sec. 14. )
 7 PART 1. OBLIGATIONS IN GENERAL [1427 - 1543] ( Part 1 enacted 1872. )
 8 TITLE 1. DEFINITION OF OBLIGATIONS [1427 - [1428.]] ( Title 1 enacted 1872. )

9 1427. An obligation is a legal duty, by which a person is bound to do or not to do a certain thing.

10 (Enacted 1872.)

11 The ONLY method for lawfully creating obligations is either through your consent in the form of a contract or “operation of 12 law”. “Operation of law” involves a case where your actions or inactions have injured the equal rights of someone else. That 13 injury violates the concept of “justice” itself, which is the “right to be let alone”.<sup>142</sup>

14 Civil Code – CIV
 15 DIVISION 3. OBLIGATIONS [1427 - 3272.9]
 16 ( Heading of Division 3 amended by Stats. 1988, Ch. 160, Sec. 14. )
 17 PART 1. OBLIGATIONS IN GENERAL [1427 - 1543] ( Part 1 enacted 1872. )
 18 TITLE 1. DEFINITION OF OBLIGATIONS [1427 - [1428.]] (Title 1 enacted 1872.)
 19 [1428.] Section Fourteen Hundred and Twenty-eight.

20 An obligation arises either from:

21 One — The contract of the parties; or,

22 Two — The operation of law. An obligation arising from operation of law may be enforced in the manner
 23 provided by law, or by civil action or proceeding.

24 (Amended by Code Amendments 1873-74, Ch. 612.)

25 A violation of the above rules for creating obligations constitutes one of the following:

- 26
- 27 1. Unconstitutional taking of private property under the Fifth Amendment or equivalent state constitution.
  - 28 2. Involuntary servitude, in the case of the Thirteenth Amendment, if the thing compelled is some kind of service or 29 physical performance.

35 The use of the term “status” in this memorandum:

- 36 1. Is associated with the domicile of the party in question. Before one may have any kind of civil status, one must:
 37 1.1. CONSENSUALLY have a domicile or residence within the forum or jurisdiction in question.
 38 1.2. Have legal evidence of said domicile admissible in court to prove the domicile they claim.
 39 1.3. Acquire statutory “citizen” or “resident” status under the civil laws of the place by virtue of choosing a domicile
 40 within that place.
 41 2. Relates exclusively to the civil status of a party under the CIVIL STATUTORY laws of a specific jurisdiction.
 42 2.1. Civil statutory laws only pertain to those consensually domiciled within the forum or jurisdiction.

- 1 2.2. They may not be enforced against non-residents or those not domiciled within the forum or jurisdiction unless the
 2 non-resident satisfies the "Minimum Contacts Doctrine" spoken of by the U.S. Supreme Court in International
 3 Shoe Co. v. Washington, 326 U.S. 310 (1945).
 4 3. Does NOT relate to the CRIMINAL laws. Criminal laws do not attach to the status of the parties or to their consent in
 5 any way. Instead, they attach at the point when a harmful act is committed against a specific party on the territory to 6 which said law attaches.

7 A well-known book on domicile explains the origin of "civil status" as follows:

8 § 29. Status.<sup>143</sup> It may be laid down that the status-or, as it is sometimes called, civil status, in contradistinction
 9 to political status - of a person depends largely, although not universally, upon domicil. The older jurists, whose
 10 opinions are fully collected by Story<sup>144</sup> and Burge<sup>145</sup> maintained, with few exceptions, the principle of the ubiquity
 11 of status, conferred by the lex domicilii with little qualification. Lord Westbury, in Udny v. Udny<sup>146</sup> thus states the 12 doctrine broadly: "The civil status is governed by one single principle, namely, that of domicil, which is the 13 criterion established by law for the purpose of determining civil status. For it is on this basis. that the personal
 14 rights of the party - that is to say, the law which determines his majority and minority, his marriage, succession,
 15 testacy, or intestacy-must depend." Gray, C. J., in the late Massachusetts case of Ross v. Ross<sup>147</sup> speaking with 16 special reference to capacity to inherit, says: "It is a general principle that the status or condition of a person,
 17 the relation in which he stands to another person, and by which he is qualified or made capable to take" certain 18 rights in that other's property, is fixed by the law of the domicil; and that this status and capacity are to be
 19 recognized and upheld in every other State, so far as they are not inconsistent with its own laws and policy."

20 But great difficulty in the discussion of this subject has arisen by reason of the loose and varying use of the term
 21 status and the want of any clear definition of what is meant by it. Savigny<sup>148</sup> understood it to mean "capacity to 22 have rights and to act;" and this undoubtedly was the sense in which it was understood by the older jurists. In 23 Niboyet v. Niboyet,<sup>149</sup> Brett, L. J., gives this definition: "The status of an individual, used as a legal term, means 24 the legal position of the individual in or with regard to the rest of a community." But whatever may be the 25 definition of the term, or whatever rules applicable to status in general may be looked upon as having received
 26 general acceptance, there are certain prominent states or conditions of persons, which have been treated of by 27 writers and considered by the courts, and these it will be well to examine separately, with a view to ascertain how 28 far they are affected by domicil.
 29 [Treatise on the Law of Domicil, M.W. Jacobs, 1887; Little Brown and Company, §29, pp. 38-39]

30 Below is an example of the above, from the U.S. Supreme Court. The "status" spoken in this case of is that of being "married"
 31 under the laws of a specific state:

32 "To prevent any misapplication of the views expressed in this opinion, it is proper to observe that we do not mean
 33 to assert, by any thing we have said, that a State may not authorize proceedings to determine the status of one
 34 of its citizens towards a non-resident, which would be binding within the State, though made without service of 35 process or personal notice to the non-resident. The jurisdiction which every State possesses to determine the 36 civil status and capacities of all its inhabitants involves authority to prescribe the conditions on which 37 proceedings affecting them may be commenced and carried on within its territory. The State, for example, has 38 absolute 735*735 right to prescribe the conditions upon which the marriage relation between its own citizens
 39 shall be created, and the causes for which it may be dissolved. One of the parties guilty of acts for which, by the 40 law of the State, a dissolution may be granted, may have removed to a State where no dissolution is permitted.
 41 The complaining party would, therefore, fail if a divorce were sought in the State of the defendant; and if 42 application could not be made to the tribunals of the complainant's domicile in such case, and proceedings be

J., in the case above cited, thus distinguishes the two phases of capacity which go to make up status: "The capacity or qualification to inherit or succeed to property, which is an incident of the status or condition, requiring no action to give it effect, is to be distinguished from the capacity or competency to enter into contracts that confer rights upon others. A capacity to take and have differs from a capacity to do and contract; in short, a capacity of holding from a capacity to act." Ross v. Ross, ubi supra.

2           would be without redress. Bish. Marr. and Div., sect. 156.”
3           [Pennoyer v. Neff, 95 U.S. 714 (1878)]

5           In Udny v. Udny (1869) L. R. 1 H. L. Sc. 441, the point decided was one of inheritance, depending upon the
6           question whether the domicile of the father was in England or in Scotland, he being in either alternative a British
7           subject. Lord Chancellor Hatherley said: 'The question of naturalization and of allegiance is distinct from that
8           of domicile.' Page 452. Lord Westbury, in the passage relied on by the counsel for the United States, began by
9           saying: 'The law of England, and of almost all civilized countries, ascribes to each individual at his birth two
10           distinct legal states or conditions,—one by virtue of which he becomes the subject [NATIONAL] of some
11           particular country, binding him by the tie of natural allegiance, and which may be called his political status;
12           another by virtue of which he has ascribed to him the character of a citizen of some particular country, and as
13           such is possessed of certain municipal rights, and subject to certain obligations, which latter character is the
14           civil status or condition of the individual, and may be quite different from his political status.' And then, while
15           maintaining that the civil status is universally governed by the single principle of domicile (domicilium), the
16           criterion established by international law for the purpose of determining civil status, and the basis on which
17           the personal rights of the party—that is to say, the law which determines his majority or minority, his
18           marriage, succession, testacy, or intestacy—must depend, he yet distinctly recognized that a man's political
19           status, his country (patria), and his 'nationality,—that is, natural allegiance,—may depend on different laws in
20           different countries.' Pages 457, 460. He evidently used the word 'citizen,' not as equivalent to 'subject,' but rather
21           to 'inhabitant'; and had no thought of impeaching the established rule that all persons born under British
22           dominion are natural-born subjects.
23           [United States v. Wong Kim Ark, 169 U.S. 649, 18 S.Ct. 456, 42 L.Ed. 890 (1898) ;

25           In law, all rights are property. Hence, “civil rights” attach to the CIVIL STATUTORY STATUS of a “person”:

26           Property. That which is peculiar or proper to any person; that which belongs exclusively to one. In the strict
27           legal sense, an aggregate of rights which are guaranteed and protected by the government. Fulton Light, Heat
28           & Power Co. v. State*, 65 Misc.Rep. 263, 121 N.Y.S. 536. The term is said to extend to every species of valuable
29           right and interest. More specifically, ownership; the unrestricted and exclusive right to a thing; the right to 30           dispose of a thing in every legal way, to possess it, to use it, and to exclude everyone else from interfering with it.
31           That dominion or indefinite right of use or disposition which one may lawfully exercise over particular things or 32           subjects. The exclusive right of possessing, enjoying, and disposing of a thing. The highest right a man can have 33           to anything; being used to refer to that right which one has to lands or tenements, goods or chattels, which no
34           way depends on another man's courtesy.

35           The word is also commonly used to denote everything which is the subject of ownership, corporeal or incorporeal,
36           tangible or intangible, visible or invisible, real or personal, everything that has an exchangeable value or which 37           goes to make up wealth or estate. It extends to every species of valuable right and interest, and includes real
38           and personal property, easements, franchises, and incorporeal hereditaments, and includes every invasion of 39           one's property rights by actionable wrong. Labberton v. General Cas. Co. of America, 53 Wash.2d. 180, 332
40           P.2d. 250, 252, 254.

41           Property embraces everything which is or may be the subject of ownership, whether a legal ownership, or whether
42           beneficial, or a private ownership. Davis v. Davis, TexCiv-App., 495 S.W.2d. 607, 611. Term includes not only
43           ownership and possession but also the right of use and enjoyment for lawful purposes. Hoffmann v. Kinealy, Mo.,
44           389 S.W.2d. 745, 752.

45           Property, within constitutional protection, denotes group of rights inhering in citizen's relation to physical thing,
46           as right to possess, use and dispose of it. Cereghino v. State By and Through State Highway Commission, 230
47           Or. 439, 370 P.2d. 694, 697.

48           Goodwill is property, Howell v. Bowden, TexCiv. App., 368 S.W.2d. 842, &18; as is an insurance policy and 49           rights incident thereto, including a right to the proceeds, Harris v. Harris, 83 N.M. 441,493 P.2d. 407, 408.

50           Criminal code. "Property" means anything of value, including real estate, tangible and intangible personal
51           property, contract rights, choses-in-action and other interests in or claims to wealth, admission or transportation
52           tickets, captured or domestic animals, food and drink, electric or other power. Model Penal Code. Q 223.0. See
53           also Property of another, infra. Dusts. Under definition in Restatement, Second, Trusts, Q 2(c), it denotes interest 54           in things and not the things themselves.
55           [Black's Law Dictionary, Fifth Edition, p. 1095]

56           Those who do not have a domicile in a specific municipal jurisdiction are regarded as “non-residents”, and hence, they have 57           no “civil status” or “status” under the “civil laws” of the jurisdiction they are non-resident in relation to. An example of this
58           phenomenon is found in Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b), in which jurisdiction is described as follows:

15 A person with no domicile within federal territory, based on the above:

- 16 1. Has no capacity to sue or be sued in federal court under the CIVIL statutes of the national government.
17 2. Has no "status" or "civil status" under any federal civil statute, including:
18 2.1. "person".
19 2.2. "individual".
20 3. Is not a statutory "citizen" under federal law such as 26 U.S.C. §3121(e) and 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(c), but rather a statutory 21 "non-resident non-person". If they are ALSO a public officer in the national government, they are also a statutory 22 "individual" and "nonresident alien" (26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B)) in relation to the national government.

23 An example of a "status" that one not domiciled on federal territory cannot lawfully have is that of statutory "taxpayer" as 24 defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(14). All tax liability is a CIVIL liability which attaches to a CIVIL statutory status:

25 TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > § 7701
26 § 7701. Definitions

27 (a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent
28 thereof—

29 (14) Taxpayer

30 The term "taxpayer" means any person subject to any internal revenue tax.

31 In a sense then, all civil statutory law acts as the equivalent of a "protection franchise" that you have to consent to before you
32 become party to. "Privileges" under the protection franchise attach to the status of "citizen". Those who are non-residents
33 are not parties to the franchise contract and are not bound by the franchise contract:

34 There is but one law which, from its nature, needs unanimous consent. This is the social compact; for civil
35 association is the most voluntary of all acts. Every man being born free and his own master, no one, under any
36 pretext whatsoever, can make any man subject without his consent. To decide that the son of a slave is born a
37 slave is to decide that he is not born a man.

38 If then there are opponents when the social compact is made, their opposition does not invalidate the contract,
39 but merely prevents them from being included in it. They are foreigners among citizens. When the State is
40 instituted, residence constitutes consent; to dwell within its territory is to submit to the Sovereign.<sup>[1]</sup>

41 Apart from this primitive contract, the vote of the majority always binds all the rest. This follows from the
42 contract itself. But it is asked how a man can be both free and forced to conform to wills that are not his own.
43 How are the opponents at once free and subject to laws they have not agreed to?

44 *I retort that the question is wrongly put. The citizen gives his consent to all the laws, including those which are
45 passed in spite of his opposition, and even those which punish him when he dares to break any of them. The
46 constant will of all the members of the State is the general will; by virtue of it they are citizens and free<sup>[2]</sup>. When
47 in the popular assembly a law is proposed, what the people is asked is not exactly whether it approves or rejects
48 the proposal, but whether it is in conformity with the general will, which is their will. Each man, in giving his
49 vote, states his opinion on that point; and the general will is found by counting votes. When therefore the opinion

1 that is contrary to my own prevails, this proves neither more nor less than that I was mistaken, and that what I
2 thought to be the general will was not so. If my particular opinion had carried the day I should have achieved the
3 opposite of what was my will; and it is in that case that I should not have been free.

4 This presupposes, indeed, that all the qualities of the general will still reside in the majority: when they cease
5 to do so, whatever side a man may take, liberty is no longer possible.

6 In my earlier demonstration of how particular wills are substituted for the general will in public deliberation, I
7 have adequately pointed out the practicable methods of avoiding this abuse; and I shall have more to say of them
8 later on. I have also given the principles for determining the proportional number of votes for declaring that will.
9 A difference of one vote destroys equality; a single opponent destroys unanimity; but between equality and 10 unanimity, there are several grades of unequal division, at each of which this proportion may be fixed in 11 accordance with the condition and the needs of the body politic.

12 There are two general rules that may serve to regulate this relation. First, the more grave and important the 13 questions discussed, the nearer should the opinion that is to prevail approach unanimity. Secondly, the more the 14 matter in hand calls for speed, the smaller the prescribed difference in the numbers of votes may be allowed to 15 become: where an instant decision has to be reached, a majority of one vote should be enough. The first of these 16 two rules seems more in harmony with the laws, and the second with practical affairs. In any case, it is the 17 combination of them that gives the best proportions for determining the majority necessary.

18 [The Social Contract or Principles of Political Right, Jean Jacques Rousseau, 1762, Book IV, Chapter 2]

19 There is one last very important point we wish to make. That point is that the civil statutory laws and the domicile they attach 20 to are not the ONLY method of civilly protecting one's rights. Some types of civil protection do not require consent of party.
21 For instance, the U.S. Constitution is an example of a limitation upon government that does NOT require the express consent 22 of those who are protected by it.

- 23 1. The USA Constitution is a "compact" or contract.
- 24 2. It establishes a public trust, which is an artificial "person" in which:
  - 25 2.1. The corpus of the trust is all public rights and public property.
  - 26 2.2. The trustees of the trust are people working in the government.
  - 27 2.3. All constitutional but not statutory citizens are the "beneficiaries".
- 28 3. The parties who established this public trust are the States of the Union and the government they created. Individual 29 human beings are NOT party to it or trustees under it:
- 30 4. The Bill of Rights portion of the constitution attaches to LAND protected by the constitution, and NOT the civil status
31 of people ON the land:

32 "It is locality that is determinative of the application of the Constitution, in such matters as judicial procedure,
33 and not the status of the people who live in it."
34 [Balzac v. Porto Rico, 258 U.S. 298 (1922)]

- 35 5. The Bill of Rights is a "self-executing" restraint upon all government officers and agents upon all those physically
36 present but not necessarily domiciled on the land it attaches to. Because the rights it covers are "self-executing", no
37 statutory civil law is needed to give them "the force of law" against any officer of the government in relation to a 38 person physically present upon land protected by the constitution.

39 The design of the Fourteenth Amendment has proved significant also in maintaining the traditional separation of
40 *powers 524*524 between Congress and the Judiciary. The first eight Amendments to the Constitution set forth
41 self-executing prohibitions on governmental action, and this Court has had primary authority to interpret those
42 prohibitions. The Bingham draft, some thought, departed from that tradition by vesting in Congress primary*
43 power to interpret and elaborate on the meaning of the new Amendment through legislation. Under it, "Congress,
44 and not the courts, was to judge whether or not any of the privileges or immunities were not secured to citizens
45 in the several States." Flack, supra, at 64. While this separation-of-powers aspect did not occasion the widespread
46 resistance which was caused by the proposal's threat to the federal balance, it nonetheless attracted the attention
47 of various Members. See Cong. Globe, 39th Cong., 1st Sess., at 1064 (statement of Rep. Hale) (noting that Bill of
48 *Rights, unlike the Bingham proposal, "provide[s] safeguards to be enforced by the courts, and not to be
49 exercised by the Legislature"); id., at App. 133 (statement of Rep. Rogers) (prior to Bingham proposal it "was*
50 left entirely for the courts . . . to enforce the privileges and immunities of the citizens"). As enacted, the Fourteenth
51 *Amendment confers substantive rights against the States which, like the provisions of the Bill of Rights, are self-
52 executing. Cf. South Carolina v. Katzenbach, 383 U.S., at 325 (discussing Fifteenth Amendment). The power to*
53 interpret the Constitution in a case or controversy remains in the Judiciary.
54 [City of Boerne v. Flores, 521 U.S. 507 (1997)]

Those injured by the actions of the government, whether civilly domiciled there and therefore a “citizen” there OR NOT, are protected by the Bill of Rights and have standing to sue in ANY state or federal court for a violation of that right.

In confirmation of this section, examine the content of 1 U.S.C. §8:

1 U.S. Code § 8 - “Person”, “human being”, “child”, and “individual” as including born-alive infant

(a) In determining the meaning of any Act of Congress, or of any ruling, regulation, or interpretation of the various administrative bureaus and agencies of the United States, the words “person”, “human being”, “child”, and “individual”, shall include every infant member of the species homo sapiens who is born alive at any stage of development.

(b) As used in this section, the term “born alive”, with respect to a member of the species homo sapiens, means the complete expulsion or extraction from his or her mother of that member, at any stage of development, who after such expulsion or extraction breathes or has a beating heart, pulsation of the umbilical cord, or definite movement of voluntary muscles, regardless of whether the umbilical cord has been cut, and regardless of whether the expulsion or extraction occurs as a result of natural or induced labor, cesarean section, or induced abortion.

5.4.8.11.17.3 Effect of domicile on CIVIL STATUTORY “status”

The law of domicile is almost exclusively the means of determining one’s “civil status” under the civil statutory laws of a given territory:

§ 29. Status

It may be laid down that the, status- or, as it is sometimes called, civil status, in contradistinction to political status - of a person depends largely, although not universally, upon domicil. The older jurists, whose opinions are fully collected by Story I and Burge, maintained, with few exceptions, the principle of the ubiquity of status, conferred by the lex domicilii with little qualification. Lord Westbury, in Udny v. Udny, thus states the doctrine broadly: “The civil status is governed by one single principle, namely, that of domicil, which is the criterion established by law for the purpose of determining civil status. For it is on this basis that the personal rights of the party - that is to say, the law which determines his majority and minority, his marriage, succession, testacy, or intestacy-must depend.” Gray, C. J., in the late Massachusetts case of Ross v. Ross, speaking with special reference to capacity to inherit, says: “It is a general principle that the status or condition of a person, the relation in which he stands to another person, and by which he is qualified or made capable to take certain rights in that other's property, is fixed by the law of the domicil; and that this status and capacity are to be recognized and upheld in every other State, so far as they are not inconsistent with its own laws and policy.”

[A Treatise on the Law of Domicil, National, Quasi-National, and Municipal, M.W. Jacobs, Little, Brown, and Company, 1887, p. 89]

We have already established that civil law attaches to one’s VOLUNTARY choice of civil domicile. Civil law, in turn, enforces and thereby delivers certain “privileges” against those who are subject to it. In that sense, the civil law acts as a voluntary franchise or “protection franchise” that is only enforceable against those who voluntarily consent to avail themselves of its “benefits” or “protections”. Those who voluntarily and consensually avail themselves of such “benefits” and who are therefore SUBJECT to the “protection franchise” called domicile, in turn, are treated as public officers within the government under federal law, as is exhaustively established in the following memorandum:

Why Statutory Civil Law is Law for Government and Not Private Persons, Form #05.037
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

The key thing to understand about all franchises is that the Congressionally created privileges or “public rights” they enforce attach to specific STATUSES under them. An example of such statuses include:

1. “Person” or “individual”.
2. “Alien”
3. “Nonresident alien”

- 1 4. "Driver" under the vehicle code of your state.
- 2 5. "Spouse" under the family code of your state.
- 3 6. "Taxpayer" under the Internal Revenue Code at 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(14).
- 4 7. "Citizen", "resident", or "inhabitant" under the civil laws of your state.

5 The above civil statutory statuses:

- 6 1 Are contingent for their existence on a DOMICILE in the geographical place or territory that the law applies to. Hence, a "nonresident alien" or even "alien" civil status within the Internal Revenue Code, for instance, only applies if one is PHYSICALLY PRESENT on federal territory or consensually domiciled there. If you are not physically on federal territory and not domiciled there and not representing a public office domiciled there, you CANNOT be ANYTHING under the Internal Revenue Code.
- 7 2 Are TEMPORARY, because your domicile can change.
- 8 3 Extinguish when you terminate your domicile and/or your presence in that place.
- 9 4 Are the very SAME "statuses" you find on ALL government forms and applications, such as voter registrations, drivers' license applications, marriage license applications, etc. The purpose of filling out all such applications is to CONTRACT to PROCURE the status indicated on the form and have it RECOGNIZED by the government grantor who created the privileges you are pursuing under the civil law franchises that implement the form or application.

17 The ONLY way to AVOID contracting into the civil franchise if you are FORCED to fill out government forms is to:

- 18 1. Define all terms on the form in a MANDATORY attachment so as to EXCLUDE those found in any government law. Write above your signature the following:

20 "Not valid, false, fraudulent, and perjurious unless accompanied by the SIGNED attachment entitled 21 _____, consisting of ___ pages."

- 22 2. Indicate "All rights reserved, U.C.C. §1-308" near the signature line on the application.
- 23 3. Indicate "Non assumpsit" on the application, or scribble it as your signature.
- 24 4. Indicate "duress" on the form.
- 25 5. Resubmit the form after the fact either in person or by mail fixing the application to indicate duress and withdraw your consent.
- 26 6. Ask the government accepting the application to indicate that you are not qualified because you do not consent and consent is mandatory. Then show that denial to the person who is trying to FORCE you to apply.
- 27 7. Submit a criminal complaint against the party instituting the duress to get you to apply.
- 28 8. Notify the person instituting the unlawful duress that they are violating your rights and demand that they retract their demand for you to apply for something.

 34 question whether the domicile of the father was in England or in Scotland, he being in either alternative a British
 35 subject. Lord Chancellor Hatherley said: 'The question of naturalization and of allegiance is distinct from that
 36 of domicile.' Page 452. Lord Westbury, in the passage relied on by the counsel for the United States, began by
 37 saying: 'The law of England, and of almost all civilized countries, ascribes to each individual at his birth two
 38 distinct legal states or conditions,—one by virtue of which he becomes the subject [NATIONAL] of some 39 particular country, binding him by the tie of natural allegiance, and which may be called his political status;
 40 another by virtue of which he has ascribed to him the character of a citizen of some particular country, and as
 41 such is possessed of certain municipal rights, and subject to certain obligations, which latter character is the
 42 civil status or condition of the individual, and may be quite different from his political status.' And then, while 43 maintaining that the civil status is universally governed by the single principle
 44 of domicile (domicilium), the criterion established by international law 45 for the purpose of determining civil status, and the basis on which 'the 46 personal rights of the party—that is to say, the law which determines his 47 majority or minority, his marriage, succession, testacy, or intestacy— 48 must depend,' he yet distinctly recognized that a man's political status, his 49 country (patria), and his 'nationality,—that is, natural allegiance,'—'may 50 depend on different laws in different countries.' Pages 457, 460. He evidently used the word 'citizen,' not as equivalent to 'subject,' but rather to 'inhabitant'; and had no thought of impeaching the established rule that all persons born under British dominion are natural-born subjects.

The protections of the Constitution and the common law, on the other hand, attach NOT to your STATUTORY status, but to the LAND you stand on at the time you receive an injury from either the GOVERNMENT or a PRIVATE human being, respectively:

"It is locality that is determinative of the application of the Constitution, in such matters as judicial procedure, and not the status of the people who live in it."
 [Balzac v. Porto Rico, 258 U.S. 298 (1922) ]

The thing that we wish to emphasize about this important subject are the following VERY IMPORTANT facts:

1. Your STATUS under the civil STATUTORY law is exclusively determined by the exercise of your PRIVATE, UNALIENABLE right to both contract and associate, which are protected by the First Amendment to the United States Constitution.
2. The highest exercise of your right to sovereignty is the right to determine and enforce the STATUS you have CONSENSUALLY and VOLUNTARILY acquired under the civil laws of the community you are in.
3. Anyone who tries to associate a CIVIL statutory status with you absent your DEMONSTRATED, EXPRESS, WRITTEN consent is:
  - 3.1. Violating due process of law.
  - 3.2. STEALING property or rights to property from you. The "rights" or "public rights" that attach to the status are the measure of WHAT is being "stolen".
  - 3.3. Exercising eminent domain without compensation against otherwise PRIVATE property in violation of the state constitution. The property subject to the eminent domain are all the rights that attach to the status they are FORCING upon you. YOU and ONLY YOU have the right to determine the compensation you are willing to accept in exchange for your private rights and private property.
  - 3.4. Compelling you to contract with the government that created the franchise status, because all franchises are contracts.
  - 3.5. Kidnapping your legal identity and moving it to a foreign state, if the STATUS they impute to you arises under the laws of a foreign state. This, in turn is an act of INTERNATIONAL TERRORISM in criminal violation of 18 U.S.C. §2331(1)(B)(iii).
4. All de jure government civil law is TERRITORIAL in nature and attaches ONLY to the territory upon which they have EXCLUSIVE or GENERAL jurisdiction. It does NOT attach and CANNOT attach to places where they have only SUBJECT matter jurisdiction, such as in states of the Union.

"It is a well established principle of law that all federal regulation applies only within the territorial jurisdiction of the United States unless a contrary intent appears."
 [Foley Brothers, Inc. v. Filardo, 336 U.S. 281 (1949)]

"The laws of Congress in respect to those matters [outside of Constitutionally delegated powers] do not extend into the territorial limits of the states, but have force only in the District of Columbia, and other places that are within the exclusive jurisdiction of the national government."
 [Caha v. U.S., 152 U.S. 211 (1894)]

"There is a canon of legislative construction which teaches Congress that, unless a contrary intent appears [legislation] is meant to apply only within the territorial jurisdiction of the United States."
 [U.S. v. Spelar, 338 U.S. 217 at 222.]

5. The prerequisite to having ANY statutory STATUS under the civil law of any de jure government is a DOMICILE within the EXCLUSIVE jurisdiction of the that specific government that enacted the statute.
6. You CANNOT lawfully acquire a statutory STATUS under the CIVIL laws of a foreign jurisdiction if you have:
  - 6.1. Never physically been present within the exclusive jurisdiction of the foreign jurisdiction.
  - 6.2. Never EXPRESSLY consented to be treated as a "citizen", "resident", or "inhabitant" within that jurisdiction, even IF physically present there.
  - 6.3. NOT been physically present in the foreign jurisdiction LONG ENOUGH to satisfy the residency requirements of that jurisdiction.

- 1 7. Any government that tries to REMOVE the domicile prerequisite from any of the franchises it offers by any of the 2 following means is acting in a purely private, commercial capacity using PRIVATE and not PUBLIC LAW and the 3 statutes then devolve essentially into an act of PRIVATE contracting. Methods of acting in such a capacity include,
 4 but are not limited to the following devious methods by dishonest and criminal and treasonous public servants:
 5 7.1. Treating EVERYONE as "persons" or "individuals" under the franchise statutes, INCLUDING those outside of 6 their territory.
 7 7.2. Saying that EVERYONE is eligible for the franchise, no matter where they PHYSICALLY are, including in 8 places OUTSIDE of their exclusive or general jurisdiction.
 9 7.3. Waiving the domicile prerequisite as a matter of policy, even though the statutes describing it require that those 10 who participate must be "citizens", "residents", or "inhabitants" in order to participate. The Social Security does 11 this by unconstitutional FIAT, in order to illegally recruit more "taxpayers".
 12 8. When any so-called "government" waives the domicile prerequisite by the means described in the previous step, the 13 following consequences are inevitable and MANDATORY:
 14 8.1. The statutes they seek to enforce are "PRIVATE LAW".
 15 8.2. It is FRAUD to call the statutes "PUBLIC LAW" that applies equally to EVERYONE.

16 "Municipal law, thus understood, is properly defined to be "a rule of civil conduct prescribed by the supreme 17 power in a state, commanding what is right and prohibiting what is wrong."

18 [ . . . ]

19 *It is also called a rule to distinguish it from a compact or agreement; for a compact is a promise proceeding
 20 from us, law is a command directed to us. The language of a compact is, "I will, or will not, do this"; that of a
 21 law is, "thou shalt, or shalt not, do it." It is true there is an obligation which a compact carries with it, equal
 22 in point of conscience to that of a law; but then the original of the obligation is different. In compacts we 23 ourselves determine and promise what shall be done, before we are obliged to do it; in laws, we are obliged to 24 act without ourselves determining or promising anything at all. Upon these accounts law is defined to be "a 25 rule."*

26 [Readings on the History and System of the Common Law, Second Edition, Roscoe Pound, 1925, p. 4]

- 27 8.3. They agree to be treated on an equal footing with every other PRIVATE business.
 28 8.4. Their franchises are on an EQUAL footing to every other type of private franchise such as McDonalds franchise
 29 agreements.
 30 8.5. They implicitly waive sovereign immunity and agree to be sued in the courts within the extraterritorial
 31 jurisdiction they are illegally operating under the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act (F.S.I.A.), 28 U.S.C. Part IV, 32 Chapter 97. Sovereign immunity is ONLY available as a defense against DE JURE government activity in the 33 PUBLIC interest that applies EQUALLY to any and every citizen.
 34 8.6. They may not enforce federal civil law against the party in the foreign jurisdiction that they are illegally offering 35 the franchise in.
 36 8.7. If the foreign jurisdiction they are illegally enforcing the franchise within is subject to the constraint that the 37 members of said community MUST be treated equally under the requirements of their constitution, then the 38 franchise cannot make them UNEQUAL in ANY respect. This would be discrimination and violate the 39 fundamental law.

40 Consistent with the above, below is how the U.S. Supreme Court describes attempts to enforce income taxes against 41 NONRESIDENT parties domiciled in a legislatively foreign state, such as either a state of the Union or a foreign country:

42 *"The power of taxation, indispensable to the existence of every civilized government, is exercised upon the 43 assumption of an equivalent rendered to the taxpayer in the protection of his person and property, in adding 44 to the value of such property, or in the creation and maintenance of public conveniences in which he shares --
 45 such, for instance, as roads, bridges, sidewalks, pavements, and schools for the education of his children. If the 46 taxing power be in no position to render these services, or otherwise to benefit the person or property taxed,
 47 and such property be wholly within the taxing power of another state, to which it may be said to owe an
 48 allegiance, and to which it looks for protection, the taxation of such property within the domicile of the owner
 49 partakes rather of the nature of an extortion than a tax, and has been repeatedly held by this Court to be
 50 beyond the power of the legislature, and a taking of property without due process of law. Railroad Company v.
 51 Jackson, 7 Wall. 262; State Tax on Foreign-Held Bonds, 15 Wall. 300; Tappan v. Merchants' National Bank,
 52 19 Wall. 490, 499; Delaware &c. R. Co. v. Pennsylvania, 198 U.S. 341, 358. In Chicago &c. R. Co. v. Chicago,
 53 166 U.S. 226, it was held, after full consideration, that the taking of private property [199 U.S. 203] without 54 compensation was a denial of due process within the Fourteenth Amendment. See also Davidson v. New 55 Orleans, 96 U.S. 97, 102; Missouri Pacific Railway v. Nebraska, 164 U.S. 403, 417; Mt. Hope Cemetery v.
 56 Boston, 158 Mass. 509, 519."*

1 [Union Refrigerator Transit Company v. Kentucky, 199 U.S. 194 (1905)]

2 An example of how the government cannot assign the statutory status of “taxpayer” upon you per 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(14) is
3 found in 28 U.S.C. §2201(a), which reads:

4 United States Code
5 TITLE 28 - JUDICIARY AND JUDICIAL PROCEDURE
6 PART VI - PARTICULAR PROCEEDINGS
7 CHAPTER 151 - DECLARATORY JUDGMENTS
8 Sec. 2201. Creation of remedy

9 (a) In a case of actual controversy within its jurisdiction, except with respect to Federal taxes other than 10 actions brought under section 7428 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, a proceeding under section 505 or 11 1146 of title 11, or in any civil action involving an antidumping or countervailing duty proceeding regarding a
12 class or kind of merchandise of a free trade area country (as defined in section 516A(f)(10) of the Tariff Act of 13 1930), as determined by the administering authority, any court of the United States, upon the filing of an 14 appropriate pleading, may declare the rights and other legal relations of any interested party seeking such 15 declaration, whether or not further relief is or could be sought. Any such declaration shall have the force and 16 effect of a final judgment or decree and shall be reviewable as such.

17 Consistent with the federal Declaratory Judgments Act, 28 U.S.C. §2201, federal courts who have been petitioned to declare
18 a litigant to be a “taxpayer” have declined to do so and have cited the above act as authority:

19 Specifically, Rowen seeks a declaratory judgment against the United States of America with respect to "whether 20 *or not the plaintiff is a taxpayer pursuant to, and/or under 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(14) ." (See Compl. at 2.) This 21 Court lacks jurisdiction to issue a declaratory judgment "with respect to Federal taxes other than actions
22 brought under section 7428 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986," a code section that is not at issue in the 23 instant action. See 28 U.S.C. §2201; see also Hughes v. United States, 953 F.2d. 531, 536-537 (9th Cir. 1991)
24 (affirming dismissal of claim for declaratory relief under § 2201 where claim concerned question of tax liability).
25 Accordingly, defendant's motion to dismiss is hereby GRANTED, and the instant action is hereby DISMISSED.
26 [Rowen v. U.S., 05-3766MMC. (N.D.Cal. 11/02/2005)]

27 The implications of the above are that:

- 28 1. The federal courts have no lawful delegated authority to determine or declare whether you are a “taxpayer”.
- 29 2. If federal courts cannot directly declare you a “taxpayer”, then they also cannot do it indirectly by, for instance:
- 30 2.1. Presuming that you are a “taxpayer”. This is a violation of due process of law that renders a void judgment.
- 31 Presumptions are not evidence and may not serve as a SUBSTITUTE for evidence.
- 32 2.2. Calling you a “taxpayer” before you have called yourself one.
- 33 2.3. Arguing with or penalizing you if you rebut others from calling you a “taxpayer”.
- 34 2.4. Quoting case law as authority relating to "taxpayers" against a "nontaxpayer". That's FRAUD and it also violates
- 35 Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b).
- 36 2.5. Quoting case law from a franchise court in the Executive rather than Judicial branch such as the U.S. Tax Court
- 37 against those who are not franchisees called "taxpayers".
- 38 2.6. Treating you as a “taxpayer” if you provide evidence to the contrary by enforcing any provision of the I.R.C.
- 39 Subtitle A “taxpayer” franchise agreement against you as a “nontaxpayer”.

40 “Revenue Laws relate to taxpayers [instrumentalities, officers, employees, and elected officials of the national 41 Government] and not to non-taxpayers [non-resident non-persons domiciled within the exclusive jurisdiction of 42 a state of the Union and not subject to the exclusive jurisdiction of the national Government]. The latter are 43 without their scope. No procedures are prescribed for non-taxpayers and no attempt is made to annul any of 44 their Rights or Remedies in due course of law.”
45 [Economy Plumbing & Heating v. U.S., 470 F.2d. 585 (1972)]

46 Authorities supporting the above include the following:

47 “It is almost unnecessary to say, that what the legislature cannot do directly, it cannot do indirectly. The stream
48 can mount no higher than its source. The legislature cannot create corporations with illegal powers, nor grant 49 unconstitutional powers to those already granted.”
50 [Gelpcke v. City of Dubuque, 68 U.S. 175, 1863 W.L. 6638 (1863)]

51 “Congress cannot do indirectly what the Constitution prohibits directly.”

3 "In essence, the district court used attorney's fees in this case as an alternative to, or substitute for, punitive
4 damages (which were not available). The district court cannot do indirectly what it is prohibited from doing

14 556, 569, 91 L.Ed. 754 (1947). What the *78 First Amendment precludes the government**2739 from

27 speech); North Mississippi Communications v. Jones, 792 F.2d. 1330, 1337 (5th Cir.1986) (same). The

33 5.4.8.11.17.4 Four methods of acquiring a civil status<sup>150</sup>

34 There are four methods of lawfully acquiring a civil status:

- 35 1. Physical presence in the venue without a domicile. This triggers common law jurisdiction. If the venue is protected by 36 the constitution, it also triggers constitutional jurisdiction.
- 37 2. Physical presence WITH a consensual domicile. This triggers civil statutory jurisdiction. If the venue is protected by 38 the constitution, it also triggers constitutional jurisdiction.
- 39 3. Not physically present in the venue but purposefully and consensually doing business in the venue. This triggers
40 common law jurisdiction. This ordinarily does NOT trigger constitutional jurisdiction, even if the venue is protected 41 by the constitution.
- 42 4. Not physically present in the venue but domiciled in the venue. This triggers statutory jurisdiction. This ordinarily 43 does NOT trigger constitutional jurisdiction, even if the venue is protected by the constitution.

44 Those who don't fit any of the criteria must be considered by the civil courts to be:

- 45 1. "nonresidents".
- 46 2. "transient foreigners".
- 47 3. "stateless" but not civil statutory "persons".

<sup>150</sup> Source: Your Exclusive Right to Declare or Establish Your Civil Status, Form #13.008, Section 5; <https://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>.

- 1 4. "in transitu".
- 2 5. "transient".
- 3 6. "sojourner".
- 4 7. "civilly dead".

5 Below is a table summarizing the above:

6 Table 5-41: Four method of acquiring civil status

|---|------------------------------|-----------------|--------------------------|-----------------------------|-------------------------------|------------------|
| 1 | Yes                          | No              | Yes                      | Yes                         | No                            | No               |
| 2 | Yes                          | Yes             | No                       | Yes                         | Yes                           | Yes (domicile)   |
| 3 | No                           | No              | Yes                      | No                          | No                            | No               |
| 4 | No                           | Yes             | No                       | No                          | Yes                           | Yes (domicile)   |

7 NOTES:

- 8 1. Constitutional protection attaches to land and not to the civil status of the people physically ON that land.

9 "It is locality that is determinative of the application of the Constitution, in such matters as judicial procedure,
 10 and not the status of the people who live in it."
 11 [Balzac v. Porto Rico, 258 U.S. 298 (1922)]

- 12 2. Common law jurisdiction is the default law system applying equally to all in the absence of express or implied consent
 13 of the party. See:

14 Wikipedia: Civil Law \(legal system\))
 15 https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Civil\_law\_\(legal\_system\))

- 16 3. Domicile and civil statutory protection are synonymous. See Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b).
 17 4. Domicile and common law jurisdiction are mutually exclusive and cannot exist in the same place at the same time.
 18 This is because domicile is consensual and anything you consent to cannot form the basis for a common law injury:

19 "Voluntati non fit injuria.
 20 He who consents cannot receive an injury. 2 Bouv. Inst. n. 2279, 2327; 4 T. R. 657; Shelf. on mar. & Div. 449.

6. You CANNOT accept a statutory “benefit” without a domicile in the location granting the benefit.
6.1. This is because you cannot claim the benefit without a civil status there and you can't have a civil status WITHOUT a domicile:

*“There are certain general principles which control the disposition of this case. They are, in the main, well settled; the difficulty lies in their application to the particular facts of the case in hand. It is elementary that “every state has an undoubted right to determine the status, or domestic and social condition, of the persons domiciled within its territory, except in so far as the powers of the states in this respect are restrained, or duties and obligations imposed upon them by the constitution of the United States.” Strader v. Graham, 10 How. 93. Again, the civil status is governed universally by one single principle, namely, that of domicile, which is the criterion established by law for the purpose of determining the civil status; for it is on this basis that the personal rights of a party. — that is to say, the law which determines his majority or minority, his marriage, succession, testacy, or intestacy, — must depend. 1 5.4.8.11.18 Jesus refused a domicile, refused to participate in all human franchises, benefits, and privileges,
 2 and refused the “civil status” that made them possible<sup>151</sup>

3 Jesus definitely participated in God’s franchise, being a member of the Holy Trinity. However, he refused to participate in
 4 human franchises. It may interest the reader to learn that Jesus had NO civil status under man’s law and refused to participate
 5 in any government “benefit”, franchise, or privilege:

6 The Humbled and Exalted Christ

7 “Let this mind be in you which was also in Christ Jesus, who, being in the form of God, did not consider it robbery
 8 to be equal with God, but made Himself of no reputation, taking the form of a bondservant, and coming in the 9 likeness of men. And being found in appearance as a man, He humbled Himself and became obedient to the 10 point of death, even the death of the cross. Therefore God also has highly exalted Him and given Him the name
 11 which is above every name, that at the name of Jesus every knee should bow, of those in heaven, and of those on 12 earth, and of those under the earth, and that every tongue should confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory
 13 of God the Father.”

14 [Phil 2:5-11, Bible, NKJV]

15 Below is a famous Bible commentary on the above passage:

16 “Think of yourselves the way Christ Jesus thought of himself. He had equal status with God but didn’t think so
 17 much of himself that he had to cling to the advantages of that status no matter what. Not at all. When the time
 18 came, he set aside the privileges of deity and took on the status of a slave, became human! Having become
 19 human, he stayed human. It was an incredibly humbling process. He didn’t claim special privileges. Instead,
 20 he lived a selfless, obedient life and then died a selfless, obedient death—and the worst kind of death at that—
 21 a crucifixion.”

22 “Because of that obedience, God lifted him high and honored him far beyond anyone or anything, ever, so that
 23 all created beings in heaven and on earth—even those long ago dead and buried—will bow in worship before
 24 this Jesus Christ, and call out in praise that he is the Master of all, to the glorious honor of God the Father.”

25 [Peterson, E. H. (2005). The Message: the Bible in contemporary language (Php 2:5–11). Colorado Springs, CO:
 26 NavPress]

27 Below is a summary of lessons learned from the above amplified version of the same passage, put into the context of 28 privileges, civil status, and franchises:

- 29 1. Jesus forsook having a civil status and the privileges and franchises of the Kingdom of Heaven franchise that made that 30 status possible.
- 31 2. He instead chose a civil status lower for Himself than other mere humans below him in status.
- 32 3. BECAUSE He forsook the “benefits”, privileges, and franchises associated with the civil status of “God” while here on 33 earth, he was blessed beyond all measure by God.

34 Moral of the Story: We can only be blessed by God if we do not seek to use benefits, privileges, and franchises to elevate 35 ourself above anyone else or to pursue a civil status above others.

36 “Pure and undefiled religion before God and the Father is this: to visit orphans and widows in their trouble, and
 37 to keep oneself unspotted [“foreign”, “sovereign”, and/or “alien”] from the world [and the corrupt BEAST
 38 governments and rulers of the world].”

39 [James 1:27, Bible, NKJV]

40 One cannot be “unspotted from the world” without surrendering and not pursuing any and all HUMAN civil statuses,
 41 franchises, or benefits. Those who are Christians, however, cannot avoid the privileged status and office of “Christian” under 42 God’s laws.

43 The OPPOSITE of being “unspotted from the world” is the following. The pursuit of government “benefits” or the civil 44 status that makes them possible is synonymous with the phrase “your desire for pleasure” in the following passage.

45 “Where do wars and fights come from among you? Do they not come from your desires for pleasure [unearned
 46 money or “benefits”, privileges, or franchises, from the government] that war in your members [and your 47 democratic governments]? You lust [after other people’s money] and do not have. You murder [the unborn to

1 increase your standard of living] and covet [the unearned] and cannot obtain [except by empowering your
2 government to STEAL for you!]. You fight and war [against the rich and the nontaxpayers to subsidize your
3 idleness]. Yet you do not have because you do not ask [the Lord, but instead ask the deceitful government]. You
4 ask and do not receive, because you ask amiss, that you may spend it on your pleasures. Adulterers and
5 adulteresses! Do you not know that friendship [statutory "citizenship"] with the world [for the governments of 6 the world] is enmity with God? Whoever therefore wants to be a friend [STATUTORY "citizen", "resident",
7 "inhabitant", "person" franchisee] of the world [the governments of the world] makes himself an enemy of 8 God."

9 [James 4:4, Bible, NKJV]

10 The personification of those who did the OPPOSITE of Jesus and pursued civil status, rewards, benefits, privileges, and 11 franchises were the Pharisees, and these people were the ONLY people Jesus got mad at. Here's what He said about them in 12 one of his very few angry tirades. Back then, they had a theocracy and the Bible was their law book, so the term "religion 13 scholars" meant the lawyers of that time, not the pastors of today's time.

14 I've had it with you! You're hopeless, you religion scholars, you Pharisees! Frauds! Your lives are roadblocks to 15 God's kingdom. You refuse to enter, and won't let anyone else in either.

16 "You're hopeless, you religion scholars and Pharisees! Frauds! You go halfway around the world to make a 17 convert, but once you get him you make him into a replica of yourselves, double-damned.

18 *"You're hopeless! What arrogant stupidity! You say, 'If someone makes a promise with his fingers crossed, that's 19 nothing; but if he swears with his hand on the Bible, that's serious.' What ignorance! Does the leather on the 20 Bible carry more weight than the skin on your hands? And what about this piece of trivia: 'If you shake hands on 21 a promise, that's nothing; but if you raise your hand that God is your witness, that's serious'? What ridiculous
22 hairsplitting! What difference does it make whether you shake hands or raise hands? A promise is a promise.
23 What difference does it make if you make your promise inside or outside a house of worship? A promise is a 24 promise. God is present, watching and holding you to account regardless.*

25 "You're hopeless, you religion scholars and Pharisees! Frauds! You keep meticulous account books, tithing on 26 every nickel and dime you get, but on the meat of God's Law, things like fairness and compassion and 27 commitment—the absolute basics!—you carelessly take it or leave it. Careful bookkeeping is commendable, but 28 the basics are required. Do you have any idea how silly you look, writing a life story that's wrong from start to 29 finish, nitpicking over commas and semicolons?

30 *"You're hopeless, you religion scholars and Pharisees! Frauds! You burnish the surface of your cups and bowls
31 so they sparkle in the sun, while the insides are maggoty with your greed and gluttony. Stupid Pharisee! Scour 32 the insides, and then the gleaming surface will mean something.*

33 *"You're hopeless, you religion scholars and Pharisees! Frauds! You're like manicured grave plots, grass clipped
34 and the flowers bright, but six feet down it's all rotting bones and worm-eaten flesh. People look at you and think 35 you're saints, but beneath the skin you're total frauds.*

36 *"You're hopeless, you religion scholars and Pharisees! Frauds! You build granite tombs for your prophets and
37 marble monuments for your saints. And you say that if you had lived in the days of your ancestors, no blood would 38 have been on your hands. You protest too much! You're cut from the same cloth as those murderers, and daily 39 add to the death count.*

40 *"Snakes! Reptilian sneaks! Do you think you can worm your way out of this? Never have to pay the piper? It's 41 on account of people like you that I send prophets and wise guides and scholars generation after generation—
42 and generation after generation you treat them like dirt, greeting them with lynch mobs, hounding them with 43 abuse.*

44 *"You can't squirm out of this: Every drop of righteous blood ever spilled on this earth, beginning with the blood
45 of that good man Abel right down to the blood of Zechariah, Barachiah's son, whom you murdered at his prayers, 46 is on your head. All this, I'm telling you, is coming down on you, on your generation.*

47 "Jerusalem! Jerusalem! Murderer of prophets! Killer of the ones who brought you God's news! How often I've 48 ached to embrace your children, the way a hen gathers her chicks under her wings, and you wouldn't let me. And 49 now you're so desolate, nothing but a ghost town. What is there left to say? Only this: I'm out of here soon. The 50 next time you see me you'll say, 'Oh, God has blessed him! He's come, bringing God's rule!'"
51 [Peterson, E. H. (2005). The Message: the Bible in contemporary language (Mt 23:13–39). Colorado Springs,
52 CO: NavPress.]

53 Keep in mind that the term "hypocrite" is defined in the following passages as "trusting in privileges", meaning franchises:
54 Jer 7:4; Mt 3:9.

1 It is also VERY interesting that when Satan wanted to tempt Jesus, He took him up to a high mountain above everyone else
2 and tempted him with a civil status ABOVE everyone else but BELOW Satan, thus making Satan an object of idolatry and
3 worship in violation of the First Commandment within the Ten Commandments.

4 *"Again, the devil took Him [Jesus] up on an exceedingly high [civil/legal status above all other humans]
5 mountain, and showed Him all the kingdoms of the world and their glory. And he said to Him, "All these things
6 ["BENEFITS"] I will give You if You will fall down [BELOW Satan but ABOVE other humans] and worship
7 [serve as a PUBLIC OFFICER] me."*

8 Then Jesus said to him, "Away with you, Satan! For it is written, 'You shall worship the LORD your God, and 9 Him only you shall serve.'"

10 *Then the devil left Him, and behold, angels came and ministered to Him."
11 [Matt. 4:8-11, Bible, NKJV]*

12 As we described earlier in Section 5.4.8.10.1 through 5.4.8.10.2 the "mountain" mentioned above is symbolic of a political 13 kingdom in competition with God's kingdom. The preposition "exceedingly high" indicates that Satan wanted his political 14 kingdom to be ABOVE everyone else. The preposition "fall down" indicates that Satan wanted Christ to "worship" and 15 "serve" His political kingdom and to place the importance of God's kingdom BELOW Satan in his priority list. This would 16 cause Christ to commit idolatry. Idolatry, after all, is nothing more than disordered priorities that knock God out of first 17 place. That is why the Bible often refers to God as "The Most High":

18 "You shall have no other gods before Me.

19 *"You shall not make for yourself a carved image—any likeness of anything that is in heaven above, or that is in
20 the earth beneath, or that is in the water under the earth; you shall not bow down to them nor serve them. For I,
21 the LORD your God, am a jealous God, visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children to the third and fourth
22 generations of those who hate Me, but showing mercy to thousands, to those who love Me and keep My 23 commandments."
24 [Exodus 20:3-6, Bible, NKJV]*

25 The phrase "bow down" indicates that you cannot place anything other than God higher than yourself, meaning that God is 26 ALWAYS your first priority as a human being. This, in turn, forbids any civil ruler to be above you and forbids any civil 27 ruler from having superior or supernatural powers in relation to any human beings. Jesus was keenly aware that God and
28 Government are ALWAYS in competition with each other for the affection, obedience, allegiance, and sponsorship of the 29 people.<sup>152</sup> Instead, God's design for government is to serve from below rather than to rule from above. Below is Jesus' most 30 important command on the subject of government:

31 *"You know that the rulers of the Gentiles [unbelievers] lord it over them [govern from ABOVE as pagan idols],
32 and those who are great exercise authority over them [supernatural powers that are the object of idol worship].
33 Yet it shall not be so among you; but whoever desires to become great among you, let him be your servant [serve
34 the sovereign people from BELOW rather than rule from above]. And whoever desires to be first among you, let 35 him be your slave—just as the Son of Man did not come to be served, but to serve, and to give His life a ransom 36 for many."
37 [Matt. 20:25-28, Bible, NKJV]*

38 Jesus kept Himself unspotted from the world by not choosing a domicile there. The phrase "nowhere to lay His head" in the 39 following passage is synonymous with a legal home or domicile.

40 The Cost of Discipleship

41 And when Jesus saw great multitudes about Him, He gave a command to depart to the other side. Then a certain 42 scribe came and said to Him, "Teacher, I will follow You wherever You go."

43 *And Jesus said to him, "Foxes have holes and birds of the air have nests, but the Son of Man has nowhere to 44 lay His head."
45 [Matt. 8:18-20, Bible, NKJV]*

8 5.4.8.11.19 Satan's greatest sin was abusing "privileges" and "franchises" to make himself equal to or above 9 God<sup>153</sup>

10 In the previous section, we showed how Christ refused privileges, benefits, and franchises and insisted on equality towards 11 every other human. In this chapter, we compare that approach to Satan's approach. It should interest the Christian reader to 12 know that Satan's greatest sin in the Bible was to abuse the "privileges" and therefore franchises bestowed by God to try to 13 elevate himself to an equal or superior relation to God. By doing so, he insisted on being above every other creation of God,
 14 including humans. He did this out of pride, vanity, conceit, and covetousness.

15 Satan abused the "benefits" of the Bible franchise to try to become superior rather than remain equal to all other humans or 16 believers. Below is what one commentary amazingly says on the subject:

17 WHAT WAS SATAN'S SIN?

18           Satan's sin was done from a privileged position. He was not a deprived creature who had not drunk deeply of 19           the blessings of God before he sinned. Indeed, Ezekiel 28:11-15 declares some astounding things about the 20           privileged position in which he sinned. That this passage has Satan in view seems most likely if one eliminates*
 21           the idea that it is a mythical tale of heathen origin and if one takes the language at all plainly and not merely as
 22           filled with Oriental exaggerations. Ezekiel "saw the work and activity of Satan, whom the king of Tyre was 23           emulating in so many ways." Satan's privileges included (1) full measure of wisdom (v. 12), (2) perfection in 24           beauty (v. 12), (3) dazzling appearance (v. 13), (4) a place of special prominence as the anointed cherub that
 25           covered God's throne (v. 14). Verse 15 (ASV) says all that the Bible says about the origin of sin—"till*
 26           unrighteousness was found in thee." It is clear, however, that Satan was not created as an evil being, for the verse
 27           clearly declares he was perfect when created. Furthermore, God did not make him sin; he sinned of his own
 28           volition and assumed full responsibility for that sin; and because of his great privileges, it is obvious that Satan
 29           sinned with full knowledge.

30           Satan's sin was pride (1 Ti 3:6). The specific details of how that pride erupted are given in Isaiah 14:13-14 and* 31           are summarized in the assertion, "I will be like the most High" (v. 14).
 32           [Ryrie, C. C. (1972). A survey of Bible doctrine. Chicago: Moody Press]

33 Christ's greatest glory, on the other hand, was to do the OPPOSITE of Satan in this regard:

- 34 1. Jesus made his own desires and flesh "invisible" and became an agent and fiduciary of God 24 hours a day, 7 days a 35 week:

36           "Whoever receives this little child in My name receives Me; and whoever receives Me receives Him who sent

1 "Then Jesus cried out and said, "He who believes in Me, believes not in Me but in Him who sent Me."
2 [John 12:44, Bible, NKJV]

- 3 2. Jesus did NOT abuse the "privileges", "franchises", or "benefits" of God to elevate himself in importance or "rights"
4 either above any other human or above God:

5 "Think of yourselves the way Christ Jesus thought of himself. He had equal status with God but didn't think so
6 much of himself that he had to cling to the advantages of that status no matter what. Not at all. When the time
7 came, he set aside the privileges of deity and took on the status of a slave, became human! Having become
8 human, he stayed human. It was an incredibly humbling process. He didn't claim special privileges. Instead,
9 he lived a selfless, obedient life and then died a selfless, obedient death—and the worst kind of death at that—
10 a crucifixion."

11 "Because of that obedience, God lifted him high and honored him far beyond anyone or anything, ever, so that
12 all created beings in heaven and on earth—even those long ago dead and buried—will bow in worship before
13 this Jesus Christ, and call out in praise that he is the Master of all, to the glorious honor of God the Father."
14 [Peterson, E. H. (2005). The Message: the Bible in contemporary language (Php 2:5–11). Colorado Springs, CO:
15 NavPress]

16 Basically, Jesus had a servant's heart and required the same heart of all those who intend to lead others in government:

17 "But you, do not be called 'Rabbi'; for One is your Teacher, the Christ, and you are all brethren. Do not call
18 anyone on earth your father; for One is your Father, He who is in heaven. And do not be called teachers; for One
19 is your Teacher, the Christ. But he who is greatest among you shall be your servant. And whoever exalts 20 himself will be humbled, and he who humbles himself will be exalted".
21 [Jesus in Matt. 23:8-12, Bible, NKJV]

22 But Jesus called them to Himself and said to them, "You know that those who are considered rulers over the 23 Gentiles lord it over them, and their great ones exercise authority over them. Yet it shall not be so among you;
24 but whoever desires to become great among you shall be your servant. And whoever of you desires to be first
25 shall be slave of all. For even the Son of Man did not come to be served, but to serve, and to give His life a 26 ransom for many."
27 [Mark 10:42–45, Bible, NKJV. See also Matt. 20:25-28]

28 Those in government who follow the above admonition in fact are implementing what the U.S. Supreme Court called "a 29 society of law and not men" in Marbury v. Madison. The law is the will of the people in written form. Those who put that 30 law above their own self-interest and execute it faithfully are:

- 31 1. Agents and/or officers of We the People.
32 2. "Trustees" and managers over God's property. The entire Earth belongs to the Lord, according to the Bible.<sup>154</sup>
33 3. Acting in a fiduciary duty towards those who have entrusted them with power.

34 "As expressed otherwise, the powers delegated to a public officer are held in trust for the people and are to be
35 exercised in behalf of the government or of all citizens who may need the intervention of the officer.<sup>155</sup>
36 Furthermore, the view has been expressed that all public officers, within whatever branch and whatever level
37 of government, and whatever be their private vocations, are trustees of the people, and accordingly labor under
38 every disability and prohibition imposed by law upon trustees relative to the making of personal financial gain
39 from a discharge of their trusts.<sup>156</sup> That is, a public officer occupies a fiduciary relationship to the political
40 entity on whose behalf he or she serves.<sup>157</sup> and owes a fiduciary duty to the public.<sup>158</sup> It has been said that

<sup>154</sup> "Indeed heaven and the highest heavens belong to the LORD your God, also the earth with all that is in it." [Deut. 10:15, Bible, NKJV]

4. Implementing a "covenant" or "contract" or "social compact" between them and the people. All civil and common law is based on compact.<sup>161</sup>
5. "Creatures [CREATIONS] of the law" as the U.S. Supreme Court calls them.<sup>162</sup>
6. Violating their oath and/or covenant if they use the property or rights they are managing or protecting for any aspect of private gain. In fact, 18 U.S.C. §208 makes it a crime to preside over a matter that you have a financial conflict of interest in.

All of the people in the Bible that God got most excited about were doing the above. There are many verses like those below:

1. Lev. 25:42:

"For they are My servants, whom I brought out of the land of Egypt; they shall not be sold as slaves."

2. Lev. 25:55:

"For the children of Israel are servants to Me; they are My servants whom I brought out of the land of Egypt: I am the LORD your God."

3. Numbers 14:24:

"But My servant Caleb, because he has a different spirit in him and has followed Me fully, I will bring into the land where he went, and his descendants shall inherit it."

4. Joshua 1:2-5:

"Moses My servant is dead. Now therefore, arise, go over this Jordan, you and all this people, to the land which I am giving to them—the children of Israel. Every place that the sole of your foot will tread upon I have given you, as I said to Moses. From the wilderness and this Lebanon as far as the great river, the River Euphrates, all the land of the Hittites, and to the Great Sea toward the going down of the sun, shall be your territory. No man shall be able to stand before you all the days of your life; as I was with Moses, so I will be with you. I will not leave you nor forsake you. "

5. 2 Sam. 3:18:

"Now then, do it! For the LORD has spoken of David, saying, 'By the hand of My servant David, I will save My people Israel from the hand of the Philistines and the hand of all their enemies.'"

6. 2 Sam. 7:8-9:

"Now therefore, thus shall you say to My servant David, 'Thus says the LORD of hosts: "I took you from the sheepfold, from following the sheep, to be ruler over My people, over Israel. And I have been with you wherever you have gone, and have cut off all your enemies from before you, and have made you a great name, like the name of the great men who are on the earth."

<sup>161</sup> "A body politic," as aptly defined in the preamble of the Constitution of Massachusetts, "is a social compact by which the whole people covenants with each citizen, and each citizen with the whole people, that all shall be governed by certain laws for the common good." [United States v. Winstar Corp., 518 U.S. 839 (1996).]

<sup>162</sup> "No man in this country is so high that he is above the law. No officer of the law may set that law at defiance with impunity. All the officers of the government, from the highest to the lowest, are creatures of the law, and are bound to obey it." [United States v. Lee, 106 U. S., at 220]

1 God also said that you shall NOT abuse your power or commerce generally to enslave or coerce anyone:

2 'If one of your brethren becomes poor [desperate], and falls into poverty among you, then you shall help him,
3 like a stranger or a sojourner, that he may live with you.

4 Take no usury or interest from him; but fear your God, that your brother may live with you.

5 You shall not lend him your money for usury, nor lend him your food at a profit.

6 I am the LORD your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt, to give you the land of Canaan and to be your
7 God.

8 'And if one of your brethren who dwells by you becomes poor, and sells himself to you, you shall not compel
9 him to serve as a slave.

10 As a hired servant and a sojourner he shall be with you, and shall serve you until the Year of Jubilee.

11 And then he shall depart from you—he and his children with him—and shall return to his own family. He shall 12 return to the possession of his fathers.

13 For they are My servants, whom I brought out of the land of Egypt; they shall not be sold as slaves.

14 You shall not rule over him with rigor, but you shall fear your God.
15 [Lev. 25:35-43, Bible, NKJV]

16 Note above that it says that people who are poor or desperate should be treated not as slaves, but as “sojourners”, which today
17 means “nonresidents” and “transient foreigners”. This is exactly the condition that our members are required to have.

18 The most famous example in the Bible of the violation of the above prohibition against usury was how Pharaoh used a famine
19 to enslave his entire country, including the Israelites. See Gen. 47:13-26:

20 Joseph Deals with the Famine

21 <sup>13</sup> Now there was no bread in all the land; for the famine was very severe, so that the land of Egypt and the land
22 of Canaan languished because of the famine. <sup>14</sup> And Joseph gathered up all the money that was found in the land
23 of Egypt and in the land of Canaan, for the grain which they bought; and Joseph brought the money into 24 Pharaoh's house.

25 <sup>15</sup> So when the money failed in the land of Egypt and in the land of Canaan, all the Egyptians came to Joseph and 26 said, "Give us bread, for why should we die in your presence? For the money has failed."

27 <sup>16</sup> Then Joseph said, "Give your livestock, and I will give you bread for your livestock, if the money is gone." <sup>17</sup>
28 So they brought their livestock to Joseph, and Joseph gave them bread in exchange for the horses, the flocks, the 29 cattle of the herds, and for the donkeys. Thus he fed them with bread in exchange for all their livestock that year.

30 <sup>18</sup> When that year had ended, they came to him the next year and said to him, "We will not hide from my lord that
31 our money is gone; my lord also has our herds of livestock. There is nothing left in the sight of my lord but our
32 bodies and our lands. <sup>19</sup> Why should we die before your eyes, both we and our land? Buy us and our land for 33 bread, and we and our land will be servants of Pharaoh; give us seed, that we may live and not die, that the land
34 may not be desolate."

35 <sup>20</sup> Then Joseph bought all the land of Egypt for Pharaoh; for every man of the Egyptians sold his field, because
36 the famine was severe upon them. So the land became Pharaoh's. <sup>21</sup> And as for the people, he moved them into
37 the cities, from one end of the borders of Egypt to the other end. <sup>22</sup> Only the land of the priests he did not buy; for 38 the priests had rations allotted to them by Pharaoh, and they ate their rations which Pharaoh gave them; therefore 39 they did not sell their lands.

40 <sup>23</sup> Then Joseph said to the people, "Indeed I have bought you and your land this day for Pharaoh. Look, here is
41 seed for you, and you shall sow the land. <sup>24</sup> And it shall come to pass in the harvest that you shall give one-fifth
42 to Pharaoh. Four-fifths shall be your own, as seed for the field and for your food, for those of your households
43 and as food for your little ones."

44 <sup>25</sup> So they said, "You have saved our lives; let us find favor in the sight of my lord, and we will be Pharaoh's
45 servants." <sup>26</sup> And Joseph made it a law over the land of Egypt to this day, that Pharaoh should have one-fifth,
46 except for the land of the priests only, which did not become Pharaoh's.

1 [Gen. 47:13-26, Bible, NKJV]

2 Eventually, God liberated the Israelites in the famous story of Moses' exodus out of Egypt, but not before he brought a series
3 of curses on Pharaoh for his usury in Exodus 4. Another similar source of usury was the Canaanites in the Bible, if you wish
4 to investigate further. We talk about this subject in Government Instituted Slavery Using Franchises, Form #05.030, Section
5 22.4. It is very interesting that the above history of usury occurred in the land of Canaan for that very reason.

6 It is interesting to note that the main political objection that most Muslim countries have to the United States is related to
7 usury created by the abuse of commerce. The Koran forbids lending money at interest. Libya and Iraq both became the 8 target of war and intervention because they wanted to abandon the Federal Reserve fiat currency system and implement gold
9 instead of paper money. Muslims refer to this usury as "imperialism" and literally hate it. Iran's own leader calls for "death
10 to America" and usury is the main reason he does so. There is no question that the abuse of commerce to create inequality,
11 servitude, and usury is satanic because the Bible says this was the essence of Satan's greatest sin. The Muslims are correct
12 to PEACEFULLY protest it and oppose it.

13 "You were the seal of perfection,
14 Full of wisdom and perfect in beauty.
15 <sup>13</sup> You were in Eden, the garden of God;
16 Every precious stone was your covering:
17 The sardius, topaz, and diamond,
18 Beryl, onyx, and jasper,
19 Sapphire, turquoise, and emerald with gold.
20 The workmanship of your timbrels and pipes
21 Was prepared for you on the day you were created.

22 <sup>14</sup> "You were the anointed cherub who covers;
23 I established you;
24 You were on the holy mountain of God;
25 You walked back and forth in the midst of fiery stones.
26 <sup>15</sup> You were perfect in your ways from the day you were created,
27 Till iniquity was found in you.

28 <sup>16</sup> "By the abundance of your trading
29 You became filled with violence within.
30 And you sinned;
31 Therefore I cast you as a profane thing
32 Out of the mountain of God;
33 And I destroyed you, O covering cherub,
34 From the midst of the fiery stones.

35 <sup>17</sup> "Your heart was lifted up because of your beauty;
36 You corrupted your wisdom for the sake of your splendor;
37 I cast you to the ground,
38 I laid you before kings,
39 That they might gaze at you.

40 <sup>18</sup> "You defiled your sanctuaries
41 By the multitude of your iniquities,
42 By the iniquity of your trading;
43 Therefore I brought fire from your midst;
44 It devoured you,
45 And I turned you to ashes upon the earth
46 In the sight of all who saw you.
47 <sup>19</sup> All who knew you among the peoples are astonished at you;
48 You have become a horror,
49 And shall be no more forever. ""
50 [Ezekiel 28:13-19, Bible, NKJV]

51 That is not to say that we condone the use of violence or terrorism to oppose usury, however. More peaceful means are 52 available, and especially that of withdrawing our domicile and sponsorship of usurious governments and becoming non-53 resident non-persons. We talk about this approach in:

Why Domicile and Becoming a "Taxpayer" Require Your Consent, Form #05.002

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

1 We conclude in the above document that the only way that changing domicile and thereby removing funding and civil
2 jurisdiction from the government can result in violence is if the government actively interferes with you receiving the
3 "benefits" of doing so. When they do that, violence, revolution, anarchy, and even war is inevitable eventually.

4 We refer to the systematic implementation of usury as the greatest sin of our present government because it was Satan's
5 greatest sin. The Federal Reserve counterfeiting franchise is its foundation. We describe the government as an economic 6 terrorist, the District of Columbia as the District of Criminals, and politicians as criminals because of it. It's all based on "the 7 love of money":

8 *"For the love of money is a root of all kinds of evil, for which some have strayed from the faith in their greediness,
9 and pierced themselves through with many sorrows."
10 [1 Tim. 6:10, Bible, NKJV]*

11 It is our sincere belief that if we as a country had stuck to the requirements of Lev. 25:35-43 earlier in our external relations,
12 the problems we have with terrorism from foreign nations could be significantly reduced. The United States commits usury
13 and economic terrorism against foreign countries, so they reciprocate with violent terrorism, but both types of terrorism are
14 equally evil. The economic interventionism and the coercion that the usury leads to is a direct violation of the requirements
15 of justice itself. "Justice" is legally defined as the right to be left alone. If we want to be "left alone" by the terrorists and
16 treated with respect, then we have to quit meddling in their affairs, invading and bombing their countries mainly for economic
17 reasons, or using our economic might to coerce them with sanctions. You will always reap what you sow.

18 The United States as a country sows economic violence so we reap physical violence. This is the inevitable consequence of 19 the fact that we are all equal and any attempt to make us unequal inevitably produces wars, violence, anarchy, and political 20 instability:

21 *"Therefore, whatever you want men to do to you, do also to them, for this is the Law and the Prophets."
22 [Matt. 7:12, Bible, NKJV]*

23 The U.S. Supreme Court stated the above slightly differently, when they declared the first income tax unconstitutional, which 24 was implemented as a franchise tax that discriminated against one class of people at the expense of another and therefore,
25 produced INEQUALITY:

26 "The income tax law under consideration is marked by discriminating features which affect the whole law. It
27 discriminates between those who receive an income of four thousand dollars and those who do not. It thus
28 vitiates, in my judgment, by this arbitrary discrimination, the whole legislation. Hamilton says in one of his
29 papers, (the Continentalist,) "the genius of liberty reprobates everything arbitrary or discretionary in taxation. It
30 exacts that every man, by a definite and general rule, should know what proportion of his property the State
31 demands; whatever liberty we may boast of in theory, it cannot exist in fact while [arbitrary] assessments
32 continue." 1 Hamilton's Works, ed. 1885, 270. The legislation, in the discrimination it makes, is class legislation.
33 Whenever a distinction is made in the burdens a law imposes or in the benefits it confers on any citizens by 34 reason of their birth, or wealth, or religion, it is class legislation, and leads inevitably to oppression and abuses,
35 and to general unrest and disturbance in society [e.g. wars, political conflict, violence, anarchy]. It was hoped 36 and believed that the great amendments to the Constitution which followed the late civil war had rendered such 37 legislation impossible for all future time. But the objectionable legislation reappears in the act under 38 consideration. It is the same in essential character as that of the English income statute of 1691, which taxed
39 Protestants at a certain rate, Catholics, as a class, at double the rate of Protestants, and Jews at another
40 and separate rate. Under wise and constitutional legislation every citizen should contribute his proportion, however 41 small the sum, to the support of the government, and it is no kindness to urge any of our citizens to escape from 42 that obligation. If he contributes the smallest mite of his earnings to that purpose he will have a greater regard
43 for the government and more self-respect 597*597 for himself feeling that though he is poor in fact, he is not a
44 pauper of his government. And it is to be hoped that, whatever woes and embarrassments may betide our people,
45 they may never lose their manliness and self-respect. Those qualities preserved, they will ultimately triumph over 46 all reverses of fortune."*

47 [ . . . ]

48 *"Here I close my opinion. I could not say less in view of questions of such gravity that go down to the very 49 foundation of the government. If the provisions of the Constitution can be set aside by an act of Congress, where 50 is the course of usurpation to end? The present assault upon capital is but the beginning. It will be but the 51 stepping-stone to others, larger and more sweeping, till our political contests will become a war of the poor
52 against the rich; a war constantly growing in intensity and bitterness."*

53 "If the court sanctions the power of discriminating taxation, and nullifies the uniformity mandate of the 54 Constitution," as said by one who has been all his life a student of our institutions, "it will mark the hour when the sure decadence of our present government will commence. "If the purely arbitrary limitation of $4000 in the present law can be sustained, none having less than that amount of income being assessed or taxed for the support of the government, the limitation of future Congresses may be fixed at a much larger sum, at five or ten or twenty thousand dollars, parties possessing an income of that amount alone being bound to bear the burdens of government; or the limitation may be designated at such an amount as a board of "walking delegates" may deem necessary. There is no safety in allowing the limitation to be adjusted except in strict compliance with the mandates of the Constitution which require its taxation, if imposed by direct taxes, to be apportioned among the States according to their representation, and if imposed by indirect taxes, to be uniform in operation and, so far as practicable, in proportion to their property, equal upon all citizens. Unless the rule of the Constitution governs, a majority may fix the limitation at such rate as will not include any of their own number." [Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co., 157 U.S. 429 (Supreme Court 1895)]

We talk about our opposition to usurious commerce that produces inequality in our Disclaimer, Section 9:

SEDM Disclaimer

9. APPROACH TOWARDS "HATE SPEECH" AND HATE CRIME

This website does not engage in, condone, or support hate speech or hate crimes, violent thoughts, deeds or actions against any particular person(s), group, entity, government, mob, paramilitary force, intelligence agency, overpaid politician, head of state, queen, dignitary, ambassador, spy, spook, soldier, bowl cook, security flunky, contractor, dog, cat or mouse, Wal-Mart employee, amphibian, reptile, and or deceased entity without a PB (Physical Body). By "hate speech" and "hate crime", we mean in the context of religious members of this site trying to practice their faith:

1. Compelling members to violate any aspect of the Laws of the Bible, Form #13.001. This includes commanding them to do things God forbids or preventing or punishing them from doing God commands.

2. Persecution or "selective enforcement" directed against those whose religious beliefs forbid them from contracting with, doing business with, or acquiring any civil status in relation to any and all governments. These people must be "left alone" by law and are protected in doing so by the First Amendment and the right to NOT contract protected by the Constitution. The group they refuse to associate with is civil statutory "persons". We call these people "non-resident non-persons" on this site as described in Form #05.020. See Proof That There Is a "Straw Man", Form #05.042 for a description of the civil "person" scam.

3. Engaging in legal "injustice" \(Form #05.050\). By "justice" we mean absolutely owned private property \(Form #10.002\), and equality of TREATMENT and OPPORTUNITY \(Form #05.033\) under REAL LAW \(Form #05.048\). "Justice" is defined here as God defines it in Form #05.050.

4. Any attempt to treat anyone unequally under REAL "law". This includes punishing or preventing actions by members to enforce against governments under their own franchise \(Form #06.027\) the same way governments enforce against them. See What is "law"?, Form #05.048.

5. Offering, implementing, or enforcing any civil franchise \(Form #05.030\). This enforces superior powers on the part of the government as a form of inequality, results in religious idolatry, and violates the First Commandment of the Ten Commandments (Exodus 20). This includes:

5.1 Making justice \(Form #05.050\) into a civil public privilege

5.2 Turning CONSTITUTIONAL PRIVATE citizens into STATUTORY PUBLIC citizens engaged in a public office and a franchise.

5.3 Any attempt to impose equality of OUTCOME by law, such as by abusing taxing powers to redistribute wealth. See Great IRS Hoax, Form #11.302.

Franchises are the main method of introducing UNEQUAL treatment by the government. See Why You are a "national", "state national", and Constitutional but not Statutory Citizen, Form #05.006.

6. Any attempt to outlaw or refuse to recognize or enforce absolutely owned private property (Form #12.025). This makes everyone into slaves of the government, which then ultimately owns ALL property and can place unlimited conditions upon the use of their property. It also violates the last six commandments of the Ten Commandments, which are the main religious laws that protect PRIVATE property and prevent it from being shared with any government. This includes:

6.1 Refusing to provide civil statuses on government forms that recognize those who are exclusively private and their right to be left alone.

1 6.2 Refusing to provide government forms that recognize those who are exclusively private such as
2 "nontaxpayers" or "non-resident non-persons" and their right to be left alone.

3 The result of the above forms of omission are hate, discrimination, and selective enforcement against those who
4 refuse to become "customers" or franchisees (Form #05.030) of government. See Avoiding Traps in
5 Government Forms, Form #12.023.

6 7. Any attempt by government to use judicial process or administrative enforcement to enforce any civil
7 obligation derived from any source OTHER than express written consent or to an injury against the equal rights
8 of others demonstrated with court admissible evidence. See Lawfully Avoiding Government Obligations Course,
9 Form #12.040.

10 There is no practical difference between discriminating against or targeting people because of the groups they 11 claim membership in and punishing them for refusing to consent to join a group subject to legal disability, such 12 as those participating in government franchises. Members of such DISABILITY groups include civil statutory 13 "persons", "taxpayers", "individuals" (under the tax code), "drivers" (under the vehicle code), "spouses" (under 14 the family code). Both approaches lead to the same result: discrimination and selective enforcement. The 15 government claims an exemption from being a statutory "person", and since it is a government of delegated 16 powers, the people who gave it that power must ALSO be similarly exempt:

17 "The sovereignty of a state does not reside in the persons who fill the different departments
18 of its government, but in the People, from whom the government emanated; and they may 19 change it at their discretion. Sovereignty, then in this country, abides with the constituency,
20 and not with the agent; and this remark is true, both in reference to the federal and state
21 government."

22 [Spooner v. McConnell, 22 F. 939 @ 943]

23 "In common usage, the term 'person' does not include the sovereign, and statutes employing 24 the word are ordinarily construed to exclude it."

36 The foundation of the religious beliefs and practices underlying this website is a refusal to contract with or engage 37 in commerce with any and every government. Black's Law Dictionary defines "commerce" as "intercourse".

38 "Commerce. ... Intercourse by way of trade and traffic [money instead of semen] between 39 different peoples or states and the citizens or inhabitants thereof, including not only the 40 purchase, sale, and exchange of commodities, but also the instrumentalities [governments]
41 and agencies by which it is promoted and the means and appliances by which it is carried 42 on..."

43 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 269]

44 Hence this website advocates a religious refusal to engage in sex or intercourse or commerce with any 45 government. In fact, the Bible even describes people who VIOLATE this prohibition as "playing the harlot"
46 (Ezekiel 16:41) and personifies that harlot as "Babylon the Great Harlot" (Rev. 17:5), which is fornicating with 47 the Beast, which it defines as governments (Rev. 19:19).

45 Where is "separation of church and state" when you REALLY need it, keeping in mind that Christians AS
 46 INDIVIDUALS are "the church" and secular society is the "state" as legally defined? The John Birch Society
 47 agrees with us on the subject of not contracting with anyone in the following video:

Non-Resident Non-Person Position, Form #05.020
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

Government's tendency to compel everyone into a commercial or civil legal relationship (Form #05.002) with them is defined by the Bible as the ESSENCE of Satan himself! The personification of that evil is dramatized in the following video:

Devil's Advocate: Lawyers
<http://sedm.org/what-we-are-up-against/>

Therefore, the religious practice and sexual orientation of avoiding commerce and civil legal relationships (Form #05.002) with governments is the essence of our religious faith:

"I [God] brought you up from Egypt [government slavery] and brought you to the land of which I swore to your fathers; and I said, 'I will never break My covenant [Bible contract] with you. And you shall make no covenant [contract, franchise, "social compact", or agreement of ANY kind] with the inhabitants of this [corrupt pagan] land; you shall tear down their [man/government worshipping socialist] altars.' But you have not obeyed Me. Why have you done this?"

"Therefore I also said, I will not drive them out before you; but they will become as thorns [terrorists and persecutors] in your side and their gods will be a snare [slavery!] to you."

So it was, when the Angel of the LORD spoke these words to all the children of Israel, that the people lifted up their voices and wept.
 [Judges 2:1-4, Bible, NKJV]

"By the abundance of your [Satan's] trading You became filled with violence within, And you sinned; Therefore I cast you as a profane thing Out of the mountain of God; And I destroyed you, O covering cherub, From the midst of the fiery stones."
 [Ezekial 28:16, Bible, NKJV]

"As religion towards God is a branch of universal righteousness (he is not an honest man that is not devout), so righteousness towards men is a branch of true religion, for he is not a godly man that is not honest, nor can he expect that his devotion should be accepted; for,

1. Nothing is more offensive to God than deceit in commerce. A false balance is here put for all manner of unjust and fraudulent practices [of our public dis-servants] in dealing with any person [within the public], which are all an abomination to the Lord, and render those abominable [hated] to him that allow themselves in the use of such accursed arts of thriving. It is an affront to justice, which God is the patron of, as well as a wrong to our neighbour, whom God is the protector of. Men [in government] make light of such frauds, and think there is no sin in that which there is money to be got by, and, while it passes undiscovered, they cannot blame themselves for it; a blot is no blot till it is hit, Hos. 12:7, 8. But they are not the less an abomination to God, who will be the avenger of those that are defrauded by their brethren.

2. Nothing is more pleasing to God than fair and honest dealing, nor more necessary to make us and our devotions acceptable to him: A just weight is his delight. He himself goes by a just weight, and holds the scale of judgment with an even hand, and therefore is pleased with those that are herein followers of him.

A [false] balance, [whether it be in the federal courtroom or in the government or in the marketplace,] cheats, under pretence of doing right most exactly, and therefore is the greater abomination to God."

[Matthew Henry's Commentary on the Whole Bible; Henry, M., 1996, c1991, under Prov. 11:1]

Any individual, group, or especially government worker that makes us the target of discrimination, violence, "selective enforcement", or hate because of this form of religious practice or "sexual orientation" or abstinence is practicing HATE SPEECH based BOTH on our religious beliefs AND our sexual orientation as legally defined. Furthermore, all readers and governments are given reasonable timely notice that the terms of use for the information and services available through this website mandate that any attempt to compel us into a commercial or tax relationship with any government shall constitute:

1. "purposeful availment" in satisfaction of the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act, 28 U.S.C. Chapter 97.
2. A waiver of official, judicial, and sovereign immunity.
3. A commercial invasion within the meaning of Article 4, section 4 of the United States Constitution.
4. A tort cognizable as a Fifth Amendment taking without compensation.
5. A criminal attempt at identity theft by wrongfully associating us with a civil status of "citizen", "resident", "taxpayer", etc.
6. Duress as legally defined. See Affidavit of Duress: Illegal Tax Enforcement by De Facto Officers, Form #02.005.
7. Express consent to the terms of this disclaimer.

The result of the waivers of immunity above is to restore EQUALITY under REAL LAW between members and corrupt governments intent on destroying that equality by offering or enforcing civil franchises. All freedom derives from equality between you and the government in the eyes of REAL law in court. See Requirement for Equal Protection and Equal Treatment, Form #05.033.

The GOVERNMENT crimes documented on this website fall within the ambit of 18 U.S.C. §2381: Treason. The penalty mandated by law for these crimes is DEATH. We demand that actors in the Department of Justice for both the states and the federal government responsible for prosecuting these crimes of Treason do so as required by law. A FAILURE to do so is ALSO an act of Treason punishable by death. Since murder is not only a crime, but a violent crime, pursuant to 18 U.S.C. §1111, then the government itself can also be classified as terrorist. It is also ludicrous to call people who demand the enforcement of the death penalty for the crimes documented as terrorists. If that were true, every jurist who sat on a murder trial in which the death penalty applied would also have to be classified as and prosecuted as a terrorist. Hypocrites.

For those members seeking to prosecute government actors practicing hate speech or hate crime against them, see the following resource:

[SEDM Disclaimer, Section 9;
 SOURCE: <http://sedm.org/disclaimer.htm>]

The moral of the story is that the main difference between Christ and Satan was how they handled "privileges" and "franchises" and whether they tried to use them as a means to create inequality or usury or slavery or servitude between them and others while they were on the earth.

As we say repeatedly throughout this document, franchises are the main method used to destroy and undermine equality of all under the law. Any attempt to implement them in any governmental system is SATANIC and emulates Satan's greatest sin. Those in government who institute or enforce franchises will therefore get the same punishment as Satan did for exactly the same reasons.

5.4.8.11.20 How to answer questions about your civil domicile at a government deposition

When one of the members of this ministry was deposed by the government, one of the first questions posed by the U.S. Attorney who deposed him was his civil domicile. Here is the HILARIOUS interchange that completely destroyed their civil jurisdiction. We begin the interchange after the line below. It is quite insightful.

QUESTION 1: Where do you live?

ANSWER 1: In my body.

1 QUESTION 2: Where does your body sleep at night?

2 ANSWER 2: In a bed.

3 QUESTION 3: Where is the bed?

4 ANSWER 3: On the floor.

5 QUESTION 4: Where is the floor?

6 ANSWER 4: On the ground.

7 QUESTION 5: And where is the ground?

8 ANSWER 5: On the territory of my ONLY Sovereign, who is God. The Bible says in Gen. 1:1, Psalm 24:1, Psalm 89:11-
9 13, Isaiah 45:12, and Deut. 10:14 that God and NOT Caesar owns the Heaven and the Earth.

10 "The earth is the LORD's, and all its fullness,
11 The world and those who dwell therein."
12 [Psalm 24:1, Bible, NKJV]
13

14 The heavens are Yours [God's], the earth also is Yours;
15 The world and all its fullness, You have founded them.
16 The north and the south, You have created them;
17 Tabor and Hermon rejoice in Your name.
18 You have a mighty arm;
19 Strong is Your hand, and high is Your right hand."
20 [Psalm 89:11-13, Bible, NKJV]
21

22 "I have made the earth,
23 And created man on it.
24 I—My hands—stretched out the heavens,
25 And all their host I have commanded."
26 [Isaiah 45:12, Bible, NKJV]
27

28 "Indeed heaven and the highest heavens belong to the Lord your God, also the earth with all that is in it."
29 [Deuteronomy 10:14, Bible, NKJV]

30 God is therefore the only one who can make laws or "rules" for that Earth, just like Caesar is the only one who can make 31 "rules" for his property under Article 4, Section 3, Clause 2 of the Constitution. The Earth is under HOSTILE temporary
32 foreign possession to the injury of its real owner, who is God. Caesar is renting out STOLEN property. Everything he earns 33 from renting that property is criminally laundered money.

34 For the upright will dwell in the land,
35 And the blameless will remain in it;
36 But the wicked [covetous public servants, Form #11.401] will be cut off from the earth,
37 And the unfaithful will be uprooted from it.
38 [Prov. 2:21-22, Bible, NKJV]

39 As God's full-time ambassador on a temporary mission to this Earth, all property in my name is really held by God under the 40 authority of my delegation of authority order, which is the Holy Bible trust indenture. The corpus of that trust is the entire 41 Heavens and the Earth. This is EXACTLY the same way as how the Constitution and the government it created works, but 42 it has a different Sovereign to serve and a different set of property to manage. I am a mere agent, but God is the Principal 43 under the laws of agency. This is because He owns the NAME I use. My delegation of authority order is documented in:

Delegation of Authority from God to Christians, Form #13.007
<https://sedm.org/Forms/13-SelfFamilyChurchGovnce/DelOfAuthority.pdf>

1 If you want to interfere with the above delegation of authority order, you are violating the First Amendment. THAT, in fact,
2 is WHY its the FIRST Amendment: Because violating it breaks down the separation between the CIVIL statutory law, which
3 is CONSENSUAL, and the CRIMINAL statutory law, which is NOT.

4 Jesus said in Matt. 22:21 "Render to Caesar that which is Caesar's". A tax collector and the FIRST person called to repentance
5 by Jesus wrote that. Now that we know that EVERYTHING belongs to God, we know what Jesus REALLY meant when
6 He said that. There is NOTHING to Render to Caesar! By saying this, Jesus ALSO clarified where the authority to tax
7 CAME from, which is that the OWNER of the property is the ONLY one who can tax or regulate it or control it or write rules
8 or laws for it.

9 If my property is in fact PRIVATE and absolutely owned by me, you can't tax it and I can make ANY rule or condition I
10 want on the use of that property, including the right to exclude YOU from using or benefitting from or taxing it. The 11 protection of absolute ownership of PRIVATE property is the ONLY purpose for establishing government! By trying to 12 interfere with absolute ownership in these legal proceedings, you are PROVING that you are NOT in fact a "government" as 13 the Declaration of Independence defines it, because you REFUSE to even acknowledge the existence of the origin of your 14 authority to even EXIST as a "government", which is PRIVATE, absolutely owned property:

15 "[It is an] essential, unalterable right in nature, engrafted into the British constitution as a fundamental law,
16 and ever held sacred and irrevocable by the subjects within the realm, that what a man has honestly acquired
17 is absolutely his own, which he may freely give, but cannot be taken from him without his consent."

18 [Samuel Adams, The Massachusetts Circular Letter, February 11, 1768; SOURCE:
19 <https://founders.archives.gov/documents/Adams/99-02-02-7094>]

21 "For the principal aim of society is to protect individuals in the enjoyment of those absolute rights [meaning
22 ABSOLUTE OWNERSHIP of PRIVATE property], which were vested in them by the immutable laws of 23 nature; but which could not be preserved in peace without the mutual assistance and intercourse, which is 24 gained by the institution of friendly and social communities. Hence it follows, that the first and primary end
25 of human laws is to maintain and regulate these absolute rights of individuals."

26 "By the absolute rights [such as ABSOLUTE ownership of property] of individuals we mean those which are so
27 in their primary and strictest sense; such as would belong to their persons merely in a state of nature, and which
28 every man is entitled to enjoy whether out of society as a [non-resident non-person, Form #05.020] or in it [as a
29 STATUTORY or CONSTITUTIONAL citizen, Form #05.006]." - Ibid.

33 "We have repeatedly held that, as to property reserved by its owner for private use, 'the right to exclude [others
34 is] one of the most essential sticks in the bundle of rights that are commonly characterized as property.'" [Loretto

36 U.S. 164, 176 (1979). "

37 [Nollan v. California Coastal Comm'n, 483 U.S. 825 (1987)]

38
39 "In this case, we hold that the "right to exclude," so universally held to be a fundamental element of the property
40 right,<sup>[11]</sup> falls within this category of interests that the Government cannot take without compensation."

41 [Kaiser Aetna v. United States, 444 U.S. 164 (1979)]

42
43 [11] See, e. g., United States v. Pueblo of San Ildefonso, 206 Ct.Cl. 649, 669-670, 513 F.2d. 1383, 1394 (1975);
44 United States v. Lutz, 295 F.2d. 736, 740 (CA5 1961). As stated by Mr. Justice Brandeis, "[a]n essential element
45 of individual property is the legal right to exclude others from enjoying it." [International News Service v.
46 Associated Press](#), 248 U.S. 215, 250 (1918) (dissenting opinion).

47 If I can't exclude you but you can exclude me, then I'm not the real owner and there is NO "government" as classically
48 defined. Furthermore, you are committing FRAUD to call yourself a government. You are a criminal PROTECTION
49 RACKET with a monopoly on protection who should be in jail!

1 God COMMANDS me to have my domicile and my STATUTORY citizenship, which are both synonymous, in the Kingdom

6 "Now, therefore, you are no longer strangers and foreigners, but fellow citizens with the saints and members of

8 [Ephesians 2:19, Bible, NKJV]

9 "These all died in faith, not having received the promises, but having seen them afar off were assured of them,
10 embraced them and confessed that they were strangers and pilgrims [transient foreigners] on the earth."
11 [Hebrews 11:13, Bible, NKJV]

12 "Beloved, I beg you as sojourners and pilgrims, abstain from fleshly lusts which war against the soul..."
13 [1 Peter 2:11, Bible, NKJV]

14 That is the ONLY way He can be my judge and lawgiver as His delegation order commands and requires.

15 "For the Lord is our Judge, the Lord is our Lawgiver, The Lord is our King; He will save [and CIVILLY protect]
16 us."
17 [Isaiah 33:22, Bible, NKJV]

18 President Obama furthermore acknowledged that churches and ministries are the FOUNDATION of freedom and that all 19 good Christians are "foreigners and strangers" on the Earth. Watch for yourself:

- 20 1. President Obama admits that Christian Churches are the Foundation of Justice and Liberty for All
21 <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=ZvtgIUESv3o&list=PLin1scINPTOvaVMZUINCbab1r0z61UzGg>
- 22 2. President Obama Admits that People of Faith are foreigners and strangers in their Own Society
23 <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=UeKbkAkASX4&list=PLin1scINPTOvaVMZUINCbab1r0z61UzGg>

24 What MAKES the above true is PRECISELY the fact that the First Commandment of the Ten Commandments in Exodus 20
25 states that Christians CANNOT place any man-made god, political ruler, or government ABOVE God in importance. That
26 means that all political rulers and Governments MUST be BELOW them and serve them, rather than ABOVE them, as Jesus
27 commanded:

28 "You know that the rulers of the Gentiles lord it over [ABOVE] them, and those who are great exercise authority
29 over them. Yet it shall not be so among you; but whoever desires to become great among you, let him be your 30 servant. And whoever desires to be first among you, let him be your slave— just as the Son of Man did not come 31 to be served, but to serve, and to give His life a ransom for many."
32 [Matt. 20: 25-28, Bible, NKJV. See also Mark 10:42-45]

33 To allow any political ruler to be my civil lawgiver would be to DEFEAT and undermine the above command and violate
34 not only the First Commandment, but the First Amendment as well.

35 QUESTION: Are you a public SERVANT, or a public MASTER. And if the answer is SERVANT, who are you here to 36 serve today? Am I a CUSTOMER of OPTIONAL civil protection, or a statutory public EMPLOYEE who is presumed to 37 take orders from you within a DULOCRACY?

38 5.4.8.12 People with either no domicile or a domicile outside the government at the place they live

39 5.4.8.12.1 Divorcing the "state": Persons with no domicile, who create their own "state", or a domicile in the 40 Kingdom of Heaven

41 If we divorce the society where we were born, do not abandon our nationality and allegiance to the state of our birth, but then 42 choose a domicile in a place other than where we physically live and which is outside of any government that might have 43 jurisdiction in the place where we live, then we become "transient foreigners" and "de facto stateless persons" in relation to 44 the government of the place we occupy.

45 "Transient foreigner. One who visits the country, without the intention of remaining."

[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1498]

A "de facto stateless person" is anyone who is not entitled to claim the protection or aid of the government in the place where they live:

*Social Security Program Operations Manual System (POMS)
RS 02640.040 Stateless Persons*

[. . .]

DE FACTO—Persons who have left the country of which they were nationals and no longer enjoy its protection and assistance. They are usually political refugees. They are legally citizens of a country because its laws do not permit denaturalization or only permit it with the country's approval.

[. . .]

2. De Facto Status

Assume an individual is de facto stateless if he/she:

a. says he/she is stateless but cannot establish he/she is de jure stateless; and

b. establishes that:

- he/she has taken up residence [chosen a legal domicile] outside the country of his/her nationality;
- there has been an event which is hostile to him/her, such as a sudden or radical change in the government, in the country of nationality; and

NOTE: In determining whether an event was hostile to the individual, it is sufficient to show the individual had reason to believe it would be hostile to him/her.

- he/she renounces, in a sworn statement, the protection and assistance of the government of the country of which he/she is a national and declares he/she is stateless. The statement must be sworn to before an individual legally authorized to administer oaths and the original statement must be submitted to SSA.

De facto [stateless] status stays in effect only as long as the conditions in b. continue to exist. If, for example, the individual returns [changes their domicile back] to his/her country of nationality, de facto statelessness ends.

Notice the key attribute of a "de facto stateless person" is that they have abandoned the protection of their government because they believe it is hostile to him or her and is not only not protective, but is even injurious. Below is how the Supreme Court describes such persons:

*The writers upon the law of nations distinguish between a temporary residence in a foreign country for a special purpose and a residence accompanied with an intention to make it a permanent place of abode. The latter is styled by Vattel [in his book The Law of Nations as] "domicile," which he defines to be "a habitation fixed in any place, with an intention of always staying there." Such a person, says this author, becomes a member of the new society at least as a permanent inhabitant, and is a kind of citizen of the inferior order from the native citizens, but is, nevertheless, united and subject to the society, without participating in all its advantages. This right of domicile, he continues, is not established unless the person makes sufficiently known his intention of fixing there, either tacitly or by an express declaration. Vatt. Law Nat. pp. 92, 93. Grotius nowhere uses the word "domicile," but he also distinguishes between those who stay in a foreign country by the necessity of their affairs, or from any other temporary cause, and those who reside there from a permanent cause. The former he denominates "strangers," and the latter, "subjects." The rule is thus laid down by Sir Robert Phillimore:*

*There is a class of persons which cannot be, strictly speaking, included in either of these denominations of naturalized or native citizens, namely, the class of those who have ceased to reside [maintain a domicile] in their native country, and have taken up a permanent abode in another. These are domiciled inhabitants. They have not put on a new citizenship through some formal mode enjoined by the law or the new country. They are de facto, though not de jure, citizens of the country of their [new chosen] domicile.

[Fong Yue Ting v. United States, 149 U.S. 698 (1893)]

We must remember that in America, the People, and not our public servants, are the Sovereigns. We The People, who are the Sovereigns, choose our associations and govern ourselves through our elected representatives.

"The words 'people of the United States' and 'citizens,' are synonymous terms, and mean the same thing. They both describe the political body who, according to our republican institutions, form the sovereignty, and who hold the power and conduct the government through their representatives. They are what we familiarly call the 'sovereign people,' and every citizen is one of this people, and a constituent member of this sovereignty. ..."
[Boyd v. State of Nebraska, 143 U.S. 135 (1892)]

When those representatives cease to have our best interests or protection in mind, then we have not only a moral right, but a duty, according to our Declaration of Independence, 1776, to alter our form of self-government by whatever means necessary to guarantee our future security.

"But when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same Object evinces a design to reduce them under absolute Despotism, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such Government, and to provide new Guards for their future security."
[Declaration of Independence]

The lawful and most peaceful means of altering that form of government is simply to do one of the following:

1. Form our own self-government based on the de jure constitution and change our domicile to it. See:

Self Government Federation: Articles of Confederation, Form #13.002
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

2. Choose an existing government or country that is already available elsewhere on the planet as our protector.
3. Choose a domicile in a place that doesn't have a government. For instance, choose a domicile somewhere you have been in the past that doesn't have a government. For example, if you have legal evidence that you took a cruise, then choose your domicile in the middle of the ocean somewhere where the ship went.
4. Use God's laws as the basis for your own self-government and protection, as suggested in this book.

By doing one of the above, we are "firing" our local servants in government because they are not doing their job of protection adequately, and when we do this, we cease to have any obligation to pay for their services through taxation and they cease to have any obligation to provide any services. If we choose God and His laws as our form of government, then we choose Heaven as our domicile and our place of primary allegiance and protection. We then become:

1. "citizens of Heaven".
2. "nationals but not citizens" of the country in which we live.
3. Transient foreigners.
4. Ambassadors and ministers of a foreign state called Heaven.

Below is how one early state court described the absolute right to "divorce the state" by choosing a domicile in a place other than where we physically are at the time:

"When a change of government takes place, from a monarchical to a republican government, the old form is dissolved. Those who lived under it, and did not choose to become members of the new, had a right to refuse their allegiance to it, and to retire elsewhere. By being a part of the society subject to the old government, they had not entered into any engagement to become subject to any new form the majority might think proper to adopt. That the majority shall prevail is a rule posterior to the formation of government, and results from it. It is not a rule upon mankind in their natural state. There, every man is independent of all laws, except those prescribed by nature. He is not bound by any institutions formed by his fellowmen without his consent"
[Cruden v. Neale, 2 N.C., 2 S.E. 70 (1796)]

How do we officially and formally notify the "state" that we have made a conscious decision to legally divorce it by moving our domicile outside its jurisdiction? That process is documented in the references below:

4. After accomplishing either of the above items, which are the same, making sure that all future government forms we fill out properly and accurately describe both our domicile and our citizenship status, in accordance with section 5.4.8.13.1 later.
5. By making sure that at all times, we use the proper words to describe our status so that we don't create false presumptions that might cause the government to believe we are "residents" with a domicile in the "United States" (federal territory):
- 5.1. Do not describe ourselves with the following words:
- 5.1.1. "individual" as defined in 5 U.S.C. §552a(a)(2) and 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3).
- 5.1.2. "taxpayer" as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(14).
- 5.1.3. "U.S. person" as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30).
- 5.1.4. "resident" as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A).
- 5.1.5. "alien"
- 5.2. Describe ourselves with the following words and phrases:
- 5.2.1. "nontaxpayer" not subject to the Internal Revenue Code. See:
- 5.2.1.1. "Taxpayer" v. "Nontaxpayer", Which One Are You?:
<http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/Articles/TaxpayerVNontaxpayer.htm>
- 5.2.1.2. Your Rights as a "nontaxpayer", item 5.8
<http://sedm.org/LibertyU/LibertyU.htm>
- 5.2.2. "nonresident alien" as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B) IF AND ONLY IF you are engaged in a public office. Otherwise you are a "non-resident non-person" or "transient foreigner".
- 5.2.3. The type of "nonresident alien" defined in 26 C.F.R. §1.871-1(b)(1)(i) ONLY IF YOU ARE ENGAGED IN A PUBLIC OFFICE. Otherwise, there is no regulation that describes your status.
- 5.2.4. "national" under 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21), but not "citizen" as defined in 8 U.S.C. §1401. This person is also described in 8 U.S.C. §1452 if they were born in a U.S. possession.
- 5.2.5. Not engaged in a "trade or business" as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26).
- 5.2.6. Have not made any "elections" under 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(4)(B), 26 U.S.C. §6013(g) or (h), or 26 C.F.R. §1.871-1(a).
- 5.2.7. A "stateless person" who does not satisfy any of the criteria for diversity of citizenship described in 28 U.S.C. §1332 and who therefore cannot be sued in federal court. See Newman-Green v. Alfonso Larrain, 490 U.S. 826 (1989):

"In order to be a citizen of a State within the meaning of the diversity statute, a natural person must both be a citizen of the United States and be domiciled within the State. See Robertson v. Cease, 97 U.S. 646, 648-649 (1878); Brown v. Keene, 8 Pet. 112, 115 (1834). The problem in this case is that Bettison, although a United States citizen, has no domicile in any State. He is therefore "stateless" for purposes of § 1332(a)(3). Subsection 1332(a)(2), which confers jurisdiction in the District Court when a citizen of a State sues aliens only, also could not be satisfied because Bettison is a United States citizen. [490 U.S. 829]"
[Newman-Green v. Alfonso Larrain, 490 U.S. 826 (1989)]

We emphasize that it isn't one's citizenship but one's choice of legal "domicile" that makes one sovereign and a "nontaxpayer". The way we describe our citizenship status is affected by and a result of our choice of legal "domicile", but changing one's citizenship status is not the nexus for becoming either a "sovereign" or a "nontaxpayer".

The only legal requirement for changing our domicile is that we must reside on the territory of the sovereign to whom we claim allegiance, and must intend to make membership in the community established by the sovereign permanent. In this context, the Bible reminds us that the Earth was created by and owned by our Sovereign, who is God, and that those vain politicians who claim to "own" or control it are simply "stewards" over what actually belongs to God alone. To wit:

*The heavens are Yours [God's], the earth also is Yours;
 The world and all its fullness, You have founded them.
 The north and the south, You have created them;
 Tabor and Hermon rejoice in Your name.
 You have a mighty arm;
 Strong is Your hand, and high is Your right hand."
 [Psalm 89:11-13, Bible, NKJV]*

---

"I have made the earth,
And created man on it.
I—My hands—stretched out the heavens,
And all their host I have commanded."
[Isaiah 45:12, Bible, NKJV]

---

"Indeed heaven and the highest heavens belong to the Lord your God, also the earth with all that is in it."
[Deuteronomy 10:14, Bible, NKJV]

Some misguided Christians will try to quote Jesus, when He said of taxes the following in relation to "domicile":

"Render therefore to Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and to God the things that are God's."
[Matt. 22:15-22, Bible, NKJV]

However, based on the scriptures above, which identify God as the owner of the Earth and the Heavens, we must ask ourself:

"What is left that belongs to Caesar if EVERYTHING belongs to God?"

The answer is NOTHING, except that which he STEALS from the Sovereign people and which they don't force him to return. Jesus knew this, but he gave a very indirect answer to keep Himself out of trouble when asked about taxes in the passage above. Therefore, when we elect or consent to change our domicile to the Kingdom of Heaven, we are acknowledging the Truth and the Authority of the Scripture and Holy Law above and the sovereignty of the Lord in the practical affairs of our daily lives. We are acknowledging our stewardship over what ultimately and permanently belongs ONLY to Him, and not to any man. Governments and civilizations come and go, but God's immutable laws are eternal. To NOT do this as a Christian amounts to mutiny against God. Either we honor the first four commandments of the Ten Commandments by doing this, or we will be dethroned as His Sovereigns and Stewards on earth.

"Because you [Solomon, the wisest man who ever lived] have done this , and have not kept My covenant and My statutes [violated God's laws], which I have commanded you, I will surely tear the kingdom [and all your sovereignty] away from you and give it to your [public] servant."
[1 Kings 11:9-13, Bible, NKJV]

By legally and civilly divorcing the "state" in changing our domicile to the Kingdom of Heaven or to someplace on earth where there is not man-made government, we must consent to be governed exclusively by God's laws and express our unflinching allegiance to Him as the source of everything we have and everything that we are. In doing so we:

1. Are following God's mandate not to serve foreign gods, laws, or civil rulers.

"You shall make no covenant [contract or franchise] with them [foreigners, pagans], nor with their [pagan government] gods [laws or judges]. They shall not dwell in your land [and you shall not dwell in theirs by becoming a "resident" or domiciliary in the process of contracting with them], lest they make you sin against Me [God]. For if you serve their [government] gods [under contract or agreement or franchise], it will surely be a snare to you."
[Exodus 23:32-33, Bible, NKJV]

2. Escape the constraints of earthly civil statutory law. This type of law is law exclusively for government and public officers, so in a sense we are abandoning civil government, any duties under it, and any privileges, public rights, or "benefits" that it conveys based on our civil "status" under it. See:

Why Civil Statutory Law is Law for Government and Not Private Persons, Form #05.037
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

3. Cease to be a statutory "citizen", "resident", or "inhabitant". Instead we become transient foreigners and nonresidents under the civil statutory law.
4. Retain the protections of the Constitution and the common law for our natural rights.
5. Retain the protections of the criminal law. These laws are enforced whether we consent or not.
6. Are not "lawless" or an anarchist in a legal sense, because we are still subject to God's law, the common law, and the criminal law.
7. Protect and retain our equality, sovereignty, and dignity in relation to every other person under the civil law. The Declaration of Independence calls this our "separate and equal station".

1 The above is the nirvana described by the Apostle Paul when he very insightfully said of this process of submission to God
2 the following:

3 "But if you are led by the Spirit, you are not under the law [man's law]."
4 [Gal. 5:18, Bible, NKJV]

5 The tendency of early Christians to do the above was precisely the reason why the Romans persecuted the Christians when
6 Christianity was in its infancy: It lead to anarchy because Christians, like the Israelites, refused to be governed by anything
7 but God's laws:

8 *"Then Haman said to King Ahasuerus, "There is a certain people [the Jews, who today are the equivalent of
9 Christians] scattered and dispersed among the people in all the provinces of your kingdom; their laws are
10 different from all other people's because they are [God's laws!], and they do not keep the [king's \[unjust\] laws.](#)
11 Therefore it is not fitting for the king to let them remain. If it pleases the king, let a decree be written that they be 12 destroyed, and I will pay ten thousand talents of silver into the hands of those who do the work, to bring it into 13 the king's treasuries."
14 *[Esther 3:8-9, Bible, NKJV]

15 Christians who are doing and following the will of God are "anarchists". An anarchist is simply anyone who refuses to have 16 an earthly ruler and who instead insists on either self-government or a Theocracy in which God, whichever God you believe 17 in, is our only King, Ruler, Lawgiver and Judge:

18 *Main Entry: an-ar-chy
19 Function: noun

20 *Etymology: Medieval Latin anarchia, from Greek, from anarchos having no [earthly] ruler,
21 from an- + archos ruler -- more at ARCH-
22 [Source: Merriam Webster Dictionary]

23 "For the Lord is our Judge, the Lord is our Lawgiver, The Lord is our King; He will save us."
24 [Isaiah 33:22, Bible, NKJV]

Jesus Is an Anarchist, James Redford

<http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Spirituality/ChurchvState/JesusAnarchist.htm>

26 Christians who are doing the will of God by changing their domicile to Heaven and divorcing the "state" are likely to be
27 persecuted by the government and privileged 501(c)(3) corporate churches just as Jesus was because of their anarchistic
28 tendencies because they render organized government irrelevant and unnecessary:

29 *"If the world hates you, you know that it hated Me before it hated you. If you were of the world, the world would 30 love its own. Yet because you are not of the world, but I chose you out of the world, therefore the world hates
31 you. Remember the word that I said to you, 'A servant is not greater than his master.' If they persecuted Me,
32 they will also persecute you. If they kept My word, they will keep yours also. But all these things they will do
33 to you for My name's sake, because they do not know Him who sent Me. If I had not come and spoken to
34 them, they would have no sin, but now they have no excuse for their sin. He who hates me hated My father
35 also. If I had not done among them the works which no one else did, they would have no sin; but now they
36 have seen and also hated both Me and My Father. But this happened that the word might be fulfilled which is 37 written in their law, 'They hated Me without a cause.'"
38 *[John 15:18-25, Bible, NKJV]

39 Being "chosen out of the world" simply means, in legal terms, that we do not have a domicile here and are "transient 40 foreigners".

41 Those who do choose God as their sole source of law and civil (not criminal) government:

- 42 1. Become a "foreign government" in respect to the United States government and all other governments.
- 43 2. Are committing themselves to the ultimate First Amendment protected religious practice, which is that of adopting God 44 and His sovereign laws as their only form of self-government.
- 45 3. Are taking the ultimate step in personal responsibility, by assuming responsibility for every aspect of their lives by 46 divorcing the state and abandoning all government franchises:

Government Instituted Slavery Using Franchises, Form #05.030

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

4. Effectively become their own self-government and fire the government where they live in the context of all civil matters.
5. Are protected by the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act \(F.S.I.A.\), 28 U.S.C. Part IV, Chapt. 97.
6. Are protected by the Minimum Contacts Doctrine and therefore exempt from the jurisdiction of federal and state courts except as they satisfy the provisions of the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act or the "Longarm Statute" passed by the state where they temporarily inhabit.
7. Are internationally protected persons pursuant to 18 U.S.C. §112.
8. Are on an equal footing with any other nation and may therefore assert sovereign immunity in any proceeding against the government. This implies that:
  - 8.1. Any attempt to drag you into court by a government must be accompanied by proof that you consented in writing to the jurisdiction of the government attempting to sue you. Such consent becomes the basis for satisfying the criteria within the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act \(F.S.I.A.\), 28 U.S.C. Part IV, Chapt. 97.
  - 8.2. You may use the same defense as the government in proving a valid contractual obligation, by showing the government the delegation of authority order constraining your delegated authority as God's "public officer". Anything another government alleges you consented in writing to must be consistent with the delegation of authority order or else none of the rights accrued to them are defensible in court. In this sense, you are using the same lame excuse they use for getting out of any obligations that you consented to, but were not authorized to engage in by the Holy Bible. This is explained in the document below:

Delegation of Authority Order from God to Christians, Form #13.007

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

9. Become ministers, ambassadors, "employees", "public officers", and officers of a foreign state called Heaven.
10. May not simultaneously act as "public officers" for any other foreign government, which would represent a conflict of interest.

"No one can serve two masters [two employers, for instance]; for either he will hate the one and love the other, or else he will be loyal to the one and despise the other. You cannot serve God and mammon [government]."
[Matt. 6:24, Bible, NKJV. Written by a tax collector]

11. Are expressly exempt from taxation pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §892\(a\)\(1\).
12. May file IRS Form W-8EXP as a "non-resident non-person" and exempt all of their earnings from federal and state income taxation.
13. May use IRS Publication 515 to control their withholding as "nonresident aliens" if engaged in a public office, or must modify all existing forms if not engaged in a public office.

The other very interesting consequences of the above status which makes it especially appealing are the following:

1. Nowhere in the Internal Revenue Code are any of the following terms defined:
  - 1.1. "foreign".
  - 1.2. "foreign government".
  - 1.3. "government".
 Therefore, it would be impossible for the IRS to prove that you aren't a "foreign government".
2. The most important goal of the Constitutional Convention, and the reasons for the adoption of the Ninth and Tenth Amendment to the United States Constitution was to preserve as much self-government to the people and the states as possible. Any attempt to compel anyone to become a "subject" or accept more government than they need therefore violates the legislative intent of the United States Constitution.

The determination of the Framers Convention and the ratifying conventions to preserve complete and unimpaired state self-government in all matters not committed to the general government is one of the plainest facts which emerges from the history of their deliberations. And adherence to that determination is incumbent equally upon the federal government and the states. State powers can neither be appropriated on the one hand nor abdicated on the other. As this court said in Texas v. White, 7 Wall. 700, 725, 'The preservation of the States, and the maintenance of their governments, are as much within the design and care of the Constitution as the preservation of the Union and the maintenance of the National government. The Constitution, in all its provisions, looks to an indestructible Union, composed of indestructible States.' Every journey to a forbidden end begins with the first step; and the danger of such a step by the federal government in the direction of taking over the powers of the states is that the end of the journey may find the states so despoiled of their powers, or what may amount to the same thing-so [298 U.S. 238, 296] relieved of the responsibilities which possession of the powers necessarily enjoins, as to reduce them to little more than geographical subdivisions of the national domain. It is safe to say that if, when the Constitution was under consideration, it had been thought that any such danger lurked behind its plain words, it would never have been ratified.

And the Constitution itself is in every real sense a law-the lawmakers being the people themselves, in whom under our system all political power and sovereignty primarily resides, and through whom such power and sovereignty primarily speaks. It is by that law, and not otherwise, that the legislative, executive, and judicial agencies which it created exercise such political authority as they have been permitted to possess. The Constitution speaks for itself in terms so plain that to misunderstand their import is not rationally possible. 'We the People of the United States,' it says, 'do ordain and establish this Constitution.' Ordain and establish! These are definite words of enactment, and without more would stamp what follows with the dignity and character of law. The framers of the Constitution, however, were not content to let the matter rest here, but provided explicitly-'This Constitution, and the Laws of the United States which shall be made in Pursuance thereof; ... shall be the supreme Law of the Land.' (Const. art. 6, cl. 2.) The supremacy of the Constitution as law is thus declared without qualification. That supremacy is absolute; the supremacy of a statute enacted by Congress is not absolute but conditioned upon its being made in pursuance of the Constitution. And a judicial tribunal, clothed by that instrument with complete judicial power, and, therefore, by the very nature of the power, required to ascertain and apply the law to the facts in every case or proceeding properly brought for adjudication, must apply the supreme law and reject the inferior stat- [298 U.S. 238, 297] ute whenever the two conflict. In the discharge of that duty, the opinion of the lawmakers that a statute passed by them is valid must be given great weight, Adkins v. Children's Hospital, 261 U.S. 525, 544, 43 S.Ct. 394, 24 A.L.R. 1238; but their opinion, or the court's opinion, that the statute will prove greatly or generally beneficial is wholly irrelevant to the inquiry. Schechter Poultry Corp. v. United States, 295 U.S. 495, 549, 550 S., 55 S.Ct. 837, 97 A.L.R. 947. [Carter v. Carter Coal Co., 298 U.S. 238 (1936)]

3. If another government attempts to interfere with the affairs of your own foreign self-government, then they:
  - 3.1. Are violating your First Amendment right to practice your religion by living under the laws of your God. This tort is cognizable under the Religious Freedom Restoration Act, 42 U.S.C. Chapter 21B and constitutes a tort against the foreign invader.
  - 3.2. Are hypocrites, because they are depriving others equal right to the same authority that they themselves have. No legitimate government can claim to be operating lawfully which interferes with the equal right of others to self-government.
  - 3.3. Are in a sense attempting to outlaw the ultimate form of personal responsibility, which is entirely governing your own life and supporting yourself. The outlawing of personal responsibility and replacing or displacing it with collective responsibility of the "state" can never be in the public interest, especially considering how badly our present government mismanages and bankrupts nearly everything it puts its hands on.

5.4.8.12.2 How do "transient foreigners" and "nonresidents" protect themselves in state court?

Now that we understand the differences between those who have contracted to be protected, called "citizens", "residents", and "inhabitants", and those who have not, called "transient foreigners" or "nonresidents", the next issue we must deal with is to determine how those who are "nonresidents" or "transient foreigners" in relation to a specific state government can achieve a remedy for the protection of their rights in state court. It will interest the reader to learn that "transient foreigners" have the same constitutional protections for their rights as citizens or residents. Here is what the U.S. Supreme Court said on this subject. Those who are "transient foreigners" are STATUTORY "non-resident non-persons" in respect to the governments identified in the cite below. The "aliens" they are talking about are foreign nationals born in foreign countries.

"There are literally millions of aliens within the jurisdiction of the United States[*]. The Fifth Amendment, as well as the Fourteenth Amendment, protects every one of these persons from deprivation of life, liberty, or property without due process of law. Wong Yang Sung v. McGrath, 339 U.S. 33, 48-51, 70 S.Ct. 445, 453-455, 94 L.Ed. 616, 627-629; Wong Wing v. United States, 163 U.S. 228, 238, 16 S.Ct. 977, 981, 41 L.Ed. 140, 143; see Russian Fleet v. United States, 282 U.S. 481, 489, 51 S.Ct. 229, 231, 75 L.Ed. 473, 476. Even one whose presence in this country is unlawful, involuntary, or transitory is entitled to that constitutional protection. Wong Yang Sung, supra ; Wong Wing, supra.

The fact that all persons, aliens and citizens alike, are protected by the Due Process Clause does not lead to the further conclusion that all aliens are entitled to enjoy all the advantages of citizenship or, indeed, to the conclusion that all aliens must be placed in a single homogeneous legal classification. For a host of constitutional and statutory provisions rest on the premise that a legitimate distinction between citizens and aliens may justify attributes and benefits for one class not accorded to the other; 12 and the class of aliens is itself a heterogeneous multitude of persons with a wide-ranging variety of ties to this country.13"

In order to get to the point where we can identify how remedies for constitutional rights violations are achieved, we must first describe the TWO types of jurisdictions that the state courts exercise, because it is mainly state courts where such rights violations would be vindicated. We don't have space here to cover all the nuances of this subject, but we will summarize these differences and point you to more information if you want to look into it. There are two types of jurisdictions within each state government:

1. The de jure republic under the Articles of Confederation called the "Republic of ____". This jurisdiction controls everything that happens on land protected by the Constitution. It protects EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE property using ONLY the Common law and NOT civil law.
2. The federal corporation under the United States Constitution called the "State of ____". This jurisdiction handles everything that deals with government agency, office, employment, "benefits", "public rights", and territory and it's legislation is limited to those domiciled on federal territory or contracting with either the state or federal governments. Collectively, the subject of legislation aimed at this jurisdiction is the "public domain" or what the courts call "publici juris".

The differences between the two jurisdictions above are exhaustively described in the following fascinating document:

Corporatization and Privatization of the Government, Form #05.024
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

In the above document, a table is provided comparing the two types of jurisdictions which we repeat here, extracted from section 14.7. Understanding this table is important in determining how we achieve a remedy in a state court for an injury to our constitutional PRIVATE rights.

1 When we say that we are a "transient foreigner" or "nonresident" within a court pleading or within this document, we must
2 be careful to define WHICH of the TWO jurisdictions above that status relates to in order to avoid ambiguity and avoid being
3 called "frivolous" by the courts. Within this document and elsewhere, the term "transient foreigner" or "nonresident" relates
4 to the jurisdiction in the right column above but NOT to the column on the left. You can be a "nonresident" of the Corporate
5 state on the right and yet at the same time ALSO be a "citizen" or "resident" of the Republic/De Jure State on the left above.
6 This distinction is critical. If you are at all confused by this distinction, we strongly suggest reading the Corporatization and
7 Privatization of the Government document referenced above so that the distinctions are clear.

8 The Corporate state on the right above enacts statutes that can and do only relate to those who are public entities (called 9 "publici juris") that are government instrumentalities, employees, officers, and franchisees of the government called
10 "corporations", all of whom are consensually associated with the government by virtue of exercising their right to contract
11 with the government. Technically speaking, all such statutes are franchises implemented using the civil law. This is explained
12 further in the following:

Government Instituted Slavery Using Franchises, Form #05.030

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

13 The U.S. Supreme Court has held that the ability to regulate private conduct is repugnant to the Constitution. Consequently,
14 the government cannot enact statutes or law of any kind that would regulate the conduct of private parties. Therefore, nearly 15 all civil statutes passed by any state or municipal government, and especially those relating to licensed activities, can and do
16 only relate to public and not private parties that are all officers of the government and not human beings. This is exhaustively
17 analyzed and proven in the following:

Why Statutory Civil Law is Law for Government and Not Private Persons, Form #05.037

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

18 We will now spend the rest of this section applying these concepts to how one might pursue a remedy for an injury to so-
19 called "right" within a state court by invoking the jurisdiction of the Republic/De Jure state on the left and avoiding the 20 jurisdiction of the Corporate state on the right.

21 Civil law attaches to one's voluntary choice of domicile/residence. Criminal law does not. De jure criminal law depends only 22 on physical presence on the territory of the sovereign and the commission of an injurious act against a fellow sovereign on
23 that territory. Laws like the vehicle code do have criminal provisions, but they are not de jure criminal law, but rather civil 24 law that attaches to the domicile/residence of the party within a franchise agreement, which is the "driver license" and all the 25 rights it confers to the government to regulate your actions as a "driver" domiciled in the Corporate state.

1 Within the forms and publications on this website there are two possible statuses that one may declare as a sovereign:

- 2 1. You are a transient foreigner and a citizen of ONLY the Kingdom of Heaven on earth. "My state" in this context means
3 the Holy Bible.
- 4 2. You are a state national with a domicile in the Republic/De Jure state but not the Corporate state. "My state" in this
5 context means the de jure state and excludes just about everything passed by the corporate state government, including
6 all franchises such as marriage licenses, income taxes, etc. Franchises cannot lawfully be implemented in the De Jure
7 State but can only occur in the Corporate State.

8 Both of the above statuses have in common that those who declare themselves to be either cannot invoke the statutory law of 9 the Corporate State, but must invoke only the common law and the Constitution in their defense. There is tons of reference
10 material on the common law in the following:

Sovereignty and Freedom Page, Section 8: Self Government, Family Guardian Fellowship
<http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Freedom/Freedom.htm>

11 The following book even has sample pleadings for the main common law actions:

Handbook of Common Law Pleading, Benjamin J. Shipman
<http://books.google.com/books?id=7gk-AAAAIAAJ&printsec=titlepage>

12 Transient foreigners may not have a domicile or be subject to the civil laws in relation only to the place they have that status,
13 but they don't need the civil laws to be protected. The Constitution attaches to the land, and not the status of the persons 14 on that land.

15 *"It is locality that is determinative of the application of the Constitution, in such matters as judicial procedure,
16 and not the status of the people who live in it."
17 [Balzac v. Porto Rico, 258 U.S. 298 (1922)]*

18 The Constitution and the common law are the only thing one needs to protect oneself as a PRIVATE and not PUBLIC entity.
19 That is why we place so much emphasis on the common law on this website. Englishman John Harris explains why in the 20 following wonderful video:

It's an Illusion, John Harris
<http://tpuc.org/node/558>

21 Those who are believers AND transient foreigners but not "citizens", "residents" or "inhabitants" of either the Republic/De
22 Jure State or the Corporate State DO in fact STILL have a state, which is the Kingdom of Heaven on Earth. That state has
23 all the elements necessary to be legitimate: territory, people, and laws. The territory is the Earth, which the Bible says
24 belongs to the Lord and not Caesar. It has people, which are your fellow believers. The laws are itemized in the Holy Bible
25 and enumerated below:

Laws of the Bible, Form #13.001
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

26 In conclusion, those who are "transient foreigners" or "Nonresidents" in relation to the Corporate state can use the state court 27 for protection, but they must:

- 28 1. Be careful to define which of the two possible jurisdictions they are operating within using the documents referenced in 29 this section.
- 30 2. Avoid federal court. All federal circuit and district courts are Article IV territorial courts in the executive and not 31 judicial branch of the government that may only officiate over franchises. They are not Article III constitutional courts
32 that may deal with rights protected by the constitution. This is exhaustively proven with thousands of pages of 33 evidence in:

What Happened to Justice?, Form #06.012
<http://sedm.org/ItemInfo/Ebooks/WhatHappJustice/WhatHappJustice.htm>

3. Properly declare their status consistent with this document in their complaint. See the following forms as an example how to do this:
  - 3.1. Affidavit of Citizenship, Domicile, and Tax Status, Form #02.001
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

4. Respond to discovery relating to their status and standing with the following:

Citizenship, Domicile, and Tax Status Options, Form #10.003
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>
5. Invoke the common law and not statutory law to be protected.
6. Be careful to educate the judge and the jury to prevent common injurious presumptions that would undermine their status. See:

Presumption: Chief Weapon for Unlawfully Enlarging Federal Jurisdiction, Form #05.017
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>
7. Follow the rules of pleading and practice for the common law.
8. Ensure that those who sit on the jury have the same status as them by ensuring that those who are statutory “U.S. citizens” or franchise participants are excluded as having a financial conflict of interest.

5.4.8.12.3 Serving civil legal process on nonresidents is the crime of “simulating legal process”

Some freedom lovers try to form their own private courts or grand juries to try or indict offenses against their rights by actors within the de facto government. Such private courts are sometimes called:

1. Common law courts.
2. Ecclesiastical courts in the case of churches.
3. Franchise courts for the regulation of specific activities such as “driving”. This would include family courts, traffic courts, and social security administrative courts.

Those who convene such courts must be careful how they describe their activities to those outside the group, or the participants could be indicted for simulating legal process. Legal process served by these groups can be called by a number of different names, such as the following:

1. Non-statutory abatement.
2. Private Administrative Process (PAP).

Below is a definition of “simulating legal process”:

“A person commits the offense of simulating legal process if he or she “recklessly causes to be delivered to another any document that simulates a summons, complaint, judgment, or other court process with the intent to . . . cause another to submit to the putative authority of the document; or take any action or refrain from taking any action in response to the document, in compliance with the document, or on the basis of the document.”
[Texas Penal Code Annotated, § 32.48(a)(2)]

Therefore, those forming common law courts or ecclesiastical courts may not use the words “complaint”, “judgment”, “summons” when issuing documents to parties OUTSIDE the group of people who expressly consented to their jurisdiction. In other words, those who are not in the group or who are not “citizens” within whatever community they have formed, may not receive documents that are connected with any existing state or municipal court or which could be confused with such courts.

Below is one ruling by a Texas court relating to a “simulating legal process” charge against an ecclesiastical court:

Free Exercise of Religion

Government action may burden the free exercise of religion, in violation of the First Amendment, 163[10] in two quite different ways: by interfering with a believer's ability to observe the commands or practices of his faith and by encroaching on the ability of a church to manage its internal affairs. Westbrook v. Penley, 231 S.W.3d. 389, 395 (Tex. 2007). In appellant's pro se motions, he refers to the "exercise of one's faith." More specifically, he raised the issue of ecclesiastical abstention in the trial court and cites to cases concerning this doctrine on appeal. His arguments are directed at the trial court's jurisdiction over this matter, not the constitutionality of section 32.48. So, it appears the judiciary's exercise of jurisdiction over the matter, rather than the Legislature's enactment of section 32.48, is the target of his challenge. We, then, will address that aspect of the constitutional issue he now presents on appeal; we will determine whether the trial court's exercise of jurisdiction violated appellant's right to free exercise of religion by encroaching on the ability of his church to manage its internal affairs.

The Constitution forbids the government from interfering with the right of hierarchical religious bodies to establish their own internal rules and regulations and to create tribunals for adjudicating disputes over religious matters. See Serbian E. Orthodox Diocese v. Milivojevich, 426 U.S. 696, 708–09, 724–25, 96 S.Ct. 2372, 49 L.Ed.2d. 151 (1976). Based on this constitutionally-mandated abstention, secular courts may not intrude into the church's governance of "religious" or "ecclesiastical" matters, such as theological controversy, church discipline, ecclesiastical government, or the conformity of members to standards of morality. See In re Godwin, 293 S.W.3d. 742, 748 (Tex.App.—San Antonio 2009, orig. proceeding).

The record shows that Coleman, to whom the "Abatement" was delivered, was not a member of appellant's church. That being so, the church's position on the custody matter is not a purely ecclesiastical matter over which the trial court should have abstained from exercising its jurisdiction. This is not an internal affairs issue because the record conclusively establishes that the recipient is not a member of the church. The ecclesiastical abstention doctrine does not operate to prevent the trial court from exercising its jurisdiction over this matter. We overrule appellant's final issue.

Therefore, if you form a common law or ecclesiastical court you should be careful to:

1. Draft a good membership or citizenship agreement.
2. Require all members to sign the membership or citizenship agreement.
3. Keep careful records that are safe from tampering.
4. NOT serve "legal process" of any kind against those who are NOT consenting members or citizens.

We take the same position in protecting OUR members from secular courts as the secular courts take toward private courts. The First Amendment requires that you have a right to either NOT associate or to associate with any group you choose INCLUDING, but not limited to the "state" having general jurisdiction where you live. That means you have a RIGHT to NOT be:

1. A "citizen" or "resident" in the area where you physically are.
2. A "driver" under the vehicle code.
3. A "spouse" under the family code.
4. A "taxpayer" under the tax code.

The dividing line between who are "members" and who are NOT members is who has a domicile in that specific jurisdiction. The subject of domicile is extensively covered in the following insightful document:

Why Domicile and Becoming a "Taxpayer" Require Your Consent, Form #05.002
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

We allege that secular franchise courts such as tax court, traffic court, family court, social security administrative court, and even civil court in your area are equally culpable for the SAME crime of "simulating legal process" if they serve legal process upon anyone who is NOT a "member" of their "state" and who has notified them of that fact. As such, any at least CIVIL process served upon them by secular courts of the de facto government is ALSO a criminal simulation of legal process because instituted against non-consenting parties who are non-residents and "non-members", just as in the above case. Membership has to be consensual.

1           The record shows that Coleman, to whom the "Abatement" was delivered, was not a member of appellant's
 2 church. That being so, the church's position on the custody matter is not a purely ecclesiastical matter over which
 3 the trial court should have abstained from exercising its jurisdiction. This is not an internal affairs issue because
 4 the record conclusively establishes that the recipient is not a member of the church. The ecclesiastical
 5 abstention doctrine does not operate to prevent the trial court from exercising its jurisdiction over this matter.
 6 We overrule appellant's final issue.
 7 [Michael Runningwolf v. State of Texas, 317 S.W.3d. 829 (2010);

9 We also argue that just like the above ruling, the secular government in fact and in deed is ALSO a church, as described in 10 the following exhaustive proof of that fact:

Socialism: The New American Civil Religion, Form #05.016
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

11 In support of the above, Black's Law Dictionary defines "franchise courts" such as traffic court and family court as PRIVATE 12 courts:

13           "franchise court. Hist. A privately held court that (usu.) exists by virtue of a royal grant [privilege], with 14 jurisdiction over a variety of matters, depending on the grant and whatever powers the court acquires over time.
 15 In 1274, Edward I abolished many of these feudal courts by forcing the nobility to demonstrate by what authority
 16 (quo warranto) they held court. If a lord could not produce a charter reflecting the franchise, the court was 17 abolished. - Also termed courts of the franchise.

18           Dispensing justice was profitable. Much revenue could come from the fees and dues, fines and amercements. This
 19 explains the growth of the second class of feudal courts, the Franchise Courts. They too were private courts held
 20 by feudal lords. Sometimes their claim to jurisdiction was based on old pre-Conquest grants ... But many of them
 21 were, in reality, only wrongful usurpations of private jurisdiction by powerful lords. These were put down after 22 the famous Quo Warranto enquiry in the reign of Edward I." W.J.V. Windeyer, Lectures on Legal History 56-57 23 (2d ed. 1949)."
 24 [Black's Law Dictionary, Seventh Edition, p. 668]

25 As a BARE minimum, we think that if you get summoned into any franchise court for violations of the franchise, such as tax
 26 court, traffic court, and family court, then the government as moving party who summoned you should at LEAST have the 27 burden of proving that you EXPRESSLY CONSENTED in writing to become a "member" of the group that created the court,
 28 such as "taxpayer", "driver", "spouse", etc. and that if they CANNOT satisfy that burden of proof, then:

- 29 1. All charges should be dismissed.
- 30 2. The franchise judge and government prosecutor should BOTH be indicted and civilly sued for simulating legal process
 31 under the common law and not statutory civil law.

32 5.4.8.13 How the corrupt government kidnaps your identity and your domicile and moves it to the federal zone 33 or interferes with your choice of domicile

34 Based on the foregoing discussion, it ought to be obvious that the government doesn't want you to know any of the following 35 facts:

- 36 1. That all civil jurisdiction originates from your choice of domicile.
- 37 2. That all income taxation is a civil liability that originates from your choice of domicile.
- 38 3. That domicile requires your consent and is the equivalent of your consent to be civilly governed as required by the 39 Declaration of Independence.
- 40 4. That because they need your consent to choose a domicile, they can't tax or even govern you civilly without your consent.
- 41 5. That domicile is based on the coincidence of physical presence and intent/consent to permanently remain in a place.
- 42 6. That unless you choose a domicile within the jurisdiction of the government that has general jurisdiction where you live, 43 they have no authority to institute income taxation upon you.
- 44 7. That no one can determine your domicile except you.
- 45 8. That if you don't want the protection of government, you can fire them and handle your own protection, by changing
 46 your domicile to a different place or group or government or choosing no domicile at all. This then relieves you of an 47 obligation to pay income taxes to support the protection that you no longer want or need.

1 Therefore, governments have a vested interest in hiding the relationship of "domicile" to income taxation by removing it or
2 at least obfuscating it in their "codes". We call this "The hide the presumption and hide the consent game."

3 There are many ways that corrupt governments will use to make you LOOK like someone who consented to their jurisdiction
4 or to a civil domicile within their civil jurisdiction. The SEDM sister site has written the following forms that deal with this
5 subject:

- 6 1. Government Identity Theft, Form #05.046
7 <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>
- 8 2. Avoiding Traps in Government Forms, Form #12.023
9 <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

10 The following subsections deal with the subset of ways that corrupt and covetous governments will use to try to change your 11 domicile without your consent and often without your knowledge.

12 5.4.8.13.1 Inevitable effects of government interference with your choice of domicile: Anarchy and violence

13 A very important subject we need to study is:

14 "What are the legal and political effects when a specific government or actor within that government deliberately
15 or maliciously INTERFERES with or coerces your choice of civil domicile or prohibits specific choices of 16 domicile, such as the Kingdom of Heaven?"

17 We will answer that question in this section.

18 First of all, we know that the purpose of the entire separation of powers between various components of government is to 19 protect your PRIVATE or natural rights recognized in the Declaration of Independence.

20 "We start with first principles. The Constitution creates a Federal Government of enumerated powers. See U.S.
21 Const., Art. I, 8. As James Madison wrote, "[t]he powers delegated by the proposed Constitution to the federal 22 government are few and defined. Those which are to remain in the State governments are numerous and 23 *indefinite." The Federalist No. 45, pp. 292-293 (C. Rossiter ed. 1961). This constitutionally 24 mandated division of authority "was adopted by the Framers to 25 ensure protection of our fundamental liberties." Gregory v. Ashcroft, 501
26 U.S. 452, 458 (1991) (internal quotation marks omitted). "Just as the separation and independence of the 27 coordinate branches of the Federal Government serves to prevent the accumulation of excessive power in any
28 one branch, a healthy balance of power between the States and the Federal Government will reduce the risk
29 of tyranny and abuse from either front." Ibid. "
30 *[U.S. v. Lopez, 514 U.S. 549 (1995)]

31 The separation of powers BEGINS with the separation between YOU and GOVERNMENT. Separation between YOU and 32 GOVERNMENT in a legal sense means separation between PRIVATE rights and PUBLIC rights respectively. That 33 separation is exhaustively described in:

Separation Between Public and Private, Form #12.025
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

34 When there is no separation between YOU and GOVERNMENT, or between PRIVATE and PUBLIC respectively, you
35 become a public officer and government statutory "employee" 24 hours a day, 7 days a week and need permission and
36 DEMONSTRATED legal authority from U.S. Inc. federal corporation to do ANYTHING and EVERYTHING. In that 37 scenario, you are a SLAVE and a vassal and have no "rights", choice, autonomy, or discretion to speak of. That condition of 38 NO separation between PRIVATE and PUBLIC, by the way, was famously described by U.S. Supreme Court Justice Antonin
39 Scalia as his rendition of hell in its most literal sense from a legal perspective:

40 "In heaven there will be no law and the Lion will lay down with the lamb. And in hell, there will be nothing BUT 41 law, and due process will be RIGOROUSLY OBSERVED."
42 [Justice Antonin Scalia, Hastings College School of Law, March 17, 2011, SEDM Exhibit #03.005
43 SOURCE: <https://sedm.org/Exhibits/EX03.005.mp4>]

1 The above quote by Scalia is an indirect reference to a more famous quote on the same subject. This quote implies that since
2 hell is the MOST corrupt place, it will have INFINITELY many laws.

3 "The more corrupt the state, the more numerous the laws."
4 [Tacitus, Roman historian 55-117 A.D.;
5 SOURCE: <http://famguardian.org/taxfreedom/CitesByTopic/law.htm>]

6 The Thirteenth Amendment outlaws all forms of involuntary servitude, and hence, outlaws any method to compel you to:

- 7 1. Surrender any aspect of your PRIVATE status or private rights.
- 8 2. Become a compelled PUBLIC officer. This includes a statutory "person", "citizen", or "resident".
- 9 3. Accept the duties of a public officer or public agent without your consent.
- 10 4. Become surety for public debt. This is called "peonage". Income taxes, for instance, pay off public debt and 11 "taxpayers" are surety for that debt.<sup>164</sup>

12 When anyone in government forces a specific domicile upon you that you don't want, they are not only engaging in a criminal
13 violation of the Thirteenth Amendment and 18 U.S.C. Chapter 77, but they are also engaging in the legal equivalent of 14 criminal identity theft and human trafficking. The nature of how that identity theft and human trafficking is accomplished is 15 described in:

- 16 1. Government Identity Theft, Form #05.046.
17 <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>
- 18 2. Government Identity Theft Playlist -SEDM

27 <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=IQI4IET97o4>

28 The inevitable result of the government slavery, identity theft, and human trafficking described above will inevitably be 29 anarchy and violence. Why? Because withdrawing or withholding one's domicile and funding to the government is the only 30 way to peacefully and lawfully seek a PEACEFUL remedy for government abuse:

31 *"If money is wanted by Rulers who have in any manner oppressed the People, [the People] may retain [their
32 money] until their grievances are redressed, and thus peaceably procure relief, without trusting to despised 33 petitions or disturbing the public tranquility."*

<sup>164</sup> Below are a few authorities on this subject:

*"That it does not conflict with the Thirteenth Amendment, which abolished slavery and involuntary servitude, except as a punishment for crime, is too clear for argument. Slavery implies involuntary servitude—a state of bondage; the ownership of mankind as a chattel, or at least the control of the labor and services of one man for the benefit of another, and the absence of a legal right to the disposal of his own person, property, and services [in their entirety]. This amendment was said in the Slaughter House Cases, 16 Wall, 36, to have been intended primarily to abolish slavery, as it had been previously known in this country, and that it equally forbade Mexican peonage or the Chinese coolie trade, when they amounted to slavery or involuntary servitude and that the use of the word 'servitude' was intended to prohibit the use of all forms of involuntary slavery, of whatever class or name."

3 The above mechanism is the SAME mechanism and the ONLY peaceful mechanism mentioned in the Declaration of 4 Independence of procuring relief WITHOUT violence:

5 “But when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same Object evinces a design to reduce
 6 them under absolute Despotism, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such Government, and to provide
 7 new Guards for their future security.—”
 8 [Declaration of Independence, 1776]

9 The “guards for their future security” described are SELF-GOVERNMENT and the privatization of government services so
 10 that the tyrannical government is no longer funded to perform them. These privatized government services are paid for with 11 the money removed from the tyrant government and diverted to a better government. Since domicile is the means used to 12 justify the need to pay for the services, then we just shift our domicile from the TYRANT government to the competitor that 13 we want. The Declaration of Independence even makes it our DUTY to do that. Any judge or politician who interferes with 14 us doing that, in fact is committing TREASON punishable by death. 18 U.S.C. §2381: Treason.

15 There are those who would say that the Declaration of Independence is not “law” that can be used to obligate anyone.
 16 However, they are simply WRONG. The Declaration of Independence was enacted into law by the first official act of the 17 brand new Congress of the United States. You can find that enactment on the FIRST page of the Statutes At Large, in fact.
 18 Anyone who says it ISN'T law is therefore LYING. Judge Andrew Napolitano, in fact, says the Declaration of Independence 19 is the most violated law ever enacted!

Judge Andrew Napolitano says the Declaration of Independence is LAW enacted by Congress, SEDM Exhibit #03.006
<http://sedm.org/Exhibits/ExhibitIndex.htm>

20 An inability to lawfully stop participating in or subsidizing an abusive government guarantees that no peaceful remedy,
 21 including a remedy in court, is rationally possible. The only thing left when all peaceful remedies are destroyed is violence
 22 and political revolution. The violent American Revolution was made inevitable and certain precisely because of this exact
 23 problem. The anarchy that ensues FROM that violence and revolution will therefore ALSO be inevitable. That, folks, is 24 exactly what we are headed for because the same problem repeats itself again today.

25 History is repeating itself and another revolution is inevitable. Look at the reasons given in the Declaration of Independence
 26 for the separation from Great Britain:

27 He has erected a multitude of New Offices [PUBLIC offices and franchises], and sent hither swarms of Officers
 28 to harrass our people, and eat out their substance.

29 [. . .]

30 He has combined with others to subject us to a jurisdiction foreign to our constitution, and unacknowledged by 31 our laws; giving his Assent to their Acts of pretended Legislation:

32 [. . .]

33 For imposing Taxes on us without our Consent:

34 [. . .]

35 He has abdicated Government here, by declaring us out of his Protection and waging War against us.
 36 [Declaration of Independence, 1776;
 37 SOURCE: http://www.archives.gov/exhibits/charters/declaration\_transcript.html]

38 In the above quotes from the Declaration of Independence:

39 1. The offices they are talking about include public offices created through franchises. The purpose of all civil franchises
 40 is to raise revenue, not to protect or help people who do not want to be helped. See:

Government Instituted Slavery Using Franchises, Form #05.030
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

2. The “jurisdiction foreign” they are talking about is the laws of what Mark Twain calls “the District of Criminals”.

“No man's life, liberty, or property are safe while the legislature is in session.”
[Mark Twain]

“Suppose you were an idiot. And suppose you were a member of Congress. But I repeat myself.”
[Mark Twain]

“There is no distinctly native American criminal class save congress.”
[Mark Twain]

---

“Behold, I will make My words in your mouth fire,
And this people wood,
And it shall devour them.
Behold, I will bring a [foreign] nation [in the District of Columbia, Washington D.C.] against you from afar, O house of Israel,” says the LORD.
“It is a mighty nation,
It is an ancient nation,
A nation whose language [legalese] you do not know,
Nor can you understand what they say [in their deceitful laws].
Their quiver is like an open tomb;
They are all mighty [deceitful] men.
And they [and the IRS, their henchmen] shall eat up your harvest and your bread,
Which your sons and daughters should eat.
They shall eat up your flocks and your herds;
They shall eat up your vines and your fig trees;
They shall destroy your fortified cities [and businesses and families],
In which you trust, with the sword.
[Jeremiah 5:14-17, Bible, NKJV]

3. “imposing Taxes on us without our Consent” refers to the current income tax system, which you aren't allowed to exit by removing your civil domicile, even though there is voluminous precedent authorizing this fact.

4. The “declaring us out of his Protection” above refers to the fact that the ONLY thing government protects is itself, and the law is an excuse to persecute anyone who doesn't want to participate or wishes to remain a “non-resident non-person”. Those people are supposed to be protected by the common law and Constitution, and by refusing to enforce either against government actors, they are withdrawing PRIVATE people from the protection of the government FROM the government. Governments that only protect themselves and use the law as an excuse to persecute political enemies or dissidents are called a de facto government. That government is described below:

De Facto Government Scam, Form #05.043
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

Below are the reasons WHY the Declaration of Independence had to be signed, penned at the first meeting of the Continental Congress two years before the Declaration of Independence was signed:

“Whereas, since the close of the last war, the British parliament, claiming a power, of right, to bind the people of America by statutes in all cases whatsoever, hath, in some acts, expressly imposed taxes on them, and in others, under various presences, but in fact for the purpose of raising a revenue, hath imposed rates and duties payable in these colonies, established a board of commissioners, with unconstitutional powers, and extended the jurisdiction of courts of admiralty, not only for collecting the said duties, but for the trial of causes merely arising within the body of a county:”

[Declaration and Resolves of the First Continental Congress, October 14, 1774

SOURCE: http://avalon.law.yale.edu/18th\_century/resolves.asp

Note the key language below:

“British parliament, claiming a power, of right, to bind the people of America by statutes in all cases whatsoever”

The “statutes” they are talking about are the CIVIL STATUTORY LAW or what we call “the protection franchise” and the FORCED civil status and domicile of those who it is enforced against. “In all cases whatsoever” refers to the fact that

1 ANYTHING and EVERYTHING is made a subject of legislation. The result is SLAVERY described in the Declaration of
2 Independence:

3 "But when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same Object evinces a design to reduce
4 them under absolute Despotism [SLAVERY]"
5 [Declaration of Independence]

6 This is EXACTLY the problem we have now. Obamacare alleges an unconstitutional right to FORCE "taxpayers" to buy
7 health insurance, and the way the FORCE EVERYONE to buy health insurance, is to FORCE people to fraudulently elect a
8 domicile on federal territory and claim an office in the government called "taxpayer". That public office was illegally created
9 in violation of 18 U.S.C. §912 and they are punished with commercial penalties they are not subject to for abandoning the 10 illegally created public office. That public office is called a "trade or business" in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26). This illegally and 11 criminally compelled public office is described in:

The "Trade or Business" Scam, Form #05.001
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

12 Yes, ladies and gentlemen. We are headed for a revolution, violence, and anarchy, because all peaceful means of remedy to 13 correct the problems caused by the inability to withdraw domicile and the sponsorship that goes with it have been removed 14 or interfered with by a malicious, covetous band of thieving lawyers using trickery, words of art, criminal identity theft, and 15 criminal human trafficking. Here's how the Bible describes this kidnapping and human trafficking:

16 "For the upright will dwell in [ON] the land,
17 And the blameless will remain in it;
18 But the wicked will be cut off from the earth [and the common law and constitution that protects the earth].
19 And the unfaithful will be uprooted [using franchises and privileges] from it."
20 [Prov. 2:21-22, Bible, NKJV]

21 Anyone who protects the present de facto system of usury we have now, which is also described in the Declaration of 22 Independence is committing TREASON punishable by death. THEY are the real "terrorists" and anarchists.

23 5.4.8.13.2 Compelled domicile generally

24 A number of irreconcilable conflicts of law are created by COMPELLING EVERYONE to have either a specific domicile
25 or an earthly domicile. For instance:

- 26 1. If the First Amendment gives us a right to freely associate and also implies a right to DISASSOCIATE, how can we be 27 compelled to associate with a "state" or the people in the locality where we live without violating the First Amendment?
28 It may not be presumed that we moved to a place because we wanted to associate with the people there.
- 29 2. Domicile creates a duty of allegiance, according to the cite above. All allegiance MUST be voluntary. How can the 30 state compel allegiance by compelling a person to have or to choose an earthly domicile? What gives them the right to 31 insist that the only legitimate type of domicile is associated with a government? Why can't it be a church, a religious 32 group, or simply an association of people who want to have their own police force or protection service separated from 33 the state? Since the only product that government delivers is "protection", why can't people have the right to fire the 34 government and provide their own protection with the tax money they would have paid the government?
- 35 3. When one chooses a domicile, they create a legal or contractual obligation to support a specific government, based on 36 the above. By compelling everyone to choose an earthly domicile whose object is a specific government or state, isn't 37 the state interfering with our right to contract by compelling us to contract with a specific government for our protection?
38 The Constitution, Article 1, Section 10 says no state shall make any law impairing the obligation of contracts. Implicit
39 in this right to contract is the right NOT to contract. Every right implies the opposite right. Therefore, how can everyone 40 be compelled to have a domicile without violating their right to contract?
- 41 4. The U.S. Supreme Court also said that income taxation based on domicile is "quasi-contractual" in nature.

42 "Even if the judgment is deemed to be colored by the nature of the obligation whose validity it establishes, and
43 we are free to re-examine it, and, if we find it to be based on an obligation penal in character, to refuse to enforce it
44 outside the state where rendered, see Wisconsin v. Pelican Insurance Co., 127 U.S. 265, 292, et seq. 8 S.Ct.

45 1370, compare Fauntleroy v. Lum, 210 U.S. 230, 28 S.Ct. 641, still the obligation to pay nature, enforceable, if there is no exclusive statutory remedy, in the civil courts by the common-law action of debt or indebitatus assumpsit. *United States v. The “quasi-contract” they are referring to above is your voluntary choice of “domicile”, no doubt. How can they compel such a contract if the person who is the object of the compulsion refuses to “do business” with the state and also refuses to avail themselves of any of the benefits of membership in said state? Wouldn't that amount to slavery, involuntary servitude, and violate the Thirteenth Amendment prohibition against involuntary servitude?
46 taxes is not penal. It is a statutory liability, quasi contractual in

Do you see how subtle this domicile thing is? It's a very sneaky way to draw you into the world system and force you to adopt and comply with earthly laws and a government that are hostile towards and foreign to God's laws. All of the above deceptions and ruses are designed to keep you enslaved and entrapped to support a government that does nothing for you and which you may even want to abandon or disassociate with.

The New Man

This I say, therefore, and testify in the Lord, that you should no longer walk as the rest of the Gentiles walk, in the futility of their mind, having their [legal] understanding darkened, being alienated from the life of God, because of the ignorance that is in them, because of the blindness of their heart; who, being past feeling, have given themselves over to lewdness, to work all uncleanness with greediness.

But you have not so learned Christ, if indeed you have heard Him and have been taught by Him, as the truth is in Jesus: that you put off, concerning your former conduct, the old man which grows corrupt according to the deceitful lusts, and be renewed in the spirit of your mind, and that you put on the new man which was created according to God, in true righteousness and holiness.
[Eph. 4:17-24, Bible, NKJV]

We allege that whenever anyone from a state or federal government, or acting as an agent of same such as a “withholding agent”, compels you to either have a specific domicile in a specific place or PRESUMES you have a domicile without producing evidence of consent on the record to that specific domicile then they are:

1. "purposefully availing themselves" of commerce within OUR jurisdiction.
2. STEALING, where the thing being STOLEN are the public rights associated with the statutory civil "status" they are presuming we have but never expressly consented to have. You ought to specify in advance the PRICE or COST of the things stolen as being TWICE what they want to collect from you. This is Biblical. See Exodus 22:7.
3. Engaging in criminal identity theft, because the civil status is associated with a domicile in a place we are not physically in and do not consent to a civil domicile in.
4. Waiving official, judicial, and sovereign immunity.
5. Acting in a private and personal capacity beyond the statutory jurisdiction of their government employer.
6. Compelling us to contract with the state under the civil statutory "social compact".
7. Interfering with our First Amendment right to freely and civilly DISASSOCIATE with the state.
8. Engaged in a constitutional tort.

You should insist on the above terms on any form you fill out and submit to the government that has a block for “residence”, “permanent address”, or “domicile”.

5.4.8.13.3 Domicile on government forms

You should view every opportunity to complete a government form or any form that indicates a “domicile”, “residence”, or “permanent address” as:

1. A waiver of sovereign immunity under 28 U.S.C. §1603(b)(3) and 28 U.S.C. §1605(b)(2).

2. A change in status from "foreign" to "domestic" in relation to the government that created the form.
3. An agreement to become a "customer" of government protection called a "citizen", "resident", and/or "inhabitant" within a specific jurisdiction.
4. The conveyance of "consent to be governed" as the Declaration of Independence indicates.
5. An attempt to nominate a protector and delegate to them the authority to supervise and even penalize your activities under the authority of the civil law.
6. An agreement to pay for the protection of the specific government you have nominated to protect you.
7. A voluntary attempt on your part to surrender rights recognized in the Constitution in exchange for privileges and "benefits" under a franchise agreement and to change your status from a "transient foreigner" to a "person" subject to federal statutes. The most privileged status you can be in is to be a resident alien participating in federal franchises. The Declaration of Independence says that rights protected by the Constitution are "unalienable", meaning that they CAN'T be sold, transferred, or bargained away in relation to any government by any commercial process, including a government franchise or application. Therefore, you are recognizing that the grantor of the benefit is not a government, but a private corporation.
8. An attempt to destroy equal protection mandated by the Constitution and make a specific government your "parents patriae", or government parent.

In short, anyone who asks you to fill out a government form or indicate a "domicile", "residence", or "permanent address" on their own private form is asking you the following question:

"Who's your daddy and where does he live? We want to notify him that you have selected him as your protector and agreed to become liable to subsidize his protection racket and his supervision of your otherwise private affairs. We don't trust you so we want you to agree to sign this protection contract, nominate a protector, and agree to become his privileged employee or officer so he will ensure you won't become a burden, bother, or injury to us."

There are several ways that you are often deceived into inadvertently declaring a domicile on federal territory on government forms.

1. By declaring that you maintain a domicile or live in the "United States", which is defined as federal territory and excludes states of the Union pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(9\) and (a)(10). This is done by filling out anything in the block labeled "permanent address" or "residence" and indicating anything in that block other than the de jure republic you were born within or the Kingdom of Heaven on Earth.

The term "State" shall be construed to include the District of Columbia, where such construction is necessary to carry out provisions of this title.

- People born and domiciled within the de jure states of the Union are domiciled in the "United States of America" or in the name of their state. For instance, under "country" put "California Republic" instead of "United States".
2. By filling out a government form and indicating that you are a statutory "U.S. citizen" pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1401 or "resident" or "permanent resident" pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §7701\(b\)\(4\)\(B\). All such persons have a legal domicile on federal territory. Collectively, these people are called "U.S. persons" pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(30\).
  3. By filling out a form that presumes you are a "U.S. person", such as IRS Form 1040. That form is ONLY for use by "U.S. persons" pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(30\) who have a legal domicile on federal territory. If you are not domiciled on federal territory, the only correct form to use is the IRS Form 1040NR. Even the 1040NR is a statutory

1 “taxpayer” form and therefore needs either modification or an attachment to clarify that it is being submitted by a
2 NONTAXPAYER.

34 (2) An alien lawfully admitted to the United States for permanent residence or under other authority of law
35 permitting you to work in the United States (Sec. 422.105 describes how we determine if a nonimmigrant alien is 36 permitted to work in the United States); or 37

- 38 5. By requesting or using a Taxpayer Identification Number on any government form, which makes you into a statutory 39 “resident alien” as described in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(b\)\(1\)\(A\) domiciled on federal territory. The only people who need
40 them are “taxpayers” who are engaged in a “trade or business”/“public office” in the District of Columbia and therefore 41 partaking of federal franchises. All such persons have an effective domicile in the District of Columbia because they are 42 representing a federal corporation, the “United States” pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §3002\(15\)\(A\) and are officers of that 43 corporation. 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(39\), 26 U.S.C. §7408\(d\), and Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b) all place their 44 effective domicile in the District of Columbia and not within the place they physically occupy by virtue of the fact that 45 they are acting in a representative capacity as a “public officer”.

46 26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1\(d\)\(3\): Identifying Numbers

47 (3) IRS individual taxpayer identification number –

48 (i) Definition.

49 The term IRS individual taxpayer identification number means a taxpayer identifying number issued to an
50 alien individual by the Internal Revenue Service, upon application, for use in connection with filing requirements under this title. The term IRS individual taxpayer identification number does not refer to a social security number or an account number for use in employment for wages. For purposes of this section, the term alien individual means an individual who is not a citizen or national of the United States.

26 C.F.R. §301.7701-5 Domestic, foreign, resident, and nonresident persons.

A domestic corporation is one organized or created in the United States, including only the States (and during the periods when not States, the Territories of Alaska and Hawaii), and the District of Columbia, or under the law of the United States or of any State or Territory. A foreign corporation is one which is not domestic. A domestic corporation is a resident corporation even though it does no business and owns no property in the United States. A foreign corporation engaged in trade or business within the United States is referred to in the regulations in this chapter as a resident foreign corporation, and a foreign corporation not engaged in trade or business within the United States, as a nonresident foreign corporation. A partnership engaged in trade or business within the United States is referred to in the regulations in this chapter as a resident partnership, and a partnership not engaged in trade or business within the United States, as a nonresident partnership. Whether a partnership is to be regarded as resident or nonresident is not determined by the nationality or residence of its members or by the place in which it was created or organized.

We will now spend the rest of the section talking about how to avoid the problem described in item 1 above. There are many occasions on government forms, and especially tax forms, where we will be asked if we are “residents” and what our “residence” is and we must be very careful what we put on these forms. If a “residence” must be established on a government form for any reason, the safest way to handle this situation as a Christian is as follows:

1. Line out the word “residence” and replace it with “domicile”.
2. In the block declaring “residence” or “permanent address”, put one of the following:
  - 2.1. “Kingdom of Heaven on Earth (not within any man made government)”.
  - 2.2. A geographical place that has no owner and no government, such as the middle of the ocean.
3. At the end of the address line put in parenthesis: “Not a domicile or residence.”
4. If they ask you if you are a “resident”, simply say “NO”.
5. Put a note at the bottom saying:

“See and rebut the following web address for details, if you disagree:

<http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Forms/Emancipation/ChangeOfAddressAttachment.htm> “

A person who does all the above is what we call “civilly dead”. The status of being “civilly dead” is the only proper status for a devout Christian, and it is thoroughly described in:

Delegation of Authority Order from God to Christians, Form #13.007, Section 4.3

DIRECT LINK: <http://sedm.org/Forms/13-SelfFamilyChurchGovnce/DelOfAuthority.pdf>

FORMS PAGE: <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

Any location of “residence” other than “Kingdom of Heaven on Earth” or a place not within the jurisdiction of any man-made government, however, will prejudice your rights, violate the Bible, and result in idolatry towards man/government. In fact, we believe the word “residence” and “resident” were invented by the legal profession as a way to separate intent from the word “domicile” so that people would no longer have a choice of their legal home. Christians should be very wary of this devious legal trap and avoid it as indicated above.

[Eph. 5:11, Bible]

There are also BIG advantages to declaring our domicile as being outside of federal jurisdiction in either the Kingdom of Heaven on Earth or a state of the Union, which is legislatively but not Constitutionally “foreign” with respect to the federal government. For instance, one's domicile determines the rules of decision of every court in which a person is sued. Below is an excerpt from the Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b) which proves this:

IV. PARTIES > Rule 17.

Rule 17. Parties Plaintiff and Defendant; Capacity

(b) Capacity to Sue or be Sued.

Capacity to sue or be sued is determined as follows:

- (1) for an individual who is not acting in a representative capacity, by the law of the individual's domicile;
 (2) for a corporation [the "United States", in this case, or its officers on official duty representing the corporation], by the law under which it was organized; and
 (3) for all other parties, by the law of the state where the court is located, except that:
 (A) a partnership or other unincorporated association with no such capacity under that state's law may sue or be sued in its common name to enforce a substantive right existing under the United States Constitution or laws; and
 (B) 28 U.S.C. §§ 754 and 959(a) govern the capacity of a receiver appointed by a United States court to sue or be sued in a United States court.

[SOURCE: <http://www.law.cornell.edu/rules/frcp/Rule17.htm>]

The above may not seem like a big deal, until you consider that if a person declares "heaven" as their domicile, then the court has to use God's laws in the Holy Bible as the only rules of decision! They cannot quote ANY federal statute or even court ruling as authority for what they are doing. The only thing they can apply is God's law and the rulings of ecclesiastical courts on the subject. We would LOVE to see this in a tax trial. The government would get CREAMED! This tactic is what we affectionately call "courtroom evangelism". In the case of Christians, the Common Law is the nearest equivalent of God's law and that is the ONLY thing we can allow ourselves to be protected by as a devout Christian. Statutory law, on the other hand, is only law for GOVERNMENT actors and not private persons:

Why Statutory Civil Law is Law for Government and Not Private Persons, Form #05.037

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

Below is an example of how to fill this out for the state of California to remove any presumptions about "residence". If you don't do this, the state will essentially legally "presume" that you are an "alien", a "resident", and a "taxpayer", and this will grossly prejudice your Constitutional rights:

<http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Forms/Emancipation/ChangeOfAddressAttachment.htm>

A number of legal factors are used in determining one's domicile. The following facts and circumstances, although not necessarily conclusive, have probative value to support a claim of domicile within a particular state:

1. Continuous presence in the state.
2. Payment of ad valorem (property) taxes.
3. Payment of personal income taxes.
4. Reliance upon state sources for financial support.
5. Domicile in the state of family, or other relatives, or persons legally responsible for the person.
6. Former domicile in the state and maintenance of significant connections therein while absent.
7. Ownership of a home or real property.
8. Admission to a licensed practicing profession in the state.
9. Long term military commitments in the state.
10. Commitments to further education in the state indicating an intent to stay here permanently.
11. Acceptance of an offer of permanent employment in the state.
12. Location of spouse's employment, if any.
13. Address of student listed on selective service (draft or reserves) registration.

Other factors indicating an intent to make a state one's domicile may be considered. Normally, the following circumstances do not constitute evidence of domicile sufficient to effect classification as a domiciliary:

1. Voting or registration for voting.
2. The lease of living quarters.
3. A statement of intention to acquire a domicile in state.
4. Automobile registration; address on driver's license; payment of automobile taxes.
5. Location of bank or saving accounts.

To conclude this section, you may wish to look at a few of the government's forms that effectively ask you what your "domicile" is, so you can see what we are talking about in this section. Before we do, we must emphasize that in some cases, the version of a form we choose to file, even if it says nothing on the form about domicile, may determine our "residence"! This is VERY important. For instance, if we file a 1040NR form, we are claiming that we are not a "resident alien" and that

1 we do not maintain a domicile in the “United States” (federal territory). Whereas, if we file a 1040 form, we are claiming
2 that we are either a “resident” with a domicile in the “United States) (federal territory), or are a “U.S. citizen” who is described
3 as a “alien” coming under a tax treaty with the United States if we attach a form 2555 to the 1040 form. Also keep in mind
4 that only a “resident” can have a “residence”, and that all “residents” are aliens under the tax code, as far as we understand
5 it. This is confirmed by our quote of 26 C.F.R. §1.871-2 earlier in this section, which you may want to go back and read.
6 With these important considerations, below are a few of the forms that determine our “domicile”:

However, not all states do this. |

Items 4 and 5 above are noteworthy, because they mention the phrase "Permanent address". Why do they use the phrase "permanent"? Because they want to DECEIVE you into thinking that you can't revoke or withdraw your request to be protected and are therefore FORCED to keep subsidizing them to protect you without your continuing consent. That way, they are the only ones who can unilaterally terminate the CONTRACTUAL protection arrangement. SCAM!

When you fill out government forms to reflect a domicile that is in Heaven, some ignorant or wicked or atheist clerks may decide to argue with you. Below are the three most popular arguments you will hear, which are each accompanied by tactics that are useful in opposing them:

1. If you submit the government form to a private company or organization, they may say that they as have an unofficial "policy" of not accepting such forms. In response to such tactics, find another company that will accept it. If all companies won't accept it, then sue the companies for discrimination and violation of First Amendment rights.
2. They may say that "domicile" is based on a physical place and that Heaven is not a physical place. In response to this, we must remember that the First Amendment prevents the government from "establishing a religion". Because of this prohibition, the government can't even "define" what a religion is:

A problem common to both religion clauses of the First Amendment is the dilemma of defining religion. To define religion is in a sense to establish it--those beliefs that are included enjoy a preferred constitutional status. For those left out of the definition, the definition may prove coercive. Indeed, it is in this latter context, which roughly approximates the area covered by the free exercise clause, where the cases and discussion of the meaning of religion have primarily centered. Professor Kent Greenawalt challenges the effort, and all efforts, to define religion: "No specification of essential conditions will capture all and only the benefits, practices, and organizations that are regarded as religious in modern culture and should be treated as such under the Constitution."

[First Amendment Law, Barron-Dienes, West Publishing, ISBN 0-314-22677-X, p. 432]

To even define what "Heaven" is or to say that it doesn't physically exist is effectively to establish a religion. In order to determine that "Heaven" is not a physical place, they would be violating the separation of church and state and infringing upon your First Amendment right to practice your religion.

3. They may say that no place can qualify as a domicile that you didn't occupy at one point or another. When they do this, the proper response is to say that they are interfering with your First Amendment religious rights and then to quote them the following scriptures, which suggest that we had an existence in Heaven before we ever came to earth and before time began:

"But God, who is rich in mercy, because of His great love with which He loved us, even when we were dead in trespasses, made us alive together with Christ (by grace you have been saved), and raised us up together, and made us sit together in the heavenly places in Christ Jesus,"

3 "Before I formed you in the womb I knew you;
4 Before you were born I sanctified you;
5 I ordained you a prophet to the nations."
6 [\[Jeremiah 1:5, Bible, NKJV\]](#)

8 "Therefore do not be ashamed of the testimony of our Lord, nor of me His prisoner, but share with me in the 9 *sufferings for the gospel according to the power of God, who has saved us and called us with a holy calling,
10 not according to our works, but according to His own purpose and grace which was given to us in Christ Jesus
11 before [earthly] time began."*
12 [\[2 Tim. 1:8-9, Bible, NKJV\]](#)
13

14 "For we are His workmanship, created in Christ Jesus for good works, which God prepared beforehand that 15 we should walk in them."
16 [\[Eph. 2:10, Bible, NKJV\]](#)
17

18 I will praise You, for I am fearfully and wonderfully made;
19 Marvelous are Your works,
20 And that my soul knows very well.
21 My frame was not hidden from You,
22 When I was made in secret,
23 And skillfully wrought in the lowest parts of the earth.
24 Your eyes saw my substance, being yet unformed.
25 And in Your book they all were written,
26 The [earthly] days fashioned for me,
27 When as yet there were none of them.
28 How precious also are Your thoughts to me, O God!
29 How great is the sum of them!
30 [\[Psalm 139:14-17, Bible, NKJV\]](#)

31 Another approach that is useful against this tactic is to point out that the federal courts have ruled that:

32 "Similarly, when a person is prevented from leaving his domicile by circumstances not of his doing and beyond
33 his control, he may be relieved of the consequences attendant on domicile at that place. In Roboz (USDC D.C.
34 1963) [Roboz v. Kennedy, 219 F.Supp. 892 (D.D.C. 1963), p. 24], a federal statute was involved which precluded
35 the return of an alien's property if he was found to be domiciled in Hungary prior to a certain date. It was found
36 that Hungary was Nazi-controlled at the time in question and that the persons involved would have left Hungary
37 (and lost domicile there) had they been able to. Since they had been precluded from leaving because of the political 38 privations imposed by the very government they wanted to escape (the father was in prison there), the court would 39 not hold them to have lost their property based on a domicile that circumstances beyond their control forced them
40 to retain."
41 [\[Conflicts in a Nutshell, Second Edition, David D. Seigel, West Publishing, 1994, ISBN 0-314-02952-4, p. 24\]](#)

42 We should always remember that we never chose to come here to earth, and our presence is involuntary. Therefore,
43 everything we do while here is a matter of compulsion rather than true choice. This subject is covered more thoroughly
44 earlier in sections 4.11.6 through 4.11.6.4 if you wish to investigate. Therefore, we can be relieved of the consequences
45 attendant to domicile if we do not wish to have one here.

46 If all the above arguments are ineffective or when the government refuses to recognize your choice of Heaven as a domicile,
47 remember also that the First Amendment STILL prevents them from compelling you to associate with any group, including 48 a state, and that they can't compel you to belong to or consent to any earthly government or civil law, to accept or pay for 49 protection you don't want and don't need, and which you can even prove is harmful to you. In effect, they cannot violate the 50 very reason for their establishment, which is protecting you the way YOU, not THEM want to be protected.

51 5.4.8.13.4 How the tax code compels choice of domicile

52 The government has compelled domicile or interfered with receiving the benefits of your choice by any of the following
53 means:

1. Nowhere in Internal Revenue Code is the word “domicile” admitted to be the source of the government’s jurisdiction to impose an income tax, even though the U.S. Supreme Court admitted this in Miller Brothers Co. v. Maryland, 347 U.S. 340 (1954). The word “domicile”, in fact, is only used in two sections of the entire 9,500 page Internal Revenue Code, Title 26. This is no accident, but a very devious way for the government to avoid getting into arguments with persons who it is accusing of being “taxpayers”. It avoids these arguments by avoiding showing Americans the easiest way to challenge federal jurisdiction, which is demanding proof from the government required by 5 U.S.C. §556(d), who is the moving party, that you maintain a domicile in the “United States” (federal territory). The two sections below are the only places where domicile is mentioned:
  - 1.1. 26 U.S.C. §7448(j)(1)(B)(vi): Annuities to surviving spouses and dependent children of judges.
  - 1.2. 26 U.S.C. §6091: Defines where returns shall be submitted in the case of deceased “taxpayers”, which is the “domicile” of the decedent when he died.
2. They abuse government forms to get you to convert your status from a “national” to an privileged “alien” or “resident alien”, often without your knowledge. To ALIENATE rights, you literally have to BECOME an alien of one kind or another who is usually domiciled on federal territory NOT protected by the Constitution and where EVERYTHING is a statutory privilege.
  - 2.1. All aliens are privileged when they are outside the country of their birth. They are the ONLY ones that Congress can lawfully legislative for within a Constitutional state BECAUSE they are privileged. Note the use of the phrase “implied license” in the following ruling of the U.S. Supreme Court. “License” and “privilege” are synonymous:

The reasons for not allowing to other aliens exemption 'from the jurisdiction of the country in which they are found' were stated as follows: 'When private individuals of one nation [states of the Unions are "nations" under the law of nations] spread themselves through another as business or caprice may direct, mingling indiscriminately with the inhabitants of that other, or when merchant vessels enter for the purposes of trade, it would be obviously inconvenient and dangerous to society, and would subject the laws to continual infraction, and the government to degradation, if such individuals or merchants did not owe temporary and local allegiance, and were not amenable to the jurisdiction of the country. Nor can the foreign sovereign have any motive for wishing such exemption. His subjects thus passing into foreign countries are not employed by him, nor are they engaged in national pursuits. Consequently, there are powerful motives for not exempting persons of this description from the jurisdiction of the country in which they are found, and no one motive for requiring it. The implied license, therefore, under which they enter, can never be construed to grant such exemption.' 7 Cranch, 144.

In short, the judgment in the case of The Exchange declared, as incontrovertible principles, that the jurisdiction of every nation within its own territory is exclusive and absolute, and is susceptible of no limitation not imposed by the nation itself; that all exceptions to its full and absolute territorial jurisdiction must be traced up to its own consent, express or implied; that upon its consent to cede, or to waive the exercise of, a part of its territorial jurisdiction, rest the exemptions from that jurisdiction of foreign sovereigns or their armies entering its territory with its permission, and of their foreign ministers and public ships of war; and that the implied license, under which private individuals of another nation enter the territory and mingle indiscriminately with its inhabitants, for purposes of business or pleasure, can never be construed to grant to them an exemption from the jurisdiction of the country in which they are found. See, also, Carlisle v. U.S. (1872) 16 Wall. 147, 155; Radich v. Hutchins (1877) 95 U.S. 210; Wildenhus' Case (1887) 120 U.S. 1, 7 Sup.Ct. 385; Chae Chan Ping v. U.S. (1889) 130 U.S. 581, 603, 604, 9 Sup.Ct. 623. [United States v. Wong Kim Ark, 169 U.S. 649, 18 S.Ct. 456, 42 L.Ed. 890 (1898)]

- 2.2. Recall from section 0 that there are TWO types of “residents”: Foreign nationals and government contractors. Franchises such as driver licensing assume all applicants are privileged government contractors. They are “aliens” in relation to the government granting the franchise because they are not employed full time with that government as a public officer. They are PART time government workers ONLY in the context of a specific regulated activity. By “regulated” we mean controlled by a VOLUNTARY CIVIL FRANCHISE such as the Family Code or the Vehicle Code.
- 2.3. Government franchise application forms such as driver license applications use the following terms synonymous with foreign nationals and privileged aliens rather than “nationals”:
  - 2.3.1. “permanent address”. This corresponds with the abode of a privileged alien or “permanent resident” with a green card.
  - 2.3.2. “permanent residence”. “residence” is NOWHERE defined in the revenue codes to apply to anything BUT aliens:

Title 26: Internal Revenue
PART 1—INCOME TAXES
nonresident alien individuals
§ 1.871-2 Determining residence of alien individuals.

1 (b) Residence defined.

2 An alien actually present in the United States who is not a mere transient or sojourner is a resident of the United
3 States for purposes of the income tax. Whether he is a transient is determined by his intentions with regard to
4 the length and nature of his stay. A mere floating intention, indefinite as to time, to return to another country is
5 not sufficient to constitute him a transient. If he lives in the United States and has no definite intention as to his
6 stay, he is a resident. One who comes to the United States for a definite purpose which in its nature may be
7 promptly accomplished is a transient; but, if his purpose is of such a nature that an extended stay may be
8 necessary for its accomplishment, and to that end the alien makes his home temporarily in the United States,
9 he becomes a resident, though it may be his intention at all times to return to his domicile abroad when the 10 purpose for which he came has been consummated or abandoned. An alien whose stay in the United States is 11 limited to a definite period by the immigration laws is not a resident of the United States within the meaning of 12 this section, in the absence of exceptional circumstances.

13 2.3.3. "residence": defined above, and only applying to "nonresident aliens". There is no definition of "residence"
14 anywhere in the I.R.C. in the case of a "citizen". Below is how Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.), Volume 28
15 Legal Encyclopedia, Domicile, describes the distinction between "residence" and "domicile":
16

17 Corpus Juris Secundum
18 §4 Domicile and Residence Distinguished

19 b. Use of Terms in Statutes

20 The terms "domicile" and "residence," as used in statutes, are commonly, although not necessarily, construed
21 as synonymous. Whether the term "residence," as used in a statute, will be construed as having the meaning of 22 "domicile," or the term "domicile" construed as "residence," depends on the purpose of the statute and the 23 nature of the subject matter, as well as the context in which the term is used. 32 It has been declared that the 24 terms "residence" and "domicile" are almost universally used interchangeably in statute, and that since domicile
25 and legal residence are synonymous, the statutory rules for determining the place of residence are the rules for 26 determining domicile.<sup>34</sup> However, it has been held that "residence," when used in statutes, is generally 27 interpreted by the courts as meaning "domicile," but with important exception.

28 Accordingly, whenever the terms "residence" and "domicile" are used in connection with subjects of domestic
29 policy, the terms are equivalent, as they also are, generally, where a statute prescribes residence as a
30 qualification for the enjoyment of a privilege or the exercise of a franchise. "Residence" as used in various 31 particular statutes has been considered synonymous with "domicile." 39 However, the terms are not necessarily 32 synonymous.<sup>40</sup>

33 [28 Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.), Domicile, §4 Domicile and Resident Distinguished (2003)]

34
35 Note the above underlined language. The "domestic policy" they are referring to are franchises such as driver
36 licensing and marriage licensing. Those participating are privileged AND while exercising said privilege, they 37 represent an office within the government whose domicile is on federal territory OUTSIDE the protections of the 38 Constitution. They in effect have WAIVED their constitutional rights and common law rights and remedies in 39 exchange for government "benefits":

40 The Court developed, for its own governance in the cases confessedly within its jurisdiction, a series of rules
41 under which it has avoided passing upon a large part of all the constitutional questions pressed upon it for 42 decision. They are:

43 [ . . . ]

44 6. The Court will not pass upon the constitutionality of a statute at the instance of one who has availed
45 himself of its benefits.<sup>FN7</sup> Great Falls Mfg. Co. v. Attorney General, 124 U.S. 581, 8 S.Ct. 631, 31 L.Ed. 527;

53 "The words "privileges" and "immunities," like the greater part of the legal phraseology of this country, have
54 been carried over from the law of Great Britain, and recur constantly either as such or in equivalent expressions
55 from the time of Magna Charta. For all practical purposes they are synonymous in meaning, and originally

signified a peculiar right or private law conceded to particular persons or places whereby a certain individual or class of individuals was exempted from the rigor of the common law. Privilege or immunity is conferred upon any person when he is invested with a legal claim to the exercise of special or peculiar rights, authorizing him to enjoy some particular advantage or exemption.<sup>165</sup>

- 2.4. All of the above terms pertain ONLY to foreign nationals and privileged aliens. Equivocation is being used to make them look like they apply to “nationals” born in the country when they DO NOT. “Permanent address” is synonymous with “permanent residents”, not nationals with a domicile in the place:

“Residents, as distinguished from citizens, are aliens who are permitted to take up a permanent abode in the country. Being bound to the society by reason of their dwelling in it, they are subject to its laws so long as they remain there, and, being protected by it, they must defend it, although they do not enjoy all the rights of citizens. They have only certain privileges which the law, or custom, gives them. Permanent residents are those who have been given the right of perpetual residence. They are a sort of citizen of a less privileged character, and are subject to the society without enjoying all its advantages. Their children succeed to their status; for the right of perpetual residence given them by the State passes to their children.”

[The Law of Nations, Vattel, Book 1, Chapter 19, Section 213, p. 87]

- 2.5. Driver licensing is the usual gateway into the tax system, because the application for the license declares you to be a privileged alien and foreign national by its use of the above terms on the application. Notice they don't ask you your domicile, but your “permanent residence”.
- 2.6. They did the above so that income taxation “appears” to be based entirely on physical presence, when in fact is also requires voluntary consent as well. That consent, as a bare minimum, is YOUR consent to be treated AS IF you are a privileged alien or resident alien and thereby surrender rights to the government that the Declaration of Independence says are INALIENABLE, which means that you aren't allowed to consent to give them away. If you knew that the government needed your consent to become a “taxpayer”, then probably everyone would “unvolunteer” and the government would be left scraping for pennies.

3. By confusing physical presence ANYWHERE with being a “permanent resident” abroad ONLY under 26 U.S.C. §911.
- 3.1. 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(b) makes “all citizens of the United States[** federal zone], wherever resident” liable for income tax, whether the income is received from sources within or without the United States”.
- 3.2. The phrase “wherever resident” would seem to imply REGARDLESS of where they are physically located, but in fact it DOES NOT.
- 3.3. Extensive evidence exists to prove that the phrase “wherever resident” instead means wherever they have the CIVIL STATUS of “resident”, meaning wherever they are a permanent resident abroad under a tax treaty with the foreign country they are in under 26 U.S.C. §911.

Sections 1.1-1(b) and 1.871-1 of the Income Tax Regulations provide that all citizens of the United States, wherever resident, and all resident alien individuals are liable to the income taxes imposed by the Internal Revenue Code whether the income is received from sources within or without the United States. See, however, section 911 of the Code. (Emphasis added.)

[Rev.Rul. 75-357, p. 5]

Being that Rev. Rul. 75-357 quotes 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(b) directly, and duly informs every reader to see, 26 U.S.C. §911, I believe we should visit 26 U.S.C. §911 and its regulations to locate the appropriate application of the wherever resident feature in that section of federal law. See 26 U.S.C. §911(d)(1)(A) as follows:

(d) Definitions and special rules — For purposes of this section —

(1) Qualified individual — The term “qualified individual” means an individual whose tax home is in a foreign country and who is —

<sup>165</sup> See Magill v. Browne, Fed.Cas. No. 8952, 16 Fed.Cas. 408; 6 Words and Phrases, 5583, 5584; A J. Lien, “Privileges and Immunities of Citizens of the United States,” in Columbia University Studies in History, Economics, and Public Law, vol. 54, p. 31.

(A) a citizen of the United States and establishes to the satisfaction of the Secretary that he has been a bona fide resident of a foreign country or countries for an uninterrupted period which includes an entire taxable year.
[26 U.S.C. §911(d)(1)(A)]

The regulations to section 911 make the distinction between where income is received as opposed to where services are performed. See:

26 C.F.R. §1.911-3 Determination of amount of foreign earned income to be excluded.

(a) Definition of foreign earned income.

For purposes of section 911 and the regulations thereunder, the term "foreign earned income" means earned income (as defined in paragraph (b) of this section) from sources within a foreign country (as defined in §1.911-2(h)) that is earned during a period for which the individual qualifies under §1.911-2(a) to make an election. Earned income is from sources within a foreign country if it is attributable to services performed by an individual in a foreign country or countries. The place of receipt of earned income is immaterial in determining whether earned income is attributable to services performed in a foreign country or countries.

For more on this SCAM, see:

Flawed Tax Arguments to Avoid, Form #08.004, Section 8.20
<https://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

4. By telling you that you MUST have a "domicile". For instance, the Volume 28 of the Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.) section on "Domicile" says the following on this subject:

Corpus Juris Secundum
§5 Necessity and Number

"It is a settled principle that every person must have a domicile somewhere.<sup>3</sup> The law permits no individual to be without a domicile,<sup>42</sup> and an individual is never without a domicile somewhere.<sup>13</sup> Domicile is a continuing thing, and from the moment a person is born he must, at all times, have a domicile ."
[28 Corpus Juris Secundum, Domicile, §5 Necessity and Number]

Corpus Juris Secundum
§9 Domicile by Operation of Law

"Whenever a person does not fix a domicile for himself, the law will fix one for him in accordance with the facts and circumstances of the case; <sup>12</sup> and an infant's domicile will be fixed by operation of law where it cannot be determined from that of the parents.<sup>73</sup>"
[28 Corpus Juris Secundum, Domicile, §9 Domicile by Operation of Law]

The above requirement can and does apply ONLY to civil statutory "persons" and the choice to become such a "person" is voluntary or else it would violate the First Amendment right of freedom from compelled association. Also note that such "persons" are all public officers. Indirectly, what they are also suggesting in the above by FORCING you to have a domicile is that:

- 4.1. You cannot choose God as your sole CIVIL Protector, but MUST have an earthly protector who cannot be yourself.
- 4.2. Although the First Amendment gives you the right to freely associate, it does not give you the right to CIVILLY disassociate with ALL governments. This is an absurdity.
- 4.3. Government has a monopoly on CIVIL protection and that individuals are not allowed to fire the government and provide their own protection, either individually or collectively.

5. By inventing new words that allow them to avoid mentioning "domicile" in their vague "codes" while giving you the impression that an obligation exists that actually is consensual. For instance, in 26 U.S.C. §911 is the section of the I.R.C. entitled "Citizens or residents of the United States living abroad". This section identifies the income tax liabilities of persons domiciled in the "United States" (federal zone) who are living temporarily abroad. We showed earlier that if they have a domicile abroad, then they cannot be either "citizens" or "residents" under the I.R.C., because domicile is a prerequisite for being either. In that section, they very deceptively:

- 5.1. Use the word "abode" in 26 U.S.C. §911(d)(3) to describe one's domicile so as to remove the requirement for "intent" and "consent" from consideration of the subject, even though they have no authority to ignore this requirement for consent in the case of anything but an "alien".
- 5.2. Don't even use the word "domicile" at all, and refuse to acknowledge that what "citizens" or "residents" both have in common is a "domicile" within the United States. They did this to preserve the illusion that even after one changes their domicile to a foreign country while abroad, the federal tax liability continues, when in fact, it legally is not required to. After domicile is changed, those Americans who changed it while abroad then are no longer called “citizens” under federal law, but rather “nationals” and “non-resident non-persons”. If they are engaged in a public office, they also become statutory “nonresident aliens”.

- 5.3. They invented a new word called a “tax home”, as if it were a substitute for “domicile”, when in fact it is not. A “tax home” is defined in 26 U.S.C. §911 as a place where a person who has a temporary presence abroad treats himself or herself as a privileged “resident” in the foreign country but still also maintains a privileged “resident” and “domicile” status in the “United States”.

TITLE 26 > Subtitle A > CHAPTER 1 > Subchapter N > PART III > Subpart B > § 911
§ 911. Citizens or residents of the United States living abroad

(d) Definitions and special rules For purposes of this section—

(3) Tax home

The term “tax home” means, with respect to any individual, such individual’s home for purposes of section 162 (a)(2) (relating to traveling expenses while away from home). An individual shall not be treated as having a tax home in a foreign country for any period for which his abode [domicile] is within the United States [federal zone].

The only way the government can maintain your status as a “taxpayer” is to perpetuate you in a “privileged” state, so they simply don’t offer any options to leave the privileged state by refusing to admit to you that the terms “citizen” and “resident” presume you made a voluntary choice of domicile within their exclusive jurisdiction on federal territory. I.R.C. section 162 mentioned above is the section for privileged deductions, and the only persons who can take deductions are those engaged in the privileged “trade or business” excise taxable franchise. Therefore, the only person who would derive any benefit from deductions is a person with a domicile in the “United States” (federal territory) and who has earnings from that place which are connected with a “trade or business”, which means U.S. government (corporation) source income as a “public officer”.

5.4.8.13.5 How the Legal Encyclopedia compels choice of domicile

Even the legal encyclopedia tries to hide the nature of domicile. For instance, Volume 28 of the Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.) at:

<http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/CitesByTopic/Domicile-28CJS-20051203.pdf>

which we quoted in the previous section does not even mention the requirement for “allegiance” as part of domicile or the fact that allegiance must be voluntary and not compelled, even though the U.S. Supreme Court said this was an essential part of it:

“Since the Fourteenth Amendment makes one a citizen of the state wherein he resides, the fact of residence creates universally reciprocal duties of protection by the state and of allegiance and support by the citizen. The latter obviously includes a duty to pay taxes, and their nature and measure is largely a political matter.” Miller Brothers Co. v. Maryland, [347 U.S. 340 (1954)]

The legal encyclopedia in the above deliberately and maliciously omits mention of any of the following key concepts, even though the U.S. Supreme Court has acknowledged elements of them as we have shown:

1. That allegiance that is the foundation of domicile must be voluntary and cannot be coerced.
2. That external factors such as the withdrawal of one’s right to conduct commerce for failure to give allegiance causes domicile choice to no longer be voluntary.
3. That a choice of domicile constitutes an exercise of your First Amendment right of freedom of association and that a failure to associate with a specific government is an exercise of your right of freedom from compelled association.
4. That you retain all your constitutional rights even WITHOUT choosing a domicile within a specific government because rights attach to the land you are standing on and not the civil status you choose by exercising your right to associate and becoming a member of a “state” or municipality.

The result of maliciously refusing to acknowledge the above concepts is a failure to acknowledge the foundation of all just authority of every government on earth, which is the consent of the governed mentioned in our Declaration of Independence.

1                   "We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator
 2 with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.--That to secure
 3 these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the
 4 governed. --That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the
 5 People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles and
 6 organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness."
 7 [Declaration of Independence]

8 A failure to acknowledge that requirement results in a complete destruction of the sovereignty of the people, because the 9 basis of all your sovereignty is that no one can do anything to you without your consent, unless you injured the equal rights
 10 of others. This concept is exhaustively described in the following document:

Requirement for Consent, Form #05.003

11 5.4.8.13.6           How governments compel choice of domicile: Government ID

12 In order to do business within any jurisdiction, and especially with the government and financial institutions, one usually 13 needs identification documents. Such documents include:

- 14 1. State driver's license. Issued by the Dept. of Motor Vehicles in your state.
- 15 2. State ID card. Issued by the Dept. of Motor Vehicles in your state.
- 16 3. Permanent resident green card.
- 17 4. National passport. Issued by the U.S. Dept. of State.
- 18 5. U.S. Citizen Card. Issued by the Dept. of State. These are typically used at border crossings.

19 All ID issued by the state governments, and especially the driver's license, requires that the applicant be a "resident" of the 20 "State of ____". If you look up the definition of "resident" and "State of" or "State" or "in this State" within the state tax
 21 code, these terms are defined to mean a privileged alien with a domicile on federal territory not protected by the Constitution.

22 USA passports also require that you provide a domicile. The Dept. of State DS-11 Form in Block 17 requires you to specify
 23 a "Permanent Address", which means domicile. See:

<http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/Citizenship/DOS-DS11-20080320.pdf>

24 Domicile within the country is not necessary in order to be issued a national passport. All you need is proof of birth within 25 that country. If you would like tips on how to obtain a national passport without a domicile within a state and without 26 government issued identifying numbers that connect you to franchises, see:

Getting a USA Passport as a "state national", Form #09.007
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

27 State ID, however, always requires domicile within the state in order to be issued either a state driver's license or a state ID.
 28 Consequently, there is no way to avoid becoming privileged if you want state ID. This situation would seem at first to be a
 29 liability until you also consider that they can't lawfully issue a driver's license to non-residents. Imagine going down to the 30 DMV and telling them that you are physically on state land but do not choose a domicile here and that you can't be compelled
 31 to and that you would like for them to certify that you came in to request a license and that you were refused and don't qualify.
 32 Then you can show that piece of paper called a "Letter of Disqualification" to the next police officer who stops you and asks
 33 you for a license. Imagine having the following dialog with the police officer when you get stopped:

34 Officer: May I see your license and registration please?

35 You: I'm sorry, officer, but I went down to the DMV to request a license and they told me that I don't qualify
 36 because I am a non-resident of this state. I have a Letter of Disqualification they gave me while I was there
 37 stating that I made application and that they could not lawfully issue me a license. Here it is, officer.

38 Officer: Well, then do you have a license from another state?

You: My domicile is in a place that has no government. Therefore, there is no one who can issue licenses there. Can you show me a DMV office in the middle of the ocean, which is where my domicile is and where my will says my ashes will be PERMANENTLY taken to when I die. My understanding is that domicile or residence requires an intention to permanently remain at a place and I am not here permanently and don't intend to remain here. I am a perpetual traveler, a transient foreigner, and a vagrant until I am buried.

Officer: Don't get cute with me. If you don't produce a license, then I'm going to cite you for driving without a license.

You: Driving is a commercial activity and I am not presently engaged in a commercial activity. Do you have any evidence to the contrary? Furthermore, I'd love to see you explain to the judge how you can punish me for refusing to have that which the government says they can't even lawfully issue me. That ought to be a good laugh. I'm going to make sure the whole family is there for that one. It'll be better than Saturday Night Live!

We allege that the purpose of the vehicle code in your state is NOT the promotion of public safety, but to manufacture "residents" and "taxpayers". The main vehicle by which states of the Union, in fact, manufacture "residents", who are privileged "public officers" that are "taxpayers" and aliens with respect to the government is essentially by compelling everyone to obtain and use state driver's licenses. This devious trap operates as follows:

1. You cannot obtain a state driver's license without being a "resident". If you go into any DMV office and tell them you are not a "resident", then they are not allowed to issue you a license. You can ask from them what is called a "Letter of Disqualification", which states that you are not eligible for a driver's license. You can keep that letter and show it to any police officer who stops you and wants your "license". He cannot then cite you for "driving without a license" that the state refuses to issue you, nor can he impound your car for driving without a license!

California Vehicle Code

"14607.6. (a) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, and except as provided in this section, a motor vehicle is subject to forfeiture as a nuisance if it is driven on a highway in this state by a driver with a suspended or revoked license, or by an unlicensed driver, who is a registered owner of the vehicle at the time of impoundment and has a previous misdemeanor conviction for a violation of subdivision (a) of Section 12500 or Section 14601, 14601.1, 14601.2, 14601.3, 14601.4, or 14601.5.

(b) A peace officer shall not stop a vehicle for the sole reason of determining whether the driver is properly licensed.

(c) (1) If a driver is unable to produce a valid driver's license on the demand of a peace officer enforcing the provisions of this code, as required by subdivision (b) of Section 12951, the vehicle shall be impounded regardless of ownership, unless the peace officer is reasonably able, by other means, to verify that the driver is properly licensed. Prior to impounding a vehicle, a peace officer shall attempt to verify the license status of a driver who claims to be properly licensed but is unable to produce the license on demand of the peace officer.

(2) A peace officer shall not impound a vehicle pursuant to this subdivision if the license of the driver expired within the preceding 30 days and the driver would otherwise have been properly licensed.

(3) A peace officer may exercise discretion in a situation where the driver without a valid license is an employee driving a vehicle registered to the employer in the course of employment. A peace officer may also exercise discretion in a situation where the driver without a valid license is the employee of a bona fide business establishment or is a person otherwise controlled by such an establishment and it reasonably appears that an owner of the vehicle, or an agent of the owner, relinquished possession of the vehicle to the business establishment solely for servicing or parking of the vehicle or other reasonably similar situations, and where the vehicle was not to be driven except as directly necessary to accomplish that business purpose. In this event, if the vehicle can be returned to or be retrieved by the business establishment or registered owner, the peace officer may release and not impound the vehicle.

(4) A registered or legal owner of record at the time of impoundment may request a hearing to determine the validity of the impoundment pursuant to subdivision (n).

(5) If the driver of a vehicle impounded pursuant to this subdivision was not a registered owner of the vehicle at the time of impoundment, or if the driver of the vehicle was a registered owner of the vehicle at the time of impoundment but the driver does not have a previous conviction for a violation of subdivision (a) of Section 12500 or Section 14601, 14601.1, 14601.2, 14601.3, 14601.4, or 14601.5, the vehicle shall be released pursuant to this code and is not subject to forfeiture.

(d) (1) This subdivision applies only if the driver of the vehicle is a registered owner of the vehicle at the time of impoundment. Except as provided in paragraph (5) of subdivision (c), if the driver of a vehicle impounded

1 pursuant to subdivision (c) was a registered owner of the vehicle at the time of impoundment, the impounding
2 agency shall authorize release of the vehicle if, within three days of impoundment, the driver of the vehicle at the
3 time of impoundment presents his or her valid driver's license, including a valid temporary California driver's
4 license or permit, to the impounding agency. The vehicle shall then be released to a registered owner of record
5 at the time of impoundment, or an agent of that owner authorized in writing, upon payment of towing and storage
6 charges related to the impoundment, and any administrative charges authorized by Section 22850.5, providing
7 that the person claiming the vehicle is properly licensed and the vehicle is properly registered. A vehicle
8 impounded pursuant to the circumstances described in paragraph (3) of subdivision (c) shall be released to a
9 registered owner whether or not the driver of the vehicle at the time of impoundment presents a valid driver's
10 license.

11 (2) If there is a community property interest in the vehicle impounded pursuant to subdivision (c), owned at the 12 time of impoundment by a person other than the driver, and the vehicle is the only vehicle available to the driver's
13 immediate family that may be operated with a class C driver's license, the vehicle shall be released to a registered
14 owner or to the community property interest owner upon compliance with all of the following requirements:

15 (A) The registered owner or the community property interest owner requests release of the vehicle and the 16 owner of the community property interest submits proof of that interest.

17 (B) The registered owner or the community property interest owner submits proof that he or she, or an 18 authorized driver, is properly licensed and that the impounded vehicle is properly registered pursuant to this
19 code.

20 (C) All towing and storage charges related to the impoundment and any administrative charges authorized
21 pursuant to Section 22850.5 are paid.

22 (D) The registered owner or the community property interest owner signs a stipulated vehicle release
23 agreement, as described in paragraph (3), in consideration for the nonforfeiture of the vehicle. This requirement
24 applies only if the driver requests release of the vehicle.

25 (3) A stipulated vehicle release agreement shall provide for the consent of the signator to the automatic future
26 forfeiture and transfer of title to the state of any vehicle registered to that person, if the vehicle is driven by a
27 driver with a suspended or revoked license, or by an unlicensed driver. The agreement shall be in effect for only 28 as long as it is noted on a driving record maintained by the department pursuant to Section 1806.1.

29 (4) The stipulated vehicle release agreement described in paragraph (3) shall be reported by the impounding
30 agency to the department not later than 10 days after the day the agreement is signed.

31 (5) No vehicle shall be released pursuant to paragraph (2) if the driving record of a registered owner indicates 32 that a prior stipulated vehicle release agreement was signed by that person.

33 (e) (1) The impounding agency, in the case of a vehicle that has not been redeemed pursuant to subdivision (d),
34 or that has not been otherwise released, shall promptly ascertain from the department the names and addresses
35 of all legal and registered owners of the vehicle.

36 (2) The impounding agency, within two days of impoundment, shall send a notice by certified mail, return
37 receipt requested, to all legal and registered owners of the vehicle, at the addresses obtained from the department,
38 informing them that the vehicle is subject to forfeiture and will be sold or otherwise disposed of pursuant to this
39 section. The notice shall also include instructions for filing a claim with the district attorney, and the time limits
40 for filing a claim. The notice shall also inform any legal owner of its right to conduct the sale pursuant to 41 subdivision (g). If a registered owner was personally served at the time of impoundment with a notice containing 42 all the information required to be provided by this paragraph, no further notice is required to be sent to a
43 registered owner. However, a notice shall still be sent to the legal owners of the vehicle, if any. If notice was not 44 sent to the legal owner within two working days, the impounding agency shall not charge the legal owner for 45 more than 15-days' impoundment when the legal owner redeems the impounded vehicle.

46 (3) No processing charges shall be imposed on a legal owner who redeems an impounded vehicle within 15
47 days of the impoundment of that vehicle. If no claims are filed and served within 15 days after the mailing of the 48 notice in paragraph (2), or if no claims are filed and served within five days of personal service of the notice
49 specified in paragraph (2), when no other mailed notice is required pursuant to paragraph (2), the district
50 attorney shall prepare a written declaration of forfeiture of the vehicle to the state. A written declaration of 51 forfeiture signed by the district attorney under this subdivision shall be deemed to provide good and sufficient
52 title to the forfeited vehicle. A copy of the declaration shall be provided on request to any person informed of the 53 pending forfeiture pursuant to paragraph (2). A claim that is filed and is later withdrawn by the claimant shall 54 be deemed not to have been filed.

55 (4) If a claim is timely filed and served, then the district attorney shall file a petition of forfeiture with the 56 appropriate juvenile, municipal, or superior court within 10 days of the receipt of the claim. The district attorney

1 shall establish an expedited hearing date in accordance with instructions from the court, and the court shall hear
 2 the matter without delay. The court filing fee, not to exceed fifty dollars ($50), shall be paid by the claimant, but
 3 shall be reimbursed by the impounding agency if the claimant prevails. To the extent practicable, the civil and
 4 criminal cases shall be heard at the same time in an expedited, consolidated proceeding. A proceeding in the 5 civil case is a limited civil case.”

6 [California Vehicle Code, Section 14607.6, Sept. 20, 2004]

7 Below is evidence showing how one person obtained a “Letter of Disqualification“ that resulted in being able to drive
 8 perpetually without having a state -issued driver's license.

9 <http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/Articles/DomicileBasisTaxationDL-20060522.pdf>

- 10 2. Most state vehicle codes define “resident” as a person with a domicile in the “State”. Below is an example from the 11 California Vehicle Code:

12 California Vehicle Code

13 516. “Resident” means any person who manifests an intent to live or be located in this state on more than a
 14 temporary or transient basis. Presence in the state for six months or more in any 12-month period gives rise to 15 a rebuttable presumption of residency.

16 The following are evidence of residency for purposes of vehicle registration:

17 (a) Address where registered to vote.

18 (b) Location of employment or place of business.

19 (c) Payment of resident tuition at a public institution of higher education.

20 (d) Attendance of dependents at a primary or secondary school.

21 (e) Filing a homeowner's property tax exemption.

22 (f) Renting or leasing a home for use as a residence.

23 (g) Declaration of residency to obtain a license or any other privilege or benefit not ordinarily extended to a 24 nonresident.

25 (h) Possession of a California driver's license.

26 (i) Other acts, occurrences, or events that indicate presence in the state is more than temporary or transient.

30 California Vehicle Code

31 12505. (a) (1) For purposes of this division only and notwithstanding Section 516, residency shall be determined
 32 as a person's state of domicile. “State of domicile” means the state where a person has his or her true, fixed,
 33 and permanent home and principal residence and to which he or she has manifested the intention of returning
 34 whenever he or she is absent.

35 Prima facie evidence of residency for driver's licensing purposes includes, but is not limited to, the following:

36 (A) Address where registered to vote.

37 (B) Payment of resident tuition at a public institution of higher education.

38 (C) Filing a homeowner's property tax exemption.

39 (D) Other acts, occurrences, or events that indicate presence in the state is more than temporary or transient.

40 (2) California residency is required of a person in order to be issued a commercial driver's license under this
 41 code.

42 (b) The presumption of residency in this state may be rebutted by satisfactory evidence that the licensee's
 43 primary residence is in another state.

44 (c) Any person entitled to an exemption under Section 12502, 12503, or 12504 may operate a motor vehicle in 45 this state for not to exceed 10 days from the date he or she establishes residence in this state, except that he or
 46 she shall obtain a license from the department upon becoming a resident before being employed for compensation
 47 by another for the purpose of driving a motor vehicle on the highways.

- 11 3. The term "State" is then defined in the revenue codes to mean the federal areas within the exterior limits of the state.
12 Below is an example from the California Vehicle Code:

13 California Revenue and Taxation Code

14 17017. "United States," when used in a geographical sense, includes the states, the District of Columbia, and 15 the possessions of the United States.

16 17018. "State" includes the District of Columbia, and the possessions of the United States.

- 17 4. You must surrender all other state driver's licenses in order to obtain one from most states. This is consistent with the 18 fact that you can only have a domicile in ONE place at a time. Below is an example from the California Vehicle Code:

19 California Vehicle Code

20 12805. The department shall not issue a driver's license to, or renew a driver's license of, any person:

21 [ . . . ]

22 (f) Who holds a valid driver's license issued by a foreign jurisdiction unless the license has been surrendered to 23 the department, or is lost or destroyed.

24 _____
25 12511. No person shall have in his or her possession or otherwise under his or her control more than one driver's
26 license.

27 Consequently, the vehicle code in most states, in the case of individuals not involved in "commercial activity", applies mainly
28 to "public officers" who are effectively "residents" of the federal zone with an effective "domicile" or "residence" there:

29 26 U.S.C. §7701

30 (a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent
31 thereof—

32 (39) Persons residing outside United States

33 If any citizen or resident of the United States does not reside in (and is not found in) any United States judicial
34 district, such citizen or resident shall be treated as residing in the District of Columbia for purposes of any 35 provision of this title relating to—

36 (A) jurisdiction of courts, or

37 (B) enforcement of summons.

38 SOURCE: [http://www4.law.cornell.edu/uscode/html/uscode26/usc\_sec\_26\_00007701---000-.html]

1 These persons are “taxpayers”. They are Americans who have contracted away their Constitutional rights in exchange for
 2 government “privileges” and they are the only “persons” who inhabit or maintain a “domicile” or “residence” in the “State”
 3 as defined above. Only people with a domicile in such “State” can be required to obtain a “license” to drive on the 4 “highways”. While they are exercising “agency” on behalf of or representing the government corporation, they are “citizens”
 5 of that corporation and “residents”, because the corporation itself is a “citizen” and therefore a person with a domicile in the 6 place where the corporation was formed, which for the “United States” is the District of Columbia:

7 “Corporations are also of all grades, and made for varied objects; all governments are corporations, created by
 8 usage and common consent, or grants and charters which create a body politic for prescribed purposes; but
 9 whether they are private, local or general, in their objects, for the enjoyment of property, or the exercise of 10 power, they are all governed by the same rules of law, as to the construction and the obligation of the 11 instrument by which the incorporation is made. One universal rule of law protects persons and property. It is 12 a fundamental principle of the common law of England, that the term freemen of the kingdom, includes 'all

 27 Rule 17. Parties Plaintiff and Defendant: Capacity

28 (b) Capacity to Sue or be Sued.

29 Capacity to sue or be sued is determined as follows:

30 (1) for an individual who is not acting in a representative capacity, by the law of the individual's domicile;
 31 (2) for a corporation/or one REPRESENTING a PUBLIC CORPORATION called the government as a 32 “public officer”], by the law under which it was organized; and
 33 (3) for all other parties, by the law of the state where the court is located, except that:
 34 (A) a partnership or other unincorporated association with no such capacity under that state's law may sue

40 If you don't want to be a “public officer” who has an effective “domicile” or “residence” in the District of Columbia, then
 41 you have to divorce the state, create your own “state”, and change your domicile to that new “state”. For instance, you can
 42 form an association of people and choose a domicile within that association. This association would be referred to as a
 43 “foreign jurisdiction” within the vehicle code in most states. The association can become the “government” for that group,
 44 and issue its own driver's licenses and conduct its own “courts”. In effect, it becomes a competitor to the corporate state for 45 the affections, allegiance, and obedience of the people. This is capitalism at its finest, folks!

46 California Vehicle Code

47 12502. (a) The following persons may operate a motor vehicle in this state without obtaining a driver's license
 48 under this code:

49 (1) A nonresident over the age of 18 years having in his or her immediate possession a valid driver's license
 50 issued by a foreign jurisdiction of which he or she is a resident, except as provided in Section 12505.

53 As long as the driver's licenses issued by the government you form meet the same standard as those for the state you are in,
 54 then it doesn't matter who issued it.

California Vehicle Code

12505. (a) (1) For purposes of this division only and notwithstanding Section 516, residency shall be determined as a person's state of domicile. "State of domicile" means the state where a person has his or her true, fixed, and permanent home and principal residence and to which he or she has manifested the intention of returning whenever he or she is absent.

(e) Subject to Section 12504, a person over the age of 16 years who is a resident of a foreign jurisdiction other than a state, territory, or possession of the United States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, or Canada, having a valid driver's license issued to him or her by any other foreign jurisdiction having licensing standards deemed by the Department of Motor Vehicles equivalent to those of this state, may operate a motor vehicle in this state without obtaining a license from the department, except that he or she shall obtain a license before being employed for compensation by another for the purpose of driving a motor vehicle on the highways.

As long as you take and pass the same written and driver's tests as the state uses, even your church could issue it! As a matter of fact, below is an example of a church that issues "Heaven Driver's Licenses" called "Embassy of Heaven":

<http://www.embassyofheaven.com/>

You can't be compelled by law to grant to your public "servants" a monopoly that compels you into servitude to them as a "public officer". In the United States, WE THE PEOPLE are the government, and not their representatives and "servants" who work for them implementing the laws that they pass. Consequently, you and your friends or church, as a "self-governing body" can make your own driver's license and in fact and in law, those licenses will by definition be "government-issued". To wit:

"The words 'people of the United States' and 'citizens,' are synonymous terms, and mean the same thing. They both describe the political body who, according to our republican institutions, form the sovereignty, and who hold the power and conduct the government through their representatives [they are the government, not their servants]. They are what we familiarly call the 'sovereign people,' and every citizen is one of this people, and a constituent member of this sovereignty. ..."

Boyd v. State of Nebraska, [143 U.S. 135 (1892)]

"From the differences existing between feudal sovereignties and Government founded on compacts, it necessarily follows that their respective prerogatives must differ. Sovereignty is the right to govern; a nation or State-sovereign is the person or persons in whom that resides. In Europe the sovereignty is generally ascribed to the Prince; here it rests with the people; there, the sovereign actually administers the Government; here, never in a single instance; our Governors are the agents of the people, and at most stand in the same relation to their sovereign, in which regents in Europe stand to their sovereigns. Their Princes have personal powers, dignities, and pre-eminences, our rulers have none but official; nor do they partake in the sovereignty otherwise, or in any other capacity, than as private citizens."

Anyone who won't accept such a driver's license should be asked to contradict the U.S. Supreme Court and to prove that you AREN'T part of the government as a person who governs his own life and the lives of other members of the group you have created. The following article also emphasizes that "We The People" are the government, and that our servants have been trying to deceive us into believing otherwise:

Chances are good that you as a reader at one time or another procured government ID without knowing all the legal consequences described in this document. The existence of that ID and the evidence documenting your request for it can and probably will be used by the government against you as evidence that you are subject to their civil laws and a customer of their "protection racket". The best technique for rebutting such evidence is that appearing in the following document. The submission of this document is a MANDATORY part of becoming a Member of this fellowship, and hopefully you now understand why it is mandatory:

5.4.8.13.7 The "residence" and "resident" SCAM: How context of words "residence" and "resident" is abused to kidnap your identity and transport you to the geographical federal zone166

False Argument: "residence" and "resident" in the tax code applies to people living in and domiciled within the exclusive jurisdiction of a Constitutional state of the Union

Corrected Alternative Argument: Income taxation under I.R.C. Subtitles A and C are based on RESIDENCE, not DOMICILE. "Residence" is the abode of an ALIEN or RESIDENT in relation to the place they live. CITIZENS or NATIONALS domiciled within the exclusive jurisdiction of a Constitutional State cannot have a "residence" or be "resident" as legally defined. The phrase "wherever resident" in 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1 therefore means the place where the "person" subject to the code maintains a physical "residence" or is "resident". The only definition of "residence" or "resident" anywhere in the I.R.C. Subtitles A and C relates to aliens, and not citizens or residents. People living in the exclusive jurisdiction of Constitutional States are neither "resident" or maintain a "residence" in the context of the income tax. If they falsely claim that they do, then they have effectively volunteered to pay a tax that does not apply to them. "Wherever resident" has nothing to do with the exclusive jurisdiction of a Constitutional a state of the Union, because:

1. "residence" and "resident" are geographical terms relating to the physical place someone lives.
2. The only geographical definition of "United States" in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) does not expressly include Constitutional states of the Union. Thus, they are purposefully excluded per the rules of statutory construction.

According to Bowring v. Bowers, 24 F.2d. 918 \(1928\), liability for income taxation has always been based on "residence", RATHER THAN domicile:

But in personal and income taxes domicile has played no necessary part, and residence at a fixed date has determined the liability for the tax. Bell v. Pierce, 51 N.Y. 12; Douglas v. Mayor, 9 N.Y. Super. Ct. 110; Matter of Austen, 13 A.D. 247, 42 N.Y.S. 1097; Finley v. Philadelphia, 32 Pa. 361. In the New York Income Tax law (Consol. Laws, c. 60), which is largely based on the federal acts, section 350 defines a 'resident' as 'any person domiciled in the state of New York, and any other person who maintains a permanent place of abode within the state, and spends in the aggregate more than seven months of the taxable year within the state.'

Likewise under the English income tax laws, prior to 1914, residence, and not domicile, was the test of liability (Inland Revenue v. John Lambert Caldwell, (1904) 7 Session Cases, 146; Attorney General v. Coots, 4 Price, 183), though income, unless derived from a trade or employment carried on in England, had to be received there

1 in order to render one subject to taxation upon it (Liverpool, London & Globe Ins. Co. v. Bennett, (1913) A.C.
2 610). But since 1914 a resident of more than six months (though not domiciled) has had to pay an income tax on
3 all income received in the United Kingdom, and a domiciled person a tax on income derived from all
4 sources. Thus, under all the British income tax laws, a resident, though having no domicile in England, had to
5 pay a tax on all income received in England whatever its source. Whether he received all his income there, of 6 course, depended on circumstances, but whatever he received was taxable against a resident, irrespective of his
7 domicile.

8 In the federal act of 1913, income taxes are imposed upon 'the entire net income arising or accruing from all
9 sources in the preceding calendar year to every citizen of the United States, whether residing at home or abroad,
10 and to every person residing in the United States, though not a citizen thereof, * * * and a like tax shall be 11 assessed, levied, collected, and paid annually upon the entire net income from all property owned and of every 12 business, trade, or profession carried on in the United States by persons residing elsewhere.' 38 Stat. 166.
13 [Bowring v. Bowers, 24 F.2d. 918 (1928)]

14 Where one "resides" and their "residence" are synonymous. Those with a "residence" in the Internal Revenue Code Subtitles
15 A and C are called "resident". One can be "resident" without BEING a "resident" as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A).
16 Statutory "residence", in turn, is always GEOGRAPHICAL and PHYSICAL and must satisfy the "presence test" in 26 U.S.C.
17 §7701(b)(1)(A):

18 Title 26: Internal Revenue
19 PART 1—INCOME TAXES
20 nonresident alien individuals
21 §1.871-2 Determining residence of alien individuals.

22 (B) Residence defined.

23 An alien actually present in the United States**] who is not a mere transient or sojourner is a resident of the 24 United States for purposes of the income tax. Whether he is a transient is determined by his intentions with 25 regard to the length and nature of his stay. A mere floating intention, indefinite as to time, to return to another
26 country is not sufficient to constitute him a transient. If he lives in the United States and has no definite intention
27 as to his stay, he is a resident. One who comes to the United States for a definite purpose which in its nature may 28 be promptly accomplished is a transient but, if his purpose is of such a nature that an extended stay may be
29 necessary for its accomplishment, and to that end the alien makes his home temporarily in the United States, he
30 becomes a resident, though it may be his intention at all times to return to his domicile abroad when the purpose
31 for which he came has been consummated or abandoned. An alien whose stay in the United States is limited to a
32 definite period by the immigration laws is not a resident of the United States within the meaning of this section, 33 in the absence of exceptional circumstances.

34 Because "residence" and being a "resident" is physical and must satisfy the presence test, it therefore MUST rely ONLY on 35 geographical definitions of "United States**" (federal zone) in the Internal Revenue Code at 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and 36 (a)(10), which means federal territory subject to the plenary jurisdiction of Congress, whether in a territory or within a federal 37 enclave within a state.

38 The reader should also note that the above definition of "residence" is the ONLY definition of "residence" anywhere in 39 Internal Revenue Code Subtitles A and C, or in the regulations that implement it. Neither Congress nor the Secretary of the 40 Treasury have EVER defined "residence" in the context of the STATUTORY "citizens" (8 U.S.C. §1401) or "residents"
41 (aliens, 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A)) upon whom the tax is imposed in 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(b).

42 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1 Income tax on individuals.

43 (a) General rule.

44 (I) Section 1 of the Code imposes an income tax on the income of every individual who is a citizen or resident of 45 the United States and, to the extent provided by section 871(b) or 877(b), on the income of a nonresident alien
46 individual.

47 [ . . . ]

48 (b) Citizens or residents of the United States liable to tax.

49 In general, all citizens of the United States, wherever resident, and all resident alien individuals are liable to
50 the income taxes imposed by the Code whether the income is received from sources within or without the 51 United States. Pursuant to section 876, a nonresident alien individual who is a bona fide resident of a section
52 931 possession (as defined in § 1.931-1(c)(1) of this chapter) or Puerto Rico during the entire taxable year is,

1 except as provided in section 931 or 933 with respect to income from sources within such possessions, subject to
 2 taxation in the same manner as a resident alien individual. As to tax on nonresident alien individuals, see sections
 3 871 and 877.
 4 [26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(a)(1)]

5 The above case of Bowring v. Bowers, 24 F.2d. 918 (1928) also points out that “residence” for the purpose of ESTATE taxes
 6 in Internal Revenue Code Subtitle B means DOMICILE rather than the abode of an alien. Thus, it can include both citizens
 7 and residents rather than merely aliens. So please be mindful of the CONTEXT for the term “residences” and “resident” and 8 limit them only to ALIENS when talking about income taxation rather than estate taxes.

9 Thus, the ONLY way anyone who is a STATUTORY “citizen” or STATUTORY “resident” can have a “residence” or be
 10 “resident” as legally defined is to be an ALIEN IN RELATION TO THE PHYSICAL PLACE THEY LIVE. They can't 11 satisfy this criteria when they are physically living on federal territory or anywhere within a constitutional state. They must 12 be ABROAD to have a taxable “residence”, meaning that they must be temporarily abroad under 26 U.S.C. §911. In that 13 scenario, they have a “residence” as aliens in relation to the foreign country they are physically in at the time, usually under 14 the terms of a tax treaty with that foreign country. Below is a proof that they CANNOT be “resident” or have a “residence”
 15 IN THE CONTEXT OF INCOME TAXES only, but may be “resident” in contexts OTHER than income tax:

16 “But all the limitations applicable to acquiring a new domicile, particularly when a domicile of national origin
 17 is to be abandoned, do not necessarily attach to taking out a new residence, either in this country or England.
 18 The United States Income Tax Acts, from the act of 1913 (38 Stat. 114) on, have been uniform in levying a tax
 19 *on the 921*921 entire income of aliens, if resident here, and residence has been construed by the* 20 Commissioner in all his rulings as something which may be less than a domicile, which fixes the law of the 21 devolution of property and determines the incidence of estate and succession taxes. It is true that "residence"
 22 is ordinarily used as the equivalent of domicile in statutes relating to probate, administration, and succession
 23 taxes. So, as might be expected, in the Revenue Acts, the word "resident," when employed in the portions of 24 these acts dealing with the Estate Tax Law, means "domiciled," and has been so construed by the practice and 25 regulations of the department.

26 “It is contended that the same words, when used in the titles of the same acts dealing with the income tax, must 27 have the same meaning. But the estate tax provisions were first introduced in the Revenue Act in 1916 (39 Stat.
 28 756), after the construction of the word "resident" in that act had already become fixed by the ruling of the 29 department at least as early as Treasury Decision 2242 of September 17, 1915, infra. Moreover, the incidence 30 of estate and succession taxes has historically been determined by domicile and situs, and not by the fact of 31 actual residence. Frick v. Pennsylvania, 268 U.S. 473, 45 S.Ct. 603, 69 L.Ed. 1058, 42 A.L.R. 316. As Justice
 32 Holmes said in Bullen v. Wisconsin, 240 U. S. at page 631, 36 S. Ct. 474 (60 L. Ed. 830):

33 *“* * * As the states where the property is situated, if governed by the common law, generally recognize the law*
 34 of the domicile as determining the succession, it may be said that, in a practical sense at least, the law of the 35 domicile is needed to establish the inheritance. Therefore the inheritance may be taxed at the place of domicile,
 36 *whatever the limitations of power over the specific chattels may be. * * **

37 As was said, also, in the Matter of Martin, 173 App. Div. at page 3, 158 N. Y. S. 916:

38 *“* * * in many instances there is a difference between the legal intendment of the terms 'residence' and 'domicile'*
 39 \ * * but in the matter of succession and transfer taxes the theory of the taxing power renders the*
 40 terms synonymous. In the case of succession the intestate's personalty is distributed according to the Statute of 41 Distributions of the State of the domicile. Therefore, that State which permits the inheritance is entitled to impose
 42 *a duty on that privilege. * * **
 43 [Bowring v. Bowers, 24 F.2d. 918 (1928)]

44 Therefore, the phrase “wherever resident” as used in 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(b) can only mean the following in the case of 45 STATUTORY “citizens” or STATUTORY “residents”.

46 “Wherever resident: That geographical place where the party made liable has a 'residence' as an ALIEN in
 47 relation to that place and the government of that place. Thus, those identified in the Internal Revenue Code
 48 Subtitles A and C as parties made liable and having the civil status of 'citizen' or 'resident' must be domiciled
 49 on federal territory and temporarily abroad as an alien under 26 U.S.C. §911 in order to have a liability.”

50 In theory, this all makes sense. People within the exclusive jurisdiction of their constitutional state do not need federal 51 protection and therefore shouldn't have to pay for it. The only people who need federal rather than state protection are those 52 who are abroad. No doubt, if they want it, they should have to pay for it. If they DON'T want it, all they have to do is 53 exercise their right to legally and politically disassociate by not declaring a civil status on a tax form that makes them the 54 beneficiary of such protection. That would be a “nonresident alien” with no earnings from the geographical “United States**”

(federal zone). After all, the STATUTORY civil status of "citizen" or "resident" under the laws of the national Congress are voluntary. If they aren't we are all slaves in violation of the Thirteenth Amendment. Under the common law, you have a right to NOT receive a "benefit" and therefore, not to pay for the benefit you don't want:

*"Cujus est commodum ejus debet esse incommodum.
He who receives the benefit should also bear the disadvantage."*

*"Que sentit commodum, sentire debet et onus.
He who derives a benefit from a thing, ought to feel the disadvantages attending it. 2 Bouv. Inst. n. 1433."*

*Commodum ex injuri su non habere debet.
No man ought to derive any benefit of his own wrong. Jenk. Cent. 161.*

*Invito beneficium non datur.
No one is obliged to accept a benefit against his consent. Dig. 50, 17, 69. But if he does not dissent he will be considered as assenting. Vide Assent.*

*Potest quis renunciare pro se, et suis, juri quod pro se introductum est.
A man may relinquish, for himself and his heirs, a right which was introduced for his own benefit. See 1 Bouv. Inst. n. 83.*

*Quilibet potest renunciare juri pro se inducto.
Any one may renounce a law introduced for his own benefit. To this rule there are some exceptions. See 1 Bouv. Inst. n. 83.*

SOURCE: <http://famguardian.org/Publications/BouvierMaximsOfLaw/BouviersMaxims.htm>]

If you don't want the "benefits" of the STATUTORY civil status of "citizen" or "resident", then merely declare a DIFFERENT status, such as "nonresident alien" and abandon the social compact or contract in the process that might bind you to pay for the "benefit" you receive by having such civil status. This right is an outgrowth of your First Amendment right to politically disassociate and your right to NOT contract or be compelled to contract under the CIVIL social contract called the civil statutory law.

"The citizen cannot complain, because he has voluntarily submitted himself to such a form of government. He owes allegiance to the two departments, so to speak, and within their respective spheres must pay the penalties which each exacts for disobedience to its laws. In return, he can demand protection from each within its own jurisdiction."
[United States v. Cruikshank, 92 U.S. 542 (1875) [emphasis added]]

There is but one law which, from its nature, needs unanimous consent. This is the social compact; for civil association is the most voluntary of all acts. Every man being born free and his own master, no one, under any pretext whatsoever, can make any man subject without his consent. To decide that the son of a slave is born a slave is to decide that he is not born a man.

If then there are opponents when the social compact is made, their opposition does not invalidate the contract, but merely prevents them from being included in it. They are foreigners among citizens.

FOOTNOTES:

[13] Complex questions arise where territorial inhabitants democratically determine either to pursue citizenship or withdraw from union with a state. Such scenarios may implicate the reciprocal associational rights of the state's current citizens or the right to integrity of the sovereign itself.

[14] But see Medellin v. Texas, 552 U.S. 491, 128 S.Ct. 1346, 170 L.Ed.2d 190 \(2008\).

Moreover, there are two fairly instructive Revenue Rules that clarify the phrase "wherever resident" found in 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(b) above. See Rev.Rul. 489 and Rev.Rul. 357 as follows:

"No provision of the Internal Revenue Code or the regulations thereunder holds that a citizen of the United States is a resident of the United States for purposes of its tax. Several sections of the Code provide Federal income tax relief or benefits to citizens of the United States who are residents without the United States for some specified period. See sections 911, 934, and 981. These sections give recognition to the fact that not all the citizens of the United States are residents of the United States."

As regards additional support, see Rev.Rul. 75-357 at p. 5, as follows:

"Sections 1.1-1(b) and 1.871-1 of the Income Tax Regulations provide that all citizens of the United States, wherever resident, and all resident alien individuals are liable to the income taxes imposed by the Internal Revenue Code whether the income is received from sources within or without the United States. See, however, section 911 of the Code. (Emphasis added.)"
[Rev.Rul. 75-357, p. 5]

Being that Rev.Rul. 75-357 quotes 26 C.F.R. § 1.1-1(b) directly, and duly informs every reader to see 26 U.S.C. §911, we believe an examination of 26 U.S.C. §911 and its regulations is in order to locate the appropriate application of the "wherever resident" phrase in 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(b). See 26 U.S.C. §911(d)(1)(A) as follows:

(d) Definitions and special rules — For purposes of this section —

(1) Qualified individual — The term "qualified individual" means an individual whose tax home is in a foreign country and who is —

(A) a citizen of the United States and establishes to the satisfaction of the Secretary that he has been a bona fide resident of a foreign country or countries for an uninterrupted period which includes an entire taxable year.
[26 U.S.C. §911(d)(1)(A)]

There you have it. The "citizen of the United states" must be a bona-fide "resident of a foreign country" to be a qualified individual subject to tax.

Additionally, as we know, 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(b) states:

"All citizens of the United States, wherever resident, are liable to the income taxes imposed by the Internal Revenue Code whether the income is received from sources within or without the United States."

The regulations for section 911 make the distinction between where income is received as opposed to where services are performed. See the following:

26 C.F.R. §1.911-3 Determination of amount of foreign earned income to be excluded.

(a) Definition of foreign earned income.

For purposes of section 911 and the regulations thereunder, the term "foreign earned income" means earned income (as defined in paragraph (b) of this section) from sources within a foreign country (as defined in §1.911-2(h)) that is earned during a period for which the individual qualifies under §1.911-2(a) to make an election. Earned income is from sources within a foreign country if it is attributable to services performed by an individual in a foreign country or countries. The place of receipt of earned income is immaterial in determining whether earned income is attributable to services performed in a foreign country or countries.

Note the phrase "foreign country" above. That phrase obviously does not include states of the Union. We are therefore inescapably lead to the following conclusions based on the above analysis:

1. One cannot earn "income" as a statutory "citizen" under 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(c), 26 U.S.C. §911, and 8 U.S.C. §1401 unless they are abroad in a foreign country.
2. No statute EXPRESSLY imposes a tax upon statutory "citizens" when they are NOT "abroad", meaning in a foreign country. Therefore, under the rules of statutory construction, tax is not owed under ANY other circumstance:

*"Expressio unius est exclusio alterius. A maxim of statutory interpretation meaning that the expression of one thing is the exclusion of another. Burgin v. Forbes, 293 Ky. 456, 169 S.W.2d. 321, 325; Newblock v. Bowles, 170 Okl. 487, 40 P.2d. 1097, 1100. Mention of one thing implies exclusion of another. When certain persons or things are specified in a law, contract, or will, an intention to exclude all others from its operation may be inferred. Under this maxim, if statute specifies one exception to a general rule or assumes to specify the effects of a certain provision, other exceptions or effects are excluded."
[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 581]*

3. Those statutory citizens and residents who are in the statutory geographical "United States" under 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d), also called the federal zone, are called statutory "U.S. persons" and they are exempt from withholding and reporting.
4. A state citizen under the Fourteenth Amendment is NOT a statutory "citizen" under the Internal Revenue Code at 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(c), even when they are abroad. Rather, they are statutory "non-resident non-persons" when abroad. See and rebut Non-Resident Non-Person Position, Form #05.020, Section 8 and the following and answer the questions at the end of the following if you disagree:

Why You are a "national", "state national", and Constitutional but not Statutory Citizen, Form #05.006
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

5. Even when one is "abroad" as a statutory "citizen", they can cease to be a statutory "citizen" at any time by:
  - 5.1. Changing their domicile to the foreign country. This is because the civil status of "citizen" is a product of domicile on federal territory, not their birth...AND
  - 5.2. Surrendering any and all tax "benefits" of the income tax treaty. The receipt of the "benefit" makes them subject to Internal Revenue Code Subtitle A "trade or business" franchise and a public officer in receipt, custody, and control of government property, which itself IS the "benefit".
6. It is a CRIME for a state citizen to claim the civil status of STATUTORY "citizen" under 8 U.S.C. §1401. That crime is documented in 18 U.S.C. §911.
7. The claim that all state citizens domiciled in states of the Union are "citizens of the United States" under the Internal Revenue Code and that they owe a tax on ANY of their earnings is categorically false and fraudulent.

Below is a table that succinctly summarizes everything we have learned in this section in tabular form. The left column shows what you are now and the two right columns show what you can "elect" or "volunteer" to become under the authority of the Internal Revenue Code based on that status:

| "citizen of the United States"(see 8 U.S.C. §1401)            | "citizen" may unknowingly elect to be treated as an "alien" by filing 1040, 1040A, or 1040EZ form. This election, however, is not authorized by any statute or regulation, and consequently, the IRS is not authorized to process such a return! It amounts to constructive fraud for a "citizen" to file as an "alien", which is what submitting a 1040 or 1040A form does. | No "citizen of the United States" can be a "nonresident alien", nor is he authorized under the I.R.C. to "elect" to become one. Likewise, no "nonresident alien" is authorized by the I.R.C. to elect to become a "citizen of the United States" under 8 U.S.C. §1401. |
| "resident"(not defined anywhere in the Internal Revenue Code) | All "residents" are "aliens". "Resident", "resident alien", and "alien" are equivalent terms.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | A "nonresident alien" may elect to be treated as an "alien" and a "resident" under the provisions of 26 U.S.C. §6013(g) or (h).                                                                                                                                        |

5.4.8.13.8 How private employers and financial institutions compel choice of domicile

Whenever you open a financial account or start a new job these days, some companies, banks, or investment companies will require you to produce "government ID". Their favorite form of ID is the state issued ID. Unfortunately, unless you are an alien (foreign national) domiciled on federal territory within the exterior limits of the state who is not protected by the Constitution, you don't qualify for state ID or even a state driver's license. By asking for "government ID", employers and financial institutions indirectly are forcing you to do the following as a precondition of doing business with them:

1. Surrender the benefits and protections of being a Constitutional "citizen" in exchange for being a privileged statutory alien, and to do so WITHOUT consideration and without recourse.
2. Become a statutory "resident alien" pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A) domiciled on federal territory and subject to federal jurisdiction, who is a public officer within the federal government engaged in the "trade or business" franchise.

See:

The "Trade or Business" Scam, Form #05.001
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

3. Become a privileged statutory "resident alien" franchisee who is compelled to participate in what essentially amounts to a "protection racket".

"Residents, as distinguished from citizens, are aliens who are permitted to take up a permanent abode in the country. Being bound to the society by reason of their [intention of] dwelling in it, they are subject to its laws so long as they remain there, and, being protected by it, they must defend it, although they do not enjoy all the rights of citizenship. They have only certain privileges which the law, or custom, gives them. Permanent residents are those who have been given the right of perpetual residence. They are a sort of citizen of a less privileged character, and are subject to the society without enjoying all its advantages. Their children succeed to their status; for the right of perpetual residence given them by the State passes to their children."

[The Law of Nations, p. 87, E. De Vattel, Volume Three, 1758, Carnegie Institution of Washington; emphasis added.]

4. Serving two masters and being subject simultaneously to state and federal jurisdiction. The federal government has jurisdiction over Constitutional aliens, including those within a state.

"No one can serve two masters [two employers, for instance]; for either he will hate the one and love the other, or else he will be loyal to the one and despise the other. You cannot serve God and mammon [government]."
 [Matt. 6:24, Bible, NKJV. Written by a tax collector]

1 Those who use OTHER than a driver license for ID may be told by some institutions that they need TWO forms of government
2 ID in order to open the account. They do this because what they are REALLY looking for is at least one document that
3 evidences a domicile or residence in a specific location. Here is an example of what you might hear on this subject:

4 "I'm sorry, but the Patriot Act [for some other obscure regulation] requires you to produce TWO forms of 5 government issued ID to open an account with us."

6 Most people falsely presume that the above statement means that they ALSO need state ID in addition to the passport but this
7 isn't true. It is a maxim of law that the law cannot require an impossibility. If they are going to impose a duty upon you
8 under the color of law by saying that you need TWO forms of ID, they must provide a way to comply without:

- 9 1. Compelling you to politically associate with a specific government in violation of the First Amendment.
- 10 2. Compelling you to participate in government franchises by providing an identifying number.
- 11 3. Misrepresenting your status as a privileged statutory "resident alien".
- 12 4. Violating your religious beliefs by nominating an Earthly protector and thereby firing God as your only protector.

13 There are lots of ways around this trap. For instance, the U.S. Supreme Court said WE are the government and that we 14 govern ourselves through our elected representatives.

15 "The words 'people of the United States' and 'citizens,' are synonymous terms, and mean the same thing. They
16 both describe the political body who, according to our republican institutions, form the sovereignty, and who
17 hold the power and conduct the government through their representatives. They are what we familiarly call the
18 'sovereign people,' and every citizen is one of this people, and a constituent member of this sovereignty. ..."
19 Boyd v. State of Nebraska, [143 U.S. 135 (1892)]

20 So what does "government id" really mean? A notary public is also a public officer and therefore part of the government.

21 Chapter 1
22 Introduction
23 §1.1 Generally

24 A notary public (sometimes called a notary) is a public official appointed under authority of law with power,
25 among other things, to administer oaths, certify affidavits, take acknowledgments, take depositions, perpetuate
26 testimony, and protect negotiable instruments. Notaries are not appointed under federal law; they are appointed
27 under the authority of the various states, districts, territories, as in the case of the Virgin Islands, and the 28 commonwealth, in the case of Puerto Rico. The statutes, which define the powers and duties of a notary public,
29 frequently grant the notary the authority to do all acts justified by commercial usage and the "law merchant".
30 [Anderson's Manual for Notaries Public, Ninth Edition, 2001, ISBN 1-58360-357-3]

31 If you hand the financial institution any of the following, you have satisfied their requirement for secondary ID without 32 violating the law or being compelled to associate with or contract with the government:

- 33 1. Notarized piece of paper with your picture and your birth certificate on it. The notary is a government officer and 34 therefore it is government ID.
- 35 2. Certified copy of your birth certificate by itself. The certification is from the government so its government ID.
- 36 3. ID issued by a government you formed and signed by the "Secretary of State" of that government. The people are the 37 government according to the Supreme Court, so you can issue your own ID.

38 You have to be creative at times to avoid their attempts to compel you to sign up for government franchises, but it is still 39 doable.

40 Another thing that nearly all financial institutions and private employers habitually do is PRESUME, usually wrongfully,
41 that:

- 42 1. You are a "citizen" or a "resident" of the place you live or work. What citizens and residents have in common is a 43 domicile within a jurisdiction. Otherwise, you would be called "nonresidents" or "transient foreigners".
- 44 2. Whatever residence or mailing address you give them is your domicile or residence address.

1 By making such a false presumption, employers and financial institutions in effect are causing you to make an “invisible
2 election” to become a citizen or resident or domiciliary and to provide your tacit consent to be CIVILLY governed without 3 even realizing it.

4 If you want to prevent becoming a victim of the false presumption that you are a statutory domiciled “citizen”, “resident”,
5 and therefore domiciliary of the place you live or work, you must take special precautions to notify all of your business
6 associates by providing a special form to them describing you as a “nonresident” of some kind. At the federal level, that form
7 is the IRS Form W-8BEN or a suitable substitute, which identifies the holder as a “nonresident alien”. IRS does not make a
8 form for “nonresidents” who are not “aliens” (foreign nationals) or public officers, unfortunately, so you must therefore 9 modify their form or make your own form. For an article on how to fill out tax forms to ensure that you are not PRESUMED,
10 usually prejudicially and falsely, to be a resident or citizen or domiciliary, see the following article:

About IRS Form W-8BEN, Form #04.202
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

11 Sometimes, those receiving your declaration of “non-resident non-person” or “transient foreigner” status may try to interfere
12 with that choice. For such cases, the following pamphlet proves that the only one who can lawfully declare or establish your 13 civil status, including your “nonresident” status, is you. If anyone tries to coerce you to declare a civil status for yourself that
14 you don't want to accept and don't consent to, you should provide an affidavit indicating that you were under duress and that
15 they threatened to financially penalize you or not contract with you if you don't LIE on government forms and declare a
16 status you don't want. The following pamphlet is also useful in proving that they have no authority to coerce you to declare
17 any civil status you don't want:

Your Exclusive Right to Declare or Establish Your Civil Status, Form #13.008
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

18 We should always keep in mind that whenever a financial institution or employer asks for a tax form, they are doing so under 19 the color of law as a “withholding agent” (26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(16)) who is usually illegally acting as a public officer of the 20 government. Because they are a public officer of the government in their capacity as a withholding agent, they still have a
21 legal duty not to violate your rights, even if they otherwise are a private company. The Constitution applies to all officers
22 and agents of the government, including “withholding agents” while acting in that capacity. Financial institutions especially 23 are aware of this fact, which is why if you ask them to give you their criteria for what ID they will accept in writing, they will
24 say that it is a confidential internal document that they can't share with the public. They know they are discriminating
25 unlawfully as a public officer by rejecting your ID and they want to limit the legal liability that results from this by preventing
26 you from having evidence to prove that they are officially discriminating. They keep such policies on their computer,
27 protected by a password, and they will tell you that the computer doesn't let them print it out or that there isn't a field in their 28 system for them to accept the type of ID that you have. THIS is a SCAM! Take a picture of the screen with your cellphone, 29 page by page, in response to such a SCAM.

30 5.4.8.13.9 How corrupt courts, judges, and government attorneys try to CHANGE your domicile

31 There are many ways in which corrupt judges, prosecutors, and courts compel a change in your domicile to federal territory.
32 Below are a few of the ways, followed by further explanation:

- 33 1. The court rules will not require you to specify that you are a citizen or resident. This allows the judge to PRESUME
34 that you are, even though this presumption is a violation of due process of law. Consent to BECOME a citizen or 35 resident domiciled within their jurisdiction cannot confer personal jurisdiction upon a court if you did not ALREADY 36 have such status.
- 37 2. Your opponent may accuse you of having a “domicile”, “residence”, or “permanent address” at a specific location and 38 if you don't rebut it, then you are unconstitutionally PRESUMED to have that status.
- 39 3. You may claim that you do NOT have a civil domicile in the jurisdiction of the court and the judge may illegally try to 40 exclude the pleading or the evidence claiming so. This is criminal tampering with a witness and you should 41 vociferously oppose it.
- 42 4. The judge or prosecutor may ASK you if you are “citizen”, create the PRESUMPTION that they are talking about your 43 POLITICAL status, and when you answer, PRESUME that it is a civil statutory status. This happens all the time on 44 government forms and its identity theft. Leave no room for such tricks in your pleadings!

5. The judge or prosecutor may try to confuse citizenship terms and fool you into admitting that you have a domicile as shown below.

To avoid all the above malicious traps in court, we recommend the following attachments to your complaint or response:

It is very important to understand that there are THREE separate and distinct CONTEXTS in which the term "United States" can be used, and each has a mutually exclusive and different meaning. These three definitions of "United States" were described by the U.S. Supreme Court in Hooven and Allison v. Evatt, 324 U.S. 652 (1945):

Table 5-45: Geographical terms used throughout this page

| Term      | # in diagrams | Meaning                                                             |
|------------------|----------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| United States*   | 1                    | The country "United States" in the family of nations throughout the world. |
| United States  | 2                    | The "federal zone".                                                        |
| United States | 3                    | Collective states of the Union mentioned throughout the Constitution.      |

In addition to the above GEOGRAPHICAL context, there is also a legal, non-geographical context in which the term "United States" can be used, which is the GOVERNMENT as a legal entity. Throughout this page and this website, we identify THIS context as "United States****" or "United States<sup>4</sup>". The only types of "persons" within THIS context are public offices within the national and not state government. It is THIS context in which "sources within the United States" is used for the purposes of "income" and "gross income" within the Internal Revenue Code, as proven by:

Non-Resident Non-Person Position, Form #05.020, Section 5.4

DIRECT LINK: <http://sedm.org/Forms/05-MemLaw/NonresidentNonPersonPosition.pdf>

FORMS PAGE: <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

The reason these contexts are not expressly distinguished in the statutes by the Legislative Branch or on government forms crafted by the Executive Branch is that they are the KEY mechanism by which:

1. Federal jurisdiction is unlawfully enlarged by abusing presumption, which is a violation of due process of law. See:

Presumption: Chief Weapon for Unlawfully Enlarging Federal Jurisdiction, Form #05.017

DIRECT LINK: <http://sedm.org/Forms/05-MemLaw/Presumption.pdf>

FORMS PAGE: <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

2. The separation of powers between the states and the national government is destroyed, in violation of the legislative intent of the Constitution. See:

Government Conspiracy to Destroy the Separation of Powers, Form #05.023

DIRECT LINK: <http://sedm.org/Forms/05-MemLaw/SeparationOfPowers.pdf>

FORMS PAGE: <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

3. A "society of law" is transformed into a "society of men" in violation of Marbury v. Madison, 5 U.S. 137 (1803):

"The government of the United States has been emphatically termed a government of laws, and not of men. It will certainly cease to deserve this high appellation, if the laws furnish no remedy for the violation of a vested legal right."

[Marbury v. Madison, 5 U.S. 137, 163 (1803)]

4. Exclusively PRIVATE rights are transformed into public rights in a process we call "invisible eminent domain using presumption and words of art".
5. Judges are unconstitutionally delegated undue discretion and "arbitrary power" to unlawfully enlarge federal jurisdiction. See:

Federal Jurisdiction, Form #05.018

FORMS PAGE: <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

DIRECT LINK: <http://sedm.org/Forms/05-MemLaw/FederalJurisdiction.pdf>

The way a corrupted Executive Branch or judge accomplish the above is to unconstitutionally:

1. PRESUME that ALL of the four contexts for "United States" are equivalent.
2. PRESUME that CONSTITUTIONAL citizens and STATUTORY citizens are EQUIVALENT under federal law. They are NOT. A CONSTITUTIONAL citizen is a "non-resident " under federal civil law and NOT a STATUTORY "national and citizen of the United States** at birth" per 8 U.S.C. §1401. See the document below:

Why You are a "national", "state national", and Constitutional but not Statutory Citizen, Form #05.006

FORMS PAGE: <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

DIRECT LINK: <http://sedm.org/Forms/05-MemLaw/WhyANational.pdf>

3. PRESUME that "nationality" and "domicile" are equivalent. They are NOT. See:

Why Domicile and Becoming a "Taxpayer" Require Your Consent, Form #05.002

FORMS PAGE: <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

DIRECT LINK: <http://sedm.org/Forms/05-MemLaw/Domicile.pdf>

4. Use the word "citizenship" in place of "nationality" OR "domicile", and refuse to disclose WHICH of the two they mean in EVERY context.
5. Confuse the POLITICAL/CONSTITUTIONAL meaning of words with the civil STATUTORY context. For instance, asking on government forms whether you are a POLITICAL/CONSTITUTIONAL citizen and then FALSELY PRESUMING that you are a STATUTORY citizen under 8 U.S.C. §1401.
6. Confuse the words "domicile" and "residence" or impute either to you without satisfying the burden of proving that you EXPRESSLY CONSENTED to it and thereby illegally kidnap your civil legal identity against your will. One can have only one "domicile" but many "residences" and BOTH require your consent. See:

Why Domicile and Becoming a "Taxpayer" Require Your Consent, Form #05.002

FORMS PAGE: <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

DIRECT LINK: <http://sedm.org/Forms/05-MemLaw/Domicile.pdf>

7. Add things or classes of things to the meaning of statutory terms that do not EXPRESSLY appear in their definitions, in violation of the rules of statutory construction. See:

Legal Deception, Propaganda, and Fraud, Form #05.014

This kind of arbitrary discretion is PROHIBITED by the Constitution, as held by the U.S. Supreme Court:

"When we consider the nature and the theory of our institutions of government, the principles upon which they are supposed to rest, and review the history of their development, we are constrained to conclude that they do not mean to leave room for the play and action of purely personal and arbitrary power."
[Yick Wo v. Hopkins, 118 U.S. 356, 369, 6 S.Sup.Ct. 1064, 1071]

Thomas Jefferson, our most revered founding father, precisely predicted the above abuses when he said:

"It has long been my opinion, and I have never shrunk from its expression,... that the germ of dissolution of our Federal Government is in the constitution of the Federal Judiciary--an irresponsible body (for impeachment is scarcely a scare-crow), working like gravity by night and by day, gaining a little today and a little tomorrow, and advancing its noiseless step like a thief over the field of jurisdiction until all shall be usurped from the States and the government be consolidated into one. To this I am opposed."
[Thomas Jefferson to Charles Hammond, 1821. ME 15:331]

1 "Contrary to all correct example, [the Federal judiciary] are in the habit of going out of the question before them,
2 to throw an anchor ahead and grapple further hold for future advances of power. They are then in fact the corps
3 of sappers and miners, steadily working to undermine the independent rights of the States and to consolidate
4 all power in the hands of that government in which they have so important a freehold estate."
5 [Thomas Jefferson: Autobiography, 1821. ME 1:121]

6 "The judiciary of the United States is the subtle corps of sappers and miners constantly working under ground to 7 undermine the foundations of our confederated fabric. They are construing our Constitution from a co-ordination
8 of a general and special government to a general and supreme one alone. This will lay all things at their feet,
9 and they are too well versed in English law to forget the maxim, 'boni judicis est ampliari jurisdictionem.'"
10 [Thomas Jefferson to Thomas Ritchie, 1820. ME 15:297]

11 "When all government, domestic and foreign, in little as in great things, shall be drawn to Washington as the 12 center of all power, it will render powerless the checks provided of one government on another and will become 13 as venal and oppressive as the government from which we separated."
14 [Thomas Jefferson to Charles Hammond, 1821. ME 15:332]

15 "What an augmentation of the field for jobbing, speculating, plundering, office-building ["trade or business"
16 scam] and office-hunting would be produced by an assumption [PRESUMPTION] of all the State powers into the 17 hands of the General Government!"
18 [Thomas Jefferson to Gideon Granger, 1800. ME 10:168]

19 5.4.8.13.10 Summary of how to enslave any people by abusing citizenship terms and language<sup>167</sup>

20 It is instructive to summarize how citizenship "words of art" can be abused to enslave any people:

- 21 1. Make the government into an unconstitutional monopoly in providing "protection". This turns government into a mafia
22 protection RACKET. 18 U.S.C. Chapter 95.
- 23 2. Ensure that the government NEVER prosecutes its own members for their racketeering crimes, and instead uses the 24 law ONLY to "selectively enforce" against political dissidents or those who refuse their "protection racket". This act
25 of omission promotes anarchy by making the government not only the source of law, but above the law, not as a matter
26 of law, but as a matter of invisible "policy".
- 27 3. Make people FALSELY believe that:
  - 28 3.1. CIVIL STATUTES, all of which ONLY pertain to government are the ONLY remedy for anything.
  - 29 3.2. Everyone is a public officer called a "citizen" or "resident" who has to do anything and everything that any 30 politician publishes in the "employment agreement" called the civil law.
  - 31 3.3. Any civil obligation any corrupt politician wants can lawfully attach to the status of "citizen" without 32 compensation because calling yourself a citizen is voluntary and anything done to you that you volunteer for 33 cannot form the basis for an injury. This doesn't violate the Thirteenth Amendment because you volunteered.

34 The citizen cannot complain, because he has 35 voluntarily submitted himself to such a form of 36 government. He owes allegiance to the two departments, so to speak, and within their respective 37 spheres must pay the penalties which each exacts for disobedience to its laws. In return, he can demand
38 protection from each within its own jurisdiction.
39 [United States v. Cruikshank, 92 U.S. 542 (1875) [emphasis added]

- 40 3.4. There is no common law. Common law is the only way to lawfully approach the government as a PRIVATE 41 human and equal RATHER than a public officer.
- 42 3.5. Being a "citizen" under the civil statutes and employment agreement is a result of BIRTH rather than CIVIL 43 DOMICILE. This makes it impossible to "unvolunteer" because being born is not consensual but selecting a 44 domicile is consensual.
- 45 4. Define everyone in receipt of that protection as receiving a franchise "benefit".
  - 46 4.1. Give this "benefit" the name "privileges and immunities".
  - 47 4.2. Prosecute as thieves all those who refuse to receive the "benefit" or pay for the benefit. This happens all the time
48 at tax trials. The government prosecution tells a jury full of "tax consumers" with a criminal financial conflict of interest in violation of 18 U.S.C. §208 that you refuse to pay your “fair share” for receiving the “benefits” of living in this country, but are never even required to qualify or prove with evidence the actual VALUE of such benefits. This turns the jury into an angry lynch mob not unlike the mob that crucified Jesus, who are a “weapon of mass destruction” in the hands of a covetous prosecutor. It makes the defendant literally into a “human sacrifice” to the pagan god of government.

5. Implement a common law maxim that he who receives a “benefit” implicitly consents to all the obligations associated with the “benefit”. That way, it is impossible to withdraw your IMPLIED consent to be protected or the obligations of paying for the protection.

*“Cujus est commodum ejus debet esse incommodum.
He who receives the benefit should also bear the disadvantage.”*

*“Que sentit commodum, sentire debet et onus.
He who derives a benefit from a thing, ought to feel the disadvantages attending it. 2 Bouv. Inst. n. 1433.”*
[Bouvier's Maxims of Law, 1856;
SOURCE: <http://famguardian.org/Publications/BouvierMaximsOfLaw/BouviereMaxims.htm>]

6. Call those in receipt of the civil statutory protection “citizens” and “subjects”, whether they want to be or not. Refuse to document or explain HOW they became “subjects” or how to UNVOLUNTEER to become one. Even tell them its “voluntary” but refuse to offer a way to un volunteer. In psychology, this approach is called “crazymaking”.

Crazymaking

Noun

A form of psychological attack on somebody by offering contradictory alternatives and criticizing [or undermining] the person for choosing either.
[Your Dictionary, “crazymaking”, Downloaded 1/9/2018; SOURCE:
<http://www.yourdictionary.com/crazymaking>]

This obviously violates the First Amendment, but a government that is above the law doesn't care. Don't allow anyone but a judge to define or redefine these words “citizen” or “subject” so that the status cannot be challenged in court.

7. Label the allegiance (“national” is someone with allegiance) that is the foundation of citizenship at least APPEAR PERMANENT and therefore IRREVOCABLE. Make it at least APPEAR that the only way that one can cease to be a “citizen” is to surrender their nationality and becoming stateless everywhere on Earth.

8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21)

The term “national” means a person owing permanent allegiance to a state.

Here is the definition of “permanent” that shows this deception is happening:

8 U.S.C. §1101 Definitions [for the purposes of citizenship]

(a) As used in this chapter—

(31) The term “permanent” means a relationship of continuing or lasting nature, as distinguished from temporary, but a relationship may be permanent even though it is one that may be dissolved eventually at the instance either of the United States** or of the individual, in accordance with law.

8. Create confusion in the U.S. Supreme Court over what the origin of the government's taxing power is and whether it derives from DOMICILE or NATIONALITY. Former President Taft, the guy who got the Sixteenth Amendment income tax amendment FRAUDULENTLY ratified by Philander Knox, did this while he was serving as the Chief Just of the U.S. Supreme Court<sup>168</sup>:

“Or, to express it another way, the basis of the power to tax was not and cannot be made dependent upon the situs of the property in all cases, it being in or out of the United States, nor was not and cannot be made dependent upon the domicile of the citizen, that being in or out of the United States, but upon his relation as citizen to the United States and the relation of the latter to him as citizen. The consequence of the relations is that the native citizen who is taxed may have domicile, and the property from which his income is derived may have situs, in a foreign country and the tax be legal—the government having power to impose the tax.”

[Cook v. Tait, 265 U.S. 47 (1924)]

9. Hope no one notices that:

9.1. The common law has never been repealed and CANNOT be repealed because it is mandated in the United States Constitution. See the Seventh Amendment.

9.2. The common law MUST allow one to NOT accept a benefit:

*“Invito beneficium non datur.
No one is obliged to accept a benefit against his consent. Dig. 50, 17, 69. But if he does not dissent he will be considered as assenting. Vide Assent.*

*Non videtur consensum retinuisse si quis ex praescripto minantis aliquid immutavit.
He does not appear to have retained his consent, if he have changed anything through the means of a party threatening. Bacon's Max. Reg. 33.”
[Bouvier's Maxims of Law, 1856;
SOURCE: <http://famguardian.org/Publications/BouvierMaximsOfLaw/BouviereMaxims.htm>]*

9.3. The term “permanent” really means temporary and requires your express and CONTINUING consent, and ESPECIALLY in the context of “permanent allegiance” that is the basis for “nationality”:

8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(31)

The term “permanent” means a relationship of continuing or lasting nature, as distinguished from temporary, but a relationship may be permanent even though it is one that may be dissolved eventually at the instance either of the United States or of the individual, in accordance with law.

10. Use deception, equivocation, and “words of art” to divorce “domicile”, which requires consent, from the basis for being a “citizen”, and thus, remove CONSENT from the requirement to be a “citizen”. This has the effect of making “citizen” status compelled and involuntary. Do this by the following tactics:

10.1. PRESUME that ALL of the four contexts for "United States" are equivalent.

10.2. PRESUME that CONSTITUTIONAL citizens and STATUTORY citizens are EQUIVALENT under federal law. They are NOT. A CONSTITUTIONAL citizen is a "non-resident non-person" under federal law and NOT a "citizen of the United States**".

10.3. PRESUME that "nationality" and "domicile" are equivalent. They are NOT.

10.4. Use the word "citizenship" in place of "nationality" OR "domicile", and refuse to disclose WHICH of the two they mean in EVERY context.

10.5. Confuse the POLITICAL/CONSTITUTIONAL meaning of words with the civil STATUTORY context. For instance, asking on government forms whether you are a POLITICAL/CONSTITUTIONAL citizen and then FALSELY PRESUMING that you are a STATUTORY citizen under 8 U.S.C. §1401.

10.6. Confuse the words "domicile" and "residence" or impute either to you without satisfying the burden of proving that you EXPRESSLY CONSENTED to it and thereby illegally kidnap your civil legal identity against your will. One can have only one "domicile" but many "residences" and BOTH require your consent.

10.7. Add things or classes of things to the meaning of statutory GEOGRAPHIC terms that do not EXPRESSLY appear in their definitions, in violation of the rules of statutory construction. This allows EVERYONE to be PRESUMED to be a STATUTORY “citizen” and franchisee.

10.8. Refuse to allow the jury to read the definitions in the law and then give them a definition that is in conflict with the statutory definition. This substitutes the JUDGES will for what the law expressly says and thereby substitutes PUBLIC POLICY for the written law.

10.9. Publish deceptive government publications that are in deliberate conflict with what the statutes define "United States" as and then tell the public that they CANNOT rely on the publication. The IRS does this with ALL of their publications and it is FRAUD. See:

All of the above tactics are documented in:

Legal Deception, Propaganda, and Fraud, Form #05.014
<https://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

11. Label as “frivolous” anyone who exposes or challenges the above in court. What this really means is someone who refuses to join the state-sponsored religion that worships men and rulers and governments and which has “superior” or “supernatural” powers above that of any man. Prevent challenges to being called “frivolous” by:

11.1. Refusing to define the word.

11.2. Never having to prove WITH EVIDENCE that the claim being called “frivolous” is incorrect.

The above tactics are documented in:

Meaning of the Word “Frivolous”, Form #05.027

<https://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

12. Protect the above SCAM by deceiving people litigating against the above abuses into falsely believing that “sovereign immunity” is a lawful way to prevent common law remedies against the above abuses. Sovereign immunity only applies to STATUTORY “citizens” and “residents” under the CIVIL law, not the COMMON law.

The above tactics essentially turn a REPUBLIC into an OLIGARCHY and make everyone a slave to the usually JUDICIAL oligarchy. That oligarchy is also called a “kritarchy”. They make our legal system function just like a British Monarchy for all intents and purposes. British subjects cannot abandon their civil status as “subjects” of the king or queen by changing their domicile, while under American jurisprudence, Americans can but are deceived into believing that they can't. Now you know why judges don't like talking about the SOURCE of their unjust civil jurisdiction over you, which is domicile, or its relationship to HOW their civil statutes acquire the “force of law” against you.

5.4.8.13.11 Administrative Remedies to Prevent Identity Theft on Government Forms

We have prepared an entire short presentation showing you all the “traps” on government forms and how to avoid them:

Avoiding Traps in Government Forms, Form #12.023

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

All of the so-called “traps” described in the above presentation center around the following abuses and FRAUDS:

1. The perjury statement at the end of the form betrays where they PRESUME you geographically are. 28 U.S.C. 1746 identifies TWO possible jurisdictions, and if they don't use the one in 28 U.S.C. §1746(1), they are PRESUMING, usually falsely, that you are located on federal territory and come under territorial law.

28 U.S. Code § 1746 - Unsworn declarations under penalty of perjury

Wherever, under any law of the United States or under any rule, regulation, order, or requirement made pursuant to law, any matter is required or permitted to be supported, evidenced, established, or proved by the sworn declaration, verification, certificate, statement, oath, or affidavit, in writing of the person making the same (other than a deposition, or an oath of office, or an oath required to be taken before a specified official other than a notary public), such matter may, with like force and effect, be supported, evidenced, established, or proved by the unsworn declaration, certificate, verification, or statement, in writing of such person which is subscribed by him, as true under penalty of perjury, and dated, in substantially the following form:

(1) If executed without the United States [federal territory or the government]: “I declare (or certify, verify, or state) under penalty of perjury under the laws of the United States of America that the foregoing is true and correct. Executed on (date).

(2) If executed within the United States [federal territory or the government], its territories, possessions, or commonwealths: “I declare (or certify, verify, or state) under penalty of perjury that the foregoing is true and correct. Executed on (date).

(Signature)”.

2. Telling you when you submit the form that the terms on the form have their ordinary, PRIVATE, non-statutory meaning but after they RECEIVE the form, INTERPRETING all terms in their PUBLIC and STATUTORY context. This is bait and switch, deception, and FRAUD.

3. Confusing the CONSTITUTIONAL context with the STATUTORY context for geographical words of art such as “United States” and “State”.

4. Confusing CONSTITUTIONAL "Citizens" or "citizens of the United States" in the Fourteenth Amendment with STATUTORY "U.S. citizen", or "nationals and citizens of the United states at birth" under 8 U.S.C. §1401.
5. Confusing CONSTITUTIONAL "persons" or "people" with STATUTORY "persons" or "individuals". CONSTITUTIONAL "persons" are all MEN OR WOMEN AND NOT ARTIFICIAL entities or offices, while civil STATUTORY persons are all PUBLIC offices and fictions of law created by Congress.
6. Connecting you with a civil status found in civil statutory law, which is a public office. The form itself does this:
  - 6.1. In the "status" block. It either doesn't offer a STATUTORY "non-resident non-person" status in the form or they don't offer ANY form for STATUTORY "non-resident non-persons".
  - 6.2. The Title of the form. The upper left corner of the 1040 identifies the applicant as a "U.S. individual", meaning a public office domiciled on federal territory.
  - 6.3. Underneath the signature, which usually identifies the civil status of the applicant, such as "taxpayer".

The remedy for the above types of deception and fraud is the following:

1. Avoid filling out any and every government form.
2. If FORCED to fill out a government form, ALWAYS attach a MANDATORY attachment that defines all geographical, citizenship, and status terms the form with precise definitions and betray whether the meaning is STATUTORY or CONSTITUTION. It CANNOT be both. If you think it is both, you are practicing a logical fallacy called "equivocation". State on the form you are attaching to that the form is "Not valid, false, and fraudulent if not accompanied by the following attachment: _____". The attachments on our site are good for this.
3. Tell the recipient that if they don't rebut the definitions you provide within a specified time limit, then they agree and are estopped from later challenging it.
4. Specify that none of the terms on the form submitted have the meaning found in any state or federal statutory code. Instead they imply only the common meaning.

There are many forms on our site you can attach to standard forms provided by the IRS, state revenue agencies, financial institutions, and employers that satisfy the above to ensure that your correct status is reflected in their records. Below are the most important ones.

1. Affidavit of Citizenship, Domicile, and Tax Status, Form #02.001
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>
2. Tax Form Attachment, Form #04.201

3. USA Passport Application Attachment, Form #06.007

4. Voter Registration Attachment, Form #06.003
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>
5. Affidavit of Domicile: Probate, Form #04.223
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

The language after the line below is language derived from Form #04.223 above. The language included is very instructive and helpful to our readers in identifying HOW the identity theft happens. We strongly suggest reusing this language in the administrative record of any entity who claims you are a statutory "taxpayer", "person", or "individual" under the Internal Revenue Code or state revenue code.

AFFIDAVIT REGARDING ESTATE OF DECEDENT: _____

I certify that the following facts are true under penalty of perjury under the criminal perjury laws of the state I am in but NOT under any OTHER of the civil statutory codes. I am not under any other civil codes as a civil non-resident non-person. The content of this form defines all geographical, citizenship, and domicile terms used on any and all forms to which this estate settlement relates for all parties concerned.

1. Civil status and domicile of decedent: Decedent at the time of his death was:
  - 1.1. A CONSTITUTIONAL "Citizen" or "citizen of the United States" as defined in the Fourteenth Amendment.

- 1 1.2. NOT a STATUTORY "U.S. citizen" or "national and citizen of the United States at birth" under 8 U.S.C. §1401, 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(c), or 26 U.S.C. §3121(e). 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(c) identifies an 8 U.S.C. §1401 "U.S. citizen" as the ONLY type of
2 "citizen" subject to the Internal Revenue Code. All such "U.S. citizens" are territorial citizens born within and domiciled
3 within federal territory and NOT a CONSTITUTIONAL "State".
4
- 5 1.3. Domiciled in the CONSTITUTIONAL "United States" and CONSTITUTIONAL State at the time of his death.

6 ... the Supreme Court in the Insular Cases<sup>169</sup> provides authoritative guidance on the territorial scope of the 7 term "the United States" in the Fourteenth Amendment. The Insular Cases were a series of Supreme Court
8 decisions that addressed challenges to duties on goods transported from Puerto Rico to the continental United 9 States. Puerto Rico, like the Philippines, had been recently ceded to the United States. The Court considered the 10 territorial scope of the term "the United States" in the Constitution and held that this term as used in the 11 uniformity clause of the Constitution was territorially limited to the states of the Union. U.S. Const. art. I, § 8
12 ("[A]ll Duties, Imposts and Excises shall be uniform throughout the United States." (emphasis added)); see
13 Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244, 251, 21 S.Ct. 770, 773, 45 L.Ed. 1088 (1901) ("It can nowhere be inferred
14 that the territories were considered a part of the United States. The Constitution was created by the people of 15 the United States, as a union of States, to be governed solely by representatives of the States; ... In short, the 16 Constitution deals with States, their people, and their representatives."); Rabang, 35 F.3d at 1452. Puerto Rico
17 was merely a territory "appurtenant and belonging to the United States, but not a part of the United States
18 within the revenue clauses of the Constitution." Downes, 182 U.S. at 287, 21 S.Ct. at 787.

19 *The Court's conclusion in Downes was derived in part by analyzing the territorial scope of the Thirteenth and 20 Fourteenth Amendments. The Thirteenth Amendment prohibits slavery and involuntary servitude "within the 21 United States, or any place subject to their jurisdiction." U.S. Const. amend. XIII, § 1 (emphasis added). The 22 Fourteenth Amendment states that persons "born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the 23 jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States and of the State wherein they reside." U.S. Const. amend
24 XIV, § 1 (emphasis added). The disjunctive "or" in the Thirteenth Amendment demonstrates that "there may 25 be places within the jurisdiction of the United States that are no[t] part of the Union" to which the Thirteenth
26 Amendment would apply. Downes, 182 U.S. at 251, 21 S.Ct. at 773. Citizenship under the Fourteenth
27 Amendment, however, "is not extended to persons born in any place 'subject to [the United States']
28 jurisdiction," "but is limited to persons born or naturalized in the states of the Union. Downes, 182 U.S. at 251,
29 21 S.Ct. at 773 (emphasis added); see also id. at 263, 21 S.Ct. at 777 ("In dealing with foreign sovereignties,
30 the term 'United States' has a broader meaning than when used in the Constitution, and includes all territories
31 subject to the jurisdiction of the Federal government, wherever located.").<sup>170</sup>

- 36 1.5. NOT a STATUTORY "U.S. person" as that term is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30), because it relies on the definition of

(3) Individual.

(ii) Nonresident alien individual.

The term nonresident alien individual means persons described in section 7701(b)(1)(B), alien individuals who are treated as nonresident aliens pursuant to § 301.7701\(b\)-7 of this chapter for purposes of computing their U.S. tax liability, or an alien individual who is a resident of Puerto Rico, Guam, the Commonwealth of Northern Mariana Islands, the U.S. Virgin Islands, or American Samoa as determined under § 301.7701\(b\)-1\(d\) of this chapter. An alien individual who has made an election under section 6013(g) or (h) to be treated as a resident of the United States is nevertheless treated as a nonresident alien individual for purposes of withholding under chapter 3 of the Code and the regulations thereunder.

2. Warning NOT to confuse STATUTORY and CONSTITUTIONAL contexts for geographical or citizenship terms:

- 2.1. Recipient of this form is cautioned NOT to PRESUME that the STATUTORY and CONSTITUTIONAL contexts of geographical, citizenship, or domicile terms are equivalent. They are NOT and are mutually exclusive.
- 2.2. One CANNOT lawfully have a domicile in two different places that are legislatively “foreign” and a “foreign estate” in relation to each other. This is what George Orwell called DOUBLETHINK and the result is CRIMINAL IDENTITY THEFT.
- 2.3. The U.S. Supreme Court held in Rogers v. Bellei, 401 U.S. 815 (1971) that an 8 U.S.C. §1401 STATUTORY "U.S. citizen" is NOT a CONSTITUTIONAL "citizen of the United States" under the Fourteenth Amendment. See also Valmonte v. I.N.S., 136 F.3d. 914 (C.A.2, 1998) earlier. Therefore, it is my firm understanding that the decedent:
  - 2.3.1. Was NOT domiciled in the STATUTORY “United States” or “State” defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) or 4 U.S.C. §110(d) or the state revenue codes. These areas are federal territory under the exclusive jurisdiction of the national government.
  - 2.3.2. Was NOT a STATUTORY "U.S. citizen" under 8 U.S.C. §1401, which is the ONLY type of “citizen” mentioned anywhere in the Internal Revenue Code. These are territorial citizens domiciled on federal territory, and the decedent was NOT so domiciled.

3. “Intention” of the Decedent:

The transaction to which this submission relates requires the affiant to provide legal evidence of the “domicile” of the decedent for the purposes of settling the estate. This requires that he/she make a “legal determination” about someone who he/she had a blood relationship with. “Domicile” is a legal term which includes both PHYSICAL presence in a place COMBINED with consent AND intent to dwell there permanently.

“domicile. A person's legal home. That place where a man has his true, fixed, and permanent home and principal establishment, and to which whenever he is absent he has the intention of returning. Smith v. Smith, 206 Pa.Super. 310, 213 A.2d. 94. Generally, physical presence within a state and the intention to make it one's home are the requisites of establishing a “domicile” therein. The permanent residence of a person or the place to which he intends to return even though he may actually reside elsewhere. A person may have more than one residence but only one domicile. The legal domicile of a person is important since it, rather than the actual residence, often controls the jurisdiction of the taxing authorities and determines where a person may exercise the privilege of voting and other legal rights and privileges.”
[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 485]

- 3.1. Two types of domicile are involved in the estate of the decedent:
  - 3.1.1. The domicile of the PRIVATE PHYSICAL MAN OR WOMAN under the common law and the constitution.
  - 3.1.2. The domicile of any PUBLIC OFFICES he/she fills as part of any civil statutory franchises, such as the revenue codes, family codes, traffic codes, etc. These “offices” are represented by the civil statutory “person”, “individual”, “taxpayer”, “driver”, “spouse”, etc.
- 3.2. Legal publications recognize the TWO components of a MAN OR WOMAN, meaning the PUBLIC and the PRIVATE components as follows:

“A private person cannot make constitutions or laws, nor can he with authority construe them, nor can he administer or execute them.”
[United States v. Harris, 106 U.S. 629, 1 S.Ct. 601, 27 L.Ed. 290 (1883)]

[Osborn v. Bank of U.S., 22 U.S. 738 (1824)]

- 3.3. Man or woman can simultaneously be in possession of BOTH PUBLIC and PRIVATE rights. This gives rise to TWO legal “persons”: PUBLIC and PRIVATE.

- 3.3.1. The CIVIL STATUTORY law attaches to the PUBLIC person. It can do so ONLY by EXPRESS CONSENT, because the Declaration of Independence, which is organic law, declares that all JUST powers derive from the CONSENT of the party. The implication is that anything NOT expressly and in writing consented to is UNJUST and a tort.
- 3.3.2. The COMMON law and the Constitution attach to and protect the PRIVATE person. This is the person most people think of when they refer to someone as a "person". They are not referring to the PUBLIC civil statutory "person". This is consistent with the following maxim of law.

Quando duo juro concurrunt in und personâ, aequum est ac si essent in diversis.

When two rights [public right v. private right] concur in one person, it is the same as if they were two separate persons. 4 Co. 118.

[Bouvier's Maxims of Law, 1856;

SOURCE: <http://famguardian.org/Publications/BouvierMaximsOfLaw/BouviereMaxims.htm>]

3.4. The affiant would be remiss and malfeasant NOT to:

- 3.4.1. Distinguish between the PRIVATE man or woman and the PUBLIC office that are both represented by the decedent.
- 3.4.2. Condone or allow the recipient of the form to PRESUME that they are both equivalent. They are simply NOT.
- 3.4.3. Require all those enforcing PUBLIC rights associated with a PUBLIC office in the government (such as "person", "individual", "taxpayer", etc.) to satisfy the burden of proving that the decedent lawfully CONSENTED to the office by making an application, taking an oath, and serving where the office (also called a statutory "trade or business" in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26)) was EXPRESSLY authorized to be executed.
- 3.5. Regarding the "intent" of the decedent, affiant is certain that the decedent had NO DESIRE to occupy, accept the benefits of, or accept the obligations of any offices he/she was compelled to fill, and therefore:
- 3.5.1. These offices DO NOT lawfully exist . . .and
- 3.5.2. It would be UNJUST to enforce the obligations of said offices WITHOUT written evidence of consent being presented by those doing the enforcing. . .and
- 3.5.3. The recipient of this form has a duty to provide a way NOT to accept any government "benefit" or franchise or the obligations that attach to such an acceptance in the context of any and all transactions which relate to his PRIVATE, exclusively owned property, including the entire estate that is the subject of probate. . . .AND

No one is obliged to accept a benefit against his consent. Dig. 50, 17, 69. But if he does not dissent he will be considered as assenting. Vide Assent.

Quilibet potest renunciare juri pro se inducto.

Any one may renounce a law introduced for his own benefit. To this rule there are some exceptions. See 1 Bouv. Inst. n. 83."

CALIFORNIA CIVIL CODE
DIVISION 3. OBLIGATIONS
PART 2. CONTRACTS
CHAPTER 3. CONSENT

1589. A voluntary acceptance of the benefit of a transaction is equivalent to a consent to all the obligations arising from it, so far as the facts are known, or ought to be known, to the person accepting.

- 3.5.4. It would be criminal THEFT and IDENTITY THEFT to presume that the decedent did hold any such PUBLIC offices or to enforce the obligations of such offices upon the decedent. These offices include any and all civil statuses he might have under the Internal Revenue Code (e.g. "taxpayer", "person", or "individual") or the state revenue codes. Detailed documentation on the nature of this identity theft is included in:

Government Identity Theft, Form #05.046

4. Location of decedent, estate, and property of the estate:

- 4.1. All property of the estate is WITHIN the CONSTITUTIONAL "United States" and the CONSTITUTIONAL State of domicile of the decedent.
- 4.2. All property is WITHOUT the STATUTORY "United States" defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10), and 4 U.S.C. §110(d).
- 4.3. The CONSTITUTIONAL and the STATUTORY "United States" and "State" are mutually exclusive and non-overlapping.

5. Definitions of all terms used on Petition for Probate and all papers filed in this action:

- 5.1. Any government issued identifying number associated with the Heirs or the Decedent or the estate are hereby declared to be:

- 1 5.1.1. NOT those defined in 26 U.S.C. §6109 or any federal or state enactment, REGARDLESS of the name assigned to them
 2 or its “confusing similarity” with anything that is the property of the government.
 3 5.1.2. NOT those defined 26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1 as being associated with a “trade or business” (public office) or 4 STATUTORY “citizen” or “resident” under any government enactment, REGARDLESS of the name assigned to them
 5 or its “confusing similarity” with anything that is the property of the government.
 6 5.1.3. Instead represent a LICENSE and FRANCHISE to any government actor to become the personal servant and “officer”
 7 exercising the privilege and agency of the Heirs and for the exclusive benefit of the Heirs. For their delegation of 8 authority order while acting in such capacity, see:

Injury Defense Franchise and Agreement, Form #06.027
<http://sedm.org/Forms/06-AvoidingFranch/InjuryDefenseFranchise.pdf>

- 9 5.2. The term “permanent address” and “residence”:
 10 5.2.1. Excludes a domicile or statutory “residence” of the Personal Representative or Heir.
 11 5.2.2. Includes only the long-term mailing address.
 12 5.2.3. Excludes any connection to the word “inhabitant” or “subject” under the laws of the Constitutional state where the 13 Decedent or Heirs or Personal Representative are found.
 14 5.3. The term “resident of the United States”, “resident of the county”:
 15 5.3.1. Means a human PHYSICALLY PRESENT within a CONSTITUTIONAL “United States”.
 16 5.3.2. Means a human NOT physically present in and NOT domiciled within the STATUTORY “United States”, meaning
 17 federal territory.
 18 5.3.3. Means a human who is not a STATUTORY “resident” as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A) to mean an “ALIEN”.
 19 Neither the Decedent nor the Heirs are STATUTORY “aliens”, but rather non-residents.
 20 5.3.4. Excludes statutory “individuals” or “persons” in any act of the national for state government.
 21 5.3.5. Includes only human beings under the common law and not statutory codes.
 22 5.4. The terms “resident” or “resident of _____ (statename)”:
 23 5.4.1. Excludes that defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A) to mean an “ALIEN”.
 24 5.4.2. Excludes any and all uses of that term within the state revenue codes. The state revenue codes have the same meaning
 25 as the Internal Revenue Code and incorporate the definitions within the Internal Revenue Code into their own title in 26 most cases.
 27 5.4.3. Excludes statutory “individuals” or “persons” in any act of the national or state government.
 28 5.4.4. Includes only human beings under the common law and not statutory codes.
 29 5.4.5. Excludes the following definition of “resident” found in the older version of the Treasury Regulations:

30 26 C.F.R. §301.7701-5: Domestic, foreign, resident, and nonresident persons. [2005]

31 A domestic corporation is one organized or created in the United States, including only the States (and during 32 the periods when not States, the Territories of Alaska and Hawaii), and the District of Columbia, or under the
 33 law of the United States or of any State or Territory. A foreign corporation is one which is not domestic. A
 34 domestic corporation is a resident corporation even though it does no business and owns no property in the
 35 United States. A foreign corporation engaged in trade or business within the United States is referred to in the
 36 regulations in this chapter as a resident foreign corporation, and a foreign corporation not engaged in trade
 37 or business within the United States, as a nonresident foreign corporation. A partnership engaged in trade or
 38 business within the United States is referred to in the regulations in this chapter as a resident partnership, and a
 39 partnership not engaged in trade or business within the United States, as a nonresident partnership. Whether a
 40 partnership is to be regarded as resident or nonresident is not determined by the nationality or residence of its
 41 members or by the place in which it was created or organized.
 42 [Amended by T.D. 8813, Federal Register: February 2, 1999 (Volume 64, Number 21), Page 4967-4975]

43 [IMPORTANT NOTE!: Whether a “person” is a “resident” or “nonresident” has NOTHING to do with the
 44 nationality or physical location, but with whether it is engaged in a “trade or business”, which is defined in 26
 45 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) as “the functions of a public office. None of the heirs or the estate are engaging in a public
 46 office and cannot lawfully do so without a lawful political election or political appointment from OTHER than 47 themselves]

- 48 5.5. The purpose of the definitions in this section (Section 5) is to ensure then neither the Decedent, nor Personal Representative,
 49 nor the Heirs are treated as if they are the recipients of any statutory “benefit” or privilege in connection with any government,
 50 that they are acting entirely in a PRIVATE capacity, and that they are exercising rightful common law ownership and control
 51 over the property in question to exclude the government from receiving any commercial benefit or control over the estate by
 52 virtue of this proceeding. Any attempt to undermine this right TO EXCLUDE the government is a denial of an absolute
 53 property right and shall constitute a “purposeful avilment” of commerce in a foreign jurisdiction and a waiver of official,
 54 judicial, and sovereign immunity by all those so abrogating the very purpose of establishing government itself, which is to 55 protect PRIVATE property and PRIVATE rights.

56 Potest quis renunciare pro se, et suis, juri quod pro se introductum est. A man may relinquish, for himself and 57 his heirs, a right which was introduced for his own benefit. See 1 Bouv. Inst. n. 83.

 7 §7701(a)(26). Decedent was NOT engaged in a public office within the national but not state government.

8 26 U.S.C. §7701

9 (a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent
 10 thereof –

11 (26) trade or business

12 "The term 'trade or business' includes the performance of the functions of a public office."

13 NOTE: The U.S. Supreme Court held in the License Tax Cases that Congress CANNOT establish the above "trade or 14 business" in a state in order to tax it.

15 "Congress cannot authorize a trade or business within a State in order to tax it."
 16 License Tax Cases, [72 U.S. 462, 18 L.Ed. 497, 5 Wall. 462, 2 A.F.T.R. 2224 (1866)]

17 Keep in mind that the "license" they are talking about is the constructive license represented by the Social Security Number
 18 and Taxpayer Identification Number, which are only required for those ENGAGING in a STATUTORY "trade or business"
 19 per 26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1. The number therefore behaves as the equivalent of what the Federal Trade Commission (FTC)
 20 calls a "franchise mark".

21 "A franchise entails the right to operate a business that is "identified or associated with the franchisor's
 22 trademark, or to offer, sell, or distribute goods, services, or commodities that are identified or associated with 23 the franchisor's trademark." The term "trademark" is intended to be read broadly to cover not only trademarks,
 24 but any service mark, trade name, or other advertising or commercial symbol. This is generally referred to as the 25 "trademark" or "mark" element.

26 The franchisor [the government] need not own the mark itself, but at the very least must have the right to 27 license the use of the mark to others. Indeed, the right to use the franchisor's mark in the operation of the 28 business - either by selling goods or performing services identified with the mark or by using the mark, in 29 whole or in part, in the business' name - is an integral part of franchising. In fact, a supplier can avoid Rule
 30 coverage of a particular distribution arrangement by expressly prohibiting the distributor from using its mark."
 31 [FTC Franchise Rule Compliance Guide, May 2008;

32 SOURCE: <http://business.ftc.gov/documents/bus70-franchise-rule-compliance-guide/>

33 Decedent, if he or she used any government issued identifying number, did so under compulsion, in violation of 42 U.S.C.
 34 §408(a)(8), and he/she hereby defines such use as NOT creating any presumption that he was engaged in any franchise or office, but 35 rather evidence of unlawful duress against a non-resident non-person.

- 36 7. The above definitions of geographical and citizenship terms are NOT definitions as legally defined if they do not include all things
 37 or classes of things which are EXPRESSLY included. Furthermore, the rules of statutory construction require that anything and 38 everything that is NOT EXPRESSLY INCLUDED in the above definitions is PURPOSEFULLY EXCLUDED:

39 "Expressio unius est exclusio alterius. A maxim of statutory interpretation meaning that the expression of one
 40 thing is the exclusion of another. Burgin v. Forbes, 293 Ky. 456, 169 S.W.2d 321, 325; Newblock v. Bowles,
 41 170 Okl. 487, 40 P.2d. 1097, 1100. Mention of one thing implies exclusion of another. When certain persons or
 42 things are specified in a law, contract, or will, an intention to exclude all others from its operation may be
 43 inferred. Under this maxim, if statute specifies one exception to a general rule or assumes to specify the effects
 44 of a certain provision, other exceptions or effects are excluded."
 45 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 581]

46 NOTE: Judges and even government administrators are NOT legislators and cannot by fiat or presumption add ANYTHING they 47 want to the definition of statutory terms. If they do, they are violating the separation of powers and conducting a commercial
 48 invasion of the states in violation of Article 4, Section 4 of the United States Constitution. Furthermore, according the creator of our
 49 three branch system of government, there is NO FREEDOM AT ALL and liberty is IMPOSSIBLE when the executive and 50 LEGISLATIVE functions are united under a single person:

1 "When the legislative and executive powers are united in the same person, or in the same body of magistrates,
2 there can be no liberty; because apprehensions may arise, lest the same monarch or senate should enact
3 tyrannical laws, to execute them in a tyrannical manner.

4 Again, there is no liberty, if the judiciary power be not separated from the legislative and executive. Were it
5 joined with the legislative, the life and liberty of the subject would be exposed to arbitrary control; for the judge
6 would be then the legislator. Were it joined to the executive power, the judge might behave with violence and 7 oppression [sound familiar?].

8 There would be an end of everything, were the same man or the same body, whether of the nobles or of the 9 people, to exercise those three powers, that of enacting laws, that of executing the public resolutions, and of 10 trying the causes of individuals."

11 [ . . . ]

12 In what a situation must the poor subject be in those republics! The same body of magistrates are possessed,
13 as executors of the laws, of the whole power they have given themselves in quality of legislators. They may 14 plunder the state by their general determinations; and as they have likewise the judiciary power in their hands,
15 every private citizen may be ruined by their particular decisions."

18 It is FRAUD to presume that the use of the word "includes" in any definition gives unlimited license to anyone to add whatever they 19 want to a statutory definition. This is covered in:

- 39 9. How NOT to respond to this submission: In responding to this submission, please DO NOT:

41 not consent to.
42 9.2. Try to censor this addition or submission. That would be criminal subornation of perjury. This affidavit and the attached
43 paperwork are signed under penalty of perjury and therefore constitute "testimony of a witness". Any attempt to influence
44 that witness or restrict his or her testimony is criminal subornation of perjury.
45 9.3. Threaten to withhold service or in some way punish the affiant for submitting or insisting on including this mandatory
46 affidavit. All such efforts constitute criminal witness tampering.
47 9.4. Violate the privacy of the affiant or anyone involved in this transaction by sharing any information about them or this 48 transaction to any third party, whether private or in government.
49 9.5. Communicate emotions or opinions about this correspondence. The ONLY thing requested in response is FACTS and LAW
50 admissible as evidence in court and immediately relevant and "material" to the issues raised herein. Opinions, beliefs, or 51 presumptions are not admissible as evidence in court under the rules of evidence and I don't consent or stipulate to admit
52 them. Furthermore, even FACTS or LAW are not admissible as evidence unless and until they are communicated by a
53 competent IDENTIFIED witness who signs under penalty of perjury. The identification required must include the full legal 54 name, email address, phone number, and workplace address of the witness. Otherwise, the evidence is without foundation and
55 will be excluded. All attempts to respond emotionally, with opinions, beliefs, or presumptions shall constitute malicious abuse
56 of legal process per 18 U.S.C. §1589 and the equivalent state statutes.

- 9.6. Cite or try to enforce any company policy that might override or supersede what is requested here. Any company policy which promotes, condones, or protects the commission of CRIMINAL activity clearly is unenforceable and non-binding on anyone it is alleged to pertain to, including the recipient of this form and the submitter as a man or woman.
- 9.7. Contact the IRS or any government agency or rely on any government publication for help in dealing with this issue. The courts have repeatedly held that you CANNOT rely on anything said by any government representative and the IRS' own website says you can't rely on their publications as a source of reasonable belief. This is also covered in:

10. Invitation and time limit to rebut by recipient of this form: If the recipient disagrees about the civil status, domicile, or location of the estate of the decedent, you are required to provide court admissible evidence proving EXACTLY where the term "U.S. citizen", "United States", and "State" as you used it in your communication includes CONSTITUTIONAL states of the Union or CONSTITUTIONAL "citizens" under the Fourteenth Amendment before the transaction that is related to this submission is completed. If you do not rebut the definitions appearing in this affidavit with court admissible evidence, then:
- 10.1. You constructively consent and stipulate to the definitions provided here both between us and between you and other parties who might be involved in this transaction.
- 10.2. You are equitably estopped and subject to laches in all future proceedings from contradicting the definitions herein provided.

5.4.8.14 A Breach of Contract<sup>171</sup>

Imagine that you have agreed with an auto dealer to purchase the luxurious Belchfire X-1 automobile, for which you agree to pay $45,000, with monthly payments to extend over a period of three years. You sign the sales agreement, and are then told to return the following day to sign the formal contract, which you do. When you arrive two days later to pick up the car, the dealer presents you with the title and keys to a much lesser model, the Klunkermobile J. When you ask the dealer to explain the switch, he points to a provision in the contract that reads: "Dealer shall be entitled to make 'reasonable' adjustments it considers to be 'necessary and proper' to further the 'general welfare' of the parties hereto." He also tells you that the amount of the payments will remain the same as for the Belchfire X-1; that to provide otherwise would be to impair the obligations of the contract. You strongly object, arguing that the dealer is making a fundamental alteration of the contract. The dealer then informs you that this dispute will be reviewed by a third party – his brother-in-law – who will render a decision in the matter.

Welcome to the study of Constitutional Law!

The rationalization for the existence of political systems has, at least since the Enlightenment, depended upon the illusion of a "social contract"; that governments come into existence only through the "consent of the governed" as expressed in a written constitution. I know of no state system that ever originated by a contract among individuals. This is particularly true in America, where the detailed history of the drafting and ratification of the Constitution illustrates the present system having

1 been coercively imposed by some upon others. If you doubt this, a reading of the history of Rhode Island will provide you
2 with one example.

3 By its very nature, a contract depends upon a voluntary commitment by two or more persons to bind themselves to a clearly-
4 expressed agreement. The common law courts have always held that agreements entered into through coercion, fraud, or any
5 other practice that does not reflect a "meeting of the minds" of individuals are wholly unenforceable. Nor have the courts
6 looked favorably upon transactions that purport to bind parties forever. If I should agree to work for you for $5,000 a month
7 and, after two years of such employment, choose to go work elsewhere, no court of law – not even in Texas – would compel
8 me to continue working for you.

9 The idea that contractual obligations can arise other than through voluntary undertakings has been firmly established in our 10 culture. Statist efforts to impose duties upon others are often promoted under the myth of an "implied" contract (e.g., by 11 driving a car, you "impliedly consent" to purchase insurance; by living in America you "impliedly consent" to be bound to 12 obligations to which you never agreed). By this logic, if I lived in a high-crime area, it could be argued that I had "impliedly
13 consented" to be mugged, or to be bound by the rules of the local street-corner gang. The idea that the government can force
14 people into contractual relationships is at the heart of the current Supreme Court case dealing with "Obamacare." The 15 enactment of such a form of "involuntary servitude" is what leads a few thoughtful minds to question whether it violates the 16 13th Amendment!

17 Even accepting the fantasy of a "social contract" theory of the state creates more fundamental problems. The legitimacy of a
18 contract depends upon the existence of "consideration." This means that the party seeking enforcement must demonstrate a 19 changing of one's legal position to their detriment (e.g., giving up something of value, making a binding promise, foregoing
20 a right, etc.) Statists may argue that their system satisfies this requirement – by supposedly agreeing to protect the lives and 21 property of the citizenry, and agreeing to respect those rights of people that are spelled out in the "Bill of Rights." The problem
22 is that – thanks to the opinions of numerous brothers-in-law who comprise the Supreme Court – the powers given to the state
23 have been given expansive definitions, and the rights protected by the "Bill of Rights" are given an increasingly narrow 24 interpretation.

25 Thus, Congress' exclusive authority to declare war is now exercised by presidential whim; while its power to legislate does
26 not depend upon any proposed law having been either fully drafted or read! Fourth and Fifth Amendment "guarantees" re
27 "searches and seizures" or "due process of law" are so routinely violated as to arouse little attention from Boobus Americans.
28 First Amendment rights of "speech" allow the state to confine speakers to wire cages kept distant from their intended
29 audiences, while the right of "peaceable assembly" is no hindrance to police-state brutalities directed against peaceful
30 protestors. With very little criticism from Boobus, one president declared his support for a dictatorship, while his successor
31 proclaimed to the world his unilateral authority to kill anyone of his choosing – including Americans! Meanwhile, torture
32 and the indefinite detention of people without trial continue to be accepted practices.

33 Having been conditioned to believe that the Constitution exists to limit the powers of the state and to guarantee your liberty,
34 you try employing such reasoning with the car dealer. You direct his attention to another contractual provision that reads:
35 "All rights under this agreement not reserved to the Dealer shall belong to the Buyer." But he tells you that he is adhering to 36 the specific terms of the contract by making "reasonable adjustments" that are "necessary and proper" to "further the general
37 welfare of the parties." Whatever "rights" you have are, by definition, limited by this broad grant of authority.

38 This is where conservatives get so confused over the inherently repressive nature of the Constitution. They tend to believe
39 that the 10th Amendment "guarantees" to them – and/or the states – "powers not delegated to the United States." But the 40 federal government powers enumerated in this document are overly broad (e.g., "general welfare," "necessary and proper,"
41 and "reasonable") and must be interpreted. This authority to provide the government with such powers to interpret its own
42 powers is nowhere spelled out in the Constitution; but was usurped by the Supreme Court in the case of Marbury v. Madison.

43 Once the courts – or the car dealer's brother-in-law – define the range of the parties' respective authorities, the mutually-
44 exclusive logic of the 10th Amendment applies: if the government or the dealer is recognized as having expansive definitions
45 of authority, there is very little that remains inviolate for the individual. The language of the 9th Amendment is more suitable 46 to the argument on behalf of a broader definition of liberty. This provision reads: "The enumeration in the Constitution, of 47 certain rights, shall not be construed to deny or disparage others retained by the people." This catch-all language suggests 48 that the Ninth Amendment protections are far broader than the combined "rights" of all the other amendments. A reading of 49 judicial history reveals only a very small handful of cases ever having been decided under this section. Of course, the words
50 in this amendment are also subject to interpretation by state officials. This fact is what conservatives fail to understand when

1 they bleat about wanting "to get back to the Constitution." The government has never strayed from the Constitution; these
2 words have been in that document from the beginning. They have, however, been interpreted according to the ever-changing
3 preferences of those in power.

4 As the state continues to not simply eat away at – but to gluttonously devour – the liberty its defenders still pretend it is its
5 purpose to protect, it is timely to consider the remedies available to individuals. As one who prefers the peaceful processes
6 of a civilized society – rather than the violent and destructive means that define the state – my thoughts return to contract
7 theory. I must admit, at the outset, that the make-believe "social contract" foundations of the state, reveal the wholesale breach
8 of the obligations of both parties. The failure of the state to restrain its voracious and ruinous appetites is already a matter of 9 record, even to its defenders whose intellectual dishonesty and/or cowardice will not permit them to express the fact. But
10 there is a concurrent obligation on the part of those subject to state rule that finds expression in words carved onto the entrance
11 to the Nebraska state capitol building: "The Salvation of the State is Watchfulness in the Citizen." It was the failure of most 12 people to live up to this standard that led me to write, a few years ago, about the need to impeach the American people! The 13 "watchfulness" of most Americans is confined to such television programs as "American Idol" or "Dancing With the Stars."

14 The breaches on both sides of this alleged contract are of such enormity as would lead any competent court of law to regard
15 any such "agreement" as a nullity; subject to enforcement by neither party. Such defenses as "frustration of purpose," 16 "impossibility of performance," "unconscionability," "unequal bargaining power," "fraud in the inducement," and other
17 concepts have regularly been used by the courts to excuse further performance by the parties to a contract.

18 I propose that we respond to our alleged obligations to the state – duties we never agreed to in the first place – in the same
19 manner by which we would treat our hypothetical car dealer in the marketplace: to walk away and take our business
20 elsewhere! Whatever goods or services we desire in our lives, and which we have been conditioned to believe can only be 21 provided by the state, can be found in the willingness of our neighbors to freely and genuinely contract with us in ways that
22 do not depend upon predation, restraint, or violence. It is time for us to discover the peaceful and creative nature of a society
23 grounded in a voluntary "meeting of the minds" of free men and women!

24 How would we express our intention to invalidate the contract, from a legal perspective? By generating legal evidence of all
25 the following in the government's own records:

- 26 1. Changing our citizenship status in government records to that of a "non-resident non-person" and CONSTITUTIONAL
- 27 citizen rather than a statutory citizen.
- 28 2. Quitting all government franchises and licenses.
- 29 3. Stop filling out government forms and rescind all forms we have filled out.
- 30 4. Changing our tax status to that of a non-resident non-person.

31 All of the above are accomplished by:

Path to Freedom, Form #09.015, Section 2

32 5.4.8.15 Summary of rules relating to domicile

33 Based on the foregoing analysis and legally admissible evidence, we can safely conclude the following:

- 34 1. Domicile is a "civil protection franchise". As a franchise, its purpose is to protect ONLY your PRIVATE, absolutely 35 owned property. It is not a constitutional franchise if it only protects public property, requires you convert your 36 PRIVATE property to public property, or refuses to recognize private property. Instead, it becomes a method to STEAL
37 from you and undermine the constitution:
  - 38 1.1. All franchises, including the domicile civil protection franchise, derive their authority from property loaned to the 39 franchisee with conditions. That is the thesis of Form #05.030.
  - 40 1.2. "Rules" or "laws" are the "conditions" of the loan.
  - 41 1.3. The ability to "make rules" (civil statutes or laws) requires some property being "loaned" to the recipient.
42 Ownership implies the right to exclude and the right to control the use of people using the property. It's the "Golden 43 Rule": He who OWNS the gold (property) makes the rules.

- 1.4. The “territory” you choose or intend to live on determines who makes the rules or laws. That territory is the “property” being loaned, because it is physical. The “laws” that apply to that specific territory are the “conditions” of the loan.
- 1.5. By choosing or intending to choose WHICH property you live on, you are in effect nominating a “land lord”, and the “rent” is the “rules”. Notice in the following video, Satan refers to God as “an absentee landlord” and then he says “Worship THAT? NEVER!”. Owning the LAND makes you the LORD!
<https://sedm.org/what-we-are-up-against/>
- 1.6. The state doesn't OWN the territory you live on, regardless of where you physically reside. The Bible says GOD owns the Heavens and the Earth, not Caesar. Deut. 10:15.
- 1.7. Since God owns EVERYTHING physical because he created it, then HE is the only one who can make the rules or laws.
- 1.8. Caesar renting out GOD'S land, where the “rent” is the rules, is an affront to God. Caesar is “renting out STOLEN property” or property that was merely loaned “WITH CONDITIONS” by God for temporary custody and stewardship by Caesar.
- 1.9. The Constitution recognizes these concepts in Article 4, Section 4, by saying: “Congress shall have the power to make all needful rules respecting the property and territory of the United States”.
- 1.10. Even marriage follows this basic format of the loan of property:

“When a man sticks his pecker in a hole, he is presumed to implicitly consent to all the obligations arising out of such a “privilege”. This includes implied consent to pay all child support obligations that might accrue in the future by virtue of such an act. Marriage licenses are the state's vain attempt to protect the owner of the hole from being injured by either irresponsible visitors or their poor discretion in choosing or allowing visitors, and not a whole lot more. In this context, as in nearly all other contexts, the government offers a privilege or “license” which essentially amounts to a form of “liability insurance”. You can only benefit from the insurance program by voluntarily “signing up” when you make application to procure the license.”
[Requirement for Consent, Form #05.003, Section 8.11.6]

- 1.11. Jon Roland, author of the Constitution Society Website (<http://constitution.famguardian.org>), has privately confirmed to us that the above processes are EXACTLY how the civil statutory codes work. He even goes so far as to say that all land CONTINUES to be owned by the King by Divine Right, even AFTER the revolution, and that “estates” in land are mere temporary revocable franchises regulated and controlled by the King at his or her whim. Of course, being an atheist, he doesn't acknowledge God's role in it all, and therefore EVERYTHING he does is without hope and without remedy and vain as a result. How is freedom and liberty even realistically possible if Caesar owns all land and he can attach ANY conditions he wants to its use? Jon can't answer that question, which means indirectly that he agrees that freedom is IMPOSSIBLE so long as that is his approach to the Constitution:

2. Think of the “state” as a club:

- 2.1. The “state” is the collection of all the sovereigns that occupy a specific territorial land mass.
- 2.2. The “government” are the people contracted and under oath to service the needs of the “state” and execute the business of the “state”. They are “protection contractors”. The “government” and the “state” are two separate and distinct groups that are NOT synonymous or the same. The “state” is the sovereign, while the “government” is the SERVANT of the sovereign.
- 2.3. Those who are members of the club are called “citizens” if they were born somewhere within the country and “residents” if they were born in a different country.
- 2.4. Those who are not members of the club are called “nonresidents” or “transient foreigners”.
- 2.5. Whether you are a “member” or a “nonmember” is determined by how you describe your “residence”, “permanent address”, or “domicile” on usually government and financial forms. No one but you can decide or control what you put on these forms.
- 2.6. Taxes are your “club membership dues”.
- 2.7. In return for membership, you are entitled to demand “services” or “benefits” from the government that serves the “state”.
- 2.8. No one can force you to join the club. The First Amendment protects your right to NOT join the club by prohibiting “compelled association”. That is why the First Amendment is the first amendment: Because the first and most important thing you must do when forming any “state” is to give everyone the right to NOT join!
- 2.9. Since no one can force you to join the club, no one can compel you to accept the liabilities associated with membership in the club and they must prove that you voluntarily consented to join the club before they can legally enforce those liabilities against you. Such liabilities include the duty to pay income taxes, to vote, and to serve as a jurist when summoned.

- 1 2.10. Membership in the club confers civil jurisdiction of the courts in order to protect your civil rights.
- 2 2.11. You do not need to be a member of the club in order for the government to enforce the criminal laws of the state
- 3 against you. All that must be proven in order to enforce the criminal laws is that you were physically situated on
- 4 the territory associated with the "state" and that you committed a criminal or harmful act that injured a specific
- 5 other fellow sovereign.
- 6 2.12. There are TWO levels of club membership: Premium and Unleaded. The "Unleaded" version is basic domicile in
- 7 the republic and not the "State" and this level buys you basic criminal protection and nothing more. The "Premium"
- 8 level of membership requires you to become a "public officer" of the government so they can lawfully pay you
- 9 bribes called "benefits" with money they stole from your neighbor. Because there are two levels of membership,
- 10 then the "Premium" level violates the Constitution because it confers a "Title of Nobility". The only other way to
- 11 view this level and still be consistent with the Constitution is to view all those who participate as employees of a
- 12 PRIVATE corporation that is NOT a de jure government. See:

Why Your Government is Either a Thief or You Are a "Public Officer" for Income Tax Purposes, Form #05.008
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

- 13 3. Domicile is legally defined as the coincidence of physical presence in a place now or in the past, and the intention to
- 14 return to and permanently inhabit that place. The Bible says that no place on earth is permanent and that the present
- 15 earth will be destroyed, and therefore it is against God's law to declare a domicile within any man-made political group
- 16 on earth.
- 17 4. The place where a person "lives" and their legal "domicile" can be and often are two completely different places. Many
- 18 people incorrectly confuse these two terms, and in so doing, unknowingly forfeit their right to choose whether they want
- 19 to be subject to the civil laws where they are located.
- 20 5. Domicile is ordinarily associated with "citizens", while "residence" is associated with privileged "aliens". You can have
- 21 only one "domicile" but as many "residences" as you want. Residence, in turn, is a product of your right to contract.
- 22 When you sign up for a franchise such as the "trade or business"/income tax franchise, you become a "resident" within
- 23 the statutes granting the privilege or franchise:

24 26 C.F.R. §301.7701-5 Domestic, foreign, resident, and nonresident persons.

37 [SOURCE: <http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/CitesByTopic/Resident-26cfr301.7701-5.pdf>]

- 38 6. Those who have chosen a legal domicile outside of the place or state that they occupy at any given time are called
- 39 "transient foreigners" or simply "nonresidents". When you go on vacation temporarily to a place, you are a "transient
- 40 foreigner" with respect to the government of that place. It is perfectly lawful to ALSO choose to be a transient foreigner
- 41 in the place of your birth and the place where you live or to choose a domicile within a political group of your own
- 42 making, such as a church, family, or political group. Those who do so have made a protected First Amendment choice
- 43 to disassociate with what oftentimes is a corrupted government or state that is more harmful than protective of their
- 44 personal interests.
- 45 7. The purpose of selecting a domicile is to nominate a king or ruler to provide a substitute for God's protection. A choice
- 46 of domicile amounts essentially to a contract to procure "protection" from a king or ruler to whom those protected owe
- 47 "tribute" and "allegiance". Serving anyone but God is idolatry and idolatry is condemned as the most serious sin a
- 48 believer can commit in the Bible.

49 "No servant can serve two masters; for either he will hate the one and love the other, or else he will be loyal to

50 the one and despise the other. You cannot serve God and mammon."

51 [Jesus [God] speaking in Luke 16:13, Bible, NKJV]

- 52 8. You can only have a legal domicile in ONE PLACE or political group at a time, because you can only owe undivided
- 53 allegiance to one ruler at a time. As a consequence:

- 1 8.1. You can only be a "citizen" in ONE PLACE at a time.
- 2 8.2. If you are physically present in a place outside of your legal domicile, you are a "transient foreigner" and a
3 "national" but not "citizen" in that place. For instance, Mexicans visiting the United States temporarily and who
4 have not changed their "domicile" to the United States are called "Mexican Nationals" while they are here. When 5 they return to the place of their domicile, they are called "Mexican citizens".
- 6 8.3. You cannot be a "citizen" under federal statutory law without having a domicile on federal territory. States of the 7 Union are NOT federal territory.
- 8 8.4. You can only owe income taxes to one government at a time. This is consistent with the fact that you must have a 9 federal tax liability before you can have a state liability. It is also consistent with the conclusion that the states,
10 when they collect state income taxes, are doing so in the capacity as federal territories and instrumentalities and not
11 sovereign or independent governments. This type of abuse is facilitated by the unconstitutionally administered
12 Buck Act, 4 U.S.C. §106, and its implementation found in 5 U.S.C. §5517. No state or federal constitution
13 authorizes any state of the Union to act as a federal corporation, agency, territory, or instrumentality as described
14 in 4 U.S.C. §110\(d\) and any attempt to do so is a violation of the separation of powers doctrine and an act of 15 TREASON punishable by death under 18 U.S.C. §2381.
- 16 9. Domicile constitutes your voluntary choice of the civil law system and the government you choose to live under. The 17 purpose of law is to protect people by preventing harm but not mandating good. The purpose of government is to enforce
18 and implement the law. Therefore, the purpose of government is to protect. You cannot be held responsible for obeying
19 any civil law unless you voluntarily choose a legal domicile where it applies. This includes the civil code and the family 20 code in your state.
- 21 10. Domicile is a First Amendment voluntary choice of political affiliation. The government cannot change your domicile
22 without your consent. What the law dictionary calls "intent" really amounts to consent, and they are trying to hide the 23 voluntary nature of the transaction by choosing different words to describe it. For instance:
24 10.1. Only adults who have reached the age of majority can lawfully choose a legal domicile.
25 10.2. Insane or incompetent persons cannot have a chosen domicile and take on the domicile of their caretakers.
26 10.3. Children assume the domicile of their parents.
27 10.4. Every government tax form in one way or another causes you to choose a domicile, and since the choice of form
28 or the way you fill it out is your choice, then the domicile is also your choice. For instance, IRS Form 1040 causes
29 you to choose a domicile in the "United States" (federal territory). IRS Form 1040NR is filled out by persons who 30 do not have a domicile in the "United States" (federal territory).
- 31 11. No court of law or government official may lawfully interfere with your choice of domicile because:
32 11.1. Courts of justice may not lawfully involve themselves in "political questions".
33 11.2. Public servants in the political branches of the government, including the Executive and Legislative branches, may 34 not interfere with your First Amendment right to freely associate or disassociate.
- 35 12. A government that compels you to choose a domicile within their jurisdiction is engaging in unlawful slavery in violation
36 of 42 U.S.C. §1994, involuntary servitude in violation of the Thirteenth Amendment, extortion, racketeering in violation
37 of 18 U.S.C. §1951, and violating your First Amendment right of freedom from compelled association.
- 38 13. Because choice of domicile is voluntary, income taxes based on it are also entirely voluntary and avoidable. The 39 government does NOT want you to know that you can avoid income taxes, and so they will avoid discussing this and 40 persecute all those who reveal it to the public.
- 41 14. Your domicile is whatever you say it is on a government form. Other evidentiary methods of determining legal domicile
42 are ordinarily only employed where evidence of your direct declaration of domicile on a government form is not 43 available, or where your behavior is inconsistent with your stated or communicated choice.
- 44 15. On government forms, "residence", meaning the TEMPORARY place of abode of an ALIEN, is synonymous with the 45 terms "permanent address". "Permanent address" and "domicile" are NOT ordinarily equivalent and we have found no
46 evidence anywhere to believe that they are equivalent.
- 47 16. Within the Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A and all state revenue codes, a "resident" is an alien with a domicile,
48 presence, or existence on federal territory. A person who is not physically present on federal territory can become a
49 "resident" there by engaging in "commerce" within the legislative jurisdiction of that forum. This, in fact, is the main
50 method by which the federal government manufactures "taxpayers" out of sovereign Americans domiciled in states of 51 the Union. The Social Security system causes them to conduct commerce within the legislative jurisdiction of the United 52 States and thereby surrender sovereign immunity and become "resident aliens" pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §1605\(a\)\(2\). Those 53 engaging in such commerce are called "public officers" who are "effectively connected with a trade or business in the 54 United States". All those engaged in a "trade or business" are "resident aliens" of the United States. Older versions of 55 the Treasury Regulations show this scam below:

56 26 C.F.R. §301.7701-5 Domestic, foreign, resident, and nonresident persons

A domestic corporation is one organized or created in the United States, including only the States (and during the periods when not States, the Territories of Alaska and Hawaii), and the District of Columbia, or under the law of the United States or of any State or Territory. A foreign corporation is one which is not domestic. A domestic corporation is a resident corporation even though it does no business and owns no property in the United States. A foreign corporation engaged in trade or business within the United States is referred to in the regulations in this chapter as a resident foreign corporation, and a foreign corporation not engaged in trade or business within the United States, as a nonresident foreign corporation. A partnership engaged in trade or business within the United States is referred to in the regulations in this chapter as a resident partnership, and a partnership not engaged in trade or business within the United States, as a nonresident partnership. Whether a partnership is to be regarded as resident or nonresident is not determined by the nationality or residence of its members or by the place in which it was created or organized.

17. Driver's licenses issued by state governments are the method of choice for compelling persons to declare a legal domicile within a state. Because the government cannot compel you to choose a domicile, they also cannot compel you to obtain or use a state driver's license.
18. Domicile is an abstract term that is difficult to legally prove. Because it is difficult to prove, the government will avoid discussions of the term. That is why the term only appears twice in the entire 9,500 page Internal Revenue Code. They will also avoid discussing the term because they don't want to acknowledge that they need your consent to both enforce the law against you and collect taxes from you.
19. Those who want to divorce the state which controls the place where they live may do so by declaring a domicile outside of their place of abode. Such persons are called:
  - 19.1. "Transient foreigners".
  - 19.2. "Stateless persons" (in relation to the place they physically live).
20. Those who do not want to assume the liabilities of "domicile" within a jurisdiction cannot:
  - 20.1. Register to vote within that jurisdiction.
  - 20.2. Obtain a state driver's license within that jurisdiction.
  - 20.3. Serve as a jurist within that jurisdiction.
  - 20.4. Indicate a "permanent address" on any government form that is within the jurisdiction of that government.
  - 20.5. Apply for any government benefit, including Social Security, Medicare, etc.
  - 20.6. Submit any form that implies a domicile there, such as the IRS Form 1040, which is only for use by STATUTORY "U.S. persons" with a legal domicile in the "United States" (federal territory). Instead, the 1040NR is the only proper form for "stateless persons" and "transient foreigners" to use in the context of federal taxation.
21. The only laws that may be enforced against "transient foreigners" or "nonresidents" are criminal laws and the common law. Civil statutory laws require a legal domicile within the jurisdiction where the law applies. This is a result of the fact that the Declaration of Independence says that all just powers in a free government derive from the "consent of the governed" and that the only legitimate reason for the state to proceed against a person without his consent is when he is criminally injuring someone.
22. The Bible commands believers to be separate and sanctified, and to come out of the corrupted government that has become Satan's whore, which the Bible calls "Babylon the Great Harlot". In effect, God commands us to DISASSOCIATE. We can do this legally and peacefully only by changing our domicile.

After these things I saw another angel coming down from heaven, having great authority, and the earth was illuminated with his glory.

And he cried mightily with a loud voice saying, 'Babylon the great is fallen, is fallen, and has become a dwelling place of demons, a prison for every foul spirit, and a cage for every unclean and hated bird!'

"For all the nations have drunk of the wine of the wrath of her fornication, the kings [politicians, who load us with debt] of the earth have committed fornication with her, and the merchants of the earth have become rich through the abundance of her luxury."

And I heard another voice from heaven saying, 'Come out of her, my people, lest you share in her sins, and lest you receive her plagues.

"For her sins have reached to heaven, and God has remembered her iniquities.

"Render to her just as she rendered to you, and repay her double according to her works; in the cup which she has mixed, mix double for her.

"In the measure that she glorified herself and lived luxuriously, in the same measure give her torment and sorrow; for she says in her heart, 'I sit as queen, and am no widow, and will not see sorrow.'"

- 7 24. The government is just like any other corporation. The only product it delivers is "protection". Government does not
 8 have a monopoly on "protection". A government that compels you to procure or pay for its protection against your will
 9 is engaged in racketeering and organized crime. If the cost of government protection exceeds its benefits, any person or 10 group are free to divorce the state by abandoning their domicile, and to provide their own more cost effective protection.
 11 Anyone may compete directly with the government in "the protection business" or elect to fire all protectors and instigate
 12 "front door justice". This is a direct result of the fact that the U.S. Supreme Court said the essential purpose of the 13 Constitution was to confer upon We the People the right to be LEFT ALONE by the government.

- 23 25. All income taxes are based on legal "domicile". Income taxes support the police powers of the state, and the police
 24 powers of the state implement and enforce the CRIMINAL law ONLY. If you don't have a domicile in a place, then 25 you can't be liable for income taxes in that place because you are not being personally protected by the laws of that place.
- 26 26. Persons with a legal domicile on federal territory, which is called the "United States" in the Internal Revenue Code at 26
 27 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d), are called "U.S. persons". Persons with a domicile in a place are
 28 also called "inhabitants". Under the Internal Revenue Code, Sections 7701(a)(39) and 7408(d), persons who declare a
 29 domicile in the "United States" are treated as virtual residents of the District of Columbia and "taxpayers" there regardless
 30 of where they physically live. "U.S. persons" include statutory "citizens of the United States" under 8 U.S.C. §1401 and 31 "residents" as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A).
- 32 27. Both STATUTORY "citizens" and STATUTORY "residents" have in common a "domicile" in a place and collectively
 33 are called "inhabitants". Those without a domicile are called "transient foreigners". IRS does NOT like people claiming 34 they are "transient foreigners" because it destroys their ability to tax. They therefore omit this as an option on ALL their 35 tax forms so you can't properly declare your status as a "nontaxpayer". The only time that either "citizens" or "residents"
 36 can have a tax liability under I.R.C. Subtitle A is when they are temporarily abroad pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §911. The 37 U.S. Supreme Court confirmed that taxation of "U.S. persons" abroad was permissible in Cook v. Tait, 265 U.S. 47
 38 (1924). We have been able to identify NO provision of law that makes any statutory "citizen" or "resident" responsible 39 for an income tax who is NOT temporarily abroad. Even then, they must be voluntarily engaged in a "trade or business", 40 which is a "public office", in most cases to have any tax liability at all.
- 41 28. An "alien" with a domicile in the "United States**" (federal territory) is called a "resident" in the Internal Revenue Code.
 42 28.1. You cannot lawfully be a "resident" and a "citizen" within the same jurisdiction at the same time.
 43 28.2. Likewise, you cannot lawfully be a "resident" and a "nonresident" at the same time.
- 44 29. In effect, the civil statutory code functions as a "protection franchise", "compact", and/or social compact. All compacts
 45 and franchises are contracts or agreements that activate or acquire the "force of law" ONLY upon MUTUAL consent of 46 BOTH parties to them. That is why most enactments of governments are called "the code" instead of simply "law".
- 47 30. Anyone invoking "the code" or any civil statutory law against you should be DEMANDED to satisfy the burden of proof 48 as the moving party to provide the following evidence on the record of any proceeding:
 49 30.1. That you EXPRESSLY consented to have a civil domicile in the place where the "code" they seek to enforce 50 applies.
 51 30.2. That your consent was NOT the product of duress. Duress renders any contract of compact VOIDABLE but not 52 VOID. The minute you indicate the duress, it becomes void.
 53 30.3. That you were physically present within the specific territory where the laws apply. You cannot have a domicile
 54 in a place without FIRST having a physical presence there either now or at some time in the past.

30.4. That the author of the laws sought to be enforced OWNED the land you were on as territory and therefore had the authority to make the rules for that land under Article 4, Section 3, Clause 2 of the United States Constitution. Hence, they have to prove that the land was not PRIVATE property and instead was lawfully converted to a public use or purpose. Otherwise, the only thing that can be enforced is the common law.

30.5. That if you were not domiciled on the land to which the "codes" apply, that you were representing an entity or public office that WAS domiciled on their land as required by Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17.

There are some very subtle and subliminal things going on in the domicile concept and these are the root of them all. These concepts are completely invisible to most people, which is why they are so easily enslaved. Most people only look at the outside layer of the onion. THIS is the CORE. The Holy Spirit is what will reveal this to you, if you listen carefully.

"How, then, are purely equitable obligations created? For the most part, either by the acts of third persons or by equity alone. But how can one person impose an obligation upon another? By giving property to the latter on the terms of his assuming an obligation in respect to it. At law there are only two means by which the object of the donor could be at all accomplished, consistently with the entire ownership of the property passing to the donee, namely: first, by imposing a real obligation upon the property; secondly, by subjecting the title of the donee to a condition subsequent. The first of these the law does not permit; the second is entirely inadequate. Equity, however, can secure most of the objects of the doner, and yet avoid the mischiefs of real obligations by imposing upon the donee (and upon all persons to whom the property shall afterwards come without value or with notice) a personal obligation with respect to the property; and accordingly this is what equity does. It is in this way that all trusts are created, and all equitable charges made (i.e., equitable hypothecations or liens created) by testators in their wills. In this way, also, most trusts are created by acts inter vivos, except in those cases in which the trustee incurs a legal as well as an equitable obligation. In short, as property is the subject of every equitable obligation, so the owner of property is the only person whose act or acts can be the means of creating an obligation in respect to that property. Moreover, the owner of property can create an obligation in respect to it in only two ways: first, by incurring the obligation himself, in which case he commonly also incurs a legal obligation; secondly, by imposing the obligation upon some third person; and this he does in the way just explained."

Unless the property was thus dedicated [by one of the above three mechanisms], or some right bestowed by the government was held with the property, either by specific grant or by prescription of so long a time as to imply a grant originally, the property was not affected by any public interest so as to be taken out of the category of property held in private right."

The biblical famine in Egypt is a prime example of the above concepts. Pharaoh owned and controlled all the grain during the famine, and he used that property and usury and the franchises (conditions) he attached to the loan to literally make ALL HIS PEOPLE into his property! Notice the Bible refers to Pharaoh as "my lord", meaning my "god".

"When that year had ended, they came to him the next year and said to him, "We will not hide from my lord that our money is gone; my lord also has our herds of livestock. There is nothing left in the sight of my lord but our bodies and our lands. Why should we die before your eyes, both we and our land? Buy us and our land for bread, and we and our land will be servants of Pharaoh; give us seed, that we may live and not die, that the land may not be desolate."

[Gen. 47:18-22, Bible, NKJV]

As long as there is land and your body is physical, you HAVE to choose a LAND LORD. Who is your "LAND LORD"?: God or Caesar? Satan's answer to that question is that HE is the landlord because God is AWOL (Absent WithOut Leave, a military term).

1                   “Woe to those who seek deep to hide their counsel [attorney or lawyer] far from the Lord,
2                   And their works are in the dark;
3                   They say, “Who sees us?” and, “Who knows us?”
4                   Surely you have things turned around!
5                   Shall the potter be esteemed as the clay;
6                   For shall the thing made say of him who made it,
7                   “He did not make me”?
8                   Or shall the thing formed say of him who formed it,
9                   “He has no understanding”?
10                  [Isaiah 29: 15-16, Bible, NKJV]

11               The now defunct Soviet Union’s answer was the same as Satan’s: Official state atheism, government ownership of 12               EVERYTHING, and therefore no freedom.

13               If the People are the sovereign and everything they allow to get into the hands of Caesar or under his/her control is and
14               continues to be THEIR property loaned WITH CONDITIONS that THEY and not Caesar determine, then how is it EVER 15               realistically possible that:

- 16               1. Caesar could ever have any civil statutory (franchise) power whatsoever? Keep in mind that the main purpose of the
- 17               civil statutes is to regulate and control GOVERNMENT property, which are also called “privileges”.
- 18               2. Caesar could ever have ANY CIVIL STATUTORY control over them?
- 19               3. They could ever be ANYTHING but truly free?

20               In all our years studying this subject and drilling ten thousand feet into the Earth in the process, we have NEVER seen even 21               one book or speaker that explained the above concept as lucidly or as completely or as succinctly as the above does. The 22               essence of genius is that level of simplicity, according to Einstein.

23               5.4.9 The IRS is NOT authorized to perform enforcement actions

24               By consulting Treasury Directive 27-03, Organization and Functions of the Office of the Assistant Secretary (Enforcement),
25               we find that the Internal Revenue Service isn’t included in the list of Department of the Treasury enforcement agencies. You
26               can view this order yourself on the Treasury website at:

27               <http://www.ustreas.gov/regs/td27-03.htm>

28               We also find that 26 C.F.R. §1.274-5T(k)(6)(ii) says that Internal Revenue Service special agents are specifically excluded
29               from designation of law enforcement officers. If we then examine the Department of the Treasury organization chart, page
30               339 of the 2002-04 U.S. Government Manual available at:

32               we find that the Internal Revenue Service is not under authority of the Assistance Secretary (Enforcement), like all other
33               enforcement arms of the Treasury. Therefore, the IRS is not an enforcement agency and has no lawful authority whatsoever
34               to adversely affect the people or the rights of persons within states of the Union.

35               5.4.10 I.R.C., Subtitle A is voluntary for those with no domicile in the federal zone and who are not a federal 36               instrumentality

37               This section will show that Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A, in the context of natural persons, is entirely voluntary for 38               people domiciled within a state of the Union and who have not engaged in any contracts or employment with the federal 39               government. Another way of saying this is that the explicit consent of all natural persons is required in some form before
40               they can be called “taxpayers” by the IRS. Black’s Law Dictionary says under the definition of the term “excise tax”:

41                   “excise tax: In current usage the term has been extended to include various license fees and practically every 42                   internal revenue tax EXCEPT THE INCOME TAX.”.

43               What they are implying is that income taxes are really voluntary donations, but because the authors of the dictionary (who 44               were lawyers) don’t want to undermine “voluntary compliance” with the Internal Revenue Code, they can’t be honest and

1 just come out and say it, so they define what it isn't and leave it up to you to figure out what it is! We even tried looking up
 2 the term "income tax" in that same Black's Law dictionary and they don't classify it as either a "direct tax" or an "indirect
 3 excise" there either. Sneaky, huh? That's the way lawyers and the legal profession work, and it is precisely this kind of 4 treacherous deceit that is behind why we recommend defending yourself primarily and only relying on lawyers as legal
 5 "coaches" when you get tripped up. See section 6.10 for more evidence of scandalous games like this by the legal profession.
 6 The preceding discussion helps to explain some of the following statements:

7 "Our tax system is based upon voluntary assessment and payment, not upon distraint".
 8 [Flora v. United States, 362 U.S. 145 (1960)]

10 "Our tax system is based on individual self-assessment and voluntary compliance".
 11 [Mortimer Caplin, Internal Revenue Audit Manual (1975)]

13 "Let me point this out now. Your income tax is 100 percent voluntary tax, and your liquor tax is 100 percent
 14 enforced tax. Now, the situation is as different as night and day. Consequently, your same rules just will not 15 apply...".
 16 [Dwight E. Avis, former head of the Alcohol and Tobacco Tax Division of the IRS, testifying before a House
 17 Ways and Means subcommittee in 1953]

19 "The purpose of the IRS is to collect the proper amount of tax revenues at the least cost to the public, and in a
 20 manner that warrants the highest degree of public confidence in our integrity, efficiency and fairness. To achieve
 21 that purpose, we will encourage and achieve the highest possible degree of voluntary compliance in accordance 22 with the tax laws and regulations...".
 23 [Internal Revenue Manual, Chapter 1100, section 1111.1]

24 This raises a lot of questions indeed! Let's try to answer a few. Here is the definition of the word "tax" from Black's Law
 25 Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1457:

26 "Tax: A charge by the government on the income of an individual, corporation, or trust, as well as the value
 27 of an estate or gift. The objective in assessing the tax is to generate revenue to be used for the needs of the public.

28 A pecuniary [relating to money] burden laid upon individuals or property to support the government, and is a
 29 *payment exacted by legislative authority. In re Mytinger, D.C.Tex. 31 F.Supp. 977,978,979. Essential
 30 characteristics of a tax are that it is NOT A VOLUNTARY
 31 PAYMENT OR DONATION, BUT AN ENFORCED
 32 CONTRIBUTION, EXACTED PURSUANT TO
 33 LEGISLATIVE AUTHORITY. Michigan Employment Sec. Commission v. Patt, 4*
 34 Mich.App. 228, 144 N.W.2d. 663, 665. ..."

35 For clarity, we'd like to add to the end of the above definition: "...exacted pursuant to positive law consistent with the U.S.
 36 constitution." We say this because if the legislative authority to tax within states of the Union does not ultimately derive
 37 from the Constitution, then it is null and void because all powers not delegated to the government by the Sovereign People
 38 are reserved to the people (per the Tenth Amendment and Article VI, Clause 2 of the Constitution)<sup>172</sup>, which is the case with 39 income taxes on Natural Born Persons.

40 Notice that you can't call it a "tax" if it is "voluntary"! You have to call it a "donatio" and "donation":

41 "Donatio: A gift. A transfer of the title of property to one who receives it without paying for it. The act by which 42 the owner of a thing voluntarily transfers the title and possession of the same from himself to 43 another person, without any consideration."

<sup>172</sup> See the Tenth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, which says: "The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectively, or to the people." See also U.S. Constitution, Article VI, Clause 2, which says: "This Constitution, and the Laws of the United States which shall be made in Pursuance thereof; and all Treaties made, or which shall be made, under the Authority of the United States, shall be the supreme Law of the Land; and the Judges in every State shall be bound thereby, any Thing in the Constitution or Laws of any State to the Contrary notwithstanding."

1                    “Voluntary: “Unconstrained by interference; unimpelled by another’s influence; spontaneous; acting of
 2                    oneself. Coker v. State, 199 Ga. 20, 33 S.E.2d. 171, 174. Done by design or intention. Proceeding from the free
 3                    and unrestrained will of the person. Produced in or by an act of choice. Resulting from free choice, without
 4                    compulsion or solicitation. The word, especially in statutes, often implies knowledge of essential facts. Without
 5                    valuable consideration; gratuitous, as a voluntary conveyance. Also, having a merely nominal consideration;
 6                    as, a voluntary deed.”
 7                    [Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1575]

8 We then have to go back to table 5-1 at the beginning of this chapter and ask ourselves:

9                    “What kind of Constitutional tax is described by Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A in relation to states of the 10                    Union?”

11 As you read through most of the federal appellate and district court cases dealing with income tax, they take great pains NOT 12 to identify which of the five constitutional taxes the income tax is from Table 5-1. This is because:

- 13 1. They don’t want you to know which of the two legislative jurisdictions they are operating within: The federal zone or 14 the states of the Union. If they said anything more than the above, they would generate a flurry of questions and inquiry 15 that would destroy the tax system as we know it.
- 16 2. They don’t want you to know that the tax is on income derived from a taxable activity, because if you knew what the 17 activity was, you would avoid it and thereby avoid the tax.
- 18 3. They know that the I.R.C., Subtitle A operates primarily within the District of Columbia and attaches to the person 19 through private law or contract, instead of through positive and public law. Because it attaches through private voluntary
 20 contract in the form of an SS-5, W-4, or 1040 form, all of which must be signed and submitted by the party, then public
 21 or positive law is not required to enforce it. If they revealed how it attaches to the individual, then they would undermine
 22 its operation and deprive the government of revenues. Lawyers who are licensed by the government are not about to bite
 23 the hands that feed them.
- 24 4. They don’t want to admit that Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A only applies to legal “persons” domiciled within the 25 federal zone on land under exclusive federal jurisdiction. If they did, few people would pay it and few CPA’s, attorneys,
 26 or even payroll people would be left with anything to do. The whole economy would have to shift to more honest
 27 endeavors.

28 The I.R.C., Subtitle A income tax, in the context of states of the Union, is therefore an indirect excise tax on other than natural
 29 persons when it is mandatory or involuntary. That means the proper subject of it is corporations and partnerships, and trusts
 30 and not biological people. The corporations and other artificial entities to which it applies must be engaged in one of the 31 following corporate, excise taxable activities before they can have any taxable “sources” of income:

- 32 1. Employment and/or agency with the federal government called a “trade or business” within the District of Columbia.
 33 Signing or submitting either the W-4, the 1040, or the SSA Form SS-5 all create a presumption that the submitter
 34 maintains a legal domicile in the District of Columbia, or that he is acting as a federal “employee” or trustee on behalf
 35 of a corporation defined in 28 U.S.C. §3002(15)(A) called the “United States”. This corporation has a legal domicile in 36 the District of Columbia, and therefore, when he is acting in that capacity, he too has a legal domicile there. See section 37 5.6.12 and following for further details.
- 38 2. “foreign commerce” coming under Article 1, Section 8, Clause 3 of the Constitution.

39 Excise taxes are taxes on government privileges. The average American is NOT in receipt of taxable privileges relating to 40 the subjects above. However, because most Americans have been deceived by a lying IRS using their deceptive publications
 41 into misrepresenting their status on government forms, they have created a false presumption that they are “taxpayers”.
 42 American “nationals” everywhere, however, who know the law and the nature of this deception are free to earn as much
 43 money or goods as they please from outside of the District of Columbia without payment of any income tax under Subtitle
 44 A, so long as they don’t:

- 45 1. Forget to promptly correct all erroneous reports of receipt of excise taxable “income” received on forms 1099 or W-2.
- 46 2. Use a Social Security Number on any government form or in response to any tax collection notice. They must 47 vociferously argue with anyone who tries to use such a number to refer to them. This is because anyone who has a Social 48 Security Number is a federal “employee”. 26 C.F.R. §422.104 falls under Title 20, which is entitled “Employee
 49 Benefits”, and it describes the only authority for issuing SSNs. These numbers can only be issued to federal “employees”
 50 and can only be used in conjunction with their official duties. See the following article for details:
 51 <http://sedm.org/Forms/05-MemLaw/AboutSSNsAndTINs.pdf>

- 1 3. Describe themselves as "taxpayers"
- 2 4. Describe their earnings as being associated with an excise taxable activity such as a "trade or business" or with "foreign
- 3 commerce" coming under Article 1, Section 8, Clause 3 of the Constitution.
- 4 5. Claim that their earnings originate from the "United States", which is defined as the District of Columbia in 26 U.S.C.
- 5 §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10).
- 6 6. File an IRS Form W-4 or an SSA Form SS-5. The regulations at 26 C.F.R. §31.3402(p)-1 and elsewhere say that both
- 7 of these forms are contracts. You can't keep your sovereignty if you contract it away to the federal government.
- 8 7. File the form 1040, which is the wrong form for most Americans. The 1040 can only be used by those with a domicile
- 9 in the District of Columbia. IRS Document 7130 says it is only for use by "citizens" and "residents" of the "United
- 10 States", which is defined as the District of Columbia in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10).
- 11 8. Maintain a legal domicile anywhere in the District of Columbia or "United States". Instead, you must agree to govern,
- 12 support, and protect yourself instead of nominating a government to be your protector.

13 A person who has done all the above is under no duty to account for their earnings or report them to anyone. It is easier for 14 states to enact excises because they have the police power. The privileged excise activity is what establishes the legal duty to 15 account for income produced as the result of the exercise of an excise. Income is the measure of the excise. An occupation
 16 tax is an excise measured by the amount of income the person in the occupation produces and that occupation must be licensed
 17 or privileged in some way to be the object of an income tax. A fuel tax is an excise tax on foreign commerce disguised as a
 18 consumption tax. The dollar amount of the fuel tax is a factor or percentage of the total amount of fuel sold or delivered. No
 19 matter how it is expressed, the excise is a tax on gross income. The only difference between a tax on gross income and net
 20 income is the certainty of the tax. In either case, there is an absolute requirement of sufficient police power to require the 21 necessary record keeping to calculate either the gross or net income. The "national government" of the District of Columbia
 22 does not possess the general police power and without police power in the 50 Union states and outside of the federal zone.
 23 The federal government therefore has not authority to attempt to collect the equivalent of unapportioned direct taxes within
 24 states of the Union.

QUESTION FOR DOUBTERS: If I.R.C., Subtitles A and C income taxes are NOT indirect excise taxes upon foreign commerce or a "trade or business", then why are the ONLY activities and persons upon which the tax "imposed" in receipt of privileges or associated mainly with foreign commerce and federal employment? Here are just a few examples of those privileges an entity or person must be in receipt of in order to be the subject of the income tax, and we'd like to emphasize that if your situation isn't in this list, then you aren't under the jurisdiction of the Internal Revenue Code!:

1. They must be a public official of the U.S. government in receipt of the privileges of public office and residing in the District of Columbia:
  - 1.1. 26 C.F.R. §301.6671-1 Rules for application of assessable penalties: "(b) Person defined. For purposes of subchapter B of chapter 68, the term "person" includes an officer or employee of a corporation, or a member or employee of a partnership, who as such officer, employee, or member is under a duty to perform the act in respect of which the violation occurs."
  - 1.2. 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(c) Employee: "...the term [employee] includes officers and employees, whether elected or appointed, of the United States, a [federal] State, Territory, Puerto Rico or any political subdivision, thereof, or the District of Columbia, or any agency or instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing. The term 'employee' also includes an officer of a corporation."
  - 1.3. 26 U.S.C. §3401(c) Employee: For purposes of this chapter, the term "employee" includes [is limited to] an officer, employee, or elected official of the United States, a State, or any political subdivision thereof, or the District of Columbia, or any agency or instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing. The term "employee" also includes an officer of a corporation.
  - 1.4. 8 Federal Register, Tuesday, September 7, 1943, §404.104, pg. 12267: Employee: "The term employee specifically includes officers and employees whether elected or appointed, of the United States, a state, territory, or political subdivision thereof or the District of Columbia or any agency or instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing."
  - 1.5. Office (Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, page 1082): A right, and correspondent duty, to exercise a public trust. A public charge or employment. An employment on behalf of the government in any station or public trust, not merely transient, occasional, or incidental. The most frequent occasions to use the word arise with reference to a duty and power conferred on an individual by the government; and, when this is the connection, "public office" is a usual and more discriminating expression. But a power and duty may exist without immediate grant from government, and may be properly called an "office;" as the office of executor.

Here the individual acts towards legatees in performance of a duty, and in exercise of a power not derived from their consent, but devolved on him by an authority which quoad hoc is superior....

- 1.6. Appointment (Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, page 99): The designation of a person, by the person or persons having authority therefor, to discharge the duties of some office or trust. In re Nicholson's Estate, 104 Colo. 561, 93 P.2d. 880, 884...

Office or public function. The selection or designation of a person, by the person or persons having authority therefor, to fill an office or public function and discharge the duties of the same. The term "appointment" is to be distinguished from "election." "Election" to office usually refers to vote of people, whereas "appointment" relates to designation by some individual or group. Board of Education of Boyle County v. McChesney, 235 Ky. 692, 32 S.W.2d. 26, 27.

- 1.7. Public Office, pursuant to Black's Law Dictionary, Abridged Sixth Edition, p. 1230 means:

“Essential characteristics of a ‘public office’ are:

- (1) Authority conferred by law,
- (2) Fixed tenure of office, and
- (3) Power to exercise some of the sovereign functions of government.
- (4) Key element of such test is that “officer is carrying out a sovereign function’.
- (5) Essential elements to establish public position as ‘public office’ are:
  - (a) Position must be created by Constitution, legislature, or through authority conferred by legislature.
  - (b) Portion of sovereign power of government must be delegated to position,
  - (c) Duties and powers must be defined, directly or implied, by legislature or through legislative authority.
  - (d) Duties must be performed independently without control of superior power other than law, and
  - (e) Position must have some permanency.”

- 1.8. 26 U.S.C. §6331: Subchapter D-Seizure of Property for Collection of Taxes

Section 6331 Levy and Distraint.

Section 6331(a) Authority of Secretary. - If any person liable to pay any tax neglects or refuses to pay the same within 10 days after notice and demand, it shall be lawful for the Secretary to collect such tax (and such further sum as shall be sufficient to cover the expenses of the levy) by levy upon all property and rights to property (except such property as is exempt under section 6334 (9)) belonging to such person or on which there is a lien provided in this chapter for the payment of such tax. Levy may be made upon the accrued salary or wages of any officer, employee, or elected official of the United States, District of Columbia, or any agency or instrumentality of the United States or the District of Columbia, by serving a notice of levy on the employer of such officer, employee or elected official. If the Secretary makes a finding that the collection of such tax is in jeopardy, notice and demand for immediate payment of such tax may be made by the secretary and, upon failure or refusal to pay such tax, collection thereof by levy shall be lawful without regard to the 10-day period provided in this section.

You will note that the above describes the ONLY persons upon which a levy or garnishment may be executed, and this activity applies ONLY to Title 27 Alcohol, Tobacco, and Firearms and NOT to Subtitle A income taxes, as there are no implementing regulations written by the Secretary of the Treasury that would apply the above section to Subtitle A Income Taxes.

2. Taxable sources: All taxable sources identified in 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f)(1) are either privileged sources or involved with foreign commerce (see the Constitution, Art. 1, Section 8, Clause 3, which authorizes regulating foreign trade). The I.R.C., Subtitle A income tax is a tax on the source as measured by income, NOT a tax on income. The taxable sources identified in 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f)(1) of the treasury regulations apply to ALL income, both from within the United States (federal zone) and without and include:
- 2.1. Domestic International Sales Corporation (DISC) taxable income. Corporations are fictitious entities created by the government and therefore in receipt of government privileges.
  - 2.2. Foreign Sales Corporation (FSC) taxable income. Corporations are fictitious entities created by the government and therefore in receipt of government privileges.
  - 2.3. Nonresident alien individuals and foreign corporations engaged in a trade or business within the United States.

26 U.S.C. §7701 (a)(26)

The term "trade or business" includes the performance of the functions of a public office.

You will note that holding of a public office is a privilege associated with government service.

- 2.4. Foreign base company income. These companies operate on U.S. territory/property abroad and are therefore in receipt of government privileges and must pay taxes on that privilege.
- 2.5. Other operative sections relating to foreign income, including:

(vi) Other operative sections. The rules provided in this section also apply in determining--

- (A) The amount of foreign source items...
- (B) The amount of foreign mineral income...
- (C) [Reserved]
- (D) The amount of foreign oil and gas extraction income...
- (E) (deals with Puerto Rico tax credits)
- (F) (deals with Puerto Rico tax credits)
- (G) (deals with Virgin Islands tax credits)
- (H) The income derived from Guam by an individual...
- (I) (deals with China Trade Act corporations)
- (J) (deals with foreign corporations)
- (K) (deals with insurance income of foreign corporations)
- (L) (deals with countries subject to international boycott)
- (M) (deals with the Merchant Marine Act of 1936) [26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f)(1)]

1 Now do you understand? With this remarkable realization in mind, is it any wonder why the IRS won't give you a good
2 straight definition of "voluntary compliance" on its website and tries to intimidate ignorant people into paying income taxes
3 they aren't liable for? They operate on bluff and our own ignorance is how they can continue to victimize us. As one Senator
4 put it:

5 *"In a recent conversation with an official at the Internal Revenue Service, I was amazed when he told me that 'If
6 the taxpayers of this country ever discover that the IRS operates on 90% bluff the entire system will collapse' ".
7 [Henry Bellmon, Senator (1969)]*

8 It is precisely the above situation that is the reason why we wrote this book: to eliminate the ignorance of Americans 9 everywhere.

10 One question we get often from our readers about the I.R.C. along these lines is the following:

11 *"I am making my way through your book, The Great IRS Hoax. Anyway it is gigantic, but extremely interesting.
12 I am only a few hundred pages into it. I am confused on one issue though. From what I have read, a natural born
13 citizen of the United States of America is not required by law to pay income tax, but foreigners, DC residents,
14 corporations, etc do. What about if you are an American National who works for a corporation, are you 15 required to pay taxes then?"*

16 Good question! When we work for a corporation (e.g. a corporation registered in the District of Columbia only), the 17 corporation's income is taxable by the government that granted the privilege of its existence but not by other governments.
18 For instance, in order to be liable for federal corporate income taxes, a corporation must have been incorporated and have a
19 physical presence in the District of Columbia, a federal territory, or other part of the federal zone. If the corporation is a state 20 only corporation, then it is liable to pay income taxes on its earnings to the state that granted its charter to exist, but not to the
21 federal government.

22 But what about people who work for a state-chartered corporation that is not registered or incorporated under federal law?
23 As we say later in this chapter, in section 5.6.7, the only people who can earn "wages" are federal "employees" working
24 within exclusive federal legislative jurisdiction and who consent or volunteer under the provisions of 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(a)-
25 3 to participate in federal withholding. Therefore, it doesn't matter who we work for as long as it isn't the U.S. government
26 and as long as we never consent to participate in payroll withholding by submitting a W-4. If we use the right payroll
27 withholding forms, which not the W-4, and maintain the correct citizenship status, which is that of a "national", then we
28 would be "non-resident non-persons" who are not the proper subject of nearly all federal revenue "schemes" described by
29 Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A. This is confirmed by examining 26 U.S.C. §871(a), which describes all taxable subjects
30 for those domiciled in states of the Union who are "nationals" and "nonresident aliens". Note that the list DOES NOT include
31 "wages", "salaries" and only includes earnings from within the "United States", which is the District of Columbia. 26 U.S.C.
32 §861(a)(3)(C)(i) confirms that nonresident aliens who are working for nonresident aliens and whose earnings are not

1 connected with a political office, which is nearly everyone in states of the Union, do not need to include earnings from labor
2 in their "gross income".

3 The people working for a state corporation are therefore not liable for extortion to either the state or federal government,
4 because federal liability is universally a prerequisite to state income tax liability. The corporation in this case is the direct 5 recipient of state (but not federal) government privileges, but the employees of the corporation are indirect recipients of these
6 privileges through the earnings they receive from their labor. If the company is employee owned and the employees get stock
7 options and there is appreciation on either their stock or the options, then the employees have a realized gain or profit that is
8 "unearned income" from the appreciation on the corporate stock. This profit or appreciation is a direct result of their labor
9 but is "unearned income" NOT considered part of their earnings from labor. If they were a corporation in receipt of these
10 earnings, then they could be liable for income tax on such profit, but once again, they can only be taxed as a sovereign
11 American National if the VOLUNTEER, because the constitution prohibits unapportioned DIRECT TAXES upon 12 individuals. Only STATES can be taxed directly, and not the individuals in them, under Article 1, Section 9, Clause 4, and 13 Article 1, Section 2, Clause 3 of the Constitution.

14 What about licenses to pursue certain occupations? What kinds of licenses can be taxed? The only licenses subject to federal
15 income taxes are those coming under 27 U.S.C., which is for Alcohol, Tobacco, and Firearms and which only apply within 16 the federal zone. Receipt of any other occupational license or government privilege, so far as we know, does not make one
17 liable for the payment of 26 U.S.C. Subtitles A and C personal income taxes. Here is what one Oregon court said about 18 privileges as they pertain to natural born persons:

19 "The individual, unlike the corporation, cannot be taxed for the mere privilege of existing. The corporation is 20 an artificial entity which owes its existence and charter power to the State, but the individual's right to live and 21 own property are natural rights for the enjoyment of which an excise cannot be imposed."
22 [Redfield v. Fisher, 292 Oregon 814, 817]

23 To summarize this section then, what you should have learned is that the notion of calling the income tax described in Subtitles
24 A through C of the Internal Revenue Code a "tax" in reality constitutes fraud on the part of the federal government. The 25 other part of the fraud is not clarifying what is meant in the statutes by "tax" (either a tax OR a donation), "United States"
26 (the federal United States) or "employee" (a public official of the U.S. government), "trade or business" (the holding of public 27 office), or "indirect excise tax" in IRS publications and the Internal Revenue Code. "The big lie" therefore begins with the 28 distortions of our language by the government that deprives us of our liberties as described below.

29 "When words lose their meaning, people will lose their liberty."
30 [Confucius, 500 B.C.]

31 5.4.11 The money you send to the IRS is a Gift to the U.S. government

32 31 U.S.C. §321(d)

33 *(1) The Secretary of the Treasury may accept, hold, administer, and use gifts and bequests of property, both real
34 and personal, for the purpose of aiding or facilitating the work of the Department of the Treasury. Gifts and 35 bequests of money and the proceeds from sales of other property received as gifts or bequests shall be deposited
36 in the Treasury in a separate fund and shall be disbursed on order of the Secretary of the Treasury. Property
37 accepted under this paragraph, and the proceeds thereof, shall be used as nearly as possible in accordance with 38 the terms of the gift or bequest.*

39 *(2): "For the purposes of the Federal income, estate, and gift taxes, property accepted under paragraph (1)
40 shall be considered as a gift or bequest to or for the use of the United States."*

41 Now let's look at the surprising definition of the word "gift" in Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, page 688:

42 *Gift: A voluntary transfer of property to another made gratuitously and without consideration. Bradley v.
43 Bradley, Tex.Civ.App., 540 S.W.2d. 504, 511. Essential requisites of "gift" are capacity of donor, intention of 44 *donor to make gift, completed delivery to or for donee, and acceptance of gift by donee.

45 In tax law, a payment is a gift if it is made without conditions, from detached and disinterested generosity, out
46 of affection, respect, charity or like impulses, and not from the constraining force of 47 any moral or legal duty or from the incentive of anticipated benefits of an economic nature.

1 And finally, let's look up the word "voluntary" from Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1575:

2 "Unconstrained by interference; unimpelled by another's influence; spontaneous; acting of oneself. Coker v.
 3 *State, 199 Ga. 20, 33 S.E.2d. 171, 174. Done by design or intention. Proceeding from the free and unrestrained
 4 *will of the person. Produced in or by an act of choice. Resulting from free choice, without
 5 compulsion or solicitation. The word, especially in statutes, often implies knowledge of* 6 essential facts. Without valuable consideration; gratuitous, as a voluntary conveyance. Also, having a merely 7 nominal consideration; as, a voluntary deed."

8 The above considerations might explain why the Congress created 31 U.S.C. §321(d)(2), which says that income taxes, estate
 9 taxes, and gift taxes are "gifts" to the U.S. government. Therefore, because "gifts" and "bequests" are never mandatory and
 10 must always be a product of choice and not compulsion, then they aren't "taxes" in a legal sense and Subtitles A and C
 11 actually describe a voluntary donation program for the municipal government of the District of Columbia! There can be no
 12 other rational conclusion you can reach after reading this section. You can read this amazing statute for yourself at:

13 <http://www4.law.cornell.edu/uscode/31/321.html>

14 Because the monies paid the government and IRS under the guise of a lawful income tax are actually gifts, then the Supreme 15 Court has said that such gifts are non-refundable if voluntarily paid, even if they are mistakenly paid. The only way to 16 maintain the ability to get these gifts back is to pay them "under protest":

17 "If the duties demanded of Nicholl & Co. had been paid under protest, their payment, in the sense of the law,
 18 would have been compulsory, but as they were paid without protest it was a voluntary payment, doubtless made
 19 and received in mutual mistake of the law; but in such a case, as was decided in Elliott v. Swartwout, no action
 20 will lie to recover back the money."

21 [...at page 129]

22 Besides, if there had been a regulation of the department on the subject, it could not affect the rights of the 23 appellants, for such a regulation cannot change a law of Congress.
 24 [Nichols v. U.S., 74 U.S. 122 (1868), p. 128]

25 How do we pay something under protest? Well, simply put, we indicate the words "under protest" near our signature or 26 somewhere on the tax return or letter attached to it. Once we have done this, we have reserved our right to recover the coerced
 27 "gift" in a court of law.

28 Getting back to our friends at the Department of Plunder, the IRS depends not only upon its highly publicized actions but 29 upon its perceived power in order to instill fear into honest Americans and, according to the agency itself, to: "Maintain a 30 sense of presence."

31 Quoting from a book called IRS In Action by Santo Presti, we read:

32 "Fear is the key element for the IRS in achieving its mission. Without fear, the IRS would have a difficult time 33 maintaining our so-called system of voluntary compliance..."

34 And what exactly does "voluntary compliance" really mean?

35 In 1953, Mr. Dwight E. Avis, head of the Alcohol and Tobacco Division of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, made the 36 following remarkable statement to a subcommittee of the Committee on Ways and Means in the House of Representatives:

37 "Let me point this out now: Your income tax is 100 percent voluntary tax, and your liquor tax is 100 percent
 38 enforced tax. Now, the situation is as different as day and night."

39 In 1971, the following quote was found in the IRS instruction booklet for Form 1040:

40 "Each year American taxpayers voluntarily file their tax returns and make a special effort to pay the taxes they 41 owe."

1 In 1974, Donald C. Alexander, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, published the following statement in the March 29 issue
2 of The Federal Register:

3 "The mission of the Service is to encourage and achieve the highest possible degree of voluntary compliance with 4 the tax laws and regulations..."

5 [emphasis added]

6 One year later, in 1975, his successor, Mortimer Caplin authored the following statement in the Internal Revenue Audit
7 Manual:

8 "Our system is based on individual self-assessment and voluntary compliance."

9 In 1980, yet another IRS commissioner, Jerome Kurtz (their turnover is high) issues a similar statement in their Internal 10 Revenue Annual Report:

11 "The IRS's primary task is to collect taxes under a voluntary compliance system."

12 Even the Supreme Court of the United States has held that the system of federal income taxation is voluntary, starting in Flora
13 v. United States, 362 U.S. 145 (1960):

14 "...the government can collect the tax from a district court suitor by exercising its power of distraint.. but we 15 cannot believe that compelling resort to this extraordinary procedure is either wise or in accord with 16 congressional intent. Our tax system is based upon voluntary assessment and payment, not upon distraint.

17 *If the government is forced to use these remedies (distraint) on a large scale, it will affect adversely the taxpayers
18 willingness to perform under our VOLUNTARY assessment system."*

19 The dictionary defines "distraint" to mean the act or action of distraining, that is, seizing property to distress or taking by 20 force. One way to determine for whom the income tax is mandatory is to look at the section of the code that talks about the 21 types of levy and distraint that are authorized and how they may be instituted. The only section of the entire Internal Revenue
22 Code that talks about levy and distraint is 26 U.S.C. Section. 6331, and it plainly states that only the Secretary of the Treasury
23 (not the IRS) may institute levy and distraint and that he has the authority to do so ONLY on instrumentalities of the federal 24 government, such as officers or elected officials of the United States situated in the federal zone. The Secretary of the 25 Treasury may NOT therefore effect levy or distraint outside of the federal zone or in nonfederal areas in the 50 Union states
26 on other than its own officers. Here is that section of the Internal Revenue Code:

27 (a) Authority of Secretary

28 *If any person liable to pay any tax neglects or refuses to pay the same within 10 days after notice and demand, it
29 shall be lawful for the Secretary to collect such tax (and such further sum as shall be sufficient to cover the
30 expenses of the levy) by levy upon all property and rights to property (except such property as is exempt under
31 section 6334) belonging to such person or on which there is a lien provided in this chapter for the payment of
32 such tax. Levy may be made upon the accrued salary or wages of any officer, employee, or elected official, of
33 the United States, the District of Columbia, or any agency or instrumentality of the United States or the District
34 of Columbia, by serving a notice of levy on the employer (as defined in section 3401(d)) of such officer,
35 employee, or elected official. If the Secretary makes a finding that the collection of such tax is in jeopardy, notice
36 and demand for immediate payment of such tax may be made by the Secretary and, upon failure or refusal to pay
37 such tax, collection thereof by levy shall be lawful without regard to the 10-day period provided in this section.*

38 The IRS' definition of "employee" is also consistent with the above conclusions on the limitations on liability for paying the 39 federal income tax:

40 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(c) Employee: "...the term [employee] includes officers and employees, whether elected or 41 appointed, of the United States, a [federal] State, Territory, Puerto Rico or any political subdivision, thereof, or 42 the District of Columbia, or any agency or instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing. The term 43 'employee' also includes an officer of a corporation."

45 26 U.S.C. Sec. 3401(c)

46 Employee

For purposes of this chapter, the term "employee" includes [is limited to] an officer, employee, or elected official of the United States, a State, or any political subdivision thereof, or the District of Columbia, or any agency or instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing. The term "employee" also includes an officer of a corporation.

26 C.F.R. §31.3401(c)-1

Generally, physicians, lawyers, dentists, veterinarians, contractors, subcontractors, public stenographers, auctioneers, and others who follow an independent trade, business, or profession, in which they offer their services to the public, are not employees.

IRS Publication 21 is widely distributed to high schools. It acknowledges that compliance with a Law that requires the filing of returns is voluntary. Get to those young minds early, and it's easier to wash their brains later on in life.

At the same time, Publication 21 suggests that the filing of a return is mandatory, as follows:

"Two aspects of the Federal income tax system--voluntary compliance with the Law and self-assessment of tax--make it important for you to understand your rights and responsibilities as a taxpayer. Voluntary compliance places on the taxpayer the responsibility for filing an income tax return. You must decide whether the Law requires you to file a return. If it does, you must file your return by the date it is due."

Perhaps one of the most famous quotes on this question of the voluntary nature of income taxes came from Roger M. Olsen, Assistant Attorney General, Tax Division, Department of Justice, Washington, D.C., on Saturday, May 9, 1987, when Olsen told an assemblage of tax lawyers:

"We encourage voluntary compliance by scaring the heck out of you!"

Meaning, "Assess yourself and volunteer to comply or we'll seize your property and you may go to jail" (exercise "distrainment", that is, which the Supreme Court said in Flora v. United States, 362 U.S. 145 (1960) was NOT to be used as part of our tax system!)

What is the difference between the voluntary filing of a tax return and the voluntary paying of income tax on taxable income? A world of difference. Millions of people don't file income tax returns. For instance, below is a clip from a GAO report on nonfilers published in 1996 (see http://www.devvy.com/abra\_19991021.html):

Internal Revenue Service: Results of Nonfiler Strategy and Opportunities to Improve Future Efforts (Chapter Report, 05/13/96, GAO/GGD-96-72).

GAO reviewed the results of the Internal Revenue Service's (IRS) nonfiler strategy and opportunities to improve any similar future efforts.

Skip down to the section on Introduction and you will find this rather amazing statement:

"In 1993, IRS received about 114 million individual income tax returns. Almost all of those returns were for tax year 1992. For that same tax year, IRS identified 59.6 million potential individual nonfilers. Of the 59.6 million, IRS took no enforcement action on 54.1 million (91 percent), primarily because IRS subsequently determined that the individual or business had no legal requirement to file."

So as we can see, LOTS of people don't file returns and no enforcement action is taken against them. Why, as we see above, would the IRS not want to institute enforcement action? Because:

TAXES ON INCOME EARNED BY NATIONALS FROM SOURCES WITHIN AND WITHOUT THE FEDERAL UNITED STATES ARE VOLUNTARY, UNCONSTITUTIONAL TO MAKE MANDATORY, AND NOT SUBJECT TO "DISTRRAINT" OR FORCE, AS RULED BY THE SUPREME COURT IN Flora v. United States, 362 U.S. 145!

1 “You were bought at a price; do not become slaves of men [and government is
2 made up of men].”
3 [1 Cor. 7:23, Bible, NKJV]

4 “Stand fast therefore in liberty by which Christ has made us free, and do not be entangled again with a yoke of 5 bondage [to the IRS or the government].”
6 [Gal. 5:1, Bible, NKJV]

7 “Masters [tyrants in Washington, D.C. who are public servants that vainly think themselves to be masters], give
8 your servants what is just and fair, knowing that you also have a Master in heaven.”
9 [Colossians 4:1, Bible, NKJV]

10 Slavery, we are reminded incessantly these days, was a terrible thing. In today's politically correct society, some blacks are 11 demanding reparations for slavery because their remote ancestors were slaves. Slavery is routinely used to bash the South,
12 although the slave trade began in the North, and slavery was once practiced in every state in the Union. Today's historians
13 assure us that the War for Southern Independence was fought primarily if not exclusively over slavery, and that by winning 14 that war, the North put an end to the peculiar institution once and for all.

15 Whoa! Time out! Shouldn't we back up and ask: what is slavery? It has been a while since those ranting on the subject have
16 offered us a working definition of it. They will all claim that we know good and well what it is; why play games with the 17 word? But given the adage that those who can control language can control policy, it surely can't hurt to revisit the definition
18 of slavery. There are good reasons to suspect the motives of those who won't allow their basic terms to be defined or 19 scrutinized. Here is a definition, one that will make sense of the instincts telling us that slavery is indeed an abomination:

20 Slavery is non-ownership of one's Person and Labor.

21 Slavery is the opposite of “liberty” or the absence of liberty. We have an excellent animation on our website that very clearly
22 and simply defines what liberty is, which helps us understand what slavery is at the address below:

23 <http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Freedom/Articles/PhilosophyOfLiberty-english.swf>

24 Slavery, therefore, is involuntary servitude. When a slave is working to pay off a debt, he is called a “peon”. A slave must 25 work under a whip, real or figurative, wielded by other persons, his owners, with no say in how (or even if) his labors are
26 compensated. His is a one-way contract he cannot opt out of. A slave is tied to his master (and to the land where he labors).
27 He cannot simply quit if he doesn't like it. Moreover, a slave can be bought and sold like any other commodity. Justice
28 Brewer of the U.S. Supreme Court helped us to understand exactly what slavery is in the case of Clyatt v. U.S., 197 U.S. 207
29 (1905):

30 “The constitutionality and scope of sections 1990 and 5526 present the first questions for our consideration.
31 They prohibit peonage. What is peonage? It may be defined as a state or condition of compulsory service,
32 based upon the indebtedness of the peon to the master. The basal fact is indebtedness. As said by Judge
33 Benedict, delivering the opinion in Jaremillo v. Romero, 1 N.Mex. 190, 194: ‘One fact existed universally; all
34 were indebted to their masters. This was the cord by which they seemed bound to their masters’ service.’ Upon 35 this is based a condition of compulsory service. Peonage is sometimes classified as voluntary or involuntary,
36 but this implies simply a difference in the mode of origin, but not in the character of the servitude. The one
37 exists where the debtor voluntarily contracts to enter the service of his creditor. The other is forced upon the 38 debtor by some provision of law. But peonage, however created, is compulsory service, involuntary servitude.
39 The peon can release himself therefrom, it is true, by the payment of the debt, but otherwise the service is
40 enforced. A clear distinction exists between peonage and the voluntary performance of labor or rendering of
41 services in payment of a debt. In the latter case the debtor, though contracting to pay his indebtedness by labor
42 or service, and subject like any other contractor to an action for damages for breach of that contract, can elect
43 at any time to break it, and no law or force compels performance or continuance of the service.”
44 [Clyatt v. U.S., 197 U.S. 207 (1905)]

45 Here's another example of what slavery means, again from the U.S. Supreme Court in Plessy v. Ferguson, 163 U.S. 537, 542
46 (1896):

47 “That it does not conflict with the Thirteenth Amendment, which abolished slavery and involuntary servitude,
48 except as a punishment for crime, is too clear for argument. Slavery implies involuntary servitude—a state of 49 bondage; the ownership of mankind as a chattel, or at least the control of the labor and services of one man for
50 the benefit of another, and the absence of a legal right to the disposal of his own person, property, and services
51 [in their entirety]. This amendment was said in the Slaughter House Cases, 16 Wall, 36, to have been intended

1 primarily to abolish slavery, as it had been previously known in this country, and that it equally forbade Mexican
 2 peonage or the Chinese coolie trade, when they amounted to slavery or involuntary servitude and that the use of 3 the word 'servitude' was intended to prohibit the use of all forms of involuntary slavery, of whatever class or 4 name."
 5 [Plessy v. Ferguson, 163 U.S. 537, 542 (1896)]

6 When the IRS fabricates a bogus tax liability without the authority of enacted positive law creating a "liability", if they lie to
 7 you about what the tax Code says, or if they try to enforce an excise tax against activities that that you aren't involved in and
 8 which you have informed them under penalty of perjury that you aren't involved in, then they effectively are recruiting or
 9 returning you into debt slavery and "peonage" and their activities are a federal offense in violation of 42 U.S.C. §1994 and
 10 18 U.S.C. §1581. These two statutes, incidentally, unlike most other federal legislation and statutes, DO apply within states
 11 of the union according to the U.S. Supreme Court in the above mentioned case. 18 U.S.C. §1593 also mandates restitution
 12 for all those persons who have been recruited into slavery or involuntary servitude by their slave masters, which means that
 13 we must be compensated fairly for the labor of ours that was in effect stolen from us. Why hasn't the Supreme Court
 14 attempted to prevent the unconstitutional implementation of an otherwise constitutional tax law that only operates (as written)
 15 within the District of Columbia and other federal territories? Because they are bought and paid for with money they are 16 STEALING from you! By acquiescing to the illegal enforcement of the Internal Revenue Code, which is otherwise
 17 constitutional, you are bribing them to maintain the status quo, friends!

18 In the case of the way the corrupt IRS and an even more corrupted federal judiciary mis-enforces our laws or pretends that
 19 there is a positive law federal taxing statute when in fact there isn't one, the very real slavery that results is at odds with
 20 libertarian social ethics, in which all human beings have a natural right to ownership of Person and Labor. According to 21 libertarian social ethics, contracts should be voluntary and not coerced. This is sufficient for us to oppose slavery with all
 22 our might. However, notice that this clear definition of slavery is a double-edged sword. There is no reference to race in the 23 above definition. That whites enslaved blacks early in our history is an historical accident; there is nothing inherently racial
 24 about slavery. Many peoples have been enslaved in the past, including whites. The South, too, has no intrinsic connection
 25 with slavery, given how we already noted that it was practiced in the North as well. No slaves were brought into the 26 Confederacy during its brief, five-year existence, and it is very likely that the practice would have died out in a generation or 27 two had the Confederacy won the war. The Emancipation Proclamation, in fact, freed all the slaves over which Lincoln had 28 NO JURISDICTION.

29 It is instructive at this point to compare the status of being a "negro slave" to that of being a "taxpayer" to show you just how 30 similar they are, in fact. We have prepared a table comparing each of these two statuses to show you that they are indeed
 31 synonymous:

1 Finally, it is clear that when most people talk about slavery, they are referring to chattel slavery, the overt practice of buying,
 2 selling and owning people like farm animals or beasts of burden. Are there other forms of slavery besides chattel slavery?

3 Before answering, let's review our definition above and contrast slavery with sovereignty, in the sense of sovereignty over
 4 one's life. Slavery, we said, is non-ownership of Person and Labor. In that case, sovereignty is ownership of Person and
 5 Labor. The basic contrast, then, is between slavery and sovereignty, and the issue is ownership. And there are two basic 6 things one can own: one's Person (one's life), and one's Labor (the fruits of one's labors, including personal wealth resulting 7 from productive labors).

8 Let us quantify the situation. A plantation slave owned neither himself nor the fruits of his labors. That is, he owned 0% of 9 Person and 0% of Labor. In an ideal libertarian order, ownership of Person and Labor would be just the opposite: 100% of 10 both. In this case, we have a method allowing us to describe other forms of slavery by ascribing different percentages of 11 ownership to Person and Labor. For example, we might say that a prison inmate owns 5% of Person and 50% of Labor.
 12 Inmates are highly confined in person yet they are allowed to own wealth both inside the prison and outside. Some, moreover,
 13 are allowed to work at jobs for which they are paid. When slavery was abolished, ownership of Person and Labor was 14 transferred to the slave, and he became mostly free. So let us define the following categories in terms of individual percentage
 15 ownership:

Table 5-47: Percent Ownership of Person and Labor

| # | Category        | Characteristics                      | Equivalent political system |
|---|-----------------|--------------------------------------|-----------------------------|
| 1 | Perfect Liberty | 100% ownership of Person and Labor   | Pure Capitalism/Republic    |
| 2 | Partial Slavery | Some % ownership of Person and Labor | Socialism/democracy         |
| 3 | Chattel Slavery | 0% ownership of Person and Labor     | Communism/dictatorship      |

With this in mind, here is an intriguing question for our readers:

How much ownership do you have in your person and your labor?

Are you really free? Or are you a partial slave or peon? We are not, of course, talking about arrangements that cede a portion of ownership of Person and Labor to others through voluntary contract.

We submit that forcible taxation on your personal income makes you a partial slave and makes the government a socialist government. For if you are legally bound to hand a certain percentage of your income (the fruits of your labors) over to federal, state and local governments, then from the legal standpoint you only have "some % ownership" of your person and labor. The pivotal point is whether or not ownership is ceded through voluntary contract. Have you any recollection of any deals you signed with the IRS promising them payment of part of your income? If not, then if 30% of your income is paid in income taxes, then you have only 70% ownership of Labor. You are a slave from January through April – a very conservative estimate at best, today!

If one wants to stand on the U.S. Constitution as one's foundation, then the 13th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution can be used as an ironclad argument against a forcible direct tax on the labor of a human being. The 13th Amendment says:

"Neither slavery nor involuntary servitude, except as a punishment for a crime whereof the party shall have been duly convicted, shall exist within the United States, or any place subject to their jurisdiction. Congress shall have the power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation."

The 13th Amendment makes it very clear that we cannot legally or Constitutionally be forced into involuntary servitude. It doesn't make any distinction between whether the slavery is physical or financial, but says that any kind of involuntary servitude is prohibited.

As such, we maintain that a human being has an inalienable right to own 100 % of Person and 100% of Labor, including control over how the fruits of his actions are dispensed. A human being has an inalienable right to control the compensation for his labor while in the act of any service in the marketplace – e.g., digging ditches, flipping burgers, word-processing documents for a company, programming computers, preparing court cases, performing surgery, preaching sermons, or writing novels.

A forcible direct tax on the labor of a human being is in violation of this right as stated in the 13th Amendment. If we work 40 hours a week, and another entity forcibly conscripts 25 % of our compensation, then we argue that we have been forced into involuntary servitude – slavery – for 10 of those 40 hours, and we were free for the other 30. If we could freely choose to work just the 30 hours and decline to work the 10 hours, then our wills would not be violated and the 13th Amendment would be honored.

However, Congress and the IRS claim that their Internal Revenue Code (IRC) lay direct claim to those ten hours (or some stated percentage) without our consent.

In other words, in a free and just society, a society in which there is no slavery of any form:

- Human beings are not forced to work for free, in whole or in part.
- Human beings are not slaves to anything or anyone.
- Anyone who attempts to force us to work for free, without compensation, has violated our rights under the 13th Amendment.

1 This, of course, is not the state of affairs in the United States of America at the turn of the millennium, in which:

- 2 • We labor involuntarily for at least four months out of every year for the government.
- 3 • We are, therefore, slaves for that period of time.
- 4 • The government, having forced us to work for free, without compensation, has violated the 13th Amendment.

5 Of course, what follows from all this discussion is that there is an issue about slavery. But it is not the issue politically correct
6 historians and activists are raising. As for reparations, we suspect many of us might be willing to let bygones be bygones if
7 we never had to pay out another dime to the IRS. We often read about how great the economy is supposedly doing. Just
8 imagine how it would flourish if human beings owned 100% of Person and Labor, and could voluntarily invest the capital
9 we currently pay to the government in our businesses, our homes, our schools, and our communities!

10 For those of you who believe that the 16th Amendment repealed, replaced, modified, appended, amended or superseded the 11 13th Amendment, you are mistaken. For an Amendment to be changed, in any way, there must be an Amendment that
12 emphatically declares this action. There is absolutely nothing in the Constitution that alters the efficacy of the 13th Amendment
13 in even the slightest way. The 16th merely allowed the government to enter the "National Social Benefits" business where it
14 finances the system with the mandatory contributions of voluntary participants. While all Americans certainly understand the 15 concept of mandatory contributions, they fail to understand the concept of voluntary participation, largely due to a very
16 effective marketing campaign on the part of our central government for several generations now since the Great Depression.
17 The 16th gave the government the power to legally enter a contractual relationship with its citizens wherein the citizen
18 voluntarily contributes a portion of his labor in exchange for social benefits. In order for both Amendments to peacefully
19 coexist, the contractual relationships in the system created by the 16th cannot be forced upon the citizens. For to do so would 20 be to contradict the 13th completely.

21 Two final questions, and a few final thoughts. Can we really take seriously the carpings of politically correct historians about 22 an arrangement (chattel slavery) that hasn't existed for 140 years when they completely ignore the structurally similar
23 arrangements (tax slavery) that have existed right under their noses during most of the years since. And does a governmental 24 system which systematically violates its own founding documents, and then oversees the imprisoning of those who refuse to 25 recognize the legitimacy of the violations, really have a claim on the loyalty of those who would be loyal to the ideals
26 represented in those founding documents?

27 Eventually, we have to make a decision. How long are we going to continue to put up with the present hypocritical
28 arrangements? In the Declaration of Independence is found these remarks:

29 "... [a]nd accordingly all Experience hath shewn, that Mankind are more disposed to suffer, while Evils are 30 sufferable, than to right themselves by abolishing the Forms to which they are accustomed."

31 We are accustomed to the income tax. Most people take it for granted, and don't look at fundamental issues. Yet some have 32 indeed opted out of the tax system. It is necessary, at present, to become self-employed and hire oneself out based on a
33 negotiated contract in which you determine your hourly rate and then bill for your time. Then you send your client an invoice,
34 they write a check directly to you in response, and you take the check and deposit it in your bank account; you may wish to
35 open a bank account with a name like John Smith Enterprises DBA (DBA stands for 'Doing Business As'). If the bank asks
36 for a tax-ID number, you may give your social security number. This is perfectly legal since you are not a corporation nor 37 are you required to be. Nor does the use of a government issued number contractually obligate you to participate in their 38 system.

39 We should specify here that we are discussing taxes on income resulting from personal labor, to be carefully distinguished
40 from taxes for the sale of material items, or excise taxes, both of which are usually indirect taxes on artificial entities like
41 corporations. These are an entirely separate, and voluntary matter, because if you don't want to pay the tax, you either don't 42 buy the good or don't register as a corporation that sells the good.

43 By advocating opting out of the income tax slavery system, we are not advocating anything illegal here; that is the most
44 surprising thing of all. The Treasury Department nailed Al Capone not because of failure to pay taxes on his personal labor
45 but for his failure to pay the excise tax on the sale of alcoholic beverages. So a plan to be self-employed that includes profit
46 from the sale of material goods should include a plan to pay all the excise taxes; you risk a prison sentence if you don't. But 47 the 13th Amendment directly prohibits anything or anyone from conscripting your person or the fruits of your physical or 48 cognitive labors; to do so is make a slave of you. You may, of course, voluntarily participate in the SSA-W2 system by free

1 choice. In this case you are required to submit to the rules as outlined in the Internal Revenue Code (IRC). And this means
2 that you will contribute a significant fraction of your labor to pay for the group benefits of the system in which you are
3 voluntarily participating.

4 Your relationship with the system technically begins with the assignment of a Social Security Number (Personal Tax ID
5 Number). This government-issued number, however, does not contractually obligate you to anything. The government cannot
6 conscript its citizens simply by assigning a number to them. Assigning the number is perfectly fine. But conscripting them in
7 the process is a serious no-no. Some people that feel strongly about the last chapters of the book of Revelation might view
8 this as pure – evil.

9 The critical point in the relationship begins when a citizen accepts a job with an IRS registered corporation. Accepting the 10 government owned SSA-W2 job marries you to the system. The payroll department has the employee fill out a W4. This
11 W4 officially notifies the employee that the job in question is officially part of the SSA-W2 system and that all job-income
12 is subject first to the rules and regulations of the IRC and then secondly to the employee. When you sign that W4 you are at 13 that point very, very married to the system.

14 So why not just decline to sign the W4?

15 You can decline to sign a W4 but this does not accomplish much nor does it un-marry you from the system. Your payroll
16 office will merely use the IRC defaults already present in the payroll software and all deductions will be based on those 17 parameters.

18 Okay, you might say, fine, I'll sign a W4 but I'll direct my payroll department to withhold zero. (You can do this for federal 19 withholding but not for social security tax.) This still does not un-marry you from the system. Your payroll department still 20 reports the gross income and deductions for your SSA-W2 job to the IRS each and every quarter. And at the end of the year
21 you will probably end up being asked to write a large check to the IRS for the group contributions you declined to pay during 22 the year. With skill and the resources in this book, you may escape this assumed but nonexistent liability.

23 You then might say, Okay, then I'll just direct my payroll office to decline to report income to the IRS.

24 Reply: they cannot legally decline to report your SSA-W2 income because of their contractual obligations under the IRC that 25 were agreed to when they established their official IRS registered corporation. The corporation can get into deep trouble by 26 violating their contract.

27 Okay, you reply in turn, I'll just get the corporation to create a non-SSA-W2 job for me.

28 Response this time: the corporation cannot do this either; their contract under the IRC requires every single employee-job in 29 that corporation to be an SSA-W2 job. This is similar to labor union practices of insisting that all jobs in a plant be union 30 jobs.

31 You retort: isn't this a government monopoly on every corporate job in America???

32 The short answer is YES.

33 So how can I legally decline to work for free?

34 The answer is to decline to be an 'employee' of an official IRS registered corporation.

35 How is that possible?

36 The answer is simple. You become an independent contractor. The Supreme Court upholds the sovereignty of the individual
37 and has declared that your "...power to contract is unlimited." Corporations hire the labors of non-employees each and every 38 day.

39 If there is an infestation of cockroaches near the employee break-room, the corporation doesn't create an SSA-W2 employee
40 exterminator job. They hire a contract exterminator to kill the bugs. When the bug-man arrives they don't hand him a W4 and 41 ask him to declare his allowances, they lead him straight to the big-fat-ugly roaches and implore him to vanquish the vermin

1 immediately. When the bug-man finishes the job he hands them an invoice for his services. And the company sends him a
2 check to pay the invoice. And nowhere on that check will you find a federal, state, county or city withholding deduction or a
3 social security deduction or a medical or dental deduction or a garnishment or an "I'll-be-needing-an-accountant-to-figure-
4 all-this-out" deduction or a "Tuesday-Save-The-Turnips-Tax" deduction. On the contrary, the bug-man receives full
5 remuneration for his service. This simple arrangement is completely legal and the IRC has zero contractual claim to any part
6 of this check (assuming the bug-man has made no contract under the IRC). And anyone or anything that attempts to forcibly
7 conscript any part of that check is violating the bug-man's rights under the 13th Amendment.

8 Supreme Court Ruling on Individual Sovereignty

9 "There is a clear distinction in this particular case between an individual and a corporation, and that the latter
10 has no right to refuse to submit its books and papers for an examination at the suit of the State. The individual
11 may stand upon his constitutional rights as a citizen. He is entitled to carry on his private business in his own
12 way. His power to contract is unlimited. He owes no such duty to the State, since he receives nothing therefrom,
13 beyond the protection of his life and property. His rights are such as existed by the law of the land long antecedent
14 to the organization of the State, and can only be taken from him by due process of law, and in accordance with 15 the constitution. Among his rights are a refusal to incriminate himself, and the immunity of himself and his 16 property from arrest or seizure except under a warrant of the law. He owes nothing to the public so long as he 17 does not trespass upon their rights."

18 [Hale v. Henkel, 201 U.S. 43, 74 (1906)]

19 What does the bug-man do with his check?

20 The short answer is ... he keeps it ... all of it.

21 What about filing a tax return?

22 The bug-man declines to file a return since he has nothing to report that is under the jurisdiction of the IRC. Since he does
23 not work in a government owned SSA-W2 job he is out of the system and under no contractual obligation to make 24 contributions. The corporation that wrote him a check for his service legally reports it as an internal business expense. He 25 is legally classified as a non-participant.

26 If you are in the SSA-W2 system:

27 The purpose of an individual year-end tax-return is to settle the exact amount of contractually required contributions to the 28 SSA-W2 system as determined by the IRC. Filing is purely voluntary. You can decline to file but doing so does not release
29 you from your contractual obligations under the IRC. In the absence of a tax-return, the IRS falsely believes that the IRC
30 permits them to file a tax-return on your behalf and they are allowed to file a return that maximally favors them. Most people
31 don't challenge their illegal attempt to make a return if you don't provide them with one. And this they will do if it creates a 32 receivable – accounting lingo for – "you owe them money." They will decline to file a return if it would create a payable –
33 accounting lingo for "they owe you money." If the IRS files a return and creates a receivable against you they will send you
34 a notice declaring their claim. If you decline to pay, the IRC permits the IRS to file a tax-lien against you if you are a "public
35 officer" of the U.S. government. This of course will be seen on your credit report. And the end result is your credit is 36 damaged. The IRS computers will see to it that the lien remains on your credit report until the lien is paid. You can't beat a 37 computer.

38 What if I file a return but cheat like crazy?

39 This is a very bad idea. The Treasury Department nailed Leona Helmsley not because she failed to pay taxes on her personal
40 labor but because she filed a fraudulent tax return. Filing a dishonest tax return puts you at risk. The IRS is very astute at 41 defending itself. Basically the IRS is responsible for enforcing the IRC rules. If you are in the SSA-W2 system you have to 42 live by the IRC. If you decide to stay in the system, we recommend securing the services of a highly qualified CPA or tax
43 attorney that can assist you in filing the most advantageous return possible without committing fraud or risking an audit.

44 In the end, the law does allow you to opt-out because you can't be forced to work for free. If you do opt-out there are at least 45 2 potential inconveniences you need to understand:

- 1 1. Difficulty with conventional loans. You will have a far more difficult time getting loans from conventional banks,
2 because so often these depend on verifying your income with signed tax returns you no longer have. You can hire an
3 accountant to compose a certified financial statement that some loan institutions may accept as valid proof of income.
- 4 2. No unemployment benefits. This benefit is part of the SSA-W2 system and since you're not in the system you can't use
5 the benefits. If you have no contracts you only have yourself to complain to, you can't complain to the government
6 because you can't get anyone to do business with you.

7 Moreover, some who have opted out have moved all their physical assets into a trust. This measure makes it almost impossible
8 for the IRS to touch the assets. The IRS, after all, cannot simply decide to go after a person's wealth. They have to obey IRC
9 rules as well. If there is no income over which they have jurisdiction then they can legally do nothing.

10 It is worth noting, finally, that the government is in the "National Social Benefits" business. The government entered this 11 business with the ratification of the 16th Amendment and has achieved a near perfect monopoly in this market (a violation of 12 anti-trust laws). If you don't believe this, try finding a non-SSA-W2 job with a U.S. corporation. As such, it is in the interest
13 of any business that has a monopoly to get the customers to believe that there is no alternative to the present business
14 relationship. The government is not about to provide any of its customers (you and I) with any information suggesting
15 otherwise. In obtaining such information, we are clearly on our own; no government agency will assist you in opting out of 16 the income tax system or the social security system, with the possible exception of the U.S. Supreme Court, should the right
17 case one day come before them.

18 So one's best weapon is still the Declaration of Independence, the U.S. Constitution, the 13th Amendment, and information.
19 Whatever the inconveniences, the reward is personal sovereignty – otherwise known as freedom. If you would like to know
20 more about the subject of the taxability of wages, we have prepared a whole line of deposition questions on the subject useful
21 in an IRS audit or deposition that basically backs the government into the corner of admitting based on facts and evidence
22 and their own words that wages of natural persons and not corporations cannot be taxable. It is at:

23 Look under section 2 of the questions entitled "Right to Labor" for some rather compelling evidence showing that what we 24 are saying here is true.

26 5.4.13 The word "shall" in the tax code actually means "may"

27 Many people who read the tax code are deceived by the word "shall". When they see that word, they assume it creates a
28 mandatory obligation on their part to obey. In this section, we will explore further exactly what this important word means
29 from a legal perspective to show that it really means "may". This conclusion then reinforces our hypothesis that the Internal 30 Revenue Code, Subtitle A is indeed completely "voluntary".

31 The first place to check on how the word "shall" is being used in the Code, starts with where all construction begins, that is,
32 within the statute itself. The word 'shall' is not defined in the Code. The next step would be to see, or how, in general, is the 33 word 'shall' defined by the courts. There are very few judicial precedents that deal directly with on the definition of this
34 important word, but we will review what we have found so far to conclusively prove the hypothesis of this section.

35 In Fort Howard Paper Company v. Fox River Heights Sanitary District, 26 N.W.2nd. 661, the court defined the word 'shall'
36 in the following way:

37 "The word 'shall' in a statute may be construed to mean may, particularly in order to avoid a constitutional 38 doubt."

39 The court in Gow v. Consolidated Coopermines Corp, 165 Atl. 136, defined it this way:

"If necessary, to avoid unconstitutionality of a statute, 'shall' will be deemed as equivalent to 'may'."

George Williams College v. Village of William Bay, 7 N.W.2d. 6, is another case that defined the word 'shall' as 'may' as well. Here is what they said:

"'Shall' in a statute may be construed to mean 'may' in order to avoid constitutional doubt."

Here is another one. Ballou v. Kemp, 92 F.2d. 556:

"The word 'shall' in a statute may be construed as 'may' where the connection in which it is used or the relation to which it is put with other parts of the same statute indicates that the legislature intended that it should receive such a construction."

The reasonable but uniformed or misinformed man, when reading the statutes might "assume" and say "THE WORD SHALL MEANS MUST". On the contrary, the word "shall" means "may" - so there is no constitutional contradiction with the legislative statutes. Furthermore, as you can see from the above judicial citation, notice how each case is a "lower court". It is either an appellate case or some state supreme Court giving the citation. Ladies and gentlemen - of course, the best is for last. Our united States supreme Court HAS EVEN STATED that the word "shall" means "may"!!! Take a look at what the supreme Court case in Cairo and Fulton Railroad Company v. Hect, 92 U.S. 170, stated within its decision:

"As against the government the word 'shall' when used in statutes is to be construed as 'may', unless a contrary intention is manifest."
[Cairo and Fulton Railroad Company v. Hect, 92 U.S. 170]

The reasonable question is - Has the word "shall" been defined otherwise in the Internal Revenue Code as to mean "must"? The answer is NO, therefore the logic is simple: There is no CONTRARY INTENTION that is manifest within the Internal Revenue Code! This is another argument on why we can DISCURSIVELY prove that the Internal Revenue Code is voluntary - it is because each time the word "shall" is used within a statute that which applies to alleged "people", the word "shall" means "may" and when something is a "may" or "perhaps" then we can say SUCH ACTION IS VOLUNTARY.

5.4.14 Constitutional Due Process Rights in the Context of Income Taxes

26 C.F.R. §601.106

(1) Rule 1.

An exaction by the U.S. Government, which is not based upon law, statutory or otherwise, is a taking of property without due process of law, in violation of the Fifth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution. Accordingly, an Appeals representative in his or her conclusions of fact or application of the law, shall hew to the law and the recognized standards of legal construction. It shall be his or her duty to determine the correct amount of the tax, with striction impartiality as between the taxpayer and the Government, and without favoritism or discrimination between taxpayers." (4-1-96 Edition)

As we described earlier in section 3.11.8.3, the Fifth Amendment guarantees that we shall NOT be deprived of our property without due process of law.

No person shall be held to answer for a capital, or otherwise infamous crime, unless on a presentment or indictment of a Grand Jury, except in cases arising in the land or naval forces, or in the Militia, when in actual service in time of War or public danger; nor shall any person be subject for the same offence to be twice put in jeopardy of life or limb; nor shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself, nor be deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor shall private property be taken for public use, without just compensation.
[Fifth Amendment, Emphasis added]

In most cases, due process of law means a judicial trial and a resulting warrant issued by the court. The U.S. supreme court in Hale v. Henkel, 201 U.S. 43 (1906) clearly reveals the need for a warrant:

"...we are of the opinion that there is a clear distinction in this particular between an individual and a corporation, and that the latter has no right to refuse to submit its books and papers for an examination at the suit of the state. The individual may stand upon his constitutional rights as a citizen. He is entitled to carry on his private business in his own way. His power to contract is unlimited. He owes no duty to the state [including the payment of income taxes] or to his neighbors to divulge his business, or to open his doors to an investigation

[by filling out a tax return, for instance], so far as it may tend to criminate him. He owes no such duty to the state, since he receives nothing therefrom, beyond the protection of his life and property. His rights are such as existed by the law of the land long antecedent to the organization of the state, and can only be taken from him by due process of law, and in accordance with the Constitution. Among his rights are a refusal to incriminate himself, and the immunity of himself and his property from arrest or seizure except under a warrant of the law. He owes nothing to the public so long as he does not trespass upon their rights.

Upon the other hand, the corporation is a creature of the state. It is presumed to be incorporated for the benefit of the public. It receives certain special privileges and franchises, and holds them subject to the laws of the state and the limitations of its charter. Its powers are limited by law. It can make no contract not authorized by its charter. Its rights to [201 U.S. 43, 75] act as a corporation are only preserved to it so long as it obeys the laws of its creation. There is a reserved right in the legislature to investigate its contracts and find out whether it has exceeded its powers. It would be a strange anomaly to hold that a state, having chartered a corporation to make use of certain franchises, could not, in the exercise of its sovereignty, inquire how these franchises had been employed, and whether they had been abused, and demand the production of the corporate books and papers for that purpose. The defense amounts to this: That an officer of a corporation which is charged with a criminal violation of the statute, may plead the criminality of such corporation as a refusal to produce its books. To state this proposition is to answer it. While an individual may lawfully refuse to answer incriminating questions unless protected by an immunity statute, it does not follow that a corporation, vested with special privileges and franchises, may refuse to show its hand when charged with an abuse of such privileges. “
[Hale v. Henkel, 201 U.S. 43 (1906)]

Note that it says

“Among his rights are a refusal to incriminate himself, and the immunity of himself and his property from arrest or seizure except under a warrant of the law”.

This is what “due process of law” is all about. The IRS routinely violates this legal requirement by issuing “Levies”, Notice of levies”, “Notice of liens”, and “Liens” that are NOT issued by a judicial trial and have no basis in law whatsoever for a legal duty or legal liability. For such cases, the collection agent responsible for doing this can be held personally liable for his tort (injurious act). We describe how to do this later in Chapter 3 of the Tax Fraud Prevention Manual, Form #06.008.

Returning again to our Henkel cite above, I have a simple question for the IRS. When the Supreme Court says:

“He owes nothing to the public so long as he does not trespass upon their rights.”

The question for the government and the IRS then becomes:

“What part of NOTHING do you not understand?”

The answer to this question, or in the case of the IRS, its repeated and chronic failure to answer, is the heart of the hypocrisy, arrogance, fraud, and evil avarice that perpetuates the tyranny we all live under to this day in the context of the federal and state income tax.

5.4.14.1 What is Due Process of Law?

The Fifth Amendment establishes that the government can't take our property without just compensation and without a court trial. The mere existence of such a right is evidence that the payment of federal income taxes cannot be anything other than voluntary and the deduction from our pay of these federal donations must be instituted voluntarily and without compulsion. That is why we have to fill out an IRS Form W-4 to institute withholding and why our private (not federal) employer can't lawfully deduct taxes from our earnings from labor if we don't authorize it. But the question arises, what is “due process of law”? Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, page 500 defines “due process of law” as follows:

Due process of law. Law in its regular course of administration through courts of justice. Due process of law in each particular case means such an exercise of the powers of the government as the settled maxims of law permit and sanction, and under such safeguards for the protection of individual rights as those maxims prescribe for the class of cases to which the one in question belongs. A course of legal proceedings according to those rules and principles which have been established in our systems of jurisprudence for the enforcement and protection of private rights. To give such proceedings any validity, there must be a tribunal competent by its constitution—that is, by the law of the creation—to pass upon the subject-matter of the suit; and, if that involves merely a determination of the personal liability of the defendant, he must be brought within its jurisdiction by service of process within the state, or his voluntary appearance. Pennoy v. Neff, 95 U.S. 714, 24 L.Ed. 565. Due process of law implies the right of the person affected thereby to be present before the tribunal which pronounces judgment upon the question of life, liberty, or property, in its most comprehensive sense; to be heard, by testimony or otherwise, and to have the right of controverting, by proof, every material fact which bears on the question of right in the matter involved. If any question of fact or liability be conclusively be presumed [rather than proven] against him, this is not due process of law.

An orderly proceeding wherein a person with notice, actual or constructive, and has an opportunity to be heard and to enforce and protect his rights before a court having the power to hear and determine the case. Kazubowski v. Kazubowski, 45 Ill.2d. 405, 259 N.E.2d. 282, 290. Phrase means that no person shall be deprived of life, liberty, property or of any right granted him by statute, unless matter involved first shall have been adjudicated against him upon trial conducted according to established rules regulating judicial proceedings, and it forbids condemnation without a hearing. Pettit v. Penn., LaApp., 180 So.2d. 66, 69. The concept of "due process of law" as it is embodied in the Fifth Amendment demands that a law shall not be unreasonable, arbitrary, or capricious and that the means selected shall have a reasonable and substantial relation to the object being sought. U.S. v. Smith, D.C.Iowa, 249 F.Supp. 515, 516. Fundamental requisite of "due process of law" is the opportunity to be heard, to be aware that a matter is pending, to make an informed choice whether to acquiesce or contest, and to assert before the appropriate decision-making body the reasons for such choice. Trinity Episcopal Corp. v. Romney, D.C.N.Y., 387 F.Supp. 1044, 1084. Aside from all else, "due process" means fundamental fairness and substantial justice. Vaughn v. State, 3 Tenn.Crim.App. 54, 456 S.W.2d. 879, 883.

Embodied in the due process concept are the basic rights of a defendant in criminal proceedings and the requisites for a fair trial. These rights and requirements have been expanded by Supreme Court decisions and include, timely notice of a hearing or trial which informs the accused of the charges against him or her; the opportunity to confront accusers and to present evidence on one's own behalf before an impartial jury or judge; the presumption of innocence under which guilt must be proven by legally obtained evidence and the verdict must be supported by the evidence presented; rights at the earliest stage of the criminal process; and the guarantee that an individual will not be tried more than once for the same offense (double jeopardy).

Note above that the existence of any kind of "presumption of liability" implies the absence of due process! This is very important because when Americans are hauled into court on criminal or civil tax charges, the government tries to use false or unsubstantiated presumptions of liability to convict nonfilers and "nontaxpayers" of "willful failure to file" under 26 U.S.C. §7203, for instance, in direct violation of the due process rights of the accused. Judges will also routinely violate the defendant's due process rights by refusing to admit any evidence prejudicial to the government regarding the lack of any liability statute for Subtitle A federal income taxes.

The U.S. supreme Court says the following about "due process of law":

"A fundamental requisite of due process of law is the opportunity to be heard."

But guess what?: federal judges violate this requirement of due process all the time as follows:

1. They will not allow the citizen litigant to take all the time he needs to properly present his case, which gives the jury an incomplete at best and downright wrong understanding of the facts and evidence. They will repeatedly disrupt and interrupt him. This is called "crazy-making" and it's a sinister verbal abuse tactic to discredit and interfere with people's train of thought and the logical and ethical presentation of their materials. They want to get you in a reactive mode so you look dogmatic and abusive. That way the jury can throw the book at you!
2. They will not allow evidence against the government to be admitted into evidence so that the jury can't see the whole picture. This is generally done by granting a motion in limine by the U.S. attorney prior to trial granting the government's request to suppress your evidence.
3. They will grant a motion by the U.S. attorney against you to strike your pleadings, so you have absolutely nothing left to argue. The most frequent reason for doing this is because they will say your arguments are "frivolous" and they will do this even if they indeed are not frivolous. They also do not even need to substantiate why they are frivolous or even what their definition of frivolous is, because the main goal is censorship of your free speech and keeping their friends and the IRS federal mafia employed and rich with your cash so they can pay judicial salaries and give the judge his next pay raise.
4. They filter and censor the proposed jury instructions submitted by the citizen litigant so the jury can't hear the truth that you want to communicate to them in violation of your First Amendment rights.
5. They make pleadings, dockets, and their own rulings unpublished so that no one can even find out what you said in your pleadings against the government. They might even seal the court record if your case has some really compelling arguments or evidence against the government, and they don't even have to explain why they are doing this or obtain anyone's permission to do it! See section 2.8.13.8 for further details on this scandal.

6. They issue protective orders to interfere with your discovery of the truth and with your communicating that discovery to the jury or tribunal hearing your case. This also keeps evidence of government and judicial wrongdoing out of the court record, which is the number one goal of most corrupt federal judges. See section 2.8.13.5 for further details on this scandal.

Do you still think that we don't live in a communist or socialist country? This is a police state and our government is at war against our God-given rights! Sit in any federal courtroom during one of your vacations and listen to a few tax trials as we have and please tell us we are wrong!

Another key thing to consider is that the purpose of "due process of law" is to protect individual rights deriving from the Bill of Rights. However, 28 U.S.C. §2201 specifically says that federal courts may not rule on rights in the context of federal tax cases, which ought to be a clue that the Internal Revenue Code subtitles A and C only apply where the Bill of Rights does not apply, and this can only be in the federal zone and abroad as we pointed out in section 4.8 earlier. Even if the case is being heard in an Article III (of the Constitution) court such as a District Court, in the context of federal taxes, these courts are actually performing an Article I function because of the above statute preventing them from ruling on rights. There is no other conclusion a reasonable person could reach on this matter.

5.4.14.2 Violation of Due Process using "Presumptions"

As we said in the previous section, anything that involves presumption of liability is a violation of the Fifth Amendment due process of law. The purpose of a presumption is therefore to shift the burden of proof from the government to the sovereign Americans so that the rights of that citizen are prejudiced by the law. Where a presumption exists, the burden of proof rests squarely on us as defenders of our rights to rebut such a presumption:

"presumption. For example, a criminal defendant is presumed to be innocent until the prosecuting attorney proves beyond a reasonable doubt that she is guilty. Presumptions are used to relieve a party from having to actually prove the truth of the fact being presumed. Once one party relies on a presumption, however, the other party is normally allowed to offer evidence to disprove (rebut) the presumption. The presumption is known as a rebuttable presumption. In essence, then, what a presumption really does is place the obligation of presenting evidence concerning a particular fact on a particular party."
[See <http://www.lectlaw.com/def2/p149.htm>]

The mere existence of presumption clearly violates a well established principle of the U.S. supreme Court, which states:

"Keeping in mind the well-settled rule that the citizen is exempt from taxation unless the same is imposed by clear and unequivocal language, and that where the construction of a tax law is doubtful, the doubt is to be resolved in favor of those upon whom the tax is sought to be laid."
[Spreckels Sugar Refining Co. v. McClain, 192 U.S. 397 (1904)]

Presumptions can also be used to violate a canon of American criminal jurisprudence, which says that we are innocent until proven guilty. In America, all persons accused of a crime are legally presumed to be innocent until they are convicted, either in a trial or as a result of pleading guilty. This presumption means not only that the prosecutor must convince the jury of the defendant's guilt, but also that the defendant need not say or do anything in his own defense. If the prosecutor can't convince the jury that the defendant is guilty using evidence and testimony other than his own (attorneys aren't allowed to be witnesses), the defendant goes free. The presumption of innocence, coupled with the fact that the prosecutor must prove the defendant's guilt beyond a reasonable doubt, makes it difficult for the government to put people behind bars.

But with sneaky statutes that are not positive law such as the Internal Revenue Code, the government can prejudice the case of the criminally accused by creating presumptions about the evidence or lack thereof. For instance, our greedy legislators can and often do write regulations and statutes that violate due process of law in the hopes that it will slip by an ignorant judge or jury so they make you into a "taxpayer" or a statutory "U.S. citizen" by false presumption and thereby pick your pocket and extort money out of you in clear violation of the RICO statute, 18 U.S.C. §255. Let's look at an example to show what we mean:

26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1\(g\)

(g) Special rules for taxpayer identifying numbers issued to foreign persons—

(1) General rule—

(i) Social security number. A social security number is generally identified in the records and database of the Internal Revenue Service as a number belonging to a U.S. citizen or resident alien individual. A person may establish a different status for the number by providing proof of foreign status with the Internal Revenue Service under such procedures as the Internal Revenue Service shall prescribe, including the use of a form as the Internal Revenue Service may specify. Upon accepting an individual as a nonresident alien individual, the Internal Revenue Service will assign this status to the individual's social security number.

Above, a presumption is created by law which leads one to incorrectly conclude that if you have a Social Security Number, then you must be a statutory “U.S. citizen” under 8 U.S.C. §1401 or “resident alien” of the federal United States under 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A). But we will establish later in section 5.6.13 that “nationals” living outside the federal United States are non-resident non-persons can also have Social Security Numbers. We also established earlier in section 5.3.4 that most Americans are “nationals”. If the above regulation were just and truthful, it would establish the opposite presumption, which is that a person who has an SSN is a nonresident alien unless the government can provide evidence to the contrary. This would be the only way to meet the intent of the above supreme Court ruling in Spreckels and the “innocent until proven guilty” principle, whereby all doubt is in favor of the person against whom a tax is to be laid. If we aren’t aware of the above presumption by the government, then when we go into court to litigate our rights, we will not meet the burden of proof to establish our correct status and incorrectly be assumed to be a statutory “U.S. person” who is “completely subject to the jurisdiction of the United States” as we pointed out in section 4.11. Here is what one court said when one sovereign American failed to rebut the presumption that he was a statutory “U.S. citizen” with the necessary evidence:

Defendant's protestations to effect that he derived no benefit from United States government had no bearing on his legal obligation to pay income taxes; unless he could establish that he was not a [statutory] citizen of the United States [under 8 U.S.C. §1401], IRS possessed authority to attempt to determine his federal tax liability.
U.S.C.A. Const. Art. 1, Sec. 8, Cl. 1; Amend. 16; 26 U.S.C.A. Sec. 1. [!]
[United States v. Slater, 545 F.Supp. 179 (1982)] [emphasis added]

See what we mean? This is important stuff, folks, and that is why we tell you in section 4.5.3.13 of the Sovereignty Forms and Instructions Manual, Form #10.005 that THE MOST IMPORTANT THING YOU CAN DO is amend or correct the governments records relating to your citizenship status so you that they properly reflect your correct status as a “national” in order to prevent incorrect government presumptions about your citizenship that might inadvertently make you responsible to pay a tax you don’t owe. That way you will have admissible evidence you can present in court of your status as a “non-resident non-person” with no tax liability!

Another very common presumption you will have to overcome in court and in your dealings with the IRS is the presumption that you are a “taxpayer”, who is a person who is liable for Subtitle A federal income taxes. You won’t read any statute or regulation anywhere that creates a presumption that you are a “taxpayer” but this myth is so firmly planted in the minds of most Americans by our government-run educational system and the media that it can be very difficult to overcome and MUST be overcome if you are going to win in court against the IRS. Below are some of the facts relating to the status of being a “taxpayer” that will be extremely helpful in assisting you to overcome the presumption and meet the burden of proof that you are a “nontaxpayer”:

1. We showed in section 1.5 that the only place the word “liable” is used in Subtitle A is in the context of withholding agents for nonresident aliens, and this regulation made the withholding agent responsible to pay the taxes he deducts from the pay of people who volunteer to pay the federal income tax. This withholding agent is none other than the federal government itself, and of course the federal government has jurisdiction over its own employees!
2. We will show later in section 5.6.1 that there is no statute that makes anyone liable for Subtitle A income taxes.
3. We show you the court’s interpretation of the word “taxpayer” and “nontaxpayer” in section 5.3.1.
4. In section 5.4.27 we will show that most persons are not liable to file returns.
5. In section 5.6 and following we will show that most persons are not liable to pay income taxes.
6. It is shown in section 4.5.2.6 of the Sovereignty Forms and Instructions Manual, Form #10.005 that it is extremely important for you to watch your language when communicating with the government to remove the word “taxpayer” from your vocabulary and to contradict the presumption that you are one whenever you hear government employees using that word.

Understanding the above information is extremely important and will give you the ammunition you will need to fight this unreasonable presumption by the average American that you are a “taxpayer”.

Another very important aspect of the presumed use of the word “taxpayer” is that you need to be very careful when you are reading government statutes and regulations about the use of that word. We did a search on the U.S.C. and found that the word "taxpayer" is used no less than 479 times in all of title 26, which is the income tax Title! Whenever the code uses that word, you should assume they aren't referring to you! Below is just one example from the Internal Revenue Manual:

*Internal Revenue Manual (I.R.M.), Section 35.18.9.1 (08-31-1982)
Taxpayers*

1. It has been uniformly held that the waiver of sovereign immunity in section 1346(a)(1) of the Judiciary Code (28 U.S.C. §1346(a)(1)) only applies to taxpayers, and not nontaxpayers or interested parties. Busse v. United States, 542 F.2d. 421 (7th Cir. 1076); Hofheinz v. United States, 511 F.2d. 661 (5th Cir. 1975); Eighth Street Baptist Church v. United States, 431 F.2d. 1193 (10th Cir. 1970); Phillips v. United States, 346 F.2d. 999 (2d Cir. 1965); First Nat'l Bank of Emlenton v. United States, 165 F.2d. 297 (3rd Cir. 1959). Accordingly, where a party not liable for the tax has brought a refund suit, a motion to dismiss should be recommended.

So what the above cite from the Internal Revenue Manual is saying is that the government, that is the "state", can assert a sovereign immunity if you are a "nontaxpayer" who is suing the government for a refund. However, such a waiver does not apply to employees of the government who performed illegal collection or assessment of income taxes, who it is said in section 4.5.5.12 of the Sovereignty Forms and Instructions Manual, Form #10.005 can be prosecuted under a Bivens action for their injurious actions not authorized by law. Keep in mind that the above citation is NOT the law, and the courts can't enforce it. The Internal Revenue Manual, or IRM, is simply an internal directive used only within the IRS to govern its employees and is not binding on sovereign Americans because it is not published in the Federal Register.

5.4.14.3 Substantive Rights and Essentials of Due Process Background

What is a "substantive due process right?"

The Sixth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States establishes several "substantive" or constitutionally-secured due process rights within federal jurisdiction inside the 50 Union states and outside the federal zone. This right can be broken down into three components:

1. The right to know the nature and cause of action against you
2. The right to confront adverse witnesses
3. The right to compel testimony by whoever has relevant knowledge.

The Fourth, Fifth and Sixth Amendments secure due process in the course of the common law. This, too, is a substantive right, with one of the more important distinctions between due process in the course of the common law and due process in the course of the civil law being that an case or controversy must clearly set out fact and law.

Bills of rights in our respective state constitutions secure corresponding rights within state jurisdiction, including rights to access to courts and redress of wrongs. All states other than Louisiana are common law states. Louisiana implemented the civil law system. Insular possessions of the United States also retained civil law process.

Government, government agencies, and corporations are creatures of law. Collectively they are known as "juristic" entities. As creatures of law, they may exercise only powers specifically enumerated to them by the Constitution, the statutes which implement the powers granted by the Constitution, and the regulations which implement the statutes. Where government departments and agencies are concerned, the scope of authority and procedure are detailed in statutes, regulations and intra-departmental policy. Officers, employees and agents of governmental entities must act within procedural bounds prescribed by statutes and the regulations they implement as well as published policy for that agency. In a manner of speaking, procedural requirements prescribed for the governmental agency secures public rights. If and when government personnel fail to comply with procedural mandates and prohibitions, they become personally liable to whoever is the object of their actions, they are subject to agency discipline, and in the event of knowing and willful abuse, may be criminally prosecuted.

Supreme courts of the United States and our respective states have articulated government personnel accountability principles time and again, but there has been a tendency for government prosecutors not to prosecute government personnel, particularly in tax agencies, when they've exceeded authority. The problem has caused enough furor that via the Internal Revenue Service restructuring and reform act of 1998, Congress enacted a new Internal Revenue Code section that specifically makes IRS personnel accountable to the Internal Revenue Code, Treasury regulations, and published policy, i.e., the Internal Revenue Manual, added a new administrative discipline section, and created the office of Treasury Inspector General for Tax Administration to investigate complaints against IRS personnel.

1 Another aspect of dealing with government is that government always has the burden of proof either in civil or criminal
2 forums and at both administrative and judicial levels. In the new Internal Revenue Code section 7491, Congress spelled this
3 out, too, by specifying that when a Citizen (notice we didn't say "taxpayer") presents credible evidence of non-liability for 4 Subtitle A & B taxes, the Secretary, i.e., IRS bears the burden of proof.

5 Treasury regulations in Title 31 of the Code of Federal Regulations spell out the right to discovery in dealings with Internal
6 Revenue Service personnel. Per § 2 of 31 C.F.R. Part 1, Appendix B of Subpart C, whoever has dealings with IRS is entitled
7 to whatever evidence of liability the Service has in its systems of records:

8 "Internal Revenue Service procedures permit the examination of tax records during the course of an investigation,
9 audit, or collection activity. Accordingly, individuals should contact the Internal Revenue Service employee
10 conducting an audit or effecting the collection of tax liabilities to gain access to such records, rather than seeking 11 access under the provisions of the Privacy Act."

12 With these basics, we can set out minimum requirements for administrative or judicial liability:

- 13 1. The government agency must have evidence of one sort or another to establish fact.
- 14 2. There must be a competent witness with first-hand knowledge of facts to verify the evidence.
- 15 3. The advocate must prove application of law to verified facts.

16 By utilizing discovery, the target of government initiatives can force disclosure in the context of Sixth Amendment rights.
17 Substantive rights do not begin at the courthouse door. They are ever-present in all dealings with government agencies and
18 personnel. Where tax issues are concerned, knowing the nature and cause of action includes forcing the tax agency, via the 19 revenue officer or whoever the target is dealing with, to disclose taxing and liability statutes, and disclosing whatever
20 competent witness there is. Where authority is concerned, i.e., subject matter jurisdiction, the agency or agent has the burden
21 of proof when authority is challenged and when procedure is challenged.

22 Does a government agency have authority, i.e., statutory or delegated authority, to do whatever it is attempting to do, then is 23 the agency complying with procedural mandates? Where an agency doesn't have statutory or delegated authority over the 24 "subject matter", any action by that agency is unlawful and void, and where the agency doesn't comply with procedural
25 mandates, it loses subject matter jurisdiction. Unless a procedurally proper assessment has been executed, there is no tax
26 liability. Various secondary reports may constitute presumptive evidence that an assessment has been made, but only the 27 assessment certificate constitutes conclusive evidence. The actual assessment certificate, or a verified copy, qualifies as self-
28 authenticating evidence.

29 What does a witness do? He testifies to facts he has first-hand knowledge of. Testimony may be in one of three forms: By 30 affidavit (a sworn statement of fact), deposition (sworn testimony outside the court setting in the presence of plaintiff and 31 defendant or their respective representatives), or direct oral examination in open court. The adverse party in all cases has the 32 right to cross-examine the witness. This is fundamental to our adversarial system.

33 Without a competent witness, any administrative ruling or court judgment is void and can be vacated at any time without 34 time limitation.

35 If and when a government agency or officer fails to disclose the nature and cause of action, evidence of liability, and whatever
36 witnesses will verify facts, the controversy shifts from the original issue to the substantive rights the agency or agent may be
37 depriving the target of. In the event a defendant's constitutionally secured rights are abridged, the agency or court loses subject
38 matter jurisdiction regardless of whatever liability the defendant might otherwise have. Government agents and agencies must 39 proceed in whatever A > B > C sequence the law prescribes, they cannot jump from A to C unless the law authorizes 40 elimination of B.

41 One person filed claims for refunds from the Internal Revenue Service based on the gross income "source" position (26 C.F.R.
42 §1.861-8(f)(1)(vi)). It took ten months, but a revenue officer finally denied the claim. According to his investigation, the 43 revenue agent claimed, the company is liable for Social Security and employment taxes (Subtitle C, Chapters 21 & 24).
44 However, the agent didn't specify fact nor did he disclose what testimony his decision was based on. He certainly didn't prove 45 application of law.

1 This is one of the few instances I've seen where IRS personnel have disclosed the "nature and cause" of the action, i.e., the
2 specific tax at issue. However, his disclosure presents a few problems that afford the opportunity to challenge subject matter
3 jurisdiction in addition to procedure particulars.

4 The social welfare taxes in Chapters 21-23 and government personnel tax in Chapter 24 or the Internal Revenue Code are
5 collectively classified as employment taxes, which is a classification distinct from Subtitle A & B income taxes. The Internal
6 Revenue Service serves as delegate of the Secretary for administration of Chapter 1, 2 & 21 taxes in insular possessions (See
7 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(12)(B)), and administers Subtitle A & B taxes in the several States (See 26 U.S.C. §7491, added by the
8 1998 act), but the Treasury Financial Management Service and the General Accounting Office have primary responsibility
9 for administration and enforcement of Chapter 21 & 24 employment taxes in States of the Union. The Internal Revenue
10 Service merely maintains records, provides accounting services, and distributes information, it does not have direct
11 administrative enforcement authority, particularly for Chapter 24 government personnel tax.

12 The Financial Management Service must notify and train government agencies responsible for withholding at the source, and 13 issue Form 8655 Reporting Agent Authorization certificates to whatever agency is required to withhold at the source. (See 14 Internal Revenue Manual §3.0.258.4 (11/21/97), January 1999 edition)

15 Tax freedom fighters should submit into their administrative record an affidavit addressing the extent of their liability for 16 normal tax and other species of income in Subtitles A & B, employment taxes in Subtitle C, and assorted taxes in Subtitles
17 D & E and Title 19. The affidavit should include statements that they have never been contacted by the Treasury Financial 18 Management Service and has never received a Form 8655 Reporting Agent Authorization certificate.

19 By submitting the disclosure affidavit into their IRS administrative record, tax freedom fighters can enter testimony
20 concerning their financial circumstance into record. In order to overcome the affidavit, the government adverse party must 21 (1) disprove stated fact or prove alternative fact, then (2) prove application of law to stated or alternative facts. In addition to
22 these requirements, in this case the Internal Revenue Service must prove subject matter jurisdiction by citing and/or providing 23 properly executed delegations of authority that vest the agency with authority to administer Subtitle C employment taxes in 24 States of the Union.

25 "My research verifies that your company is liable for" any given tax isn't sufficient. When challenged, IRS and other
26 government personnel must prove authority and liability within the framework of and to the satisfaction of constitutionally 27 secured due process rights. In this particular case, the agent must

- 28 1) Provide verified copies of whatever documentary evidence he has.
- 29 2) Provide copies of whatever affidavits he has.
- 30 3) Disclose whatever other fact witnesses he is relying on.
- 31 4) Provide a list of prospective witnesses.
- 32 5) Prove application of law to whatever facts he is relying on, and
- 33 6) Prove subject matter jurisdiction.
- 34 7) Rebut any affidavits submitted by an accused party with more authoritative evidence.

35 It is important to understand that government personnel, particularly tax agency personnel, for the most part rely on 36 documents prepared by third parties. They are rarely if ever competent witnesses with first-hand knowledge of facts. Further,
37 the various documents they work from are for the most part "hearsay evidence" and declarations, not affidavits, as there are
38 seldom signatures on these documents and they rarely if ever verified by notary publics or the number of witnesses required
39 by common law standards. Consequently, third parties who submit documents are technically prospective witnesses, they 40 have not submitted testimony as such that can be admitted into evidence in a court of law.

41 Somewhat the same disclosure is required for most criminal investigations where the government is the alleged victim due
42 to someone failing to comply with or doing something prohibited by statute other than what are classified as common law
43 crimes. For example, 26 C.F.R. §601.107 generally secures rights of those being investigated for offenses relating to income,
44 estate, gift, employment, and certain excise taxes. General disclosure requirements are outlined where there is a conference
45 with the Chief of the Criminal Investigation Division of any given district at 26 C.F.R. §601.107(b)(2):

46 26 C.F.R. §601.107(b)(2)

47 "At the conference, the IRS representative will inform the taxpayer by a general oral statement of the alleged 48 fraudulent features of the case, to the extent consistent with protecting the Government's interests, and, at the

1 same time, making available to the taxpayer sufficient facts and figures to acquaint him with the basis, nature,
2 and other essential elements of the proposed criminal charges against him."

3 As researchers and advocates increasingly master due process essentials and continue to unravel proper application of law,
4 administrative and judicial remedies will become considerably more reliable and government encroachment in general can
5 be pushed back. Procedure is particularly important.

6 5.4.14.4 Due process principles and tax collection

7 Via the due process clauses of the 5th and 14th Amendments, both the state and federal governments must provide certain
8 fundamental procedures before life, liberty or property are taken. For those interested in this subject, reading the cases of ,
9 Sniadach v. Family Finance Corp., 395 U.S. 337 (1969), 89 S.Ct. 1820 (1969), Fuentes v. Shevin, 407 U.S. 67, 92 S.Ct. 1983
10 (1972), and North Georgia Finishing, Inc. v. Di-Chem Inc., 419 U.S. 601, 95 S.Ct. 719 (1975), are important in understanding
11 the views of the Supreme Court regarding the due process procedures to which the states are bound. However, one cannot 12 ignore the fact that there are two different due process standards; one standards is applicable to us and the states under the 13 14th Amendment, and quite another exists for Uncle Sam under the Fifth Amendment.

14 There is a popular position of late, Goldberg v. Kelly, 397 U.S. 254, 90 S.Ct. 1011 (1970), that is the "key" due process case
15 regarding the collection of taxes. If you wish to understand principles of due process in reference to tax matters, the cases of 16 , Phillips v. Commissioner of Internal Revenue, 283 U.S. 589 (1931), 51 S.Ct. 608 (1931), and , Commissioner v. Shapiro, 17 424 U.S. 614 (1976), 96 S.Ct. 1062 (1976), are the ones to be read.

18 5.4.15 IRS has NO Legal Authority to Assess You With an Income Tax Liability

19 "There is no worse tyranny than to force a man to pay for what he does not want merely because you think it 20 would be good for him."
21 [Robert Heinlein]

22 As per 26 U.S.C. §6201(a)(1), only the person paying the tax may make an assessment of tax liability on himself. The
23 Secretary of the Treasury may not make assessments of the liability of individuals under Subtitles A and C personal income
24 taxes. It is quite common for IRS agents to "estimate" the liability of a "taxpayer", especially as an intimidation mechanism
25 during an exam or audit. However, unless the "taxpayer" voluntarily signs the return forms presented by the agent authorizing 26 the assessment or settlement, the assessment is not valid. Without a valid assessment, collection activity cannot be 27 commenced!

28 Furthermore, under 26 C.F.R. §301.6211-1, either making no return or a return showing no tax amounts to a zero return. Any 29 amount imputed by the IRS to be owed above the amount on the return is referred to as a "deficiency" under that regulation.
30 However, 26 C.F.R. §301.6211-1 is based on the repealed 1939 Internal Revenue Code that is no longer in effect! If you
31 look at the bottom of this regulation, it cites NO statutory authority and therefore is NOT a legislative regulation and cannot 32 be enforced by the courts! To confirm this conclusion, this regulation also does NOT appear in the Parallel Table of 33 Authorities cross-referencing regulations to statutes. See section 5.4.16 for a look at the Parallel Table of Authorities. See 34 also:

35 http://www.access.gpo.gov/nara/cfr/parallel/parallel\_table.html

36 26 U.S.C. §6020 says the following about returns prepared by the Secretary of the Treasury:

37 Subtitle F - Procedure and Administration
38 CHAPTER 61 - INFORMATION AND RETURNS
39 Subchapter A - Returns and Records
40 PART II - TAX RETURNS OR STATEMENTS
41 Subpart D - Miscellaneous Provisions §6020 Returns prepared for or executed by Secretary

42 (a) Preparation of return by Secretary

43 If any person shall fail to make a return required by this title or by regulations prescribed thereunder, but shall
44 consent to disclose all information necessary for the preparation thereof, then, and in that case, the Secretary
45 may prepare such return, which, being signed by such person, may be received by the Secretary as the return of 46 such person.

1 So you can see that once again, the IRS and the Secretary of Treasury rely on the tax payer's self-assessment in order to
 2 establish a tax liability. Agents do not have delegated authority to prepare a tax form on behalf of an American without the
 3 signature of the person. This is clearly shown on their Pocket Commission (see Internal Revenue Manual (I.R.M.), Section
 4 [1.16.4] 3.1 through [1.16.4] 3.2). Their pocket commission must indicate that they have Enforcement commission (the last
 5 letter of the serial number of the pocket commission must be "E") in order to complete a 23C Assessment form, for instance,
 6 and none of the revenue officers associated with Subtitles A and C have such commissions. Revenue officer must also have
 7 a Delegation Order showing their authority specifically to sign the IRS Form 23C and/or the 1040. No revenue officers who
 8 administer Subtitles A and C have such delegation orders and are acting outside their lawful authority to sign such forms.
 9 You should demand a copy of their Delegation Order and their Pocket Commission if any agent tries to exceed their authority
 10 by signing a return for you or a 23C Assessment form.

11 If you argue with the revenue officer over their authority to assess you, they like to point to regulation 26 C.F.R. §301.6201-
 12 1, which is an explanatory but not implementing regulation for 26 U.S.C. §6201. They will try to say that this authorizes
 13 them to make an assessment, but this is simply false! This regulation simply reiterates what was found in 26 U.S.C. §6201
 14 and exists for informational purposes only:

15 [Code of Federal Regulations]
 16 [Title 26, Volume 17]
 17 [Revised as of April 1, 2001]
 18 From the U.S. Government Printing Office via GPO Access
 19 [CITE: 26CFR301.6201-1]
 20 Sec. 301.6201-1 Assessment authority.

21 (a) IN GENERAL.

22 The district director is authorized and required to make all inquiries necessary to the determination and
 23 assessment of all taxes imposed by the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 or any prior internal revenue law. The 24 district director is further authorized and required, and the director of the regional service center is authorized,
 25 to make the determinations and the assessments of such taxes. However, certain inquiries and determinations
 26 are, by direction of the Commissioner, made by other officials, such as assistant regional commissioners. The 27 term "taxes" includes interest, additional amounts, additions to the taxes, and assessable penalties. The authority
 28 of the district director and the director of the regional service center to make assessments includes the following:

29 (1) TAXES SHOWN ON RETURN. The district director or the director of the regional service center shall 30 assess all taxes determined by the taxpayer or by the district director or the director of the regional service
 31 center and disclosed on a return or list.
 32

33 (2) UNPAID TAXES PAYABLE BY STAMP.

34 (i) If without the use of the proper stamp:

35 (a) Any article upon which a tax is required to be paid by means of a stamp is sold or removed for 36 sale or use by the manufacturer thereof, or

37 (b) Any transaction or act upon which a tax is required to be paid by means of a stamp occurs; The 38 district director, upon such information as he can obtain, must estimate the amount of the tax which 39 has not been paid and the district director or the director of the regional service center must make 40 assessment therefor upon the person the district director determines to be liable for the tax. However,
 41 the district director or the director of the regional service center may not assess any tax which is 42 payable by stamp unless the taxpayer fails to pay such tax at the time and in the manner provided by 43 law or regulations.

44 (ii) If a taxpayer gives a check or money order as a payment for stamps but the check or money order is not
 45 paid upon presentment, then the district director or the director of the regional service center shall assess 46 the amount of the check or money order against the taxpayer as if it were a tax due at the time the check or 47 money order was received by the district director.

49 It's very important to realize that the above regulation is NOT an implementing regulation and does not apply the ability to
 50 assess a tax liability to income taxes in I.R.C., Subtitles A and C! It is simply an explanatory regulation. If the IRS had
 51 authority to assess Subtitle A personal income taxes under 26 U.S.C. §6201, then there would be an implementing regulation

1 number 26 C.F.R. §1.6201, which there is not! A statute cannot be applied to a particular tax until the Secretary of the
 2 Treasury writes an implementing regulation, and 26 C.F.R. §301.6201 does not implement or enforce Subtitle A income
 3 taxes.

4 The section above clearly shows that the only thing the district director can do is make assessments of taxes collected by
 5 stamp under 26 C.F.R. §301.6201-1(a)(2) but NOT personal income taxes coming under Subtitles A and C. Notice that this
 6 regulation does NOT give the revenue officer authority to estimate tax nor sign a return or list on behalf of a person, or it
 7 would have said so. Subtitles A and C personal income taxes must instead appear on a tax return, and the 1040, 2555, or
 8 1040NR are the only things that qualify as legitimate returns upon which to base an assessment of Subtitle A and C personal
 9 income taxes. 26 C.F.R. §301.6201-1(a)(1) says the taxes assessed by the district director MUST be “disclosed on a return
 10 or list”. Even the title says that: “TAXES SHOWN ON RETURN”. If the agent has no Delegation Order or delegated 11 authority to prepare such a return, then he is acting outside his lawful delegated authority and can be prosecuted for violation
 12 of 26 U.S.C. §7214! The Government Accountability Office (GAO) published a surprising audit report, report number
 13 GAO/GGD-00-60R on the IRS Substitute for Return program. This report confirms that Substitute For Returns are not really 14 returns! The report says, and I quote:

15 “[IRS] Customer Service Division official commented on the phrase ‘Substitute for Return.’ They asked us to 16 emphasize that even though the program is commonly referred to as the SFR program, no actual tax return is 17 prepared.”

18 You know what that means, folks? If the IRS doesn't prepare an actual return as required above in order to create a valid
 19 self-assessment, then they pull it out of their ass and then falsify their IDRS computer system IMF records by putting the 20 system in manual override mode and creating a bogus backdated and fraudulent assessment so they fall within the statutorily
 21 allowed date period. You can confirm this if you FOIA your complete unsanitized master file for the years in question. It's 22 financial terrorism and extortion, folks and these criminals should be locked up in jail and have the key thrown away for 23 doing it! Our politicians look the other way because they want your money so bad that they condone extortion to get it.
 24 Below is a direct link to the GAO report if you would like to read it for yourself on our website:

26 Furthermore, there are no regulations implementing 26 U.S.C. §6201 against the IRC Section 1 income tax. Therefore these 27 statutes cannot be applied against Subtitle A income taxes. If there were implementing regulations for personal income taxes,
 28 then the regulation number would have to be 26 C.F.R. §1.6201, and there is no such regulation:

29 “...the Act's civil and criminal penalties attach only upon violation of the regulation promulgated by the
 30 Secretary; if the Secretary were to do nothing, the Act itself would impose no penalties on anyone...The
 31 Government urges that since only those who violate these regulates (not the Code) may incur civil or criminal
 32 penalties, it is the actual regulation issued by the Secretary of the Treasury and not the broad authorizing 33 language of the statute, which is to be tested against the standards of the 4th Amendment.”
 34 [Calif. Bankers Assoc. v. Shultz, 416 U.S. 21, 44, 39 L.Ed.2d. 812, 94 S.Ct. 1494]

35 With these kinds of shenanigans going on, we need to ask ourselves:

36 “If the income tax isn't voluntary, then why don't they just assess us without our permission and send us a bill
 37 like they do with property taxes? Why do they need us to snitch on ourselves and send in a 'confession' called 38 a tax return if it's a mandatory 'tax'?”

39 The answer, once again, is that it is and always has been a voluntary tax, which is why the IRS has no authority to assess you
 40 and why only you can assess yourself! If all you ever put on your tax return is a zero, then you have no liability and no one
 41 other than a judge can determine otherwise. The IRS will try to scare you by sending a bogus Notice and Demand for tax,
 42 but they can't do this either, because the regulation they rely on, 26 C.F.R. §301.6303-1, to send it is not the law so they are
 43 acting outside their authority in doing so. This is confirmed by the absence of a reference at the bottom of the regulation
 44 pointing to an authorizing statute, which means the regulation is NOT a legislative regulation. Don't let the IRS scare you
 45 with a trick Notice and Demand for tax following an examination or with a bogus assessment, because they do not have the 46 authority to issue either.

47 5.4.16 IRS Has NO Legal Authority to Assess Penalties on Subtitles A and C Income Taxes on Natural Persons

1 "By the blessing of God, may our country become a vast and splendid monument, not of oppression and terror,
2 but of wisdom, of peace, and of liberty upon which the world may gaze with admiration forever."
3 [First Bunker Hill Oration, Daniel Webster [inscribed on a bronze plaque on the quarterdeck of the USS Bunker
4 Hill, CG-52]

5 The Congress and the 50 state governments are prohibited by the Constitution from imposing any kind of punishment or 6 penalty against natural persons without a judicial proceeding. This includes financial penalties associated with ensuring
7 compliance with the Internal Revenue Code. This requirement derives from the U.S. Constitution, which in Articles 1,
8 Section 9, Clause 3 prevents Congress from passing any kind of Bill of Attainder law. Likewise, Article 1, Section 10 applies
9 the same requirement to the 50 Union states. Below is the Constitutional restriction:

10 Article 1, Section 9, Clause 3: "No Bill of Attainder or ex post facto Law shall be passed." (with respect to the 11 U.S. Congress)

12 Article 1, Section 10, Clause 1: "No State shall enter into any Treaty, Alliance, or Confederation; grant Letters
13 of Marque and Reprisal; coin Money; emit Bills of Credit; make any Thing but gold and silver Coin a Tender in 14 Payment of Debts; pass any Bill of Attainder, ex post facto Law, or Law impairing the Obligation of Contracts,
15 or grant any Title of Nobility."

16 Below is the definition of a Bill of Attainder for your reference:

17 Bill of attainder: Legislative acts, no matter what their form, that apply either to named individuals or to easily
18 ascertainable members of a group in such a way as to inflict punishment on them without a judicial trial.
19 United States v. Brown, 381 U.S. 437, 448-49, 85 S.Ct. 1707, 1715, 14 L.Ed. 484, 492; United States v. Lovett, 20 328 U.S. 303, 315, 66 S.Ct. 1073, 1079, 90 L.Ed. 1252. An act is a "bill of attainder" when the punishment is 21 death and a "bill of pains and penalties" when the punishment is less severe; both kinds of punishment fall within 22 the scope of the constitutional prohibition. U.S.Const. Art. I, Sect 9, Cl. 3 (as to Congress); Art. I, Sec. 10 (as 23 to state legislatures).
24 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 165, Emphasis added]

25 The above restrictions form the basis of why the U.S. Congress and the states cannot write statutes and the executive branch
26 cannot write implementing regulations authorizing the IRS to impose financial penalties on natural persons for 27 noncompliance with Subtitle A income taxes absent a judicial trial, nor can they collect any penalties without a trial. The 28 following easily verifiable facts prove our point:

- 29 • That there is no implementing C.F.R. or Federal Register regulation providing IRS with the authority to assess any 30 kind of financial penalties, including late payment fees, frivolous return fees, etc.
- 31 • The definition of "person" found in Subtitle F also confirms that penalties may not be applied against natural 32 persons. In fact, all such penalties are only applicable to Title 27 taxes relating to Alcohol, Tobacco, and Firearms
33 against corporations under Subtitles D and E!

34 Whenever the government seeks to impose penalties for violations of the Internal Revenue Code, they have the burden of 35 proof to show that the person against whom the penalty is imposed is liable for the penalty:

36 "26 U.S.C. §6703

37 (a) BURDEN OF PROOF.—

38 In any proceeding involving the issue of whether or not any person is liable for a penalty under 6700, 6701, or 39 6702, the burden of proof with respect to such issue shall be on the Secretary."

40 Most IRS agents are made blissfully unaware of the above facts by their supervisors but they are nevertheless true. You will
41 never hear IRS admit to this, because it is their most important and most secret weapon against the vast majority of Americans,
42 who are natural persons. By way of example, below is the section right out of their own regulations found at the government's 43 own website at <http://frwebgate.access.gpo.gov/cgi-bin/getcfr.cgi?TITLE=26&PART=301&SECTION=6671-1&YEAR=2000&TYPE=TEXT> that describes the ONLY persons who can be assessed penalties related to I.R.C., Subtitle A 44 income taxes:
45

46 [Code of Federal Regulations]
47 [Title 26, Volume 17, Parts 300 to 499]
48 [Revised as of April 1, 2000]
49 From the U.S. Government Printing Office via GPO Access

1 [CITE: 26CFR301.6671-1]
 2 [Page 402]
 3 TITLE 26--INTERNAL REVENUE
 4 Additions to the Tax and Additional Amounts--Table of Contents
 5 Sec. 301.6671-1 Rules for application of assessable penalties.

 7 (b) Person defined. For purposes of subchapter B of chapter 68, the term "person" includes 8 an officer or employee of a corporation, or a member or 9 employee of a partnership, who as such officer, employee, or 10 member is under a duty to perform the act in respect of which 11 the violation occurs.

12 Even more interesting, is that the above not only doesn't apply to most Americans: It also doesn't apply to most corporations
 13 or partnerships either! Why?...because the corporations or partnerships mentioned above must be registered in the District
 14 of Columbia (the federal zone). State-(only) chartered corporations or partnerships that aren't involved in foreign commerce
 15 aren't liable for IRS penalties because they aren't within the territorial jurisdiction of the IRS either. Furthermore, the only
 16 type of employee who can be penalized is an employee of a U.S. corporation registered in the District of Columbia and who 17 is involved in reporting and complying with taxes for the corporation, and NOT for himself individually!

18 Now when the IRS hears this argument, they often try to say that the above definition of "person" uses the word "includes",
 19 which is an expansive rather than limiting term. Here is what they will quote, from 26 U.S.C. §7701(c) in making this 20 statement:

21 "Sec. 7701(c) INCLUDES AND INCLUDING. - The terms 'include' and 'including' when used in a definition
 22 contained in this title shall not be deemed to exclude other things otherwise within the meaning of the term
 23 defined."

24 The IRS will say that the phrase in 26 C.F.R. §301.6671-1 "includes an officer or employee of a corporation" does not exclude
 25 other uses of the term, like EVERYONE else or ALL Americans, because of the definition of the word "includes" found in 26 section 3.12.1.8 earlier. But we know from statements made in Congressional Research Service Report 97-59A that Subtitles
 27 A and C income taxes are excise taxes, and that the "persons" indicated in the above regulations are the only ones in receipt
 28 of privileges from the U.S. government. Expanding the operation of penalties beyond these legal fictions called "persons"
 29 makes the income tax operate effectively as a direct tax rather than an indirect tax, which is clearly unconstitutional if enforced
 30 outside of federal jurisdiction or within states of the Union.

31 We answer this issue on the abuse of the word "includes" and "including" by the IRS in sections 5.10.1 and 8.2.20. This is 32 a very common and unscrupulous tactic designed to confuse and intimidate Americans and illegally expand the jurisdiction
 33 of the taxing power of the federal government for Subtitle A income taxes beyond its clear limits found in the definition of 34 "United States" in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and "State" found in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(10).

35 Now let's talk about the requirement for implementing regulations. Pursuant to 44 U.S.C.A. §§1504-1507, before a national 36 domiciled in the union states of the United States of America can be bound by, or adversely effected by legislation or an "Act
 37 of Congress" having general applicability to such individuals, it must be published in the Federal Register.

38 5 U.S.C. §552\(a\): Public information; agency rules, opinions, orders, records, and proceedings

39 Except to the extent that a person has actual and timely notice of the terms thereof, a person may not in any 40 manner be required to resort to, or be adversely affected by, a matter required to be published in the Federal 41 Register and not so published. For the purpose of this paragraph, matter reasonably available to the class of 42 persons affected thereby is deemed published in the Federal Register when incorporated by reference therein
 43 with the approval of the Director of the Federal Register.
 44

45 26 C.F.R. §601.702 Publication and public inspection

46 (a)(2)(ii) Effect of failure to publish.

1 Except to the extent that a person has actual and timely notice of the terms of any matter referred to in
 2 subparagraph (1) of this paragraph which is required to be published in the Federal Register, such person is not
 3 required in any manner to resort to, or be adversely affected by, such matter if it is not so published or is not
 4 incorporated by reference therein pursuant to subdivision (i) of this subparagraph. Thus, for example, any
 5 such matter which imposes an obligation and which is not so published or incorporated by reference will not
 6 adversely change or affect a person's rights.

7 There are three and only three exceptions to the requirement of publication in the Federal Register of all implementing 8 regulations, which are:

- 9 1. A military or foreign affairs function of the United States. 5 U.S.C. §553(a)(1) .
- 10 2. A matter relating to agency management or personnel or to public property, loans, grants, benefits, or contracts. 5 U.S.C.
 11 §553(a)(2) .
- 12 3. Federal agencies or persons in their capacity as officers, agents, or employees thereof. 44 U.S.C. §1505(a)(1).

13 Note that all of the above three exempted groups are within the government itself. Therefore, if the government directly cites
 14 and enforces a statute against you for which there is no enforcement regulation published within the Federal Register, then
 15 they are “presuming”, usually wrongfully, that you are a member of one of the three groups within the federal government
 16 who are specifically exempted from the requirement. All such presumptions against those who are protected by the 17 Constitution are an unconstitutional violation of due process of law which essentially compel you to accept the legal 18 disabilities associated with a federal franchise which in most cases, you derive no benefit from. This frequent and 19 unconstitutional abuse of presumption to prejudice and destroy your rights is thoroughly documented below:

Presumption: Chief Weapon for Unlawfully Enlarging Federal Jurisdiction, Form #05.017
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

20 Enforcement regulations published as required within the Federal Register are then categorized pursuant to their applicable
 21 Title in the Code of Federal Regulations (CFR). 26 U.S.C. §7805(a) states:

22 “...the Secretary shall prescribe all needful rules and regulations for the enforcement of this title.”

23 The Internal Revenue Code is not self-executing. Without an implementing regulation, applicable to a particular type of tax,
 24 a statute has no force of law against anyone who is not part of the government as a “public officer” or “employee”, and 25 therefore imposes no duties or penalties. This is confirmed by the definition of “person” found in 26 U.S.C. §6671(b) and 26 by the levy statute which identifies the proper audience for “levy” actions, which are enforcement actions:

27 Subtitle F > CHAPTER 64 > Subchapter D > PART II > § 6331
 28 § 6331. Levy and distraint

29 (a) Authority of Secretary

30 If any person liable to pay any tax neglects or refuses to pay the same within 10 days after notice and demand, it
 31 shall be lawful for the Secretary to collect such tax (and such further sum as shall be sufficient to cover the
 32 expenses of the levy) by levy upon all property and rights to property (except such property as is exempt under
 33 section 6334) belonging to such person or on which there is a lien provided in this chapter for the payment of
 34 *such tax. Levy may be made upon the accrued salary or wages of any officer, employee, or elected official, of
 35 the United States, the District of Columbia, or any agency or instrumentality of the United States or the District
 36 of Columbia, by serving a notice of levy on the employer (as defined in section 3401(d)) of such officer, employee,*
 37 or elected official. If the Secretary makes a finding that the collection of such tax is in jeopardy, notice and
 38 demand for immediate payment of such tax may be made by the Secretary and, upon failure or refusal to pay such 39 tax, collection thereof by levy shall be lawful without regard to the 10-day period provided in this section.

40 According to evidence available to us in the form of a letter provided directly by the Internal Revenue Service in response to 41 a Freedom of Information Act request:

42 “There are no published regulations under Internal Revenue Code Sections 6702 and 6703, which authorize 43 the imposition and collection of penalties for filing frivolous returns.”

44 Furthermore, the Parallel Table Authorities for 26 C.F.R. reveals that the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, and Firearms is the 45 only authority authorized to use distraint or assess penalties for nonpayment of income taxes under Title 27 ONLY. The 46 following is taken from the Parallel Table of Authorities in the back of the Title 26 Code of Federal Regulations [CFR]. It is

1 a list of the ONLY 26 C.F.R. Part 301 Regulations that derive their Authority for implementation from Title 26 USCS or 26
2 IRC [Income Taxes]. Note the conspicuous absence of any penalty, interest, levy or seizure for the Title 26 Voluntary Income
3 Tax. Again, it is inconceivable that the Congress would legislate penalties for the individual income tax, since the supreme
4 Court and the IRS have both substantiated that such a Tax is voluntary and NOT based upon duress. It would be absurd to 5 impose penalties for non-compliance, when such an option is what made the tax voluntary to begin with!

The following table, repeated from section 3.15.3, also provides conclusive evidence that there are NO implementing regulations associated with all of Title 26 that relate to income taxes under Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A. This table provides a list of the enforcing regulations for Title 26, mostly under Subtitle F, which is Procedures and Administration:

Most noteworthy of the above is that ALL of the provisions identified in Subtitle F are associated with Title 27, Alcohol, Tobacco, and Firearms, and NOT Subtitle A Income taxes! Why? Because these types of taxes are indirect excise taxes on privileges. If you don't want the penalty, then don't choose the privileged manufacture of alcohol, tobacco, or firearms.

In addition, the following court ruling clearly expresses the lack of IRS authority to assess penalties absent implementing regulations:

1                    "...the Act's civil and criminal penalties attach only upon the violation of a regulation promulgated by the
 2 Secretary; if the Secretary were to do nothing, the Act itself would impose no penalties on anyone...only those
 3 who violate the regulations (not the Code) may incur civil or criminal penalties, it is the actual regulation
 4 issued by the Secretary of the Treasury and not the broad authorizing language of the statute, which is to be
 5 tested against the standards of the 4th Amendment."
 6 [Calif. Bankers Assoc. v. Shultz, 416 U.S. 21, 44, 39 L.Ed.2d. 812, 94 S.Ct. 1494]

7 An older version of the Internal Revenue Manual, which is reflective of the ruling case law on this subject, states that the IRS
 8 has no delegated authority to issue a civil penalty or to collect penalties without a judgment signed by a magistrate:

9                    IRM 546 §19(b)(2) "the civil penalty for non-compliance may be imposed only by filing a suit in the name of 10 the United States, naming the taxpayer as a defendant and securing a judgment."

11 The supreme Court agrees with this conclusion in the following case:

12                    "Our system of taxation is based upon voluntary assessment and payment, not upon distraint."
 13 [Flora v. U.S., 362 U.S. 145 (1960), emphasis added]

14 In case you don't understand, "distraint" is defined as follows and is the equivalent of "force" or "coercion" or "compulsion"
 15 in the collection of debts and legal liabilities:

16                    "...the act or process of DISTRAINT whereby a person (the DISTRAINOR), without prior court approval, seizes
 17 the personal property of another located upon the distraintor's land in satisfaction of a claim, as a pledge for 18 performance of a duty, or in reparation of an injury. Where goods are seized in satisfaction of a claim, the 19 distraintor can hold the goods until the claim is paid and, failing payment, may sell them in satisfaction."
 20 [Barron's Law Dictionary, Steven H. Gifis, 1996, p. 150, ISBN 0-8120-3096-6]

21 Therefore, IRS assessments of penalties and demands for money, without the authority of law, their lawless actions to penalize
 22 Americans that have not been legally defended or explained or justified based on their delegated authority, constitutes 23 extortion under the color of law, mail fraud, mailing threatening communications, and conspiracy against the rights of a
 24 Citizen, for which they can be help personally liable should legal action become necessary.

25 5.4.17 No Implementing Regulations Authorizing Collection of Subtitles A and C Income Taxes

26 Collections is one of three parts of the enforcement process. Enforcement of a tax involves:

- 27 1. Assessment (26 U.S.C. §6201, which has no implementing regulation under the tax imposed in section 1 of the I.R.C.).
