Under international law, a country is responsible for official conduct harming aliens, for example, the expropriation of property without compensation. See Restatement (Second) of the Foreign Relations Law of the United States §§ 164-214 (1965). It is often said, however, that a state is not responsible for conduct which would otherwise be regarded as wrongful if the injured person, although a citizen of a foreign state, is also a national of the state taking the questioned action. See id. at § 171, comments b & c. This rule recognizes that in the usual case a foreign country cannot complain about the treatment received by one of its citizens by a country which also regards that person as a national. This principle suggests that the risk of "entanglements with other sovereigns that might ensue from failure to treat the legal controversies of aliens on a national level," Blair Holdings Corp. v. Rubinstein, 133 F.Supp. at 500, is slight when an American citizen is also a citizen of another country and therefore he ordinarily should only be regarded as an American citizen for purposes of 28 U.S.C. §1332(a). See 13 C. Wright, A. Miller, & E. Cooper, Federal Practice and Procedure §3621 at 760 (1975) (risk of foreign country complaining about treatment of dual national is probably minimal); Currie, The Federal Courts and the American Law Institute, 36 U.Chi.L.Rev. 1, 10 n.50 (1968) ("(D)ual American and foreign citizenship could most simply be dealt with by treating the litigant as an American: . . . fear of foreign embarrassment seems excessive.").

Despite the general rule of nonresponsibility under international law for conduct affecting dual nationals, there are recognized exceptions. One is the concept of effective or dominant nationality. As qualified by the Restatement, this exception provides that a country (respondent state) will be responsible for wrongful conduct against one of its citizens whose dominant nationality is that of a foreign state, that is,

(i) his dominant nationality, by reason of residence or other association subject to his control (or the control of a member of his family whose nationality determines his nationality) is that of the other state and (ii) he (or such member of his family) has manifested an intention to be a national of the other state and has taken all reasonably practicable steps to avoid or terminate his status as a national of the respondent state.

Restatement (Second) of the Foreign Relations Law of the United States § 171(c) (1965). Although, in the ordinary case a foreign country cannot complain about the treatment received by a citizen who is also a national of the respondent state, in certain cases the respondent state's relationship to the person is so remote that the individual is entitled to protection from its actions under international law. Assuming arguendo that a dual national whose dominant nationality is that of a foreign country should be regarded as a "citizen or subject of a foreign state" within the meaning of 28 U.S.C. §1332(a)(2), the record establishes that the plaintiff's Egyptian nationality is not dominant.

Although at the time of the filing of his complaint in 1976 the plaintiff resided in Egypt, his voluntary naturalization in the United States in 1973 indicates that his dominant nationality is not Egyptian.<sup>14</sup> As part of the naturalization process he swore allegiance to the United States and renounced any to foreign states. His actions subsequent to his naturalization evince his resolve to remain a U.S. citizen despite his extended stay abroad. Thus, it cannot be said that he "has taken all reasonably practicable steps to avoid or terminate his status as a national." Restatement (Second) of the Foreign Relations Law of the United States § 171(c)(ii) (1965). The plaintiff registered with the U.S. Embassy during his stays in Lebanon and Egypt. He states that he voted by absentee ballot in the 1976 presidential election. He has insisted that throughout his foreign travels he retained his U.S. citizenship<sup>15</sup> and in fact did not seek employment opportunities that may have been available in Egypt because they might have jeopardized his status as a U.S. citizen. See 8 U.S.C. §1481(a)(4).<sup>16</sup> His actions, therefore, manifest his continued, voluntary association with the United States and his intent to remain an American. Certainly neither he nor the government of Egypt can complain if he is not afforded a federal forum when the same would be denied a similarly situated native-born American.

VI. Conclusion

Our decision that this suit is not within the jurisdiction of the federal courts does not necessarily mean that it is outside the constitutional definition of the federal judicial power. Compare Strawbridge v. Curtiss, 7 U.S. (3 Cranch) 267, 2 L.Ed. 435 (1806) with State Farm Fire & Casualty Co. v. Tashire, 386 U.S. 523, 530-31, 87 S.Ct. 1199, 1203, 18 L.Ed.2d. 270 (1967) (complete diversity is a statutory, not a constitutional requirement). It merely means that the suit is unauthorized by 28 U.S.C. §1332(a) as we have construed it. The statutory terms "citizens of different States" and "citizens or subjects of a foreign state" are presumably amenable to some congressional expansion consistent with the constitutional limitations on the judicial power if Congress sees the need for such expansion. See National Mutual Insurance Co. v. Tidewater Transfer Co., 337 U.S. 582, 69 S.Ct. 1173, 93 L.Ed. 1556 (1949). The judgment of the district court is Affirmed.
[Sadat v. Mertes, 615 F.2d. 1176 (C.A.7 (Wis.), 1980)]

For those who doubt the analysis in the preceding table relating to the jurisdiction of federal courts either abroad or in a state of the Union, consider two similar cases and how they were treated differently and inconsistently by the U.S. Supreme Court:

1. Newman-Green v. Alfonso Larrain, 490 U.S. 826 (1989) was a case about an American born in a constitutional state, domiciled in Venezuela, and therefore what they called a “stateless person” who could not be sued in federal court.
2. Cook v. Tait, 265 U.S. 47 (1924) was about an American domiciled abroad in Mexico but born in a constitutional state of the Union. Instead of calling him a “stateless person” like they did in Newman-Green v. Alfonso Larrain, 490 U.S. 826 (1989), they instead:
  - 2.1. Called him a “citizen of the United States”.
  - 2.2. Said they had jurisdiction over the matter, even though he was stateless and immune from federal jurisdiction.
  - 2.3. Said their jurisdiction derived from NEITHER his domicile NOR his nationality.
  - 2.4. Refused to identify WHERE there jurisdiction came from. There was neither a CONSTITUTIONAL source nor even a STATUTORY source to derive it from.
  - 2.5. Allowed and condoned and even protected Cook to commit the crime of impersonating a STATUTORY “citizen of the United States” in violation of 18 U.S.C. §911 before he could even invoke their jurisdiction to speak on the matter. We think Cook was a plant hired by Former President and then Supreme Chief Justice William Howard Taft specifically to extend his newly ratified 16th Amendment to the ENTIRE WORLD rather than just within federal territory, as it was previous to Cook v. Tait.
3. Why did they treat two “similarly situated parties” in Cook and Newman-Green completely differently in the context of their jurisdiction? The answer is:
  - 3.1. Money (taxes) was involved, and they wanted an excuse to STEAL it.
  - 3.2. In order to STEAL it, they had to allow Cook to CONSENT or VOLUNTEER for the civil status of a Territorial (8 U.S.C. §1401) citizen, even though he was not one, just in order to get any remedy at all for illegal assessment and collection by a rogue bureau (I.R.S.) that in fact had no lawful authority to even EXIST and is not even part of the U.S. Government nor listed under Title 31 of the U.S. Code. See:

Origins and Authority of the Internal Revenue Service, Form #05.005
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>
  - 3.3. They knew that Congress could not legislate extraterritorially because of the limitations of the Law of Nations upon their authority.
  - 3.4. They knew that the ONLY way such a bold THEFT could be canonized was for the U.S. Supreme Court, under the auspices of Chief Justice Taft, to essentially violate the separation of powers by essentially WRITING a new law, meaning “case law”, that allowed the tax code to reach any place in the entire world to nonresident foreign domiciled parties.

Federal Jurisdiction, Form #05.018, Section 4

Our most revered founding father predicted the courts would be the source of corruption, as they were above, when he said:

“Contrary to all correct example, [the Federal judiciary] are in the habit of going out of the question before them, to throw an anchor ahead and grapple further hold for future advances of power. They are then in fact the corps of sappers and miners, steadily working to undermine the independent rights of the States and to consolidate all power in the hands of that government in which they have so important a freehold estate.”
 [Thomas Jefferson: Autobiography, 1821. ME 1:121 ]

“We all know that permanent judges acquire an esprit de corps; that, being known, they are liable to be tempted by bribery; that they are misled by favor, by relationship, by a spirit of party, by a devotion to the executive or legislative; that it is better to leave a cause to the decision of cross and pile than to that of a judge biased to one side; and that the opinion of twelve honest jurymen gives still a better hope of right than cross and pile does.”
 [Thomas Jefferson to Abbe Arnoux, 1789. ME 7:423, Papers 15:283 ]

“It is not enough that honest men are appointed judges. All know the influence of interest on the mind of man, and how unconsciously his judgment is warped by that influence. To this bias add that of the esprit de corps, of their peculiar maxim and creed that ‘it is the office of a good judge to enlarge his jurisdiction,’ and the absence of responsibility, and how can we expect impartial decision between the General government, of which they are themselves so eminent a part, and an individual state from which they have nothing to hope or fear?”
 [Thomas Jefferson: Autobiography, 1821. ME 1:121 ]

1 "At the establishment of our Constitutions, the judiciary bodies were supposed to be the most helpless and 2 harmless members of the government. Experience, however, soon showed in what way they were to become the
 3 most dangerous; that the insufficiency of the means provided for their removal gave them a freehold and
 4 irresponsibility in office; that their decisions, seeming to concern individual suitors only, pass silent and
 5 unheeded by the public at large; that these decisions nevertheless become law by precedent, sapping by little and
 6 little the foundations of the Constitution and working its change by construction before any one has perceived
 7 that that invisible and helpless worm has been busily employed in consuming its substance. In truth, man is not
 8 made to be trusted for life if secured against all liability to account."
 9 [Thomas Jefferson to A. Coray, 1823. ME 15:486 ]

10 "I do not charge the judges with willful and ill-intentioned error; but honest error must be arrested where its 11 toleration leads to public ruin. As for the safety of society, we commit honest maniacs to Bedlam; so judges
 12 should be withdrawn from their bench whose erroneous biases are leading us to dissolution. It may, indeed,
 13 injure them in fame or in fortune; but it saves the republic, which is the first and supreme law."
 14 [Thomas Jefferson: Autobiography, 1821. ME 1:122 ]

15 "The original error [was in] establishing a judiciary independent of the nation, and which, from the citadel of 16 the law, can turn its guns on those they were meant to defend, and control and fashion their proceedings to its 17 own will."
 18 [Thomas Jefferson to John Wayles Eppes, 1807. FE 9:68 ]

19 "It is a misnomer to call a government republican in which a branch of the supreme power [the Federal 20 Judiciary] is independent of the nation."
 21 [Thomas Jefferson to James Pleasants, 1821. FE 10:198 ]

22 "It is left... to the juries, if they think the permanent judges are under any bias whatever in any cause, to take
 23 on themselves to judge the law as well as the fact. They never exercise this power but when they suspect
 24 partiality in the judges; and by the exercise of this power they have been the firmest bulwarks of English
 25 liberty."
 26 [Thomas Jefferson to Abbe Arnoux, 1789. ME 7:423, Papers 15:283 ]

27 "The judiciary of the United States is the subtle corps of sappers and miners constantly working under ground to 28 undermine the foundations of our confederated fabric. They are construing our Constitution from a co-ordination
 29 of a general and special government to a general and supreme one alone. This will lay all things at their feet,
 30 and they are too well versed in English law to forget the maxim, 'boni iudicis est ampliari jurisdictionem.'"
 31 [Thomas Jefferson to Thomas Ritchie, 1820. ME 15:297]

32 "When all government, domestic and foreign, in little as in great things, shall be drawn to Washington as the 33 center of all power, it will render powerless the checks provided of one government on another and will become 34 as venal and oppressive as the government from which we separated."
 35 [Thomas Jefferson to Charles Hammond, 1821. ME 15:332]

36 "What an augmentation of the field for jobbing, speculating, plundering, office-building ["trade or business"
 37 scam] and office-hunting would be produced by an assumption [PRESUMPTION] of all the State powers into the 38 hands of the General Government!"
 39 [Thomas Jefferson to Gideon Granger, 1800. ME 10:168]

40 "It has long been my opinion, and I have never shrunk from its expression,... that the germ of dissolution of our 41 Federal Government is in the constitution of the Federal Judiciary--an irresponsible body (for impeachment is 42 scarcely a scare-crow), working like gravity by night and by day, gaining a little today and a little tomorrow, 43 and advancing its noiseless step like a thief over the field of jurisdiction until all shall be usurped from the 44 States and the government be consolidated into one. To this I am opposed."

The citizenship status of a person is maintained in the Social Security “NUMIDENT” record:

1. The NUMIDENT record derives from what was filled out on the SSA Form SS-5, Block 5. See: <http://www.ssa.gov/online/ss-5.pdf>
2. One’s citizenship status is encoded within the NUMIDENT record using the “CSP code” within the Numident record. This code is called the “citizenship code” by the Social Security administration.
3. Like all government forms, the terms used on the SSA Form SS-5 use the STATUTORY context, not the CONSTITUTIONAL context for all citizenship words. Hence, block 5 of the SSA Form SS-5 should be filled out with “Legal Alien Authorized to Work”, which means you are a STATUTORY but not CONSTITUTIONAL alien. This is consistent with the definition of “individual” found in 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3), which defines the term to include ONLY STATUTORY “aliens”.
4. Those who are not STATUTORY “nationals and citizens of the United States***” at birth per 8 U.S.C. §1401 or 26 U.S.C. §3121(e), and 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(c) have a “CSP code” of B in their NUMIDENT record, which corresponds with a CSP code of “B”. The comment field of the NUMIDENT record should also be annotated with the following to ensure that it is not changed during an audit because of confusion on the part of the SSA employee:

“CSP Code B not designated in error-- applicant is an American national with a domicile and residence in a foreign state for the purposes of the Social Security Act.”

5. The local SSA office cannot provide a copy of the NUMIDENT record. Only the central SSA headquarters can provide it by submitting a Privacy Act request rather than a FOIA using the following resource:

Guide to Freedom of Information Act, Social Security Administration
http://www.ssa.gov/foia/html/foia\_guide.htm

6. Information in the NUMIDENT record is shared with:
  - 6.1. The Department of Homeland Security (DHS).
  - 6.2. State Department of Motor Vehicles in verifying SSNs.
  - 6.3. E-Verify.

About E-Verify, Form #04.107

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

7. The procedures for requesting NUMIDENT information using the Freedom of Information Act or Privacy Act are described in:

<https://s044a90.ssa.gov/apps10/poms.nsf/lnx/0100299005>

Those who are CONSTITUTIONAL but not STATUTORY citizens and who wish to change the citizenship status reflected in the NUMIDENT record may do so by executing both of the following methods:

1. Visiting the local Social Security Administration office and getting the clerk to change the record. Bring witnesses in case they resist.
2. Sending in the following document:

4.12.16.1 How to Describe Your Citizenship on Government Forms and Correspondence

In the following sections, we will share the results of our collective latest research and how they fit together perfectly in the overall puzzle. We have concluded the following:

1. A Citizen of one of the 50 states is a United States*** citizen per the Fourteenth Amendment and a "national of the United States*** of America”.
2. A Citizen of one of the 50 states is a United States*** citizen per the Fourteenth Amendment and an "An alien authorized to work" for the purposes of U.S.C.I.S. Form I-9 so long as he/she maintains a domicile (actual or declared) in one of the 50 states or outside of the United States**.

1 You will have trouble when you try to explain your citizenship on government forms based on the content of this paper
2 because:

- 3 1. IRS, SSA, and the Department of State do not put all of the options available for citizenship on their forms.
- 4 2. Most people falsely PRESUME that “United States” as used in the phrase “citizen of the United States” means the 5 whole country for EVERY enactment of Congress but they won’t expose this presumption.
- 6 3. The use of the term “citizenship” on government forms intentionally confuses “nationality” with “domicile” in an 7 attempt to make them appear equal, when in fact they are NOT.
- 8 4. Government forms often mix requests for information from multiple titles of the Code and do not distinguish which 9 title they mean on the form. For instance, “United States” in Title 26 means federal territory (U.S.***) while “United 10 States” in other Titles or in the Constitution itself often means states of the Union (U.S.***).

11 We will clarify in the following sections techniques for avoiding the above road blocks.

12 4.12.16.1.1 Overview

13 This section provides some pointers on how to describe your citizenship status on government forms in order to avoid being
14 confused with a someone who has a domicile on federal territory and therefore no Constitutional rights. Below is a summary
15 of how we recommend protecting yourself from the prejudicial presumptions of others about your citizenship status:

- 16 1. Keep in mind the following facts about all government forms:
  - 17 1.1. Government forms ALWAYS imply the LEGAL/STATUTORY rather than POLITICAL/CONSTITUTIONAL 18 status of the party in the context of all franchises, including income taxes and social security.
  - 19 1.2. "Alien" on government forms always means a person born or naturalized in a foreign country.
  - 20 1.3. The Internal Revenue Code does NOT define the term “nonresident alien”. The closest thing to a definition is that
21 found in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B), which defines what it ISN’T, but NOT what it IS. If you look on IRS Form
22 W-8BEN, Block 3, you can see that there are many different types of entities that can be nonresident aliens, none
23 of which are EXPRESSLY included in the definition at 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B). It is therefore IMPOSSIBLE to 24 conclude based on any vague definition in the Internal Revenue Code that a specific person IS or IS NOT a 25 “nonresident alien.”
  - 26 1.4. On tax forms, the term “nonresident alien” is NOT a subset of the term “alien”, but rather a SUPERSET. It includes
27 both FOREIGN nationals domiciled in a foreign country and also those in Constitutional states of the Union. A
28 “national of the United States*”, for instance, although NOT an “alien” under Title 8 of the U.S. Code, is a
29 “nonresident alien” under Title 26 of the U.S. Code if engaged in a public office or a “non-resident non-person” if 30 exclusively PRIVATE and not engaged in a public office. Therefore, a “nonresident alien” is a “word of art”
31 designed to confuse people, and the fact that uses the word “alien” doesn’t mean it IS an “alien”. This is covered 32 in:

Flawed Tax Arguments to Avoid, Form #08.004, Sections 8.7

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

- 33 2. Anyone who PRESUMES any of the following should promptly be DEMANDED to prove the presumption with legally 34 admissible evidence from the law. ALL of these presumptions are FALSE and cannot be proven:
    - 35 2.1. That you can trust ANYTHING that either a government form OR a government employee says. The courts say
36 not only that you CANNOT, but that you can be PENALIZED for doing so. See:

Reasonable Belief About Income Tax Liability, Form #05.007

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>
    - 37 2.2. That nationality and domicile are synonymous.
    - 38 2.3. That “nonresident aliens” are a SUPERSET of “aliens” within the Internal Revenue Code.
    - 39 2.4. That the term “United States” has the SAME meaning in Title 8 of the U.S. Code as it has in Title 26.
    - 40 2.5. That a Fourteenth Amendment “citizen of the United States” is equivalent to any of the following:
      - 41 2.5.1. 8 U.S.C. §1401 “national and citizen of the United States”.
      - 42 2.5.2. 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1 “citizen”.
      - 43 2.5.3. 26 U.S.C. §3121(e) “citizen of the United States”.
- 44 All of the above statuses have similar sounding names, but they rely on a DIFFERENT definition of “United States”
45 from that found in the U.S.A. Constitution.
- 46 2.6. That you can be a statutory “taxpayer” or statutory “citizen” of any kind WITHOUT your consent. See:

Why Domicile and Becoming a “Taxpayer” Require Your Consent, Form #05.002

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

3. The safest way to describe oneself is to check “Other” for citizenship or add an “Other” box if the form doesn’t have one and then do one of the following:

3.1. Write in the “Other” box

“See attached mandatory Affidavit of Citizenship, Domicile, and Tax Status, Form #02.001”

Affidavit of Citizenship, Domicile, and Tax Status, Form #02.001
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

- 3.2. If you don’t want to include an attachment, add the following mandatory language to the form that you are a:

3.2.1. A “Citizen and national of _____ (statername)”

3.2.2. NOT a statutory “national and citizen of the United States” or “U.S. citizen” per 8 U.S.C. §1401

3.2.3. A constitutional or Fourteenth Amendment Citizen.

3.2.4. A statutory alien per 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A) for the purposes of the federal income tax.

4. If the recipient of the form says they won’t accept attachments or won’t allow you to write explanatory information on the form needed to prevent perjurying the form, then send them an update via certified mail AFTER they accept your submission so that you have legal evidence that they tried to tamper with a federal witness and conspired to commit perjury on the form.

5. For detailed instructions on how to fill out the U.S.C.I.S. Form I-9, See:

I-9 Form Amended, Form #06.028

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

6. For detailed instructions on how to participate in E-Verify for the purposes of PRIVATE employment, see:

About E-Verify, Form #04.107

7. To undo the damage you have done over the years to your status by incorrectly describing your status, send in the following form and submit according to the instructions provided. This form says that all future government forms submitted shall have this form included or attached by reference.

Legal Notice of Change in Domicile/Citizenship Records and Divorce from the United States, Form #10.001

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

8. Quit using Taxpayer Identifying Numbers (TINs). 20 C.F.R. §422.104 says that only statutory “U.S. citizens” and “permanent residents” can lawfully apply for Social Security Numbers, both of which share in common a domicile on federal territory such as statutory “U.S. citizens” and “residents” (aliens), can lawfully use such a number. 26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1(b) also indicates that “U.S. persons”, meaning persons with a domicile on federal territory, are required to furnish such a number if they file tax forms. “Foreign persons” are also mentioned in 26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1(b), but these parties also elect to have an effective domicile on federal territory and thereby become “persons” by engaging in federal franchises. See:

- 8.1. Who are “Taxpayers” and Who Needs a “Taxpayer Identification Number”?, Form #05.013

- 8.3. Resignation of Compelled Social Security Trustee, Form #06.002-use this form to quit Social Security lawfully.

9. If you are completing any kind of government form or application to any kind of financial institution other than a tax form and you are asked for your citizenship status, TIN, or Social Security Number, attach the following form and prepare according to the instructions provided:

Affidavit of Citizenship, Domicile, and Tax Status, Form #02.001

11. If you are submitting a voter registration, attach the following form and prepare according to the instructions provided:

Voter Registration Attachment, Form #06.003

12. If you are applying for a USA passport, attach the following form and prepare according to the instructions provided:

USA Passport Application Attachment, Form #06.007

13. If you are submitting a complaint, response, pleading, or motion to a federal court, you should attach the following form:

Federal Pleading/Motion/Petition Attachment, Litigation Tool #01.002

14. Use as many of the free forms as you can from the page below. They are very well thought out to avoid traps set by the predators who run the American government:

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

15. When engaging in correspondence with anyone in the government, legal, or financial profession about your status that occurs on other than a standard government form, use the following guidelines:

15.1. In the return address for the correspondence, place the phrase “(NOT A DOMICILE OR RESIDENCE)”.

15.2. Entirely avoid the use of the words “citizen”, “citizenship”, “resident”, “inhabitant”. Instead, prefer the term “non-resident”, and “transient foreigner”.

15.3. Never describe yourself as an “individual” or “person”. 5 U.S.C. §552a(a)(2) says that this entity is a government employee who is a statutory “U.S. citizen” or “resident” (alien). Instead, refer to yourself as a “transient foreigner” and a “nonresident”. Some forms such as IRS form W-8BEN Block 3 have no block for “transient foreigner” or “non-resident NON-person”, in which case modify the form to add that option. See the following for details:

About IRS Form W-8BEN, Form #04.202

- 15.4. Entirely avoid the use of the phrase “United States”, because it has so many different and mutually exclusive meanings in the U.S. code and state law. Instead, replace this phrase with the name of the state you either are physically present within or with “USA” and then define that “USA” includes the states of the Union and excludes federal territory. For instance, you could say “Citizen of California Republic” and then put an asterisk next to it and at the bottom of the page explain the asterisk as follows:

“6017. ‘In this State’ or ‘in the State’ means within the exterior limits of the State of California and includes all territory within these limits owned by or ceded to the United States of America.”

- 15.5. Never use the word “residence”, “permanent address”, or “domicile” in connection with either the term “United States”, or the name of the state you are in.

15.6. If someone else refers to you improperly, vociferously correct them so that they are prevented from making presumptions that would injure your rights.

15.7. Avoid words that are undefined in statutes that relate to citizenship. Always use words that are statutorily defined and if you can’t find the definition, define it yourself on the form or correspondence you are sending. Use of undefined words encourages false presumptions that will eventually injure your rights and give judges and administrators discretion that they undoubtedly will abuse to their benefit. There isn’t even a common definition of “citizen of the United States” or “U.S. citizen” in the standard dictionary, then the definition of “U.S. citizen” in all the state statutes and on all government forms is up to us! Therefore, once again, whenever you fill out any kind of form that specifies either “U.S. citizen” or “citizen of the United States”, you should be very careful to clarify that it means “national” under 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21) or you will be “presumed” to be a federal citizen and a “citizen of the United States***” under 8 U.S.C. §1401, and this is one of the biggest injuries to your rights that you could ever inflict. Watch out folks! Here is the definition we recommend that you use on any government form that uses these terms that makes the meaning perfectly clear and unambiguous:

“U.S. *** citizen” or “citizen of the United States***”: A “National” defined in either 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21) who owes their permanent allegiance to the confederation of states called the “United States of America”. Someone who was not born in the federal “United States” as defined in 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(38) and who is NOT a “citizen of the United States” under 8 U.S.C. §1401.

15.8. Refer them to this pamphlet if they have questions and tell them to do their homework.

16. Citizenship status in Social Security NUMIDENT record:

16.1. The NUMIDENT record derives from what was filled out on the SSA Form SS-5, Block 5. See:

16.2. One's citizenship status is encoded within the NUMIDENT record using the "CSP code" within the Numident record. This code is called the "citizenship code" by the Social Security administration.

16.3. Like all government forms, the terms used on the SSA Form SS-5 use the STATUTORY context, not the CONSTITUTIONAL context for all citizenship words. Hence, block 5 of the SSA Form SS-5 should be filled out with "Other", which means you are a non-resident. This is consistent with the definition of "individual" found in 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3), which defines the term to include ONLY STATUTORY "aliens".

16.4. Those who are not STATUTORY "nationals and citizens of the United States**" at birth per 8 U.S.C. §1401 or 26 U.S.C. §3121(e), and 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(c) have a "CSP code" of B in their NUMIDENT record, which corresponds with a CSP code of "B". The comment field of the NUMIDENT record should also be annotated with the following to ensure that it is not changed during an audit because of confusion on the part of the SSA employee:

"CSP Code B not designated in error-- applicant is an American national with a domicile and residence in a foreign state for the purposes of the Social Security Act."

16.5. The local SSA office cannot provide a copy of the NUMIDENT record. Only the central SSA headquarters can provide it by submitting a Privacy Act request rather than a FOIA using the following resource:

16.6. Information in the NUMIDENT record is shared with:

16.6.1. The Department of Homeland Security (DHS).

16.6.2. State Department of Motor Vehicles in verifying SSNs.

16.6.3. E-Verify.

NOTES:

1. "United States" is described in 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(38), (a)(36) and 8 C.F.R. §215.1(f) and includes only federal territory and possessions and excludes all Constitutional Union states. This is a product of the separation of powers doctrine that is the heart of the United States Constitution.
2. E-Verify CANNOT be used by those who are a NOT lawfully engaged in a public office in the U.S. government at the time of making application. Its use is VOLUNTARY and cannot be compelled. Knowledge of these processes is important to ensure that all the government's records are properly updated to reflect your status as:

1. A Constitutional "Citizen" as mentioned in Article I, Section 2, Clause 2 of the United States Constitution.
2. A Constitutional "citizen of the United States" per the Fourteenth Amendment.
3. A state national under 8 U.S.C. §1101\(a\)\(21\).
4. "Subject to THE jurisdiction" of the CONSTITUTIONAL United States, meaning subject to the POLITICAL and not LEGISLATIVE jurisdiction of the Constitutional but not STATUTORY "United States".

"This section contemplates two sources of citizenship, and two sources only, -birth and naturalization. The persons declared to be citizens are 'all persons born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof.' The evident meaning of these last words is, not merely subject in some respect or degree to the jurisdiction of the United States, but completely subject to their [plural, not singular, meaning states of the Union] political jurisdiction, and owing them [the states of the Union and NOT the national government] direct and immediate allegiance. And the words relate to the time of birth in the one case, as they do [169 U.S. 649, 725] to the time of naturalization in the other. Persons not thus subject to the jurisdiction of the United States at the time of birth cannot become so afterwards, except by being naturalized, either individually, as by proceedings under the naturalization acts, or collectively, as by the force of a treaty by which foreign territory is acquired."

5. With a Social Security NUMIDENT citizenship status of:

- 1 5.1. OTHER than "CSP=A". Social Security Program Operations Manual System (POMS), Section GN 03313.095

- 4 5.2. "CSP=D", which correlates with not a "citizen of the United States***".

- 5 6. NOT any of the following:

- 6 6.1. A "U.S. citizen" or "citizen of the United States" on any federal form. All government forms presume the

4.12.16.1.4 How the corrupt government CONCEALS and OBFUSCATES citizenship information on government forms to ENCOURAGE misapplication of federal franchises to states of the Union

The following key omissions from government forms are deliberately implemented universally by federal agencies as a way to encourage and even mandate the MISAPPLICATION of federal law to legislatively foreign jurisdictions and to KIDNAP your legal identity and transport it stealthily and without your knowledge to the District of Criminals:

1. Not describing WHICH context they are using geographical terms within: CONSTITUTIONAL or STATUTORY. These two contexts are mutually exclusive.
2. Refusing to define WHICH of the three "United States" they mean in EACH option presented, as described by the U.S. Supreme Court in Hooven & Allison Co. v. Evatt, 324 U.S. 652 (1945).

In addition, the Social Security Administration (SSA) deliberately conceals key information about citizenship in their Program Operations Manual System (POMS) in order to encourage the misapplication of federal franchises to places they may not be offered or enforced, which is states of the Union. The POMS is available at:

Social Security Program Operations Manual System (POMS) Online

Here are the obfuscation tactics you will encounter from the SSA:

1. If you ask the Social Security Administration WHAT all of the valid values are for the CSP code in your NUMIDENT record, they will pretend like they don't know AND they will refuse to find out.
2. If you visit a local Social Security Administration office and do demand to see and print out their complete NUMIDENT records on you, they will resist.
3. Key sections of the Program Operations Manual System (POMS) within the Records Manual (RM) are omitted from public view dealing with the meaning of "CSP code" and "IDN" code in their NUMIDENT records.
  - 3.1. The "CSP code", according to the SSA POMS, is a "citizenship code". It is defined in POMS RM 00208.001D.4, which is not available online.
  - 3.2. The "IDN code" appears to be an evidence code that synthesizes the CSP and other factors to determine your exact status. "RM 00202.235, Form SS-5 Evidence (IDN) Codes" describes this code and is not available online.
  - 3.3. BOTH POMS RM 00208.001D.4 AND RM 00202.235 sections are "conveniently omitted" from the online POMS because they are hiding something:

Social Security Program Operations Manual System (POMS), Section RM 002: The Social Security Number, Policy and General Procedures
<https://s044a90.ssa.gov/apps10/poms.nsf/subchapterlist!openview&restricttocategory=01002>

If you want something to FOIA for, ask for the POMS sections and any other SSA internal documents that define these codes. SCUM BAGS!

Social Security Program Operations Manual System (POMS), Section RM 00299.005 Form SSA-L669 Request for Evidence in Support of an SSN Application — U.S.-Born Applicant

4.12.16.1.5 The Social Security Administration and Form SS-5

Let us start with SSA Form SS-5, or what would be the nowadays equivalent of an SS-5 -- an agreement entered into as part of the birth registration process. There are multiple issues here. Each issue must be taken into consideration as this is where the whole tax snare is initiated. We know from U.S. v. Wong Kim Ark, 169 U.S. 649 (1898), that a person receives two conditions at birth which describe his complete legal condition -- nationality/political status, and domicile/civil status. SSA Form SS-5 is brilliantly constructed to take both of these issues into consideration by virtue of Block 3 -- BIRTHPLACE, and Block 5 -- CITIZENSHIP. Block 3 and Block 5 work together to paint a complete picture, which can be very unique depending on many factors. For example, there are American Nationals born in one of the 50 states, or born in Germany, or Canada. There are foreign nationals born in China or Italy who have since gone through the process of naturalization -- maybe they are domiciled in the United States** or one of the 50 states (United States***). There are former American Nationals

1 who have since expatriated (i.e. surrendered United States*** nationality). The point, is that Block 3 -- BIRTHPLACE
 2 paints only part of the picture. The total status is only fully established when an applicable domicile is considered. But most
 3 importantly, the applicable jurisdiction changes depending on whether or not the person in consideration is an American
 4 National or a foreign national. This is key -- and this concept applies to U.S.C.I.S. Form I-9 also!

5 We know that Congress exercises plenary legislative jurisdiction over a foreign "national" occupying ANY portion of the 6 territory of the United States* (the nation). The nation has two territorial divisions, United States**, and United States***. A
 7 foreign national occupying either territorial subdivision is a LEGAL "alien," NOT TO BE CONFUSED with his status as a
 8 POLITICAL "alien" who may or may not be in the country LEGALLY. What I mean, is that a "legal alien" or an "illegal
 9 alien" are both considered to be a LEGAL "alien" within the context of law that is -- a LEGAL appellation. This is what the 10 status is communicating. It is simply presenting a LEGAL status that can apply to anyone who happens to be "alien" to the 11 jurisdiction at issue, whether here legally or not, or possessing a right-to-work status or not. The issue of whether or not the 12 "alien" is here legally or not then commutes a right-to-work status. Conversely, an American National automatically has a
 13 right-to-work status by virtue of his/her American nationality. But the jurisdiction and the status of the American National is 14 considered differently because Congress does not have legislative jurisdiction within the 50 states -- only subject matter
 15 jurisdiction. Thus, if an American National establishes a domicile in one of the 50 states, then he too is a LEGAL "alien" . .
 16 . not a POLITICAL "alien," but a LEGAL "alien" domiciled in a territorially foreign legislative jurisdiction with a right-to-
 17 work status commuted through American nationality, which is either commuted through the Fourteenth Amendment (50
 18 states), or an Act of Congress (D.C., Federal possessions, or naturalization). The following examples will show how both
 19 Block 3 -- BIRTHPLACE, and Block 5 -- CITIZENSHIP on SSA Form SS-5 work in tandem to paint the total picture as 20 the Supreme Court said in Wong Kim Ark.

21 In the following examples A - E, I will provide 3 data points, 1.POLITICAL STATUS/NATIONALITY, 2. SS-5 Block 3--
 22 BIRTHPLACE, 3. CIRCUMSTANCE, and finally, a conclusory civil status 4. SS-5 Block 5--CITIZENSHIP STATUS, 23 which is determined by taking the first three items into consideration collectively.

- 24 A. 1. Mexican National, 2. BIRTHPLACE -- Mexico City, 3. visiting = 4. "Legal Alien Not Allowed to Work"
 25 B. 1. American National, 2. BIRTHPLACE -- Phoenix, AZ, 3. work in the U.S.A. with an Arizona domicile = 4. "Other"
 26 C. 1. American National, 2. BIRTHPLACE -- Phoenix, AZ, 3. work in the U.S.A. with a United States** domicile = 4.
 27 "U.S. Citizen"
 28 D. 1. American National, 2. BIRTHPLACE -- American Samoa, 3. work in the U.S.A. with a United States** domicile =
 29 4. "Other"
 30 E. 1. German National, 2. BIRTHPLACE -- Frankfurt, Germany, 3. work in the U.S.A. with a work visa = 4. "Legal 31 Alien Allowed to Work"

32 Notice how B. and E. have the same civil status, but a different political status. This is not an issue as these differences are 33 reconciled within the tax system, as a "U.S. person" is a "citizen" or "resident" of the "United States**" with the context of 34 the "United States" changing depending on the nationality of the "taxpayer."

35 How do I know the above is true? Because the SSA will not issue an SSA Form SS-1042-S to anyone with a CSP Code of 36 "A" (U.S. Citizen). An SSA Form SS-1042-S is an information return issued to a "nonresident alien" under Title 26 who 37 receives "United States" sourced payments from the SSA. A "U.S. person" will receive an SSA Form SS-1099R. Furthermore,
 38 if an "employer" sends "wage" information to the SSA, the SSA will then transmit that "wage" information together with the 39 CSP Code of the "individual" to the IRS. If the IRS receives "wage" information with a CSP Code of "A", and the "taxpayer"
 40 subsequently tries to file a 1040NR, it will be flagged as being an incorrect or fraudulent return-- after all, how can an SS-5
 41 "U.S. Citizen" file a "nonresident alien" tax return? I think they would call this "frivolous." However, if an "individual" has 42 a CSP Code of "B" ("Legal Alien Allowed To Work") on file with the SSA, a CSP Code "B" will be transmitted with the 43 "wage" information and the "taxpayer" could file EITHER a 1040 ("resident alien") or a 1040NR ("nonresident alien"), as 44 both a "resident alien" and a "nonresident alien" would qualify as a "Legal Alien Allowed To Work" for the purposes of the 45 Social Security Act. The Block 5 -- CITIZENSHIP status on the SSA Form SS-5 is designed to get people to declare a
 46 federal domicile in the United States**, and thus keep them caged in the "U.S. person" tax status. We know this to be the 47 case because we know tax status is based on domicile. And since the SSA issues two types of information returns (SSA Form
 48 SS-1099R & SSA Form SS-1042-S), and since SSA will not issue an SSA Form SS-1042-S to an "individual" with a CSP
 49 Code of "A" ("U.S. Citizen"), then we know that the Block 5 -- CITIZENSHIP status of "U.S.** Citizen" is not referring to
 50 political citizenship/nationality, but a civil status based partly on the Block 3 -- BIRTHPLACE, nationality, AND domicile
 51 . . . precisely as pointed out by the Supreme Court in Wong Kim Ark.

One of our members who is a state national, armed with the information from this pamphlet, went into the Social Security Administration office to file an SSA Form SS-5 to change their status from "U.S. citizen" is SSA Form SS-5, Block 5 and here is the response they got. Their identity shall remain anonymous, but here is their personal experience. They are among our most informed members and used every vehicle available on our website to prove their position at the SSA office:

On _____ I submitted my "Legal Alien Allowed to Work" SSA Form SS-5 modification pursuant to 20 C.F.R. §422.110(a). I was met with the recalcitrance that one would imagine, and then I "turned it on" in the style that one can only get from an SEDM education!! I was elevated to the local office manager. I insisted she input my information into the SSNAP as I have indicated, as no SSA "employee" can practice law on my behalf by providing me legal advice, mandating my political affiliations, or even sign my SS-5 under penalty of perjury, and that it was against the law for them to do so. She acknowledged that I was correct and proceeded to try.

*The manager took my information, my passport, disappeared, and then came back about 10 mins later asking for different ID. "Why . . . is my passport not good enough?" I asked. She said, "Well, the system will not let me input you as a 'Legal Alien Allowed to Work' with a U.S. Passport as your ID." I told her that my passport was evidence of nationality and not Block 5 citizenship. She told me I was correct and that "there must be something wrong with the system." She flat-out told me that Block 5 of the SSA Form SS-5 was NOT an inquiry into nationality -- which we know to be the case. It is also not an inquiry into HOW one obtains nationality. Which means it can only be a civil status based on domicile within or without the geographical legislative jurisdiction defined as the "United States**" in 42 U.S.C. §1301(a)(2).*

She came back a time later, telling me they scanned my Form SS-5 as well as all of the documentation that I brought (case law, diagrams, statutory and regulatory language), and that she had been instructed to send it to Baltimore (ostensibly by Baltimore) as well as my regional office. She was told that the information I wanted reflected in my Numident could only be "hard-coded" at the national level, as only they could bypass certain provisions in the SSNAP that local offices were relegated to adhere to! Well . . . surprise, surprise!!!

4.12.16.1.6 The Department of Homeland Security and Form I-9

U.S.C.I.S. Form I-9 also plays a very important role in protecting the status quo of the tax system. We know that U.S.C.I.S. Form I-9 has a very narrow application under the Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986, as there are a very few number of people who would be in a "position" of "employment" in the agricultural section under an executive "department."

The Department of Homeland Security administers the E-Verify program which receives two sources of data input -- the Social Security Numident Record, which is what the SSA has on file based on an applicant's SS-5, and the United States Customs and Immigration Service, which deals with the immigration status of FOREIGN NATIONALS. If U.S.C.I.S. deals with the immigration status of foreign nationals who are political aliens and ipso facto legal aliens only, then there is absolutely no information with regard to the legal "alien" status of an American National since they are not politically foreign. Furthermore, the government's regulation of private conduct is repugnant to the Constitution. And since the First Amendment guarantees the right to freedom of association, neither the SSA nor U.S.C.I.S. can even address or regulate the legal "alien" status of an American National when he/she chooses a foreign domicile. Since they cannot regulate it, they simply don't address it -- out of sight, out of mind!!! This has the practical effect of creating a psychological barrier that very few are able to overcome. After all, the thought process is as follows: "The E-Verify system does not recognize your declared status, therefore you must be wrong." It's absolutely brilliant if I do say so myself. We tell you . . . we admire the craftiness of these banksters more and more every day!!!

U.S.C.I.S. Form I-9 offers the following civil status designations which are determined precisely in the same manner in which they are determined for the purposes of SSA Form SS-5.

1. "A citizen of the United States" (this would be someone described by 8 U.S.C. §1401)
2. "A noncitizen national of the United States**", or of the United States** (8 U.S.C. §1408<sup>4</sup>, 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(22)(B), 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21))
3. "A lawful permanent resident"
4. "An alien authorized to work" -- the meaning of which is dependent completely on the applicable definition of "United States"

Now, just like on SSA Form SS-5, status number 4 changes applicability just like 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(3) can change based on the meaning of the term "United States" which is used. A political "alien" is going to be "alien" to the political nation called

1 the United States* and legally "alien" to ALL territory within the political jurisdiction of the nation -- United States** and
2 United States***. However, an State National domiciled in any of the 50 states is legally "foreign" to the territorial
3 subdivision of the United States* where an Act of Congress is locally applicable, this is otherwise known as United States**
4 and is comprised of the "States" of 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(36) and the "outlying possessions of the United States" pursuant to 8
5 U.S.C. §1101(a)(29). So the civil statuses of Section 1 on U.S.C.I.S. Form I-9 are predicated on BOTH nationality and
6 domicile -- and again, we see that what the Supreme Court said in Wong Kim Ark is true -- both nationality and domicile must
7 be considered to ascertain the complete legal status of the person in question. Thus, the statuses on U.S.C.I.S. Form I-9 are 8 determined differently for State Nationals and foreign nationals.

9 Now, here is the rub. Solicitors of U.S.C.I.S. Form I-9 will then take that form and query the DHS E-Verify system. If an
10 American National domiciled in the 50 states correctly declares an I-9 status of "A noncitizen national of the United States**"
11 commensurate with the "Legal Alien Allowed to Work" status on the SSA's Form SS-5 and with the "nonresident alien"
12 status under Title 26, a non-conclusory response will come back from the DHS E-Verify system. Why? Because DHS and
13 U.S.C.I.S. deal only with LEGAL aliens who are foreign nationals. The "alien" status of American Nationals falls 100%
14 outside of the purview of the Federal government. This is why the reference to an A# or Admission# on U.S.C.I.S. Form I-9
15 says "if applicable." Notice how a U.S. passport is used as evidence of "identity" and "employment" eligibility -- NOT
16 CITIZENSHIP. Furthermore, the boxed Anti-Discrimination Notice on page 1 of the U.S.C.I.S. Form I-9 instructions states
17 in bold, all-caps, that an "employer" CANNOT specify which documents an "employee" may submit in the course of 18 establishing "employment" eligibility.

19 So, why not just state that you are "A citizen of the United States" and then define the United States to mean the United
20 States* or the United States****? Two reasons: 1. This would be avoiding the dual-element aspect of a person's legal status
21 as addressed by the Supreme Court under Wong Kim Ark, and 2. An "employer" will not accept a IRS Form W-8 a worker
22 with an I-9 election of "U.S. citizen" -- I know this first-hand.

23 I believe it is safe to say that the vast majority of Americans have snared themselves in the STATUTORY "U.S. person" (26
24 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30)) tax trap. The Federal government provides the remedy by stating that a person may change personal
25 information such as citizenship status in the Social Security Numident record by submitting a corrected SSA Form SS-5. This 26 is detailed in 20 C.F.R. §422.110(a). We also know that the IRS has stated that an "individual" may change the status of 27 his/her SSN by following the regulatory guidance of 26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1(g)(1)(i). Since we know the IRS deals with 28 "taxpayers" and NOT non-"taxpayers," there is ONLY one way to change the status of one's SSN with the IRS, and that is to 29 file the appropriate Forms that a "nonresident alien" "taxpayer" would file -- namely a IRS Forms W-4, W-8ECI or a W-
30 8BEN with a SSN included. Had a Citizen of the 50 states NEVER declared the "U.S. citizen" federal domicile in the first
31 place which most have done in the course of obtaining an SSN, filling out a Bank Signature Card (Substitute IRS W-9), and
32 filing an IRS Form 1040, this "unwrapping oneself" from the damage done would never have to be done, as one would have 33 always maintained a legislatively foreign status. But a deceived man does not know that he has been deceived. But once he 34 figures it out, I believe he must follow the method provided by the government to remedy it. The government does provide 35 the remedy.

36 A Citizen of Florida who wishes to serve his nation in the Armed Forces would obtain a SSN as "Legal Alien Allowed to 37 Work" file an IRS Form W-4 as a "wage" earner who is in a "position" of "service" within the "department" of Defense, and 38 file a 1040NR on or before tax day. Then, upon returning to the private-sector, simply provide the private-sector payer with 39 a modified W-8BEN without the SSN. The Florida Citizen's status on file with the SSA reflects his foreign civil status to the 40 United States**, and this is further evidenced in his IRS IMF which would identify him as a "nonresident alien" "taxpayer."
41 All of the evidence the "United States" (non-geographical sense) would otherwise use against a "U.S. person" claiming a
42 "nonresident alien" status does not exist. In fact, it all supports his sovereign foreign status as an American National and State
43 Citizen under the Constitution as well as the various Acts of Congress. Additionally, the private-sector payer is indemnified
44 by the U.S.C.I.S. Form I-9 submission (which isn't really required anyway in the private-sector) and the W-8BEN. There is 45 not a voluntary W-4 agreement in place pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §3402(p)(3), thus the worker is not part of "payroll," but is 46 nothing more than a contractor who receives non-taxable personal payments from the company's 'accounts payable' pot of 47 money. Of course, this "nonresident alien" may of course still be a "taxpayer" due to "United States" sourced payments
48 received from a military retirement (IRS Form 1099R), and Social Security Payments (if applied for and received, SSA Form
49 SS-1042-S). Because he is a "nonresident alien," his "United States" sourced payments are of course taxed, but in his private 50 life, any payment he receives constitutes a foreign estate, the taxation of which must be accomplished through the process of 51 apportionment pursuant to Art I, Sec 9, Cl 4.

1 Be certain, the SSA Form SS-5, U.S.C.I.S. Form I-9, and the "U.S. Citizen" ruse is designed to box people into a federal
 2 "United States**" domicile. 99.99% of the people don't understand the Fourteenth Amendment or the complexities of civil
 3 status and how it is established based on both nationality and domicile. For this reason, the matrix tax system is protected by
 4 those who feed off of it. The government has provided everyone with the remedy. But it involves many government agencies
 5 and a complete understanding of how information is shared between agencies, what applies when and how, and also knowing
 6 when it doesn't. Furthermore, one has to be able to articulate this to others so that they also feel indemnified in the process.

9 This section deals with describing your status on the USA passport application. We won't go into detail on this subject

11 4.12.16.2 Answering Questions from the Government About Your Citizenship So As to Protect Your Sovereign 12 Status and disallow federal jurisdiction

13 When a federal officer asks you if you are a "citizen", consider the context! The only basis for him asking this is federal law,
 14 because he isn't bound by state law. If you tell him you are a "citizen" or a "U.S. citizen", then indirectly, you are admitting 15 that you are subject to federal law, because that's what it means to be a "citizen" under federal law! Watch out! Therefore,
 16 as people born in and domiciled within a state of the Union on land that is not federal territory, we need to be very careful
 17 how we describe ourselves on government forms. Below is what we should say in each of the various contexts to avoid 18 misleading those asking the questions on the forms. In this context, let's assume you were born in California and are 19 domiciled there. This guidance also applies to questions that officers of the government might ask you in each of the two 20 contexts as well:

Of California, but not the "State of California".                                                                                                                                                                                              | No. Not under federal law.                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| 2 | Are you a "national"?                                                     | Yes. Of California, but not the "State of California".                                                                                                                                                                                              | Yes. I'm a "national of the United States of America" under 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21) and under Perkins v. Elg, 307 U.S. 325 (1939).                                                                                        |

I am not a federal "citizen" because I don't maintain a domicile on federal territory.                                                                         |
| 4 | Are you subject to the political jurisdiction of the United States[]?   | Yes. I'm a state elector who influences federal elections indirectly by the representatives I elect.                                                                                                                                                | Yes. I'm a state elector who influences federal elections indirectly by the representatives I elect.                                                                                                                       |
| 5 | Are you subject to the legislative jurisdiction of the United States[]? | No. I am only subject to the legislative jurisdiction of California but not the "State of California". The "State of" California is a corporate subdivision of the federal government that only has jurisdiction in federal areas within the state. | No. I am only subject to the laws and police powers of California but not the State of California, and not the federal government, because I don't maintain a domicile on federal territory subject to "its" jurisdiction. |

Below is a sample interchange from a deposition held by a U.S. Attorney from the U.S. Department of Justice against a sui juris litigant who knows his rights and his citizenship status. The subject is the domicile and citizenship of the litigant. This dialog helps to demonstrate how to keep the discussion focused on the correct issues and to avoid getting too complicated. If you are expecting to be called into a deposition by a U.S. Attorney or any government attorney, we strongly suggest rehearsing the dialog below so that you know it inside and out:

Questions 1: Please raise your right hand so you can take the required oath.

Answer 1: I'm not allowed to swear an oath as a Christian. Jesus forbid the taking of oaths in Matt. 5:33-37. The courts have said that I can substitute an affirmation for an oath, and that I can freely prescribe whatever I want to go into the affirmation.

[8:222] Affirmation: A witness may testify by affirmation rather than under oath. An affirmation 'is simply a solemn undertaking to tell the truth.' [See FRE 603, Acv. Comm. Notes (1972); FRCP 43(d); and Ferguson v. Commissioner of Internal Revenue (5th Cir. 1991) 921 F.2d. 488, 489—affirmation is any form or statement acknowledging 'the necessity for telling the truth']

[8:224] 'Magic words' not required: A person who objects to taking an 'oath' may pledge to tell the truth by any 'form or statement which impresses upon the mind and conscience of a witness the necessity for telling the truth.' [See FRE 603, Adv. Comm. Notes (1972)—'no special verbal formula is required'; United States v. Looper (4th Cir. 1969), 419 F.2d. 1405, 1407; United States v. Ward (9th Cir. 1992), 989 F.2d. 1015, 1019] [Federal Civil Trials and Evidence (2005), Rutter Group, pp. 8C-1 to 8C-2]

Questions 2: Please provide or say your chosen affirmation

Answer 2: Here is my affirmation:

"I promise to tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth. Do not interrupt me at any point in this deposition or conveniently destroy or omit the exhibits I submit for inclusion in the record because you will cause me to commit subornation of perjury in violation of 18 U.S.C. §1622 and be guilty of witness tampering in violation of 18 U.S.C. §1512. This deposition constitutes religious and political beliefs and speech that are NOT factual and not admissible as evidence pursuant to Federal Rule of Evidence 610 if any portion of it is redacted or removed from evidence or not allowed to be examined or heard in its entirety by the jury or judge. It is ONLY true if the entire thing can be admitted and talked about and shown to the jury or fact finder at any trial that uses it.

Non-acceptance of this affirmation or refusal to admit all evidence submitted during this deposition into the record by the court shall constitute:

1. Breach of contract (this contract).
2. Compelled association with a foreign tribunal in violation of the First Amendment and in disrespect of the choice of citizenship and domicile of the deponent.
3. Evidence of unlawful duress upon the deponent.
4. Violation of this Copyright/User/Shrink wrap license agreement applying to all materials submitted or obtained herein.

The statements, testimony, and evidence herein provided impose a license agreement against all who use it. The deposer and the government, by using any portion of this deposition as evidence in a civil proceeding, also agree to grant witness immunity to the deponent in the case of any future criminal proceeding which might use it pursuant to 18 U.S.C. §6002.

Any threats of retaliation or court sanctions or punishment because of this Affirmation shall also constitute corruptly threatening and tampering with a witness in violation of 18 U.S.C. §1512.

This affirmation is an extension of my right to contract guaranteed under Article I, Section 10 of the United States Constitution and may not be interfered with by any court of the United States.

I am appearing here today as a fiduciary, foreign ambassador, minister of a foreign state, and a foreign government, God's government on earth. The ONLY civil laws which apply to this entire proceeding are the laws of my domicile, being God's Kingdom and the Holy Bible New King James Version, pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17\(b\) and Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 44.1. The Declaration of Independence says that all just powers of government derive from the consent of the governed, and the ONLY laws that I consent to are those found in the Holy Bible. Domicile is the method of describing the laws that a person voluntarily consents to, and the Bible forbids me to consent to the jurisdiction of any laws other than those found in the Holy Bible.

Questions 3: Where do you live

Answer 3: In my body.

Question 4: Where does your body sleep at night?

Question 5: Where is the bed geographically located?

Answer 5: On the territory of my Sovereign, who is God. The Bible says that God owns all the Heavens and the Earth, which leaves nothing for Caesar to rule. See Gen. 1:1, Psalm 89:11-13, Isaiah 45:12, Deut. 10:14. You're trying to create a false presumption that I have allegiance to you and must follow your laws because I live on your territory. It's not your territory. God is YOUR landlord, and if my God doesn't exist, then the government doesn't exist either because they are both religions and figments of people's imagination. You can't say that God doesn't exist without violating the First Amendment and disestablishing my religion and establishing your own substitute civil religion called "government". What you really mean to ask is what is my domicile because that is the origin of all of your civil jurisdiction over me, now isn't it?

Questions 6: Where is your domicile?

Answer 6: My domicile establishes to whom I owe exclusive allegiance, and that allegiance is exclusively to God, who is my ONLY King, Lawgiver, and Judge. Isaiah 33:22. The Bible forbids me to have allegiance to anyone but God or to nominate a King or Ruler to whom I owe allegiance or obedience. See 1 Sam. 8:4-8 and 1 Sam. 12. Consequently, the only place I can have a domicile is in God's Kingdom on Earth, and since God owns all the earth, I'm a citizen of Heaven and not any man-made government, which the Bible confirms in Phil. 3:20. You're trying to recruit me to commit idolatry by placing a civil ruler above my allegiance to God, which is the worst sin of all documented in the Bible and violates the first four commandments of the Ten Commandments. The Bible also says that I am a pilgrim and stranger and sojourner on earth who cannot be conformed to the earth, and therefore cannot have a domicile within any man-made government, but only God's government. Hebrews 11:13, 1 Pet. 2:1, Romans 12:2.

Questions 7: Are you a "U.S. citizen"?

Answer 7: Which of the three "United States" do you mean? The U.S. Supreme Court identified three distinct definitions of "United States" in Hooven & Allison Co. v. Evatt, 324 U.S. 652 \(1945\)? If there are three different "United States", then it follows that there are three different types of "U.S. citizens", now doesn't it?

Questions 8: You don't know which one of the three are most commonly used on government forms?

Answer 8: That's not the point here. You are the moving party and you have the burden of proof. You are the one who must define exactly what you mean so that I can give you an unambiguous answer that is consistent with prevailing law. I'm not going to do your job for you, and I'm not going to encourage injurious presumptions about what you mean by the audience who will undoubtedly read this deposition. Presumption is a biblical sin. See Numbers 15:30, New King James version. I won't sit here and help you manufacture presumptions about my status that will prejudice my God given rights.

Questions 9: Are you a "resident" of the United States?

Answer 9: A "resident" is an alien with a domicile within your territory. I don't have a domicile within any man-made government so I'm not a "resident" ANYWHERE. I am not an "alien" in relation to you because I was born here. That makes me a "national" pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1101\(a\)\(21\) but not a statutory "citizen" as defined in

1 8 U.S.C. §1401. All statutory citizens are persons born somewhere in the United States and who have a domicile
2 on federal territory, and I'm NOT a statutory "citizen".

4 Questions 10: What kind of "citizen" are you?

5 Answer 10: I'm not a "citizen" or "resident" or "inhabitant" of any man-made government, and what all those statuses have
6 in common is domicile within the jurisdiction of the state or forum. I already told you I'm a citizen of God's
7 Kingdom and not Earth because that is what the Bible requires me to be as a Christian. Being a "citizen" implies
8 a domicile within the jurisdiction of the government having general jurisdiction over the country or state of my
9 birth. I can only be a "citizen" of one place at a time because I can only have a domicile in one place at a time.
10 A human being without a domicile in the place that he is physically located is a transient foreigner, a stranger,
11 and a stateless person in relation to the government of that place. That is what I am. I can't delegate any of my 12 God-given sovereignty to you or nominate you as my protector by selecting a domicile within your jurisdiction
13 because the Bible says I can't conduct commerce with any government and can't nominate a king or protector
14 over or above me. Rev. 18:4, 1 Sam. 8:4-8 and 1 Sam. 12. The Bible forbids oaths, including perjury oaths,
15 which means I'm not allowed to participate in any of your franchises or excise taxes, submit any of your forms,
16 or sign any contracts with you that would cause a surrender of the sovereignty God gave me as his fiduciary
17 and "public officer". See Matt. 5:33-37. I also can't serve as your "public officer", which is what all of your 18 franchises do to me, because no man can serve two masters. Luke 16:13. I have no delegated authority from 19 the sovereign I represent here today, being God, to act as your agent, fiduciary, or public officer, all of which is 20 what a "taxpayer" is.

21 "You were bought at a price; do not become slaves of men [and remember that government 22 is made up of men]."
23 [1 Cor. 7:23, Bible, NKJV]

24 "We ought to obey God rather than men."
25 [Acts 5:27-29, Bible, NKJV]

27 Questions 11: Who issued your passport?

28 Answer 11: The "United States of America" issued my passport, not the "United States". The Articles of Confederation
29 identify the United States of America as the confederation of states of the Union, not the government that was 30 created to serve them called the "United States". See United States v. Curtiss-Wright Export Corporation, 299
31 U.S. 304 (1936). The only thing you need to get a passport is allegiance to "United States" pursuant to 22
32 U.S.C. §212. The "United States" they mean in that statute isn't defined and it could have one of three different
33 meanings. Since the specific meaning is not identified, I define "allegiance to the United States" as being 34 allegiance to the people in the states of the Union and NOT the pagan government that serves them in the District
35 of Criminals. No provision within the U.S. Code says that I have to be a statutory "U.S. citizen" pursuant to 8
36 U.S.C. §1401 in order to obtain a passport or that possession of a passport infers or implies that I am a statutory
37 "U.S. citizen". A passport is not proof of citizenship, but only proof of allegiance. The only citizenship status
38 that carries with it exclusively allegiance is that of a "national" but not a "citizen" pursuant to 8 U.S.C.
39 §1101\(a\)\(21\). That and only that is what I am as far as citizenship. There is no basis to imply or infer anything
40 more than that about my citizenship. You have the burden of proof if you allege otherwise, and I insist that you
41 satisfy that burden of proof right here, right now on the public record of this deposition before I can truthfully
42 and unambiguously answer ANY of your questions about citizenship.

43 "...the only means by which an American can lawfully leave the country or return to it - absent a Presidentially
44 granted exception - is with a passport... As a travel control document, a passport is both proof of identity and
45 proof of allegiance to the United States. Even under a travel control statute, however, a passport remains in a
46 sense a document by which the Government vouches for the bearer and for his conduct. "
47 Haig v. Agee, [453 U.S. 280 (1981)]

49 Questions 12: Are you the "citizen of the United States" described in section 1 of the Fourteenth Amendment?

50 Answer 12: The term "United States" as used in the Constitution signifies the states of the Union and excludes federal 51 territories and possessions.

52 "The earliest case is that of Hepburn v. Ellzey, 2 Cranch, 445, 2 L.Ed. 332, in which this court held that, under
53 that clause of the Constitution limiting the jurisdiction of the courts of the United States to controversies between
54 citizens of different states, a citizen of the District of Columbia could not maintain an action in the circuit court
55 of the United States. It was argued that the word 'state,' in that connection, was used simply to denote a distinct
56 political society. 'But,' said the Chief Justice, 'as the act of Congress obviously used the word 'state' in reference to that term as used in the Constitution, it becomes necessary to inquire whether Columbia is a state in the sense of that instrument. The result of that examination is a conviction that the members of the American confederacy only are the states contemplated in the Constitution, . . . and excludes from the term the signification attached to it by writers on the law of nations.' This case was followed in Barney v. Baltimore, 6 Wall. 280, 18 L.Ed. 825, and quite recently in Hooe v. Jamieson, 166 U.S. 395, 41 L.Ed. 1049, 17 Sup.Ct.Rep. 596. The same rule was applied to citizens of territories in New Orleans v. Winter, 1 Wheat. 91, 4 L.Ed. 44, in which an attempt was made to distinguish a territory from the District of Columbia. But it was said that 'neither of them is a state in the sense in which that term is used in the Constitution.' In Scott v. Jones, 5 How. 343, 12 L.Ed. 181, and in Miners' Bank v. Iowa ex rel. District Prosecuting Attorney, 12 How. 1, 13 L.Ed. 867, it was held that under the judiciary act, permitting writs of error to the supreme court of a state in cases where the validity of a state statute is drawn in question, an act of a territorial legislature was not within the contemplation of Congress." [Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901) ]

Therefore, the term "citizen of the United States" as used in section 1 of the Fourteenth Amendment implies a citizen of one of the 50 states of the Union who was NOT born within or domiciled within any federal territory or possession and who is NOT therefore subject to any of the civil laws of the national government.

"The 1st section of the 14th article [Fourteenth Amendment], to which our attention is more specifically invited, opens with a definition of citizenship—not only citizenship of the United States[***], but citizenship of the states. No such definition was previously found in the Constitution, nor had any attempt been made to define it by act of Congress. It had been the occasion of much discussion in the courts, by the executive departments and in the public journals. It had been said by eminent judges that no man was a citizen of the United States[***] except as he was a citizen of one of the states composing the Union. Those therefore, who had been born and resided always in the District of Columbia or in the territories, though within the United States[*], were not citizens." [Slaughter-House Cases, 83 U.S. (16 Wall.) 36, 21 L.Ed. 394 (1873)]

"It is impossible to construe the words 'subject to the jurisdiction thereof,' in the opening sentence [of the Fourteenth Amendment, Section 1], as less comprehensive than the words 'within its jurisdiction,' in the concluding sentence of the same section; or to hold that persons 'within the jurisdiction' of one of the states of the Union are not 'subject to the jurisdiction of the United States[***].'" [U.S. v. Wong Kim Ark, 169 U.S. 649, 18 S.Ct. 456; 42 L.Ed. 890 (1898), emphasis added]

A constitutional citizen, which is what you are describing, is not a statutory "U.S. citizen" pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1401 and may not describe himself as a "citizen" of any kind on any federal form. If I have ever done that, I was in error and you should disregard any evidence in your possession that I might have done such a thing because now I know that it was wrong.

4.12.16.3 Arguing or Explaining Your Citizenship in Litigation Against the Government

A very common misconception about citizenship employed by IRS and Department of Justice Attorneys in the course of litigation is the following false statement:

"Constitutional citizens born within states of the Union and domiciled there are statutory "citizens of the United States" pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1401, the Internal Revenue Code at 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(c), 26 U.S.C. §911."

The reasons why the above is false are explained elsewhere in this document. An example of such false statements is found in the Department of Justice Criminal Tax Manual (1994), Section 40.05[7]:

40.05[7] Defendant Not A "Person" or "Citizen"; District Court Lacks Jurisdiction Over Non-Persons and State Citizens

40.05[7][a] Generally

Another popular protester argument is the contention that the protester is not subject to federal law because he or she is not a citizen of the United States, but a citizen of a particular "sovereign" state. This argument seems to be based on an erroneous interpretation of 26 U.S.C. §3121(e)(2), which states in part: "The term 'United States' when used in a geographical sense includes the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, Guam, and American Samoa." The "not a citizen" assertion directly contradicts the Fourteenth Amendment, which states "all persons born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States and of the state wherein they reside." The argument has been rejected time and again by the courts. See United States v. Cooper, 170 F.3d 691, 691(7th Cir. 1999) (imposed sanctions on tax protester defendant making "frivolous squared" argument that only residents of Washington, D.C. and other federal enclaves are citizens of United States and subject to federal tax laws); United States v. Mundt, 29 F.3d. 233, 237 (6th Cir.

1994) (rejected "patently frivolous" argument that defendant was not a resident of any "federal zone" and therefore not subject to federal income tax laws); United States v. Hilgeford, 7 F.3d. 1340, 1342 (7th Cir. 1993) (rejected "shop worn" argument that defendant is a citizen of the "Indiana State Republic" and therefore an alien beyond the jurisdictional reach of the federal courts); United States v. Gerads, 999 F.2d. 1255, 1256-57 (8th Cir. 1993) (imposed $1500 sanction for frivolous appeal based on argument that defendants were not citizens of the United States but instead "Free Citizens of the Republic of Minnesota" not subject to taxation); United States v. Silevan, 985 F.2d. 962, 970 (8th Cir. 1993) (rejected as "plainly frivolous" defendant's argument that he is not a "federal citizen"); United States v. Jagim, 978 F.2d. 1032, 1036 (9th Cir. 1992) (rejected "imaginative" argument that defendant cannot be punished under the tax laws of the United States because he is a citizen of the "Republic" of Idaho currently claiming "asylum" in the "Republic" of Colorado) United States v. Masat, 948 F.2d. 923, 934 (5th Cir. 1991); United States v. Sloan, 939 F.2d. 499, 500-01 (7th Cir. 1991) ("strange argument" that defendant is not subject to jurisdiction of the laws of the United States because he is a "freeborn natural individual" citizen of the State of Indiana rejected); United States v. Price, 798 F.2d. 111, 113 (5th Cir. 1986) (citizens of the State of Texas are subject to the provisions of the Internal Revenue Code).

Notice the self-serving and devious "word or art" games and "word tricks" played by the Dept. of Injustice in the above:

1. They deliberately don't show you the WHOLE definition in 26 U.S.C. §3121(e), which would open up a HUGE can of worms that they could never explain in a way that is consistent with everything that people know other than the way it is explained here.
2. They FALSELY and PREJUDICIALLY "presume" that there is no separation of powers between federal territory and states of the Union, which is a violation of your rights and Treason punishable by death. The separation of powers is the very foundation of the Constitution, in fact. See:

Government Conspiracy to Destroy the Separation of Powers, Form #05.023
3. They deliberately refuse to recognize that the context in which the term "United States" is used determines its meaning.
4. They deliberately refuse to recognize that there are THREE definitions of the term "United States" according to the U.S. Supreme Court.
5. They deliberately refuse to reconcile which of the three mutually exclusive and distinct definitions of "United States" applies in each separate context and WHY they apply based on the statutes they seek to enforce.
6. They deliberately refuse to recognize or admit that the term "United States" as used in the Constitution includes states of the Union and excludes federal territory.
7. They deliberately refuse to apply the rules of statutory construction to determine what is "included" within the definition of "United States" found in 26 U.S.C. §3121(e)(2). They don't want to admit that the definition is ALL inclusive and limiting, because then they couldn't collect any tax, even though it is.

TITLE 26 > Subtitle C > CHAPTER 21 > Subchapter C > § 3121
§ 3121. Definitions

(e) State, United States, and citizen

For purposes of this chapter—

(1) State

The term "State" includes the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, Guam, and American Samoa. [WHERE are the states of the Union?]

(2) United States

The term "United States" when used in a geographical sense includes the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, Guam, and American Samoa. [WHERE are the states of the Union?]

"When a statute includes an explicit definition, we must follow that definition, even if it varies from that term's ordinary meaning. Meese v. Keene, 481 U.S. 465, 484-485 (1987) ("It is axiomatic that the statutory definition of the term excludes unstated meanings of that term"); Colausti v. Franklin, 439 U.S. at 392-393, n. 10 ("As a rule, 'a definition which declares what a term 'means' . . . excludes any meaning that is not stated'"); Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Lenroot, 323 U.S. 490, 502 (1945); Fox v. Standard Oil Co. of N.J., 294 U.S. 87, 95-96 (1935) (Cardozo, J.); see also 2A N. Singer, Sutherland on Statutes and Statutory Construction § 47.07, p. 152, and n. 10 (5th ed. 1992) (collecting cases). That is to say, the statute, read "as a whole," post at 998 [530 U.S. 943] (THOMAS, J., dissenting), leads the reader to a definition. That definition does not include the Attorney General's restriction -- "the child up to the head." Its words, "substantial portion," indicate the contrary." [Stenberg v. Carhart, 530 U.S. 914 (2000)]

"It is axiomatic that the statutory definition of the term excludes unstated meanings of that term. Colautti v. Franklin, 439 U.S. 379, 392, and n. 10 (1979). Congress' use of the term "propaganda" in this statute, as indeed in other legislation, has no pejorative connotation. As judges, it is our duty to [481 U.S. 485] construe legislation as it is written, not as it might be read by a layman, or as it might be understood by someone who has not even read it." [Meese v. Keene, 481 U.S. 465, 484 (1987)]

"As a rule, a definition which declares what a term "means" . . . excludes any meaning that is not stated" [Colautti v. Franklin, 439 U.S. 379 (1979), n. 10]

Therefore, if you are going to argue citizenship in federal court, we STRONGLY suggest the following lessons learned by reading the Department of Justice Criminal Tax Manual article above:

1. Include all the language contained in the following in your pleadings:

Rules of Presumption and Statutory Interpretation, Litigation Tool #01.006
<http://sedm.org/Litigation/LitIndex.htm>

2. If someone from the government asks you whether you are a "citizen of the United States" or a "U.S. citizen":
  - 2.1. Cite the three definitions of the "United States" explained by the Supreme Court and then ask them to identify which of the three definitions of "U.S." they mean. Tell them they can choose ONLY one of the definitions.
    - 2.1.1. The COUNTRY "United States**".
    - 2.1.2. Federal territory and no part of any state of the Union "United States***"
    - 2.1.3. States of the Union and no part of federal territory "United States****"
  - 2.2. Ask them WHICH of the three types of statutory citizenship do they mean in Title 8 of the U.S. Code and tell them they can only choose ONE:
    - 2.2.1. 8 U.S.C. §1401 and 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(22)(A) statutory "citizen of the United States***". Born in and domiciled on a federal territory and possession and NOT a state of the Union.
    - 2.2.2. 8 U.S.C. §1408 and 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(22)(B) statutory "national of the United States***". Born in and domiciled in American Samoa or Swains Island.
    - 2.2.3. 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21) state national. Born in and domiciled in a state of the Union and not subject to federal legislative jurisdiction but only subject to political jurisdiction.
  - 2.3. Hand them the following short form printed on double-sided paper and signed by you. Go to section 7 and point to the "national" status in diagram. Tell them you want this in the court record or administrative record and that they agree with it if they can't prove it wrong with evidence.

Citizenship, Domicile, and Tax Status Options, Form #10.003
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

If you want more details on how to field questions about your citizenship, fill out government forms describing your citizenship, or rebut arguments that you are wrong about your citizenship, we recommend sections 11 through 13 of the following:

Why You are a "national", "state national", and Constitutional but not Statutory Citizen, Form #05.006
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

3. If your opponent won't answer the above questions, then forcefully accuse him of engaging in TREASON by trying to destroy the separation of powers that is the foundation of the United States Constitution. Tell them you won't help them engage in treason or undermine the main protection for your constitutional rights, which the Supreme Court said comes from the separation of powers. Then direct them at the following document that proves the existence of such TREASON.

Government Conspiracy to Destroy the Separation of Powers, Form #05.023

4. Every time you discuss citizenship with a government representative, emphasize the three definitions of the "United States" explained by the Supreme Court and that respecting and properly applying these definitions consistently is how we respect and preserve the separation of powers.
5. Admit to being a constitutional "citizen of the United States***" but not a statutory "citizen of the United States***". This will invalidate almost all the case law they cite and force them to expose their presumptions about WHICH "United States" they are trying to corn-hole you into.
6. Emphasize that the context in which the term "United States" is used determines WHICH of the three definitions applies and that there are two main contexts.

1 "It is clear that Congress, as a legislative body, exercise two species of legislative power: the one, limited as to
2 its objects, but extending all over the Union: the other, an absolute, exclusive legislative power over the District
3 of Columbia. The preliminary inquiry in the case now before the Court, is, by virtue of which of these authorities
4 was the law in question passed?"

5 [Cohens v. Virginia, 19 U.S. 264, 6 Wheat. 265; 5 L.Ed. 257 \(1821\)]

6 6.1. The Constitution: states of the Union and no part of federal territory. This is the "Federal government"

7 6.2. Federal statutory law: Community property of the states that includes federal territory and possession that is no
8 party of any state of the Union. This is the "National government".

9 7. Emphasize that you can only be a "citizen" in ONE of the TWO unique geographical places above at a time because you
10 can only have a domicile in ONE of the two places at a time. Another way of saying this is that you can only have 11 allegiance to ONE MASTER at a time and won't serve two masters, and domicile is based on allegiance.

12 "domicile. A person's legal home. That place where a man has his true, fixed, and permanent home and
13 principal establishment, and to which whenever he is absent he has the intention of returning. Smith v. Smith,
14 206 Pa.Super. 310, 213 A.2d. 94. Generally, physical presence within a state and the intention to make it one's
15 home are the requisites of establishing a "domicile" therein. The permanent residence of a person or the place
16 to which he intends to return even though he may actually reside elsewhere. A person may have more than one
17 residence but only one domicile. The legal domicile of a person is important since it, rather than the actual
18 residence, often controls the jurisdiction of the taxing authorities and determines where a person may exercise
19 the privilege of voting and other legal rights and privileges."

20 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 485]

21 "Thus, the Court has frequently held that domicile or residence, more substantial than mere presence in transit
22 or sojourn, is an adequate basis for taxation, including income, property, and death taxes. Since the Fourteenth
23 Amendment makes one a citizen of the state wherein he resides, the fact of residence creates universally
24 reciprocal duties of protection by the state and of allegiance and support by the citizen. The latter obviously
25 includes a duty to pay taxes, and their nature and measure is largely a political matter. Of course, the situs of
26 property may tax it regardless of the citizenship, domicile, or residence of the owner, the most obvious illustration
27 being a tax on realty laid by the state in which the realty is located."

28 [Miller Brothers Co. v. Maryland, 347 U.S. 340 (1954) ]

29 8. Emphasize that it is a violation of due process of law and an injury to your rights for anyone to PRESUME anything
30 about which definition of "United States" applies in a given context or which type of "citizen" you are. EVERYTHING
31 must be supported with evidence as we have done here.

32 (1) [8:4993] Conclusive presumptions affecting protected interests: A conclusive presumption may be defeated
33 where its application would impair a party's constitutionally-protected liberty or property interests. In such 34 cases, conclusive presumptions have been held to violate a party's due process and equal protection
35 rights. [Vlandis v. Kline (1973) 412 U.S. 441, 449, 93 S.Ct. 2230, 2235; Cleveland Bd. of Ed. v. LaFleur (1974)
36 414 US 632, 639-640, 94 S.Ct. 1208, 1215-presumption under Illinois law that unmarried fathers are unfit
37 violates process]

38 [Rutter Group Practice Guide-Federal Civil Trials and Evidence, paragraph 8:4993, page 8K-34]

39 9. Emphasize that applying the CORRECT definition is THE MOST IMPORTANT JOB of the court, as admitted by the 40 U.S. Supreme Court, in order to maintain the separation of powers between the federal zone and the states of the Union,
41 and thereby protect your rights:

42 "The idea prevails with some, indeed it has found expression in arguments at the bar, that we have in this country
43 substantially two national governments; one to be maintained under the Constitution, with all of its restrictions;
44 the other to be maintained by Congress outside the independently of that instrument, by exercising such powers
45 [of absolutism] as other nations of the earth are accustomed to. I take leave to say that, if the principles thus 46 announced should ever receive the sanction of a majority of this court, a radical and mischievous change in
47 our system of government will result. We will, in that event, pass from the era of constitutional liberty guarded
48 and protected by a written constitution into an era of legislative absolutism.. It will be an evil day for American
49 liberty if the theory of a government outside the supreme law of the land finds lodgment in our constitutional
50 jurisprudence. No higher duty rests upon this court than to exert its full authority to prevent all violation of 51 the principles of the Constitution."

52 [Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901)]

53 10. Emphasize that anything your opponent does not rebut with evidence under penalty of perjury is admitted pursuant to 54 Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 8(b)(6) and then serve them with a Notice of Default on the court record of what they 55 have admitted to by their omission in denying.

56 11. Focus on WHICH "United States" is implied in the definitions within the statute being enforced.

- 1 12. Avoid words that are not used in statutes, such as “state citizen” or “sovereign citizen” or “natural born citizen”, etc.
 2 because they aren’t defined and divert attention away from the core definitions themselves.
- 3 13. Rationally apply the rules of statutory construction so that your opponent can’t use verbicide or word tricks to wiggle
 4 out of the statutory definitions with the word “includes”. See:
- Legal Deception, Propaganda, and Fraud, Form #05.014
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>
- 5 14. State that all the cases cited in the Department of Justice Criminal Tax Manual are inapposite, because:
 6 14.1. You aren’t arguing whether you are a “citizen of the United States”, but whether you are a STATUTORY “citizen
 7 of the United States”.
- 8 14.2. They don’t address the distinctions between the statutory and constitutional definitions nor do they consistently 9 apply the rules of statutory construction.
- 10 15. Emphasize that a refusal to stick with the legal definitions and include only what is expressly stated and not “presume”
 11 or read anything into it that isn’t there is an attempt to destroy the separation of powers and engage in a conspiracy
 12 against your Constitutionally protected rights.

13 “Judicial verbicide is calculated to convert the Constitution into a worthless scrap of paper and to replace our 14 government of laws with a judicial oligarchy.”
 15 [Senator Sam Ervin, during Watergate hearing]

17 “When words lose their meaning [or their CONTEXT WHICH ESTABLISHES THEIR MEANING], people lose 18 their freedom.”
 19 [Confucius (551 BCE - 479 BCE) Chinese thinker and social philosopher]

21 4.12.16.4 Federal court statutory remedies for those who are “state nationals” injured by government

22 State nationals domiciled in a constitutional state have RIGHTS protected by the constitution. Statutory “citizens” domiciled
 23 on federal territory have only PRIVILEGES. If you are a state national who is being COMPELLED to illegally impersonate
 24 a public officer called a STATUTORY “citizen”, the following remedies are provided to protect your INALIENABLE
 25 CONSTITUTIONAL RIGHTS as a state national from being converted into STATUTORY PRIVILEGES.

- 26 1. If you are “denied a right or privilege as a national of the United States*” then you can sue under 8 U.S.C. §1503(a)
 27 and 8 U.S.C. §1252. See Hassan v. Holder, Civil Case No 10-00970 and Raya v. Clinton, 703 F.Supp.2d. 569 (2010).
 28 Under this statute:
- 29 1.1. 8 U.S.C. §1408 “non-citizen nationals of the United States**” in American Samoa and Swain’s Island would sue 30 for deprivation of a PRIVILEGE.
- 31 1.2. State nationals domiciled outside the statutory “United States” but physically present on federal territory could 32 sue for deprivation of a constitutional right.
- 33 2. If you are a “national of the United States*” who is victimized by acts of international or domestic terrorism, you can 34 sue under 18 U.S.C. §2333. See also Boim v. Quranic Literacy Institute, 340 F.Supp.2d. 885 (2004).

35 All the above cases cited refer to people born in constitutional states as “nationals of the United States” under Title 8 of the 36 U.S. Code. Therefore, they protect BOTH non-citizen nationals under 8 U.S.C. §1408 and state nationals domiciled outside 37 the federal zone and in a state of the Union.

38 4.12.17 Expatiation

39 “Expatiation is the voluntary renunciation or abandonment of nationality and allegiance.” Perkins v. Elg, 40 1939, 307 U.S. 325, 59 S.Ct. 884, 83 L.Ed. 1320. In order to be relieved of the duties of allegiance, consent of 41 the sovereign is required. Mackenzie v. Hare, 1915, 239 U.S. 299, 36 S.Ct. 106, 60 L.Ed. 297. Congress has 42 provided that the right of expatriation is a natural and inherent right of all people, and has further made a 43 legislative declaration as to what acts shall amount to an exercise of such right.”
 44 [Tomoya Kawakita v. United States, 190 F.2d. 506 (1951)]

4.12.17.1 Definition

Expatriation is the process of eliminating one's nationality [e.g. "U.S. National"] but not necessarily one's "U.S. citizen" status under federal statutes. You would never learn this by reading any legal dictionary we could find, because the government simply doesn't want you to know this! Here is the definition from the most popular legal dictionary:

"expatriation. The voluntary act of abandoning or renouncing one's country, and becoming the citizen or subject of another."
[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 576]

Notice they didn't say a word about "nationality" and "allegiance" in the above definition because the lawyers who wrote this don't want their "tax slaves" to know how to escape the federal plantation! The chains that bind the slaves to the plantation are deceitful "words of art" found in the laws and doctrines of the Pharisees that keep people from learning the truth. The Bible warned us this would happen and we shouldn't be surprised:

*Then Jesus said to them, "Take heed and beware of the leaven [teachings, laws, doctrine, and publications] of the Pharisees [lawyers] and the Sadducees." ....How is it you do not understand that I did not speak to you concerning bread?—but to beware of the leaven of the Pharisees and the Sadducees." Then they understood that He did not tell them to beware of the leaven of bread, but of the doctrine [legal dictionaries, laws, and teachings] of the Pharisees and Sadducees.

The supreme court has also said that certain actions other than explicit formal expatriation may result in the equivalent of expatriation:

"It has long been recognized that citizenship may not only be voluntarily renounced through exercise of the right of expatriation, but also by other actions in derogation of undivided allegiance to this country. While the essential qualities of the citizen-state relationship under our Constitution preclude the exercise of governmental power to divest United States citizenship, the establishment of that relationship did not impair the principle that conduct of a citizen showing a voluntary transfer of allegiance is an abandonment of citizenship. Nearly all sovereignties recognize that acquisition of foreign nationality ordinarily shows a renunciation of citizenship. Nor is this the only act by which the citizen may show a voluntary abandonment of his citizenship. Any action by which he manifests allegiance to a foreign state may be so inconsistent with the retention of citizenship as to result in loss of that status. In recognizing the consequence of such action, the Government is not taking away United States citizenship to implement its general regulatory powers, for, as previously indicated, in my judgment, citizenship is immune from divestment under these [356 U.S. 69] powers. Rather, the Government is simply giving formal recognition to the inevitable consequence of the citizen's own voluntary surrender of his citizenship."

4.12.17.2 Right of expatriation

The courts have ruled that expatriation is a natural right essential to the protection of one's liberty:

*"Almost a century ago, Congress declared that "the right of expatriation [including expatriation from the District of Columbia or "U.S. Inc", the corporation] is a natural and inherent right of all people, indispensable to the enjoyment of the rights of life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness," and decreed that "any declaration, instruction, opinion, order, or decision of any officers of this government which denies, restricts, impairs, or questions the right of expatriation, is hereby declared inconsistent with the fundamental principles of this government." 15 Stat. 223-224 (1868), R.S. §1999, 8 U.S.C. § 800 (1940).<sup>219</sup> Although designed to apply especially to the rights of immigrants to shed their foreign nationalities, that Act of Congress "is also broad enough to cover, and does cover, the corresponding natural and inherent right of American citizens to expatriate themselves." Savorgnan v. United States, 1950, 338 U.S. 491, 498 note 11, 70 S.Ct. 292, 296, 94 L.Ed. 287.<sup>220</sup> The Supreme Court has held that the Citizenship Act of 1907 and the Nationality Act of 1940 "are to be read in the light of the declaration of policy favoring freedom of expatriation which stands unrepealed." Id., 338 U.S. at pages 498-499, 70 S.Ct. at page 296. That same light, I think, illuminates 22 U.S.C.A. § 211a and 8 U.S.C.A. § 1185."*

As we stated earlier in section 4.9, your citizenship/nationality status is voluntary according to the supreme Court<sup>221</sup>, which means that any type of citizenship or nationality status you may have may be voluntarily abandoned or renounced by you at any time without the permission of anyone in the government, as long as you follow the prescribed procedures in place if there are any. The U.S. supreme Court has also said that the citizenship “contract” is a one way contract. Once the government makes this contract with you, they cannot renege on it and take away your citizenship or nationality because otherwise they could use this ability to politically persecute you and exile you, as so many other countries do throughout the world to their dissenters. Only you can therefore initiate the process of losing your privileged “U.S. citizenship” status as a voluntary act not under compulsion.

“In our country the people are sovereign and the Government cannot sever its relationship to the people by taking away their citizenship. Our Constitution governs us and we must never forget that our Constitution limits the Government to those powers specifically granted or those that are necessary and proper to carry out the specifically granted ones. The Constitution, of course, grants Congress no express power to strip people of their citizenship, whether in the exercise of the implied power to regulate foreign affairs or in the exercise of any specifically granted power.

“The entire legislative history of the 1868 Act makes it abundantly clear that there was a strong feeling in the Congress that the only way the citizenship it conferred could be lost was by the voluntary renunciation or abandonment by the citizen himself. And this was the unequivocal statement of the Court in the case of United States v. Wong Kim Ark.”

4.12.17.3 Compelled Expatriation as a punishment for a crime

Likewise, the supreme Court of the United States has also ruled that the government may not pass a penal law for which the punishment is the forfeiture of U.S. citizenship:

“Citizenship is not a license that expires upon misbehavior. The duties of citizenship are numerous, and the discharge of many of these obligations is essential to the security and well-being of the Nation. The citizen who fails to pay his taxes or to abide by the laws safeguarding the integrity of elections deals a dangerous blow to his country. But could a citizen be deprived of his nationality for evading these basic responsibilities of citizenship? In time of war the citizen's duties include not only the military defense of the Nation but also full participation in the manifold activities of the civilian ranks. Failure to perform any of these obligations may cause the Nation serious injury, and, in appropriate circumstances, the punishing power is available to deal with derelictions of duty. But citizenship is not lost every time a duty of citizenship is shirked. And the deprivation of citizenship [356 U.S. 86, 93] is not a weapon that the Government may use to express its displeasure at a citizen's conduct, however reprehensible that conduct may be. As long as a person does not voluntarily renounce or abandon his citizenship, and this petitioner has done neither, I believe his fundamental right of citizenship is secure. On this ground alone the judgment in this case should be reversed.

“We believe, as did Chief Judge Clark in the court below, 33 that use of denationalization as a punishment is barred by the Eighth Amendment. There may be involved no physical mistreatment, no primitive torture. There is instead the total destruction of the individual's status in organized society. It is a form of punishment more primitive than torture, for it destroys for the individual the political existence that was centuries in the development. The punishment strips the citizen of his status in the national and international political community. His very existence is at the sufferance of the country in which he happens to find himself. While any one country may accord him some rights, and presumably as long as he remained in this country he would enjoy the limited rights of an alien, no country need do so because he is stateless. Furthermore, his enjoyment of even the limited rights of an alien might be subject to termination [356 U.S. 86, 102] at any time by reason of deportation. 34 In short, the expatriate has lost the right to have rights.

“This punishment is offensive to cardinal principles for which the Constitution stands. It subjects the individual to a fate of ever-increasing fear and distress. He knows not what discriminations may be established against him, what proscriptions may be directed against him, and when and for what cause his existence in his native land may be terminated. He may be subject to banishment, a fate universally decried by civilized people. He is stateless, a condition deplored in the international community of democracies. 35 It is no answer to suggest that all the disastrous consequences of this fate may not be brought to bear on a stateless person. The threat makes the punishment obnoxious. 36

 2 punishment for crime. It is true that several countries prescribe expatriation in the event that their nationals
 3 engage in conduct in derogation of native allegiance. 37 Even statutes of this sort are generally applicable
 4 primarily [356 U.S. 86, 103] to naturalized citizens. But use of denationalization as punishment for crime is an
 5 entirely different matter. The United Nations' survey of the nationality laws of 84 nations of the world reveals
 6 that only two countries, the Philippines and Turkey, impose denationalization as a penalty for desertion. 38 In 7 this country the Eighth Amendment forbids this to be done.

8 "In concluding as we do that the Eighth Amendment forbids Congress to punish by taking away citizenship, we
 9 are mindful of the gravity of the issue inevitably raised whenever the constitutionality of an Act of the National
 10 Legislature is challenged. No member of the Court believes that in this case the statute before us can be construed
 11 to avoid the issue of constitutionality. That issue confronts us, and the task of resolving it is inescapably ours.
 12 This task requires the exercise of judgment, not the reliance upon personal preferences. Courts must not consider
 13 the wisdom of statutes but neither can they sanction as being merely unwise that which the Constitution forbids.
 14 "

15 [Trop v. Dulles, 358 U.S. 86 (1958)]

16 4.12.17.4 Amending your citizenship status to regain your rights: Don't expatriate!

17 Because all "U.S. citizens" are also "nationals" under 8 U.S.C. §1401 (see the beginning of that section, which says "The 18 following shall be nationals and citizens of the United States at birth:"), then if you are a privileged statutory "U.S. citizen"
 19 under 8 U.S.C. §1401, you actually have two aspects of your statutory citizenship that you can renounce or surrender
 20 voluntarily. Title 8, Chapter 12, Subchapter III, Part III define the rules for expatriating your nationality, but conspicuously
 21 say nothing about how to eliminating only one's privileged "U.S. citizen" status without removing your "national" status.
 22 Knowing what we know now about our covetous politicians and how they try to use your privileged "U.S. citizen" status as
 23 a justification to have jurisdiction over you and control and tax you, does it then surprise you that that the Master won't tell
 24 the slaves how to loose their chains? We showed earlier in section 4.12.3 that the only difference between a "citizen" and a
 25 "national" is one's "domicile". We will also see in section 5.4.8 that domicile is voluntary. Therefore, the primary vehicle
 26 by which one can change their status from that of a "citizen" to a "national but not a citizen" is to voluntarily change one's 27 legal domicile.

28 You will find that there is a lot of confusion in the freedom community over the distinctions between "U.S. citizen" and
 29 "national" and "state national" status, and the government likes to add as much to this confusion as they can so they can keep
 30 you from gaining your freedom. It is quite common for "promoters" to try to tell you that you should renounce your 31 nationality to become a "state citizen" to regain your sovereignty and stop paying income taxes and they will try to sell you
 32 an "expatriation" package for upwards of $2,500 that will eliminate your nationality. However, you don't always need to 33 eliminate your "national" status in order to not be a federal "U.S. citizen" under federal statutes and this point is so very 34 important that we repeat it in several places in this book. For example, Eddie Kahn used to try to sell people an expatriation
 35 package for $495 that he said would eliminate their nationality, but you don't want to do this if you work for the government
 36 or the military and hold a security clearance. Doing this can be disastrous because you can't hold a federal security clearance
 37 without being either a "U.S. citizen" or a "national"! If you are an officer in the U.S. military, you also must forfeit your 38 commission (10 U.S.C. §532(a)(1)) and your retirement benefits (see Chapter 6 of DOD 7000.14-R, Volume 7B, "Military 39 Pay Policy and Procedures for Retired Pay." Chapter 6 is "Foreign Citizenship after Retirement.") if you renounce your "U.S.
 40 citizen" status! Because some people confuse "U.S. citizen" status with "national" status, they therefore get themselves in a 41 heap of trouble. Another way they get themselves in trouble is 26 U.S.C. §877 establishes a penalty for "Expatriation to 42 avoid tax", and remember that expatriation, in that context means loss of nationality and not loss of "U.S. citizen" status.
 43 The government can't penalize you for surrendering your "U.S. citizen" status under this section but they definitely try to 44 penalize you for losing your nationality! Watch out because you don't want to make more trouble for yourself!

45 If you want to have your liberties back, the only way you will get them back is to abandon or renounce your privileged federal 46 "U.S. citizen" status under 8 U.S.C. §1401 to become a "national but not a citizen" under 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21). As we just 47 said earlier, this process is effected mainly by changing your legal domicile. It should come as no surprise that the federal 48 government will give you absolutely no help and no law or administrative procedure that tells you how to do this because
 49 they don't quite frankly want you doing it! They want everyone to be tax slaves and subject citizens living on the federal
 50 plantation, and they are NOT going to help the slaves leave the federal plantation voluntarily. Here are some of the potent
 51 roadblocks they have put in your way to prevent you from regaining your freedom and returning to your de jure state as a
 52 "national but not a citizen" under federal law:

1. They have invented a new word for “domicile” called “residence”, which may only be used to describe “aliens” and not nationals, and encouraged the misuse of the word to prejudice the rights of citizens. See section 4.9 earlier and section 5.4.8 later.
2. They have disguised the fact that you are choosing a “domicile” on government forms, by giving it a new name called “permanent address”, “permanent residence”, etc. instead of simply “domicile”.
3. They have used the “word of art” called “United States” on government forms without defining its true meaning, which means the federal zone. Thus, they have encouraged false presumption about the use of the word that ultimately makes you into a privileged alien “resident” domiciled in the federal zone.
4. They have defined the word “domicile” in the legal dictionary to remove the requirement of “consent” and replace it with “intent”. This is not consistent with the purpose behind why the word domicile was established to begin with, which was to give people a choice and require their consent in choosing the legal system under which they want to be protected. See section 5.4.8 later.
5. They have created misleading change of address forms and voter registrations to send to the DMV, tax authorities, etc. that use the word “residence” instead of “domicile” and not defined the meaning of the word on their forms, knowing full well that they were making the applicant into privileged aliens in the process. See: <http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Forms/Emancipation/ChangeOfAddressAttachment.htm>.
6. They have refused to directly define the term “resident” in any IRS publication, because they don’t want people to know that only aliens with a domicile in the District of Columbia can be “residents” under the Internal Revenue Code. See section 4.9 earlier for details.
7. They have tried to intimidate, harass, and confuse people who send citizenship amendment paperwork to the attorney general or who try to get their passport updated. Some people who have sent their passport to the Department of State to get the “U.S. National” endorsement added to page 24 have had the passport held hostage for months and been the recipients of threatening and harassing correspondence from the Dept. of State that contains frivolous arguments that don’t address the issues in the amendment request letter.
8. Those who write the Dept. of State and talk with Sharon Palmer-Royston (202-261-8314), the legal affairs supervisor there, about their passport are basically lied to and she refuses to address any of the issues appearing in:

Tax Deposition Questions, Section 14, Family Guardian Fellowship
<http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Forms/Discovery/Deposition/Section%2014.htm>

The only reason the federal government might think you are a statutory “U.S. citizen” under 8 U.S.C. §1401 to begin with is because of forms you filled out incorrectly over your lifetime and the incorrect “presumptions” that they produce which bias your rights. These presumptions in most cases are documented in the paperwork they maintain about you, such as passport applications, voter registrations, driver’s license applications, and tax returns, etc. You are and always have been a “national” or a “state national”. The only thing you have ever needed to do to maintain that status is change the government’s paperwork which you submitted in most cases, to properly reflect that fact. Whether you change or amend government records from a statutory “U.S. citizen” under 8 U.S.C. §1401 to being either a “U.S. national” under 8 U.S.C. §1408 or a “national” under 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21) depends on your needs and is up to you. A detailed procedure appears in section 4.5.3.13 of the Sovereignty Forms and Instructions Manual, Form #10.005 for eliminating your “U.S. citizen” status but not your “national” status. If you want to expatriate your “nationality” instead of remove your domicile from the federal zone to abandon your “U.S. citizen” status, the procedure is the same but the document is slightly different. It was difficult to develop this procedure because as we just pointed out, the government gives you absolutely no help, no administrative procedure, no regulations, and no laws that tell you how to do this for obvious reasons. There is a sample document that corrects government records documenting your true citizenship status by removing presumptions that you are a privileged “U.S. citizen” under 8 U.S.C. §1401 below:

Legal Notice of Change in Domicile/Citizenship Records and Divorce from the United States, Form #10.001

We don’t provide forms or procedures for expatriating your “nationality” or “national” status under 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(22) (for possessions) or the Fourteenth Amendment (for constitutional states) because we have never had an occasion to do it and we don’t recommend it to anyone anyway.

WARNING!: Citizenship status is NOT the primary factor in determining your tax liability. Instead, the following factors primarily determine one's tax liability under Subtitle A of the Internal Revenue Code:

1. Your domicile. See section 5.4.19 entitled "Why all income taxes are based on domicile and are voluntary because domicile is voluntary."
2. The taxable activity you engage in. See sections 5.6.13 through 5.6.13.11.

Changing one's citizenship status DOES NOT result in eliminating an existing liability for 1040 income taxes under Subtitle A of the Internal Revenue Code. We have never made any claim otherwise in any of our materials. The only affect that correcting government records describing one's citizenship can have is:

1. Restoring one's sovereignty. Under the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act (F.S.I.A.), 28 U.S.C. §1603\(b\) and under 28 U.S.C. §1332\(c\) and (d), a legal person cannot be classified as an agency or instrumentality of a foreign state if they are a citizen of a [federal] state of the United States, meaning a person born in a federal territory, possession, or the District of Columbia as defined in 4 U.S.C. §110\(d\). This conclusion is also confirmed on the Department of State website at: http://travel.state.gov/law/info/judicial/judicial\_693.html
2. Removing oneself from some aspect of federal legislative jurisdiction. A "citizen" under federal law, is defined as a person subject to federal jurisdiction. This is covered in Great IRS Hoax, section 4.11.2, for instance.
3. Making sure that a person's domicile cannot be involuntarily moved to the District of Columbia. Both 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(39\) or 26 U.S.C. §7408\(d\) allow that a person who is a "citizen" or a "resident" under the Internal Revenue Code, should be treated as having a domicile in the District of Columbia for the purposes of federal jurisdiction. Since kidnapping is illegal under 18 U.S.C. §1201, then a person who is not a "citizen or resident" under federal law needs to take extraordinary efforts to ensure that their citizenship is not misunderstood or misconstrued by the federal government by going back and making sure that all federal forms which indicate one's citizenship status are truthful and unambiguous. The process of correcting government forms relating to citizenship is described in section 4.5.3.13 of the Sovereignty Forms and Instructions Manual, Form #10.005.

The reason why the last item above is very important is that the term "United States" is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(9\) and (a)(10) as being limited to the District of Columbia and the term is not enlarged elsewhere under Subtitle A of the Code. If it ain't defined anywhere in the code to include states of the Union, then under the rule of statutory construction, "Expressio unius, exclusio alterius", what is not specifically included may be excluded by implication. Therefore, if a person is either a "citizen" or a "resident" under federal law, then they are treated as domiciliaries of the main place where Subtitle A of the Internal Revenue Code applies, which is the District of Columbia, and become the proper subjects of the code.

1 When you renounce your privileged "U.S. citizen" status to become a nonprivileged "national", you must keep the following
2 very important considerations in mind:

- 3 1. Before you institute the process of correcting government records to eliminate false presumptions of federal "U.S.
4 citizen" status under 8 U.S.C. §1401, you should read and understand this chapter completely, so the government can't 5 pull any fast ones on you during the process.
- 6 2. Ensure that you have evidence and documentation you can use in court if you ever need it of every step you take in the 7 renunciation process. You may need it later if you ever end up in court. For instance, everything you send should be
8 notarized with a proof of service and you should keep the original copy and send the copy to the government. Original 9 documents are easier to get admitted into evidence in court than are photocopies, and this will become very important in 10 the future if you ever have to litigate over your citizenship status.
- 11 3. Be careful! The government will go fishing for any excuse they can to call you an 8 U.S.C. §1401 federal "U.S. citizen"
12 because that is how they draw you into their jurisdictional spider web and suck your blood dry. You should never admit
13 to ever having been a "U.S. citizen" either verbally or in writing, and every piece of paper they show either you or a
14 court claiming or indicating that you are a "U.S. citizen" should be rebutted as being mistaken, fraudulent, and submitted
15 under duress. For instance, if they pull out an old passport application in which you claimed to be a "U.S. CITIZEN", 16 then you should correct them by saying you are a "national" and say that you were mistaken and misinformed at the time.
17 Then show them your renunciation document and your birth certificate clearly showing that you were not born on federal 18 land. If you don't rebut such evidence or offer counter-evidence, then the court and the jury will erroneously assume 19 that you agree with your opponent that you are a "U.S. citizen", which would be a disaster. Shift the burden of proving

1 that you are a “U.S. citizen” to them when you can. Insist that NOTHING be presumed and everything be proven so that
2 your due process rights under the Fifth and Sixth Amendments are respected.

- 3 4. You must abandon your 8 U.S.C. §1401 federal “U.S. citizen” status completely voluntarily and without any kind of 4 duress or compulsion. This means you can’t be doing it for financial reasons, for instance, to avoid taxes because you
5 are in a bind, or the courts will not honor your renunciation. Never admit to being under financial duress in renouncing 6 citizenship, even if you indeed are.
- 7 5. You should never tell the government you are renouncing your “nationality” in order to avoid paying taxes, because then
8 they may try to incorrectly apply 26 U.S.C. §877 in order to try penalize you by forcing you to pay taxes for a ten year
9 period after you renounce your “U.S. citizenship”.
- 10 6. You aren’t obligated to explain to anyone why you renounced your citizenship but if you get backed into a corner by an 11 itinerant judge, for instance, into telling people why you did it, you should always say that you did it in order to protect
12 and preserve your liberties by making yourself a nonprivileged person. Remind them that you can’t be a sovereign 13 individual if you are receiving government privileges and that personal sovereignty is your goal.
- 14 7. You should emphasize to every government representative during the renunciation process that you are not eliminating 15 your “national” status or your allegiance to the “United States”, but your “U.S. citizen” status
- 16 8. Don’t let any government agent try to talk you out of the renunciation process or try to confuse you by saying that they 17 don’t have any procedures to do it so it must not be authorized. They will try to do this because they don’t want you
18 doing it or because, more often, they are just plain ignorant of the law, which is why they are government slaves to begin
19 with. Of course it is authorized because the courts said you could do it in our cite above from Briehl and they even said
20 why you can do it: to protect your liberties. Remember that you can’t have liberty or live in a free country if citizenship
21 status isn’t voluntary, and just tell them you don’t want to volunteer to be a “U.S. citizen” and want to only be a
22 “national”, and because all “U.S. citizens” are also “nationals”, they can’t take away your national status and you don’t 23 want to lose that.
- 24 9. Because the extortionists in the federal government don’t want to give you your freedom, they are likely to resist
25 correcting your citizenship status to that of a “national” but not statutory citizen. Because of this, they are likely to drag
26 their feet, conveniently lose your correspondence, and delay providing you your “Certificate of non-Citizen National 27 Status” under 8 U.S.C. §1452. You may therefore need to use a third party notary to help you and serve them with a 28 Notice of Default with a Proof of Service after the time period for responding to your 8 U.S.C. §1452 request has expired.
- 29 10. We recommend using our citizenship abandonment/amendment procedure found in section 4.5.3.13 of the Sovereignty
30 Forms and Instructions Manual, Form #10.005 to ensure that you accomplish all the necessary steps properly.
- 31 11. We don’t have a paralegal we can recommend to help you with your citizenship amendment process as documented in 32 this book. You will just have to be resourceful and locate your own. Please don’t call us to ask about this either because 33 we not only won’t help you, but we will ask you why you didn’t follow our directions.

34 4.12.18 Duties and Responsibilities of Citizens

35 So far, we have talked a lot about the “rights” of the various citizens, but what about the responsibilities and duties? What 36 are the obligations of being a citizen? That’s the subject of this section.

37 The main responsibility of any good citizen is to enforce the laws of the federal Constitution upon our state and federal 38 governments. As they say:

40 Eternal vigilance for the citizen must take many forms. Here are a few:

- 41 1. Obey all government laws that do not conflict with God’s laws and/or our conscience while disobeying government 42 laws that conflict, so that:
  - 43 1.1. We don’t offend God or our moral beliefs by violating His laws.
  - 44 1.2. We don’t hurt our fellow citizens or burden our government in prosecuting or punishing us for our crimes.
- 45 2. Taking complete and personal responsibility for defending our own life, liberty, property, and family as best that we 46 can from encroachments by other citizens or especially the government. This will minimize the burden on government 47 of defending us.
- 48 3. Taking personal responsibility for completely supporting ourselves so that we never become a burden to either the 49 government or our fellow citizens who support the government:

1 "Make it your ambition to lead a quiet life, to mind your own business and to work with your hands, just as we
 2 told you, so that your daily life may win the respect of outsiders and so that you will not be dependent on 3 anybody."

4 [1 Thess. 4:9-12, Bible, NIV]

5 4. Recognizing that government is force and that force and charity are fundamentally incompatible.

6 "Government is not reason. It is not eloquence. It is a force, like fire: a dangerous servant and a terrible master"

7 [George Washington]

8 Therefore, good citizens will:

- 9 4.1. Vote in such a way that we elect people into public office who do not allow government to involve itself in 10 charity or social welfare programs.
- 11 4.2. Involve themselves in church and charitable causes, and giving to the needy, so that we don't get so selfish that 12 government HAS to step in and take over the job of charity that we refuse to do.
- 13 4.3. Try to keep the tax rates down so that people have maximal control over their own labor and property.
- 14 4.4. Refuse to pay money to the government in "taxes" that will be used to support anything but the government,
 15 because this amounts to an abuse of the tax system. The legal definition of "taxes" demands that they may only 16 be used to support the government, and not private citizens or private enterprises or private fortunes such as the 17 federal reserve:

18 "To lay with one hand the power of government on the property of the citizen, and with the other to bestow it on 19 favoured individuals.. is none the less robbery because it is done under the forms of law and is called taxation.

21 [Loan Association v. Topeka, 20 Wall. 655 (1874)]

22 "A tax, in the general understanding of the term and as used in the constitution, signifies an exaction for the 23 support of the government. The word [tax] has never thought to connote the 24 expropriation of money from one group for the benefit of another."

25 [U.S. v. Butler, 297 U.S. 1 (1936)]

26 "Surely the matters in which the public has the most interest are the supplies of food and clothing; yet can it be
 27 that by reason of this interest the state may fix the price at which the butcher must sell his meat, or the vendor of 28 boots and shoes his goods? Men are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, -life, liberty, and 29 the pursuit of happiness; and to 'secure,' not grant or create, these rights, governments are instituted. That 30 property which a man has honestly acquired he retains full control of, subject to these limitations: First, that
 31 he shall not use it to his neighbor's injury, and that does not mean that he must [can be compelled to] use it
 32 for his neighbor's benefit [e.g. Social Security, Medicare, etc]; second, that if he devotes it to a public use, he 33 gives to the public a right to control that use; and third, that whenever the public needs require, the public may 34 take it upon payment of due compensation."

35 [Budd v. People of State of New York, 143 U.S. 517 (1892)]

36 5. Being self-governing within our own families, so that we do not become subject to any type of government jurisdiction
 37 or laws in our normal everyday affairs. This will minimize the size and power of the government so that they don't 38 become oppressive and don't have to become our "parens patriae" or parent. Our free Family Constitution describes 39 how to do this at:

41 6. Continually educating oneself so that we cannot be deceived or controlled by government, or are unable to support
 42 ourselves and have to depend on government.

42 "The price of eternal vigilance is eternal education."

43 "Knowledge will forever govern ignorance; and a people who mean to be their own governors must arm 44 themselves with the power which knowledge gives."

45 [James Madison (Letter to W.T. Barry, August 4, 1822)]

46 7. Enforcing the U.S. Constitution upon the state and federal governments, and especially the Bill of Rights.

47 7.1. Amendments 1 through 10 and 13 establish several rights that the federal government may not invade.

48 7.2. The Fourteenth Amendment says the states may also not violate these rights either.

49 8. The way citizens enforce the U.S. Constitution against the federal and state governments are as follows:

1 8.1 Voting consistently in elections and picking the candidates who are honorable and will follow the Constitution and
2 honor their promises. (the Ballot Box)

3 "A share in the sovereignty of the state, which is exercised by the citizens at large, in voting at elections is one of 4 the most important rights of the subject, and in a republic ought to stand foremost in the estimation of the law. "
5 *[Alexander Hamilton, The Papers of Alexander Hamilton, Harold C. Syrett, ed. (New York, Columbia University
6 Press, 1962), Vol III, pp. 544-545.]*

7 8.2 If candidates get elected who are not honorable, serving enthusiastically as a juror to nullify the bad laws they
8 write. (the Jury Box)

9 8.3 If jury nullification doesn't work, defend your property against government tyranny using your right to own
10 firearms (the Cartridge Box)

11 9. Making sure that our government doesn't become fiscally irresponsible and load us down with debt, and later use that 12 as a justification to oppressively tax us:

13 *"Funding I consider as limited, rightfully, to a redemption of the debt within the lives of a majority of the 14 generation contracting it; every generation coming equally, by the laws of the Creator of the world, to the free
15 possession of the earth He made for their subsistence, unincumbered by their predecessors, who, like them, were 16 but tenants for life."*
17 [Thomas Jefferson to John Taylor, 1816. ME 15:18 ]

18 "[The natural right to be free of the debts of a previous generation is] a salutary curb on the spirit of war and 19 indebtedment, which, since the modern theory of the perpetuation of debt, has drenched the earth with blood, and 20 crushed its inhabitants under burdens ever accumulating."
21 [Thomas Jefferson to John Wayles Eppes, 1813. ME 13:272 ]

22 *"We believe--or we act as if we believed--that although an individual father cannot alienate the labor of his son,
23 the aggregate body of fathers may alienate the labor of all their sons, of their posterity, in the aggregate, and
24 oblige them to pay for all the enterprises, just or unjust, profitable or ruinous, into which our vices, our passions
25 or our personal interests may lead us. But I trust that this proposition needs only to be looked at by an American 26 to be seen in its true point of view, and that we shall all consider ourselves unauthorized to saddle posterity with 27 our debts, and morally bound to pay them ourselves; and consequently within what may be deemed the period of 28 a generation, or the life of the majority."*
29 [Thomas Jefferson to John Wayles Eppes, 1813. ME 13:357 ]

30 "It is incumbent on every generation to pay its own debts as it goes. A principle which if acted on would save one-31 half the wars of the world."
32 [Thomas Jefferson to A. L. C. Destutt de Tracy, 1820. FE 10:175 ]

33 *To preserve [the] independence [of the people,] we must not let our rulers load us with perpetual debt. We must 34 make our election between economy and liberty, or profusion and servitude. If we run into such debts as that we 35 must be taxed in our meat and in our drink, in our necessaries and our comforts, in our labors and our 36 amusements, for our callings and our creeds, as the people of England are, our people, like them, must come to 37 labor sixteen hours in the twenty-four, give the earnings of fifteen of these to the government for their debts and 38 daily expenses, and the sixteenth being insufficient to afford us bread, we must live, as they now do, on oatmeal
39 and potatoes, have no time to think, no means of calling the mismanagers to account, but be glad to obtain 40 subsistence by hiring ourselves to rivet their chains on the necks of our fellow-sufferers."*
41 [Thomas Jefferson to Samuel Kercheval, 1816. ME 15:39 ]

42 10. Watching what our government does like a hawk and:

43 10.1. Publicizing violations of the Constitution whenever you see them. This is what we do in Chapter 6 of this book
44 by showing the history of how our civil servants have corrupted and debased our de jure government to make an 45 unlawful de facto government.

46 10.2. Prosecuting specific wrongdoers working in government who violate the Constitutional rights of individuals
47 using a Bivens action or a civil rights or discrimination lawsuit.

48 In America, the Republic, we most assuredly have separation of church and state, the First Amendment and the last paragraph,
49 last sentence, of Article VI of the federal Constitution ensure this.

50 "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof"
51 [U.S. Constitution, First Amendment]

52 "...no religious Test shall ever be required as a Qualification to any Office or public Trust under the United 53 States."

1 [U.S. Constitution, Article VI]

2 A good government, however, is one whose laws do not conflict in any way with God's laws so that it does not expect citizens
3 to violate their religious beliefs in order to obey its laws. Citizens do not enforce God's law directly on anyone but perhaps
4 themselves, individually, and perhaps also within their own families, if they are believers. Nor do Constitutional governments
5 enforce God's law directly on anyone or anything. No one in America, the Republic, is required to belong to any religious
6 organization, or even believe if any God, to be a good person and a good citizen.

7 Governments are not ruled by God nor God's law but by the Law of the federal and state Constitutions. In fact, the 8 Constitution is the only law that government has to obey and was established exclusively to obey. It says that right in the 9 Constitution itself:

10 "This Constitution, and the Laws of the United States which shall be made in Pursuance thereof; and all Treaties
11 made, or which shall be made, under the Authority of the United States, shall be the supreme Law of the Land;
12 and the Judges in every State shall be bound thereby, any Thing in the Constitution or Laws of any state to the 13 Contrary notwithstanding."
14 [U.S. Constitution, Article VI, Section 2]

15 The federal and state Constitutions express the will of the sovereign people as individuals ("We The People") and delegate
16 specific but not exclusive authority to the federal and state governments. Any act by specific public servants in the 17 government that is not authorized by either the federal or state Constitutions is an illegal act and good citizens will 18 conscientiously prosecute government officials privately for such illegal acts if they injure the rights of anyone.

19 "Unlawful. That which is contrary to, prohibited, or unauthorized by law. That which is not lawful. The acting
20 contrary to, or in defiance of the law; disobeying or disregarding the law. Term is equivalent to "without excuse
21 or justification." State v. Noble, 90 N.M. 360, 563 P.2d. 1153, 1157. While necessarily not implying the element
22 of criminality, it is broad enough to include it."
23 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1536]

24 When such an injury or violation of law occurs, the remedy is not to sue "the government", but to sue the public official 25 personally because he was not acting under the authority of law and was abusing his public office for personal gain to the 26 injury of sovereign Americans.

27 God and His law may be enforced against natural persons primarily and we ought to avoid applying them to the government
28 in order to promote separation of church and state. However, when a government servant violates his authority delegated
29 through the Constitution and has thereby acted as a private individual to injure a fellow citizen, then we as the sovereigns
30 sitting on a jury can and should apply God's moral laws or our conscience to determine how to punish the errant public
31 servant and thereby protect our fellow aggrieved citizen. In exercising their duties as jurors, sovereign Americans may 32 completely ignore all Supreme Court decisions and question the righteousness of any legislation and disregard any they feel 33 unjust.

34 When we apply God's laws and/or our conscience as jurors, we should do so with much discretion by not publicizing exactly
35 how or why we are doing this, but simply quietly do our best based on our behavior and our decision to ensure that a just
36 result occurs that is consistent with our conscience and with God's moral laws. Remember that jurors do not have to explain
37 or justify to a judge why they arrived at a decision. The only time that jurors might be called upon to explain their decision
38 is to fellow jurors during deliberations. We shouldn't thump the Bible or get pious or become a missionary as a jurist, but 39 simply talk about what is right and wrong in a generic sense.

40 "But our rulers can have no authority over such natural rights, only as we have submitted to them. The rights of 41 conscience we never submitted, we could not submit. We are answerable for them to our God. The legitimate 42 powers of government extend to such acts as are injurious to others."
43 [Thomas Jefferson in "Notes on Virginia"]

44 Good citizens are constantly aware that government is a "business", or more properly, a "corporation" (see 28 U.S.C.
45 §3002(15)(A)), and they know that the sinful and selfish tendency of those in government is to get into every business except 46 the constitutional purpose of its creation, so they watch their government like a hawk.

47 "Nothing is more essential to the establishment of manners in a State than that all persons employed in places of 48 power and trust be men of unexceptionable characters. The public cannot be too curious concerning the character
49 of public men."

[Samuel Adams, The Writings of Samuel Adams, Harry Alonzo Cushing, editor (New York: G.P. Putnam's Sons, 1907), Vol. III, p. 236-237]

"Experience should teach us to be most on our guard to protect liberty when the Government's purposes are beneficent. Men born to freedom are naturally alert to repel invasion of their liberty by evil-minded rulers. The greatest dangers to liberty lurk in insidious encroachment by men of zeal, well-meaning but without understanding."

[Justice Louis D. Brandeis, dissenting, Olmstead v. United States, 277 U.S. 438 (1928)]

The reason to be a citizen is to have liberty, which is simply freedom with personal responsibility. People who are free MUST govern and support themselves entirely and can be beholden to no man. In America, unlike in Europe, the "state" consists of the people and not some king or dictator who rules over them, and they govern themselves through their elected representatives.

"State. A people permanently occupying a fixed territory bound together by common-law habits and custom into one body politic exercising, through the medium of an organized government, independent sovereignty and control over all persons and things within its boundaries, capable of making war and peace and of entering into international relations with other communities of the globe. United States v. Kusche, D.C.Cal., 56 F.Supp. 201 207, 208. The organization of social life which exercises sovereign power in behalf of the people. Delany v. Moralitis, C.C.A.Md., 136 F.2d. 129, 130. In its largest sense, a "state" is a body politic or a society of men. Beagle v. Motor Vehicle Acc. Indemnification Corp., 44 Misc.2d. 636, 254 N.Y.S.2d. 763, 765. A body of people occupying a definite territory and politically organized under one government. State ex re. Maisano v. Mitchell, 155 Conn. 256, 231 A.2d. 539, 542. A territorial unit with a distinct general body of law. Restatement, Second, Conflicts, §3. Term may refer either to body politic of a nation (e.g. United States) or to an individual government unit of such nation (e.g. California)."

[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1407]

In our constitutional Republic, citizens as their own governors protect each other from government abuse and abuse by other citizens using legislation (laws) and the courts. In particular, citizens protect each other from government abuse when serving on a jury and when voting for a candidate. Christians cannot correctly disregard the duties of citizenship, such as voting and jury service, and at the same time obey Christ's command to love your neighbor, because the purpose of being a good citizen is to protect your neighbor from abuse by the government and other fellow citizens.

The only constitutional reason citizens vote for, or elect, any candidate to public office is with the understanding that the candidate will honor the oath of office. They do this in the name of preserving their liberty. The voter cannot rightly/correctly demand or "will" the candidate to do anything else simply because it is a Law of the Constitution the oath be taken before entering the office elected to as found in Article VI of the federal Constitution, last paragraph:

"The Senators and Representatives before mentioned, and the Members of the several State Legislatures, and all executive and judicial Officers, both of the United States and of the several States, shall be bound by Oath or Affirmation, to support this Constitution; but no religious Test shall ever be required as a Qualification to any Office or public Trust under the United States."

[U.S. Constitution, Article VI]

This oath is also found in Article II, Section 1 of the Constitution:

"Before he enter on the Execution of his Office, he shall take the following Oath or Affirmation: -- "I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will faithfully execute the Office of President of the United States, and will to the best of my Ability, preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States."

[U.S. Constitution, Article II, Section 1]

New citizens pledge allegiance to the Constitution when they are naturalized, and rightly so. See immigrant oath to become an American. The process of naturalization, in fact, is defined as the process of conferring nationality, which is then defined as someone who has allegiance:

TITLE 8 > CHAPTER 12 > SUBCHAPTER 1 > Sec. 1101.
Sec. 1101. - Definitions

(a) As used in this chapter -

(23) The term "naturalization" means the conferring of nationality of a state upon a person after birth, by any means whatsoever.

TITLE 8 > CHAPTER 12 > SUBCHAPTER 1 > Sec. 1101.
Sec. 1101. - Definitions

(21) The term "national" means a person owing permanent allegiance to a state.

As a matter of fact the definition of an American is a constitutional "citizen of the United States" under the Fourteenth Amendment, Section 1 and a "national" under 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21) who pledges allegiance to the Constitution, and renounces any allegiance to any foreign country and or any King of any country. His duty as a citizen is the same as that of the Constitution, which is to promote the "general welfare":

"We the People of the United States, in Order to form a more perfect Union, establish Justice, insure domestic Tranquillity, provide for the common defence, promote the general Welfare, and secure the Blessings of Liberty to ourselves and our Posterity, do ordain and establish this Constitution for the United States of America. "
[Preamble to the Constitution]

The above phrase means exactly what it says, "the general welfare, ...of the UNITED STATES", where "State" means the collection of people within a territory. It does not mean the government of that region, because that government may not be obeying the Constitution and to obey tyrants who are in violation of the Constitution is to commit treason.

Also in the body of the Constitution at Article I, Section 8 says; "general Welfare of the United States". "Welfare" in this case does NOT mean charity or socialism by any means. The Constitution, in fact, does not authorize the government to involve itself in any insurance or welfare program such as Medicare, Social Security, Food stamps, or any other program. Such programs are anathema to the legislative intent of the Constitution and result in government dependence, not personal sovereignty. The purpose of the Constitution is to ensure a separation of powers and the sovereignty and independence of the people as individuals from the government. Sovereignty and government-dependency are mutually exclusive. The original Articles of Confederation that preceded the Constitution, in fact, said that freeloaders were not entitled to the privileges and immunities of citizens!

"The better to secure and perpetuate mutual friendship and intercourse among the people of the different States in this Union, the free inhabitants of each of these States, paupers, vagabonds and fugitives from justice excepted, shall be entitled to all privileges and immunities of free citizens in the several States; and the people of each state shall have free ingress and regress to and from any other State, and shall enjoy therein all the privileges of trade and commerce, subject to the same duties, impositions and restrictions as the inhabitants thereof respectively, provided that such restriction shall not extend so far as to prevent the removal of property imported into any state, to any other state of which the Owner is an inhabitant; provided also that no imposition, duties or restriction shall be laid by any state, on the property of the United States, or either of them."
[Articles of Confederation, Article IV]

Here is the definition of "paupers and vagabonds":

"Vagabond. A vagrant or homeless wanderer without means of honest livelihood. Neering v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 383 Ill. 366, 50 N.E.2d. 497, 502. One who wanders from place to place, having no fixed dwelling, or, if he has one, not abiding in it; a wanderer, especially such a person who is lazy and generally worthless without means of honest livelihood."
[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1548]

"Vagrant. At common law, wandering or going about from place to place by idle person who had no lawful or visible means of support and who subsisted on charity and did not work, though able to do so. State v. Harlowe, 174 Wash. 227, 24 P.2d. 601. A general term, including, in English law, the several classes of idle and disorderly persons, rogues, and vagabonds, and incorrigible rogues. One who wanders from place to place; an idle wanderer, specifically, one who has no settled habitation, nor any fixed income or livelihood. A vagabond; a tramp. A person able to work who spends his time in idleness or immorality, having no property to support him and without some visible and known means of fair, honest, and reputable livelihood. State v. Oldham, 224 N.C. 415, 30 S.E.2d. 318, 319. One who is apt to become a public charge through his own laziness. People, on Complaint of McDonough, v. Gesino, Sp.Sess., 22 N.Y.S.2d. 284, 285. See Vagabond; Vagrancy."
[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1548]

Incidentally, the above also happens to describe most of the people who work for the government. We know, because some of us worked for the federal government and were always frustrated with the irresponsible attitudes of government coworkers! Most are do-nothing no-loads who effectively are "retired on duty" (R.O.D.). Hee...hee...hee. Based on the above, those who

1 must draw from the government through charity or socialist welfare programs as a private citizen cannot have the rights or
2 privileges of citizenship under the original Articles of Confederation, and that is exactly what happens to those who participate
3 in our present Social Security or the government’s tax system.

4 4.12.19 Citizenship Summary

5 Having thoroughly covered all aspects of citizenship in this section, we will now summarize what we have learned by showing
6 you how to practically apply it. Based on the previous section, we emphasize again the following important facts:

- 7 1. A “citizen of the United States” in the context of the Constitution and the rulings of the Supreme Court is equivalent to 8 a “national” or “non-resident non-person” in federal statutes, as defined in 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21).
- 9 2. A “U.S. citizen” in the context of federal statutes is equivalent to a “national and citizen of the United States” as defined
10 in 8 U.S.C. §1401.
- 11 3. People who are “nationals” under Title 8 of the U.S. Code are:
  - 12 3.1. “nonresident aliens” as defined under 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B) if they occupy a public office.
  - 13 3.2. Statutory “non-resident non-persons” if they do not occupy a public office.

14 We will also summarize our findings using a table to help you understand the types of citizenship and how they relate to
15 where you were born or naturalized. Choose the place you were born on the left and then go across the row to the columns
16 that indicate “Yes”. The “Yes” columns indicate a type of citizenship that you have the right to choose under federal and 17 state law. If more than one column indicates “Yes”, then you have multiple choices of which type of citizen you want to be.

Table 4-46: Citizenship status based on place of birth or naturalization

NOTES:

1. Throughout this book, the terms “national” and “state national” are used interchangeably.
2. The table above makes the simplifying assumption that at least one of your parents have the same citizenship status as you.
3. In practice, the law requires that at least one of your parents must have the same citizenship status as the one you choose.
4. In all cases, “non-resident” status and “state national” status are equivalent from a legal perspective.

You can also change your citizenship based on domicile and intent to be other than what you were born with. For instance, if you were born as a STATUTORY “U.S. citizen”, you can choose to be a “non-resident non-person”. Recall that the state you are a citizen of can also change based on your domicile and intent. For instance, if you were born in California but you later move to Texas, and if you meet the Texas requirements for residency and live there with the intent to become a Texas national/citizen, then at that point, you become a Texas national.

Another important thing to remember is that your residency can change your citizenship status as a “U.S. citizen”.<sup>222</sup> If you were born in a federal territory like Puerto Rico, which is “subject to its jurisdiction” (federal zone), then you are a “U.S. citizen” under 8 U.S.C. §1401 and 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(c). Because all “U.S. citizens” under 8 U.S.C. §1401 are also “nationals of the United States”, you can leave Puerto Rico and move to a state of the Union and become naturalized there and forfeit your Puerto

3 We would like to close this section by summarizing the privileges and rights that go with each of the three citizenship statuses described in section 4.9 and following.

NOTES:

1. Domicile is a prerequisite to having any civil status per Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17. One therefore cannot be a statutory "alien" under 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(3) without a domicile on federal territory. Without such a domicile, you are a transient foreigner and neither an "alien" nor a "nonresident alien".
2. "United States" is described in 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(38), (a)(36) and 8 C.F.R. §215.1(f) and includes only federal territory and possessions and excludes all Constitutional Union states. This is a product of the separation of powers doctrine that is the heart of the United States Constitution. A "nonresident alien individual" who has made an election under 26 U.S.C. §6013(g) and (h) to be treated as a "resident alien" is treated as a "nonresident alien" for the purposes of withholding under I.R.C. Subtitle C but retains their status as a "resident alien" under I.R.C. Subtitle A. See 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3) for the definition of "individual", which means "alien".
3. A "nonresident alien individual" who has made an election under 26 U.S.C. §6013(g) and (h) to be treated as a "resident alien" is treated as a "nonresident alien" for the purposes of withholding under I.R.C. Subtitle C but retains their status as a "resident alien" under I.R.C. Subtitle A. See 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3) for the definition of "individual", which means "alien".
4. A "non-person" is really just a transient foreigner who is not "purposefully availing themselves" of commerce within the legislative jurisdiction of the United States on federal territory under the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act, 28 U.S.C. Chapter 97. The real transition from a "NON-individual" to an "individual" occurs when one:
  - 4.1. "Purposefully avails himself" of commerce on federal territory and thus waives sovereign immunity. Examples of such purposeful availment are the next three items.
  - 4.2. Lawfully and consensually occupying a public office in the U.S. government and thereby being an "officer and individual" as identified in 5 U.S.C. §2105(a). Otherwise, you are PRIVATE and therefore beyond the civil legislative jurisdiction of the national government.

- 1 4.3. Voluntarily files an IRS Form 1040 as a citizen or resident abroad and takes the foreign tax deduction under 26 U.S.C. §911. This too is essentially an act of
2 "purposeful availment". Nonresidents are not mentioned in section 911. The upper left corner of the form identifies the filer as a "U.S. individual". You
3 cannot be an "U.S. individual" without ALSO being an "individual". All the "trade or business" deductions on the form presume the applicant is a public
4 officer, and therefore the "individual" on the form is REALLY a public officer in the government and would be committing FRAUD if he or she was NOT.
- 5 4.4. VOLUNTARILY fills out an IRS Form W-7 ITIN Application (IRS identifies the applicant as an "individual") AND only uses the assigned number in 6 connection with their compensation as an elected or appointed public officer. Using it in connection with PRIVATE earnings is FRAUD.
- 7 5. What turns a "non-resident non-person" into a "nonresident alien individual" is meeting one or more of the following two criteria:
8 5.1. Residence/domicile in a foreign country under the residence article of an income tax treaty and 26 C.F.R. §301.7701(b)-7(a)(1).
9 5.2. Residence/domicile as an alien in Puerto Rico, Guam, the Commonwealth of Northern Mariana Islands, the U.S. Virgin Islands, or American Samoa as 10 determined under 26 C.F.R. §301.7701(b)-1(d).
- 11 6. If you were born in a state of the Union and maintain a domicile there, then you are described in item 3.1 of the table.
- 12 7. All "taxpayers" are STATUTORY "aliens". The definition of "individual" found in 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3) does NOT include "citizens". The only occasion
13 where a "citizen" can also be an "individual" is when they are abroad under 26 U.S.C. §911 and interface to the I.R.C. under a tax treaty with a foreign country as an
14 alien pursuant to 26 C.F.R. §301.7701(b)-7(a)(1)

1 If we are a person born in a state of the Union, then what is the most accurate and unambiguous way to describe our citizenship
 2 status and our rights? Below is what we recommend, and we have stated it several ways to make it as unambiguous as 3 possible. You are:

- 4 1. A “citizen of the United States” under the Fourteenth Amendment.
- 5 2. Not a “national and citizen of the United States” under federal statutes such as 8 U.S.C. §1401, because this is a person
 6 born only in the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, Guam, and the Virgin Islands.
- 7 3. A “National” under 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21).
- 8 4. A “national” of the state you were born in. Being a “national” simply means that you owe allegiance to your state. For 9 instance, if you were born in California, you are a “California national”, because the states of the Union are treated as 10 independent nations by our constitution.
- 11 5. “subject to the jurisdiction” of the confederation of states called the “United States”, but not necessarily to the 12 jurisdiction of federal statutes or “acts of Congress”. The term “subject to the jurisdiction” simply means the political,
 13 but not necessarily legislative jurisdiction.
- 14 6. Not subject to federal government legislative jurisdiction under most “acts of Congress” so long as you are domiciled in 15 a state of the Union and not living on federal territory ceded by the state to the federal government.
- 16 7. A sovereign individual whose rights are protected from federal encroachment by the Constitution and from State
 17 encroachment by the Fourteenth Amendment and your state constitution.

18 If you would like to know more about correcting your citizenship status, we invite you to read and study section 4.5.3.13 of 19 the Sovereignty Forms and Instructions Manual, Form #10.005.

20 4.13 Contracts

21 Article 1, Section 10 of the U.S. Constitution says:

22 No State shall...pass any Bill of Attainder, ex post facto Law, or Law impairing the Obligation of Contracts, or 23 grant any Title of Nobility.

24 This clause is important, as it establishes the foundation of how to protect one’s assets from taxes and government seizure
 25 using trusts.

26 The Uniform Commercial Code (UCC) recognizes that it is possible for any one of us to be commercially coerced into signing
 27 a contract that we would not sign had we true free agency. The UCC provides that if we sign a contract under such adverse 28 conditions, and if we do so “without prejudice” or “under protest,” then we preserve all our rights. You can read the UCC
 29 for yourself at the following address:

30 <http://www.law.cornell.edu/ucc/ucc.table.html>

31 The Uniform Commercial Code, Section 1-308, states: Performance or Acceptance Under Reservation of Rights

32 (a) A party that with explicit reservation of rights performs or promises performance or assents to performance
 33 in a manner demanded or offered by the other party does not thereby prejudice the rights reserved. Such words
 34 as “without prejudice,” “under protest,” or the like are sufficient.

35 If it is necessary to assert your rights in court, when the point is raised, here is a suggested testimony to offer when explaining 36 what you meant when you claimed “without prejudice”:

37 “It indicates I have exercised the remedy provided for me in the Uniform Commercial Code by which I might 38 reserve the Common Law Right not to be compelled to perform under any contract that I have not entered
 39 knowingly, voluntarily, and intentionally. And furthermore, that notifies all administrative agencies of 40 government that I do not accept the liability associated with the compelled benefits of any unrevealed commercial 41 agreement.”

42 The Uniform Commercial Code is Admiralty Law, which has come on shore. The “without prejudice” clause is the window
 43 which enables one to assert their 7th Amendment guarantee of access to the Common Law.

1 Some people are putting the words, “without prejudice” on everything they sign, above their signature. E.g. they are putting
 2 it on applications for driver's license, tax returns, voter registration, bank checks, gun purchases, etc. According to
 3 Anderson's UCC annotated, you can only reserve those rights which you have. Whenever you sign anything you will give to 4 the government, it's a good idea to be explicit about your domicile/citizenship (capitalize Citizenship).

5 4.14 Our Private Constitutional Rights

6 “Statesmen, my dear Sir, may plan and speculate for liberty, but it is Religion and Morality alone, which can 7 establish the Principles upon which Freedom can securely stand.

8 “The only foundation of a free Constitution is pure Virtue, and if this cannot be inspired into our People in a
 9 greater Measure, than they have it now, they may change their Rulers and the forms of Government, but they 10 will not obtain a lasting liberty.”
 12

13 “The smallest minority on earth is the individual. Those who deny individual rights, cannot claim to be defenders 14 of minorities.”
 15 [Ayn Rand]

16 Based on the above discussion, we now proceed to define and explain our rights in detail.

17 4.14.1 No forced participation in Labor Unions or Occupational Licenses

18 “Among these unalienable rights, as proclaimed in that great document, is the right of men to pursue their
 19 happiness, by which is meant the right to pursue any lawful business or vocation, in any manner not inconsistent
 20 with the equal rights of others, which may increase their prosperity or develop their faculties, so as to give to 21 them their highest enjoyment. The common business and callings of life, the ordinary trades and pursuits, which
 22 are innocuous in themselves, and have been followed in all communities from time immemorial, must therefore
 23 be free in this country to all alike upon the same conditions. The right to pursue them, without let or hindrance,
 24 except that which is applied to all persons of the same age, sex, and condition, is a distinguishing privilege of 25 citizens of the United States, and an essential element of that freedom which they claim as their birthright. It has
 26 been well said that THE PROPERTY WHICH EVERY MAN HAS IN HIS OWN LABOR, AS IT IS THE ORIGINAL
 27 FOUNDATION OF ALL OTHER PROPERTY, SO IT IS THE MOST SACRED AND INVOLABLE. The 28 patrimony of the poor man lies in the strength and dexterity of his own hands, and to hinder his employing this
 29 strength and dexterity in what manner he thinks proper, without injury to his neighbor, is a plain violation of this
 30 most sacred property. It is a manifest encroachment upon the just liberty both of the workman and of those who
 31 might be disposed to employ him. . . The right to follow any of the common occupations of life is an inalienable
 32 right, it was formulated as such under the phrase 'pursuit of happiness' in the declaration of independence, which
 33 commenced with the fundamental proposition that 'all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their
 34 Creator with certain inalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.' This right
 35 is a large ingredient in the civil liberty of the citizen. To deny it to all but a few favored individuals, by investing
 36 the latter with a monopoly, is to invade one of the fundamental privileges of the citizen, contrary not only to 37 common right, but, as I think, to the express words of the constitution. It is what no legislature has a right to do;
 38 and no contract to that end can be binding on subsequent legislatures. . .”
 39 [Butchers' Union Co. v. Crescent City Co., 111 U.S. 746 (1884) ]

40 The supreme Court, in the above finding, makes it very clear that granting a monopoly to a few favored individuals or a 41 government organization over the right to pursue certain occupations violates our fundamental civil liberties and the 42 constitution. This has the following implications, when you think about it:

- 43 1. The government should not and may not restrict entrance into certain occupations of individuals by laws requiring
- 44 licenses, or by restricting who may obtain a license.
- 45 2. The government should not and may not allow labor unions who have a majority in any given employer to compel
- 46 workers at that employer to join the union or be discriminated against because they won't join.

47 4.14.2 Property Rights

48 “Men are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, 'life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness;'
 49 and to 'secure, ' not grant or create, these rights, governments are instituted. That property which a man has
 50 honestly acquired he retains full control of, subject to these limitations: First, that he shall not use it to his
 51 neighbor's injury, and that does not mean that he must use it for his neighbor's benefit; second, that if he devotes
 52 it to a public use, he gives to the public a right to control that use; and third, that whenever the public needs
 53 require, the public may take it upon payment of due compensation.”

4.14.3 No IRS Taxes

In the IRS 1040 Tax Guide Kit, it asks, “who is required to file a 1040 form?” The IRS’s answer states, “all citizens of the United States no matter where they are located”. Here then is how the IRS defines the United States:

TITLE 26, Subtitle F, CHAPTER 79, Sec. 7701(a)(9):

United States: The term "United States" when used in a geographical sense includes only the States and the District of Columbia.

TITLE 26, Subtitle F, CHAPTER 79, Sec. 7701(a)(10)

State: The term "State" shall be construed to include the District of Columbia, where such construction is necessary to carry out provisions of this title.

Substituting the definition for the term State into the definition for United States we arrive at what can only be described as a totally different meaning than what you and I have thought all along.

The term "United States" when used in a geographical sense includes only the District of Columbia and the District of Columbia. [emphasis added to illustrate substitution]

If you weren't born in the District of Columbia then you are not a “citizen of the United States” and you are not required to file an IRS 1040 Tax Return.

However, remember the part that said, “no matter where they are located.” If you have ever declared yourself to be a “citizen of the United States” (that legislative entity - a statutory “person” - a federal corporation), usually under penalty of perjury, then you are and you must file an IRS 1040 Tax Return (see SOLUTIONS).

4.14.4 No Gun Control

Bill of Rights - Article II (Second Amendment)

A well regulated Militia, being necessary to the security of a free state, the right of the people to keep and bear arms, shall not be infringed. [Underlines added]

We all know that the Militia is the People and every State Constitution I have read so states this. It is also clear that the Second Amendment is not a Right of the State. It states that this Right is merely "... necessary to the security of a free state, ..."

Further, it is often stated that the Bill of Rights limits the Federal Government in its attempts to govern (rule) the States and the People. It should be noted however, that the mere title is self-explanatory "Bill of Rights". These articles of Rights (Amendments) are Rights of the People and/or the States. By implication, yes, they are limits of the Federal Government, including the State Governments in certain cases. The Second Amendment is one of those Rights, which limits both Federal and State Governments. Note it states "... the Right of the People ..." this is clearly not a Right of the State and is therefore a limit of the State as well as the Federal Government.

So, how is it that our various levels of government can pass what seems to be unconstitutional laws and get away with it in the courts?

One day, while searching for further insight into the laws, which we have come to accept as governing our access and use of arms (and our lives), I made a startling discovery, while rereading portions of the United States Code (USC) pertaining to the Gun Control Act of 1968 (Public Law 90-618) (GCA), I noticed for the first time a table of definitions. The table included a definition for the term "interstate or foreign commerce," which in turn describes the geographic boundaries for which the GCA has jurisdiction. The following is the pertinent text: (If you have a FFL, see your Federal Firearms Guidebook)

US Code: Title 18, Section 921(a)(2) - Definitions:

The term "interstate or foreign commerce" includes commerce between any place in a State and any place outside of that State, or within any possession of the United States (not including the Canal Zone) or the District of Columbia, but such term does not include commerce between places within the same State but through any place outside of that State.

The term "State" includes the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, and the possessions of the United States (not including the Canal Zone).

The geographic boundaries of the United States are clearly described in the Constitution as the District of Columbia, its possessions and territories:

Article 1, Section 8, Clause 17

To exercise exclusive Legislation in all Cases whatsoever, over such District (not exceeding ten Miles square) as may, by Cession of particular States, and the acceptance of Congress, become the Seat of the Government of the United States, and to exercise like Authority over all Places purchased by the Consent of the Legislature of the State in which the Same shall be, for the Erection of Forts, Magazines, Arsenals, dock-Yards, and other needful Buildings;--And

Note: the term, United States, is a noun, a proper name and title, describing the Federal (Central) Government, a separate corporate entity, housed in the District of Columbia and is the offspring of the "We the People...".

However, in the above 921(a)(2) definition, the USC, in effect, has redefined the United States to only include the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, and the possessions of the United States. What happened to the "Territories" (Guam, Virgin Islands, the Northern Mariana Islands, the American Samoa, etc.)? By this self-proclaimed-redefinition, the "Territories" have, in effect, become the "any place outside that state" and as such satisfies the term "foreign commerce".

Leaving the term "interstate commerce" to mean the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico and the possessions.

As we then substitute the definition for the term "State" from the second sentence and the term "Territories", into the first sentence, the passage then reads:

The term "interstate or foreign commerce" includes commerce between any place in the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, and the possessions of the United States (not including the Canal Zone) and the Territories of that District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, and the possessions of the United States (not including the Canal Zone), or within any possession of the United States (not including the Canal Zone) or the District of Columbia, but such term does not include commerce between places within the same District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, and the possessions of the United States (not including the Canal Zone) but through the Territories of that District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, and the possessions of the United States (not including the Canal Zone). [emphasis added to illustrate substitution]

At first, this seems nonsensical. Nevertheless, note that nowhere is Iowa, Illinois, Indiana or any one of the other several States mentioned (the reason for this overt omission I leave to the reader). However, at this point, it is safe to assume that you are as surprised as I to discover that the Gun Control Act of 1968 applies only to the District of Columbia, the possessions and territories of the United States, and not to any one of the several States.

To further demonstrate that the Federal Government, purposely and knowingly redefines ordinary words, consider another definition found in C.F.R. 27. This is the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms (BATF) section on the IMPORTATION OF ARMS, AMMUNITION AND IMPLEMENTS OF WAR:

Title 27, Chapter I, Part 47, Section 47.11, Subpart B-Meaning of items

United States. When used in the geographical sense, includes the several States, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the insular possessions of the United States, the District of Columbia, and any territory over which the United States exercises any powers of administration, legislation, and jurisdiction. [underline added]

Clearly, the Federal Government recognizes the several States as a separate entity, as it should and as is enumerate in the Constitution. However, in this instance the term United States is being used in a collective sense, because this section of the C.F.R. is talking about the importation of arms from foreign countries, not the use or sale of firearms within the several States.

1 Notice the use of the term "Arms" in the title of this Chapter of the BATF Code. In other definitions and codes
 2 they use the term "Firearm". There is a legal distinction between the term "Arms" as used in the Second
 3 Amendment and the term "Firearm" which infers a Federal privilege.

4 If Congress wanted to apply these various Codes and Acts to all the several States and the People, they need only include the
 5 statement "several States and the People." But, this they did not do, because to do so would be in clear violation of the 6 intended restrictions of the Constitution of the United States of America.

7 At this point, you might ask, how is it that the Federal Government can claim jurisdiction over me? With respect to firearms,
 8 the process was as simple as writing "Yes" when answering the question "are you a citizen of the United States?" when 9 completing form 4473 (9)(L) (the "yellow sheet") when purchasing a firearm from a Federally licensed dealer. Note however,
 10 that it is not required to answer "yes" on the 4473 form. You can answer "no" and still purchase the gun. Read the box at the 11 bottom of the front page, it DOES NOT mention item (9)(L) as having to be answered "yes or no" to purchase a firearm.

12 Recall the definition for the United States as examined earlier. Were you born in the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth
 13 of Puerto Rico, or any of the Possessions or Territories of the United States? If not, you have just asserted your own United 14 States citizenship by answering "Yes" to the question on form 4473. Now that you have legally declared yourself a citizen of 15 the United States, and have signed the document, you have accepted its "terms and conditions", which includes the entire 16 USC and the C.F.R. and are now subject to the jurisdiction of the Federal Government.

17 Were you ever curious about why, as individuals, we can buy and sell firearms between each other without completing a form
 18 4473? Well, the answer is that the 4473 form is a requirement only of the dealer who holds a Federal Firearms License, not 19 the People. The Federal Government has no authority over a sovereign American and must rely on our ignorance and 20 complicity to persuade and trick us to complete the form. Ironically, the dealer is not required to do so either, nor is he
 21 required to have an FFL, but has also been misled and influenced by the practice of redefining commonly used words. Once
 22 again, the Federal Codes only applies to the United States (the District of Columbia, the possessions and territories) and to 23 the federal citizens thereof (no matter where they are located), not the several States or the People.

24 While the Constitution does enumerate congressional power and authority to the United States to govern itself [Article 1, 25 Section 8, Clause 17], it has no exclusive legislative authority over the several States or the People thereof.

26 However, the Constitution also states that, "No State shall enter into any...law impairing the Obligation of Contracts...". By
 27 asserting United States citizenship on form 4473 and signing it, we enter into a private contract with the Federal Government
 28 and agree to the terms and conditions of that contract. A contract being an agreement between two or more people and their 29 signatures, serve both to affirm the contract and to obligate them to the terms, conditions and performances therein.

30 Article 1, Section 10

31 No State shall enter into any Treaty, Alliance, or Confederation; grant Letters of Marque and Reprisal; coin
 32 Money; emit Bills of Credit; make any Thing but gold and silver Coin a Tender in Payment of Debts; pass any 33 Bill of Attainder, ex post facto Law, or Law impairing the Obligation of Contracts, or grant any Title of Nobility.
 34 [underlines added]

35 Again, we are not doing the right thing when we sign these documents in our involvement with the government. We need to 36 protect our Rights under the Constitution according to the laws which govern them. Once we enter them without reserving
 37 our Rights we have lost them (See SOLUTIONS).

38 One last thought for our FFL Dealer friends out there, moving a few pages over we find:

39 BATF Title 27 Part 178 - Commerce in Firearms and Ammunition

40 Subpart D - Licenses

41 §178.41 - General.

42 (a) "Each person intending to engage in business as an importer or manufacturer of firearms or ammunition, or 43 a dealer in firearms shall, before the commencing such business, obtain the license required by this subpart for 44 the business to be operated..." [Underlines added]

Remember our earlier coverage of the word “citizen”? That's right, if you are not a statutory “U.S. citizen” domiciled on federal territory pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1401, then you can't be a statutory "person" and you weren't required to get an FFL. That includes people domiciled in a foreign state such as a state of the Union.

"The supreme power in America cannot enforce unjust laws by the sword; because the body of the people are armed, and constitute a force superior to any band of regular troops that can be, on any pretense, raised in the United States."

"Before a standing army can rule, the people must be disarmed; as they are in almost every kingdom in Europe. The supreme power in America cannot enforce unjust laws by the sword; because the whole body of the people are armed, and constitute a force superior to any band of regular troops that can be, on any pretense, raised in the United States. A military force, at the command of Congress, can execute no laws, but such as the people perceive to be just and constitutional; for they will possess the power, and jealousy will instantly inspire the inclination, to resist the execution of a law which appears to them unjust and oppressive."
[Noah Webster]

FOR THE RECORD

In 1929, the Soviet Union established gun control. From 1929 to 1953, approximately 20 million dissidents, unable to defend themselves, were rounded up and exterminated.

In 1911, Turkey established gun control. From 1915 to 1917, 1.5 million Armenians, unable to defend themselves, were rounded up and exterminated.

In 1928, Germany established gun control. From 1939 to 1945, 13 million Jews, gypsies, homosexuals, the mentally ill, and others, who were unable to defend themselves, were rounded up and exterminated.

In 1935, China established gun control. From 1948 to 1952, 20 million political dissidents were unable to defend themselves and were rounded up and exterminated.

In 1964, Guatemala established gun control. From 1964 to 1981, 100,000 Mayan Indians, unable to defend themselves, were rounded up and exterminated.

In 1970, Uganda established gun control. From 1971 to 1979, 300,000 Christians, unable to defend themselves, were rounded up and exterminated.

In 1956, Cambodia established gun control. From 1975 to 1977, one million “educated” people, unable to defend themselves, were rounded up and exterminated.

That places total victims who lost their lives—because they were unable to defend their liberty—at approximately 56 million in the 20th century.

4.14.5 Motor Vehicle Driving

DESPITE ACTIONS OF POLICE AND LOCAL COURTS, HIGHER COURTS HAVE RULED THAT AMERICAN CITIZENS HAVE A RIGHT TO TRAVEL WITHOUT STATE PERMITS

By Jack McLamb

(from Aid & Abet Newsletter)

For years professionals within the criminal justice system have acted on the belief that traveling by motor vehicle was a privilege that was given to a citizen only after approval by their state government in the form of a permit or license to drive. In other words, the individual must be granted the privilege before his use of the state highways was considered legal. Legislators, police officers, and court officials are becoming aware that there are court decisions that disprove the belief that driving is a privilege and therefore requires government approval in the form of a license. Presented here are some of these cases:

1 CASE #1: "The use of the highway for the purpose of travel and transportation is not a mere privilege, but a common
2 fundamental right of which the public and individuals cannot rightfully be deprived." Chicago Motor Coach v. Chicago, 169
3 N.E. 221.

4 CASE #2: "The right of the citizen to travel upon the public highways and to transport his property thereon, either by carriage
5 or by automobile, is not a mere privilege which a city may prohibit or permit at will, but a common law right which he has
6 under the right to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness." Thompson v. Smith, 154 S.E. 579. It could not be stated more
7 directly or conclusively that citizens of the states have a common law right to travel, without approval or restriction (license),
8 and that this right is protected under the U.S Constitution.

9 CASE #3: "The right to travel is a part of the liberty of which the citizen cannot be deprived without due process of law under 10 the Fifth Amendment." Kent v. Dulles, 357 U.S. 116, 125 (1958). CASE #4: "The right to travel is a well-established common
12 v. Dulles 96 App.D.C. 287, 225 F.2d. 938, at 941.

13 As hard as it is for those of us in law enforcement to believe, there is no room for speculation in these court decisions.
14 American citizens do indeed have the inalienable right to use the roadways unrestricted in any manner as long as they are not
15 damaging or violating property or rights of others. Government -- in requiring the people to obtain drivers licenses, and 16 accepting vehicle inspections and DUI/DWI roadblocks without question -- is restricting, and therefore violating, the people's 17 common law right to travel.

18 Is this a new legal interpretation on this subject? Apparently not. This means that the beliefs and opinions our state legislators,
19 the courts, and those in law enforcement have acted upon for years have been in error. Researchers armed with actual facts
20 state that case law is overwhelming in determining that to restrict the movement of the individual in the free exercise of his
21 right to travel is a serious breach of those freedoms secured by the U.S. Constitution and most state constitutions. That means
22 it is unlawful. The revelation that the American Citizen has always had the inalienable right to travel raises profound questions
23 for those who are involved in making and enforcing state laws. The first of such questions may very well be this: If the states
24 have been enforcing laws that are unconstitutional on their face, it would seem that there must be some way that a state can 25 legally put restrictions -- such as licensing requirements, mandatory insurance, vehicle registration, vehicle inspections to 26 name just a few -- on a Citizen's constitutionally protected rights. Is that so?

27 For the answer, let us look, once again, to the U.S. courts for a determination of this very issue. In Hertado v. California, 110
28 U.S. 516 (1884), the U.S Supreme Court states very plainly: "The state cannot diminish rights of the people." And in Bennett
29 v. Boggs, 1 Baldw 60, "Statutes that violate the plain and obvious principles of common right and common reason are null
30 and void." Would we not say that these judicial decisions are straight to the point -- that there is no lawful method for 31 government to put restrictions or limitations on rights belonging to the people? Other cases are even more straight forward:

32 "The assertion of federal rights, when plainly and reasonably made, is not to be defeated under the name of local practice."
33 Davis v. Wechsler, 263 U.S. 22, at 24 (1923) "Where rights secured by the Constitution are involved, there can be no rule
34 making or legislation which would abrogate them." Miranda v. Arizona, 384 U.S. 436, 491 (1966). "The claim and exercise
35 of a constitutional right cannot be converted into a crime." Miller v. U.S., 230 F. 486, at 489. There can be no sanction or 36 penalty imposed upon one because of this exercise of constitutional rights." Sherer v. Cullen, 481 F 946. We could go on,
37 quoting court decision after court decision; however, the Constitution itself answers our question - Can a government legally
38 put restrictions on the rights of the American people at any time, for any reason? The answer is found in Article Six of the 39 U.S. Constitution:

40 "This Constitution, and the Laws of the United States which shall be made in Pursuance thereof;...shall be the 41 supreme Law of the Land; and the Judges in every State shall be bound thereby, any Thing in the Constitution or 42 laws of any State to the Contrary not one word withstanding."

43 In the same Article, it says just who within our government that is bound by this Supreme Law:

44 "The Senators and Representatives before mentioned, and the Members of the several State Legislatures, and all
45 executive and judicial Officers, both of the United States and of the several States, shall be bound by Oath or 46 Affirmation, to support this Constitution..."

47 Here's an interesting question. Is ignorance of these laws an excuse for such acts by officials? If we are to follow the letter of 48 the law, (as we are sworn to do), this places officials who involve themselves in such unlawful acts in an unfavorable legal

1 situation. For it is a felony and federal crime to violate or deprive citizens of their constitutionally protected rights. Our system
2 of law dictates that there are only two ways to legally remove a right belonging to the people. These are (1) by lawfully
3 amending the constitution, or (2) by a person knowingly waiving a particular right. Some of the confusion on our present
4 system has arisen because many millions of people have waived their right to travel unrestricted and volunteered into the
5 jurisdiction of the state. Those who have knowingly given up these rights are now legally regulated by state law and must
6 acquire the proper permits and registrations. There are basically two groups of people in this category: (1) Citizens who
7 involve themselves in commerce upon the highways of the state. Here is what the courts have said about this:

8 "...For while a citizen has the right to travel upon the public highways and to transport his property thereon, that
9 right does not extend to the use of the highways...as a place for private gain. For the latter purpose, no person
10 has a vested right to use the highways of this state, but it is a privilege...which the (state) may grant or withhold 11 at its discretion..."
12 [State v. Johnson, 245 P. 1073]

13 There are many court cases that confirm and point out the difference between the right of the citizen to travel and a government
14 privilege and there are numerous other court decisions that spell out the jurisdiction issue in these two distinctly different
15 activities.

16 However, because of space restrictions, we will leave it to officers to research it further for themselves. (2) The second group
17 of citizens that is legally under the jurisdiction of the state are those citizens who have voluntarily and knowingly waived
18 their right to travel unregulated and unrestricted by requesting placement under such jurisdiction through the acquisition of a
19 state driver's license, vehicle registration, mandatory insurance, etc. (In other words, by contract.) We should remember what 20 makes this legal and not a violation of the common law right to travel is that they knowingly volunteer by contract to waive
21 their rights. If they were forced, coerced or unknowingly placed under the state's powers, the courts have said it is a clear
22 violation of their rights. This in itself raises a very interesting question. What percentage of the people in each state have 23 applied for and received licenses, registrations and obtained insurance after erroneously being advised by their government
24 that it was mandatory?

25 Many of our courts, attorneys and police officials are just becoming informed about this important issue and the difference
26 between privileges and rights. We can assume that the majority of those Americans carrying state licenses and vehicle
27 registrations have no knowledge of the rights they waived in obeying laws such as these that the U.S. Constitution clearly
28 states are unlawful, i.e. laws of no effect - laws that are not laws at all. An area of serious consideration for every police
29 officer is to understand that the most important law in our land which he has taken an oath to protect, defend, and enforce, is
30 not state laws and city or county ordinances, but the law that supersedes all other laws -- the U.S. Constitution. If laws in a
31 particular state or local community conflict with the supreme law of our country, there is no question that the officer's duty
32 is to uphold the U.S. Constitution. Every police officer should keep the following U.S. court ruling -- discussed earlier -- in 33 mind before issuing citations concerning licensing, registration, and insurance:

34 "The claim and exercise of a constitutional right cannot be converted into a crime."
35 [Miller v. U.S., 230 F. 486, 489]

36 And as we have seen, traveling freely, going about one's daily activities, is the exercise of a most basic right. Some of our 37 readers, upon reading this book, have attempted to avoid surrendering their rights in obtaining driver's licenses. Below is an 38 email one of our readers sent on this subject, so you know what you are up against. It reveals the extreme lengths to which 39 our corrupt government "servants" will go to impinge on our God-given rights:

40 Dear Sir,

41 Thought I'd let you know what happened to a friend of mine here in Indiana. While attempting to renew his 42 driver's license, he wanted to "reserve his rights" by signing the license with "all rights reserved UCC 1-308".
43 He was flatly denied being able to do this by the BMV. At this point I haven't heard what the outcome of this is. I
44 just found it incredible that they would deny someone the right to reserve their rights. Like everything else, when 45 dealing with banks, or any other "rights abusers", the only recourse seems to be the courts. Too bad we must 46 always have to fight and be inconvenienced to the extreme just to have what should normally come to us.

4.14.6 No Marriage Licenses<sup>223</sup>

"Marriage is the only sport in which the trapped animal has to buy the license."

Every year thousands of people amble down to their local county courthouse and obtain a marriage license from the State in order to marry their future spouse. They do this unquestioningly. They do it possibly because their pastor or their parents have told them to go get one, and besides, "everybody else gets one." This section attempts to answer the question - why should we not get one?

Sovereign Christian Marriage, Form #06.009
<http://sedm.org/ItemInfo/Ebooks/SovChristianMarriage/SovChristianMarriage.htm>

This book is a very detailed and authoritative study into state marriage law and licensing. It documents why God created marriage and what he intended it to be, and then shows how the government has corrupted and destroyed and perverted its true and noble and Godly purpose.

4.14.6.1 Reason #1: The definition of a "license" demands that we NOT obtain one to marry.

Black's Law Dictionary defines "license" as,

"The permission by competent authority to do an act which without such permission, would be illegal."

We need to ask ourselves- why should it be illegal to marry without the State's permission? More importantly, why should we need the State's permission to participate in something which God instituted (Gen. 2:18-24)? We should not need the State's permission to marry nor should we grovel before state officials to seek it. What if you apply and the State says "no"? You must understand that the authority to license implies the power to prohibit. A license by definition "confers a right" to do something. The State cannot grant the right to marry. It is a God-given right. Likewise, there isn't a state in the union that can or does prohibit marriage either.

One might say that there is one thing that the marriage license does allow which would otherwise be illegal, and that one thing is the right of one greedy and selfish spouse to hide community property under the care of someone else, drag the other spouse into court, and then make false allegations (lies) of domestic abuse to engender court sympathy. Is this the only kind of thing you want to license by giving the state control over your marriage? These vindictive spouses then have their spouse kicked out of his or her own house based on the unwarranted presumption of domestic violence and then use the legal system to vindictively destroy them financially by enslaving that spouse financially to their lawyer (family law attorneys cost about $225/hour). Then they use the court to legally steal all the remaining unhidden assets by dividing separate property and the appreciation on that separate property in half. This process sets a very bad example for the children, creates fear and anxiety in both spouses, and enriches family law attorneys and the spouses for lying about each other to gain a financial and legal advantage, but accomplishes no good whatsoever.

Another interesting outcome of divorce is that the anxiety and fear it creates in spouses who have gone through it has the effect of preventing people from ever being willing to marry again in order to avoid a very painful repetition of this kind of insane experience. These divorced spouses who don't remarry then are encouraged to seek means other than marriage to get their sexual and emotional needs met. The only option available to them is then to fornicate and live in sin without a commitment or a marriage license. The media and our worldly culture promotes this stereotypical lifestyle, so they get trapped in it and end up unhappy, feeling guilty, and defensive and combative over their choice of lifestyle. Fornication as a cure for not getting married is worse than the disease (of divorce) from a biblical perspective, especially for any illegitimate children and abortions (murder) that might result from such a choice of sinful lifestyle, because the bible says fornication is a sin.

If these discouraged divorcees do take the chance and get remarried, the divorce rate is actually higher for second marriages than it is for first marriages! First marriages end in divorce approximately 55% of the time in California. Second marriages

1 end in divorce 60% of the time! To make things worse, who wants to raise someone else's children and not have any of their
 2 own? That is why we say that people don't learn anything from divorce after they have their first one. They don't use that
 3 experience as a way to grow spiritually and become less selfish and prideful. Instead, they just get more selfish, arrogant,
 4 and argumentative because they are more adept at playing the litigation game and using marriage to gain financial advantage.
 5 Marriage for them then turns into another "career" they use to extort money out of their more wealthy spouse. How can we
 6 say that people more often than not use marriage to gain financial advantage and that their inordinate focus on money is at 7 the root of the divorce problem? Because statistics point to the fact that the number one cause of arguments and divorce is
 8 related to arguments over money in the marriage! The number two cause of arguments and divorce is related to sex, and they 9 probably argue about that, I'm guessing, because men like sex more than women, so men feel unfulfilled in marriage when 10 they marry a spouse who won't submit in the biblical sense.

11 We don't want to paint such a gloomy picture here, but we're trying to use the truth to emphasize that your character and that 12 of the person you marry is the most important predictor of whether the two of you will stay married, and that character has 13 to be based on a shared faith and strong and equal commitment to godly principles if your relationship is to survive the test
 14 of time!

15 4.14.6.2 Reason #2: When you marry with a marriage license, you grant the State jurisdiction over your marriage.

16 When you marry with a marriage license, your marriage is a creature of the State. It is a corporation of the State! As a matter
 17 of fact, most states treat married spouses as the equivalent of business partners with a fiduciary duty towards each other
 18 insofar as property and custody issues are concerned. Therefore, they have jurisdiction over your marriage including the fruit
 19 of your marriage. What is the fruit of your marriage? Your children and every piece of property you own. There is plenty of 20 case law in American jurisprudence which declares this to be true.

21 In 1993, parents were upset here in Wisconsin because a test was being administered to their children in the government
 22 schools which was very invasive of the family's privacy. When parents complained, they were shocked by the school
 23 bureaucrats who informed them that their children were required to take the test by law and that they would have to take the 24 test because they (the government school) had jurisdiction over their children. When parents asked the bureaucrats what gave 25 them jurisdiction, the bureaucrats answered, "your marriage license and their birth certificates." Judicially, and in increasing 26 fashion, practically, your state marriage license has far-reaching implications.

27 4.14.6.3 Reason #3: When you marry with a marriage license, you place yourself under a body of law which is 28 immoral.

29 By obtaining a marriage license, you place yourself under the jurisdiction of Family Court which is governed by unbiblical
 30 and immoral laws. Under these laws, you can divorce for any reason. Often, the courts
 31 side with the spouse who is in rebellion to God, and castigate the spouse who remains faithful by ordering him or her not to 32 speak about the Bible or other matters of faith when present with the children, even if those matters of faith promote 33 continuance and strengthening of the marriage.

34 Ministers cannot in good conscience perform a marriage which would place people under this immoral body of laws. They 35 also cannot marry someone with a marriage license because to do so they have to act as an agent of the State, and this violates
 36 the law regarding separation of church and state! The minister would have to sign the marriage license, and then have to mail
 37 it into the State. Given the State's demand to usurp the place of God and family regarding marriage, and given it's unbiblical, 38 immoral laws to govern marriage, it would be an act of treason for ministers to do so.

39 4.14.6.4 Reason #4: The marriage license invades and removes God-given parental authority.

40 When you read the Bible, you see that God intended for children to have their father's blessing regarding whom they married.
 41 Daughters were to be given in marriage by their fathers (Deut. 22:16; Exodus 22:17; I Cor. 7:38). We have a vestige of this 42 in our culture today in that the father takes his daughter to the front of the altar and the minister asks, "Who gives this woman 43 to be married to this man?"

44 Historically, there was no requirement to obtain a marriage license in colonial America. When you read the laws of the 45 colonies and then the states, you see only two requirements for marriage. First, you had to obtain your parents' permission to 46 marry, and second, you had to post public notice of the marriage 5-15 days before the ceremony.

1 Notice you had to obtain your parents' permission. Back then you saw godly government displayed in that the State
 2 recognized the parents authority by demanding that the parents' permission be obtained. Today, the all-encompassing ungodly
 3 State demands that their permission be obtained to marry.

4 By issuing marriage licenses, the State is saying, "You don't need your parents' permission, you need our permission." If
 5 parents are opposed to their child's marrying a certain person and refuse to give their permission, the child can do an end run
 6 around the parents authority by obtaining the State's permission, and marry anyway. This is an invasion and removal of God-
 7 given parental authority by the State.

8 4.14.6.5 Reason #5: When you marry with a marriage license, you are like a polygamist.

9 From the State's point of view, when you marry with a marriage license, you are not just marrying your spouse, but you are 10 also marrying the State.

11 The most blatant declaration of this fact that I have ever found is a brochure entitled "With This Ring I Thee Wed." It is found
 12 in county courthouses across Ohio where people go to obtain their marriage licenses. It is published by the Ohio State Bar
 13 Association. The opening paragraph under the subtitle "Marriage Vows" states, "Actually, when you repeat your marriage
 14 vows you enter into a legal contract. There are three parties to that contract. 1.You; 2. Your husband or wife, as the case
 15 may be; and 3. the State of Ohio."

16 You see, the State and the lawyers know that when you marry with a marriage license, you are not just marrying your spouse,
 17 you are marrying the State! You are like a polygamist! You are not just making a vow to your spouse, but you are making a
 18 vow to the State and your spouse. You are also giving undue jurisdiction to the State.

19 4.14.6.6 When Does the State Have Jurisdiction Over a Marriage?

20 God intended the State to have jurisdiction over a marriage for two reasons - 1). in the case of divorce, and 2). when crimes
 21 are committed i.e., adultery, bigamy, etc. Unfortunately, the State now allows divorce for any reason, and it does not prosecute 22 for adultery.

23 In either case, divorce or crime, a marriage license is not necessary for the courts to determine whether a marriage existed or
 24 not. What is needed are witnesses. This is why you have a best man and a maid of honor. They should sign the marriage
 25 certificate in your family Bible, and the wedding day guest book should be kept.

26 Marriage was instituted by God; therefore it is a God-given right. According to Scripture, it is to be governed by the family,
 27 and the State only has jurisdiction in the cases of divorce or crime.

28 4.14.6.7 History of Marriage Licenses in America

29 George Washington was married without a marriage license. Abraham Lincoln was married without a marriage license. So,
 30 how did we come to this place in America where marriage licenses are issued?

31 Historically, all the states in America had laws outlawing the marriage of blacks and whites. In the mid-1800's, certain states
 32 began allowing interracial marriages or miscegenation as long as those marrying received a license from the state. In other
 33 words they had to receive permission to do an act which without such permission would have been illegal.

34 Black's Law Dictionary points to this historical fact when it defines "marriage license" as, "A license or permission granted
 35 by public authority to persons who intend to intermarry." "Intermarry" is defined in Black's Law Dictionary as

36 "Miscegenation; mixed or interracial marriages."

37 Give the State an inch and they will take a 100 miles (or as one elderly woman once said to me "10,000 miles.") Not long
 38 after these licenses were issued, some states began requiring all people who marry to obtain a marriage license. In 1923, the 39 Federal Government established the Uniform Marriage and Marriage License Act (they later established the Uniform 40 Marriage and Divorce Act). By 1929, every state in the Union had adopted marriage license laws.

4.14.6.8     What Should We Do?

Christian couples should not be marrying with State marriage licenses, nor should ministers be marrying people with State marriage licenses. Some have said, "If someone is married without a marriage license, then they aren't really married." Given the fact that states may soon legalize same-sex marriages, we need to ask ourselves, "If a man and a man marry with a State marriage license, and a man and woman marry without a State marriage license - who's really married? Is it the two men with a marriage license, or the man and woman without a marriage license? In reality, this contention that people are not really married unless they obtain a marriage license simply reveals how Statist we are in our thinking. We need to think biblically.

You should not have to obtain a license from the State to marry someone any more than you should have to obtain a license from the State to be a parent, which some in academic and legislative circles are currently pushing to be made law.

When I marry a couple, I always buy them a Family Bible which contains birth and death records, and a marriage certificate. We record the marriage in the Family Bible. What's recorded in a Family Bible will stand up as legal evidence in any court of law in America. Both George Washington and Abraham Lincoln were married without a marriage license. They simply recorded their marriages in their Family Bibles. So should we.

(Pastor Trehwella has been marrying couples without marriage licenses for ten years. Many other pastors also refuse to marry couples with State marriage licenses.

This section is not comprehensive in scope. Rather, the purpose of this section is to make you think and give you a starting point to do further study of your own. If you would like an audio sermon regarding this matter, just send a gift of at least five dollars in cash to: Mercy Seat Christian Church, Pastor Matt Trehwella, 10240 W. 4.14.7     Church Rights*A Church With "Tax Exemption" is not a "Tax-Exempt" Church!

By Art Fisher

During the recent Senate hearings on Senate Bill 557 (the so-called "Civil Rights Restoration Act"), it was noted that Sen. Kennedy and other supporters consistently referred to "religious or church organizations", whereas opponents spoke of defending "religious freedom" and "rights" of the church. The term "organizations" may be the key to understanding governmental meddling in the affairs of the church.

A "religious or church organization" is a CORPORATION that functions in a legal capacity, doing business as a church. The IRS is fully aware of this distinction, and their publications reinforce that status. Nowhere do they define "tax exempt churches" -- they always refer to religious or church "organizations". Surely Congress, in writing the tax code, understands this distinction as well!

A church that voluntarily initiates an application to the state for corporate status expects "limited liability" and "tax exemption" It in turn owes to the state its right to exist and prosper. It is obvious that its legal status and that of its of its "flock" has been drastically altered.

Churches do NOT have rights granted by the state. They enjoy INALIENABLE rights granted by God, which are secured by the Constitution. Incorporated churches, in contrast, are artificial entities which may have such "privileges and immunities" as are granted by the state.

1.) A corporation is a creature of the state. It is presumed to be incorporated for the benefit of the public. It receives certain special privileges and franchises ... Its powers are limited by law. It's rights to act as a corporation are only preserved to it so long as it obeys the laws of its creation. [Wilson v. U.S., 221 U.S. 382 (1911)]

- 1 2.) Corporations are not citizens... The term citizen... applies only to natural persons... not to artificial persons created by
2 the legislature... [Paul v. Virginia, 8 Wall 168,17] [see also, Opinion Field, 16 Wall 36, 99]
- 3 3.) Whenever a corporation makes a contract it is the contract of the legal entity... The only rights it can claim are the 4 rights which are given to it in that character, and not the rights which belong to its members as citizens of a state. [Bank
5 of Augusta v. Earle, 13 Pet 519]

6 According to IRS Publication 557, the instruction manual for organizations seeking recognition of tax exemption under 7 Section 501(c)(3); in order to be an "organization" in the legal sense, it is necessary to incorporate.

8 Black's Law Dictionary, 5th Ed. defines "organization" as:

9 "... a corporation or governmental subdivision or agency, business trust, partnership or association, two or more
10 persons having a joint or common interest, or any other legal or commercial entity." UCC 1- 201(2B).

11 Notice ALL of the entities in this definition are government franchised, and therefore under the jurisdiction of the Uniform
12 Commercial Code. The definition shows that a corporation (even if it functions as a church) is recognized by law as 13 commercial and public; an incorporated church is legally interpreted as a commercial, public entity. Didn't Christ say that 14 His house was NOT to be a house of merchandise? John 2:16.

15 Most states will not "permit" exempt status until a church applies for and obtains an IRS 501(c)(3) status ruling. This means,
16 of course, that the church must willingly incorporate and submit itself to state jurisdiction.

17 IRS Publication 557 Sec. 508(c) provides that churches are not REQUIRED to apply for recognition of section 501(c)(3)
18 status in order to be exempt from federal taxation or to receive tax-deductible contributions. The IRS fundamentally has no
19 authority!

20 This would raise many ethical questions: Why are the churches of today almost always found to be incorporated? Why would 21 the churches elect to place themselves under such jurisdiction; to find regulation under governmental franchise preferable to 22 their own Divine Law?

23 Are they not in fact serving two masters?

25 4.15 Sources of government authority to interfere with your rights

26 Now that we know what our rights are, we must then clearly understand the specific circumstances under which the 27 government has lawful authority to interfere with the exercise of those rights and the source from which the authority derives.
28 Recall from section 3.3 when we talked about "The Purpose of Law" that we established the only legitimate purpose of either
29 law or government is public protection which consists in preventing and punishing injustice. Injustice occurs when public
30 health, safety, morals, peace, or order are adversely affected or injured. Below is a succinct table summarizing the only 31 circumstances under which the government can lawfully and properly assert jurisdiction to deny you your rights as described 32 in this chapter:

Table 4-49: Legitimate reasons to impinge on rights

| # | Legitimate Reason for interfering with rights | Source of authority                                              |
|---|-----------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 1 | Issue of public health                        | Common law                                                       |
| 2 | Issue of public safety                        | Common law                                                       |
| 3 | Issue of public morality                      | Common law                                                       |
| 4 | Adversely affects interstate commerce         | Article 1, Section 8, Clause 3 of the United States Constitution |

The content of this section is very important, because we can use it as a basis for many different types of lawsuits, and especially those involving regulating and licensing of certain trades and industries. We can, for instance, file a lawsuit against the government if we are prosecuted or fined for not getting a license to practice in a given field if the government's laws:

1. Violate the rights of persons in the field regulated.
2. Do not provide evidence that the trade or business would be injurious to public health if not licensed or regulated.
3. Charge more in licensing fees than is required to administrate the regulation of the field or endeavor.

4.16 A Citizens Guide to Jury Duty

"People have not yet discovered they have been disenfranchised. Even lawyers can't stand to admit it. In any nation in which people's rights have been subordinated to the rights of the few, in any totalitarian nation, the first institution to be dismantled is the jury. I was, I am, afraid"
[Gerry Spence]

Fully Informed Jury Association, P.O. Box 59, Helmsville, Montana, 59403, Tel (406) 793-5550. <http://www.fija.org/>

Did you know that you qualify for another, much more powerful vote than the one which you cast on election day? This opportunity comes when you are selected for jury duty, a position of honor for over 700 years. The principle of a Common Law Jury or Trial by the Country was first established on June 15, 1215 at Runnymede, England when King John signed the Magna Carta, or Great Charter of our Liberties. It created the basis for our Constitutional, system of Justice.

4.16.1 Jury Power in the System of Checks and Balances:

"The law itself is on trial, quite as much as the cause which is to be decided."
[HARLAN F. STONE, The Common Law in the United States, 50 Harv. L. Rev. 4 (1936)]

In a Constitutional system of justice, such as ours, there is a judicial body with more power than Congress, the President, or even the Supreme Court. Yes, the trial jury protected under our Constitution has more power than all these government officials. This is because it has the final veto power over all "acts of the legislature" that may come to be called "laws".

In fact, the power of jury nullification predates our Constitution. In November of 1734, a printer named John Peter Zenger was arrested for seditious libel against his Majesty's government. At that time, a law of the Colony of New York forbid any publication without prior government approval. Freedom of the press was not enjoyed by the early colonialists! Zenger, however, defied this censorship and published articles strongly critical of New York colonial rule. When brought to trial in August of 1735, Zenger admitted publishing the offending articles, but argued that the truth of the facts stated justified their publication. The judge instructed the jury that truth is not justification for libel. Rather, truth makes the libel more vicious, for public unrest is more likely to follow true, rather than false claims of bad governance. And since the defendant had admitted to the "fact" of publication, only a question of "law" remained.

Then, as now, the judge said the "issue of law" was for the court to determine, and he instructed the jury to find the defendant guilty. It took only ten minutes for the jury to disregard the judge's instructions on the law and find Zenger NOT GUILTY. That is the power of the jury at work; the power to decide the issues of law under which the defendant is charged, as well as the facts. In our system of checks and balances, the jury is our final check, the people's last safeguard against unjust law and tyranny.

4.16.2 A Jury's Rights, Powers, and Duties:

1 But does the jury's power to veto bad laws exist under our Constitution? It certainly does! At the time the Constitution was
 2 written, the definition of the term "jury" referred to a group of citizens empowered to judge both the law and the evidence in
 3 the case before it. Then, in the February term of 1794, the Supreme Court conducted a jury trial in the case of the state of 4 Georgia vs. Brailsford (3 Dall 1). The instructions to the jury in the first jury trial before the Supreme Court of the United
 5 States illustrate the true power of the jury. Chief Justice John Jay said:

6 "It is presumed, that juries are the best judges of facts; it is, on the other hand, presumed that courts are the best
 7 judges of law. But still both objects are within your power of decision." (emphasis added) "...you have a right to 8 take it upon yourselves to judge of both, and to determine the law as well as the fact in controversy".

9 So you see, in an American courtroom there are in a sense twelve judges in attendance, not just one. And they are there with 10 the power to review the "law" as well as the "facts"! Actually, the "judge" is there to conduct the proceedings in an orderly 11 fashion and maintain the safety of all parties involved.

12 As recently as 1972, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia said that the jury has an " unreviewable and 13 irreversible power... to acquit in disregard of the instructions on the law given by the trial judge.... [U.S. v. Dougherty, 473
 14 F.2d. 1113, 1139 (1972)]

15 Or as this same truth was stated in an earlier decision by the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Maryland:
 16 "We recognize, as appellants urge, the undisputed power of the jury to acquit, even if its verdict is contrary to the law as
 17 given by the judge, and contrary to the evidence. This is a power that must exist as long as we adhere to the general verdict
 18 in criminal cases, for the courts cannot search the minds of the jurors to find the basis upon which they judge. If the jury feels 19 that the law under which the defendant is accused, is unjust, or that exigent circumstances justified the actions of the accused,
 20 or for any reason which appeals to their logic of passion, the jury has the power to acquit, and the courts must abide by that 21 decision." (U.S. v. Moylan, 417 F.2d. 1002, 1006 (1969)).

22 YOU, as a juror armed with the knowledge of the purpose of a jury trial, and the knowledge of what your Rights, powers,
 23 and duties really are, can with your single vote of not guilty nullify or invalidate any law involved in that case. Because a
 24 jury's guilty decision must be unanimous, it takes only one vote to effectively nullify a bad "act of the legislature". Your one
 25 vote can "hang" a jury; and although it won't be an acquittal, at least the defendant will not be convicted of violating an unjust
 26 or unconstitutional law.

27 The government cannot deprive anyone of "Liberty", without your consent! If you feel the statute involved in any criminal
 28 case being tried before you is unfair, or that it infringes upon the defendant's God-given inalienable or Constitutional rights,
 29 you can affirm that the offending statute is really no law at all and that the violation of it is no crime; for no man is bound to
 30 obey an unjust command. In other words, if the defendant has disobeyed some man-made criminal statute, and the statute is 31 unjust, the defendant has in substance, committed no crime. Jurors, having ruled then on the justice of the law involved and 32 finding it opposed in whole or in part to their own natural concept of what is basically right, are bound to hold for the acquittal
 33 of said defendant.

34 It is your responsibility to insist that your vote of not guilty be respected by all other members of the jury. For you are not
 35 there as a fool, merely to agree with the majority, but as a qualified judge in your right to see that justice is done. Regardless
 36 of the pressures or abuse that may be applied to you by any or all members of the jury with whom you may in good conscience
 37 disagree, you can await the reading of the verdict secure in the knowledge you have voted your conscience and convictions,
 38 not those of someone else. So you see, as a juror, you are one of a panel of twelve judges with the responsibility of protecting 39 all innocent Americans from unjust laws.

40 4.16.3 Jurors Must Know Their Rights:

41 You must know your rights! Because, once selected for jury duty, nobody will inform you of your power to judge both law
 42 and fact. In fact, the judge's instructions to the jury may be to the contrary. Another quote from U.S. v. Dougherty (cited 43 earlier):

44 The fact that there is widespread existence of the jury's prerogative, and approval of its existence as a necessary
 45 counter to case-hardened judges and arbitrary prosecutors, does not establish as an imperative that the jury must 46 be informed by the judge of that power".

1 Look at that quote again. the court ruled jurors have the right to decide the law, but they don't have to be told about it. It may
2 sound hypocritical, but the Dougherty decision conforms to an 1895 Supreme Court decision that held the same thing. In
3 Sparf v. U.S. (156 U.S. 51), the court ruled that although juries have the right to ignore a judge's instructions on the law, they
4 don't have to be made aware of the right to do so. Is this Supreme Court ruling as unfair as it appears on the surface? It may 5 be, but the logic behind such a decision is plain enough.

6 In our Constitutional Republic (note I didn't say democracy) the people have granted certain limited powers to government,
7 preserving and retaining their God-given inalienable rights. So, if it is indeed the juror's right to decide the law, then the 8 citizens should know what their rights are. They need not be told by the courts. After all, the Constitution makes us the 9 masters of the public servants. Should a servant have to tell a master what his rights are? Of course not, it's our responsibility
10 to know what our rights are! The idea that juries are to judge only the "facts" is absurd and contrary to historical fact and law.
11 Are juries present only as mere pawns to rubber stamp tyrannical acts of the government? We The People wrote the supreme 12 law of the land, the Constitution, to "secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity." Who better to decide the 13 fairness of the laws, or whether the laws conform to the Constitution?

14 4.16.4 Our Defense - Jury Power:

15 Sometime in the future, you may be called upon to sit in judgment of a sincere individual being prosecuted (persecuted?) for 16 trying to exercise his or her Rights, or trying to defend the Constitution. If so, remember that in 1804, Samuel Chase, Supreme 17 Court Justice and signer of the Declaration of Independence said: "The jury has the Right to judge both the law and the facts".
18 And also keep in mind that "either we all hang together, or we most assuredly will all hang separately".

19 You now understand how the average American can help keep in check the power of government and bring to a halt the 20 enforcement of tyrannical laws. Unfortunately, very few people know or understand this power which they as Americans
21 possess to nullify oppressive acts of the legislature.

22 America, the Constitution and your individual rights are under attack! Will you defend them? READ THE CONSTITUTION, 23 KNOW YOUR RIGHTS! Remember, if you don't know what your Rights are, you haven't got any!

24 4.17 Conflicts of Law: Violations of God's Laws by Man's Laws

25 We started off this chapter in section 4.1 by saying that God and His Law must take precedence at all times over man's vain
26 laws, and we mentioned in section 3.2 that when there is a conflict between man's (god's) law and God's law, we should
27 disobey man's law. We would be remiss if we did not point out at least a few of the conflicts between these two laws in order
28 to give you concrete examples of what we mean. We will therefore list a few violations of God's laws by man's laws in the 29 table below:

Table 4-50: Violations of God's laws by Man's laws

NOTES:

- Most of the conflicts in law in our present system have occurred because of judicial corruption rather than actual law. In effect, the federal judiciary has become an ongoing "constitutional convention", and has taken upon itself to "legislate from the bench" to undermine the sovereignty of the states and the people. This trend was predicted by Thomas Jefferson as we revealed earlier in section 2.8.13.
- Refer to the respective references in column 3 above for more details on the exact conflicts in each of the laws mentioned.
- All references to the Family Constitution above relate to the document found at the following web address on our website:

Not surprisingly, most of the subjects listed in the table above are subjects to which we have devoted an area on the home page of our website (<http://famguardian.org/>). We have 28 areas on our website home page devoted to situations or subjects in which there is a conflict between man's law and God's law. In each area, we try to explain the conflict and suggest ways to reform that will make man's law for that subject area once again in harmony with God's law.

4.18 How Do We Assert our First Amendment Rights and How Does the Government Undermine Them?

"The Supreme Court ruled in 1892 that 'this is a religious nation.' [Footnoted, and quoting from Church of the Holy Trinity v. U.S. (1892) (143 U.S. 457, 470, 12 S.Ct. 511).] It reiterated this holding, more recently (1951), when it stated: 'We are a religious people whose institutions presuppose a supreme being.' [Footnoted, and quoting from Zorach v. Clauson (1951) (343 U.S. 306, 313, 72 S.Ct. 679).] U.S. Code Congressional and Administrative News, Vol. 2, pp. 1671-3646, 83rd Congress, Second Session, 1954.

Much of this book is based on the assertion of First Amendment Rights. If you want to assert your First Amendment rights to freedom of religion, you must do so properly within the limits prescribed by the courts. We will show in this section how to lawfully assert a First Amendment right and how the government can justify undermining or negating it.

- The religious belief need not be reasonable or rational, necessarily. The cite below establishes this:

*"Reasonableness of religious beliefs of an individual has no bearing on this right to "religious liberty" guaranteed by state and federal Constitutions, so long as individual's acts or refusal to act are not directly harmful to the public."
[Bolling v. Superior Court For Clallam County, 133 P.2d. 803 (1943)]*

2. You should be careful not to directly incite violence or lawlessness when you speak, because this type of free speech may not be protected:

“These later decisions have fashioned the principle that the constitutional guarantees of free speech and free press do not permit a State to forbid or proscribe advocacy of the use of force or of law violation except where such advocacy is directed to inciting or producing imminent lawless action and is likely to incite or produce such action. As we said in Noto v. United States, 367 U.S. 290, 297-298, 6 L.Ed.2d. 836, 841, 81 S.Ct. 1517 (1961), ‘the mere abstract teaching...of the moral propriety or even moral necessity for a resort of force and violence, is not the same as preparing a group for violent action and steeling it to such action.’ See also Herndon v. Lowry, 310 U.S. 242, 259-261, 81 L.Ed. 1066, 1075, 1076, 57 S.Ct. 732 (1937); Bond v. Floyd, 385 U.S. 116, 134, L.Ed.2d. 235, 246, 87 S.Ct. 339 (1966). A statute which fails to draw this distinction impermissibly intrudes upon the freedoms guaranteed by the First and Fourteenth Amendments. It sweeps within its condemnation speech which our Constitution has immunized from governmental control.”

3. The right of individuals to freely practice their religious beliefs does not encompass the right to use government to that end:

“Violation of free exercise clause of the First Amendment is predicated on coercion. Right of individuals to freely practice their religious beliefs does not encompass right to use government to that end.”

“Very purpose of religion clauses of First Amendment was to insure that sensitive issues of individual religious beliefs would be beyond majority control.”

“This court must, of course, follow the decisions of the Supreme Court, but much has been written by the Court concerning the ‘establishment of religion’ since the decision on Zorach; and, ‘there are occasional situations in which subsequent Supreme Court opinions have so eroded an older case, without explicitly overruling it, as to warrant a subordinate court in pursuing what it conceives to be a clearly defined new lead from the Supreme Court to a conclusion inconsistent with an older Supreme Court case.’”

[Smith v. Smith, 391 F.Supp. 443 (1975)]

4. So long as faith is religiously based at the time it is asserted, it doesn’t matter where the faith originates:

“So long as one’s faith is religiously based at time it is asserted, it does not matter, for free exercise clause purposes, whether that faith derives from revelation, study, upbringing, gradual evolution or some source that appears entirely incomprehensible and constitution protection cannot be denied simply because early experience has left one particularly open to current religious beliefs.”
[Callahan v. Woods, 658 F.2d. 679 (1981)]

5. Once a bona fide First Amendment issue is joined, burden that must be shouldered by the government to defend a regulation with impact on that religious action is a heavy one, and the standard is that a “compelling state interest must be demonstrated.”

“Once bona fide First Amendment issue is joined, burden that must be shouldered by government to defend a regulation with impact on religious actions is a heavy one, and basic standards is that a compelling state interest must be demonstrated.”
[Stevens v. Berger, 428 F.Supp. 896 (1977)]

Along the lines of that last item, we think it is important before you sue the government for First Amendment violations to anticipate and identify each of the “compelling public interests” you expect the state to assert in the case at hand and to disprove each one in advance using evidence, in your initial pleading. This will immunize yourself from losing your case when you go to trial and make the burden of proof even greater for the government.

Probably the most common area where people assert their First Amendment rights is in the area of refusing to accept or give or use Social Security Numbers or to pay Social Security taxes. The most famous case along these lines was U.S. v. Lee, 455 U.S. 252 (1982), in which an Amish farmer and carpenter claimed that it was against his religious beliefs to be forced to pay Social Security taxes to the government, because he thought it was a personal responsibility within the family to support yourself and your parents, as we advocate in this book. Here is what the U.S. supreme Court said in denying him the free exercise of his religious rights:

The District Court held the statutes requiring appellee to pay social security and unemployment insurance taxes unconstitutional as applied. 497 F.Supp. 180 (1980). The court noted that the Amish believe it sinful not to provide for their own elderly and needy and therefore are religiously opposed to the national social security system. 3 The court also accepted appellee's contention that the Amish religion not only prohibits the acceptance of social security benefits, but also bars all contributions by Amish to the social security system. The District Court observed that in light of their beliefs, Congress has accommodated self-employed Amish and self-employed members of other religious groups with similar beliefs by providing exemptions from social security taxes. 26 U.S.C. 1402(g). 4 The Court's holding was based on both [455 U.S. 252, 256] the exemption statute for the self-employed and the First Amendment; appellee and others "who fall within the carefully circumscribed definition provided in 1402(g) are relieved from paying the employer's share of [social security taxes] as it is an unconstitutional infringement upon the free exercise of their religion." 5 497 F.Supp., at 184.

The exemption provided by 1402(g) is available only to self-employed individuals and does not apply to employers or employees. Consequently, appellee and his employees are not within the express provisions of 1402(g). Thus any exemption from payment of the employer's share of social security taxes must come from a constitutionally required exemption.

The preliminary inquiry in determining the existence of a constitutionally required exemption is whether the payment [455 U.S. 252, 257] of social security taxes and the receipt of benefits interferes with the free exercise rights of the Amish. The Amish believe that there is a religiously based obligation to provide for their fellow members the kind of assistance contemplated by the social security system. Although the Government does not challenge the sincerity of this belief, the Government does contend that payment of social security taxes will not threaten the integrity of the Amish religious belief or observance. It is not within "the judicial function and judicial competence," however, to determine whether appellee or the Government has the proper interpretation of the Amish faith; "[c]ourts are not arbiters of scriptural interpretation." Thomas v. Review Bd. of Indiana Employment Security Div., 450 U.S. 707, 716 (1981). 6 We therefore accept appellee's contention that both payment and receipt of social security benefits is forbidden by the Amish faith. Because the payment of the taxes or receipt of benefits violates Amish religious beliefs, compulsory participation in the social security system interferes with their free exercise rights.

The conclusion that there is a conflict between the Amish faith and the obligations imposed by the social security system is only the beginning, however, and not the end of the inquiry. Not all burdens on religion are unconstitutional. See, e. g., Prince v. Massachusetts, 321 U.S. 158 (1944); Reynolds v. United States, 98 U.S. 145 (1879). The state may justify a limitation on religious liberty by showing that it is essential to accomplish an overriding governmental interest. [455 U.S. 252, 258] Thomas, supra; Wisconsin v. Yoder, 406 U.S. 205 (1972); Gillette v. United States, 401 U.S. 437 (1971); Sherbert v. Verner, 374 U.S. 398 (1963).

Because the social security system is nationwide, the governmental interest is apparent. The social security system in the United States serves the public interest by providing a comprehensive insurance system with a variety of benefits available to all participants, with costs shared by employers and employees. 7 The social security system is by far the largest domestic governmental program in the United States today, distributing approximately $11 billion monthly to 36 million Americans. 8 The design of the system requires support by mandatory contributions from covered employers and employees. This mandatory participation is indispensable to the fiscal vitality of the social security system. "[W]idespread individual voluntary coverage under social security . . . would undermine the soundness of the social security program." S. Rep. No. 404, 89th Cong., 1st Sess., pt. 1, p. 116 (1965). Moreover, a comprehensive national social security system providing for voluntary participation would be almost a contradiction in terms and difficult, if not impossible, to administer. Thus, the Government's interest in assuring [455 U.S. 252, 259] mandatory and continuous participation in and contribution to the social security system is very high. 9

The remaining inquiry is whether accommodating the Amish belief will unduly interfere with fulfillment of the governmental interest. In Braunfeld v. Brown, 366 U.S. 599, 605 (1961), this Court noted that "to make accommodation between the religious action and an exercise of state authority is a particularly delicate task. . . because resolution in favor of the State results in the choice to the individual of either abandoning his religious principle or facing . . . prosecution." The difficulty in attempting to accommodate religious beliefs in the area of taxation is that "we are a cosmopolitan nation made up of people of almost every conceivable religious preference." Braunfeld, supra, at 606. The Court has long recognized that balance must be struck between the values of the comprehensive social security system, which rests on a complex of actuarial factors, and the consequences of allowing religiously based exemptions. To maintain an organized society that guarantees religious freedom to a great variety of faiths requires that some religious practices yield to the common good. Religious beliefs can be accommodated, see, e. g., Thomas, supra; Sherbert, supra, but there is a point at which accommodation would "radically restrict the operating latitude of the legislature." Braunfeld, supra, at 606. 10

of religious beliefs. The obligation to pay the social security tax initially is not fundamentally different from the obligation to pay income taxes; the difference - in theory at least - is that the social security tax revenues are segregated for use only in furtherance of the statutory program. There is no principled way, however, for purposes of this case, to distinguish between general taxes and those imposed under the Social Security Act. If, for example, a religious adherent believes war is a sin, and if a certain percentage of the federal budget can be identified as devoted to war-related activities, such individuals would have a similarly valid claim to be exempt from paying that percentage of the income tax. The tax system could not function if denominations were allowed to challenge the tax system because tax payments were spent in a manner that violates their religious belief. See, e. g., Lull v. Commissioner, 602 F.2d. 1166 (CA4 1979), cert. denied, 444 U.S. 1014 (1980); Autenrieth v. Cullen, 418 F.2d. 586 (CA9 1969), cert. denied, 397 U.S. 1036 (1970). Because the broad public interest in maintaining a sound tax system is of such a high order, religious belief in conflict with the payment of taxes affords no basis for resisting the tax.

Congress has accommodated, to the extent compatible with a comprehensive national program, the practices of those who believe it a violation of their faith to participate in the social security system. In 1402(g) Congress granted an exemption, on religious grounds, to self-employed Amish and others. 11 Confining the 1402(g) exemption to the self-employed [455 U.S. 252, 261] provided for a narrow category which was readily identifiable. Self-employed persons in a religious community having its own "welfare" system are distinguishable from the generality of wage earners employed by others.

Congress and the courts have been sensitive to the needs flowing from the Free Exercise Clause, but every person cannot be shielded from all the burdens incident to exercising every aspect of the right to practice religious beliefs. When followers of a particular sect enter into commercial activity as a matter of choice, the limits they accept on their own conduct as a matter of conscience and faith are not to be superimposed on the statutory schemes which are binding on others in that activity. Granting an exemption from social security taxes to an employer operates to impose the employer's religious faith on the employees. Congress drew a line in 1402(g), exempting the self-employed Amish but not all persons working for an Amish employer. The tax imposed on employers to support the social security system must be uniformly applicable to all, except as Congress provides explicitly otherwise. 12

[U.S. v. Lee, 455 U.S. 252 (1982)]

Basically, what the court said is that "the public interest" or "government interest" outweighs our religious rights and that the government can deprive us of our individual life, liberty, and property in the name of the "political correctness" or "public interest" or "majority vote", all of which are synonymous. This is just a fancy way to say that the majority or collective is sovereign over and above the individual, and that our republican government based on individual rights no longer exists because it has been replaced by a monolithic, gargantuan, totalitarian socialist democracy as we clearly described in section 4.5.2. In making this treasonous ruling, the Supreme Court has negated the whole basis of law, which is to prevent harm and has thereby transformed the function of law into promoting the "perceived" good decided by majority vote, which is the essence of socialism. I would most certainly hope that the highest court in this, the greatest country on earth, doesn't mean to imply that the fraud, waste, and abuse represented by the grossly mismanaged Social Security program as extensively documented earlier in section 2.9 successfully serves the "public interest" as a whole, because we have found no evidence whatsoever of that. If it had, then why does our own government continue to talk about privatizing social security? Granted, it would be political suicide for any politician in this country to advocate an end to the most massive entitlement system fraud and extortion program in the history of the planet, but that is a matter of the private interests of individual politicians rather than public interest.

"The government that robs Peter to pay Paul can always depend on the support of Paul [the older people who have no income because they never bothered to save for their own retirement]."
[George Bernard Shaw]

Are we simply rewarding the abuse of individual elective franchise (the right to vote or the sovereign power of Congressional office) as a legal mandate to government officials (an unconstitutional and unlawful abuse of power) to rob a minority group of employed individuals at the point of a gun and force them into slavery to subsidize older people who don't want to work? Are we enticing and encouraging older people to vote the first politician into office who will promise them a new social(ist) security benefit increase? This is clearly a distortion of the original intent of Congress and a conflict of interest. It also happens to be highly illegal under federal law, 18 U.S.C. §597. Here is what that section says:

TITLE 18 > PART I > CHAPTER 29 > Sec. 591. > Sec. 597.
 Sec. 597. - Expenditures to influence voting

Whoever makes or offers to make an expenditure to any person, either to vote or withhold his vote, or to vote for or against any candidate; and

Whoever solicits, accepts, or receives any such expenditure in consideration of his vote or the withholding of his vote -

Shall be fined under this title or imprisoned not more than one year, or both; and if the violation was willful, shall be fined under this title or imprisoned not more than two years, or both

Even the bible agrees that this kind of scandal is not to be tolerated or allowed:

"Thou shalt not steal."
 [Exodus 20:15, Bible]

But my, how quickly things change. Only 100 years before, that very same Supreme Court said the following, which is completely opposite of the ruling in the Lee case:

"To lay with one hand the power of government on the property of the citizen, and with the other to bestow it on favored individuals.. is none the less robbery because it is done under the forms of law and is called taxation. This is not legislation. It is a decree under legislative forms."
 [Loan Association v. Topeka, 20 Wall. 655 (1874)]

I therefore have some questions for the chief justice communists who made this ruling:

- How can robbery done in the name of taxation be in the public interest?
- How can organized crime, racketeering, and robbery implemented through Social Security and on that large a scale ever be in the "public interest"?
- How can punishing people who work for the sake of people who don't work be in the "public interest"?
- How can stealing people's money and forcing them to allow the government to manage it rather than taking responsibility for their own retirement ever be in the "public interest"? Doesn't such an approach presume that people are incapable or incompetent at managing and saving for their own retirement and "government" paternalistically knows what's best for people better than they do? This cannot be in a country where the people are the sovereigns, can it?
- Exactly what aspect of the effectively mandatory Social Security System is in the public interest?
- If the government rules against Microsoft for having a monopoly, how about IT'S monopoly in the retirement insurance business? Isn't it time to privatize this beast too and let people manage their own retirement savings plan?
- How can the justices who ruled on this issue call themselves free of conflict of interest if it would mean political suicide for most politicians to end the socialist security program?

The government will lie by saying that the program is "voluntary", but since they provide no way to quit the program or have your money refunded or your social security number rescinded, and because many employers won't hire you without a number, the program is, for all intents and purposes, mandatory. Consequently, the whole Social Security system is based on fraud and duress and a false promise: it's a mandatory program that they "pretend" is voluntary so that politicians who want to force us to participate don't look like the tyrants and dictators that they really are. It's the "politically correct" way to be a tyrant dictator!

The ruling from U.S. v. Lee above therefore directly contradicts the very purpose why the founders gave us a Bill of Rights to begin with and why the Constitution guarantees us a "Republican Form of Government", as we described earlier in section 4.7:

"The very purpose of the Bill of Rights was to withdraw certain subjects from the vicissitudes of political controversy, to place them beyond the reach of majorities and officials and to establish them as legal principles to be applied by the courts. One's right to life, liberty, and property, to free speech, a free press, freedom of worship and assembly, and other fundamental rights may not be submitted to vote; they depend on the outcome of no elections.[for Congressional statutes or laws either, as was the case above]"
 [West Virginia State Board of Education v. Barnette, 319 U.S. 624, 63 S.Ct. 1178 (1943)]

1 Based on the Lee precedent, however, it wouldn't surprise me to see the communist judges in the Supreme Court rule in the 2 not too distant future that:

3 "It is in the 'public interest' and 'government interest' to eliminate the Bill of Rights and the Thirteenth

9 state anyway don't need rights anymore because we (the government) know better than you what is in your best
10 interests. Now shut up, boy, or we'll whoop you with 40 lashes and send you to bed without dinner or a
11 paycheck because we'll seize it all to pay for the next Congressional pay raise and Social Security cost of living 12 increase."

13 Does this sound like a chicken little, sky is falling triage-dominated mandate to overlook abuses of the government as we 14 predicted would happen earlier in section 2.8.12? Who is the servant and who is the master (sovereign) here? Your 15 government would have you believe that you are the Master, but this too is a LIE and simply can't be the case based on the

17 4.19 The Solution

18 In conclusion, one must understand that this is all a matter of perspective. Since the Federal Government has little direct
19 authority over the several States or the People, we then must be the ones to initiate these contracts. They then assume we are 20 truly "citizens of the United States" (or "residents / aliens of the State") not only because we answered "YES" on these 21 government application forms, but because we DID NOT reserve any of our Rights as Sovereign Americans to the contrary
22 under our Constitutional Rights to Common Law.

23 Here is what the court has stated happens to us when we sign-up for any Federal Program (benefit or privilege).

24 "Anyone who partakes of the benefits or privileges of a given statute, or anyone who even places himself into a
25 position where he may avail himself of those benefits at will, cannot reach constitutional grounds to redress
26 grievances in the courts against the given statute."
27 [Ashwander v. T.V.A., 297 U.S. 288, 346, 56 S.Ct. 466, 482, 80 L.Ed. 688 (1936)][underlines added]

28 Since these applications are actually contracts we must invoke our Rights under the Uniform Commercial Code (UCC). The 29 UCC is statute law regulating contracts dealing in commerce (remember, the Federal Government gets what little authority
30 it does have over the several States and the People from the Commerce Clause of the Constitution [Article 1, Section 8, 31 Clause 3]). Now that all the courts are Admiralty Courts and under Federal Jurisdiction, Common Law has been placed "in 32 harmony with" the UCC.

33 In the ANDERSON version of the Uniform Commercial Code (Lawyers Cooperative Publishing Co.), it states the following:

34 "The Code is complimentary to the Common Law, WHICH REMAINS IN FORCE, except where displaced by the 35 code. A statute should be construed in harmony with the Common Law, unless there is a clear legislative intent
36 to abrogate the Common Law."
37 [UCC 1-103.6]

38 Here then is what one should do in order to reserve their Rights under the Constitution and the Seventh Amendment.

39 Uniform Commercial Code, Section 1-308

40 Performance or Acceptance Under Reservation of Rights

41 (a) A party that with explicit reservation of rights performs or promises performance or assents to performance
42 in a manner demanded or offered by the other party does not thereby prejudice the rights reserved. Such words
43 as "without prejudice," "under protest," or the like are sufficient. [underlines added]

44 The "without prejudice" clause is the means which enables one to assert his Seventh Amendment guarantee of access to the 45 Common Law and the Constitution.

46 Bill of Rights - Article VII (Seventh Amendment)

1 In Suits at common law, where the value in controversy shall exceed twenty dollars, the right of trial by jury shall
 2 be preserved, and no fact tried by a jury shall be otherwise re-examined in any Court of the United States, than 3 according to the rules of the common law.

4 What this all means is this, whenever you sign any legal document, whether it is dealing with the Federal Government, State
 5 Government, BATF, IRS, Social Security, Driver's License Bureau, Voter Registration or anything to do with Federal
 6 Reserve Notes, etc. ( in any way, shape or manner), over your signature you must write: "Without Prejudice" UCC 1-308 or 7 "under Protest" or the like, e.g. "with reservation of rights".

8 By the way, a true sovereign American of any one of the several States is actually a non-resident alien to the United States.
 9 Guess who isn't required to file an IRS 1040 Income Tax Returns? You guessed it, non-resident aliens. Why? Because, we 10 are foreign to the United States. We were not born in the District of Columbia and we are not residents of the District of

12 Volume 20 of "Corpus Juris Secundum" at 1758 states:

 14 [N.Y. v. re Merriam, 36 N.E. 505, 141 N.Y. 479, affirmed 16 S.Ct. 1073, 41 L.Ed. 287] [underlines added]

15 However, there are certain conditions and circumstances whereupon a non-resident alien might be required to file a 1040-NR
 16 tax return. Generally, compensation for one's labor, which is not INCOME, is simply a fair trade for his Life. It is 17 unconstitutional to tax a man's Life, but it is not unconstitutional to tax a Federal citizen's life, for such a person has no
 18 Constitutional Protection. Rather, income is profit or gain of principle received by a privileged corporation.

19 For those who have already decided, through their own research and understanding of the limits the Constitution imposes on 20 the Federal Government, it is at this point we hear about them getting into trouble with the Federal Government, particularly 21 the IRS. Of course, this then leads to the fear we all have and our reluctance to pursue the matter ourselves.

22 It is absolutely crucial to know and understand that one must rescind and revoke ALL signatures and powers of attorney that
 23 one might have EVER committed to with the Federal Government in their LIFE TIME. For example, if the first IRS 1040
 24 tax return you ever filed was in 1960, then you must notify the IRS that you are revoking your signature on ALL 1040 tax
 25 returns starting in 1960 to the present. The same then would be true in regards to the BATF and all of those 4473 forms you've 26 signed since 1968.

27 In this way ONLY, can one deal with any level of Government and still retain access to the Constitution, The Bill of Rights
 28 and to Common Law as sovereign Americans and constitutional but not statutory citizens.

20 There's a very good reason why the title to this chapter uses the word "liable". The fact is, there is NO STATUTE or 21 POSITIVE LAW in the entire 9,500 page Internal Revenue Code, which makes a natural person liable for the payment of 22 Subtitle A income taxes, or Subtitle C Employment taxes for other than withholding agents who are accepting voluntary
23 withholding from nonresident alien individuals<sup>1</sup>. There has also never been a claim by anyone in the legal profession or the 24 IRS or in any IRS publication that we have found which contradicts this either that we are aware of. The IRS and the 25 Department of INJustice are speechless when you bring up the following issue in court in front of a jury by asking:

- 26                   "I am a law-abiding American Citizen who wants to pay what the law says I owe. Prove to me that the Internal 27                   Revenue Code is enacted positive 'law' that applies to me and then provide the positive law statute within it that
28                   makes me liable for Subtitles A and C income taxes and I will gladly pay what you say I owe. I have studied this
29                   issue for several years now and read extensively and searched electronically the entire Internal Revenue Code
30                   and Treasury Regulations and couldn't find a statute that makes me liable."

31 This tactic is very effective with juries and against the IRS. We'll explain in this chapter the many reasons why we aren't 32 liable and the many different angles people have come up with over the years that show why we aren't liable which are also 33 very convincing to juries. We have scoured just about every tax book, every IRS publication, positive law, the I.R.C. (which 34 isn't "law", by the way), and went to every seminar we could find to come up with the content of this chapter to make the
35 arguments used authoritative, complete, detailed, and most importantly, unrefuted by any government propaganda or legal 36 document that we could find. We have done this to make your search for the truth easier. If we have missed anything or are 37 in error, please let us know what you found out so we can all benefit from your discovery!

38 The Bible says:

- 39                   "Test all things; hold fast what is good. Abstain from every form of evil."
40                   [1 Thess. 5:21-22, Bible, NKJV]
- 41                   "Finally, brethren, whatever things are true, whatever things are noble, whatever things are just, whatever things
42                   are pure, whatever things are lovely, whatever things are of good report, if there is any virtue and if there is

This chapter is the result of over four years of diligent study to fulfill exactly the above calling. We have tried very hard to discover what is "truthful" and "good" about our government and our tax law. The result is the knowledge of where the evil lies and what we must correspondingly abstain from. Direct income taxes paid on one's own labor within states of the Union just happens to be one of the evils and crimes that our research has revealed which we must abstain from, because you will learn in this chapter that they amount to slavery.

What you will find in reading this chapter, as we explain later in section 5.12, is that the more layers of the onion you peel back to expose the real truth about income taxes, the less information you will find, because as we make quite plain in the next chapter, there is a concerted effort by our deceitful and covetous government and the media to cover up the truth. You will therefore find it very difficult to locate materials or evidence published by the government that will refute or even address most of the issues discussed in this chapter.

*"He who believes in Him [Jesus, the Son of God] is not condemned ; but he who does not believe is condemned already, because he has not believed in the name of the only begotten Son of God. And this is the condemnation, that the light has come into the world, and men loved darkness rather than light, because their deeds were evil.

For everyone practicing evil hates the light and does not come to the light, lest his deeds should be exposed. But he who does the truth comes to the light, that his deeds may be clearly seen, that they have been done in God."

[John 3:18-21, Bible, NKJV]

We obtained every government publication we could find on the subject of taxes in either printed or electronic form and found it very difficult to refute the content of this chapter. We looked in the following government publications, many of which we downloaded and posted on our website, for instance, and found very little that addresses anything in this chapter and nothing credible that contradicted it, and this is no accident, but another means of confirming that what we are saying is the absolute truth:

<http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/FormsInstr.htm>

During our search for contradictory information, we obtained internal IRS memos dealing with one or more issues discussed in this chapter, and in every case, they had sensitivity markings limiting their distribution, apparently because the IRS did not want such sensitive information getting into the hands of the general public! Below is a link that provides just one example on our website of such an IRS memo:

<http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Evidence/Refunds/1998-053IRSMemoZeroRet.pdf>

Remember, a public servant wrote the above and anything we as the sovereigns pay a government servant to do ought to be available and releasable unless it is classified, which the above was not. The only thing cover-ups do is protect wrongdoers.

Another source for clearly showing the deception of our public servants can be found in the "Tax Deposition Questions" found on our website. These questions are a superset of the We the People Truth in Taxation Hearing questions and the IRS and Dept of Justice violated a written agreement to answer the We The People questions in a public forum because the

1 answers would have been too incriminating and revealed far more of the truth than the government wants you to learn. You
2 can look at these questions at:

Tax Deposition Questions, Family Guardian Fellowship
<http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Forms/Discovery/Deposition/Deposition.htm>

3 The above memo, the Tax Deposition Questions, Family Guardian Fellowship, and thousands of pages of additional evidence
4 on our website furnish compelling and overwhelming evidence that there is a systematic cover-up of the truth going on by 5 the IRS and the Congress, which amounts to criminal violation of the following positive law statutes and several others not 6 mentioned:

- 7 1. Obstructing Justice, 18 U.S.C. Chapter 73
- 8 2. Conspiracy against rights under 18 U.S.C. §241

- 20 14. Peonage and obstructing enforcement under 18 U.S.C. §1581 and 42 U.S.C. §1994
- 21 15. Bank robbery under 18 U.S.C. §2113 ( in the case of fraudulent notice of levies and notice of liens served by 22 the IRS on unsuspecting financial institutions)

23 Based on the exhaustive evidence and analysis found in this chapter, we will demonstrate far beyond a “reasonable doubt”
24 that the “D.C.” in the phrase “Washington D.C.” stands for “District of Criminals”. We will also demonstrate that through 25 its coerced agents in a corrupt federal judiciary, these criminals have obstructed justice and abused sovereign immunity and
26 official immunity in order to make areas under their control within the “federal zone” into havens for financial terrorists at
27 the IRS, who have recklessly disregarded your sacred property rights and constitutional rights which the government was 28 instituted to protect from the beginning. The only lawfully sanctioned protector of our rights at the federal level has thus
29 become its worst abuser and violator. Your de facto government is a PREDATOR, not a PROTECTOR. It has transformed
30 in the role from a protector under a Constitutional Republic to a predator within a totalitarian socialist democracy. The federal 31 corporation called the “United States Government” (see 28 U.S.C. §3002(15)(A)), and not Microsoft, ought to be tried on 32 anti-trust charges for the virtual monopoly on organized crime and extortion that it currently enjoys in the disguise of a lawful
33 “income tax”. We will also show how corrupted lawyers in the states have colluded with the federal government in denying 34 you your rights in the context of income taxes. You will also learn that the criminal disregard of our politicians and public
35 “servants” towards our constitutional rights and the laws that are documented in this chapter amounts to “communism”, to 36 use the government’s own words and definitions:

37 TITLE 50 > CHAPTER 23 > SUBCHAPTER IV > Sec. 841.
38 Sec. 841. - Findings and declarations of fact

39 The Congress finds and declares that the Communist Party of the United States, although purportedly a political 40 party, is in fact an instrumentality of a conspiracy to overthrow the Government of the United States. It constitutes 41 an authoritarian dictatorship within a republic, demanding for itself the rights and privileges accorded to 42 political parties, but denying to all others the liberties guaranteed by the Constitution. Unlike political parties,
43 which evolve their policies and programs through public means, by the reconciliation of a wide variety of 44 individual views, and submit those policies and programs to the electorate at large for approval or disapproval,
45 the policies and programs of the Communist Party are secretly prescribed for it by the foreign leaders of the 46 world Communist movement. Its members have no part in determining its goals, and are not permitted to voice
47 dissent to party objectives. Unlike members of political parties, members of the Communist Party are recruited 48 for indoctrination with respect to its objectives and methods, and are organized, instructed, and disciplined to
49 *carry into action slavishly the assignments given them by their hierarchical chieftains. Unlike political 50 parties, the Communist Party acknowledges no constitutional or statutory limitations upon its conduct or upon that of its members.

The Communist Party is relatively small numerically, and gives scant indication of capacity ever to attain its ends by lawful political means. The peril inherent in its operation arises not from its numbers, but from its failure to acknowledge any limitation as to the nature of its activities, and its dedication to the proposition that the present constitutional Government of the United States ultimately must be brought to ruin by any available means, including resort to force and violence [or using income taxes]. Holding that doctrine, its role as the agency of a hostile foreign power [the Federal Reserve and the American Bar Association (ABA)] renders its existence a clear present and continuing danger to the security of the United States. It is the means whereby individuals are seduced into the service of the world Communist movement, trained to do its bidding, and directed and controlled in the conspiratorial performance of their revolutionary services. Therefore, the Communist Party should be outlawed

That's right: Anyone from the government charged with administering the tax code who refuses to discuss the code or the statutory or Constitutional constraints on their power in the context of income taxes is a Communist as our Congress defines it! Welcome to the United Socialist States of America (USSA), comrade! You will also find that this reckless and irresponsible attitude permeates everyone in government and the legal profession you will talk to about the laws on taxation. Incidentally, the "foreign powers" described above that are behind the current "communist party", which encompasses both the Democrats and the Republicans presently in office, is the Federal Reserve, the American Bar Association (ABA), Satan, and the legal profession. They have already conspired collectively to transform our constitutional republic into a totalitarian socialist democracy and the next step is complete communism. All it will take is a national emergency like the War on Terrorism to complete that step. After you read this chapter, you will also understand the following Washington Rules of the communists who currently serve in elected or appointed office:

WASHINGTON RULES

1. If it's worth fighting for, it's worth fighting dirty for.
2. Don't lie, cheat or steal unnecessarily.
3. There is always one more son of a bitch than you counted on.
4. An honest answer can get you into a lot of trouble.
5. The more you run over a dead cat, the flatter it gets.
6. If you tell the truth once, they will never believe you no matter how much you lie.
7. The facts, although interesting, are irrelevant.
8. Chicken little only has to be right once.
9. There's no such thing as a final decision.
10. "No" is only an interim response.
11. You can't kill a bad idea.
12. If at first you don't succeed, destroy all evidence that you ever tried.
13. The truth is a variable.
14. A porcupine with its quills down is just another fat rodent.
15. You can agree with any concept or notional future option in principle, but fight implementation in every step of the way.
16. A promise is not a guarantee.
17. If you can't counter the argument, leave the meeting or remain silent.
18. Pay no bill before its time.

5.1 Introduction to Federal Taxation*5.1.1 Hierarchy of Sovereignty: The Power to Create is the Power to Tax

"Having thus avowed my disapprobation of the purposes, for which the terms, State and sovereign, are frequently used, and of the object, to which the application of the last of them is almost universally made; it is now proper that I should disclose the meaning, which I assign to both, and the application, [2 U.S. 419, 455] which I make of the latter. In doing this, I shall have occasion incidentally to evince, how true it is, that States and Governments were made for man; and, at the same time, how true it is, that his creatures and servants have first deceived, next vilified, and, at last, oppressed their master and maker."

[Justice Wilson, Chisholm v. Georgia, 2 Dall. (2 U.S.) 419, 1 L.Ed. 440, 455 (1793)]

1 An important concept for readers to grasp are the following concepts underlying the entire legal field:

- 2 1. The creator of a thing is always the owner of the thing.
- 3 2. Governments can only tax or regulate that which they create.
- 4 3. Government didn't create human beings and therefore can't regulate or tax them UNTIL they volunteer to occupy an
- 5 office in the government that WAS created by that government. Otherwise, slavery and involuntary servitude in
- 6 violation of the Thirteenth Amendment will be the result.
- 7 4. The regulated or taxed office within the government that a person occupies can only be exercised on federal territory or
- 8 in all places EXPRESSLY authorized per 4 U.S.C. §72.
- 9 5. If the office is exercised OUTSIDE of places not expressly authorized, it is a de facto and unlawful office. This is
- 10 covered in:

De Facto Government Scam, Form #05.043

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

- 11 6. To prevent people who know the above from avoiding the scam of being taxed or regulated, corrupt governments will
- 12 try to make their CREATION, which is PUBLIC OFFICE, look similar or identical to things that it didn't create and
- 13 are PRIVATE. For instance, they will try to make a PRIVATE human and one using a Social Security Number BOTH
- 14 APPEAR PUBLIC when in fact they are not. This is how they unlawfully convert the PRIVATE property of innocent
- 15 Americans into PUBLIC property that they can STEAL, tax, and regulate.

16 Hiding the above mechanisms is obviously a scam, but the only way you will ever escape them is to understand how this

17 mechanism works. That is what we will teach you in this section.

18 We pointed out earlier in section 4.1 the hierarchy of sovereignty, in which the sequence that things were created and who

19 they were created by establishes the sovereign relations among all things, including both human beings and artificial

20 creations such as corporations and governments. The analysis there is the basis for further discussion in this chapter. A

21 summary of the hierarchy is below:

- 22 1. God created the people (as individuals).
- 23 2. The people (as individual sovereigns) created the state Constitution and the states. The state constitutions divided the
- 24 state government into three branches: executive, judicial, and legislative.
- 25 3. The states created the federal constitution and the federal government. The federal constitution divided the federal
- 26 government into three branches: executive, judicial, legislative. The states also instituted their own internal franchises,
- 27 including state corporations and state citizens.
- 28 4. The federal government created federal States, corporations, and privileged "U.S. citizen" status through legislation.

29 The above hierarchy recognizes nine distinct sovereignties which are completely independent of each other in law. These 30 are:

- 31 1. God
- 32 2. The people (as individuals).
- 33 3. The "states" (of the Union). These states create special franchises underneath them, including:
  - 34 3.1. State citizenship
  - 35 3.2. State corporations
- 36 4. The federal (not national) government. Remember from section 4.6 earlier that the "United States" is not a nation under
- 37 the law of nations, but a federation, and there is a world of difference. The federal government then creates special
- 38 franchises underneath them, including:
  - 39 4.1. Federal Corporations.
  - 40 4.2. Federal "States".
  - 41 4.3. U.S. citizens/idolaters. These are people who have surrendered their sovereignty to the government and choose to
  - 42 be government slaves/serfs/subjects.

43 The courts have historically recognized the separation of these sovereignties, and all exist by virtue of natural law. Below is

45 Figure 5-1: Sovereignties within our system of government

1 The rules for how these sovereignties must relate to each other within our system of jurisprudence are as follows, extracted
 2 from the rulings of the Supreme Court, federal statutes, the Bible, and historical documents:

4 1. The people are sovereign over all government:

5 "The ultimate authority...resides in the people alone..."
 6 [James Madison, Federalist Paper No. 46]

7 "Sovereignty itself is, of course, not subject to law...While sovereign powers
 8 are delegated to...the government, sovereignty itself remains with the people."
 9 [Yick Wo v. Hopkins, 118 U.S. 356 (1886)]

10 "Sovereign state" are cabalistic words, not understood by the disciple of liberty, who has been instructed in 11 our constitutional schools. It is an appropriate phrase when applied to an absolute despotism. I firmly believe,
 12 that the idea of sovereign power in the government of a republic, is incompatible with the existence and
 13 permanent foundation of civil liberty, and the rights of property. The history of man, in all ages, has shown

1 the necessity of the strongest checks upon power, whether it be exercised by one man, a few or many. Our
 2 revolution broke up the foundations of sovereignty in government; and our written constitutions have carefully
 3 guarded against the baneful influence of such an idea henceforth and forever. I can not, therefore, recognize 4 the appeal to the sovereignty of the state, as a justification of the act in question. "
 5 [Gaines v. Buford, 31 Ky. (1 Dana) 481, 501]

- 6 2. The people came before the states and created the states. Therefore, they are the Masters and the states are their servants:

7 "It is again to antagonize Chief Justice Marshall, when he said: 'The government of the Union, then (whatever
 8 may be the influence of this fact on the case), is emphatically and truly a government of the people. In form and 9 in substance it emanates from them. Its powers are granted by them, and are to be exercised directly on them and 10 for their benefit. This government is acknowledged by all to be one of enumerated powers.' 4 Wheat. 404, 4 L.Ed.
 12 Downes v. Bidwell, [182 U.S. 244 (1901)]

13 "The words 'people of the United States' and 'citizens,' are synonymous terms, and mean the same thing. They 14 both describe the political body who, according to our republican institutions, form the sovereignty, and who 15 hold the power and conduct the government through their representatives. They are what we familiarly call the
 17 Boyd v. State of Nebraska, [143 U.S. 135 (1892)]

- 18 3. The states created the federal government and are superior to it. The federal government is the servant to and fiduciary
 20 298 U.S. 238 (1936):

21 The general rule with regard to the respective powers of the national and the state governments under the 22 Constitution is not in doubt. The states were before the Constitution; and, consequently, their legislative powers
 23 antedated [and are superior to] the Constitution. Those who framed and those who adopted that instrument
 24 meant to carve from the general mass of legislative powers, then possessed by the states, only such portions as it
 25 was thought wise to confer upon the federal government; and in order that there should be no uncertainty in 26 respect of what was taken and what was left, the national powers of legislation were not aggregated but
 27 enumerated-with the result that what was not embraced by the enumeration remained vested in the states
 28 without change or impairment. Thus, 'when it was found necessary to establish a national government for 29 *national purposes,' this court said in Munn v. Illinois, 94 U.S. 113, 124, 'a part of the powers of the States and of* 30 the people of the States was granted to the United States and the people of the United States. This grant operated
 31 as a further limitation upon the powers of the States, so that now the governments of the States possess all the 32 powers of the Parliament of England, except such as have been delegated to the United States or reserved by the 33 people.' While the states are not sovereign in the true sense of that term, but only quasi sovereign, yet in respect
 34 of all powers reserved to them they are supreme-'as independent of the general government as that government
 35 *within its sphere is independent of the States.' The Collector v. Day, 11 Wall. 113, 124. And since every addition*
 36 to the national legislative power to some extent detracts from or invades the power of the states, it is of vital
 37 moment that, in order to preserve the fixed balance intended by the Constitution, the powers of the general
 38 government [298 U.S. 238, 295] be not so extended as to embrace any not within the express terms of the several 39 grants or the implications necessarily to be drawn therefrom. It is no longer open to question that the general
 40 *government, unlike the states, Hammer v. Dagenhart, 247 U.S. 251, 275, 38 S.Ct. 529, 3 A.L.R. 649,*
 41 Ann.Cas.1918E 724, possesses no inherent power in respect of the internal affairs of the states; and 42 emphatically not with regard to legislation. The question in respect of the inherent power of that government as
 43 to the external affairs of the Nation and in the field of international law is a wholly different matter which it is
 44 *not necessary now to consider. See, however, Jones v. United States, 137 U.S. 202, 212, 11 S.Ct. 80; Nishimur
 45 Ekui v. United States, 142 U.S. 651, 659, 12 S.Ct. 336; Fong Yue Ting v. United States, 149 U.S. 698, 705 et seq.,

47 The determination of the Framers Convention and the ratifying conventions to preserve complete and 48 unimpaired state self-government in all matters not committed to the general government is one of the plainest
 49 facts which emerges from the history of their deliberations. And adherence to that determination is incumbent
 50 equally upon the federal government and the states. State powers can neither be appropriated on the one hand
 51 *nor abdicated on the other. As this court said in Texas v. White, 7 Wall. 700, 725, 'The preservation of the* 52 States, and the maintenance of their governments, are as much within the design and care of the Constitution
 53 as the preservation of the Union and the maintenance of the National government. The Constitution, in all its 54 provisions, looks to an indestructible Union, composed of indestructible States.' Every journey to a forbidden end
 55 begins with the first step; and the danger of such a step by the federal government in the direction of taking over
 56 the powers of the states is that the end of the journey may find the states so despoiled of their powers, or-what 57 may amount to the same thing-so [298 U.S. 238, 296] relieved of the responsibilities which possession of the 58 powers necessarily enjoins, as to reduce them to little more than geographical subdivisions of the national 59 domain. It is safe to say that if, when the Constitution was under consideration, it had been thought that any such 60 danger lurked behind its plain words, it would never have been ratified.

61 And the Constitution itself is in every real sense a law-the lawmakers being the people themselves, in whom 62 under our system all political power and sovereignty primarily resides, and through whom such power and sovereignty primarily speaks. It is by that law, and not otherwise, that the legislative, executive, and judicial agencies which it created exercise such political authority as they have been permitted to possess. The Constitution speaks for itself in terms so plain that to misunderstand their import is not rationally possible. 'We the People of the United States,' it says, 'do ordain and establish this Constitution.' Ordain and establish! These are definite words of enactment, and without more would stamp what follows with the dignity and character of law. The framers of the Constitution, however, were not content to let the matter rest here, but provided explicitly-'This Constitution, and the Laws of the United States which shall be made in Pursuance thereof; ... shall be the supreme Law of the Land.' (Const. art. 6, cl. 2.) The supremacy of the Constitution as law is thus declared without qualification. That supremacy is absolute; the supremacy of a statute enacted by Congress is not absolute but conditioned upon its being made in pursuance of the Constitution. And a judicial tribunal, clothed by that instrument with complete judicial power, and, therefore, by the very nature of the power, required to ascertain and apply the law to the facts in every case or proceeding properly brought for adjudication, must apply the supreme law and reject the inferior stat- [298 U.S. 238, 297] ute whenever the two conflict. In the discharge of that duty, the opinion of the lawmakers that a statute passed by them is valid must be given great weight, Adkins v. Children's Hospital, 261 U.S. 525, 544, 43 S.Ct. 394, 24 A.L.R. 1238; but their opinion, or the court's opinion, that the statute will prove greatly or generally beneficial is wholly irrelevant to the inquiry. Schechter Poultry Corp. v. United States, 295 U.S. 495, 549, 550 S., 55 S.Ct. 837, 97 A.L.R. 947. [Carter v. Carter Coal Co., 298 U.S. 238 (1936)]

"If the time shall ever arrive when, for an object appealing, however strongly, to our sympathies, the dignity of the States shall bow to the dictation of Congress by conforming their legislation thereto, when the power and majesty and honor of those who created shall become subordinate to the thing of their creation, I but feebly utter my apprehensions when I express my firm conviction that we shall see 'the beginning of the end.'" [Steward Machine Co. v. Davis, 301 U.S. 548 (1937)]

4. Each sovereign is on an equal footing with every other sovereign: the People, the States, and the Federal Government. Each of these are legal "persons" and each are equal under the law. The rights of one man are equal to the combined rights of ALL men working in either a state or the federal government. This is the essence of equal protection of the laws which is the foundation of our constitution and our republican system of government. We covered this subject in depth earlier in section 4.3.2 if you would like to review.

"No State shall...deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws." [Fourteenth Amendment, Section 1]

"The rights of individuals and the justice due to them, are as dear and precious as those of states. Indeed the latter are founded upon the former; and the great end and object of them must be to secure and support the rights of individuals, or else vain is government." [Chisholm v. Georgia, 2 U.S. (2 Dall.) 419, 1 L.Ed. 440 (1793)]

"Arise, O Lord,
Do not let man prevail;
Let the nations be judged in Your sight.
Put them in fear, O Lord,
That the nations may know themselves to be but men." [Psalms 9:19-20, Bible, NKJV]

"United States government is as sovereign within its sphere as states are within theirs." [Kohl v. United States, 91 U.S. 367, 23 L.Ed. 597 (1876)]

5. No sovereign can serve more than one master above it. To do otherwise would be a conflict of interest and allegiance. By implication, this means that no sovereign can have more than one Creator or one Master:

"No servant can serve two masters; for either he will hate the one and love the other, or else he will be loyal to the one and despise the other. You cannot serve God and mammon." [Jesus [God] speaking in the Bible, Luke 16:13]

TITLE 18 > PART I > CHAPTER 11 > §208
§208. Acts affecting a personal financial interest

(a) Except as permitted by subsection (b) hereof, whoever, being an officer or employee of the executive branch of the United States Government, or of any independent agency of the United States, a Federal Reserve bank director, officer, or employee, or an officer or employee of the District of Columbia, including a special Government employee, participates personally and substantially as a Government officer or employee, through decision, approval, disapproval, recommendation, the rendering of advice, investigation, or otherwise, in a judicial or other proceeding, application, request for a ruling or other determination, contract, claim, controversy, charge, accusation, arrest, or other particular matter in which, to his knowledge, he, his spouse, minor child, general partner, organization in which he is serving as officer, director, trustee, general partner or employee, or any person or organization with whom he is negotiating or has any arrangement concerning prospective employment, has a financial interest—

Shall be subject to the penalties set forth in section 216 of this title.

6. The main and only purpose of the separation of sovereignties and powers within sovereignties in the above diagram is to protect the individual liberties of the ultimate sovereigns, the people (as individuals) themselves. See U.S. v. Lopez, 514 U.S. 549 (1995):

We start with first principles. The Constitution creates a Federal Government of enumerated powers. See U.S. Const., Art. I, § 8. As James Madison wrote, "[t]he powers delegated by the proposed Constitution to the federal government are few and defined. Those which are to remain in the State governments are numerous and indefinite." The Federalist No. 45, pp. 292-293 (C. Rossiter ed. 1961). This constitutionally mandated division of authority "was adopted by the Framers to ensure protection of our fundamental liberties." Gregory v. Ashcroft, 501 U.S. 452, 458 (1991) (internal quotation marks omitted). "Just as the separation and independence of the coordinate branches of the Federal Government serves to prevent the accumulation of excessive power in any one branch, a healthy balance of power between the States and the Federal Government will reduce the risk of tyranny and abuse from either front. [U.S. v. Lopez, 514 U.S. 549 (1995)]

7. A sovereignty is a servant or fiduciary of all sovereignties above it and a master over all those below it. For instance, the states created the federal government so they are sovereign over it and may change it at any time by amending the constitution that created it, or by abolishing it entirely, subject only to their will and voluntary consent.

"A State does not owe its origin to the Government of the United States, in the highest or in any of its branches. It was in existence before it. It derives its authority from the same pure and sacred source as itself: The voluntary and deliberate choice of the people...A State is altogether exempt from the jurisdiction of the Courts of the United States, or from any other exterior authority, unless in the special instances when the general Government has power derived from the Constitution itself." [Chisholm v. Georgia, 2 Dall. (U.S.) 419 (Dall.) (1794)]

8. Delegated authority:

- 8.1. A sovereign can only exercise those powers specifically delegated to it by its Master or Creator in a written voluntary contract called the Constitution. Any other action is specifically forbidden or reserved by implication to the Master and Creator it serves. For instance, the Tenth Amendment reserves police powers to the states. All powers not specifically given to the federal government in the federal constitution are therefore reserved to the states or to the people under the Tenth Amendment:

"The Government of the United States is one of delegated powers alone. Its authority is defined and limited by the Constitution. All powers not granted to it by that instrument are reserved to the States or the people." [United States v. Cruikshank, 92 U.S. 542 (1875)]

"Sovereignty is the right to govern; a nation or State-sovereign is the person or persons in whom that resides. In Europe the sovereignty is generally ascribed to the Prince; here it rests with the people; there, the sovereign actually administers the Government; here, never in a single instance; our Governors are the agents [fiduciaries] of the people, and at most stand in the same relation to their sovereign, in which regents in Europe stand to their sovereigns. Their Princes have personal powers, dignities, and pre-eminences, our rulers have none but official; nor do they partake in the sovereignty otherwise, or in any other capacity, than as private citizens." at 472. [Justice Wilson, Chisholm, Ex'r. v. Georgia, 2 Dall. (U.S.) 419, 1 L.ed. 454, 457, 471, 472) (1794)]

"By the tenth amendment, 'the powers not delegated to the United States by the constitution, nor prohibited by it to the states, are reserved to the states, respectively, or to the people.' Among the powers thus reserved to the several states is what is commonly called the 'police power,'-that inherent and necessary power, essential to the very existence of civil society, and the safeguard of the inhabitants of the state against disorder, disease, poverty, and crime. 'The police power belonging to the states in virtue of their general sovereignty,' said Mr. Justice STORY, delivering the judgment of this court, 'extends over all subjects within the territorial limits of the states, and has never been conceded to the United States.' Prigg v. Pennsylvania, 16 Pet. 539, 625. This is well illustrated by the recent adjudications that a statute prohibiting the sale of illuminating oils below a certain fire test is beyond the constitutional power of congress to enact, except so far as it has effect within the United States (as, for instance, in the District of Columbia) and without the limits of any state; but that it is within the constitutional power of a state to pass such a statute, even as to oils manufactured under letters patent from the United States. U.S. v. Dewitt, 9 Wall. 41; Patterson v. Kentucky, 97 U.S. 501. [135 U.S. 100, 128] The police power includes all measures for the protection of the life, the health, the property, and the welfare of the inhabitants, and for the promotion of good order and the public morals. It covers the suppression of nuisances, whether injurious to the public health, like unwholesome trades, or to the public morals, like gambling-houses and lottery tickets. Slaughter-House Cases, 16 Wall. 36, 62, 87; Fertilizing Co. v. Hyde Park, 97 U.S. 659; Phalen v. Virginia, 8 How. 163, 168; Stone v. Mississippi, 101 U.S. 814. This power, being essential to the maintenance of the authority of local government, and to the safety and welfare of the people, is inalienable. As was said by Chief Justice WAITE, referring to earlier decisions to the same effect: 'No legislature can bargain away the public health or the public morals. The people themselves cannot do it, much less their servants. The supervision of both these subjects of governmental power is continuing in its nature, and they are to be dealt with as the special exigencies of the moment may require. Government is organized with a view to their preservation, and cannot divest itself of the power to provide for them. For this purpose the largest legislative discretion is allowed, and the discretion cannot be parted with any more than the power itself.' Stone v. Mississippi, 101 U.S. 814, 819. See, also, Butchers' Union, etc., Co. v. Crescent City, etc., Co., 111 U.S. 746, 753, 4 S. Sup. Ct. Rep. 652; New Orleans Gas Co. v. Louisiana Light Co., 115 U.S. 650, 672, 6 S. Sup. Ct. Rep. 252; New Orleans v. Houston, 119 U.S. 265, 275, 7 S. Sup. Ct. Rep. 198." Leisy v. Hardin, [135 U.S. 100 (1890)]

- 8.2. Agents or fiduciaries within a sovereign must be willing and able at all times to identify the specific laws that give them the authority to act and be constantly aware of the limits of their delegated authority. If they are not, they run the risk of exceeding their delegated authority and injuring the rights of the master(s) they serve. All actions not specifically authorized by law are illegal by implication. All illegal actions by government officials that are outside their written delegated authority and positive law that result in an injury to the master(s) cause the actor to be personally liable for a tort and monetary damages because they are acting outside the authority of law.

"Unlawful. That which is contrary to, prohibited, or unauthorized by law. That which is not lawful. The acting contrary to, or in defiance of the law; disobeying or disregarding the law. Term is equivalent to "without excuse or justification." State v. Noble, 90 N.M. 360, 563 P.2d. 1153, 1157. While necessarily not implying the element of criminality, it is broad enough to include it." [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1536]

- 8.3. A sovereignty or human being cannot delegate an authority to a subordinate that they themselves do not ALSO possess.

"Quod meum est sine me auferri non potest.
What is mine [sovereignty in this case] cannot be taken away without my consent"
[Bouvier's Law Dictionary Unabridged, 8th Edition, p. 2159]

"Derivativa potestas non potest esse major primitiva.
The power [sovereign immunity in this case] which is derived cannot be greater than that from which it is derived."
[Bouvier's Law Dictionary Unabridged, 8th Edition, p. 2131]

"Nemo potest facere per obliquum quod non potest facere per directum.
No one can do that indirectly which cannot be done directly."
[Bouvier's Law Dictionary Unabridged, 8th Edition, p. 2147]

"Quod per me non possum, nec per alium.
What I cannot do in person, I cannot do through the agency of another."
[Bouvier's Law Dictionary Unabridged, 8th Edition, p. 2159]

[SOURCE: <http://famguardian.org/Publications/BouvierMaximsOfLaw/BouviereMaxims.htm>]

- 8.4. No sovereign can delegate to its fiduciaries the authority to do something that is a crime. For instance, if the people cannot murder, rob, or steal from their fellow man, then they certainly cannot delegate that authority to government, which means they cannot delegate to the government the authority to collect direct taxes upon individuals unless the persons paying the tax voluntarily consent to it individually, otherwise it is theft.

"In Calder v. Bull, which was here in 1798, Mr. Justice Chase said, that there were acts which the Federal and State legislatures could not do without exceeding their authority, and among them he mentioned a law which punished a citizen for an innocent act; a law that destroyed or impaired the lawful private [labor] contracts [and labor compensation, e.g. earnings from employment through compelled W-4 withholding] of citizens; a law that made a man judge in his own case; and a law that took the property from A [the worker], and gave it to B [the government or another citizen, such as through social welfare programs]. 'It is against all reason and justice,' he added, 'for a people to intrust a legislature with such powers, and therefore it cannot be presumed that they have done it. They may command what is right and prohibit what is wrong; but they cannot change innocence [a "nontaxpayer"] into guilt [a "taxpayer", by presumption or otherwise], or punish innocence as a crime, or violate the right of an antecedent lawful private [employment] contract [by compelling W-4 withholding, for instance], or the right of private property. To maintain that a Federal or State legislature possesses such powers [of THEFT!] if they had not been expressly restrained, would, in my opinion, be a political heresy altogether inadmissible in all free republican governments.' 3 Dall. 388.

[Sinking Fund Cases, 99 U.S. 700 (1878) ]

9. The Constitution is a trust document and creates a public trust. Public officers are the “trustees” within that trust and when they abuse their authority, they are executing a “sham trust” for their own personal gain. It is a violation of fiduciary duty for a sovereign or any agent within a sovereign to put a higher priority over its own needs than over any of the masters it serves above it. This is called a conflict of interest and it is against the law. See for instance 18 U.S.C. §208.

"Whatever these Constitutions and laws validly determine to be property, it is the duty of the Federal Government, through the domain of jurisdiction merely Federal, to recognize to be property.

"And this principle follows from the structure of the respective Governments, State and Federal, and their reciprocal relations. They are different agents and trustees of the people of the several States, appointed with different powers and with distinct purposes, but whose acts, within the scope of their respective jurisdictions, are mutually obligatory."
[Dred Scott v. Sandford, 60 U.S. 393 (1856)]

10. Sovereign Immunity: A government sovereign is exempt from the jurisdiction of the courts of any other government sovereign unless it consents to the jurisdiction of the other sovereign or unless the Constitution that established it makes it subject to the jurisdiction in question. This is called sovereign immunity and it is the embodiment of the separation of powers doctrine. The rules for surrendering sovereign immunity through consent are documented in 28 U.S.C. §1605. Here is an example of sovereign immunity of states from the U.S. Supreme Court:

"A State does not owe its origin to the Government of the United States, in the highest or in any of its branches. It was in existence before it. It derives its authority from the same pure and sacred source as itself: The voluntary and deliberate choice of the people...A State is altogether exempt from the jurisdiction of the Courts of the United States, or from any other exterior authority, unless in the special instances when the general Government has power derived from the Constitution itself."
[Chisholm v. Georgia, 2 Dall. (U.S.) 419 (Dall.) (1793)]

11. Sovereign immunity also extends to all entities or corporations created by a government sovereign. For instance, the case of Providence Bank v. Billings, 29 U.S. 514 (1830) revealed that the states could not tax a bank corporation created by an act or law of the United States government. The reasoning in that case was that the states could not destroy the federal government because the power to tax necessarily involved the power to destroy.

"The great principle is this: because the constitution will not permit a state to destroy, it will not permit a law involving the power to destroy. In order to show that the case turned entirely on that point, let us suppose that the court had arrived to the conclusion that the bank [The Bank of the United States located in the state of Maryland] was an authorised instrument of government; but that it was not the intention of the constitution to prohibit the states from interfering with those instruments: would it not have been necessary to have decided that the Maryland act was constitutional? Of what importance was it that the bank was an authorized means of power, other than this, that it afforded a key to the meaning of the constitution? If the bank was a legitimate and proper instrument of power, then the constitution intended to protect it. If not, then no protection was intended. The question, whether it was a necessary and proper means, was auxiliary to the great question, whether the constitution intended to shelter it; and when the court arrived to the conclusion that such protection was intended, they interfered not in behalf of the bank, but in behalf of the sanctuary to which it had fled. They decided against the tax; because the subject had been placed beyond the power of the states, by the constitution. They decided, not on account of the subject, but on account of the power that protected it; they decided that a prohibition against destruction was a prohibition against a law involving the power of destruction."
[Providence Bank v. Billings, 29 U.S. 514 (1830)]

12. A sovereignty may not tax or regulate or control its Creator or grantor, or any sovereignty or agent of that sovereignty above it or at the same level as it, without the explicit and individual and written consent of that sovereign.
12.1. For instance, because churches are agents and creations of God and not the state, then government may not tax churches, and this applies whether or not such churches have a 501(c ) designation or not. See Isaiah 45:9-10:

"Woe to him who strives with his Maker! Let the potsherd strive with the potsherd of the earth! Shall the clay say to him who forms it, 'What are you making?' Or shall your handiwork say, 'He has no hands?' Woe to him who says to his father, 'What are you begetting?' Or to the woman, 'What have you brought forth?'"
[Isaiah 45:9-10, Bible, NKJV]

12.2. Below is a U.S. Supreme Court cite which admits that in many cases, even the U.S. Supreme Court may not compel states:

“This court has declined to take jurisdiction of suits between states to compel the performance of obligations which, if the states had been independent nations, could not have been enforced judicially, but only through the political departments of their governments. Thus, in Kentucky v. Dennison, 24 How. 66, where the state of Kentucky, by her governor [127 U.S. 265, 289] applied to this court, in the exercise of its original jurisdiction, for a writ of mandamus to the governor of Ohio to compel him to surrender a fugitive from justice, this court, while holding that the case was a controversy between two states, decided that it had no authority to grant the writ.”

12.3. Here is an example from the Supreme Court where it is admitted that a state may not be taxed by the federal government:

“In Morcantile Bank v. City of New York, 121 U.S. 138, 162, 7 S. Sup. Ct. 826, this court said: ‘Bonds issued by the state of New York, or under its authority, by its public municipal bodies, are means for carrying on the work of the government, and are not taxable, even by the United States, and it is not a part of the policy of the government which issues them to subject them to taxation for its own purposes.’”
[Pollock v. Farmers’ Loan & Trust Co., 157 U.S. 429 (1895)]

12.4. The Supreme Court also said that states may not tax the federal government:

“While the power of taxation is one of vital importance, retained by the states, not abridged by the grant of a similar power to the government of the Union, but to be concurrently exercised by the two governments, yet even this power of a state is subordinate to, and may be controlled by, the constitution of the United States. That constitution and the laws made in pursuance thereof are supreme. They control the constitutions and laws of the respective states, and cannot be controlled by them. The people of a state give to their government a right of taxing themselves and their property at its discretion. But the means employed by the government of the Union are not given by the people of a particular state, but by the people of all the states; and being given by all, for the benefit of all, should be subjected to that government only which belongs to all. All subjects over which the sovereign power of a state extends are objects of taxation; but those over which it does not extend are, upon the soundest principles, exempt from taxation. The sovereignty of a state extends to everything which exists by its own authority, or is introduced by its permission; but does not extend to those means which are employed by congress to carry into execution powers conferred on that body by the people of the United States. The attempt to use the taxing power of a state on the means employed by the government of the Union, in pursuance of the constitution, is itself an abuse, because it is the usurpation of a power which the people of a single state cannot give. The power to tax involves the power to destroy; the power to destroy may defeat and render useless the power to create; and there is a plain repugnance in conferring on one government a power to control the constitutional measures of another, which other, with respect to those very measures, is declared to be supreme over that which exerts the control. The states have no power, by taxation [117 U.S. 151, 156] or otherwise, to retard, impede, burden, or in any manner control, the operations of the constitutional laws enacted by congress to carry into execution the powers vested in the general government. Such are the outlines, mostly in his own words, of the grounds of the judgment delivered by Chief Justice MARSHALL in the great case of McCulloch v. Maryland, in which it was decided that a statute of the state of Maryland, imposing a tax upon the issue of bills by banks, could not constitutionally be applied to a branch of the Bank of the United States within that state. 4 Wheat. 316, 425-431, 436.

“In Osborn v. Bank of U. S., 9 Wheat. 738, 859-868, that conclusion was reviewed in a very able argument of counsel, and reaffirmed by the court, and a tax laid by the state of Ohio upon a branch of the Bank of the United States was held to be unconstitutional. See, also, Providence Bank v. Billings, 4 Pet. 514, 564. Upon the same grounds, the states have been adjudged to have no power to lay a tax upon stock issued for money borrowed by the United States, or upon property of state banks invested in United States stock. Weston v. City Council of Charleston, 2 Pet. 449, 467; Bank of Commerce v. New York, 2 Black, 620; Bank Tax Case, 2 Wall. 200; Banks v. Mayor, 7 Wall. 16.”

12.5. Here is an example where the Supreme Court said that states may not tax each other's bonds:

“The question in Bonaparte v. Tax Court, 104 U.S. 592, was whether the registered public debt of one state, exempt from taxation by that state, or actually taxed there, was taxable by another state, when owned by a citizen of the latter, and it was held that there was no provision of the constitution of the United States which prohibited such taxation. The states had not covenanted that this could not be done, whereas, under the fundamental law, as to the power to borrow money, neither the United States, on the one hand, nor the states on the other, can interfere with that power as possessed by each, and an essential element of the sovereignty of each.”

12.6. Finally, the federal government may not tax the employees of states of the union:

“As stated by Judge [157 U.S. 429, 602] Cooley in his work on the Principles of Constitutional Law: ‘The power to tax, whether by the United States or by the states, is to be construed in the light of and limited by the fact that the states and the Union are inseparable, and that the constitution contemplates the perpetual maintenance of each with all its constitutional powers, unembarrassed and unimpaired by any action of the other. The taxing power of the federal government does not therefore extend to the means or agencies through or by the employment of which the states perform their essential functions; since, if these were within its reach, they might be embarrassed, and perhaps wholly paralyzed, by the burdens it should impose. That the power to tax involves the power to destroy; that the power to destroy may defeat and render useless the power to create; that there is a plain repugnance in conferring on one government a power to control the constitutional measures of another, which other, in respect to those very measures, is declared to be supreme over that which exerts the control, -are propositions not to be denied.’ It is true that taxation does not necessarily and unavoidably destroy, and that to carry it to the excess of destruction would be an abuse not to be anticipated; but the very power would take from the states a portion of their intended liberty of independent action within the sphere of their powers, and would constitute to the state a perpetual danger of embarrassment and possible annihilation. The constitution contemplates no such shackles upon state powers, and by implication forbids them.”
[Pollock v. Farmers’ Loan & Trust Co., 157 U.S. 429 (1895)]

13. A sovereignty may tax or regulate any of the entities or sovereignties below it, because it created those subordinate sovereignties. The power to create carries with it the power to destroy as well. See M’Culloch v. Maryland, 4 Wheat. 316, 431 (1819). Specific examples of sovereignties taxing their fiduciaries or creations below them include:

13.2. State and federal taxation of corporations. See 26 U.S.C. Subtitles D and E and Flint v. Stone Tracy, 220 U.S. 107 (1911).

13.3. A sovereign may only tax the entities that it creates. The U.S. Supreme Court case of U.S. v. Perkins, 163 U.S. 625 (1896) reveals, for instance, that states can only tax corporations that they create.

“Whether the United States are a corporation ‘exempt by law from taxation,’ within the meaning of the New York statutes, is the remaining question in the case. The court of appeals has held that this exemption was applicable only to domestic corporations declared by the laws of New York to be exempt from taxation. Thus, in Re Prime’s Estate, 136 N.Y. 347, 32 N.E. 1091, it was held that foreign religious and charitable corporations were not exempt from the payment of a legacy tax, Chief Judge Andrews observing (page 360, 136 N. Y., and page 1091, 32 N. E.): ‘We are of opinion that a statute of a state granting powers and privileges to corporations must, in the absence of plain indications to the contrary, be held to apply only to corporations created by the state, and over which it has power of visitation and control. ... The legislature in such cases is dealing with its own creations, whose rights and obligations it may limit, define, and control.’ To the same effect are Catlin v. Trustees, 113 N.Y. 133, 20 N.E. 864; White v. Howard, 46 N.Y. 144; In re Balleis’ Estate, 144 N.Y. 132, 38 N.E. 1007; Minot v. Winthrop, 162 Mass. 113, 38 N.E. 512; Dos P. Inh. Tax Law, c. 3, 34. If the ruling of the court of appeals of New York in this particular case be not absolutely binding upon us, we think that, having regard to the purpose of the law to impose a tax generally upon inheritances, the legislature intended to allow an exemption only in favor of such corporations as it had itself created, and which might reasonably be supposed to be the special objects of its solicitude and bounty.”

“In addition to this, however, the United States are not one of the class of corporations intended by law to be exempt [163 U.S. 625, 631] from taxation. What the corporations are to which the exemption was intended to apply are indicated by the tax laws of New York, and are confined to those of a religious, educational, charitable, or reformatory purpose. We think it was not intended to apply it to a purely political or governmental corporation, like the United States. Catlin v. Trustees, 113 N.Y. 133, 20 N.E. 864; In re Van Kleeck, 121 N.Y. 701, 75 N.E. 50; Dos P. Inh. Tax Law, c. 3, 34. In re Hamilton, 148 N.Y. 310, 42 N.E. 717, it was held that the execution did not apply to a municipality, even though created by the state itself.”

14. The jurisdiction of each government sovereignty is divided into territorial and subject matter jurisdiction:

14.1. Government sovereigns have exclusive and absolute jurisdiction, sometimes called “plenary power” or “general jurisdiction”, over their own territory and property, and no other sovereignty can exercise jurisdiction over this territory or property without the consent of the sovereign manifested in some form, and usually by an act of the legislature:

“The jurisdiction of the nation within its own territory is [169 U.S. 649, 684] necessarily exclusive and absolute. It is susceptible of no limitation not imposed by itself. Any restriction upon it, deriving validity from an external source, would imply a diminution of its sovereignty to the extent of the restriction, and an investment of that sovereignty to the same extent in that power which could impose such restriction. All exceptions, therefore, to the full and complete power of a nation within its own territories, must be traced up to the consent of the nation itself. They can flow from no other legitimate source. This consent may be either express or implied. In

1 the latter case, it is less determinate, exposed more to the uncertainties of construction; but, if understood, not
 2 less obligatory."
 3 [The Exchange, 7 Cranch 116 (1812)]

 5 "Territory: A part of a country separated from the rest, and subject to a particular jurisdiction. Geographical
 6 area under the jurisdiction of another country or sovereign power.

7 "A portion of the United States not within the limits of any state, which has not yet been admitted as a state of the 8 Union, but is organized with a separate legislature, and with executive and judicial powers appointed by the 9 President."
 10 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1473]

11 The requirement for explicit consent is called "comity" in the legal field:

12 "comity. Courtesy; complaisance; respect; a willingness to grant a privilege, not as a matter of right, but out of 13 deference and good will. Recognition that one sovereignty allows within its territory to the legislative, executive,
 14 or judicial act of another sovereignty, having due regard to rights of its own citizens. Nowell v. Nowell,
 15 Tex.Civ.App., 408 S.W.2d. 550, 553. In general, principle of "comity" is that courts of one state or jurisdiction
 16 will give effect to laws and judicial decisions of another state or jurisdiction, not as a matter of obligation, but
 17 *out of deference and mutual respect. *Brown v. Babbitt Ford, Inc., 117 Ariz. 192, 571 P.2d. 689, 695. See also
 18 Full faith and credit clause."
 19 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 267]

20 14.2. States of the union have exclusive territorial jurisdiction within their respective borders over all land and state
 21 property not ceded by an act of the legislature of the state to the federal government. They have no jurisdiction
 22 outside of their borders except for service of process and discovery, such as subpoenas and summons.

23 14.3. The federal government has legislative territorial jurisdiction only over: 1. The federal zone; 2. All areas or
 24 enclaves within the union states that have been ceded to it by an act of the state legislature under Article 1, Section
 25 8, Clause 17 of the Constitution; 3. Its own territories, possessions, and property, wherever situated; 4. Its own
 26 domiciliaries, which includes citizens and residents. Under most circumstances, the federal government has no
 27 legislative jurisdiction within states of the Union because the federal constitution reserves "police powers" to the 28 states under the Tenth Amendment.

29 "It is no longer open to question that the general government, unlike the states, Hammer v. Dagenhart, 247 U.S.
 30 251, 275, 38 S.Ct. 529, 3 A.L.R. 649, Ann.Cas.1918E 724, possesses no inherent power in respect of the internal
 32 [Carter v. Carter Coal Co., 298 U.S. 238, 56 S.Ct. 855 (1936)]

33 14.4. Within states of the union, the only type of jurisdiction the federal government can have over areas that are not its 34 territory is subject matter jurisdiction and that jurisdiction must be explicitly identified in the federal Constitution
 35 in order to exist at all. There are very few issues over which the federal government has subject matter jurisdiction
 36 within FOREIGN states of the Union and income taxes under Subtitles A through C of the Internal Revenue Code
 37 is an example of an area where such jurisdiction does not exist. Covetous public dis-servants have systematically
 38 tried to hide this fact over the years by obfuscating the Internal Revenue Code and by using illegal IRS extortion to 39 coerce federal judges into violating the Constitutional rights of Americans in the states. Subject matter jurisdiction
 40 within states of the Union is limited to the following subjects and no others:

41 14.4.1. Foreign and interstate commerce. See Constitution, Article 1, Section 8, Clause 3. This includes the 42 following subjects:

 44 Section 9, Clause 3.

45 14.4.1.2. Claims arising out of bankruptcy proceedings. See 28 U.S.C. §1334; Pauletto v. Reliance Ins.
 46 Co., 64 CA.4th 597 (1998), 602, 75 C.R.2d. 334, 337--state courts lack jurisdiction in action for 47 malicious prosecution based on defendant's having filed adversary proceeding in bankruptcy court: "it
 48 is for Congress and the federal courts, not state courts, to decide what incentives and penalties shall be 49 utilized in the bankruptcy process".

50 14.4.1.3. Claims under Sherman Antitrust Act. See 15 U.S.C. §4.

51 14.4.1.4. Claims under Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (including Rule 10b-5 actions). See 15 U.S.C.
 52 §78aa

- 14.4.1.5. Claims involving activities regulated by federal labor laws. E.g., the Labor Management Reporting and Disclosure Act (19 U.S.C. §401 et seq.) preempts state power to adjudicate claims based on union contracts or union activities, unless of "merely peripheral concern" to the Act. See San Diego Bldg. Trades Council, etc. v. Garmon, 359 U.S. 236 (1959), 247-248, 79 S.Ct. 773, 781-782; Bassett v. Attebery, 180 CA.3d. 288 (1986), 294-295, 224 CR 399, 402—NLRB (rather than federal court) has exclusive jurisdiction over wrongful discharge claim alleging violation of federal labor laws]
- 14.4.1.6. Certain ERISA actions: Suits for injunctive or other equitable relief against an employer or insurer under the Employee Retirement Income Security Act (ERISA) (But federal and state courts have concurrent jurisdiction of claims for benefits due.) See 29 U.S.C. §1132\(e\)\(1\)
- 14.4.2. Federal property and "employees". See Constitution Article 4, Section 3, Clause 2.
- 14.4.3. Frauds involving the mail. See Constitution, Article 1, Section 8, Clause 7.
- 14.4.4. Treason. See Constitution, Article 4, Section 2, Clause 2.
- 14.4.5. Patent and copyright claims. See 28 U.S.C. §1338\(a\) and Constitution, Article 1, Section 8, Clause 8.
- 14.4.6. Admiralty and maritime claims. See 28 U.S.C. §1333 and Constitution Article 1, Section 8, Clause 10.
- 14.4.7. Jurisdiction over aliens everywhere in the Union, including in states of the Union. See Chae Chan Ping v. U.S., 130 U.S. 581 \(1889\), Kleindienst v. Mandel, 408 U.S. 753 \(1972\). This source of jurisdiction is the reason that all "taxpayers" are aliens and not "citizens". See 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3) .
- 14.5. The formation of a state within territory under the exclusive control of the federal government does not affect the legal status of property not within the territory of the new state:

"This provision authorizes the United States to be and become a land-owner, and prescribes the mode in which the lands may be disposed of, and the title conveyed to the purchaser. Congress is to make the needful rules and regulations upon this subject. The title of the United States can be divested by no other power, by no other means, in no other mode, than that which congress shall sanction and prescribe. It cannot be done by the action of the people or legislature of a territory or state.' And he supported this conclusion by a review of all the acts of congress under which states had theretofore been admitted. Mr. Webster said that those precedents demonstrated that 'the general idea has been, in the creation of a state, that its admission as a state has no effect at all on the property of the United States lying within its limits;' and that it was settled by the judgment of this court in Pollard v. Hagan, 3 How. 212, 224, 'that the authority of the United States does so far extend as, by force of itself, Proprio vigore, to exempt the public lands from taxation when new states are created in the territory in which the lands lie.' 21 Cong. Globe, 31st Cong. 1st Sess. p. 1314; 22 Cong. Globe, pp. 848 et seq., 960, 986, 1004; 5 Webst. Works, 395, 396, 405."

15. Jurisdiction of each government sovereignty over subjects or sovereignties underneath it is created by oath of allegiance, which we will discuss later in section 5.2.1.
- 15.1. In order to preserve their sovereignty, the people at the top of this hierarchy should not swear an oath of allegiance to any government, because by doing so, they come under the jurisdiction of the laws that control mainly government employees and thereby to surrender their sovereignty. See section 5.2.1 for further details and also see Matt. 5:33-37, which says that Christians should not swear an oath to anything.
- 15.2. Each officer of both the state and federal governments takes an oath of allegiance to support and defend the Constitution of the United States against all enemies, foreign and domestic. Failure to live up to that oath amounts to perjury of one's oath, which can result in removal from office.
- 15.3. If is a violation of the separation of powers doctrine and a conflict of interest to take oaths to TWO masters or to occupy a public office that requires an oath to two different masters or sovereignties. Hence, it is a violation of the Constitutions of most states to simultaneously serve in a public office in the state government as well as the federal government.

CALIFORNIA CONSTITUTION
ARTICLE 7 PUBLIC OFFICERS AND EMPLOYEES

SEC. 7. A person holding a lucrative office under the United States or other power may not hold a civil office of profit [within the state government]. A local officer or postmaster whose compensation does not exceed 500 dollars per year or an officer in the militia or a member of a reserve component of the armed forces of the United States except where on active federal duty for more than 30 days in any year is not a holder of a lucrative office, nor is the holding of a civil office of profit affected by this military service.

16. Any legislation or ruling by the judicial branch of either a state government or the federal government that breaks down the distinct separation of the powers above is unconstitutional and violates Article 4, Section 4 of the federal constitution, which requires that:

1                   "The United States shall guarantee to every State in this Union a Republican Form of Government, and shall
 2                   protect each of them against Invasion; and on Application of the Legislature, or of the Executive (when the
 3                   Legislature cannot be convened) against domestic Violence."
 4                   [U.S. Constitution, Article 4, Section 4]

5                   A republican form of government is based on individual, not collective rights, and those rights cannot be defended or 6                   protected from federal "invasion" or encroachment without separation of powers to the maximum extent possible. This
 7                   concept is called the "Separation of Powers Doctrine". The implications of this requirement include:

8                   16.1. Federal government may not offer franchises to states of the Union. Only federal "States" defined in 4 U.S.C.
 9                   §110(d) can be party to federal franchises.

10                   16.2. Federal government may not offer franchises, licenses, or privileges to anyone domiciled in a sovereign state of the 11                   Union and protected by the Constitution. Another way of saying this is that those who took an oath to support and 12                   defend your rights cannot make a business out of enticing you into surrendering them in exchange for anything,
 13                   whether real or perceived.

14                   16.3. State governments may not offer franchises, licenses, or privileges to domiciled within the state whose domicile is 15                   not on federal territory. Another way of saying this is that those who took an oath to support and defend your rights
 16                   cannot make a business out of enticing you into surrendering them in exchange for anything, whether real or 17                   perceived.

18                   If you would like to know more about the abuse of franchises by malicious public servants to destroy the separation of 19                   powers and enslave the people, read:

20                   Government Instituted Slavery Using Franchises, Form #05.030
 21                   <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

22                   17. A sovereignty that wants to influence or control a subordinate sovereignty that is not immediately underneath it must do
 23                   so by using the sovereignty below it as its conduit or agent.

24                   18. In the realm of commerce, both state and federal sovereignties are treated just like any human being and recovery of 25                   debts is accomplished within courts of equity.

26                   "...when the United States enters into commercial business it abandons its sovereign capacity and is treated like 27                   any other corporation..."
 28                   [91 Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.), United States, §4 (2003)]

29                   19. Human beings domiciled inside the federal zone above do not fall into the category of "The People" because the federal 30                   zone is not a constitutional republic, but a totalitarian socialist democracy. They ARE NOT parties to the Constitution
 31                   and therefore are not protected by it. See section 4.8 earlier for further clarification on this subject. "The People" referred 32                   to in the diagram instead are those natural persons residing in and born within the 50 union states who claim their correct
 33                   status as either "state nationals" or "nationals" as described in 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21). Persons who claim to be statutory 34                   "U.S. citizens" or who are in receipt of government privileges as elected or appointed officers of the government have 35                   also forfeited their sovereignty and their position in the above diagram to fall at the same level as corporations and federal
 36                   "States".

37                   "Indeed, the practical interpretation put by Congress upon the Constitution has been long continued and uniform

 55                   Federal Government, cannot be greater than its master and creator, the states of the Union. See the Eleventh Amendment,

 2                   or prosecuted against one of the United States by Citizens of another State, or by Citizens or Subjects of any
 3                   Foreign State."

- 4 21. A state sovereignty cannot lawfully consent to the enlargement of the powers of Congress or of any other subordinate
 5 sovereignty beyond those clearly enumerated in the Constitution.

6                   "State officials thus cannot consent to the enlargement of the powers of Congress beyond those enumerated in 7                   the Constitution."
 8                   [New York v. United States, 505 U.S. 142; 112 S.Ct. 2408; 120 L.Ed.2d. 120 (1992)]

9 By implication, officials of states of the Union mentioned in the Constitution, either through the Buck Act or through an
 10 Agreement on Coordination of Tax Administration (A.C.T.A.), cannot lawfully extend or consent to extend federal 11 taxing powers into the states upon individuals and bypass the constitutional limits on federal taxing powers found in
 12 Article 1, Section 9, Clause 4 and Article, 1, Section 2, Clause 3. Only officials of federal "States" described in 4 U.S.C.
 13 §110\(d\) may do it, and these "States" are not sovereign, but simply subdivisions of the national domain who are called 14 "territories and possessions of the United States". States of the Union are neither territories nor possessions of the United 15 States.

- 16 22. A sovereignty may, under the rules of comity, voluntarily relinquish a portion of its sovereignty to a sovereignty below
 17 it but not above it. For example, under the Buck Act, 4 U.S.C. §§105-111, the U.S. government gave jurisdiction to 18 federal "States", which in fact are only territories of the federal United States (within the U.S. Code), to enforce [federal]
 19 State tax statutes within federal areas or enclaves located within their exterior boundaries. Many people mistakenly
 20 believe that this act gave the same type of authority to states of the Union, but the definition of "State" found in 4 U.S.C.
 21 §110\(d\) confirms that such a "State" is either a territory or possession of the United States, as defined in Title 48 of the 22 U.S. Code. The reason that the federal government cannot consent to the enlargement of powers of states of the Union
 23 within its borders is that this would violate the separation of powers doctrine and undermine the obligation of Article 4, 24 Section 4 of the Constitution, which requires Congress to guarantee a "Republican form of government". Below is the 25 statute that authorizes territories and possessions of the United States to enforce their tax statutes within federal enclaves:

26                   TITLE 4 > CHAPTER 4 > Sec. 106.
 27                   Sec. 106. - Same; income tax

28                   (a) No person shall be relieved from liability for any income tax levied by any State, or by any duly constituted
 29                   taxing authority therein, having jurisdiction to levy such a tax, by reason of his residing within a Federal area or 30                   receiving income from transactions occurring or services performed in such area; and such State or taxing
 31                   authority shall have full jurisdiction and power to levy and collect such tax in any Federal area within such State
 32                   to the same extent and with the same effect as though such area was not a Federal area.

24. The CREATOR of a thing is the ONLY one who has the power to DEFINE exactly what it means. You should NEVER give the power to define ANYTHING you put on a government form in the hands of a government worker, because they will ALWAYS define it to place you under their jurisdiction and benefit themselves personally. That means you should NEVER submit any government form without defining ANY and EVERY possible “word of art” on the form so that you will not waive any rights or benefit them.

“But when Congress creates a statutory right [a “privilege” in this case, such as a “trade or business”], it clearly has the discretion, in defining that right, to create presumptions, or assign burdens of proof, or prescribe remedies; it may also provide that persons seeking to vindicate that right must do so before particularized tribunals created to perform the specialized adjudicative tasks related to that right.”
 [Northern Pipeline Const. Co. v. Marathon Pipe Line Co., 458 U.S. 50, 102 S.Ct. 2858 (1983)]

This is VERY important to know, because although Congress CREATES franchises and OFFERS you opportunities to sign up and thereby waive your Constitutional rights, YOU and ONLY YOU have the right to DEFINE all terms on the application to join the franchise. Most such applications are signed under penalty of perjury and constitute testimony of a witness, and therefore it is a criminal offense to threaten or tamper with or advise the submitter to fill out the form in a certain way or else criminal witness tampering has occurred. That means that if you are compelled to sign up for the franchise against your will, you can define all terms on the form so as to:

24.2. Reserve all your constitutional rights and waive none.

24.3. Document the duress and the source of the duress that caused you to apply. Contracts or consent procured under duress are unenforceable.

24.4. Change your status to foreign and alien in relation to the offeror and therefore beyond their civil jurisdiction.

24.5. Turn the application from an acceptance into a COUNTER-OFFER of YOUR OWN franchise. This causes THEIR response to constitute an acceptance of what we call an ANTI-FRANCHISE FRANCHISE. That way, THEY and not YOU become the party waiving rights. The following videos show how this works:

If you would like to learn more about these rules for sovereignty, many of them are described in the wonderful free book on government available on our website below:

Treatise on Government, Joel Tiffany, 1867

<http://famguardian.org/Publications/TreatiseOnGovernment/TreatOnGovt.pdf>

Corporations were created by state and federal governments as a matter of public and social policy in order to encourage commerce and prosper everyone in society economically. Any Creator may place any demand on his creation that he wants to, including the requirement to pay a tax. He may even destroy his creation should he choose to do so by excessive taxation or other means. The supreme Court said of this subject the following:

[John Marshal, U.S. Supreme Court Justice, M’Culloch v. Maryland, 4 Wheat. 316, 431]

Since “the power to tax is the power to destroy,” then it follows that “the power to create is the power to tax”. This is a logical consequence of the fact that the power to create and the power to destroy must proceed from the same hand. Here is how the U.S. Supreme Court described it:

“What is a Constitution? It is the form of government, delineated by the mighty hand of the people, in which certain first principles of fundamental laws are established. The Constitution is certain and fixed; it contains the permanent will of the people, and is the supreme law of the land; it is paramount to the power of the Legislature, and can be revoked or altered only by the authority that made it. The life-giving principle and the death-doing stroke must proceed from the same hand.”

[VanHorne’s Lessee v. Dorrance, 2 U.S. 304 (1795)]

The power to create and the power to destroy can therefore only be allowed to proceed from the same source. This means that the creation cannot and should not be allowed to destroy or burden its Creator. Therefore, the federal government cannot be allowed to directly tax or embarrass or burden the states of the Union without their consent and through apportionment.

Likewise, the states of the Union cannot be allowed to directly tax or embarrass or burden the sovereign People who created them. Government may therefore tax only what government has created, and the only thing it created were corporations and paper fiat currency. A legal fiction called a government can only destroy those other legal fictions that it creates, but it cannot destroy a flesh and blood man that it did not create:

"Mr. Baily (Texas)...Or suppose I had concurred with him, and had levied a tax on the individual and exempted all corporations and to lay the burden of the government upon the man of flesh and blood, made in the image of his God."
[44 Cong.Rec. 2447 (1909)]

The definition of the term "person" found throughout the Internal Revenue Code, such as in I.R.C. Sections 6671(b) and 7343 confirms that the only type of "persons" included as the target of most types of enforcement actions are federal corporations incorporated in the District of Columbia, and "public officials" of the United States government who are in receipt of excise taxable privileges of public office. Here are a few examples demonstrating this amazing fact from the I.R.C.:

1. Definition of "person" for the purposes of "assessable penalties" within the Internal Revenue Code means an officer or employee of a corporation:

Sec. 6671. - Rules for application of assessable penalties

(b) Person defined

The term "person", as used in this subchapter, includes an officer or employee of a corporation, or a member or employee of a partnership, who as such officer, employee, or member is under a duty to perform the act in respect of which the violation occurs

2. Definition of "person" for the purposes of "miscellaneous forfeiture and penalty provisions" of the Internal Revenue Code means an officer or employer of a corporation or partnership within the federal United States:

Sec. 7343. - Definition of term "person"

The term "person" as used in this chapter [Chapter 75] includes an officer or employee of a corporation, or a member or employee of a partnership, who as such officer, employee, or member is under a duty to perform the act in respect of which the violation occurs

3. Definition of "person" or "individual" for the purposes of levy within the Internal Revenue Code means an elected or appointed officer of the United States government or a federal instrumentality:

26 U.S.C., Subchapter D - Seizure of Property for Collection of Taxes
Sec. 6331. Levy and distraint

(a) Authority of Secretary

If any person liable to pay any tax neglects or refuses to pay the same within 10 days after notice and demand, it shall be lawful for the Secretary to collect such tax (and such further sum as shall be sufficient to cover the expenses of the levy) by levy upon all property and rights to property (except such property as is exempt under section 6334) belonging to such person or on which there is a lien provided in this chapter for the payment of such tax. Levy may be made upon the accrued salary or wages of any officer, employee, or elected official, of the United States, the District of Columbia, or any agency or instrumentality of the United States or the District of Columbia, by serving a notice of levy on the employer (as defined in section 3401\(d\)) of such officer, employee, or elected official. If the Secretary makes a finding that the collection of such tax is in jeopardy, notice and demand for immediate payment of such tax may be made by the Secretary and, upon failure or refusal to pay such tax, collection thereof by levy shall be lawful without regard to the 10-day period provided in this section.

8 Government didn't create people so it can't tax people, unless they explicitly and individually consent voluntarily to it by 9 undertaking employment with the federal government as privileged public officers of that government who are voluntarily
 10 engaged in a taxable activity called a "trade or business". In a free country, all just power of government derives from the 11 explicit consent of the people. Any civil action undertaken absent explicit, informed, and voluntary consent is unjust.

12 "There is a clear distinction in this particular case between an individual and a corporation, and that the latter
 13 has no right to refuse to submit its books and papers for an examination at the suit of the State. The individual
 14 may stand upon his constitutional rights as a citizen. He is entitled to carry on his private business in his own
 15 way. His power to contract is unlimited. He owes no such duty to the State, since he receives nothing therefrom,
 16 beyond the protection of his life and property. His rights are such as existed by the law of the land long antecedent
 17 to the organization of the State, and can only be taken from him by due process of law, and in accordance with 18 the constitution. Among his rights are a refusal to incriminate himself, and the immunity of himself and his 19 property from arrest or seizure except under a warrant of the law. He owes nothing to the public so long as he 20 does not trespass upon their rights."
 21 [Hale v. Henkel, 201 U.S. 43, 74 (1906)]

22 Only God in His sovereignty can create people. That is why the Constitution recognizes in two different places, including
 23 Article 1, Section 9, Clause 4 (1:9:4) and Article 1, Clause 2, Section 3 (1:2:3) that direct taxes must be apportioned to the 24 states of the Union and may not be directly levied on the people within states of the Union by the federal government. The 25 federal government servant simply cannot be greater than the sovereign People that it serves in the states of the Union.
 26 Violating this requirement is the equivalent of instituting slavery in states of the Union in violation of the Thirteenth
 27 Amendment. This is also why:

- 28 1. There is no liability statute anywhere in Subtitle A making anyone responsible to pay income taxes.
 29 2. The IRS is not an enforcement agency and does not fall under the Undersecretary for Enforcement within the Dept. of
 30 Treasury. See: <http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/Research/TreasOrgHist/Torg1999.pdf>
 31 3. I.R.C., Subtitles A and C can only be voluntary and can never be enforced against "nontaxpayers". Every person who 32 participates must individually consent or the code becomes unenforceable. Note that AFTER they consent, it is no longer
 33 voluntary, but BEFORE they do, it is.
 34 4. All payroll tax withholding is entirely consensual and voluntary and cannot be coerced. See 26 U.S.C. §3402(p) and 26
 35 C.F.R. §31.3401(p)-1.
 36 5. The Supreme Court said that the definition for "income" has always meant corporate profit. This means that natural
 37 persons cannot earn "income" as defined by the Constitution unless they are privileged officers of the United States
 38 government who voluntarily consent to it by pursuing employment with that government:

39 "In order, therefore, that the [apportionment] clauses cited from article I [§2, cl. 3 and §9, cl. 4] of the 40 Constitution may have proper force and effect ...[I]t becomes essential to distinguish between what is an what is

 56 in the 16th Amendment, and in the various revenue acts subsequently passed."

3 "Our system of taxation is based upon voluntary assessment and payment, not distraint."

5 The debates held in Congress in 1909 over the ratification of the Sixteenth Amendment abundantly confirm the above
6 conclusions. They also abundantly confirm the fact that the legislative intent of the Sixteenth Amendment revealed during
7 Congressional debates never included the intent to tax "wages" (in the common understanding, not in the legal sense defined
8 in the Internal Revenue Code) on the labor of human beings. Below is just one cite out the hundreds of pages of Congressional 9 Debates on the Sixteenth Amendment posted on our website at:

10 Congressional Debates on the Sixteenth Amendment, Family Guardian Fellowship
11 <http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/History/Congress/1909-16thAmendCongrRecord.pdf>

12 Senator Daniel of Virginia is debating the Sixteenth Amendment and he offers an excellent analysis of the legal criteria of 13 taxing a corporation:

14 "There are many things—settled personal views—about this excise tax which we ought to remember, and I
15 propose to state, just as I have stated the difference between corporations and partnerships, what are some of the 16 marked and settled opinions which have had judicial exposition and indorsement as to the power to tax
17 corporations. I will state some of them. I think it will be found settled in the judicial reports of this country, and 18 so well settled that no lawyer familiar with the decisions could hope to disturb the decisions, as follows:

19 "(1) That a corporate franchise is a distinct subject of taxation, and not as property, but as the exercise of a 20 privilege.

21 "(2) That it may be taxed by a State or Country which creates it.

22 "(3) It may be taxed by a State or Territory in which it is exercised, although created by a foreign country.

23 "(4) It may be taxed by the United States, whether created by the United States or a foreign country or by a State,
24 Territory, or district of the United States.

25 "(5) The franchise of the corporation may also be taxed by a State, although created by the United States, unless 26 created as part of the governmental machinery of the United States.

27 "The same or rather the like limitation applies upon corporations created by the States. You may tax any private 28 corporation of a State, but a corporation of the State, that is chartered by the State to perform some function of 29 its government, partakes of a governmental nature, just as one so formed by the United States; and as the one
30 cannot be taxed by the Federal Government, so the other cannot be taxed by the State."
31 [44 Cong.Rec. 4237-4238 (1909)]

32 Below is another Congressional interchange on the legislative intent of the Sixteenth Amendment that clearly shows it was 33 never intended to apply to the wages derived from labor of a flesh and blood human being:

34 "Mr. Brandegee. Mr. President, what I said was that the amendment exempts absolutely everything that a man
35 makes for himself. Of course it would not exempt a legacy which somebody else made for him and gave to him.
36 If a man's occupation or vocation—for vocation means nothing but a calling—if his calling or occupation were
37 that of a financier it would exempt everything he made by underwriting and by financial operations in the course
38 of a year that would be the product of his effort. Nothing can be imagined that a man can busy himself about 39 with a view of profit which the amendment as drawn would not utterly exempt."
40 [50 Cong.Rec. p. 3839, 1913]

41 Even the U.S. Supreme Court agrees with this conclusion that earnings from labor are not taxable to the person who did the 42 work:

43 "Every man has a natural right to the fruits of his own labor, is generally admitted; and no other person can 44 rightfully deprive him of those fruits, and appropriate them against his will..."
45 [The Antelope, 23 U.S. 66, 10 Wheat 66, 6 L.Ed. 268 (1825)]

5.1.2 Nature of the Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A Income Tax

The income tax described in Subtitle A of the Internal Revenue Code is an excise tax upon a “trade or business”, which is defined as “the functions of a public office” within the United States government:

26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(26\)

“The term ‘trade or business’ includes the performance of the functions of a public office.”

A “trade or business” is what the legal profession calls a “franchise”. Participation in all franchises is voluntary, which is why there is no liability statute anywhere in the Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A that makes the average American “liable” to pay the income tax. For details on franchises, see:

Government Instituted Slavery Using Franchises, Form #05.030
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

A “public office” is a type of employment or agency within the federal government that is created by contract or agreement that you must implicitly or explicitly consent to.

Public office

“Essential characteristics of a ‘public office’ are:

(1) Authority conferred by law,

(2) Fixed tenure of office, and

(5) Essential elements to establish public position as ‘public office’ are:

(a) Position must be created by Constitution, legislature, or through authority conferred by legislature.

(b) Portion of sovereign power of government must be delegated to position,

(c) Duties and powers must be defined, directly or implied, by legislature or through legislative authority.

(d) Duties must be performed independently without control of superior power other than law, and

(e) Position must have some permanency.”

[Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1230]

A person holding a “public office” has a fiduciary duty to the public as a “trustee” of the “public trust”:

“As expressed otherwise, the powers delegated to a public officer are held in trust for the people and are to be exercised in behalf of the government or of all citizens who may need the intervention of the officer. 2 Furthermore, the view has been expressed that all public officers, within whatever branch and whatever level of government, and whatever be their private vocations, are trustees of the people, and accordingly labor under every disability and prohibition imposed by law upon trustees relative to the making of personal financial gain from a discharge of their trusts. 3 That is, a public officer occupies a fiduciary relationship to the political entity on whose behalf he or she serves. 4 and owes a fiduciary duty to the public. 5 It has been said that the fiduciary responsibilities of a public officer cannot be less than those of a private individual. 6 Furthermore, it has been stated that any enterprise undertaken by the public official which tends to weaken public confidence and undermine the sense of security for individual rights is against public policy.7”
[63C American Jurisprudence 2d, Public Officers and Employees, §247 (1999)]

If you aren't engaged in a "public office", then you can't be the proper subject of the income tax or truthfully or lawfully be described as THE "person", "individual", "employee", "employer", "citizen", "resident", or "taxpayer" described anywhere in the Internal Revenue Code UNLESS you volunteer by signing an agreement. Yes, you could be described by these terms in their ordinary English usage, but you would not fit the LEGAL meanings of these terms as they are defined in the Internal Revenue Code unless you in fact and in deed engage in a "public office" within the United States government through private contract or agreement that you consent to. Within this publication, we put quotes around words like those above when we wish to refer to the legally defined meaning of a term and exclude the common or ordinary definition. In that sense, the Internal Revenue Code constitutes:

1. Private law:

"Private law. That portion of the law which defines, regulates, enforces, and administers relationships among individuals, associations, and corporations. As used in contradistinction to public law, the term means all that part of the law which is administered between citizen and citizen, or which is concerned with the definition, regulation, and enforcement of rights in cases where both the person in whom the right inheres and the person upon whom the obligation is incident are private individuals. See also Private bill; Special law. Compare Public Law."

2. Special law:

"special law. One relating to particular persons or things; one made for individual cases or for particular places or districts; one operating upon a selected class, rather than upon the public generally. A private law. A law is "special" when it is different from others of the same general kind or designed for a particular purpose, or limited in range or confined to a prescribed field of action or operation. A "special law" relates to either particular persons, places, or things or to persons, places, or things which, though not particularized, are separated by any method of selection from the whole class to which the law might, but not such legislation, be applied. Utah Farm Bureau Ins. Co. v. Utah Ins. Guaranty Ass'n, Utah, 564 P.2d. 751, 754. A special law applies only to an individual or a number of individuals out of a single class similarly situated and affected, or to a special locality. Board of County Com'rs of Lemhi County v. Swensen, Idaho, 80 Idaho 198, 327 P.2d. 361, 362. See also Private bill; Private law. Compare General law; Public law."

[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, pp. 1397-1398]

3. What the courts call a "franchise", which is a "privilege" or benefit offered only to those who volunteer:

FRANCHISE. A special privilege conferred by government on individual or corporation, and which does not belong to citizens of country generally of common right. Elliott v. City of Eugene, 135 Or. 108, 294 P. 358, 360. In England it is defined to be a royal privilege in the hands of a subject.

A "franchise," as used by Blackstone in defining quo warranto, (3 Com. 262 [4th Am. Ed.] 322), had reference to a royal privilege or branch of the king's prerogative subsisting in the hands of the subject, and must arise from the king's grant, or be held by prescription, but today we understand a franchise to be some special privilege conferred by government on an individual, natural or artificial, which is not enjoyed by its citizens in general. State v. Fernandez, 106 Fla. 779, 143 So. 638, 639, 86 A.L.R. 240.

In this country a franchise is a privilege or immunity of a public nature, which cannot be legally exercised without legislative grant. To be a corporation is a franchise. The various powers conferred on corporations are franchises. The execution of a policy of insurance by an insurance company [e.g. Social Insurance/Socialist Security], and the issuing a bank note by an incorporated bank [such as a Federal Reserve NOTE], are franchises. People v. Utica Ins. Co., 15 Johns., N.Y., 387, 8 Am.Dec. 243. But it does not embrace the property acquired by the exercise of the franchise. Bridgeport v. New York & N. H. R. Co., 36 Conn. 255, 4 Arn.Rep. 63. Nor involve interest in land acquired by grantee. Whitbeck v. Funk, 140 Or. 70, 12 P.2d. 1019, 1020 In a popular sense, the political rights of subjects and citizens are franchises, such as the right of suffrage. etc. Pierce v. Emery, 32 N.H. 484; State v. Black Diamond Co., 97 Ohio.St. 24, 119 N.E. 195, 199, L.R.A. 1918E, 352.

Exclusive Franchise. See Exclusive Privilege or Franchise.

General and Special. The charter of a corporation is its "general" franchise, while a "special" franchise consists in any rights granted by the public to use property for a public use but-with private profit. Lord v. Equitable Life Assur. Soc., 194 N.Y. 212, 81 N.E. 443, 22 L.R.A.,N.S., 420.

Personal Franchise. A franchise of corporate existence, or one which authorizes the formation and existence of a corporation, is sometimes called a "personal" franchise. as distinguished from a "property" franchise, which

1 authorizes a corporation so formed to apply its property to some particular enterprise or exercise some special
2 privilege in its employment, as, for example, to construct and operate a railroad. See Sandham v. Nye, 9 Misc.Rep.
3 541, 30 N.Y.S. 552.

4 Secondary Franchises. The franchise of corporate existence being sometimes called the "primary" franchise of a
5 corporation, its "secondary" franchises are the special and peculiar rights, privileges, or grants which it may,
6 receive under its charter or from a municipal corporation, such as the right to use the public streets, exact tolls,
7 collect fares, etc. State v. Topeka Water Co., 61 Kan. 547, 60 P. 337; Virginia Canon Toll Road Co. v. People,
8 22 Colo. 429, 45 P. 398 37 L.R.A. 711. The franchises of a corporation are divisible into (1) corporate or general
9 franchises; and (2) "special or secondary franchises. The former is the franchise to exist as a corporation, while
10 the latter are certain rights and privileges conferred upon existing corporations. Gulf Refining Co. v. Cleveland
11 Trust Co., 166 Miss. 759, 108 So. 158, 160.

12 Special Franchisee. See Secondary Franchises, supra.
13 [Black's Law Dictionary, Fourth Edition, pp. 786-787]

14 4. An "excise tax" or "privilege tax" upon privileges incident to federal contracts, employment, or agency.

15 "Excises are taxes laid upon the manufacture, sale or consumption of commodities within the country, upon
16 licenses to pursue certain occupations and upon corporate privileges...the requirement to pay such taxes
17 involves the exercise of [220 U.S. 107, 152] privileges, and the element of absolute and unavoidable demand
18 is lacking...

19 ...It is therefore well settled by the decisions of this court that when the sovereign authority has exercised the right
20 to tax a legitimate subject of taxation as an exercise of a franchise or privilege, it is no objection that the measure
21 of taxation is found in the income produced in part from property which of itself considered is nontaxable...

22 Conceding the power of Congress to tax the business activities of private corporations.. the tax must be measured
23 by some standard..."
24 [Flint v. Stone Tracy Co., 220 U.S. 107 (1911)]

Hoverdale Letter, SEDM Exhibit #09.023

26 The rules for administering the "trade or business" franchise followed universally by the IRS and the courts are as follows:

27 1. The method of conveying consent to participate in the "trade or business" franchise is any one or more of the following:

28 1.1. Signing and submitting SSA Form SS-5, the Application for Social Security. See:

Resignation of Compelled Social Security Trustee, Form #06.002
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

29 1.2. Signing and submitting IRS Form W-4, which is the WRONG form for persons NOT engaging in the franchise.
30 See:

Federal and State Tax Withholding Options for Private Employers, Family Guardian Fellowship

31 1.3. Signing and submitting IRS Form 1040 and assessing yourself with a liability:

32 "... the government can collect the tax from a district court suitor by exercising its power of distraint... but we 33 cannot believe that compelling resort to this extraordinary procedure is either wise or in accord with 34 congressional intent. Our system of taxation is based upon VOLUNTARY ASSESSMENT AND PAYMENT, NOT 35 UPON DISTRAINT" [Footnote 43] If the government is forced to use these remedies(distraint) on a large scale, 36 it will affect adversely the taxpayers willingness to perform under our VOLUNTARY assessment system."
37 [Flora v. U.S., 362 U.S. 145, (1959)]

38 1.4. Failing or refusing to rebut false information returns that connect you to the franchise. 26 U.S.C. §6041(a) says
39 that information returns, such as IRS Forms W-2, 1042-S, 1098, and 1099 may ONLY lawfully be filed against 40 those engaged in the "trade or business" franchise. If you don't rebut these when they are mailed to you, then your 41 failure to rebut is an admission that they are truthful. See:

42 1.4.1. Correcting Erroneous Information Returns, Form #04.001

43 1.4.2. Correcting Erroneous IRS Form 1042's, Form #04.003

1.4.3. Correcting Erroneous IRS Form 1098's, Form #04.004

1.4.4. Correcting Erroneous IRS Form 1099's, Form #04.005

1.4.5. Correcting Erroneous IRS Form W-2's, Form #04.006

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

1.5. Failing to rebut the use of federal identifying numbers on government correspondence sent to you, which constitute a "prima facie" license number to participate in "public rights" and franchises. See:

Wrong Party Notice, Form #07.105

2. Those who do NOT participate in the "trade or business" franchise:

2.1. Cannot legally withhold on their earnings. Anyone who withholds upon them against their will is committing THEFT for which they are personally liable.

2.2. Do not earn "wages" as legally defined in 26 U.S.C. §3401, 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(a)-3, or 26 C.F.R. §31.3402(p)-1. Therefore, any amount reported on an IRS Form W-2 MUST be ZERO, because it only reports "wages" as legally defined and not as commonly understood or used.

2.3. Have their private rights protected by the Constitution but not by most federal law. Most federal law is "foreign" in relation to them:

"The revenue laws are a code or system in regulation of tax assessment and collection. They relate to taxpayers, and not to nontaxpayers. The latter are without their scope. No procedure is prescribed for nontaxpayers, and no attempt is made to annul any of their rights and remedies in due course of law. With them Congress does not assume to deal, and they are neither of the subject nor of the object of the revenue laws..."

[Long v. Rasmussen, 281 F. 236 (1922)]

"Revenue Laws relate to taxpayers [instrumentalities, officers, employees, and elected officials of the Federal Government] and not to non-taxpayers [American Citizens/American Nationals not subject to the exclusive jurisdiction of the Federal Government]. The latter are without their scope. No procedures are prescribed for non-taxpayers and no attempt is made to annul any of their Rights or Remedies in due course of law."

[Economy Plumbing & Heating v. U.S., 470 F.2d. 585 (1972)]

2.4. May not cite any provision of the franchise agreements codified in the I.R.C. and the Social Security Act because they are "foreign law" in relation to them and their estate is a "foreign estate" pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(31\)

2.5. If they cite any provision of the franchise agreements, imply their voluntary consent to be bound by them, which is all that is needed to enforce these provisions of "private law"/"contract law" against them.

2.6. Are called the following in the context of federal law:

2.6.1. "nontaxpayers". See:

Who are "Taxpayers" and Who Needs a "Taxpayer Identification Number"?, Form #05.013

2.6.2. "non-resident non-persons".

2.6.3. "nonresident alien non-persons engaged in a 'trade or business'" as defined in 26 C.F.R. §1.871-1(b)(1)(i) .

See:

Non-Resident Non-Person Position, Form #05.020

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

2.6.4. "transient foreigners"

2.6.5. "stateless persons" in relation to the federal courts.

2.6.6. "non-citizen nationals"

2.6.7. American Citizens or "citizens of the United States OF AMERICA". See 1 Stat. 477, in which the U.S. Congress identifies those domiciled in states of the Union as both "American Citizens" and "citizens of the United States OF AMERICA"

3. Those who participate in the "trade or business" franchise:

3.1. Earn "wages" as legally defined in 26 U.S.C. §3401 because they signed a voluntary W-4 "agreement" consenting to call such earnings "wages" pursuant to 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(a)-3, or 26 C.F.R. §31.3402(p)-1. Therefore, any amount reported on an IRS Form W-2 MUST include all earnings subject to the W-4 "agreement".

3.2. If they are individuals, are called the following in the context of federal law:

3.2.1. "taxpayers"

3.2.2. "public officers"

1 3.2.3. "employees"

2 3.2.4. "employers"

3 3.2.5. "citizens" or "citizens of the United States" as defined in 8 U.S.C. §1401 and 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(c)-1, where 4 "United States" means either the federal zone or the U.S. government.

5 3.2.6. "residents of the United States" as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(b\)\(1\)\(A\), , where "United States" means either
6 the federal zone or the U.S. government.

7 3.3. If they are federal territories and possessions:

8 3.3.1. Must enter an Agreement on Coordination of Tax Administration (A.C.T.A.) agreement with the Secretary of 9 the Treasury pursuant to:

10 3.3.1.1. 26 U.S.C. §6361 through 6365

11 3.3.1.2. 26 C.F.R. §301.6361-1 through 301.6361-5

12 3.3.2. Are called "States" within federal law, which are territories and possessions of the United States pursuant to 13 4 U.S.C. §110(d). See also the following for further examples in state law:

14 California Revenue and Taxation Code
15 Division 2: Other Taxes
16 Part 10: Personal Income Tax

17 17018. "State" includes the District of Columbia, and the possessions of the United States.

19 California Revenue and Taxation Code
20 Division 2: Other Taxes
21 Part 1: Sales and Use Taxes

22 6017. "In this State" or "in the State" means within the exterior limits of the State of California and includes all
23 territory within these limits owned by or ceded to the United States of America.

24 3.4. If they are states of the Union, may not lawfully participate in the federal tax system because they do not fit the

State Income Taxes, Form #05.031

26 3.5. May have any provision of the franchise agreements codified in the Internal Revenue Code or the Social Security
27 Act cited against them in court. See:

Why You Shouldn't Cite Federal Statutes as Authority for Protecting Your Rights

<http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Discrimination/CivilRights/DontCiteFederalLaw.htm>

28 3.6. Become "trustees" of the "public trust" as well as officers of the federal corporation identified in 28 U.S.C.
29 §3002\(15\)\(A\).

30 3.7. Are acting in a representative capacity on behalf of the federal government pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil
31 Procedure 17\(b\) as "officers of a federal corporation".

32 4. All franchises and "public rights" RECOGNIZE AND EXTEND but cannot lawfully CREATE NEW federal agency
33 and "public office" to one extent or another, and it is this agency that is the subject of most federal legislation. Nearly 34 all laws passed by Congress pertain only to their own territory, possessions, offices, employees, and franchises. You
35 must therefore become part of the government for them to lawfully regulate the exercise of the franchise.

36 "The restrictions that the Constitution places upon the government in its capacity as lawmaker, i.e., as the
37 regulator of private conduct, are not the same as the restrictions that it places upon the government in its capacity
38 as employer. We have recognized this in many contexts, with respect to many different constitutional guarantees.

5. All privileged activities and franchises are usually licensed by the government and cause a surrender of constitutional rights:

5.1. The application of the license causes a surrender of constitutional rights.

“And here a thought suggests itself. As the Meadors, subsequently to the passage of this act of July 20, 1868, applied for and obtained from the government a license or permit to deal in manufactured tobacco, snuff and cigars, I am inclined to be of the opinion that they are, by this their own voluntary act, precluded from assailing the constitutionality of this law, or otherwise controverting it. For the granting of a license or permit-the yielding of a particular privilege-and its acceptance by the Meadors, was a contract, in which it was implied that the provisions of the statute which governed, or in any way affected their business, and all other statutes previously passed, which were in pari materia with those provisions, should be recognized and obeyed by them. When the Meadors sought and accepted the privilege, the law was before them. And can they now impugn its constitutionality or refuse to obey its provisions and stipulations, and so exempt themselves from the consequences of their own acts?”

[In re Meador, 1 Abb.U.S. 317, 16 F.Cas. 1294, D.C.Ga. (1869)]

5.2. Those participating in the “benefits” of the franchise have implicitly surrendered the right to challenge any encroachments against their “private rights” or “constitutional rights” that result from said participation:

The Court developed, for its own governance in the cases confessedly within its jurisdiction, a series of rules under which it has avoided passing upon a large part of all the constitutional questions pressed upon it for decision. They are:

[ . . . ]

6. The Court will not pass upon the constitutionality of a statute at the instance of one who has availed himself of its benefits.<sup>FN7</sup> *Great Falls Mfg. Co. v. 6. The Social Security Number is the “de facto” license number which is used to track and control all those who voluntarily engage in public franchises and “public rights”.

6.1. The number is “de facto” rather than “de jure” because Congress cannot lawfully license any trade or business, including a “public office” in a state of the Union, by the admission of no less than the U.S. Supreme Court:

“Thus, Congress having power to regulate commerce with foreign nations, and among the several States, and with the Indian tribes, may, without doubt, provide for granting coasting licenses, licenses to pilots, licenses to trade with the Indians, and any other licenses necessary or proper for the exercise of that great and extensive power; and the same observation is applicable to every other power of Congress, to the exercise of which the granting of licenses may be incident. All such licenses confer authority, and give rights to the licensee.

But very different considerations apply to the internal commerce or domestic trade of the States. Over this commerce and trade Congress has no power of regulation nor any direct control. This power belongs exclusively to the States. No interference by Congress with the business of citizens transacted within a State is warranted by the Constitution, except such as is strictly incidental to the exercise of powers clearly granted to the legislature. The power to authorize a business within a State is plainly repugnant to the exclusive power of the State over the same subject. It is true that the power of Congress to tax is a very extensive power. It is given in the Constitution, with only one exception and only two qualifications. Congress cannot tax exports, and it must impose direct taxes by the rule of apportionment, and indirect taxes by the rule of uniformity. Thus limited, and thus only, it reaches every subject, and may be exercised at discretion. But, it reaches only existing subjects. Congress cannot authorize a trade or business within a State in order to tax it.”

6.2. If you don't want to be in a “privileged” state and suffer the legal disabilities of accepting the privilege, then you CANNOT have or use Social Security Numbers.

7. Use of a Social Security Number constitutes prima facie consent to engage in the franchise. Use of this number constitutes prima facie evidence of implied consent because:

7.1. It is a crime to compel use or disclosure of Social Security Numbers. 42 U.S.C. §408.

7.2. You can withdraw from the franchise lawfully at any time if you don't want to participate. See SSA Form 521. See:

Resignation of Compelled Social Security Trustee, Form #06.002

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

7.3. If the government uses the SSN trustee license number to communicate with you and you don't object or correct them, then you once again consented to their jurisdiction to administer the program. See:

Wrong Party Notice, Form #07.105

8. The Social Security Number is property of the government and NOT the person using it. 20 C.F.R. §422.103(d).

8.1. The Social Security card confirms this, which says: "Property of the Social Security Administration and must be returned upon request.

8.2. Anything the Social Security Number is attached to becomes "private property" voluntarily donated to a "public use" to procure the benefits of the "public right" or franchise. Only "public officers" on official business may have public property in their possession such as the Social Security Number.

5.1.3 Overview of the Income Taxation Process

This section provides basic background on how the income tax described in Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A functions. This will help you fit the explanation contained in this memorandum into the overall taxation process. Below is a summary of the taxation process:

1. The purpose for establishing governments is mainly to protect private property. The Declaration of Independence affirms this:

"We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.--That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed,

[Declaration of Independence, 1776]

2. Government protects private rights by keeping "public [government] property" and "private property" separate and never allowing them to be joined together. This is the heart of the separation of powers doctrine: separation of what is private from what is public with the goal of protecting mainly what is private. See:

Government Conspiracy to Destroy the Separation of Powers, Form #05.023

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

3. All property BEGINS as private property. The only way to lawfully change it to public property is through the exercise of your unalienable constitutional right to contract. All franchises qualify as a type of contract, and therefore, franchises are one of many methods to lawfully convert PRIVATE property to PUBLIC property. The exercise of the right to contract, in turn, is an act of consent that eliminates any possibility of a legal remedy of the donor against the donee:

"Voluntati non fit injuria.

He who consents cannot receive an injury. 2 Bouv. Inst. n. 2279, 2327; 4 T. R. 657; Shelf. on mar. & Div. 449.

It is better to suffer every wrong or ill, than to consent to it. 3 Co. Inst. 23.

2 One cannot complain of having been deceived when he knew the fact and gave his consent. Dig. 50, 17, 145."

3 [Bouvier's Maxims of Law, 1856;

5 4. In law, all rights are "property".

6 Property. That which is peculiar or proper to any person; that which belongs exclusively to one. In the strict legal
 7 sense, an aggregate of rights which are guaranteed and protected by the government. Fulton Light, Heat &
 8 Power Co. v. State, 65 Misc.Rep. 263, 121 N.Y.S. 536. The term is said to extend to every species of valuable
 9 right and interest. More specifically, ownership; the unrestricted and exclusive right to a thing; the right to
 10 dispose of a thing in every legal way, to possess it, to use it, and to exclude every one else from interfering with 11 it. That dominion or indefinite right of use or disposition which one may lawfully exercise over particular things
 12 or subjects. The exclusive right of possessing, enjoying, and disposing of a thing. The highest right a man can 13 have to anything; being used to refer to that right which one has to lands or tenements, goods or chattels, which 14 no way depends on another man's courtesy.

15 The word is also commonly used to denote everything which is the subject of ownership, corporeal or incorporeal,
 16 tangible or intangible, visible or invisible, real or personal, everything that has an exchangeable value or which
 17 goes to make up wealth or estate. It extends to every species of valuable right and interest, and includes real 18 and personal property, easements, franchises, and incorporeal hereditaments, and includes every invasion of 19 one's property rights by actionable wrong. Labberton v. General Cas. Co. of America, 53 Wash.2d. 180, 332
 20 P.2d. 250, 252, 254.

21 Property embraces everything which is or may be the subject of ownership, whether a legal ownership, or whether
 22 beneficial, or a private ownership. Davis v. Davis. TexCiv-App., 495 S.W.2d. 607. 611. Term includes not only
 23 ownership and possession but also the right of use and enjoyment for lawful purposes. Hoffmann v. Kinealy, Mo.,
 24 389 S.W.2d. 745, 752.

25 Property, within constitutional protection, denotes group of rights inhering in citizen's relation to physical
 26 thing, as right to possess, use and dispose of it. Cereghino v. State By and Through State Highway Commission,
 27 230 Or. 439, 370 P.2d. 694, 697.
 28 [Black's Law Dictionary, Fifth Edition, p. 1095]

29 By protecting your constitutional rights, the government is protecting your PRIVATE property. Your rights are private
 30 property because they came from God, not from the government. Only what the government creates can become public
 31 property. An example is corporations, which are a public franchise that makes officers of the corporation into public 32 officers.

33 5. The process of taxation is the process of converting "private property" into a "public use" and a "public purpose". Below
 34 are definitions of these terms for your enlightenment.

35 Public use. Eminent domain. The constitutional and statutory basis for taking property by eminent domain. For 36 condemnation purposes, "public use" is one which confers some benefit or advantage to the public; it is not 37 confined to actual use by public. It is measured in terms of right of public to use proposed facilities for which 38 condemnation is sought and, as long as public has right of use, whether exercised by one or many members of 39 public, a "public advantage" or "public benefit" accrues sufficient to constitute a public use. Montana Power
 40 Co. v. Bokma, Mont., 457 P.2d. 769, 772, 773.

 42 domain, means a use concerning the whole community distinguished from particular individuals. But each and 43 every member of society need not be equally interested in such use, or be personally and directly affected by it;
 44 if the object is to satisfy a great public want or exigency, that is sufficient. Ringe Co. v. Los Angeles County, 262
 45 U.S. 700, 43 S.Ct. 689, 692, 67 L.Ed. 1186. The term may be said to mean public usefulness, utility, or advantage,
 46 or what is productive of general benefit. It may be limited to the inhabitants of a small or restricted locality, but 47 must be in common, and not for a particular individual. The use must be a needful one for the public, which 48 cannot be surrendered without obvious general loss and inconvenience. A "public use" for which land may be
 49 taken defies absolute definition for it changes with varying conditions of society, new appliances in the sciences,
 50 changing conceptions of scope and functions of government, and other differing circumstances brought about by 51 an increase in population and new modes of communication and transportation. Katz v. Brandon, 156 Conn.
 52 521, 245 A.2d. 579, 586.

53 See also Condemnation; Eminent domain.
 54 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1232]

1 "Public purpose. In the law of taxation, eminent domain, etc., this is a term of classification to distinguish the
 2 objects for which, according to settled usage, the government is to provide, from those which, by the like usage,
 3 are left to private interest, inclination, or liberality. The constitutional requirement that the purpose of any tax,
 4 police regulation, or particular exertion of the power of eminent domain shall be the convenience, safety, or
 5 welfare of the entire community and not the welfare of a specific individual or class of persons [such as, for 6 instance, federal benefit recipients as individuals]. "Public purpose" that will justify expenditure of public
 7 money generally means such an activity as will serve as benefit to community as a body and which at same time
 8 is directly related function of government. Pack v. Southwestern Bell Tel. & Tel. Co., 215 Tenn. 503, 387 S.W.2d.

10 The term is synonymous with governmental purpose. As employed to denote the objects for which taxes may be
 11 levied, it has no relation to the urgency of the public need or to the extent of the public benefit which is to follow;
 12 the essential requisite being that a public service or use shall affect the inhabitants as a community, and not
 13 merely as individuals. A public purpose or public business has for its objective the promotion of the public
 14 health, safety, morals, general welfare, security, prosperity, and contentment of all the inhabitants or residents
 15 within a given political division, as, for example, a state, the sovereign powers of which are exercised to promote 16 such public purpose or public business."

17 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1231, Emphasis added]

- 18 6. The federal government has no power of eminent domain within states of the Union. This means that they cannot 19 lawfully convert private property to a public use or a public purpose within the exclusive jurisdiction of states of the 20 Union:

21 "The United States have no constitutional capacity to exercise municipal jurisdiction, sovereignty, or eminent
 22 domain, within the limits of a State or elsewhere, except in cases where it is delegated, and the court
 23 denies the faculty of the Federal Government to add to its powers by treaty 24 or compact."

25 [Dred Scott v. Sandford, 60 U.S. 393, 508-509 (1856)]

- 26 7. The Fifth Amendment prohibits converting private property to a public use or a public purpose without just compensation
 27 if the owner does not consent, and this prohibition applies to the Federal government as well as states of the Union. It
 28 was made applicable to states of the Union by the Fourteenth Amendment in 1868.

29 Fifth Amendment - Rights of Persons

30 No person shall be held to answer for a capital, or otherwise infamous crime, unless on a presentment or 31 indictment of a Grand Jury, except in cases arising in the land or naval forces, or in the Militia, when in actual 32 service in time of War or public danger; nor shall any person be subject for the same offence to be twice put in 33 jeopardy of life or limb; nor shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself, nor be
 34 deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor shall private property be taken for public 35 use, without just compensation.

36 [United States Constitution, Fifth Amendment]

37 If the conversion of private property to public property is done without the express consent of the party affected by the 38 conversion and without compensation, then the following violations have occurred:

39 7.1. Violation of the Fifth Amendment "takings clause" above.

41 7.3. Theft.

- 42 8. Because taxation involves converting private property to a public use, public purpose, and public office, then it involves 43 eminent domain if the owner of the property did not expressly consent to the taking:

44 Eminent domain. The power to take private property for public use by the state, municipalities, and private 45 persons or corporations authorized to exercise functions of public character. Housing Authority of Cherokee
 46 National of Oklahoma v. Langley, Okl., 555 P.2d. 1025, 1028. Fifth Amendment, U.S. Constitution.

47 In the United States, the power of eminent domain is founded in both the federal (Fifth Amend.) and state
 48 constitutions. However, the Constitution limits the power to taking for a public purpose and prohibits the 49 exercise of the power of eminent domain without just compensation to the owners of the property which is 50 taken. The process of exercising the power of eminent domain is commonly referred to as "condemnation", 51 or, "expropriation".

52 The right of eminent domain is the right of the state, through its regular organization, to reassert, either
 53 temporarily or permanently, its dominion over any portion of the soil of the state on account of public exigency
 54 and for the public good. Thus, in time of war or insurrection, the proper authorities may possess and hold any part of the territory of the state for the common safety; and in time of peace the legislature may authorize the appropriation of the same to public purposes, such as the opening of roads, construction of defenses, or providing channels for trade or travel. Eminent domain is the highest and most exact idea of property remaining in the government, or in the aggregate body of the people in their sovereign capacity. It gives a right to resume the possession of the property in the manner directed by the constitution and the laws of the state, whenever the public interest requires it.

See also Adequate compensation; Condemnation; Constructive taking; Damages; Expropriation; Fair market value; Just compensation; Larger parcel; Public use; Take.
[Black's Law Dictionary, Fifth Edition, p. 470]

9. The Fifth Amendment requires that any taking of private property without the consent of the owner must involve compensation. The Constitution must be consistent with itself. The taxation clauses found in Article 1, Section 8, Clauses 1 and 3 cannot conflict with the Fifth Amendment. The Fifth Amendment contains no exception to the requirement for just compensation upon conversion of private property to a public use, even in the case of taxation. This is why all taxes must be indirect excise taxes against people who provide their consent by applying for a license to engage in the taxed activity: The application for the license constitutes constructive consent to donate the fruits of the activity to a public use, public purpose, and public office.

"Supreme Court's decision in Armstrong v. U.S., in which Court ruled that government could not assert sovereign immunity as defense to suit for recovery under takings clause, did not provide basis for district court to exercise subject matter jurisdiction over embezzlement victim's claim to recover taxes paid by corporation on embezzled funds; decision did not question right of Congress to limit its waiver of immunity to suit to particular court, and Court of Federal Claims had exclusive jurisdiction over victim's claim."
[Pershing Division of Donaldson, Lufkin & Jenrette Securities Corp. v. United States, 22 F.3d. 741 (7th Cir. 1994)]

10. There is only ONE condition in which the conversion of private property to public property does NOT require compensation, which is when the owner donates the private property to a public use, public purpose, or public office. To wit:

"Men are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, -life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness; and to 'secure,' not grant or create, these rights, governments are instituted. That property for income] which a man has honestly acquired he retains full control of, subject to these limitations: First, that he shall not use it to his neighbor's injury, and that does not mean that he must use it for his neighbor's benefit [e.g. SOCIAL SECURITY, Medicare, and every other public "benefit"]; second, that if he devotes it to a public use, he gives to the public a right to control that use; and third, that whenever the public needs require, the public may take it upon payment of due compensation."

Table 5-1: Rules for converting private property to a public use or a public office

| 1 | The owner of property justly acquired enjoys full and exclusive use and control over the property. This right includes the right to exclude government uses or ownership of said property.                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | Yes                                               |
| 2 | He may not use the property to injure the equal rights of his neighbor. For instance, when you murder someone, the government can take your liberty and labor from you by putting you in jail or your life from you by instituting the death penalty against you. Both your life and your labor are "property". Therefore, the basis for the "taking" was violation of the equal rights of a fellow sovereign "neighbor". | No                                                |
| 3 | He cannot be compelled or required to use it to "benefit" his neighbor. That means he cannot be compelled to donate the property to any franchise that would "benefit" his neighbor such as Social Security, Medicare, etc.                                                                                                                                                                                               | Yes                                               |
| 4 | If he donates it to a public use, he gives the public the right to control that use.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Yes                                               |

| 5 | Whenever the public needs require, the public may take it without his consent upon payment of due compensation. E.g. "eminent domain". | No                                                |

11. The following two methods are the ONLY methods involving consent of the owner that may be LAWFULLY employed to convert PRIVATE property into PUBLIC property. Anything else is unlawful and THEFT:

11.1. DIRECT CONVERSION: Owner donates the property by conveying title or possession to the government.<sup>8</sup>

11.2. INDIRECT CONVERSION: Owner assumes a PUBLIC status as a PUBLIC officer in the HOLDING of title to the property.<sup>9</sup> All such statuses and the rights that attach to it are creations and property of the government, the use of which is a privilege. The status and all PUBLIC RIGHTS that attach to it conveys a "benefit" for which the status user must pay an excise tax. The tax acts as a rental or use fee for the status, which is government property.

12. You and ONLY you can authorize your private property to be donated to a public use, public purpose, and public office. No third party can lawfully convert or donate your private property to a public use, public purpose, or public office without your knowledge and express consent. If they do, they are guilty of theft and conversion, and especially if they are acting in a quasi-governmental capacity as a "withholding agent" as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(16).

12.1. A withholding agent cannot file an information return connecting your earnings to a "trade or business" without you actually occupying a "public office" in the government BEFORE you filled out any tax form.

12.2. A withholding agent cannot file IRS Form W-2 against your earnings if you didn't sign an IRS Form W-4 contract and thereby consent to donate your private property to a public office in the U.S. government and therefore a "public use".

12.3. That donation process is accomplished by your own voluntary self-assessment and ONLY by that method. Before such a self-assessment, you are a "nontaxpayer" and a private person. After the assessment, you become a "taxpayer" and a public officer in the government engaged in the "trade or business" franchise.

12.4. In order to have an income tax liability, you must complete, sign, and "file" an income tax return and thereby assess yourself:

*"Our system of taxation is based upon voluntary assessment and payment, not distraint."
[Flora v. U.S., 362 U.S. 145 (1960)]*

By assessing yourself, you implicitly give your consent to allow the public the right to control that use of the formerly PRIVATE property donated to a public use.

12.5. IRS Forms W-2 and W-4 are identified as Tax Class 5: Estate and Gift Taxes. Payroll withholdings are GIFTS, not "taxes" in a common law sense.

TITLE 31 > SUBTITLE 1 > CHAPTER 3 > SUBCHAPTER II > § 321
§ 321. General authority of the Secretary

(1) The Secretary of the Treasury may accept, hold, administer, and use gifts and bequests of property, both real and personal, for the purpose of aiding or facilitating the work of the Department of the Treasury. Gifts and bequests of money and the proceeds from sales of other property received as gifts or bequests shall be deposited in the Treasury in a separate fund and shall be disbursed on order of the Secretary of the Treasury. Property accepted under this paragraph, and the proceeds thereof, shall be used as nearly as possible in accordance with the terms of the gift or bequest.

(2) For purposes of the Federal income, estate, and gift taxes, property accepted under paragraph (1) shall be considered as a gift or bequest to or for the use of the United States.

They don't become "taxes" and assessments until you attach the Form W-2 "gift statement" to an assessment called a IRS Form 1040 and create a liability with your own self-assessment signature. IRS has no delegated authority to convert a "gift" into a "tax". That is why when you file the IRS Form 1040, you must attach the W-2 gift statement. See section 5.6.16 of this book for details.

<sup>8</sup> An example of direct conversion would be the process of "registering" a vehicle with the Department of Motor Vehicles in your state. The act of registration constitutes consent by original ABSOLUTE owner to change the ownership of the property from ABSOLUTE to QUALIFIED and to convey legal title to the state and qualified title to himself.

- 12.6. The IRS cannot execute a lawful assessment without your knowledge and express consent because if they didn't have your consent, then it would be criminal conversion and theft. That is why every time they do an assessment, they have to call you into their office and present it to you to procure your consent in what is called an "examination". If you make it clear that you don't consent and hand them the following, they have to delete the assessment because it's only a proposal. See:

Why the Government Can't Lawfully Assess Human Beings With an Income Tax Liability Without Their Consent,
Form #05.011
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

There is no way other than the above to lawfully create an income tax liability without violating the Fifth Amendment takings clause. If you assess yourself, you consent to become a "public officer" and thereby donate the fruits of your labor as such officer to a public use and a public purpose.

13. The IRS won't admit this, but this in fact is how the de facto unlawful system currently functions:
- 13.1. You can't unilaterally "elect" yourself into a "public office", even if you do consent.
- 13.2. No IRS form nor any provision in the Internal Revenue Code CREATES any new public offices in the government.
- 13.3. The I.R.C. only taxes EXISTING public offices lawfully exercised ONLY in the District of Columbia and in all places expressly authorized pursuant to 4 U.S.C. §72.
14. Information returns are being abused in effect as "federal election" forms.
- 14.1. Third parties in effect are nominating private persons into public offices in the government without their knowledge, without their consent, and without compensation. Thus, information returns are being used to impose the obligations of a public office upon people without compensation and thereby impose slavery in violation of the Thirteenth Amendment.
- 14.2. Anyone who files a false information return connecting a person to the "trade or business"/"public office" franchise who in fact does not ALREADY lawfully occupy a public office in the U.S. government is guilty of impersonating a public officer in criminal violation of 18 U.S.C. §912.
15. The IRS Form W-4 cannot and does not create an office in the U.S. government, but allows EXISTING public officers to elect to connect their private earnings to a public use, a public office, and a public purpose. The IRS abuses this form to unlawfully create public offices, and this abuse of the I.R.C. is the heart of the tax fraud: They are making a system that only applies to EXISTING public offices lawfully exercised in order to:
- 15.1. Unlawfully create new public offices in places where they are not authorized to exist.
- 15.2. Destroy the separation of powers between what is public and what is private.
- 15.3. Institute eminent domain over private labor using false third party reports. Omission in preventing such fraud accomplishes involuntary servitude in violation of the Thirteenth Amendment, 42 U.S.C. §1994, and 18 U.S.C. §1581.
- 15.4. Destroy the separation of powers between the federal and state governments. Any state employee who participates in the federal income tax is serving in TWO offices, which is a violation of most state constitutions.
- 15.5. Enslave innocent people to go to work for them without compensation, without recourse, and in violation of the thirteenth amendment prohibition against involuntary servitude. That prohibition, incidentally, applies EVERYWHERE, including on federal territory.
16. The right to control the use of private property donated to a public use to procure the benefits of a franchise is enforced through the Internal Revenue Code, which is the equivalent of the employment agreement for franchisees called "taxpayers".

The above criteria explains why:

1. You cannot be subject to either employment tax withholding or employment tax reporting without voluntarily signing an IRS Form W-4.

Title 26: Internal Revenue
PART 31—EMPLOYMENT TAXES AND COLLECTION OF INCOME TAX AT SOURCE
Subpart E—Collection of Income Tax at Source

An employee and his employer may enter into an agreement under section 3402(b) to provide for the withholding of income tax upon payments of amounts described in paragraph (b)(1) of §31.3401(a)-3, made after December 31, 1970. An agreement may be entered into under this section only with respect to amounts which are includible in the gross income of the employee under section 61, and must be applicable to all such amounts paid by the employer to the employee. The amount to be withheld pursuant to an agreement under section 3402(p) shall be determined under the rules contained in section 3402 and the regulations thereunder. See §31.3405(c)-1, Q&A-3 concerning agreements to have more than 20-percent Federal income tax withheld from eligible rollover distributions within the meaning of section 402.

(b) Form and duration of agreement

(2) An agreement under section 3402 (p) shall be effective for such period as the employer and employee mutually agree upon. However, either the employer or the employee may terminate the agreement prior to the end of such period by furnishing a signed written notice to the other. Unless the employer and employee agree to an earlier termination date, the notice shall be effective with respect to the first payment of an amount in respect of which the agreement is in effect which is made on or after the first "status determination date" (January 1, May 1, July 1, and October 1 of each year) that occurs at least 30 days after the date on which the notice is furnished. If the employee executes a new Form W-4, the request upon which an agreement under section 3402 (p) is based shall be attached to, and constitute a part of, such new Form W-4.

Notwithstanding the exceptions to the definition of wages specified in section 3401(a) and the regulations thereunder, the term "wages" includes the amounts described in paragraph (b)(1) of this section with respect to which there is a voluntary withholding agreement in effect under section 3402(p). References in this chapter to the definition of wages contained in section 3401(a) shall be deemed to refer also to this section (§31.3401(a)-3).

(b) Remuneration for services.

(1) Except as provided in subparagraph (2) of this paragraph, the amounts referred to in paragraph (a) of this section include any remuneration for services performed by an employee for an employer which, without regard to this section, does not constitute wages under section 3401(a). For example, remuneration for services performed by an agricultural worker or a domestic worker in a private home (amounts which are specifically excluded from the definition of wages by section 3401(a) (2) and (3), respectively) are amounts with respect to which a voluntary withholding agreement may be entered into under section 3402(p). See §§31.3401(c)-1 and 31.3401(d)-1 for the definitions of "employee" and "employer".

2. The courts have no authority under the Declaratory Judgments Act, 28 U.S.C. §2201(a) to declare you a franchisee called a "taxpayer". You own yourself.

Specifically, Rowen seeks a declaratory judgment against the United States of America with respect to "whether or not the plaintiff is a taxpayer pursuant to, and/or under 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(14)." (See Compl. at 2.) This Court lacks jurisdiction to issue a declaratory judgment "with respect to Federal taxes other than actions brought under section 7428 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986," a code section that is not at issue in the instant action. See 28 U.S.C. § 2201; see also Hughes v. United States, 953 F.2d 531, 536-537 (9th Cir. 1991) (affirming dismissal of claim for declaratory relief under § 2201 where claim concerned question of tax liability). Accordingly, defendant's motion to dismiss is hereby GRANTED, and the instant action is hereby DISMISSED. [Rowen v. U.S., 05-3766MMC. (N.D.Cal. 11/02/2005)]

3. The revenue laws may not be cited or enforced against a person who is not a "taxpayer":

"The revenue laws are a code or system in regulation of tax assessment and collection. They relate to taxpayers, and not to nontaxpayers. The latter are without their scope. No procedure is prescribed for nontaxpayers, and no attempt is made to annul any of their rights and remedies in due course of law. With them Congress does not assume to deal, and they are neither of the subject nor of the object of the revenue laws..."
[Long v. Rasmussen, 281 F. 236 (1922) ]

"Revenue Laws relate to taxpayers [officers, employees, instrumentalities, and elected officials of the Federal Government] and not to non-taxpayers [American Citizens/American Nationals not subject to the exclusive jurisdiction of the Federal Government and who did not volunteer to participate in the federal "trade or business" franchise]. The latter are without their scope. No procedures are prescribed for non-taxpayers and no attempt is made to annul any of their Rights or Remedies in due course of law."
[Economy Plumbing & Heating v. U.S., 470 F.2d. 585 (1972)]

"And by statutory definition, 'taxpayer' includes any person, trust or estate subject to a tax imposed by the revenue act. ...Since the statutory definition of 'taxpayer' is exclusive, the federal courts do not have the power to create nonstatutory taxpayers for the purpose of applying the provisions of the Revenue Acts..."
[C.I.R. v. Trustees of L. Inv. Ass'n., 100 F.2d. 18 (1939) ]

All of the above requirements have in common that violating them would result in the equivalent of exercising eminent domain over the private property of the private person without their consent and without just compensation, which the U.S. Supreme Court said violates the Fifth Amendment takings clause:

"To lay, with one hand, the power of the government on the property of the citizen, and with the other to bestow it upon favored individuals to aid private enterprises and build up private fortunes, is none the less a robbery because it is done under the forms of law and is called taxation. This is not legislation. It is a decree under legislative forms.

Nor is it taxation. 'A tax,' says Webster's Dictionary, 'is a rate or sum of money assessed on the person or property of a citizen by government for the use of the nation or State.' 'Taxes are burdens or charges imposed by the Legislature upon persons or property to raise money for public purposes.' Cooley, Const. Lim., 479.

Coulter, J., in Northern Liberties v. St. John's Church, 13 Pa.St., 104 says, very forcibly, 'I think the common mind has everywhere taken in the understanding that taxes are a public imposition, levied by authority of the government for the purposes of carrying on the government in all its machinery and operations—that they are imposed for a public purpose.' See, also Pray v. Northern Liberties, 31 Pa.St., 69; Matter of Mayor of N.Y., 11 Johns., 77; Camden v. Allen, 2 Dutch., 398; Sharpless v. Mayor, supra; Hanson v. Vernon, 27 Ia., 47; Whiting v. Fond du Lac, supra."
[Loan Association v. Topeka, 20 Wall. 655 (1874)]

As a consequence of the above considerations, any government officer or employee who does any of the following is unlawfully converting private property to a public use without the consent of the owner and without consideration:

1. Assuming or "presuming" you are a "taxpayer" without producing evidence that you consented to become one. In our system of jurisprudence, a person must be presumed innocent until proven guilty with court admissible evidence. Presumptions are NOT evidence. That means they must be presumed to be a "nontaxpayer" until they are proven with admissible evidence to be a "taxpayer". See:

Presumption: Chief Weapon for Unlawfully Enlarging Federal Jurisdiction, Form #05.017
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

2. Performing a tax assessment or re-assessment if you haven't first voluntarily assessed yourself by filing a tax return. See:

Why the Government Can't Lawfully Assess Human Beings With an Income Tax Liability Without Their Consent, Form #05.011

3. Citing provisions of the franchise agreement against those who never consented to participate. This is an abuse of law for political purposes and an attempt to exploit the innocent and the ignorant. The legislature cannot delegate authority to the Executive Branch to convert innocent persons called "nontaxpayers" into franchisees called "taxpayers" without producing evidence of consent to become "taxpayers".

"In Calder v. Bull, which was here in 1798, Mr. Justice Chase said, that there were acts which the Federal and State legislatures could not do without exceeding their authority, and among them he mentioned a law which punished a citizen for an innocent act; a law that destroyed or impaired the lawful private [labor] contracts [and labor compensation, e.g. earnings from employment through compelled W-4 withholding] of citizens; a law that made a man judge in his own case; and a law that took the property from A [the worker], and gave it to B [the government or another citizen, such as through social welfare programs]. 'It is against all reason and justice,' he added, 'for a people to intrust a legislature with such powers, and therefore it cannot be presumed that they have done it. They may command what is right and prohibit what is wrong; but they cannot change innocence into guilt, or punish innocence as a crime, or violate the right of an antecedent lawful private [employment] contract [by compelling W-4 withholding, for instance], or the right of private property. To maintain that a Federal or State legislature possesses such powers [of THEFT!] if they had not been expressly restrained, would, in my opinion, be a political heresy altogether inadmissible in all free republican governments.' 3 Dall. 388."
[Sinking Fund Cases, 99 U.S. 700 (1878) ]

4. Relying on third party information returns that are unsigned as evidence supporting the conclusion that you are a "taxpayer". These forms include IRS Forms W-2, 1042-S, 1098, and 1099 and they are NOT signed and are inadmissible as evidence under Federal Rule of Evidence 802 because not signed under penalty of perjury. Furthermore, the submitters of these forms seldom have personal knowledge that you are in fact and in deed engaged in a “trade or business” as required by 26 U.S.C. §6041(a). Most people don't know, for instance, that a “trade or business” includes ONLY “the functions of a public office”.

5.1.4 Citizenship, Domicile, and Tax Status Options

"Dolus versatur generalibus. A deceiver deals in generals. 2 Co. 34."

"Fraus latet in generalibus. Fraud lies hid in general expressions."

Ubi quid generaliter conceditur, in est haec exceptio, si non aliquid sit contra jus fasque. Where a thing is concealed generally, this exception arises, that there shall be nothing contrary to law and right. 10 Co. 78. [Bouvier's Maxims of Law, 1856]

“General expressions”, and especially those relating to geographical terms, franchise statuses, or citizenship, are the biggest source of FRAUD in courtrooms across the country. By “general expressions”, we mean those which:

1. The speaker is either not accountable or REFUSES to be accountable for the accuracy or truthfulness or definition of the word or expression.
2. Fail to recognize that there are multiple contexts in which the word could be used.
  - 2.1. CONSTITUTIONAL (States of the Union).
  - 2.2. STATUTORY (federal territory).
3. Are susceptible to two or more CONTEXTS or interpretations, one of which the government representative interpreting the context stands to benefit from handsomely. Thus, “equivocation” is undertaken, in which they TELL you they mean the CONSTITUTIONAL interpretation but after receiving your form or pleading, interpret it to mean the STATUTORY context.

equivocation

EQUIVOCATION, n. Ambiguity of speech; the use of words or expressions that are susceptible of a double signification. Hypocrites are often guilty of equivocation, and by this means lose the confidence of their fellow men. Equivocation is incompatible with the Christian character and profession.*

[SOURCE: <http://1828.mshaffer.com/d/search/word/equivocation>]

Equivocation ("to call by the same name") is an informal logical fallacy. It is the misleading use of a term with more than one meaning or sense (by glossing over which meaning is intended at a particular time). It generally occurs with polysemic words (words with multiple meanings).

Albeit in common parlance it is used in a variety of contexts, when discussed as a fallacy, equivocation only occurs when the arguer makes a word or phrase employed in two (or more) different senses in an argument appear to have the same meaning throughout.

It is therefore distinct from (semantic) ambiguity, which means that the context doesn't make the meaning of the word or phrase clear, and amphiboly (or syntactical ambiguity), which refers to ambiguous sentence structure due to punctuation or syntax.

4. PRESUME that all contexts are equivalent, meaning that CONSTITUTIONAL and STATUTORY are equivalent.
5. Fail to identify the specific context implied on the form.
6. Fail to provide an actionable definition for the term that is useful as evidence in court.
7. Government representatives actively interfere with or even penalize efforts by the applicant to define the context of the terms so that they can protect their right to make injurious presumptions about their meaning.
8. The Bible calls people who engage in equivocation or who try to create confusion “double minded”. They are also equated with “hypocrites”. Here is what God says about double minded people:

"I hate the double-minded, But I love Your law."
 [Psalm 119:113, Bible, NKJV]

"Cleanse your hands, you sinners; and purify your hearts, you double-minded."
 [James 4:8, Bible, NKJV]

Pictures really are worth a THOUSAND words. There is no better place we know of to use a picture to describe relationship than in the context of citizenship, domicile, and residency. Below is a table summarizing citizenship status v. Tax status. After that, we show a graphical diagram that makes the relationships perfectly clear. Finally, after the graphical diagram, we present a text summary for all the legal rules that govern transitioning between the various citizenship and domicile conditions described. The content of this entire section is available in a single convenient form that you can use at depositions, as attachments to government forms, and in legal proceedings. You can find this form at:

5.1.4.1 The Four "United States"

It is very important to understand that there are THREE separate and distinct CONTEXTS in which the term "United States" can be used, and each has a mutually exclusive and different meaning. These three definitions of "United States" were described by the U.S. Supreme Court in Hooven and Allison v. Evatt, 324 U.S. 652 (1945):

| Term      | # in diagrams | Meaning                                                             |
|------------------|----------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| United States*   | 1                    | The country "United States" in the family of nations throughout the world. |
| United States  | 2                    | The "federal zone".                                                        |
| United States | 3                    | Collective states of the Union mentioned throughout the Constitution.      |

In addition to the above GEOGRAPHICAL context, there is also a legal, non-geographical context in which the term "United States" can be used, which is the GOVERNMENT as a legal entity. Throughout this page and this website, we identify THIS context as "United States****" or "United States<sup>4</sup>". The only types of "persons" within THIS context are public offices within the national and not state government. It is THIS context in which "sources within the United States" is used for the purposes of "income" and "gross income" within the Internal Revenue Code, as proven by:

Non-Resident Non-Person Position, Form #05.020, Section 5.4
 FORMS PAGE: <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>
 DIRECT LINK: <http://sedm.org/Forms/05-MemLaw/NonresidentNonPersonPosition.pdf>

The reason these contexts are not expressly distinguished in the statutes by the Legislative Branch or on government forms crafted by the Executive Branch is that they are the KEY mechanism by which:

1. Federal jurisdiction is unlawfully enlarged by abusing presumption, which is a violation of due process of law. See:

Presumption: Chief Weapon for Unlawfully Enlarging Federal Jurisdiction, Form #05.017
 FORMS PAGE: <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>
 DIRECT LINK: <http://sedm.org/Forms/05-MemLaw/Presumption.pdf>
2. The separation of powers between the states and the national government is destroyed, in violation of the legislative intent of the Constitution. See:

 FORMS PAGE: <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>
 DIRECT LINK: <http://sedm.org/Forms/05-MemLaw/SeparationOfPowers.pdf>
3. A "society of law" is transformed into a "society of men" in violation of Marbury v. Madison, 5 U.S. 137 (1803):

"The government of the United States has been emphatically termed a government of laws, and not of men. It will certainly cease to deserve this high appellation, if the laws furnish no remedy for the violation of a vested legal right."
 [Marbury v. Madison, 5 U.S. 137, 163 (1803)]

- 1 4. Exclusively PRIVATE rights are transformed into public rights in a process we call "invisible eminent domain using 2 presumption and words of art".
3 5. Judges are unconstitutionally delegated undue discretion and "arbitrary power" to unlawfully enlarge federal 4 jurisdiction. See:

Federal Jurisdiction, Form #05.018
FORMS PAGE: <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>
DIRECT LINK: <http://sedm.org/Forms/05-MemLaw/FederalJurisdiction.pdf>

5 The way a corrupted Executive Branch or judge accomplish the above is to unconstitutionally:

- 6 1. PRESUME that ALL of the four contexts for "United States" are equivalent.
7 2. PRESUME that CONSTITUTIONAL citizens and STATUTORY citizens are EQUIVALENT under federal law. They
8 are NOT. A CONSTITUTIONAL citizen is a "non-resident " under federal civil law and NOT a STATUTORY
9 "national and citizen of the United States** at birth" per 8 U.S.C. §1401. See the document below:

Why You are a "national", "state national", and Constitutional but not Statutory Citizen, Form #05.006
FORMS PAGE: <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>
DIRECT LINK: <http://sedm.org/Forms/05-MemLaw/WhyANational.pdf>

- 10 3. PRESUME that "nationality" and "domicile" are equivalent. They are NOT. See:

Why Domicile and Becoming a "Taxpayer" Require Your Consent, Form #05.002
FORMS PAGE: <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>
DIRECT LINK: <http://sedm.org/Forms/05-MemLaw/Domicile.pdf>

- 11 4. Use the word "citizenship" in place of "nationality" OR "domicile", and refuse to disclose WHICH of the two they 12 mean in EVERY context.
13 5. Confuse the POLITICAL/CONSTITUTIONAL meaning of words with the civil STATUTORY context. For instance,
14 asking on government forms whether you are a POLITICAL/CONSTITUTIONAL citizen and then FALSELY
15 PRESUMING that you are a STATUTORY citizen under 8 U.S.C. §1401.
16 6. Confuse the words "domicile" and "residence" or impute either to you without satisfying the burden of proving that 17 you EXPRESSLY CONSENTED to it and thereby illegally kidnap your civil legal identity against your will. One can 18 have only one "domicile" but many "residences" and BOTH require your consent. See:

Why Domicile and Becoming a "Taxpayer" Require Your Consent, Form #05.002
FORMS PAGE: <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>
DIRECT LINK: <http://sedm.org/Forms/05-MemLaw/Domicile.pdf>

- 19 7. Add things or classes of things to the meaning of statutory terms that do not EXPRESSLY appear in their definitions, 20 in violation of the rules of statutory construction. See:

Legal Deception, Propaganda, and Fraud, Form #05.014
FORMS PAGE: <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>
DIRECT LINK: <http://sedm.org/Forms/05-MemLaw/LegalDecPropFraud.pdf>

- 21 8. PRESUME that STATUTORY diversity of citizenship under 28 U.S.C. §1332 and CONSTITUTIONAL diversity of 22 citizenship under Article III, Section 2 of the United States Constitution are equivalent.
23 8.1. STATUTORY and CONSTITUTIONAL diversity are NOT equal and in fact are mutually exclusive.
24 8.2. The STATUTORY definition of "State" in 28 U.S.C. §1332(e) is a federal territory. The definition of "State" in 25 the CONSTITUTION is a State of the Union and NOT federal territory.
26 8.3. They try to increase this confusion by dismissing diversity cases where only diversity of RESIDENCE (domicile)
27 is implied, instead insisting on "diversity of CITIZENSHIP" and yet REFUSING to define whether they mean
28 DOMICILE or NATIONALITY when the term "CITIZENSHIP" is invoked. See Lamm v. Bekins Van Lines,
29 Co, 139 F.Supp.2d. 1300, 1314 (M.D. Ala. 2001) ("To invoke removal jurisdiction on the basis of diversity, a 30 notice of removal must distinctly and affirmatively allege each party's citizenship.", "[a]verments of residence are
31 wholly insufficient for purposes of removal.", "[a]lthough 'citizenship' and 'residence' may be interchangeable
32 terms in common parlance, the existence of citizenship cannot be inferred from allegations of residence alone.").
33 9. Refuse to allow the jury to read the definitions in the law and then give them a definition that is in conflict with the 34 statutory definition. This substitutes the JUDGES will for what the law expressly says and thereby substitutes PUBLIC
35 POLICY for the written law.
36 10. Publish deceptive government publications that are in deliberate conflict with what the statutes define "United States"
37 as and then tell the public that they CANNOT rely on the publication. The IRS does this with ALL of their publications
38 and it is FRAUD. See:

This kind of arbitrary discretion is PROHIBITED by the Constitution, as held by the U.S. Supreme Court:

"When we consider the nature and the theory of our institutions of government, the principles upon which they are supposed to rest, and review the history of their development, we are constrained to conclude that they do not mean to leave room for the play and action of purely personal and arbitrary power."
[Yick Wo v. Hopkins, 118 U.S. 356, 369, 6 S.Sup.Ct. 1064, 1071]

Thomas Jefferson, our most revered founding father, precisely predicted the above abuses when he said:

"It has long been my opinion, and I have never shrunk from its expression,... that the germ of dissolution of our Federal Government is in the constitution of the Federal Judiciary--an irresponsible body (for impeachment is scarcely a scare-crow), working like gravity by night and by day, gaining a little today and a little tomorrow, and advancing its noiseless step like a thief over the field of jurisdiction until all shall be usurped from the States and the government be consolidated into one. To this I am opposed."
[Thomas Jefferson to Charles Hammond, 1821. ME 15:331]

"Contrary to all correct example, [the Federal judiciary] are in the habit of going out of the question before them, to throw an anchor ahead and grapple further hold for future advances of power. They are then in fact the corps of sappers and miners, steadily working to undermine the independent rights of the States and to consolidate all power in the hands of that government in which they have so important a freehold estate."
[Thomas Jefferson: Autobiography, 1821. ME 1:121]

"The judiciary of the United States is the subtle corps of sappers and miners constantly working under ground to undermine the foundations of our confederated fabric. They are construing our Constitution from a co-ordination of a general and special government to a general and supreme one alone. This will lay all things at their feet, and they are too well versed in English law to forget the maxim, 'boni judicis est ampliari jurisdictionem.'"
[Thomas Jefferson to Thomas Ritchie, 1820. ME 15:297]

"When all government, domestic and foreign, in little as in great things, shall be drawn to Washington as the center of all power, it will render powerless the checks provided of one government on another and will become as venal and oppressive as the government from which we separated."
[Thomas Jefferson to Charles Hammond, 1821. ME 15:332]

"What an augmentation of the field for jobbing, speculating, plundering, office-building ["trade or business" scam] and office-hunting would be produced by an assumption [PRESUMPTION] of all the State powers into the hands of the General Government!"
[Thomas Jefferson to Gideon Granger, 1800. ME 10:168]

5.1.4.2 Statutory v. Constitutional contexts

It is very important to understand that there are TWO separate, distinct, and mutually exclusive contexts in which geographical "words of art" can be used at the federal or national level:

1. Constitutional.
2. Statutory.

The purpose of providing a statutory definition of a legal "term" is to supersede and not enlarge the ordinary, common law, constitutional, or common meaning of a term. Geographical words of art include:

1. "State"
2. "United States"
3. "alien"
4. "citizen"
5. "resident"
6. "U.S. person"

The terms "State" and "United States" within the Constitution implies the constitutional states of the Union and excludes federal territory, statutory "States" (federal territories), or the statutory "United States" (the collection of all federal territory). This is an outcome of the separation of powers doctrine. See:

Government Conspiracy to Destroy the Separation of Powers, Form #05.023
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

The U.S. Constitution creates a public trust which is the delegation of authority order that the U.S. Government uses to manage federal territory and property. That property includes franchises, such as the "trade or business" franchise. All statutory civil law it creates can and does regulate only THAT property and not the constitutional States, which are foreign, sovereign, and statutory "non-resident non-persons" (Form #05.020) for the purposes of federal legislative jurisdiction.

It is very important to realize the consequences of this constitutional separation of powers between the states and national government. Some of these consequences include the following:

1. Statutory "States" as indicated in 4 U.S.C. §110\(d\) and "States" in nearly all federal statutes are in fact federal territories and the definition does NOT include constitutional states of the Union.
2. The statutory "United States" defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(9\) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d) includes federal territory and excludes any land within the exclusive jurisdiction of a constitutional state of the Union.
3. Terms on government forms assume the statutory context and NOT the constitutional context.
4. Domicile is the origin of civil legislative jurisdiction over human beings. This jurisdiction is called "in personam jurisdiction".
5. Since the separation of powers doctrine creates two separate jurisdictions that are legislatively "foreign" in relation to each other, then there are TWO types of political communities, two types of "citizens", and two types of jurisdictions exercised by the national government.

"It is clear that Congress, as a legislative body, exercise two species of legislative power: the one, limited as to its objects, but extending all over the Union: the other, an absolute, exclusive legislative power over the District of Columbia. The preliminary inquiry in the case now before the Court, is, by virtue of which of these authorities was the law in question passed?"
 [Cohens v. Virginia, 19 U.S. 264, 6 Wheat. 265, 5 L.Ed. 257 (1821)]

6. A human being domiciled in a Constitutional state and born or naturalized anywhere in the Union. These are:
  - 6.1. A state national pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1101\(a\)\(21\)
  - 6.2. A statutory "non-resident non-person" if exclusively PRIVATE and not engaged in a public office.
  - 6.3. A statutory "nonresident alien" (26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B)) in relation to the national government if they lawfully serve in a public office.
7. You can be a statutory "nonresident alien" pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B) and a constitutional or Fourteenth Amendment "Citizen" AT THE SAME TIME. Why? Because the Supreme Court ruled in Hooven and Allison v. Evatt, 324 U.S. 652 (1945), that there are THREE different and mutually exclusive "United States", and therefore

THREE types of "citizens of the United States". Here is an example:

"The 1st section of the 14th article [Fourteenth Amendment], to which our attention is more specifically invited, opens with a definition of citizenship—not only citizenship of the United States[***], but citizenship of the states. No such definition was previously found in the Constitution, nor had any attempt been made to define it by act of Congress. It had been the occasion of much discussion in the courts, by the executive departments and in the public journals. It had been said by eminent judges that no man was a citizen of the United States[***] except as he was a citizen of one of the states composing the Union. Those therefore, who had been born and resided always in the District of Columbia or in the territories [STATUTORY citizens], though within the United States[*], were not [CONSTITUTIONAL] citizens."

The Court today holds that the Citizenship Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment has no application to Bellei [an 8 U.S.C. §1401 STATUTORY citizen]. The Court first notes that Afroyim was essentially a case construing the Citizenship Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment. Since the Citizenship Clause declares that: 'All persons born or naturalized in the United States * * * are citizens of the United States * * *,' the Court reasons that the protections against involuntary expatriation declared in Afroyim do not protect all American citizens, but only those 'born or naturalized in the United States.' Afroyim, the argument runs, was naturalized in this country so he was protected by the Citizenship Clause, but Bellei, since he acquired his American citizenship at birth in Italy as a foreignborn child of an American citizen, was neither born nor naturalized in the United States and, hence, falls outside the scope of the Fourteenth Amendment guarantees declared in Afroyim. One could hardly call this a generous reading of the great purposes the Fourteenth Amendment was adopted to bring about. While conceding that Bellei is an American citizen, the majority states: 'He simply is not a Fourteenth-Amendment-first-sentence citizen.' Therefore, the majority reasons, the congressional revocation of his citizenship is not barred by the Constitution. I cannot accept the Court's conclusion that the Fourteenth Amendment protects the citizenship of some Americans and not others. [ . . . ]

The Court today puts aside the Fourteenth Amendment as a standard by which to measure congressional action with respect to citizenship, and substitutes in its place the majority's own vague notions of 'fairness.' The majority takes a new step with the recurring theme that the test of constitutionality is the Court's own view of what is 'fair, reasonable, and right.' Despite the concession that Bellei was admittedly an American citizen, and despite the holding in Afroyim that the Fourteenth Amendment has put citizenship, once conferred, beyond the power of Congress to revoke, the majority today upholds the revocation of Bellei's citizenship on the ground that the congressional action was not 'irrational or arbitrary or unfair.' The majority applies the 'shock-the-conscience' test to uphold, rather than strike, a federal statute. It is a dangerous concept of constitutional law that allows the majority to conclude that, because it cannot say the statute is 'irrational or arbitrary or unfair,' the statute must be constitutional.

Since the Court this Term has already downgraded citizens receiving public welfare, Wyman v. James, 400 U.S. 309, 91 S.Ct. 381, 27 L.Ed.2d. 408 (1971), and citizens having the misfortune to be illegitimate, Labine v. Vincent, 401 U.S. 532, 91 S.Ct. 1917, 28 L.Ed.2d. 288, I suppose today's decision downgrading citizens born outside the United States should have been expected. Once again, as in James and Labine, the Court's opinion makes evident that its holding is contrary to earlier decisions. Concededly, petitioner was a citizen at birth, not by constitutional right, but only through operation of a federal statute.
[Rogers v. Bellei, 401 U.S. 815 (1971)]

The "citizen of the United States" mentioned in the Fourteenth Amendment is a constitutional "citizen of the United States", and the term "United States" in that context includes states of the Union and excludes federal territory. Hence, you would NOT be a "citizen of the United States" within any federal statute, because all such statutes define "United States" to mean federal territory and EXCLUDE states of the Union. For more details, see:

Why You are a "national", "state national", and Constitutional but not Statutory Citizen, Form #05.006
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

8. Your job, if you say you are a "citizen of the United States" or "U.S. citizen" on a government form ( a VERY DANGEROUS undertaking!) is to understand that all government forms presume the statutory and not constitutional context, and to ensure that you define precisely WHICH one of the three "United States" you are a "citizen" of, and do so in a way that excludes you from the civil jurisdiction of the national government because domiciled in a "foreign state". Both foreign countries and states of the Union are legislatively "foreign" and therefore "foreign states" in relation to the national government of the United States. The following form does that very carefully:

Affidavit of Citizenship, Domicile, and Tax Status, Form #02.001
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

9. Even the IRS says you CANNOT trust or rely on ANYTHING on any of their forms and publications. This is covered

1 in Reasonable Belief About Income Tax Liability, Form #05.007. Hence, if you are compelled to fill out a government
2 form, you have an OBLIGATION to ensure that you define all "words of art" used on the form in such a way that there
3 is no room for presumption, no judicial or government discretion to "interpret" the form to their benefit, and no injury
4 to your rights or status by filling out the government form. This includes attaching the following forms to all tax forms
5 you submit:

10 We started off this document with maxims of law proving that "a deceiver deals in generals". Anyone who refuses to identify

12 A DECEIVER.

5.1.4.3 Statutory v. Constitutional citizens

 [Confucius (551 BCE - 479 BCE) Chinese thinker and social philosopher]

Statutory citizenship is a legal status that designates a person's domicile while constitutional citizenship is a political status that designates a person's nationality. Understanding the distinction between nationality and domicile is absolutely critical.

1. Nationality:

- 1.1. Is not necessarily consensual or discretionary. For instance, acquiring nationality by birth in a specific place was not a matter of choice whereas acquiring it by naturalization is.
- 1.2. Is a political status.
- 1.3. Is defined by the Constitution, which is a political document.
- 1.4. Is synonymous with being a "national" within statutory law.
- 1.5. Is associated with a specific COUNTRY.
- 1.6. Is called a "political citizen" or a "citizen of the United States in a political sense" by the courts to distinguish it from a STATUTORY citizen. See Powe v. United States, 109 F.2d. 147 (1940).

2. Domicile:

- 2.1. Always requires your consent and therefore is discretionary. See:

Why Domicile and Becoming a "Taxpayer" Require Your Consent, Form #05.002
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

- 2.2. Is a civil status.
- 2.3. Is not even addressed in the constitution.
- 2.4. Is defined by civil statutory law RATHER than the constitution.
- 2.5. Is in NO WAY connected with one's nationality.
- 2.6. Is usually connected with the word "person", "citizen", "resident", or "inhabitant" in statutory law.
- 2.7. Is associated with a specific COUNTY and a STATE rather than a COUNTRY.
- 2.8. Implies one is a "SUBJECT" of a SPECIFIC MUNICIPAL but not NATIONAL government.

Nationality and domicile, TOGETHER determine the political/CONSTITUTIONAL AND civil/STATUTORY status of a human being respectively. These important distinctions are recognized in Black's Law Dictionary:

"nationality – That quality or character which arises from the fact of a person's belonging to a nation or state. Nationality determines the political status of the individual, especially with reference to allegiance; while domicile determines his civil [statutory] status. Nationality arises either by birth or by naturalization."

The U.S. Supreme Court also confirmed the above when they held the following. Note the key phrase "political jurisdiction", which is NOT the same as legislative/statutory jurisdiction. One can have a political status of "citizen" under the constitution while NOT being a "citizen" under federal statutory law because not domiciled on federal territory. To have the status of "citizen" under federal statutory law, one must have a domicile on federal territory:

"This section contemplates two sources of citizenship, and two sources only, -birth and naturalization. The persons declared to be citizens are 'all persons born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof.' The evident meaning of these last words is, not merely subject in some respect or degree to the jurisdiction of the United States, but completely subject to their [plural, not singular, meaning states of the Union] political jurisdiction, and owing them [the state of the Union] direct and immediate allegiance. And the words relate to the time of birth in the one case, as they do [169 U.S. 649, 725] to the time of naturalization in the other. Persons not thus subject to the jurisdiction of the United States at the time of birth cannot become so afterwards, except by being naturalized, either individually, as by proceedings under the naturalization acts, or collectively, as by the force of a treaty by which foreign territory is acquired."

"This right to protect persons having a domicile, though not native-born or naturalized citizens, rests on the firm foundation of justice, and the claim to be protected is earned by considerations which the protecting power is not at liberty to disregard. Such domiciled citizen pays the same price for his protection as native-born or naturalized citizens pay for theirs. He is under the bonds of allegiance to the country of his residence, and, if he breaks them, incurs the same penalties. He owes the same obedience to the civil laws. His property is, in the same way and to the same extent as theirs, liable to contribute to the support of the Government. In nearly all respects, his and their condition as to the duties and burdens of Government are undistinguishable."

Fong Yue Ting v. United States, [149 U.S. 698 (1893) ]

Notice in the last quote above that they referred to a foreign national born in another country as a “citizen”. THIS is the REAL “citizen” (a domiciled foreign national) that judges and even tax withholding documents are really talking about, rather than the “national” described in the constitution.

CONSTITUTIONAL “Citizens” or “citizens of the United States***” in the Fourteenth Amendment rely on the CONSTITUTIONAL context for the geographical term “United States”, which means states of the Union and EXCLUDES federal territory.

“ . . . the Supreme Court in the Insular Cases <sup>10</sup> provides authoritative guidance on the territorial scope of the term "the United States" in the Fourteenth Amendment. The Insular Cases were a series of Supreme Court decisions that addressed challenges to duties on goods transported from Puerto Rico to the continental United States. Puerto Rico, like the Philippines, had been recently ceded to the United States. The Court considered the territorial scope of the term "the United States" in the Constitution and held that this term as used in the uniformity clause of the Constitution was territorially limited to the states of the Union. U.S. Const. art. I, § 8 ("[A]ll Duties, Imposts and Excises shall be uniform throughout the United States." (emphasis added)); see Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244, 251, 21 S.Ct. 770, 773, 45 L.Ed. 1088 (1901) ("[I]t can nowhere be inferred that the territories were considered a part of the United States. The Constitution was created by the people of the United States, as a union of States, to be governed solely by representatives of the States; ... In short, the Constitution deals with States, their people, and their representatives."); Rabang, 35 F.3d at 1452. Puerto Rico was merely a territory "appurtenant and belonging to the United States, but not a part of the United States within the revenue clauses of the Constitution." Downes, 182 U.S. at 287, 21 S.Ct. at 787.

The Court's conclusion in Downes was derived in part by analyzing the territorial scope of the Thirteenth and Fourteenth Amendments. The Thirteenth Amendment prohibits slavery and involuntary servitude "within the United States, or any place subject to their jurisdiction." U.S. Const. amend. XIII, § 1 (emphasis added). The Fourteenth Amendment states that persons "born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States and of the State wherein they reside." U.S. Const. amend XIV, § 1 (emphasis added). The disjunctive "or" in the Thirteenth Amendment demonstrates that "there may be places within the jurisdiction of the United States that are not part of the Union" to which the Thirteenth Amendment would apply. Downes, 182 U.S. at 251, 21 S.Ct. at 773. Citizenship under the Fourteenth Amendment, however, "is not extended to persons born in any place 'subject to [the United States]' jurisdiction," but is limited to persons born or naturalized in the states of the Union. Downes, 182 U.S. at 251, 21 S.Ct. at 773 (emphasis added); see also id. at 263, 21 S.Ct. at 777 ("[I]n dealing with foreign sovereignties, the term 'United States' has a broader meaning than when used in the Constitution, and includes all territories subject to the jurisdiction of the Federal government, wherever located.").<sup>11</sup>

[Valmonte v. I.N.S., 136 F.3d 914 (C.A.2, 1998)]

STATUTORY citizens under 8 U.S.C. §1401, on the other hand, rely on the STATUTORY context for the geographical term “United States”, which means federal territory and EXCLUDES states of the Union:

TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > Sec. 7701. [Internal Revenue Code]
Sec. 7701. – Definitions

(a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof—

(9) United States

The term "United States" when used in a geographical sense includes only the States and the District of Columbia.

(10) State

The term "State" shall be construed to include the District of Columbia, where such construction is necessary to carry out provisions of this title.

1 TITLE 4 - FLAG AND SEAL, SEAT OF GOVERNMENT, AND THE STATES
 2 CHAPTER 4 - THE STATES
 3 Sec. 110. Same; definitions

4 (d) The term "State" includes any Territory or possession of the United States.

5 One CANNOT simultaneously be BOTH a CONSTITUTIONAL citizen AND a STATUTORY citizen at the same time,
 6 because the term "United States" has a different, mutually exclusive meaning in each specific context.

 8 opens with a definition of citizenship—not only citizenship of the United States[***], but citizenship of the states.
 9 No such definition was previously found in the Constitution, nor had any attempt been made to define it by act
 10 of Congress. It had been the occasion of much discussion in the courts, by the executive departments and in the 11 public journals. It had been said by eminent judges that no man was a citizen of the United States[***] except
 12 as he was a citizen of one of the states composing the Union. Those therefore, who had been born and resided
 13 always in the District of Columbia or in the territories, though within the United States[*], were not citizens.
 14 Whether this proposition was sound or not had never been judicially decided."

 17 The Court today holds that the Citizenship Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment has no application to Bellei
 18 [an 8 U.S.C. §1401 STATUTORY citizen]. The Court first notes that Afroyim was essentially a case construing
 19 the Citizenship Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment. Since the Citizenship Clause declares that: 'All persons
 20 born or naturalized in the United States * * * are citizens of the United States * * *,' the Court reasons that the 21 protections against involuntary expatriation declared in Afroyim do not protect all American citizens, but only
 22 those 'born or naturalized in the United States.' Afroyim, the argument runs, was naturalized in this country so
 23 he was protected by the Citizenship Clause, but Bellei, since he acquired his American citizenship at birth in Italy
 24 as a foreignborn child of an American citizen, was neither born nor naturalized in the United States and, hence,
 25 falls outside the scope of the Fourteenth Amendment guarantees declared in Afroyim. One could hardly call this 26 a generous reading of the great purposes the Fourteenth Amendment was adopted to bring about. While 27 conceding that Bellei is an American citizen, the majority states: 'He simply is not a Fourteenth-Amendment-
 28 first-sentence citizen.' Therefore, the majority reasons, the congressional revocation of his citizenship is not 29 barred by the Constitution. I cannot accept the Court's conclusion that the Fourteenth Amendment protects
 30 the citizenship of some Americans and not others. [ . . . ]

31 The Court today puts aside the Fourteenth Amendment as a standard by which to measure congressional
 32 action with respect to citizenship, and substitutes in its place the majority's own vague notions of 'fairness.'
 33 The majority takes a new step with the recurring theme that the test of constitutionality is the Court's own view
 34 of what is 'fair, reasonable, and right.' Despite the concession that Bellei was admittedly an American citizen,
 35 and despite the holding in Afroyim that the Fourteenth Amendment has put citizenship, once conferred, beyond
 36 the power of Congress to revoke, the majority today upholds the revocation of Bellei's citizenship on the ground
 37 that the congressional action was not 'irrational or arbitrary or unfair.' The majority applies the 'shock-the-
 38 conscience' test to uphold, rather than strike, a federal statute. It is a dangerous concept of constitutional law
 39 that allows the majority to conclude that, because it cannot say the statute is 'irrational or arbitrary or unfair,' 40 the statute must be constitutional.

41 [ . . . ]

42 Since the Court this Term has already downgraded citizens receiving public welfare, Wyman v. James, 400 U.S.
 43 309, 91 S.Ct. 381, 27 L.Ed.2d. 408 (1971), and citizens having the misfortune to be illegitimate, Labine v. Vincent,
 44 401 U.S. 532, 91 S.Ct. 1917, 28 L.Ed.2d. 288, I suppose today's decision downgrading citizens born outside the
 45 United States should have been expected. Once again, as in James and Labine, the Court's opinion makes evident
 46 that its holding is contrary to earlier decisions. Concededly, petitioner was a citizen at birth, not by constitutional
 47 right, but only through operation of a federal statute.
 48 [Rogers v. Bellei, 401 U.S. 815 (1971)]

49 STATUTORY citizens are the ONLY type of "citizens" mentioned in the entire Internal Revenue Code, and therefore, the 50 income tax under Subtitles A and C does not apply to the states of the Union.

51 Title 26: Internal Revenue
 52 PART 1—INCOME TAXES
 53 Normal Taxes and Surtaxes
 54 § 1.1-1 Income tax on individuals.

55 (c) Who is a citizen.

Every person ["person" as used in 26 U.S.C. §6671(b) and 26 U.S.C. §7343, which both collectively are officers or employees of a corporation or a partnership with the United States government] born or naturalized in the United States and subject to its jurisdiction is a citizen. For other rules governing the acquisition of citizenship, see chapters 1 and 2 of title III of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1401–1459). For rules governing loss of citizenship, see sections 349 to 357, inclusive, of such Act (8 U.S.C. 1481–1489), Schneider v. Rusk, (1964) 377 U.S. 163, and Rev.Rul. 70–506, C.B. 1970–2, 1. For rules pertaining to persons who are nationals but not citizens at birth, e.g., a person born in American Samoa, see section 308 of such Act (8 U.S.C. 1408). For special rules applicable to certain expatriates who have lost citizenship with a principal purpose of avoiding certain taxes, see section 877. A foreigner who has filed his declaration of intention of becoming a citizen but who has not yet been admitted to citizenship by a final order of a naturalization court is an alien.

If you look in 8 U.S.C. §§1401-1459, the ONLY type of "citizen" is the one mentioned in 8 U.S.C. §1401, which is a human born in a federal territory not part of a state of the Union. Anyone who claims a state citizen or CONSTITUTIONAL citizen is also a STATUTORY "U.S. citizen" subject to the income tax is engaging in criminal identity theft as documented in the following. They are also criminally impersonating a "U.S. citizen" in violation of 18 U.S.C. §911:

Government Identity Theft, Form #05.046

Domicile and NOT nationality is what imputes a status under the tax code and a liability for tax. Tax liability is a civil liability that attaches to civil statutory law, which in turn attaches to the person through their choice of domicile. When you CHOOSE a domicile, you elect or nominate a protector, which in turn gives rise to an obligation to pay for the civil protection demanded. The method of providing that protection is the civil laws of the municipal (as in COUNTY) jurisdiction that you chose a domicile within.

"domicile. A person's legal home. That place where a man has his true, fixed, and permanent home and principal establishment, and to which whenever he is absent he has the intention of returning. Smith v. Smith, 206 Pa.Super. 310, 213 A.2d. 94. Generally, physical presence within a state and the intention to make it one's home are the requisites of establishing a "domicile" therein. The permanent residence of a person or the place to which he intends to return even though he may actually reside elsewhere. A person may have more than one residence but only one domicile. The legal domicile of a person is important since it, rather than the actual residence, often controls the jurisdiction of the taxing authorities and determines where a person may exercise the privilege of voting and other legal rights and privileges."
[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 485]

Later versions of Black's Law Dictionary attempt to cloud this important distinction between nationality and domicile in order to unlawfully and unconstitutionally expand federal power into the states of the Union and to give federal judges unnecessary and unwarranted discretion to kidnap people into their jurisdiction using false presumptions. They do this by trying to make you believe that domicile and nationality are equivalent, when they are EMPHATICALLY NOT. Here is an example:

"nationality – The relationship between a citizen of a nation and the nation itself, customarily involving allegiance by the citizen and protection by the state; membership in a nation. This term is often used synonymously with citizenship."
[Black's Law Dictionary (8th ed. 2004)]

Federal courts regard the term "citizenship" as equivalent to domicile, meaning domicile on federal territory.

"The words "citizen" and citizenship," however, usually include the idea of domicile, Delaware, L. & W.R. Co. v. Petrowsky, C.C.A.N.Y., 250 F. 554, 557;"
[Black's Law Dictionary, Fourth Edition, p. 310]

Hence:

1. The term "citizenship" is being stealthily used by government officials as a magic word that allows them to hide their presumptions about your status. Sometimes they use it to mean NATIONALITY, and sometimes they use it to mean DOMICILE.
2. The use of the word "citizenship" should therefore be AVOIDED when dealing with the government because its meaning is unclear and leaves too much discretion to judges and prosecutors.
3. When someone from any government uses the word "citizenship", you should:

- 1       3.1. Tell them NOT to use the word, and instead to use “nationality” or “domicile”.
- 2       3.2. Ask them whether they mean “nationality” or “domicile”.
- 3       3.3. Ask them WHICH political subdivision they imply a domicile within: federal territory or a constitutional state of
- 4             the Union.

NOTES:

1. Domicile is a prerequisite to having any civil status per Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17. One therefore cannot be a statutory "alien" under 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(3) without a domicile on federal territory. Without such a domicile, you are a transient foreigner and neither an "alien" nor a "nonresident alien".
2. "United States" is described in 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(38), (a)(36) and 8 C.F.R. §215.1(f) and includes only federal territory and possessions and excludes all Constitutional Union states. This is a product of the separation of powers doctrine that is the heart of the United States Constitution.
3. A "nonresident alien individual" who has made an election under 26 U.S.C. §6013(g) and (h) to be treated as a "resident alien" is treated as a "nonresident alien" for the purposes of withholding under I.R.C. Subtitle C but retains their status as a "resident alien" under I.R.C. Subtitle A. See 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3) for the definition of "individual", which means "alien".
4. A "non-person" is really just a transient foreigner who is not "purposefully availing themselves" of commerce within the legislative jurisdiction of the United States on federal territory under the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act, 28 U.S.C. Chapter 97. The real transition from a "NON-person" to an "individual" occurs when one:
  - 4.1. "Purposefully avails himself" of commerce on federal territory and thus waives sovereign immunity. Examples of such purposeful availment are the next three items.
  - 4.2. Lawfully and consensually occupying a public office in the U.S. government and thereby being an "officer and individual" as identified in 5 U.S.C. §2105(a). Otherwise, you are PRIVATE and therefore beyond the civil legislative jurisdiction of the national government.
  - 4.3. Voluntarily files an IRS Form 1040 as a citizen or resident abroad and takes the foreign tax deduction under 26 U.S.C. §911. This too is essentially an act of "purposeful availment". Nonresidents are not mentioned in section 911. The upper left corner of the form identifies the filer as a "U.S. individual". You cannot be an "U.S. individual" without ALSO being an "individual". All the "trade or business" deductions on the form presume the applicant is a public officer, and therefore the "individual" on the form is REALLY a public officer in the government and would be committing FRAUD if he or she was NOT.
  - 4.4. VOLUNTARILY fills out an IRS Form W-7 ITIN Application (IRS identifies the applicant as an "individual") AND only uses the assigned number in connection with their compensation as an elected or appointed public officer. Using it in connection with PRIVATE earnings is FRAUD.
5. What turns a "non-resident NON-person" into a "nonresident alien individual" is meeting one or more of the following two criteria:
  - 5.1. Residence/domicile in a foreign country under the residence article of an income tax treaty and 26 C.F.R. §301.7701(b)-7(a)(1).
  - 5.2. Residence/domicile as an alien in Puerto Rico, Guam, the Commonwealth of Northern Mariana Islands, the U.S. Virgin Islands, or American Samoa as determined under 26 C.F.R. §301.7701(b)-1(d).
6. All "taxpayers" are STATUTORY "aliens". The definition of "individual" found in 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3) does NOT include "citizens". The only occasion where a "citizen" can also be an "individual" is when they are abroad under 26 U.S.C. §911 and interface to the I.R.C. under a tax treaty with a foreign country as an alien pursuant to 26 C.F.R. §301.7701(b)-7(a)(1)

And when he had come into the house, Jesus anticipated him, saying, "What do you think, Simon? From whom do the kings [governments] of the earth [lawfully] take customs or taxes, from their sons [citizens and subjects] or from strangers [aliens], which are synonymous with "residents" in the tax code, and exclude "citizens"?"

Peter said to Him, "From strangers [aliens]/"residents" ONLY. See 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(a)(2)(ii)."

Jesus said to him, "Then the sons [of the King, Constitutional but not statutory "citizens" of the Republic, who are all sovereign "nationals" and "non-resident non-persons" under federal law] are free [sovereign over their own person and labor. e.g. SOVEREIGN IMMUNITY]. "

NOTES:

- “United States” is defined as federal territory within 26 U.S.C. §§7701\(a\)\(9\) and \(a\)\(10\), 7701\(a\)\(39\), and 7408\(d\), and 4 U.S.C. §110\(d\). It does not include any portion of a Constitutional state of the Union.
- The “District of Columbia” is defined as a federal corporation but not a physical place, a “body politic”, or a de jure “government” within the District of Columbia Act of 1871, 16 Stat. 419, 426, Sec. 34. See: Corporatization and Privatization of the Government, Form #05.024; <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>.
- “nationals” of the United States of America who are domiciled outside of federal jurisdiction, either in a state of the Union or a foreign country, are “nationals” but not “citizens” under federal law. They also qualify as “nonresident aliens”

- 1 under 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B) if and only if they are engaged in a public office. See sections 4.12.3 of the Great IRS

4 IRS publications.
- 5 5. “FEDERAL ZONE”=District of Columbia and territories of the United States in the above table
- 6 6. The term “individual” as used on the IRS Form 1040 means an “alien” engaged in a “trade or business”. All “taxpayers”
7 are “aliens” engaged in a “trade or business”. This is confirmed by 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3), 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(a)(2)(ii),
8 and 5 U.S.C. §552a(a)(2). Statutory “U.S. citizens” as defined in 8 U.S.C. §1401 are not “individuals” unless temporarily
9 abroad pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §911 and subject to an income tax treaty with a foreign country. In that capacity, statutory 10 “U.S. citizens” interface to the I.R.C. as “aliens” rather than “U.S. citizens” through the tax treaty.

5.1.4.6 Meaning of Geographical “Words of Art”

Because the states of the Union and the federal government are “foreign” to each other for the purposes of legislative jurisdiction, then it also follows that the definitions of terms in the context of all state and federal statutes must be consistent with this fact. The table below was extracted from section 4.9 if you would like to investigate further, and it clearly shows the restrictions placed upon definitions of terms within the various contexts that they are used within state and federal law:

Table 5-5: Meaning of geographical “words of art”

NOTES:

1. The term “Federal state” or “Federal ‘States’” as used above means a federal territory as defined in 4 U.S.C. §110(d) and EXCLUDES states of the Union.
2. The term “Union state” means a “State” mentioned in the United States Constitution, and this term EXCLUDES and is mutually exclusive to a federal “State”.

1 5.1.4.7 Citizenship and Domicile Options and Relationships

2 Figure 5-2: Citizenship and domicile options and relationships

- 1 1. Changing domicile from “foreign” on the left to “domestic” on the right can occur EITHER by:
  - 2 1.1. Physically moving to the federal zone.
  - 3 1.2. Being lawfully elected or appointed to political office, in which case the OFFICE/STATUS has a domicile on federal territory but the 4 OFFICER does not.
- 5 2. Statuses on the right are civil franchises granted by Congress. As such, they are public offices within the national government. Those not seeking 6 office should not claim any of these statuses.

5.1.4.8 Statutory Rules for Converting Between Various Domicile and Citizenship Options Within Federal Law

The rules depicted above are also described in text form using the list below, if you would like to investigate the above diagram further:

1. “non-resident non-person”: Those with no domicile on federal territory and who are born either in a foreign country, a state of the Union, or within the federal zone. Also called a “nonresident”, “stateless person”, or “transient foreigner”. They are exclusively PRIVATE and beyond the reach of the civil statutory law because:
  - 1.1. They are not a “person” or “individual” because not engaged in an elected or appointed office.
  - 1.2. They have not waived sovereign immunity under the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act, 28 U.S.C. Chapter 97.
  - 1.3. They have not “purposefully” or “consensually” availed themselves of commerce within the exclusive or general jurisdiction of the national government within federal territory.
  - 1.4. They waived the “benefit” of any and all licenses or permits in the context of a specific transaction or agreement.
  - 1.5. In the context of a specific business dealing, they have not invoked any statutory status under federal civil law that might connect them with a government franchise, such as “U.S. citizen”, “U.S. resident”, “person”, “individual”, “taxpayer”, etc.
  - 1.6. If they are demanded to produce an identifying number, they say they don't consent and attach the following form to every application or withholding document:

Why It is Illegal for Me to Request or Use a “Taxpayer Identification Number”, Form #04.205
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

2. “Aliens” or “alien individuals”: Those born in a foreign country and not within any state of the Union or within any federal territory.
  - 2.1. “Alien” is defined in 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(3) as a person who is neither a citizen nor a national.
  - 2.2. “Alien individual” is defined in 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3)(i).
  - 2.3. An alien is defined in 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(3) as a person who is neither a statutory “U.S.** citizen” per 8 U.S.C. §1401 nor a “national of the United States**” per 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(22).
  - 2.4. An alien with no domicile in the “United States” is presumed to be a “nonresident alien” pursuant to 26 C.F.R. §1.871-4(b).
3. “Residents” or “resident aliens”: An “alien” or “alien individual” with a legal domicile on federal territory.
  - 3.1. “Resident aliens” are defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A).
  - 3.2. A “resident alien” is an alien as defined in 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(3) who has a legal domicile on federal territory that is no part of the exclusive jurisdiction of any state of the Union.
  - 3.3. An “alien” becomes a “resident alien” by filing IRS Form 1078 pursuant to 26 C.F.R. §1.871-4(c)(ii) and thereby electing to have a domicile on federal territory.
4. “Nonresident aliens”: Those with no domicile on federal territory and who are born either in a foreign country, a state of the Union, or within the federal zone. They serve in a public office in the national but not state government.
  - 4.1. Defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B).
  - 4.2. A “nonresident alien” is defined as a person who is neither a statutory “citizen” pursuant to 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(c) nor a statutory “resident” pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A).
  - 4.3. A person who is a “non-citizen national” pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1452 and 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(22)(B) is a “nonresident alien”, but only if they are lawfully engaged in a public office of the national government.
5. “Nonresident alien individuals”: Those who are aliens and who do not have a domicile on federal territory.
  - 5.1. Status is indicated in block 3 of the IRS Form W-8BEN under the term “Individual”.
  - 5.2. Includes only nonresidents not domiciled on federal territory but serving in public offices of the national government. “person” and “individual” are synonymous with said office in 26 U.S.C. §6671(b) and 26 U.S.C. §7343.
6. Convertibility between “aliens”, “resident aliens”, and “nonresident aliens”, and “nonresident alien individuals”:
  - 6.1. A “nonresident alien” is not the legal equivalent of an “alien” in law nor is it a subset of “alien”.
  - 6.2. IRS Form W-8BEN, Block 3 has no block to check for those who are “non-resident non-persons” but not “nonresident aliens” or “nonresident alien individuals”. Thus, the submitter of this form who is a statutory “non-resident non-person” but not a “nonresident alien” or “nonresident alien individual” is effectively compelled to make an illegal and fraudulent election to become an alien and an “individual” if they do not add a block for “transient foreigner” or “Union State Citizen” to the form. See section 5.3 of the following:

About IRS Form W-8BEN, Form #04.202
  - 6.3. 26 U.S.C. §6013(g) and (h) and 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(4)(B) authorize a “nonresident alien” who is married to a statutory “U.S. citizen” as defined in 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(c) to make an “election” to become a “resident alien”.

- 6.4. It is unlawful for an unmarried "state national" pursuant to either 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21) to become a "resident alien". This can only happen by either fraud or mistake.
- 6.5. An alien may overcome the presumption that he is a "nonresident alien" and change his status to that of a "resident alien" by filing IRS Form 1078 pursuant to 26 C.F.R. §1.871-4(c)(ii) while he is in the "United States".
- 6.6. The term "residence" can only lawfully be used to describe the domicile of an "alien". Nowhere is this term used to describe the domicile of a "state national" or a "nonresident alien". See 26 C.F.R. §1.871-2.
- 6.7. The only way a statutory "alien" under 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(3) can become both a "state national" and a "nonresident alien" at the same time is to be naturalized pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1421 and to have a domicile in either a U.S. possession or a state of the Union.

7. Sources of confusion on these issues:

- 7.1. One can be a "non-resident non-person" without being an "individual" or a "nonresident alien individual" under the Internal Revenue Code. An example would be a human being born within the exclusive jurisdiction of a state of the Union who is therefore a "state national" pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21) who does not participate in Social Security or use a Taxpayer Identification Number.
- 7.2. The term "United States" is defined in the Internal Revenue Code at 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10).
- 7.3. The term "United States" for the purposes of citizenship is defined in 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(38).
- 7.4. Any "U.S. Person" as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30) who is not found in the "United States" (District of Columbia pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10)) shall be treated as having an effective domicile within the District of Columbia pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(39) and 26 U.S.C. §7408(d).
- 7.5. The term "United States" is equivalent for the purposes of statutory "citizens" pursuant to 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(c) and "citizens" as used in the Internal Revenue Code. See 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(c).
- 7.6. The term "United States" as used in the Constitution of the United States is NOT equivalent to the statutory definition of the term used in:

7.6.1. 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10).

7.6.2. 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(38).

The "United States" as used in the Constitution means the states of the Union and excludes federal territory, while the term "United States" as used in federal statutory law means federal territory and excludes states of the Union.

- 7.7. A constitutional "citizen of the United States" as mentioned in the Fourteenth Amendment is NOT equivalent to a statutory "national and citizen of the United States" as used in 8 U.S.C. §1401. See:

Why You are a "national", "state national", and Constitutional but not Statutory Citizen, Form #05.006

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

- 7.8. In the case of jurisdiction over CONSTITUTIONAL aliens only (meaning foreign NATIONALS), the term "United States" implies all 50 states and the federal zone, and is not restricted only to the federal zone. See:

7.8.1. Non-Resident Non-Person Position, Form #05.020

7.8.2. Kleindienst v. Mandel, 408 U.S. 753 \(1972\)

*In accord with ancient principles of the international law of nation-states, the Court in The Chinese Exclusion Case, 130 U.S. 581, 609 (1889), and in Fong Yue Ting v. United States, 149 U.S. 698 (1893), held broadly, as the Government describes it, Brief for Appellants 20, that the power to exclude aliens is "inherent in sovereignty, necessary for maintaining normal international relations and defending the country against foreign encroachments and dangers - a power to be exercised exclusively by the political branches of government . . . ." Since that time, the Court's general reaffirmations of this principle have [408 U.S. 753, 766] been legion. 6 The Court without exception has sustained Congress' "plenary power to make rules for the admission of aliens and to exclude those who possess those characteristics which Congress has forbidden." Boutilier v. Immigration and Naturalization Service, 387 U.S. 118, 123 (1967). "[O]ver no conceivable subject is the legislative power of Congress more complete than it is over" the admission of aliens. Oceanic Navigation Co. v. Stranahan, 214 U.S. 320, 339 (1909). [Kleindienst v. Mandel, 408 U.S. 753 (1972)]*

7.8.3. Chae Chan Ping v. U.S., 130 U.S. 581 \(1889\)

While under our constitution and form of government the great mass of local matters is controlled by local authorities, the United States, in their relation to foreign countries and their subjects or citizens, are one nation, invested with powers which belong to independent nations, the exercise of which can be invoked for the maintenance of its absolute independence and security throughout its entire territory. The powers to declare war, make treaties, suppress insurrection, repel invasion, regulate foreign commerce, secure republican governments to the states, and admit subjects of other nations to citizenship, are all sovereign powers, restricted in their exercise only by the constitution itself and considerations of public policy and justice which control, more or less, the conduct of all civilized nations. As said by this court in the case of Cohens v. Virginia, 6 Wheat. 264, 413, speaking by the same great chief justice: "That the United States form, for many, and for most important purposes, a single nation, has not yet been denied. In war, we are one people. In making peace, we are one people. In all commercial regulations, we are one and the same people. In many other respects, the American people are one; and the government which is alone capable of controlling and managing their interests in all these respects is the government of the Union. It is their government, and in that character they have no other. America has chosen to [130 U.S. 581, 605] be in many respects, and to many purposes, a nation; and for all these purposes her government is complete; to all these objects, it is competent. The people have declared that in the exercise of all powers given for these objects it is supreme. It can, then, in effecting these objects, legitimately control all individuals or governments within the American territory."

[. . .]

"The power of exclusion of foreigners being an incident of sovereignty belonging to the government of the United States as a part of those sovereign powers delegated by the constitution, the right to its exercise at any time when, in the judgment of the government, the interests of the country require it, cannot be granted away or restrained on behalf of any one. The powers of government are delegated in trust to the United States, and are incapable of transfer to any other parties. They cannot be abandoned or surrendered. Nor can their exercise be hampered, when needed for the public good, by any considerations of private interest. The exercise of these public trusts is not the subject of barter or contract."
[Chae Chan Ping v. U.S., 130 U.S. 581 (1889)]

5.1.4.9 Effect of Federal Franchises and Offices Upon Your Citizenship and Standing in Court

Another important element of citizenship is that artificial entities like corporations are statutory but not Constitutional citizens in the context of civil litigation.

"A corporation is a citizen, resident, or inhabitant of the state or country by or under the laws of which it was created, and of that state or country only."
[19 Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.), Corporations, §886 (2003)]

"A corporation is not a citizen within the meaning of that provision of the Constitution, which declares that the citizens of each State shall be entitled to all the privileges and immunities of citizens of the several States."
[Paul v. Virginia, 8 Wall (U.S.) 168, 19 L.Ed. 357 (1868)]

Likewise, all governments are "corporations" as well.

"Corporations are also of all grades, and made for varied objects; all governments are corporations, created by usage and common consent, or grants and charters which create a body politic for prescribed purposes; but whether they are private, local or general, in their objects, for the enjoyment of property, or the exercise of power, they are all governed by the same rules of law, as to the construction and the obligation of the instrument by which the incorporation is made. One universal rule of law protects persons and property. It is a fundamental principle of the common law of England, that the term freemen of the kingdom, includes 'all persons,' ecclesiastical and temporal, incorporate, politique or natural; it is a part of their magna charta (2 Inst. 4), and is incorporated into our institutions. The persons of the members of corporations are on the same footing of protection as other persons, and their corporate property secured by the same laws which protect that of individuals. 2 Inst. 46-7. 'No man shall be taken,' 'no man shall be disseised,' without due process of law, is a principle taken from magna charta, infused into all our state constitutions, and is made inviolable by the federal government, by the amendments to the constitution."
[Proprietors of Charles River Bridge v. Proprietors of Warren Bridge, 36 U.S. 420 (1837)]

TITLE 28 - JUDICIARY AND JUDICIAL PROCEDURE
PART VI - PARTICULAR PROCEEDINGS
CHAPTER 176 - FEDERAL DEBT COLLECTION PROCEDURE
SUBCHAPTER A - DEFINITIONS AND GENERAL PROVISIONS
Sec. 3002. Definitions

(15) "United States" means -

(A) a Federal corporation;

(B) an agency, department, commission, board, or other entity of the United States; or

(C) an instrumentality of the United States.

"A federal corporation operating within a state is considered a domestic corporation rather than a foreign corporation. The United States government is a foreign corporation with respect to a state."
[19 Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.), Corporations, §883 (2003)]

Those who are acting in a representative capacity on behalf of the national government as “public officers” therefore assume the same status as their employer pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b). To wit:

IV. PARTIES > Rule 17.

Rule 17. Parties Plaintiff and Defendant; Capacity

(b) Capacity to Sue or be Sued.

Capacity to sue or be sued is determined as follows:

(1) for an individual who is not acting in a representative capacity, by the law of the individual's domicile;

(2) for a corporation the “United States”, in this case, or its officers on official duty representing the corporation, by the law under which it was organized; and

(3) for all other parties, by the law of the state where the court is located, except that:

(A) a partnership or other unincorporated association with no such capacity under that state's law may sue or be sued in its common name to enforce a substantive right existing under the United States Constitution or laws; and

(B) 28 U.S.C. §§754 and 959\(a\) govern the capacity of a receiver appointed by a United States court to sue or be sued in a United States court.

[SOURCE: <http://www.law.cornell.edu/rules/frcp/Rule17.htm>]

Persons acting in the capacity as “public officers” of the national government are therefore acting as “officers of a corporation” as described in 26 U.S.C. §6671\(b\) and 26 U.S.C. §7343 and become “persons” within the meaning of federal statutory law.

(b) Person defined

The term “person”, as used in this subchapter, includes an officer or employee of a corporation, or a member or employee of a partnership, who as such officer, employee, or member is under a duty to perform the act in respect of which the violation occurs.

§7343. Definition of term “person”

The term “person” as used in this chapter includes an officer or employee of a corporation, or a member or employee of a partnership, who as such officer, employee, or member is under a duty to perform the act in respect of which the violation occurs.

Because all corporations are “citizens”, then “public officers” also take on the character of “U.S. citizens” in the capacity of their official duties, regardless of what they are as private individuals. It is also interesting to note that IRS correspondence very conspicuously warns the recipient right underneath the return address the following, confirming that they are corresponding with a “public officer” and not a private individual:

Note that all “taxpayers” are “public officers” of the national government, and they are referred to in the Internal Revenue Code as “effectively connected with a trade or business”. The term “trade or business” is defined as “the functions of a public office”:

26 U.S.C. Sec. 7701\(a\)\(26\)

The U.S. Supreme Court has also said it is "repugnant to the constitution" for the government to regulate private conduct. The only way you can lawfully become subject to the government's jurisdiction or the tax laws is to engage in "public conduct" as a "public officer" of the national government.

"The power to "legislate generally upon" life, liberty, and property, as opposed to the "power to provide modes of redress" against offensive state action, was "repugnant" to the Constitution. Id., at 15. See also United States v. Reese, 92 U.S. 214, 218 (1876); United States v. Harris, 106 U.S. 629, 639 (1883); James v. Bowman, 190 U.S. 127, 139 (1903). Although the specific holdings of these early cases might have been superseded or modified, see, e.g., Heart of Atlanta Motel, Inc. v. United States, 379 U.S. 241 (1964); United States v. Guest, 383 U.S. 745 (1966), their treatment of Congress' §5 power as corrective or preventive, not definitional, has not been questioned."

Note also that ordinary "employees" are NOT "public officers":

Treatise on the Law of Public Offices and Officers
 Book 1: Of the Office and the Officer: How Officer Chosen and Qualified
 Chapter I: Definitions and Divisions

§2 How Office Differs from Employment.-A public office differs in material particulars from a public employment, for, as was said by Chief Justice MARSHALL, "although an office is an employment, it does not follow that every employment is an office. A man may certainly be employed under a contract, express or implied, to perform a service without becoming an officer."

"We apprehend that the term 'office,'" said the judges of the supreme court of Maine, "implies a delegation of a portion of the sovereign power to, and the possession of it by, the person filling the office; and the exercise of such power within legal limits constitutes the correct discharge of the duties of such office. The power thus delegated and possessed may be a portion belonging sometimes to one of the three great departments and sometimes to another; still it is a legal power which may be rightfully exercised, and in its effects it will bind the rights of others and be subject to revision and correction only according to the standing laws of the state. An employment merely has none of these distinguishing features. A public agent acts only on behalf of his principal, the public, whose sanction is generally considered as necessary to give the acts performed the authority and power of a public act or law. And if the act be such as not to require subsequent sanction, still it is only a species of service performed under the public authority and for the public good, but not in the exercise of any standing laws which are considered as roles of action and guardians of rights."

"The officer is distinguished from the employee," says Judge COOLEY, "in the greater importance, dignity and independence of his position; in being required to take an official oath, and perhaps to give an official bond; in the liability to be called to account as a public offender for misfeasance or non-feasance in office, and usually, though not necessarily, in the tenure of his position. In particular cases, other distinctions will appear which are not general."

The ruse described in this section of making corporations into "citizens" and those who work for them into "public officers" of the government and "taxpayers" started just after the Civil War. Congress has always been limited to taxing things that it creates, which means it has never been able to tax anything but federal and not state corporations. The Supreme Court has confirmed, for instance, that the income tax is and always has been a franchise or privilege tax upon profit of federal corporations.

"Excises are taxes laid upon the manufacture, sale or consumption of commodities within the country, upon licenses to pursue certain occupations and upon corporate privileges...the requirement to pay such taxes involves the exercise of [220 U.S. 107, 152] privileges, and the element of absolute and unavoidable demand is lacking..."

...It is therefore well settled by the decisions of this court that when the sovereign authority has exercised the right to tax a legitimate subject of taxation as an exercise of a franchise or privilege, it is no objection that the measure of taxation is found in the income produced in part from property which of itself considered is nontaxable...

Conceding the power of Congress to tax the business activities of private corporations.. the tax must be measured by some standard..."

[Flint v. Stone Tracy Co., 220 U.S. 107 \(1911\)]

"The Sixteenth Amendment declares that Congress shall have power to levy and collect taxes on income, "from [271 U.S. 174] whatever source derived," without apportionment among the several states and without regard to any census or enumeration. It was not the purpose or effect of that amendment to bring any new subject within the taxing power. Congress already had power to tax all incomes. But taxes on incomes from some sources had been held to be "direct taxes" within the meaning of the constitutional requirement as to apportionment. Art. 1, § 2, cl. 3, § 9, cl. 4; Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co., 158 U.S. 601. The Amendment relieved from that requirement, and obliterated the distinction in that respect between taxes on income that are direct taxes and those that are not, and so put on the same basis all incomes "from whatever source derived." Brushaber v. Union P. R. Co., 240 U.S. 1, 17. "Income" has been taken to mean the same thing as used in the Corporation Excise Tax Act of 1909, in the Sixteenth Amendment, and in the various revenue acts subsequently passed. Southern Pacific Co. v. Lowe, 247 U.S. 330, 335; Merchants' L. & T. Co. v. Smietanka, 255 U.S. 509, 219. After full consideration, this Court declared that income may be defined as gain derived from capital, from labor, or from both combined, including profit gained through sale or conversion of capital. Stratton's Independence v. Howbert, 231 U.S. 399, 415; Doyle v. Mitchell Brothers Co., 247 U.S. 179, 185; Eisner v. Macomber, 252 U.S. 189, 207. And that definition has been adhered to and applied repeatedly. See, e.g., Merchants' L. & T. Co. v. Smietanka, supra; 518; Goodrich v. Edwards, 255 U.S. 527, 535; United States v. Phellis, 257 U.S. 156, 169; Miles v. Safe Deposit Co., 259 U.S. 247, 252-253; United States v. Supplee-Biddle Co., 265 U.S. 189, 194; Irwin v. Gavitt, 268 U.S. 161, 167; Edwards v. Cuba Railroad, 268 U.S. 628, 633. In determining what constitutes income, substance rather than form is to be given controlling weight. Eisner v. Macomber, supra, 206. [271 U.S. 175]"

[Bowers v. Kerbaugh-Empire Co., 271 U.S. 170, 174, (1926)]

"As repeatedly pointed out by this court, the Corporation Tax Law of 1909..imposed an excise or privilege tax, and not in any sense, a tax upon property or upon income merely as income. It was enacted in view of the decision of Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & T. Co., 157 U.S. 429, 29 L.Ed. 759, 15 Sup. St. Rep. 673, 158 U.S. 601, 39 L.Ed. 1108, 15 Sup.Ct.Rep. 912, which held the income tax provisions of a previous law to be unconstitutional because amounting in effect to a direct tax upon property within the meaning of the Constitution, and because not apportioned in the manner required by that instrument."

To create and expand a national income tax, the federal government therefore had to make the municipal government of the District of Columbia into a federal corporation in 1871 and then impose an income tax upon the officers of the corporation ("public officers") by making all of their earnings from the office into "profit" and "gross income" subject to excise tax upon the franchise they participate in. Below is the history of this transformation. You can find more in Great IRS Hoax, Form #11.302, Chapter 6:

1. The first American Income Tax was passed in 1862. See:

12 Stat. 432.

2. The License Tax Cases was heard in 1866 by the Supreme Court, in which the Supreme Court said that Congress could not license a trade or business in a state in order to tax it, referring to the civil war tax enacted in 1862. See:

License Tax Cases, 72 U.S. 462 (1866)

<http://caselaw.lp.findlaw.com/scripts/getcase.pl?navby=case&court=us&vol=72&page=462>

3. The Fourteenth Amendment was ratified in 1868. This Amendment uses the phrase "citizens of the United States" in order to confuse it with statutory "citizens of the United States" domiciled on federal territory in the exclusive jurisdiction of Congress.
4. The civil war income tax was repealed in 1871. See:
  - 4.1. 17 Stat. 401
  - 4.2. Great IRS Hoax, Form #11.302, Section 6.5.20.
5. Congress incorporated the District of Columbia in 1871. The incorporation of the District of Columbia was done to expand the income tax by taxing the government's own "public officers" as a federal corporation. See the following:

19 Stat. 419

NOTES:

1. "United States" is described in 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(38), (a)(36) and 8 C.F.R. §215.1(f) and includes only federal territory and possessions and excludes all Constitutional Union states. This is a product of the separation of powers doctrine that is the heart of the United States Constitution.
2. E-Verify CANNOT be used by those who are a NOT lawfully engaged in a public office in the U.S. government at the time of making application. Its use is VOLUNTARY and cannot be compelled. Those who use it MUST have a Social Security Number or Taxpayer Identification Number and it is ILLEGAL to apply for, use, or disclose said number for those not lawfully engaged in a public office in the U.S. government at the time of application. 5.1.4.11.2 How to describe your citizenship on government forms<sup>15</sup>

This section provides some pointers on how to describe your citizenship status on government forms in order to avoid being confused with a someone who has a domicile on federal territory and therefore no Constitutional rights. Below is a summary of how we recommend protecting yourself from the prejudicial presumptions of others about your citizenship status:

1. Keep in mind the following facts about all government forms:
  - 1.1. Government forms ALWAYS imply the LEGAL/STATUTORY rather than POLITICAL/CONSTITUTIONAL status of the party in the context of all franchises, including income taxes and social security.
  - 1.2. "Alien" on government forms always means a person born or naturalized in a foreign country.
  - 1.3. The Internal Revenue Code does NOT define the term "nonresident alien". The closest thing to a definition is that found in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B), which defines what it ISN'T, but NOT what it IS. If you look on IRS Form W-8BEN, Block 3, you can see that there are many different types of entities that can be nonresident aliens, none of which are EXPRESSLY included in the definition at 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B). It is therefore IMPOSSIBLE to conclude based on any vague definition in the Internal Revenue Code that a specific person IS or IS NOT a "nonresident alien."
  - 1.4. On tax forms, the term "nonresident alien" is NOT a subset of the term "alien", but rather a SUPERSET. It includes both FOREIGN nationals domiciled in a foreign country and also persons in Constitutional states of the Union, both of whom must be engaged in a public office. A "national of the United States*", for instance, although NOT an "alien" under Title 8 of the U.S. Code, is a "non-resident non-person" under Title 26 of the U.S. Code if not engaged in a public office and a "nonresident alien" if engaged in a public office. Therefore, a "nonresident alien" is a "word of art" designed to confuse people, and the fact that uses the word "alien" doesn't mean it IS an "alien". This is covered in:

Flawed Tax Arguments to Avoid, Form #08.004, Section 8.7

2. Anyone who PRESUMES any of the following should promptly be DEMANDED to prove the presumption with legally admissible evidence from the law. ALL of these presumptions are FALSE and cannot be proven:

2.1. That you can trust ANYTHING that either a government form OR a government employee says. The courts say not only that you CANNOT, but that you can be PENALIZED for doing so. See:

Reasonable Belief About Income Tax Liability, Form #05.007

2.2. That nationality and domicile are synonymous.

2.3. That “nonresident aliens” are a SUBSET of “aliens” within the Internal Revenue Code.

2.4. That the term “United States” has the SAME meaning in Title 8 of the U.S. Code as it has in Title 26.

2.5. That a Fourteenth Amendment “citizen of the United States” is equivalent to any of the following:

2.5.1. 8 U.S.C. § 1401 “national and citizen of the United States”.

2.5.3. 26 U.S.C. § 3121(e) “citizen of the United States”.

All of the above statuses have similar sounding names, but they rely on a DIFFERENT definition of “United States” from that found in the USA Constitution.

2.6. That you can be a statutory “taxpayer” or statutory “citizen” of any kind WITHOUT your consent. See:

Why Domicile and Becoming a “Taxpayer” Require Your Consent, Form #05.002

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

3. The safest way to describe oneself is to check “Other” for citizenship or add an “Other” box if the form doesn’t have one and then do one of the following:

3.1. Write in the “Other” box

“See attached mandatory Affidavit of Citizenship, Domicile, and Tax Status, Form #02.001”

and then attach the following completed form:

Affidavit of Citizenship, Domicile, and Tax Status, Form #02.001

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

3.2. If you don’t want to include an attachment, add the following mandatory language to the form that you are a:

3.2.1. A “Citizen and national of ____ (statename)”

3.2.2. NOT a statutory “national and citizen of the United States” or “U.S. citizen” per 8 U.S.C. § 1401

3.2.3. A constitutional or Fourteenth Amendment Citizen.

3.2.4. A statutory alien per 26 U.S.C. § 7701(b)(1)(A) for the purposes of the federal income tax.

4. If the recipient of the form says they won’t accept attachments or won’t allow you to write explanatory information on the form needed to prevent perjury on the form, then send them an update via certified mail AFTER they accept your submission so that you have legal evidence that they tried to tamper with a federal witness and conspired to commit perjury on the form.

5. For detailed instructions on how to fill out the Department of State Form I-9, See:

I-9 Form Amended, Form #06.028

6. For detailed instructions on how to participate in E-Verify for the purposes of PRIVATE employment, see:

About E-Verify, Form #04.107

7. To undo the damage you have done over the years to your status by incorrectly describing your status, send in the following form and submit according to the instructions provided. This form says that all future government forms submitted shall have this form included or attached by reference.

Legal Notice of Change in Domicile/Citizenship Records and Divorce from the United States, Form #10.001

8. Quit using Taxpayer Identifying Numbers (TINs). 20 C.F.R. § 422.104 says that only statutory “U.S. citizens” and “permanent residents” can lawfully apply for Social Security Numbers, both of which share in common a domicile on federal territory such as statutory “U.S. citizens” and “residents” (aliens), can lawfully use such a number. 26 C.F.R. § 301.6109-1(b) also indicates that “U.S. persons”, meaning persons with a domicile on federal territory, are required to furnish such a number if they file tax forms. “Foreign persons” are also mentioned in 26 C.F.R. § 301.6109-1(b), but these parties also elect to have an effective domicile on federal territory and thereby become “persons” by engaging in federal franchises. See:

9. If you are completing any kind of government form or application to any kind of financial institution other than a tax form and you are asked for your citizenship status, TIN, or Social Security Number, attach the following form and prepare according to the instructions provided:

Affidavit of Citizenship, Domicile, and Tax Status, Form #02.001

11. If you are submitting a voter registration, attach the following form and prepare according to the instructions provided:

12. If you are applying for a USA passport, attach the following form and prepare according to the instructions provided:

USA Passport Application Attachment, Form #06.007

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

13. If you are submitting a complaint, response, pleading, or motion to a federal court, you should attach the following form:

Federal Pleading/Motion/Petition Attachment, Litigation Tool #01.002

<http://sedm.org/Litigation/LitIndex.htm>

14. Use as many of the free forms as you can from the page below. They are very well thought out to avoid traps set by the predators who run the American government:

SEDM Forms Page

15. When engaging in correspondence with anyone in the government, legal, or financial profession about your status that occurs on other than a standard government form, use the following guidelines:

15.2. Entirely avoid the use of the words “citizen”, “citizenship”, “resident”, “inhabitant”. Instead, prefer the term “non-resident”, and “transient foreigner”.

15.3. Never describe yourself as an “individual” or “person”. 5 U.S.C. §552a(a)(2) says that this entity is a government employee who is a statutory “U.S. citizen” or “resident” (alien). Instead, refer to yourself as a “transient foreigner” and a “nonresident”. Some forms such as IRS form W-8BEN Block 3 have no block for “transient foreigner” or “nonresident NON-individual”, in which case modify the form to add that option. See the following for details:

About IRS Form W-8BEN, Form #04.202

15.4. Entirely avoid the use of the phrase “United States”, because it has so many different and mutually exclusive meanings in the U.S. code and state law. Instead, replace this phrase with the name of the state you either are physically present within or with “USA” and then define that “USA” includes the states of the Union and excludes federal territory. For instance, you could say “Citizen of California Republic” and then put an asterisk next to it and at the bottom of the page explain the asterisk as follows:

\ NOT a citizen of the STATE of California, which is a corporate extension of the federal government, but instead a sovereign Citizen of the California Republic*

California Revenue and Taxation Code, Section 6017 defines “State of” as follows:

“6017. ‘In this State’ or ‘in the State’ means within the exterior limits of the State of California and includes all territory within these limits owned by or ceded to the United States of America.”

15.5. Never use the word “residence”, “permanent address”, or “domicile” in connection with either the term “United States”, or the name of the state you are in.

15.7. Avoid words that are undefined in statutes that relate to citizenship. Always use words that are statutorily defined and if you can't find the definition, define it yourself on the form or correspondence you are sending. Use of undefined words encourages false presumptions that will eventually injure your rights and give judges and administrators discretion that they undoubtedly will abuse to their benefit. There isn't even a common definition of “citizen of the United States” or “U.S. citizen” in the standard dictionary, then the definition of “U.S. citizen” in all the state statutes and on all government forms is up to us! Therefore, once again, whenever you fill out any kind of form that specifies either “U.S. citizen” or “citizen of the United States”, you should be very careful to clarify that it means “national” under 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21) or you will be “presumed” to be a federal citizen and a “citizen of the United States***” under 8 U.S.C. §1401, and this is one of the biggest injuries to your rights that you could ever inflict. Watch out folks! Here is the definition we recommend that you use on any government form that uses these terms that makes the meaning perfectly clear and unambiguous:

“U.S.*** citizen” or “citizen of the United States***”: A “National” defined in either 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21) who owes their permanent allegiance to the confederation of states called the “United States”. Someone who was not born in the federal “United States” as defined in 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(38) and who is NOT a “citizen of the United States” under 8 U.S.C. §1401.

15.8. Refer them to this pamphlet if they have questions and tell them to do their homework.

16. Citizenship status in Social Security NUMIDENT record:

16.2. One’s citizenship status is encoded within the NUMIDENT record using the “CSP code” within the Numident record. This code is called the “citizenship code” by the Social Security administration.

16.3. Like all government forms, the terms used on the SSA Form SS-5 use the STATUTORY context, not the CONSTITUTIONAL context for all citizenship words. Hence, block 5 of the SSA Form SS-5 should be filled out with “Other”, which means you are a non-resident. This is consistent with the definition of “individual” found in 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3), which defines the term to include ONLY STATUTORY “aliens”.

16.4. Those who are not STATUTORY “nationals and citizens of the United States**” at birth per 8 U.S.C. §1401 or 26 U.S.C. §3121(e), and 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(c) have a “CSP code” of B in their NUMIDENT record, which corresponds with a CSP code of “B”. The comment field of the NUMIDENT record should also be annotated with the following to ensure that it is not changed during an audit because of confusion on the part of the SSA employee:

“CSP Code B not designated in error-- applicant is an American national with a domicile and residence in a foreign state for the purposes of the Social Security Act.”

16.5. The local SSA office cannot provide a copy of the NUMIDENT record. Only the central SSA headquarters can provide it by submitting a Privacy Act request rather than a FOIA using the following resource:

Guide to Freedom of Information Act, Social Security Administration

http://www.ssa.gov/foia/html/foia\_guide.htm

16.6.2. State Department of Motor Vehicles in verifying SSNs.

16.6.3. E-Verify.

5.1.4.12 How Human Beings Become “Individuals” and “Persons” Under the Revenue Statutes

It might surprise most people to learn that human beings most often are NEITHER “individuals” nor “persons” under ordinary acts of Congress, and especially revenue acts. The reasons for this are many and include the following:

1. All civil statutes are law exclusively for government and not private humans:

Why Statutory Civil Law is Law for Government and Not Private Persons, Form #05.037

<https://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

2. Civil statutes cannot impair PRIVATE property or PRIVATE rights.

1                   "Under basic rules of construction, statutory laws enacted by legislative bodies cannot impair rights given under a
2                   constitution. 194 B.R. at 925."
3                   [In re Young, 235 B.R. 666 (Bankr.M.D.Fla., 1999)]

- 4     3. Civil statutes are privileges and franchises created by the government which convert PRIVATE property to PUBLIC
5     property. They cannot lawfully convert PRIVATE property to PUBLIC property without the express consent of the 6     owner. See:

Separation Between Public and Private, Form #12.025
<https://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

- 7     4. You have an inalienable PRIVATE right to choose your civil status, including "person".

Your Exclusive Right to Declare or Establish Your Civil Status, Form #13.008
<https://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

- 8     5. All civil statuses, including "person" or "individual" are a product of a VOLUNTARY choice of domicile protected by 9     the First Amendment right of freedom from compelled association. If you don't volunteer and choose to be a
10    nonresident or transient foreigner, then you cannot be punished for that choice and cannot have a civil status. See:

Why Domicile and Becoming a "Taxpayer" Require Your Consent, Form #05.002
<https://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

- 11   6. As the absolute owner of your private property, you have the absolute right of depriving any and all others,
12   INCLUDING governments, of the use or benefit of that property, including your body and all of your property. The 13   main method of exercising that control is to control the civil and legal status of the property, who protects it, and HOW 14   it is protected.

23   The following subsections will examine the above assertions and prove they are substantially true with evidence from a high
24   level. If you need further evidence, we recommend reading the documents referenced above.

25   5.1.4.12.1    How alien nonresidents visiting the geographical United States** become statutory "individuals" 26   whether or not they consent

27   The U.S. Supreme Court defined how alien nonresidents visiting the United States** become statutory "individuals" below:

28                   The reasons for not allowing to other aliens exemption 'from the jurisdiction of the country in which they are
29                   found' were stated as follows: 'When private individuals of one nation [states of the Unions are "nations" under 30                   the law of nations] spread themselves through another as business or caprice may direct, mingling
31                   indiscriminately with the inhabitants of that other, or when merchant vessels enter for the purposes of trade,
32                   it would be obviously inconvenient and dangerous to society, and would subject the laws to continual
33                   infraction, and the government to degradation, if such individuals or merchants did not owe temporary and
34                   local allegiance, and were not amenable to the jurisdiction of the country. Nor can the foreign sovereign have 35                   any motive for wishing such exemption. His subjects thus passing into foreign countries are not employed by him,
36                   nor are they engaged in national pursuits. Consequently, there are powerful motives for not exempting persons
37                   of this description from the jurisdiction of the country in which they are found, and no one motive for requiring
38                   it. The implied license, therefore, under which they enter, can never be construed to grant such exemption.' 7
39                   Cranch, 144.

40                   In short, the judgment in the case of The Exchange declared, as incontrovertible principles, that the jurisdiction
41                   of every nation within its own territory is exclusive and absolute, and is susceptible of no limitation not imposed
42                   by the nation itself; that all exceptions to its full and absolute territorial jurisdiction must be traced up to its own
43                   consent, express or implied; that upon its consent to cede, or to waive the exercise of, a part of its territorial
44                   jurisdiction, rest the exemptions from that jurisdiction of foreign sovereigns or their armies entering its territory
45                   with its permission, and of their foreign ministers and public ships of war; and that the implied license, under
46                   which private individuals of another nation enter the territory and mingle indiscriminately with its inhabitants,
47                   for purposes of business or pleasure, can never be construed to grant to them an exemption from the
48                   jurisdiction of the country in which they are found. See, also, Carlisle v. U.S. (1872) 16 Wall. 147, 155; Radich

51                   [United States v. Wong Kim Ark, 169 U.S. 649, 18 S.Ct. 456, 42 L.Ed. 890 (1898)]

1 Therefore, alien nonresidents visiting or doing business within a country are presumed to be party to an “implied license”
 2 while there. All licenses are franchises, and all give rise to a public civil franchise status. In the case of nonresident aliens,
 3 that status is “individual” and it is a public office in the government, just like every other franchise status. We prove this in:

Government Instituted Slavery Using Franchises, Form #05.030
<https://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

4 All “aliens” are presumed to be “nonresident aliens” but this may be overcome upon presentation of proof:

14 In the case of an alien who presents himself for determination of tax liability before departure from the United
 15 States, the presumption as to the alien's nonresidence may be overcome by proof--

16 Aliens, while physically in the United States**, are presumed to be “resident” here, REGARDLESS OF THEIR CONSENT
 17 or INTENT. “residence” is the word used to characterize an alien as being subject to the CIVIL and/or TAXING franchise 18 codes of the place he or she is in:

23 (a) General.

24 The term nonresident alien individual means an individual whose residence is not within the United States, and
 25 who is not a citizen of the United States. The term includes a nonresident alien fiduciary. For such purpose the 26 term fiduciary shall have the meaning assigned to it by section 7701(a)(6) and the regulations in part 301 of this
 27 chapter (Regulations on Procedure and Administration). For presumption as to an alien's nonresidence, see 28 paragraph (b) of §1.871-4.

29 (b) Residence defined.

30 An alien actually present in the United States who is not a mere transient or sojourner is a resident of the 31 United States for purposes of the income tax. Whether he is a transient is determined by his intentions with 32 regard to the length and nature of his stay. A mere floating intention, indefinite as to time, to return to another
 33 country is not sufficient to constitute him a transient. If he lives in the United States and has no definite 34 intention as to his stay, he is a resident. One who comes to the United States for a definite purpose which in its 35 nature may be promptly accomplished is a transient; but, if his purpose is of such a nature that an extended
 36 stay may be necessary for its accomplishment, and to that end the alien makes his home temporarily in the 37 United States, he becomes a resident, though it may be his intention at all times to return to his domicile abroad
 38 when the purpose for which he came has been consummated or abandoned. An alien whose stay in the United 39 States is limited to a definite period by the immigration laws is not a resident of the United States within the 40 meaning of this section, in the absence of exceptional circumstances.

41 Once aliens seek the privilege of permanent resident status, then they cease to be nonresident aliens and become “resident 42 aliens” under 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A):

43 26 U.S.C. §7701\(b\)\(1\)\(A\) Resident alien

44 (b) Definition of resident alien and nonresident alien
 45 (1) In general

For purposes of this title (other than subtitle B) -

(A) Resident alien

An alien individual shall be treated as a resident of the United States with respect to any calendar year if (and only if) such individual meets the requirements of clause (i), (ii), or (iii):

(i) Lawfully admitted for permanent residence

Such individual is a lawful permanent resident of the United States at any time during such calendar year.

(ii) Substantial presence test

Such individual meets the substantial presence test of paragraph (3).

(iii) First year election

Such individual makes the election provided in paragraph (4).

---

"Residents, as distinguished from citizens, are aliens who are permitted to take up a permanent abode in the country. Being bound to the society by reason of their dwelling in it, they are subject to its laws so long as they remain there, and, being protected by it, they must defend it, although they do not enjoy all the rights of citizens. They have only certain privileges which the law, or custom, gives them. Permanent residents are those who have been given the right of perpetual residence. They are a sort of citizen of a less privileged character, and are subject to the society without enjoying all its advantages. Their children succeed to their status; for the right of perpetual residence given them by the State passes to their children."
[The Law of Nations, Vattel, Book 1, Chapter 19, Section 213, p. 87]

Therefore, once aliens apply for and receive "permanent resident" status, they get the same exemption from income taxation as citizens and thereby CEASE to be civil "persons" under the Internal Revenue Code as described in the following sections. In that sense, their "implied license" is revoked and they thereby cease to be civil "persons". The license returns if they abandon their "permanent resident" civil status:

Title 26: Internal Revenue

PART 1—INCOME TAXES

nonresident alien individuals

§1.871-5 Loss of residence by an alien.

An alien who has acquired residence in the United States retains his status as a resident until he abandons the same and actually departs from the United States. An intention to change his residence does not change his status as a resident alien to that of a nonresident alien. Thus, an alien who has acquired a residence in the United States is taxable as a resident for the remainder of his stay in the United States.

We should also point out that:

1. There are literally BILLIONS of aliens throughout the world.
2. Unless and until an alien either physically sets foot within our country or conducts commerce or business with a foreign state such as the United States**, they:
  - 2.1. Would NOT be classified as civil STATUTORY "persons" or "individuals", but rather "transient foreigners" or "stateless persons". Domicile in a place is MANDATORY in order for the civil statutes to be enforceable per Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17, and they have a foreign domicile while temporarily here.
  - 2.2. Would NOT be classified as "persons" under the Constitution. The constitution attaches to and protects LAND, and not the status of people ON the land.
  - 2.3. Would NOT be classified as "persons" under the CRIMINAL law.
  - 2.4. Would NOT be classified as "persons" under the common law and equity.
3. If the alien then physically comes to the United States** (federal zone or STATUTORY "United States***"), then they:
  - 3.1. Would NOT become "persons" under the Constitution, because the constitution does not attach to federal territory.
  - 3.2. Would become "persons" under the CRIMINAL laws of Congress, because the criminal law attaches to physical territory.
  - 3.3. Would become "persons" under the common law and equity of the national government and not the states, because common law attaches to physical land.
4. If the alien then physically moves to a constitutional state, then their status would change as follows:
  - 4.1. Would become "persons" under the Constitution, because the constitution attaches to land within constitutional states.
  - 4.2. Would become "persons" under the CRIMINAL laws of states of the Union, because the criminal law attaches to physical territory.
  - 4.3. Would cease to be "persons" under the CRIMINAL laws of Congress, because they are not on federal territory.

- 1 4.4. Would become “persons” under the common law and equity of the state they visited and not the national
 2 government, because common law attaches to physical land.
 3 5. If the aliens are statutory “citizens” of their state of origin, they are “agents of the state” they came from. If they do not
 4 consent to be statutory “citizens” and do not have a domicile in the state of their birth, then they are “non-residents” in
 5 relation to their state of birth. The STATUTORY “citizen” is the agent of the state, not the human being filling the public
 6 office of “citizen”.

7 *"Under our own systems of polity, the term 'citizen', implying the same or similar relations to the government and
 8 to society which appertain to the term, 'subject' in England, is familiar to all. Under either system, the term used
 9 is designed to apply to man in his individual character and to his natural capacities -- to a being or agent
 10 [PUBLIC OFFICER!] possessing social and political rights and sustaining social, political, and moral
 11 obligations. It is in this acceptation only, therefore, that the term 'citizen', in the article of the Constitution,
 12 can be received and understood. When distributing the judicial power, that article extends it to controversies
 13 between 'citizens' of different states. This must mean the natural physical beings composing those separate
 14 communities, and can by no violence of interpretation be made to signify artificial, incorporeal, theoretical,
 15 and invisible creations. A corporation, therefore, being not a natural person, but a mere creature of the mind,
 16 invisible and intangible, cannot be a citizen of a state, or of the United States, and cannot fall within the terms
 17 or the power of the above mentioned article, and can therefore neither plead nor be impleaded in the courts of 18 the United States."*

19 [Rundle v. Delaware & Raritan Canal Company, 55 U.S. 80, 99 (1852) from dissenting opinion by Justice Daniel]

- 20 6. When aliens are STATUTORY citizens of the country of their birth and origin who are doing business in the United 21 States** as a “foreign state”, they are treated as AGENTS and OFFICERS of the country they are from, hence they are 22 “state actors”.

23 The Law of Nations, Book II: Of a Nation Considered in Her Relation to Other States

24 § 81. The property of the citizens is the property of the nation, with respect to foreign nations.

25 *Even the property of the individuals is, in the aggregate, to be considered as the property of the nation, with 26 respect to other states. It, in some sort, really belongs to her, from the right she has over the property of her
 27 citizens, because it constitutes a part of the sum total of her riches, and augments her power. She is interested in 28 that property by her obligation to protect all her members. In short, it cannot be otherwise, since nations act and 29 treat together as bodies in their quality of political societies, and are considered as so many moral persons. All
 30 those who form a society, a nation being considered by foreign nations as constituting only one whole, one single 31 person, — all their wealth together can only be considered as the wealth of that same person. And this is to true,
 32 that each political society may, if it pleases, establish within itself a community of goods, as Campanella did in 33 his republic of the sun. Others will not inquire what it does in this respect: its domestic regulations make no
 34 change in its rights with respect to foreigners nor in the manner in which they ought to consider the aggregate of 35 its property, in what way soever it is possessed.*

- 39 7. As agents of the state they were born within and are domiciled within while they are here, aliens visiting the United 40 States** are part of a “foreign state” in relation to the United States**.

42 Title 28 > Part IV > Chapter 97 > § 1605

43 28 U.S. Code § 1605 - General exceptions to the jurisdictional immunity of a foreign state

44 (a) A foreign state shall not be immune from the jurisdiction of courts of the United States or of the States in any
 45 case—

46 (1) in which the foreign state has waived its immunity either explicitly or by implication, notwithstanding any 47 withdrawal of the waiver which the foreign state may purport to effect except in accordance with the terms of the 48 waiver;

49 (2) *in which the action is based upon a commercial activity carried on in the United States by the foreign state;
 50 or upon an act performed in the United States in connection with a commercial activity of the foreign state
 51 elsewhere; or upon an act outside the territory of the United States in connection with a commercial activity of 52 the foreign state elsewhere and that act causes a direct effect in the United States;*

53 (3) in which rights in property taken in violation of international law are in issue and that property or any 54 property exchanged for such property is present in the United States in connection with a commercial activity

carried on in the United States by the foreign state; or that property or any property exchanged for such property is owned or operated by an agency or instrumentality of the foreign state and that agency or instrumentality is engaged in a commercial activity in the United States;

(4) in which rights in property in the United States acquired by succession or gift or rights in immovable property situated in the United States are in issue;

(5) not otherwise encompassed in paragraph (2) above, in which money damages are sought against a foreign state for personal injury or death, or damage to or loss of property, occurring in the United States and caused by the tortious act or omission of that foreign state or of any official or employee of that foreign state while acting within the scope of his office or employment; except this paragraph shall not apply to—

(A) any claim based upon the exercise or performance or the failure to exercise or perform a discretionary function regardless of whether the discretion be abused, or

(B) any claim arising out of malicious prosecution, abuse of process, libel, slander, misrepresentation, deceit, or interference with contract rights; or

(6) in which the action is brought, either to enforce an agreement made by the foreign state with or for the benefit of a private party to submit to arbitration all or any differences which have arisen or which may arise between the parties with respect to a defined legal relationship, whether contractual or not, concerning a subject matter capable of settlement by arbitration under the laws of the United States, or to confirm an award made pursuant to such an agreement to arbitrate, if (A) the arbitration takes place or is intended to take place in the United States, (B) the agreement or award is or may be governed by a treaty or other international agreement in force for the United States calling for the recognition and enforcement of arbitral awards, (C) the underlying claim, save for the agreement to arbitrate, could have been brought in a United States court under this section or section 1607, or (D) paragraph (1) of this subsection is otherwise applicable.

Lastly, we also wish to emphasize that those who are physically in the country they were born in are NOT under any such “implied license” and therefore, unlike aliens, are not AUTOMATICALLY “individuals” or “persons” and cannot consent to become “individuals” or “persons” under any revenue statute. These people would be called “nationals of the United States*** OF AMERICA”. Their rights are UNALIENABLE and therefore they cannot lawfully consent to give them away by agreeing to ANY civil status, including “person” or “individual”.

5.1.4.12.2 “U.S. Persons”

The statutory definition of “U.S. person” within the Internal Revenue Code is as follows:

TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > Sec. 7701.
Sec. 7701. - Definitions

(a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof—

(30) United States person

The term “United States*** person” means -
(A) a citizen or resident of the United States***.

(B) a domestic partnership,

(C) a domestic corporation,

(D) any estate (other than a foreign estate, within the meaning of paragraph (31)), and

(E) any trust if -

(i) a court within the United States*** is able to exercise primary supervision over the administration of the trust, and

(ii) one or more United States*** persons have the authority to control all substantial decisions of the trust.

TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > Sec. 7701. [Internal Revenue Code]
Sec. 7701. - Definitions

(a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof—

(9) United States

The term "United States" when used in a geographical sense includes only the States and the District of Columbia.

(10)State

The term "State" shall be construed to include the District of Columbia, where such construction is necessary to carry out provisions of this title.

NOTICE the following important fact: The definition of "person" in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(1) does NOT include "U.S. person", and therefore indicating this status on a withholding form does not make you a STATUTORY "person" within the Internal Revenue Code!

TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > § 7701
§ 7701. Definitions

(a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof—

(1)Person

The term "person" shall be construed to mean and include an individual, a trust, estate, partnership, association, company or corporation.

There is some overlap between "U.S. Persons" and "persons" in the I.R.C., but only in the case of estates and trusts, and partnerships. NOWHERE in the case of individuals is there overlap.

There is also no tax imposed directly on a U.S. Person anywhere in the internal revenue code. All taxes relating to humans are imposed upon "persons" and "individuals" rather than "U.S. Persons". Nowhere in the definition of "U.S. person" is included "individuals", and you must be an "individual" to be a "person" as a human being under 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(1). Furthermore, nowhere are "citizens or residents of the United States" mentioned in the definition of "U.S. Person" defined to be "individuals". Hence, they can only be fictions of law and NOT humans. To be more precise, they are not only "fictions of law" but public offices in the government. See:

Proof That There Is a "Straw Man", Form #05.042
<https://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

There is a natural tendency to PRESUME that a statutory "U.S. person" is a "person", but in fact it is not. That tendency begins with the use of "person" in the NAME "U.S. person". However, the rules for interpreting the Internal Revenue Code forbid such a presumption:

U.S. Code > Title 26 > Subtitle F > Chapter 80 > Subchapter A > § 7806
26 U.S. Code § 7806 - Construction of title

(b)Arrangement and classification

No inference, implication, or presumption of legislative construction shall be drawn or made by reason of the location or grouping of any particular section or provision or portion of this title. nor shall any table of contents, table of cross references, or similar outline, analysis, or descriptive matter relating to the contents of this title be given any legal effect. The preceding sentence also applies to the sidenotes and ancillary tables contained in the various prints of this Act before its enactment into law.

Portions of a specific section, such as 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30) is a "grouping" as referred to above. The following case also affirms this concept:

"Factors of this type have led to the wise rule that the title of a statute and the heading of a section cannot limit the plain meaning of the text. United States v. Fisher, 2 Cranch 358, 386; Cornell v. Coyne, 192 U.S. 418, 430; Strathearn S.S. Co. v. Dillon, 252 U.S. 348, 354. For interpretative purposes, they are of use only when they shed light on some ambiguous word or phrase. They are but tools available for the resolution of a doubt. But they cannot undo or limit that which the text makes plain."
[Railroad Trainmen v. B. & O.R. Co. 331 U.S. 519 (1947)]

1 Therefore, we must discern the meaning of “U.S. person” from what is included UNDER the heading, and not within the 2 heading “U.S. Person”. The following subsections will attempt to do this.

3 5.1.4.12.3      The Three Types of “Persons”

4 The meaning of “person” depends entirely upon the context in which it is used. There are three main contexts, defined by 5 the system of law in which they may be invoked:

- 6 1. CONSTITUTIONAL “person”: Means a human being and excludes artificial entities or corporations or even 7 governments.

8 “Citizens of the United States within the meaning of this Amendment must be natural and not artificial
9 persons; a corporate body is not a citizen of the United States.<sup>14</sup>

11 14 Insurance Co. v. New Orleans, 13 Fed.Cas. 67 (C.C.D.La. 1870). Not being citizens of the United States,
12 corporations accordingly have been declared unable "to claim the protection of that clause of the Fourteenth
13 Amendment which secures the privileges and immunities of citizens of the United States against abridgment or
14 impairment by the law of a State." Orient Ins. Co. v. Daggs, 172 U.S. 557, 561 (1869) . This conclusion was in

- 22 2. STATUTORY “person”: Depends entirely upon the definition within the statutes and EXCLUDES 23 CONSTITUTIONAL “persons”. This would NOT INCLUDE STATUTORY “U.S. Persons”.
- 24 3. COMMON LAW “person”: A private human who is litigating in equity under the common law in defense of his 25 absolutely owned private property.

26 The above systems of law are described in:

Four Law Systems Course, Form #12.039

<https://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

27 Which of the above statuses you have depends on the law system you voluntarily invoke when dealing with the government.
28 That law system determines what is called the “choice of law” in your interactions with the government. For more on “choice 29 of law” rules, see:

Federal Jurisdiction, Form #05.018, Section 3

<https://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

30 If you invoke a specific choice of law in the action you file in court, and the judge or government changes it to one of the 31 others, then they are engaged in CRIMINAL IDENTITY THEFT:

Government Identity Theft, Form #05.046

<https://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

32 Identity theft can also be attempted by the government by deceiving or confusing you with legal “words of art”:

33 5.1.4.12.4      Why a “U.S. Person” who is a “citizen” is NOT a statutory “person” or “individual” in the Internal 34 Revenue Code

1 The definition of person is found in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(1) as follows:

2 TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > § 7701
3 §7701. Definitions

4 (a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent
5 thereof—

6 (1) Person

7 The term “person” shall be construed to mean and include an individual, a trust, estate, partnership, association,
8 company or corporation.

9 The term “individual” is then defined as:

10 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1 Requirement for the deduction and withholding of tax on payments to foreign persons.

11 \(c \) Definitions

12 \(3\) Individual.

13 (i) Alien individual.

14 The term alien individual means an individual who is not a citizen or a national of the United States. See Sec.
15 1.1-1(c).

17 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1T Requirement for the deduction and withholding of tax on payments to foreign persons.

18 \(c \) Definitions

19 \(3\) Individual.

20 (ii) Nonresident alien individual.

21 The term nonresident alien individual means persons described in section 7701(b)(1)(B), alien individuals who
22 are treated as nonresident aliens pursuant to § 301.7701\(b\)-7 of this chapter for purposes of computing their U.S.
23 tax liability, or an alien individual who is a resident of Puerto Rico, Guam, the Commonwealth of Northern
24 Mariana Islands, the U.S. Virgin Islands, or American Samoa as determined under § 301.7701\(b\)-1\(d\) of this
25 chapter. An alien individual who has made an election under section 6013(g) or \(h\) to be treated as a resident of
26 the United States is nevertheless treated as a nonresident alien individual for purposes of withholding under
27 chapter 3 of the Code and the regulations thereunder.

28 Did you also notice that the definitions were not qualified to only apply to a specific chapter or section? That means that they 29 apply generally throughout the Internal Revenue Code and implementing regulations. Therefore, we must conclude that the 30 REAL “individual” in the phrase “U.S. Individual Income Tax Return” (IRS Form 1040) that Congress and the IRS are 31 referring to can only mean “nonresident alien INDIVIDUALS” and “alien INDIVIDUALS”. That is why they don’t just 32 come out and say “U.S. Citizen Tax Return” on the 1040 form. If you aren’t a STATUTORY “individual”, then obviously 33 you are filing the WRONG form to file the 1040, which is a RESIDENT form for those DOMICILED on federal territory.
34 This is covered in the following:

Why It's a Crime for a State Citizen to File a 1040 Income Tax Return, Form #08.021
<https://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

35 Therefore, all STATUTORY “individuals” are STATUTORY “aliens”. Hence, the ONLY people under Title 26 of the U.S.
36 Code who are BOTH “persons” and “individuals” are ALIENS. Under the rules of statutory construction “citizens” of every 37 description are EXCLUDED from being STATUTORY “persons”.

38 "It is apparent that a constitutional prohibition cannot be transgressed indirectly by the creation of a statutory
39 presumption any more than it can be violated by direct enactment. The power to create presumptions is not a 40 means of escape from constitutional restrictions."

[Bailey v. Alabama, 219 U.S. 219 (1911)]

"Expressio unius est exclusio alterius. A maxim of statutory interpretation meaning that the expression of one thing is the exclusion of another. Burgin v. Forbes, 293 Ky. 456, 169 S.W.2d. 321, 325; Newblock v. Bowles, 170 Okl. 487, 40 P.2d. 1097, 1100. Mention of one thing implies exclusion of another. When certain persons or things are specified in a law, contract, or will, an intention to exclude all others from its operation may be inferred. Under this maxim, if statute specifies one exception to a general rule or assumes to specify the effects of a certain provision, other exceptions or effects are excluded."
[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 581]

"When a statute includes an explicit definition, we must follow that definition, even if it varies from that term's ordinary meaning. Meese v. Keene, 481 U.S. 465, 484-485 (1987) ("It is axiomatic that the statutory definition of the term excludes unstated meanings of that term"); Colautti v. Franklin, 439 U.S. at 392-393, n. 10 ("As a rule, 'a definition which declares what a term "means" . . . excludes any meaning that is not stated"); Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Lenroot, 323 U.S. 490, 502 (1945); Fox v. Standard Oil Co. of N.J., 294 U.S. 87, 95-96 (1935) (Cardozo, J.); see also 2A N. Singer, Sutherland on Statutes and Statutory Construction § 47.07, p. 152, and n. 10 (5th ed. 1992) (collecting cases). That is to say, the statute, read "as a whole," post at 998 [530 U.S. 943] (THOMAS, J., dissenting), leads the reader to a definition. That definition does not include the Attorney General's restriction -- "the child up to the head." Its words, "substantial portion," indicate the contrary."
[Stenberg v. Carhart, 530 U.S. 914 (2000)]

Who might these STATUTORY "persons" be who are also "individuals"? They must meet all the following conditions simultaneously to be "taxpayers" and "persons":

1. STATUTORY "U.S. citizens" or STATUTORY "U.S. residents" domiciled in the geographical "United States" under 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) and/or 4 U.S.C. §110(d).
2. Temporarily abroad on travel under 26 U.S.C. §911.
3. Availing themselves of a tax treaty benefit (franchises) and therefore liable to PAY for said "benefit".
4. Interface to the Internal Revenue Code as "aliens" in relation to the foreign country they are physically in but not domiciled in at the time.
5. Called a "qualified individual" in 26 U.S.C. §911(d)(1).

Some older versions of the code call the confluence of conditions above a "nonresident citizen". The above are confirmed by the words of Jesus Himself!

And when he had come into the house, Jesus anticipated him, saying, "What do you think, Simon? From whom do the kings [governments] of the earth [lawfully] take customs or taxes, from their sons [citizens and subjects] or from strangers [statutory "aliens", which are synonymous with "residents" in the tax code, and exclude "citizens"]?"

Peter said to Him, "From strangers [statutory "aliens"/"residents" ONLY. See 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(a)(2)(ii) and 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3)]."

Jesus said to him, "Then the sons [of the King, Constitutional but not statutory "citizens" of the Republic, who are all sovereign "nationals" and "non-resident non-persons"] are free [sovereign over their own person and labor. e.g. SOVEREIGN IMMUNITY]."
[Matt. 17:24-27, Bible, NKJV]

Note some other very important things that distinguish STATUTORY "U.S. Persons" from STATUTORY "persons":

1. The term "U.S." in the phrase "U.S. Person" as used in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30) is never defined anywhere in the Internal Revenue Code, and therefore does NOT mean the same as "United States" in its geographical sense as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10). It is a violation of due process to PRESUME that the two are equivalent.
2. The definition of "person" in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(1) does not include statutory "citizens" or "residents".
3. The definition of "U.S. person" in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30) does not include statutory "individuals".
4. Nowhere in the code are "individuals" ever expressly defined to include statutory "citizens" or "residents". Hence, under the rules of statutory construction, they are purposefully excluded.
5. Based on the previous items, there is no overlap between the definitions of "person" and "U.S. Person" in the case of human beings who are ALSO "citizens" or "residents".
6. The only occasion when a human being can ALSO be a statutory "person" is when they are neither a "citizen" nor a "resident" and are a statutory "individual".
7. The only "person" who is neither a statutory "citizen" nor a statutory "resident" and is ALSO an "individual" is a "nonresident alien individual":

26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B) Nonresident alien

An individual is a nonresident alien if such individual is neither a citizen of the United States nor a resident of the United States (within the meaning of subparagraph (A)).

8. The previous item explains why nonresident aliens are the ONLY type of “individual” subject to tax withholding in 26 U.S.C. Subtitle A, Chapter 3, Subchapter A and who can earn taxable income under the I.R.C.: The only “individuals” listed are “nonresident aliens”:

26 U.S. Code Subchapter A - Nonresident Aliens and Foreign Corporations§ 1441 - Withholding of tax on nonresident aliens§ 1442 - Withholding of tax on foreign corporations§ 1443 - Foreign tax-exempt organizations§ 1444 - Withholding on Virgin Islands source income§ 1445 - Withholding of tax on dispositions of United States real property interests§ 1446 - Withholding tax on foreign partners' share of effectively connected income

9. There is overlap between “U.S. Person” and “person” in the case of trusts, corporations, and estates, but NOT “individuals”. All such entities are artificial and fictions of law. Even they can in some cases be “citizens” or “residents” and therefore nontaxpayers:

"A corporation is a citizen, resident, or inhabitant of the state or country by or under the laws of which it was created, and of that state or country only."

[19 Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.), Corporations, §886 (2003)]

10. Corporations can also be individuals instead of merely and only corporations:

At common law, a "corporation" was an "artificial perso[n] endowed with the legal capacity of perpetual succession" consisting either of a single individual (termed a "corporation sole") or of a collection of several individuals (a "corporation aggregate"). 3 H. Stephen, Commentaries on the Laws of England 166, 168 (1st Am. ed. 1845). The sovereign was considered a corporation. See id., at 170; see also 1 W. Blackstone, Commentaries *467. Under the definitions supplied by contemporary law dictionaries, Territories would have been classified as "corporations" (and hence as "persons") at the time that 1983 was enacted and the Dictionary Act recodified. See W. Anderson, A Dictionary of Law 261 (1893) ("All corporations were originally modeled upon a state or nation"); 1 J. Bouvier, A Law Dictionary Adapted to the Constitution and Laws of the United States of America 318-319 (11th ed. 1866) ("In this extensive sense the United States may be termed a corporation"); Van Brocklin v. Tennessee, 117 U.S. 151, 154 (1886) ("The United States is a . . . great corporation . . . ordained and established by the American people") (quoting United [495 U.S. 182, 202] States v. Maurice, 26 F. Cas. 1211, 1216 (No. 15,747) (CC Va. 1823) (Marshall, C. J.)); Cotton v. United States, 11 How. 229, 231 (1851) (United States is "a corporation"). See generally Trustees of Dartmouth College v. Woodward, 4 Wheat. 518, 561-562 (1819) (explaining history of term "corporation"). [Ngiraingas v. Sanchez, 495 U.S. 182 (1990)]

We have therefore come full circle in forcefully concluding that “persons” and “U.S. persons” are not equivalent and non-overlapping in the case of “citizens” and “residents”, and that the only type of entity a human being can be if they are a STATUTORY “citizen” or “resident” is a statutory “U.S. person” under 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30) and NOT a statutory “person” under 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(1).

None of the following could therefore TRUTHFULLY be said about a STATUTORY “U.S. Person” who are human beings that are “citizens” or “residents”:

1. They are "individuals" as described in 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3)(i).
2. That they are a SUBSET of all “persons” in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(1).
3. That they are ALSO statutory “persons” in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(1).

1 Lastly, we wish to emphasize that it constitutes a CRIME and perjury for someone who is in fact and in deed a "citizen" to
2 misrepresent themselves as a STATUTORY "individual" (alien) by performing any of the following acts:

- 3 1. Declaring yourself to be a "payee" by submitting an IRS form W-8 or W-9 to an alleged "withholding agent" while 4 physically located in the statutory "United States**" (federal zone) or in a state of the Union. All human being
5 "payees" are "persons" and therefore "individuals". "U.S. persons" who are not aliens are NOT "persons". Statutory 6 citizens or residents must be ABROAD to be a "payee" because only then can they be both "individuals" and 7 "qualified individuals" under 26 U.S.C. §911(d)(1).

14 [. . .] "a payee is the person to whom a payment is made, regardless of whether such person is the beneficial
15 owner of the amount (as defined in paragraph \(c\)\(6\) of this section)."

- 16 2. Filing an IRS Form 1040. The form in the upper left corner says "U.S. Individual" and "citizens" are NOT 17 STATUTORY "individuals". See:

Why It's a Crime for a State Citizen to File a 1040 Income Tax Return, Form #08.021

- 18 3. To apply for or receive an "INDIVIDUAL Taxpayer Identification Number" using an IRS Form W-7. See:

Individual Taxpayer Identification Number, Internal Revenue Service
<https://www.irs.gov/individuals/individual-taxpayer-identification-number>

19 The ONLY provision within the Internal Revenue Code that permits those who are STATUTORY "citizens" to claim the 20 status of either "individual" or "alien" is found in 26 U.S.C. §911(d)(1), in which the citizen is physically abroad in a foreign 21 country, in which case he or she is called a "qualified individual".

22 U.S. Code > Title 26 > Subtitle A > Chapter 1 > Subchapter N > Part III > Subpart B > § 911

23 26 U.S. Code § 911 - Citizens or residents of the United States living abroad

24 (d) DEFINITIONS AND SPECIAL RULES

25 For purposes of this section—

26 (1) QUALIFIED INDIVIDUAL

27 The term "qualified individual" means an individual whose tax home is in a foreign country and who is—

28 (A) a citizen of the United States and establishes to the satisfaction of the Secretary that he has been a bona fide
29 resident of a foreign country or countries for an uninterrupted period which includes an entire taxable year, or

30 (B) a citizen or resident of the United States and who, during any period of 12 consecutive months, is present in 31 a foreign country or countries during at least 330 full days in such period.

32 The above provisions SUPERSEDE the definitions within 26 U.S.C. §7701 only within section 911 for the specific case of 33 citizens when abroad ONLY. Those who are not physically "abroad" or in a foreign country CANNOT truthfully claim to 34 be "individuals" and would be committing perjury under penalty of perjury if they signed any tax form, INCLUDING a 1040
35 form, identifying themselves as either an "individual" or a "U.S. individual" as it says in the upper left corner of the 1040
36 form. If this limitation of the income tax ALONE were observed, then most of the fraud and crime that plagues the system 37 would instantly cease to exist.

5.1.4.12.5 "U.S. Persons" who are ALSO "persons"

26 C.F.R. §1.1441(c)(8) identifies "U.S. Persons" who are also "persons" under the Internal Revenue Code:

(8)Person.

For purposes of the regulations under chapter 3 of the Code, the term person shall mean a person described in section 7701(a)(1) and the regulations under that section and a U.S. branch to the extent treated as a U.S. person under paragraph (b)(2)(iv) of this section. For purposes of the regulations under chapter 3 of the Code, the term person does not include a wholly-owned entity that is disregarded for federal tax purposes under § 301.7701-2(c)(2) of this chapter as an entity separate from its owner. See paragraph (b)(2)(iii) of this section for procedures applicable to payments to such entities.
[26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(8)]

The ONLY way that a human being who is a "U.S. person" physically located within the statutory "United States**" (federal zone) or states of the Union can become a STATUTORY "person" is to:

1. Be treated wrongfully AS IF they are a "payee" by an ignorant "withholding agent" under 26 C.F.R. §1.1441.
2. Be falsely PRESUMED to be a statutory "individual" or statutory "person". All such conclusive presumptions which impair constitutional rights are unconstitutional and impermissible as we prove in the following:

Presumption: Chief Weapon for Unlawfully Enlarging Federal Jurisdiction, Form #05.017
<https://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

All such presumption should be FORCEFULLY CHALLENGED. Anyone making such a presumption should be DEMANDED to satisfy their burden of proof and produce a statutory definition that expressly includes those who are either STATUTORY "citizens" or statutory "residents". In the absence of such a presumption, you as the victim of such an unconstitutional presumption must be presumed to be innocent until proven guilty, which means a "non-person" and a "non-taxpayer" unless and until proven otherwise WITH COURT ADMISSIBLE EVIDENCE SIGNED UNDER PENALTY OF PERJURY BY THE MOVING PARTY, which is the withholding agent.

3. Volunteer to fill out an unmodified or not amended IRS Form W-8 or W-9. Both forms PRESUPPOSE that the submitter is a "payee" and therefore a "person" under 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(b)(2)(i). A withholding agent asserting usually falsely that you have to fill out this form MUST make a false presumption that you are a "person" but he CANNOT make that determination without forcing you to contract or associate in violation of law. ONLY YOU as the submitter can lawfully do that. If you say under penalty of perjury that you are NOT a statutory "person" or "individual", then he has to take your word for it and NOT enforce the provisions of 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1 against you. If he refuses you this right, he is committing criminal witness tampering, since the form is signed under penalty of perjury and he compelling a specific type of testimony from you. See:

Your Exclusive Right to Declare or Establish Your Civil Status, Form #13.008

4. Fill out an IRS Form W-8. Block 1 for the name of the submitter calls the submitter an "individual". You are NOT an "individual" since individuals are aliens as required by 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3). Only STATUTORY "U.S. citizens" abroad can be "individuals" and you aren't abroad if you are either on federal territory or within a constitutional state.

The result of ALL of the above is CRIMINAL IDENTIFY THEFT at worst as described in Form #05.046, and impersonating a public officer called a "person" and "individual" at best in violation of 18 U.S.C. §912 as described in Form #05.008.

There is also much overlap between the definition of "person" and "U.S. person". The main LACK of overlap occurs with "individuals". The main reason for this difference in overlap is the fact that HUMAN BEINGS have constitutional rights while artificial entities DO NOT. Below is a table comparing the two, keeping in mind that the above regulation refers to the items listed that both say "Yes", but not to "individuals":

Table 5-7: Comparison of "person" to "U.S. Person"

| 7 | Corporation    | Yes (federal corporation domiciled on federal territory only) | Yes (all corporations, including state corporations) |

We believe that the "citizen or resident of the United States**" listed in item 1 above and in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30)(A) is a territorial citizen or resident. Those domiciled in states of the Union would be NEITHER, and therefore would NOT be classified as "individuals", even if they otherwise satisfied the definition of "individual" found in 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3). This results from the geographical definition of "United States" found in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10). Below is an example of why we believe this:

26 C.F.R. §31.3121\(e\)-1 State, United States, and citizen

(b)...The term 'citizen of the United States' includes a citizen of the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico or the Virgin Islands, and, effective January 1, 1961, a citizen of Guam or American Samoa.

5.1.4.13 Four Withholding and Reporting Statuses Compared

Albert Einstein is famous for saying:

"The essence of genius is simplicity".

This section tries to simplify most of what you need to know about withholding and reporting forms and statuses into the shortest possible tabular list that we can think of.

First we will start off by comparing the four different withholding and reporting statuses in tabular form. For each, we will compare the withholding, reporting, and SSN/TIN requirements and where those requirements appear in the code or regulations. For details on how the statuses described relate, refer earlier to section 5.1.4.12.1.

Jesus summarized the withholding and reporting requirements in the holy bible, and he was ABSOLUTELY RIGHT! Here is what He said they are:

And when he had come into the house, Jesus anticipated him, saying, "What do you think, Simon? From whom do the kings [governments] of the earth [lawfully] take customs or taxes, from their sons [citizens and subjects] or from strangers ["aliens", which are synonymous with "residents" in the tax code, and exclude "citizens"]?"

Peter said to Him, "From strangers ["aliens"/"residents" ONLY. See 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(a)(2)(ii) and 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3)]."

Jesus said to him, "Then the sons ["citizens" of the Republic, who are all sovereign "nationals" and "non-resident non-persons" under federal law] are free [sovereign over their own person and labor. e.g. SOVEREIGN IMMUNITY]."
[Matt. 17:24-27, Bible, NKJV]

The table in the following pages PROVES He was absolutely right. To put it simply, the only people who don't have rights are those whose rights are "alienated" because they are privileged "aliens" or what Jesus called "strangers". For details on why all "aliens" are privileged and subject to taxation and regulation, see section earlier.

NOTES:

- All statutory "individuals" are aliens under 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3). They hid this deep in the regulations instead of the code, hoping you wouldn't notice it. For more information on who are "persons" and "individuals" under the Internal Revenue Code, see section 5.1.4.12 earlier.

- 1 2. You CANNOT be a “nonresident alien” as a human being under 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B) WITHOUT also being a statutory “individual”, meaning an ALIEN
 2 under 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3).
 3 3. “Civil status” means any status under any civil statute, such as “individual”, “person”, “taxpayer”, “spouse”, “driver”, etc.
 4 4. One CANNOT have a civil status under the civil statutes of a place without EITHER:
 5 4.1. A consensual physical domicile in that geographical place.
 6 4.2. A consensual CONTRACT with the government of that place.
 7 For proof of the above, see: Why Domicile and Becoming a “Taxpayer” Require Your Consent, Form #05.002; <https://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>. The U.S.
 8 Supreme Court has admitted as much:

9 “All the powers of the government [including ALL of its civil enforcement powers against the public] must be carried into operation by individual agency, either through
 10 the medium of public officers, or contracts made with [private] individuals.”
 11 [Osborn v. Bank of U.S., 22 U.S. 738 (1824); From the headnote, not the case]

- 12 5. Any attempt to associate or enforce a NON-CONSENSUAL civil status or obligation against a human being protected by the Constitution because physically 13 situated in a Constitutional state is an act of criminal identity theft, as described in:

Government Identity Theft, Form #05.046
<https://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

- 14 6. The civil status of “taxpayer” under 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(14) PRESUMES the party is also a statutory “person” under 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(1).
 15 7. “Reportable payments” earned by “foreign persons” under 26 U.S.C. §3406 are those which satisfy ALL of the following requirements:
 16 7.1. Connected with a “trade or business” and public office under 26 U.S.C. §6041(a).
 17 7.2. Satisfy the requirements found in 26 U.S.C. §3406.
 18 7.3. Earned by a statutory “employee” under 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(c)-1, meaning an elected or appointed public officer of the United States government. Note that 19 26 U.S.C. §3406 is in Subtitle C, which is “employment taxes” and within 26 U.S.C. Chapter 24, which is “collection of income tax at source of wages”.
 20 Private humans don’t earn statutory “wages”.
 21 8. Backup withholding under 26 U.S.C. §3406 is only applicable to “foreign persons” who are ALSO statutory “employees” and earning “trade or business” or public
 22 office earnings on “reportable payments”. It is NOT applicable to those who are ANY of the following:
 23 8.1. Not an elected or appointed public officer.
 24 8.2. Not engaged in a “trade or business” under 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) and therefore not receiving “reportable payments” under 26 U.S.C. §6041(a).
 25 9. Payments supplied without documentation are presumed to be made to a “U.S. person” under 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(b)(3)(iii).
 26 10. You are allowed to make your own Substitute W-9 per 26 C.F.R. §31.3406(h)-3(c)(2). The form must include the payees name, address, and TIN (if they have 27 one). The form is still valid even if they DO NOT have an identifying number. See FORM 9 in Form #09.001, Section 25.9.
 28 11. IRS hides the exempt status on the Form W-9 identified in 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(d)(1) and TD8734 \(62 F.R. 53391, SEDM Exhibit #09.038\).

29 “As a general matter, a withholding agent (whether U.S. or foreign) must ascertain whether the payee is a U.S. or a foreign person. If the payee is a U.S. person, the 30 withholding provisions under chapter 3 of the Code do not apply; however, information reporting under chapter 61 of the Code may apply; further, if a TIN is not furnished
 31 in the manner required under section 3406, backup withholding may also apply. If the payee is a foreign person, however, the withholding provisions under chapter 3 of the 32 Code apply instead. To the extent withholding is required under chapter 3 of the Code, or is excused based on documentation that must be provided, none of the 33 information reporting provisions under chapter 61 of the Code apply, nor do the provisions under section 3406.”
 34 [Treasury Decision 8734, 62 F.R. 53391, (October 14, 1997); SEDM Exhibit #09.038]

35 It appeared on the Form W-9 up to year 2011 and mysteriously disappeared from the form after that. It still applies, but invoking it is more complicated. You have 36 to check “Other” on the current Form W-9 and cite 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(d)(1) and TD8734 \(62 F.R. 53391, SEDM Exhibit #09.038\) in the write-in block next to it.

- 1 12. Those who only want to learn the “code” and who are attorneys worried about being disbarred by a judge in cases against the government prefer the “U.S. person”
2 position, even in the case of state nationals. It’s a way of criminally bribing the judge to buy his favor and make the case easier for him, even though technically it
3 doesn’t apply to state nationals.
- 4 13. “U.S. person” should be avoided because of the following liabilities associated with such a status:
5 13.1. Must provide SSN/TIN pursuant to 26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1(b)(1).
6 13.2. Must report foreign bank accounts.
7 13.3. Subject to FATCA foreign account limitations because a “taxpayer”. See:
8 <https://www.irs.gov/businesses/corporations/foreign-account-tax-compliance-act-fatca>
- 9 14. The ONLY civil status you can have that carries NO OBLIGATION of any kind is that of a “non-resident non-person”. It is the most desirable but the most 10 difficult to explain and document to payors. The IRS is NEVER going to make it easy to document that you are “not subject” but not statutorily “exempt” and 11 therefore not a “taxpayer”. This is explained in Form #09.001, Section 19.7.
- 12 15. Form numbers such as "FORM XX" where "XX" is the number and which are listed above derive from: Federal and State Tax Withholding Options for Private

NOTES:

1. The term "wherever resident" used in 26 U.S.C. §1 means wherever the entity referred to has the CIVIL STATUS of "resident" as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1). It DOES NOT mean wherever the entity is physically located. The civil status "resident" and "resident alien", in turn, are synonymous. PRESUMING that "wherever resident" is a physical presence is an abuse of equivocation to engage in criminal identity theft of "nontaxpayers". See:

Flawed Tax Arguments to Avoid, Form #08.004, Section 8.20
<https://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

2. "United States" as used in the Internal Revenue Code is defined as follows:

TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > Sec. 7701. [Internal Revenue Code]
Sec. 7701. - Definitions

(a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof—

(9) United States

The term "United States" when used in a geographical sense includes only the States and the District of Columbia.

(10) State

The term "State" shall be construed to include the District of Columbia, where such construction is necessary to carry out provisions of this title.

TITLE 4 - FLAG AND SEAL, SEAT OF GOVERNMENT, AND THE STATES
 CHAPTER 4 - THE STATES
Sec. 110. Same; definitions

(d) The term "State" includes any Territory or possession of the United States.

3. Limitations on Geographical definitions:

3.1. It is a violation of the rules of statutory construction and interpretation and a violation of the separation of powers for any judge or government worker to ADD anything to the above geographical definitions.

"Expressio unius est exclusio alterius. A maxim of statutory interpretation meaning that the expression of one thing is the exclusion of another. Burgin v. Forbes, 293 Ky. 456, 169 S.W.2d. 321, 325; Newblock v. Bowles, 170 Okl. 487, 40 P.2d. 1097, 1100. Mention of one thing implies exclusion of another. When certain persons or things are specified in a law, contract, or will, an intention to exclude all others from its operation may be inferred. Under this maxim, if statute specifies one exception to a general rule or assumes to specify the effects of a certain provision, other exceptions or effects are excluded."
[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 581]

"When a statute includes an explicit definition, we must follow that definition, even if it varies from that term's ordinary meaning. Meese v. Keene, 481 U.S. 465, 484-485 (1987) ("It is axiomatic that the statutory definition of the term excludes unstated meanings of that term"); Colautti v. Franklin, 439 U.S. at 392-393, n. 10 ("As a rule, a definition which declares what a term 'means' . . . excludes any meaning that is not stated"); Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Lenroot, 323 U.S. 490, 502 (1945); Fox v. Standard Oil Co. of N.J., 294 U.S. 87, 95-96 (1935) (Cardozo, J.); see also 2A N. Singer, Sutherland on Statutes and Statutory Construction § 47.07, p. 152, and n. 10 (5th ed. 1992) (collecting cases). That is to say, the statute, read "as a whole," post at 998 [530 U.S. 943] (THOMAS, J., dissenting), leads the reader to a definition. That definition does not include the Attorney General's restriction -- "the child up to the head." Its words, "substantial portion," indicate the contrary."
[Stenberg v. Carhart, 530 U.S. 914 (2000)]

3.2. Comity or consent of either states of the Union or people in them to consent to "include" constitutional states of the Union within the geographical definitions is NOT ALLOWED, per the Declaration of Independence, which is organic law enacted into law on the first page of the Statutes At Large.

"We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.--That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, -"
[Declaration of Independence]

"Unalienable. Inalienable; incapable of being aliened, that is, sold and transferred."
[Black's Law Dictionary, Fourth Edition, p. 1693]

3.3. Here is what the designer of our three branch system of government said about allowing judges to become legislators in the process of ADDING things not in the statutes to the meaning of any term used in the statutes:

"When the legislative and executive powers are united in the same person, or in the same body of magistrates, there can be no liberty; because apprehensions may arise, lest the same monarch or senate should enact tyrannical laws, to execute them in a tyrannical manner."

Again, there is no liberty, if the judiciary power be not separated from the legislative and executive. Were it joined with the legislative, the life and liberty of the subject would be exposed to arbitrary control; for the judge would be then the legislator. Were it joined to the executive power, the judge might behave with violence and oppression [sound familiar?].

There would be an end of everything, were the same man or the same body, whether of the nobles or of the people, to exercise those three powers, that of enacting laws, that of executing the public resolutions, and of trying the causes of individuals."

[. . .]

In what a situation must the poor subject be in those republics! The same body of magistrates are possessed, as executors of the laws, of the whole power they have given themselves in quality of legislators. They may plunder the state by their general determinations; and as they have likewise the judiciary power in their hands, every private citizen may be ruined by their particular decisions."

- 3 4. Congress is forbidden by the U.S. Supreme Court to offer or enforce any taxable franchise within the borders of a constitutional state. This case has never been 4 overruled.

5 "Thus, Congress having power to regulate commerce with foreign nations, and among the several States, and with the Indian tribes, may, without doubt, provide for
 6 granting coasting licenses, licenses to pilots, licenses to trade with the Indians, and any other licenses necessary or proper for the exercise of that great and extensive
 7 power; and the same observation is applicable to every other power of Congress, to the exercise of which the granting of licenses may be incident. All such licenses confer
 8 authority, and give rights to the licensee.

9 But very different considerations apply to the internal commerce or domestic trade of the States. Over this commerce and trade Congress has no power of regulation
 10 nor any direct control. This power belongs exclusively to the States. No interference by Congress with the business of citizens transacted within a State is warranted
 11 by the Constitution, except such as is strictly incidental to the exercise of powers clearly granted to the legislature. The power to authorize a business within a State is
 12 plainly repugnant to the exclusive power of the State over the same subject. It is true that the power of Congress to tax is a very extensive power. It is given in the 13 Constitution, with only one exception and only two qualifications. Congress cannot tax exports, and it must impose direct taxes by the rule of apportionment, and indirect
 14 taxes by the rule of uniformity. Thus limited, and thus only, it reaches every subject, and may be exercised at discretion. But, it reaches only existing subjects. Congress
 15 cannot authorize a trade or business within a State in order to tax it."

- 19 6. The Income tax described in 26 U.S.C. Subtitle A is an excise and a franchise tax upon public offices in the national government. Hence, it is only enforceable
 20 upon elected or appointed officers or public officers (contractors) of the national government. See:

The "Trade or Business" Scam, Form #05.001
<https://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

- 21 7. It is a CRIME to either file or use as evidence in any tax enforcement proceeding any information return that was filed against someone who is NOT engaged in a 22 public office. Most information returns are false and therefore the filers should be prosecuted for crime by the Department of Justice. The reason they aren't is 23 because they are BRIBED by the proceeds resulting from these false returns to SHUT UP about the crime. See:

Correcting Erroneous Information Returns, Form #04.001

- 24 8. The Internal Revenue Code only regulates PUBLIC conduct of PUBLIC officers on official business. The ability to regulate PRIVATE rights and PRIVATE 25 property is prohibited by the Constitution and the Bill of Rights.

1 "A defendant sued as a wrong-doer, who seeks to substitute the state in his place, or to justify by the authority of the state, or to defend on the ground that the state has
2 adopted his act and exonerated him, cannot rest on the bare assertion of his defense. He is bound to establish it. The state is a political corporate body, can act only
3 through agents, and can command only by laws. It is necessary, therefore, for such a defendant, in order to complete his defense, to produce a law of the state which 4 constitutes his commission as its agent, and a warrant for his act."
5 [Poindexter v. Greenhow, 114 U.S. 270 (1885)]

6 "The power to "legislate generally upon" life, liberty, and property, as opposed to the "power to provide modes of redress" against offensive state action, was "repugnant"
7 to the Constitution. Id., at 15. See also United States v. Reese, 92 U.S. 214, 218 (1876); United States v. Harris, 106 U.S. 629, 639 (1883); James v. Bowman, 190 U.S.

9 U.S. 241 (1964); United States v. Guest, 383 U.S. 745 (1966), their treatment of Congress' §5 power as corrective or preventive, not definitional, has not been questioned."

11 9. You can't simultaneously be a "taxpayer" who is "subject" to the Internal Revenue Code AND someone who is protected by the Constitution and especially the Bill
13 forfeited:

14 9.1. Standing on a place not protected by the Constitution, such as federal territory or abroad.

15 9.2. Invoking the "benefits", "privileges", or "immunities" offered by any statute. The cite below is called the "Brandeis Rules":

16 The Court developed, for its own governance in the cases confessedly within its jurisdiction, a series of rules under which it has avoided passing upon a large part of all

5.1.4.15 Income Taxation Is A Proprietorial Power Limited to Federal Territory, Possessions, Enclaves, Offices, and Other Property

Legislative power to institute income taxation under Subtitle A of the Internal Revenue Code originates from Article 4, Section 3, Clause 2 of the Constitution:

U.S. Constitution, Article IV § 3 (2).

*The Congress shall have Power to dispose of and make all needful Rules and Regulations respecting the Territory or other Property belonging to the United States [***]*

[1] The power of Congress, in the imposition of taxes and providing for the collection thereof in the possessions of the United States, is not restricted by constitutional provision (section 8, article 1), which may limit its general power of taxation as to uniformity and apportionment when legislating for the mainland or United States proper, for it acts in the premises under the authority of clause 2, section 3, article 4, of the Constitution, which clothes Congress with power to make all needful rules and regulations respecting the territory or other property belonging to the United States. Binns v. United States, 194 U.S. 486, 24 Sup.Ct. 816, 48 L.Ed. 1087; Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244, 21 Sup.Ct. 770, 45 L.Ed. 1088.

[Lawrence v. Wardell, Collector. 273 F. 405 (1921). Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals]

The "property" of the national government subject to income taxation is the OFFICES it creates and owns. That office is legislatively created in 5 U.S.C. §2105. The creator of a thing is always the ABSOLUTE OWNER.<sup>22</sup> The income tax therefore functions as a user fee for the use of that federal property. Uncle is in the property rental business! All franchises are implemented with loans of government property with legal strings or conditions attached.

FRANCHISE. A special privilege conferred by government on individual or corporation, and which does not belong to citizens of country generally of common right. Elliott v. City of Eugene, 135 Or. 108, 294 P. 358, 360. In England it is defined to be a royal privilege in the hands of a subject.

A "franchise," as used by Blackstone in defining quo warranto, (3 Com. 262 [4th Am. Ed.] 322), had reference to a royal privilege or branch of the king's prerogative subsisting in the hands of the subject, and must arise from the king's grant, or be held by prescription, but today we understand a franchise to be some special privilege conferred by government on an individual, natural or artificial, which is not enjoyed by its citizens in general. State v. Fernandez, 106 Fla. 779, 143 So. 638, 639, 86 A.L.R. 240.

In this country a franchise is a privilege or immunity of a public nature, which cannot be legally exercised without legislative grant. To be a corporation is a franchise. The various powers conferred on corporations are franchises. The execution of a policy of insurance by an insurance company [e.g. Social Insurance/Socialist Security], and the issuing a bank note by an incorporated bank [such as a Federal Reserve NOTE], are franchises. People v. Utica Ins. Co., 15 Johns. (N.Y.) 387, 8 Am.Dec. 243. But it does not embrace the property acquired by the exercise of the franchise. Bridgeport v. New York & N.H. R. Co., 36 Conn. 255, 4 Am.Rep. 63. Nor involve interest in land acquired by grantee. Whitbeck v. Funk, 140 Or. 70, 12 P.2d. 1019, 1020. In a popular sense, the political rights of subjects and citizens are franchises, such as the right of suffrage, etc. Pierce v. Emery, 32 N.H. 484; State v. Black Diamond Co., 97 Ohio.St. 24, 119 N.E. 195, 199, L.R.A.1918E, 352.

Exclusive Franchise. See Exclusive Privilege or Franchise.

General and Special. The charter of a corporation is its "general" franchise, while a "special" franchise consists in any rights granted by the public to use property for a public use but-with private profit. Lord v. Equitable Life Assur. Soc., 194 N.Y. 212, 87 N.E. 443, 22 L.R.A. (N.S.) 420.

Personal Franchise. A franchise of corporate existence, or one which authorizes the formation and existence of a corporation, is sometimes called a "personal" franchise, as distinguished from a "property" franchise, which authorizes a corporation so formed to apply its property to some particular enterprise or exercise some special privilege in its employment, as, for example, to construct and operate a railroad. See Sandham v. Nye, 9 Misc.Rep. 541, 30 N.Y.S. 552.

<sup>22</sup> See Hierarchy of Sovereignty: The Power to Create is the Power to Tax, Family Guardian Fellowship; <https://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/Remedies/PowerToCreate.htm>.

1 Secondary Franchises. The franchise of corporate existence being sometimes called the "primary" franchise of a
 2 corporation, its "secondary" franchises are the special and peculiar rights, privileges, or grants which it may,
 3 receive under its charter or from a municipal corporation, such as the right to use the public streets, exact tolls,
 4 collect fares, etc. State v. Topeka Water Co., 61 Kan. 547, 60 P. 337; Virginia Canon Toll Road Co. v. People,
 5 22 Colo. 429, 45 P. 398 37 L.R.A. 711. The franchises of a corporation are divisible into (1) corporate or general
 6 franchises; and (2) "special or secondary franchises. The former is the franchise to exist as a corporation, while
 7 the latter are certain rights and privileges conferred upon existing corporations. Gulf Refining Co. v. Cleveland
 8 Trust Co., 166 Miss. 759, 108 So. 158, 160.

9 Special Franchisee. See Secondary Franchises, supra.
 10 [Black's Law Dictionary, Fourth Edition, pp. 786-787]

11 All franchises create or recognize an "office". In the case of the Internal Revenue Code, that office is called "person" or 12 "taxpayer".

33 The I.R.C. Subtitles A and C therefore constitute the terms of the loan of the "public office" (government property) to an 34 otherwise private human:

35 "In a legal or narrower sense, the term "franchise" is more often used to designate a right or privilege conferred 36 by law,<sup>23</sup> and the view taken in a number of cases is that to be a franchise, the right possessed must be such as
 37 cannot be exercised without the express permission of the sovereign power<sup>24</sup> –that is, a privilege or immunity
 38 of a public nature which cannot be legally exercised without legislative grant.<sup>25</sup> It is a privilege conferred by

[American Jurisprudence 2d, Franchises, §1: Definitions (1999)]

Anyone in receipt, custody, or control of government property MUST be a public officer under the control of the person who lent it to them. It is a crime to use government property for PERSONAL gain.

The fact that the government continues to be the ABSOLUTE OWNER of the thing being loaned even after you receive it and possess it means they can take it back ANY TIME THEY WANT without your consent or permission or punish you for the misuse of the property. Below are the people subject to such punishment, ALL of whom are either officers of a federal corporation or in partnership with the government:

The term "person", as used in this subchapter, includes an officer or employee of a corporation, or a member or employee of a partnership, who as such officer, employee, or member is under a duty to perform the act in respect of which the violation occurs

2. Definition of "person" for the purposes of "miscellaneous forfeiture and penalty provisions" of the Internal Revenue Code means an officer or employer of a corporation or partnership within the federal United States:

Note that the government cannot regulate or tax contracts where all parties are PRIVATE. The ability to regulate or tax PRIVATE property is repugnant to the Constitution. Therefore the only type of "partnership" they can be talking about in the above definitions are partnerships between an otherwise PRIVATE party and the government.

Constitutional states of the Union are not "Territory or other Property" of the United States, and therefore are not property LOANED or rented to the inhabitants therein.

"§1. Definitions, Nature, and Distinctions

"The word 'territory,' when used to designate a political organization has a distinctive, fixed, and legal meaning under the political institutions of the United States, and does not necessarily include all the territorial possessions of the United States, but may include only the portions thereof which are organized and exercise governmental functions under act of congress."

"While the term 'territory' is often loosely used, and has even been construed to include municipal subdivisions of a territory, and 'territories of the' United States is sometimes used to refer to the entire domain over which the United States exercises dominion, the word 'territory,' when used to designate a political organization, has a distinctive, fixed, and legal meaning under the political institutions of the United States, and the term 'territory' or 'territories' does not necessarily include only a portion or the portions thereof which are organized and exercise government functions under acts of congress. The term 'territories' has been defined to be political subdivisions of the outlying dominion of the United States, and in this sense the term 'territory' is not a description of a definite area of land but of a political unit governing and being governed as such. The question whether a particular subdivision or entity is a territory is not determined by the particular form of government with which it is, more or less temporarily, invested.

"Territories' or 'territory' as including 'state' or 'states.'" While the term 'territories of the' United States may, under certain circumstances, include the states of the Union, as used in the federal Constitution and in ordinary acts of congress "territory" does not include a foreign state.

"As used in this title, the term 'territories' generally refers to the political subdivisions created by congress, and not within the boundaries of any of the several states."

16 Income taxation is based on domicile. See District of Columbia v. Murphy, 314 U.S. 441 (1941). As such, anyone domiciled
 17 OUTSIDE the exclusive jurisdiction of the national government is a "nonresident" in respect to the income tax. They cannot 18 have a "civil status" such as "person" or "taxpayer" in relation to the civil statutory laws regulating these areas WITHOUT 19 one or more of the following circumstances:

- 20 1. A physical presence in that place. The status would be under the COMMON law.
 21 2. CONSENSUALLY doing business in that place. The status would be under the common law.
 22 3. A domicile in that place. This would be a status under the civil statutes of that place.
 23 4. CONSENSUALLY representing an artificial entity (a legal fiction) that has a domicile in that place. This would be a 24 status under the civil statutes of that place.

25 Those who do not fit any of the above 4 classifications are statutory "non-resident non-persons" and cannot be subject to 26 federal income taxation. More on "civil status" can be found at:

3 5.1.4.16 Rebuttal of Those Who Fraudulently Challenge or Try to Expand the Statutory Definitions In This
 4 Document

5 The main purpose of law is to limit government power. The foundation of what it means to have a "society of law and not
 6 men" is law that limits government powers. We cover this in Legal Deception, Propaganda, and Fraud, Form #05.014, Section
 7 5. Government cannot have limited powers without DEFINITIONS in the written law that are limiting and which define and 8 declare ALL THINGS that are included and implicitly exclude all things not expressly identified. The rules of statutory 9 construction and interpretation recognize this critical function of law with the following maxims:

10 "Expressio unius est exclusio alterius. A maxim of statutory interpretation meaning that the expression of one
 11 thing is the exclusion of another. Burgin v. Forbes, 293 Ky. 456, 169 S.W.2d. 321, 325; Newblock v. Bowles,
 12 170 Okl. 487, 40 P.2d. 1097, 1100. Mention of one thing implies exclusion of another. When certain persons or
 13 things are specified in a law, contract, or will, an intention to exclude all others from its operation may be
 14 inferred. Under this maxim, if statute specifies one exception to a general rule or assumes to specify the effects
 15 of a certain provision, other exceptions or effects are excluded."
 16 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 581]*

1 "When a statute includes an explicit definition, we must follow that definition, even if it varies from that term's
 2 ordinary meaning. Meese v. Keene, 481 U.S. 465, 484-485 (1987) ("It is axiomatic that the statutory definition
 3 of the term excludes unstated meanings of that term"); Colautti v. Franklin, 439 U.S. at 392-393, n. 10 ("As a
 4 rule, `a definition which declares what a term "means" . . . excludes any meaning that is not stated"); Western
 5 Union Telegraph Co. v. Lenroot, 323 U.S. 490, 502 (1945); Fox v. Standard Oil Co. of N.J., 294 U.S. 87, 95-96
 6 (1935) (Cardozo, J.); see also 2A N. Singer, Sutherland on Statutes and Statutory Construction § 47.07, p. 152,
 7 and n. 10 (5th ed. 1992) (collecting cases). That is to say, the statute, read "as a whole," post at 998 [530 U.S.
 8 943] (THOMAS, J., dissenting), leads the reader to a definition. That definition does not include the Attorney
 9 General's restriction -- "the child up to the head." Its words, "substantial portion," indicate the contrary."

11 The ability to define terms or ADD to the EXISTING statutory definition of terms is a LEGISLATIVE function that can 12 lawfully and constitutionally be exercised ONLY by the Legislative Branch of the government. The power to define or expand 13 the definition of statutory terms:

- 14 1. CANNOT lawfully be exercised by either a judge or a government prosecutor or the Internal Revenue Service.
- 15 2. CANNOT be exercised by making PRESUMPTIONS about what a term means or by enforcing the COMMON
 16 meaning of the term that is already defined in a statute. See Presumption: Chief Weapon for Unlawfully Enlarging
 17 Federal Jurisdiction, Form #05.017:

18 "It is apparent,' this court said in the Bailey Case ( 219 U.S. 239 , 31 S.Ct. 145, 151) 'that a constitutional 19 prohibition cannot be transgressed indirectly by the creation of a statutory presumption any more than it
 20 can be violated by direct enactment. The power to create presumptions is not a means of escape from 21 constitutional restrictions."
 22 [Heiner v. Donnan, 285 U.S. 312 \(1932\)]

23
 24 A presumption is an assumption of fact that the law requires to be made from another fact or group of facts found
 25 or otherwise established in the action. A presumption is not evidence. A presumption is either conclusive or 26 rebuttable. Every rebuttable presumption is either (a) a presumption affecting the burden of producing evidence
 27 or (b) a presumption affecting the burden of proof. Calif.Evid.Code, §600.

28 In all civil actions and proceedings not otherwise provided for by Act of Congress or by the Federal Rules of 29 Evidence, a presumption imposes on the party against whom it is directed the burden of going forward with 30 evidence to rebut or meet the presumption, but does not shift to such party the burden of proof in the sense of the 31 risk of nonpersuasion, which remains throughout the trial upon the party on whom it was originally cast. Federal

- 36 3. Unlawfully and unconstitutionally violates the separation of powers when it IS exercised by a judge or government 37 prosecutor. See Government Conspiracy to Destroy the Separation of Powers, Form #05.023.
- 38 4. Produces the following consequences when it IS exercised by a judge or government prosecutor or administrative 39 agency. The statement below was written by the man who DESIGNED our three branch system of government. He 40 also described in his design how it can be subverted, and corrupt government actors have implemented his 41 techniques for subversion to unlawfully and unconstitutionally expand their power:

42 "When the legislative and executive powers are united in the same person, or in the same body of magistrates,
 43 there can be no liberty; because apprehensions may arise, lest the same monarch or senate should enact 44 tyrannical laws, to execute them in a tyrannical manner.

45 Again, there is no liberty, if the judiciary power be not separated from the legislative and executive. Were it
 46 joined with the legislative, the life and liberty of the subject would be exposed to arbitrary control; for the judge
 47 would be then the legislator. Were it joined to the executive power, the judge might behave with violence and 48 oppression [sound familiar?].

49 There would be an end of everything, were the same man or the same body, whether of the nobles or of the 50 people, to exercise those three powers, that of enacting laws, that of executing the public resolutions, and of 51 trying the causes of individuals."

In what a situation must the poor subject be in those republics! The same body of magistrates are possessed as executors of the laws, of the whole power they have given themselves in quality of legislators. They may plunder the state by their general determinations; and as they have likewise the judiciary power in their hands, every private citizen may be ruined by their particular decisions.

Any judge, prosecutor, or clerk in an administrative agency who tries to EXPAND or ADD to statutory definitions is violating all the above. Likewise, anyone who tries to QUOTE a judicial opinion that adds to a statutory definition is violating the separation of powers, usurping authority, and STEALING your property and rights. It is absolutely POINTLESS and an act of ANARCHY, lawlessness, and a usurpation to try to add to statutory definitions.

The most prevalent means to UNLAWFULLY and UNCONSTITUTIONALLY add to statutory definitions is through the abuse of the words "includes" or "including". That tactic is thoroughly described and rebutted in:

Legal Deception, Propaganda, and Fraud, Form #05.014, Section 15.2

Government falsely accuses sovereignty advocates of practicing anarchy, but THEY, by trying to unlawfully expand statutory definitions through either the abuse of the word "includes" or through PRESUMPTION, are the REAL anarchists. That anarchy is described in Disclaimer, section 4 as follows:

SEDM Disclaimer

Section 4: Meaning of Words

The term "anarchy" implies any one or more of the following, and especially as regards so-called "governments". An important goal of this site it to eliminate all such "anarchy":

1. Are superior in any way to the people they govern UNDER THE LAW.
2. Are not directly accountable to the people or the law. They prohibit the PEOPLE from criminally prosecuting their own crimes, reserving the right to prosecute to their own fellow criminals. Who polices the police? THE CRIMINALS.
3. Enact laws that exempt themselves. This is a violation of the Constitutional requirement for equal protection and equal treatment and constitutes an unconstitutional Title of Nobility in violation of Article 1, Section 9, Clause 8 of the United States Constitution.
4. Only enforce the law against others and NOT themselves, as a way to protect their own criminal activities by persecuting dissidents. This is called "selective enforcement". In the legal field it is also called "professional courtesy". Never kill the goose that lays the STOLEN golden eggs.
5. Break the laws with impunity. This happens most frequently when corrupt people in government engage in "selective enforcement", whereby they refuse to prosecute or interfere with the prosecution of anyone in government. The Department of Justice (D.O.J.) or the District Attorney are the most frequent perpetrators of this type of crime.
6. Are able to choose which laws they want to be subject to, and thus refuse to enforce laws against themselves. The most frequent method for this type of abuse is to assert sovereign, official, or judicial immunity as a defense in order to protect the wrongdoers in government when they are acting outside their delegated authority, or outside what the definitions in the statutes EXPRESSLY allow.
7. Impute to themselves more rights or methods of acquiring rights than the people themselves have. In other words, who are the object of PAGAN IDOL WORSHIP because they possess "supernatural" powers. By "supernatural", we mean that which is superior to the "natural", which is ordinary human beings.
8. Claim and protect their own sovereign immunity, but refuse to recognize the same EQUAL immunity of the people from whom that power was delegated to begin with. Hypocrites.
9. Abuse sovereign immunity to exclude either the government or anyone working in the government from being subject to the laws they pass to regulate everyone ELSE'S behavior. In other words, they can choose WHEN they want to be a statutory "person" who is subject, and when they aren't. Anyone who has this kind of choice will ALWAYS corruptly exclude themselves and include everyone else, and thereby enforce and implement an unconstitutional "Title of Nobility" towards themselves. On this subject, the U.S. Supreme Court has held the following:

"No man in this country [including legislators of the government as a legal person] is so high that he is above the law. No officer of the law may set that law at defiance with impunity. All the officers of the government, from the highest to the lowest, are creatures of the law and are bound to obey it. It is the only supreme power in our system of government, and every man who by accepting office participates in its functions is only the more strongly bound to submit to that supremacy, and to observe the limitations which it imposes upon the exercise of the authority which it gives," 106 U.S., at 220. "Shall it be said... that the courts cannot give remedy when the Citizen has been deprived of his property by force, his estate seized and converted to the use of the government without any lawful authority, without any process of law, and without any compensation, because the president has ordered it and his officers are in possession? If such be the law of this country, it sanctions a tyranny which has no existence in the monarchies of Europe, nor in any other government which has a just claim to well-regulated liberty and the protection of personal rights," 106 U.S., at 220, 221.
[United States v. Lee, 106 U.S. 196, 1 S.Ct. 240 (1882)]

10. Have a monopoly on anything, INCLUDING "protection", and who turn that monopoly into a mechanism to force EVERYONE illegally to be treated as uncompensated public officers in exchange for the "privilege" of being able to even exist or earn a living to support oneself.
11. Can tax and spend any amount or percentage of the people's earnings over the OBJECTIONS of the people.
12. Can print, meaning illegally counterfeit, as much money as they want to fund their criminal enterprise, and thus to be completely free from accountability to the people.
13. Deceive and/or lie to the public with impunity by telling you that you can't trust anything they say, but force YOU to sign everything under penalty of perjury when you want to talk to them. 26 U.S.C. §6065.

5.1.5 You Don't Pay "Taxes" to the IRS: You are instead subsidizing socialism

"Politics is the gentle art of getting votes from the poor, and campaign funds from the rich, by promising to protect each from the other."
 [Oscar Ameringer]

Below is a definition of the word "taxation" by the U.S. Supreme Court that is very enlightening. It succinctly reveals the proper meaning and function of the word "tax" from a legal perspective:

"The power to tax is, therefore, the strongest, the most pervading of all powers of government, reaching directly or indirectly to all classes of the people. It was said by Chief Justice Marshall, in the case of McCulloch v. Md., 4 Wheat. 431, that the power to tax is the power to destroy. A striking instance of the truth of the proposition is seen in the fact that the existing tax of ten per cent, imposed by the United States on the circulation of all other banks than the National Banks, drove out of existence every *state bank of circulation within a year or two after its passage. This power can be readily employed against one class of individuals and in favor of another, so as to ruin the one class and give unlimited wealth and prosperity to the other, if there is no implied limitation of the uses for which the power may be exercised.

To lay, with one hand, the power of the government on the property of the citizen, and with the other to bestow it upon favored individuals to aid private enterprises and build up private fortunes, is none the less a robbery because it is done under the forms of law and is called taxation. This is not legislation. It is a decree under legislative forms.

Nor is it taxation. 'A tax,' says Webster's Dictionary, 'is a rate or sum of money assessed on the person or property of a citizen by government for the use of the nation or State.' 'Taxes are burdens or charges imposed by the Legislature upon persons or property to raise money for public purposes.' Cooley, Const. Lim., 479.

Coulter, J., in Northern Liberties v. St. John's Church, 13 Pa.St., 104 says, very forcibly, 'I think the common mind has everywhere taken in the understanding that taxes are a public imposition, levied by authority of the government for the purposes of carrying on the government in all its machinery and operations—that they are imposed for a public purpose.' See, also Pray v. Northern Liberties, 31 Pa.St., 69; Matter of Mayor of N.Y., 11 Johns., 77; Camden v. Allen, 2 Dutch., 398; Sharpless v. Mayor, supra; Hanson v. Vernon, 27 Ia., 47; Whiting v. Fond du Lac, supra."
 [Loan Association v. Topeka, 20 Wall. 655 (1874)]

Black's Law Dictionary also defines the word "tax" as follows:

"Tax: A charge by the government on the income of an individual, corporation, or trust, as well as the value of an estate or gift. The objective in assessing the tax is to generate revenue to be used for the needs of the public.

A pecuniary [relating to money] burden laid upon individuals or property to support the government, and is a payment exacted by legislative authority. In re Mytinger, D.C.Tex. 31 F.Supp. 977,978,979. Essential characteristics of a tax are that it is NOT A VOLUNTARY PAYMENT OR DONATION, BUT AN ENFORCED CONTRIBUTION, EXACTED PURSUANT TO LEGISLATIVE AUTHORITY. Michigan Employment Sec. Commission v. Patt, 4 Mich.App. 228, 144 N.W.2d. 663, 665. ..."
 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1457]

So in order to be legitimately called a "tax" or "taxation", the money we pay to the government must fit all of the following criteria:

1. The money must be used ONLY for the support of government.
2. The subject of the tax must be "liable", and responsible to pay for the support of government under the force of law.
3. The money must go toward a "public purpose" rather than a "private purpose".
4. The monies paid cannot be described as wealth transfer between two people or classes of people within society

5. The monies paid cannot aid one group of private individuals in society at the expense of another group, because this violates the concept of equal protection of law for all citizens found in section 1 of the Fourteenth Amendment

If the monies demanded by government do not fit all of the above requirements, then they are being used for a “private” purpose and cannot be called “taxes” or “taxation”, according to the Supreme Court. Actions by the government to enforce the payment of any monies that do not meet all the above requirements can therefore only be described as:

1. Theft and robbery by the government in the guise of “taxation”
2. Government by decree rather than by law
3. Extortion under the color of law in violation 18 U.S.C. §872.
4. Tyranny
5. Socialism
6. Mob rule and a tyranny by the “have-nots” against the “haves”
7. 18 U.S.C. §241: Conspiracy against rights. The IRS shares tax return information with states of the union, so that both of them can conspire to deprive you of your property.
8. 18 U.S.C. §242: Deprivation of rights under the color of law. The Fifth Amendment says that people in states of the Union cannot be deprived of their property without due process of law or a court hearing. Yet, the IRS tries to make it appear like they have the authority to just STEAL these people’s property for a fabricated tax debt that they aren’t even legally liable for.
9. 18 U.S.C. §247: Damage to religious property; obstruction of persons in the free exercise of religious beliefs
10. 18 U.S.C. §872: Extortion by officers or employees of the United States.
11. 18 U.S.C. §876: Mailing threatening communications. This includes all the threatening notices regarding levies, liens, and idiotic IRS letters that refuse to justify why government thinks we are “liable”.
12. 18 U.S.C. §880: Receiving the proceeds of extortion. Any money collected from Americans through illegal enforcement actions and for which the contributors are not “liable” under the law is extorted money, and the IRS is in receipt of the proceeds of illegal extortion.
13. 18 U.S.C. §1581: Peonage, obstructing enforcement. IRS is obstructing the proper administration of the tax code. In a society based entirely on the requirement for consent of the governed, the government must respect the choice of those who choose NOT to volunteer to participate in the federal donation program identified under I.R.C., Subtitle A
14. 18 U.S.C. §1583: Enticement into slavery. IRS tries to enlist “nontaxpayers” to rejoin the ranks of other peons who pay taxes they aren’t demonstrably liable for, which amount to slavery.
15. 18 U.S.C. §1589: Forced labor. Being forced to expend one’s personal time responding to frivolous IRS notices and pay taxes on my labor that I am not liable for.

In order to prove that what we pay the IRS under Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A isn’t a “tax” in the legal sense, all we have to show is that any part of the income tax revenues are spent for social welfare or wealth transfer payments. At that point, the monies are being used for “wealth transfer” and the government becomes a thief and a Robinhood, because it is using public money for private purposes. It is committing robbery disguised as taxation if it takes public funds (also called the “General fund”) and puts them into the pocket of private individuals who did not earn them with their labor or compensated services. Understanding these facts helps explain some of the following interesting observations:

- Social Security is called O.A.S.D.I., or Old Age Survivor’s Disability Insurance. It isn’t a “tax”, it is “insurance”, which is why it doesn’t appear anywhere under Title 26, Subtitle A “Income Taxes”. Instead, it appears under 42 U.S.C. Chapter 7 entitled “Social Security”. All insurance must be voluntary so it can’t be called a tax.
- Medicare also isn’t a “tax” because it too goes to private individuals. This is a form of insurance and is found in 42 U.S.C. Chapter 7, Subchapter XVIII rather than in the Internal Revenue Code. Once again, participation is voluntary and cannot be compelled because the funds are used for private purposes.

The best place to go to find out how your tax dollars are spent is the Treasury Financial Management Service (FMS) Website. We compiled a detailed breakdown of all federal receipts and expenditures earlier in section 1.12 using this website, which is located at:

<http://www.fms.treas.gov/fr/index.html>

If you download the latest financial report of the U.S. Government for 2002 and examine page 69, there is an analysis of “Trust Fund Financing”. The trust funds are the individual social programs maintained by the U.S. government, including Social Security (called Old Age Survivors Disability Insurance, or OASDI), Medicare, FICA unemployment, and Railroad

1 Retirement. This analysis shows that there are certain socialist programs which are running a deficit, which means that they
 2 must be financed from the General Fund. The General Fund means the individual income tax, as the report explains. Below
 3 is a summary of the various wealth redistribution programs that are funded from general revenues:

- 4 • Unemployment (FICA): 12 Billion dollar deficit for 2003. This is based on expected economic conditions.
 5 See page 87 of the 2002 report.
- 6 • Medicare Part B: Expenditures come entirely from the general fund. See page 82 of the report.

7 Another good place to look is on expenditures for welfare. You have to dig for these but basically, they are paid by the 8 Department of Health and Human Services (DHHS) under a program called Temporary Assistance for Needy Families
 9 (TANF). The statistics on spending for this program may be found on the web at:

10 <http://www.acf.dhhs.gov/programs/ofis/data/index.html>

11 The total federal expenditures in 2002 for the TANF program was approximately 23 Billion dollars, and all of the money to 12 pay for this welfare program came from the funding for DHHS, which in turn came from the General Fund. The General
 13 Fund, in turn, is paid for mostly out of personal income taxes, which means that your income tax pays for socialism and 14 charity.

15 In conclusion, a significant amount of money contributed under I.R.C., Subtitles A and C DOES go to support wealth transfer,
 16 which means that the income tax cannot be classified as a “tax” according to the Supreme Court. The Treasury Financial 17 Management Service (FMS) report above also reveals that there are massive future shortfalls predicted for Medicare and
 18 Social Security, which means that an increasing amount of individual income tax revenues will have to subsidize these 19 programs over the next several years in order to ensure their viability. The problem is therefore predicted to get MUCH
 20 worse, not better in the future if current trends and rates of expenditures continue.

21 5.1.6 Lawful Subjects of Constitutional Taxation within States of the Union

22 *"Most of the presidential candidates' economic packages involve 'tax breaks,' which is when the government,
 23 amid great fanfare, generously decides not to take quite so much of your income. In other words, these candidates
 24 are trying to buy your votes with your own [stolen] money."
 25 [Dave Barry]*

26 Below is a list of the only constitutional and lawful taxes in the United States of America as derived right from the Constitution
 27 itself. Note that these are the limits defined by the Constitution upon federal taxation only within states of the Union. Federal 28 taxing powers upon those domiciled within the federal zone and outside of states of the Union are not limited in any way by 29 the Constitution and do not need to fall within the table below. This is a point that many people overlook:

31 NOTES:

- 32 1. Direct taxes are on biological people, which are called “natural persons” in the legal field.
- 33 2. Indirect taxes are on legal fictions, such as businesses, corporations, and partnerships.

1 There are no other types of legal or constitutional taxes within states of the Union, and the supreme Court agreed with this in
2 its findings in Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co., 157 U.S. 429, 158 U.S. 601 (1895):

3 And although there have been, from time to time, intimations that there might be some tax which was not a direct
4 tax, nor included under the words 'duties, imports, and excises,' such a tax, for more than 100 years of national
5 existence, has as yet remained undiscovered, notwithstanding the stress of particular circumstances has invited
6 thorough investigation into sources of revenue. [157 U.S. 429, 558]
7 [Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co., 157 U.S. 429, 158 U.S. 601 (1895)]

8 Property taxes can be on tangibles or intangibles. In order to have a situs for taxation (a basis for imposing the tax), tangible
9 property (physical property) must reside within the territorial jurisdiction of the taxing authority, and intangibles (patents,
10 copyrights, receipts, etc) must be subject to choses in action within the territorial jurisdiction of the taxing authority. See 11 Wheeling Steel Corp. v. Fox, 298 U.S. 193 (1936).

12 After reading the above, you might then ask the following, as a person domiciled in a state of the Union and therefore who is 13 protected by the Constitutional limitations on taxation described in this section:

- 14 1. What is the subject of the so-called "income" tax?
- 15 2. In which section, if any, of the Internal Revenue Code (26 U.S.C.) does it create a liability on a particular subject?
- 16 3. If you can't find an answer which meets the constitutional requirements identified above, don't feel alone. Neither can 17 anyone else find a subject of an unapportioned tax which should apply to individuals domiciled in states of the Union
18 and not within any federal enclave, and who are not connected with any licensed or privileged activities.
- 19 4. If the subject of the tax cannot be found in the IRS Code which meets the constitutional requirement for the imposition 20 of a type of tax, how can it be proved anyone is subject to or liable for any so-called "income" tax?

21 "The income tax is, therefore, not a tax on income as such. It is an excise with respect to certain activities and
22 privileges, measured by reference to the income which they produce. The income is not the subject of the tax, it 23 is the basis for determining the amount of tax".
24 [House Congressional Record, March 27, 1943, p. 2580.]

25 The important thing to remember as you try to answer the questions above is that the Internal Revenue Code describes how
26 taxing is to be done both within the federal zone AND within states of the Union and only the states of the Union are subject
27 to the limitations in this section. We know from Article 1, Section 8, Clause 1 of the Constitution, that the only way the 28 Congress can tax within the states of the Union is through a uniform indirect excise or "privilege" tax. Therefore, the only
29 proper "subject of" the I.R.C. within states of the Union is taxable activities, events incidents and occasions. The amount of 30 tax to be paid is measured by "income", but the event of receiving income relating only to foreign commerce, or more
31 specifically importation, is the "activity" that is being taxed. 26 U.S.C. §7001 identifies "foreign commerce" as a privileged 32 activity that must be licensed.

33 TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 72 > Subchapter A > §7001
34 §7001. Collection of foreign items

35 (a) License

36 All persons undertaking as a matter of business or for profit the collection of foreign payments of interest or
37 dividends by means of coupons, checks, or bills of exchange shall obtain a license from the Secretary and
38 shall be subject to such regulations enabling the Government to obtain the information required under 39 subtitle A (relating to income taxes) as the Secretary shall prescribe.

40 (b) Penalty for failure to obtain license

41 For penalty for failure to obtain the license provided for in this section, see section 7231.

42 Foreign commerce is the ONLY activity identified in the Internal Revenue Code that requires a "license" or receipt of a federal 43 privilege and which applies anywhere within states of the Union. We could find no others. There are lots of other types of 44 licenses mentioned within the Internal Revenue Code, but none are authorized by the Constitution to be issued to people in 45 states of the Union OTHER than that above. This was covered in the License Tax Cases, when the Supreme Court ruled:

46 "Thus, Congress having power to regulate commerce with foreign nations, and among the several States, and
47 with the Indian tribes, may, without doubt, provide for granting coasting licenses, licenses to pilots, licenses to
48 trade with the Indians, and any other licenses necessary or proper for the exercise of that great and extensive

power; and the same observation is applicable to every other power of Congress, to the exercise of which the granting of licenses may be incident. All such licenses confer authority, and give rights to the licensee.

But very different considerations apply to the internal commerce or domestic trade of the States. Over this commerce and trade Congress has no power of regulation nor any direct control. This power belongs exclusively to the States. No interference by Congress with the business of citizens transacted within a State is warranted by the Constitution, except such as is strictly incidental to the exercise of powers clearly granted to the legislature. The power to authorize a business within a State is plainly repugnant to the exclusive power of the State over the same subject. It is true that the power of Congress to tax is a very extensive power. It is given in the Constitution, with only one exception and only two qualifications. Congress cannot tax exports, and it must impose direct taxes by the rule of apportionment, and indirect taxes by the rule of uniformity. Thus limited, and thus only, it reaches every subject, and may be exercised at discretion. But, it reaches only existing subjects. Congress cannot authorize a trade or business within a State in order to tax it.”
[License Tax Cases, 72 U.S. 462, 18 L.Ed. 497, 5 Wall. 462, 2 A.F.T.R. 2224 (1866)]

Notice the conspicuous use of the term “trade or business” by the Supreme Court above, way before its use became commonplace in the Internal Revenue Code starting in the early 1900’s. This term is very important, you will find out later. By getting a license, one receives a federal “privilege” and thereby “volunteers” to pay an indirect excise tax relating to foreign commerce. We will expand upon this theme throughout the rest of the chapter in sections 5.2.14, 5.2.18, and 5.1.11 to make this concept clearer in your mind. The reason this must be true is because:

1. Congress cannot tax exports from a state of the Union. See Constitution Article 1, Section 9, Clause 5, which prohibits taxes on exports from states of the Union.
2. Congress cannot tax activities within a state that don’t involve foreign commerce, because the states are Sovereign and their power over exclusively internal taxation is exclusive, which is also called “plenary”.

“It is no longer open to question that the general government, unlike the states, Hammer v. Dagenhart, 247 U.S. 251, 275, 38 S.Ct. 529, 3 A.L.R. 649, Ann.Cas.1918E 724, possesses no inherent power in respect of the internal affairs of the states; and emphatically not with regard to legislation.”
[Carter v. Carter Coal Co., 298 U.S. 238, 56 S.Ct. 855 (1936)]

3. Article 1, Section 8, Clause 3 of the Constitution authorizes the regulation of foreign and interstate commerce, but not INTRAsTate commerce. This is called the “Commerce Clause”.

“And in Railroad Co. v. Husen, 95 U.S. 474, Mr. Justice STRONG, delivering the opinion of the court, said that 'the police power of a state cannot obstruct foreign commerce or interstate commerce beyond the necessity for its exercise; and, under color of it, objects not within its scope cannot be secured at the expense of the protection afforded by the federal constitution.'”
[New Orleans Gas Company v. Louisiana Light Company, 115 U.S. 650 (1885)]

4. Because Congress has the power to regulate foreign and interstate commerce under Article 1, Section 8, Clause 3 of the Constitution, then it can require all those legal “persons” who engage in such regulated and licensed activities to obtain a “license”. Receipt of such a license conveys a “privilege” and constitutes an act of volunteering to pay taxes relating to the regulated activity. In that sense, excise taxes are voluntary and avoidable. Those who don’t want to engage in the licensed activities aren’t subject to the tax. The purpose of paying such legitimate and constitutional taxes is ONLY to pay for the cost of regulating the activity so that the public is not harmed. Regulation cannot be done without taxation and the two always go together.
5. Article 1, Section 8, Clause 1 of the Constitution requires that all indirect taxes must be “uniform”, which means that the same percentage rate must apply throughout all states of the Union. The reason is to promote “equal protection of the laws”.
6. An indirect excise tax is not a tax on “income” per se, but on the earnings in connection with exercise of the privileged activity. The amount of tax is measured by the “income” derived from the activity, which is actually defined as the “profit”.

“The income tax is, therefore, not a tax on income as such. It is an excise tax with respect to certain activities and privileges which is measured by reference to the income which they produce. The income is not the subject of the tax: it is the basis for determining the amount of the tax.”
[Congressional Record from March 27, 1943, p. 2580, Statement by F. Morse Hubbard, former legislative draftsman for the Treasury Department]

7. If Congress attempts to tax commerce within states that is not connected with foreign or interstate commerce, then it is competing with the state and taxing the same object, which the U.S. Supreme Court said it cannot do:

1 “Two governments acting independently of each other cannot exercise the same power for the same object.”
2 [Fox v. The State of Ohio, 46 U.S. 410, 5 Howard 410, 12 L.Ed. 213 (1847)]

3 “Congress is authorized to lay and collect taxes, and to pay the debts, and provide for the common defence and
4 general welfare of the United States. This does not interfere with the power of the States to tax [internally] for
5 the support of their own governments; nor is the exercise of that power by the States [to tax INTERNALLY],
6 an exercise of any portion of the power that is granted to the United States [to tax EXTERNALLY]. In
7 imposing taxes for State purposes, they are not doing what Congress is empowered to do. Congress is 8 not empowered to tax for those purposes which are within the exclusive
9 province of the States. When, then, each government exercises the 10 power of taxation, neither is exercising the power of the other. But,
11 when a State proceeds to regulate commerce with foreign nations, or among the several States, it is exercising
12 the very power that is granted to Congress, [22 U.S. 1, 200] and is doing the very thing which Congress is 13 authorized to do. There is no analogy, then, between the power of taxation and the power of regulating commerce.

16 5.1.7 Direct Taxes Defined<sup>30</sup>

17 When any tax includes all the following elements, it is a direct tax:

- 18 1. Either it places a tax on the whole of something because of ownership and falls on the owner of the thing taxed, or it is
- 19 a tax on a species of property or on a natural person, a tax on the existence of the thing taxed.
- 20 2. The thing or property or person taxed is diminished by the tax.
- 21 3. The tax cannot be shifted. For instance, you are not a corporate manufacturer selling products who can shift the burden
- 22 of the tax to the ultimate consumers by raising the price of the end product.
- 23 4. It is not a tax on consumption, nor a tax on an identified activity, nor a tax on a privilege, nor a tax on the happening of
- 24 an event.

25 Any tax that does not satisfy these elements is not a direct tax and is therefore an indirect tax. Generally, a tax on gross
26 receipts is a direct tax while a tax on net income (profit) is an indirect tax under the Constitution. Consequently, the Supreme 27 Court went too far in the Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co., 157 U.S. 429 (1895) decision, as a tax on the net income of 28 real estate is not a tax on the ownership of the real estate. Income from real estate is the fruit of the invested capital; it is the 29 net. It may be severed from the capital leaving the underlying investment whole. When only income (profit) is taxed, the 30 underlying investment is not diminished. The tax on the income from real estate may be shifted to those who pay the rents.
31 The tax on the income from real estate may not even be payable by the owner of the real estate if there were some kind of 32 management arrangement in place where the owner does not receive the income stream. Nor is it a tax on the existence of 33 the real estate, as the amount of the tax is measured by the degree to which the property is successfully managed. It does not
34 fall on the ownership of the real estate. A successfully managed building may pay a lot of tax while an identical building
35 next door, that is poorly managed, might not pay any tax at all. Clearly the Pollock tax was not levied on the ownership nor 36 the value of the building. Tax in the Pollock Case was an indirect tax and the Supreme Court went too far in linking an 37 inherently indirect income tax with the source of the income. The boundary line between the two being that point where the 38 underlying asset is diminished by the tax. The purpose of the 16th Amendment was to overturn Pollock.

39 The first apportioned direct tax we are aware of was imposed by Congress during the Civil War and is found in Volume 37
40 of the Statutes at Large. Below is a link to that original enactment that you can use to show how the Constitutional requirement
41 for apportionment was implemented the first time it was used:

Statutes at Large, Volume 12, pp. 292-313
<http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/CitesByTopic/DirectTax-12Stat292-313.pdf>

42 The above apportioned direct tax was enacted on August 5, 1861 and repealed following the end of the Civil War by the Act
43 of June 30, 1864, Statutes at Large, Volume 13, Ch. 173, section 173, page 304. The amount was $20 million and 12 Stat
44 294 bottom of the page shows how it was apportioned. The tax was extended once to April 1, 1865, per Statutes at Large,
45 July 1, 1862, Volume 12, Chapter 119, page 489. 12 Stat 297 Section 13 says that the tax is apportioned on all real estate,
46 and 12 Stat. 304 says:

5 The most fascinating and impassioned legal definition of "direct taxes" we have found appears in the Congressional Record
6 and was presented by Congressman Reeves of New York on June 2, 1870. Below is his very lucid definition of "direct
7 taxes", and why the income tax that is mis-enforced by the IRS is not authorized by the Constitution. We have highlighted 8 the important parts to emphasize them:

9           Income tax.

10          REMARKS OF HON. H. A. REEVES, OF NEW YORK,

11          IN THE House OF REPRESENTATIVES,

12          June 2, 1870,

13          On the bill (H.R. No. 2015) to reduce internal taxes,

16          me to vote for the motion of my colleague [Air. MCCARTHY] to strike out the provisions of this bill relating to 17          the income tax. Having on yesterday voted to reduce this tax from five to three per cent., I am unwilling to let that
18          vote stand open to the inference that I approve the principle of such a tax, and merely favor its reduction to a

22          given in the discussion on either side of this question, as, indeed, unhappily seems to be the case with many other
23          questions that come before this House. It relates to the constitutional power of Congress to enact such a law. The 24          fact that it was enacted by a previous Congress, and has continued in force from that time to this, annually
25          extorting vast sums of money from the pockets of "a favored few," whom the caprice of fortune happened to have
26          endowed with a surplus of filthy lucre over and above an arbitrary limit, and with the rare honesty to tell the truth
27          when pressed in the close embrace of the internal revenue's "Black Maria," does not in the least remove this
28          constitutional difficulty, does not confer on the present Congress the smallest modicum of new power, and does
29          not in any degree lessen the duty incumbent on all honest legislators to carefully examine the warrant and
30          measure of the power they are invited to exercise. We have before us in the pending bill provisions for reenacting
31          and enforcing the income tax substantially in the same form and upon the same basis as when it was first created
32          by the fiat of Congress.

36          void of any constitutional authority, it remains just the same now, for the Constitution has not in the interim
37          been "amended" so as to bestow on Congress any new grant of power in respect to taxation. What, then, did
38          and does the Constitution provide touching this vital matter of laying and collecting taxes, this supreme power
39          over the purse of the people, second only in the attributes of delegated authority to that control over the lives
40          of the people which results from the undoubted right to declare war and conclude peace? Does the Constitution
41          authorize Congress to levy a tax on incomes?

42          I maintain that it does not; and I am persuaded that had this question been fairly presented to the Supreme 43          Court of the United States, judicially constituted, it would have been definitely settled in the negative. What 44          says the Constitution upon the subject of taxation? There are but four places in the Constitution, and none in 45          the articles of amendment thereto, where the subject of taxation is treated, namely, clause three of section two
46          of article one; clause one of section eight of article one; clauses four and five of section nine of article one;
47          and clause two of section ten of article one. A careful analysis and comparison of these provisions leaves no
48          doubt on my mind that the existing tax on incomes, which it is proposed to reenact, does not fall within the 49          enumerated or clearly-implied powers of Congress, and is therefore absolutely void. Let us examine these 50          various provisions of the Constitution in the order in which they stand in that instrument.

51          The third clause of section two of the first article reads as follows:

52                   "Representatives and direct taxes shall be apportioned among the several States which 53                   may be included within this Union according to their respective numbers, which shall be 54                   determined by adding to the whole number of free persons, including those bound to 55                   service for a term of years, and excluding Indians not taxed, three fifths of all other 56                   persons."

57          The rest of the clause relates to the mode of taking the census, &c. This is an affirmative and peremptory 58          regulation of the mode of levying direct taxes, and commands that they shall in all cases be apportioned among

1 the States according to population. Section eight, which specifies the particular powers of Congress, the
 2 primary powers from which secondary ones are implied, under the provision that Congress shall have the right
 3 "to make all laws which shall be necessary and proper for carrying into execution the foregoing powers," in 4 its first clause says:

5 "To lay and collect taxes, duties, imposts, and excises; to pay the debts and provide for 6 the common defense and general welfare of the United States; but all duties, imposts,
 7 and excises shall be uniform throughout the United States."

8 This is an explicit limitation as to duties, imposts, and excises, that their operation shall be uniform throughout 9 the country, and the reason that the word "taxes" does not occur in the limitation. as it does in the grant of 10 power to lay and collect, is manifestly because of the distinction already made between direct and indirect
 11 taxes, the former of which had been ordered to be apportioned "among the several States" according to 12 population, while the latter alone were to be made "uniform throughout the United States."

13 Duties are charges laid upon goods exported, imported, or consumed;
 14 imposts are charges laid upon products of industry, and are generally
 15 applied only to commodities when imported into a country; and excises
 16 are charges laid upon franchises or licenses to carry on particular lines
 17 of trade or branches of business. Congress has the clear constitutional 18 right to lay and collect charges of these sorts; but if it does so the law must 19 have a uniform operation in all the States; there must be no exceptional 20 privileges to one section, no favoritism to one class; all sections and all 21 classes must share alike in the burdens as well as the benefits of the 22 General Government. Congress also has, under this same clause, an 23 equally clear right to "lay and collect taxes," meaning by that significant 24 little word, "direct" taxes, for no other are referred to in the Constitution;
 25 but it is bound to see that such taxes, whenever laid and collected, shall 26 be "apportioned among the several States according to their respective 27 numbers."

28 Section nine, which specifically circumscribes, defines, and restrains the powers of Congress, in its fourth
 29 clause ordains :

30 "No capitation or other direct tax shall be laid, unless in proportion to the census or 31 enumeration hereinbefore directed to be taken."

32 This is a repetition, with redoubled emphasis, of the restriction contained in the third clause of the second
 33 section, before referred to, and makes it absolutely certain that no direct tax can be levied by Congress except 34 in pro-portion to population. Clause five of section nine forbids Congress from levying a tax or duty "on any 35 article exported from any State." Clause two of section ten prohibits the State from laying "any imposts or 36 duties on imports or exports, except what may be absolutely necessary for executing its inspection laws;" and 37 also from levying any "duty of tonnage."

38 These are all the provisions of the Constitution in relation to taxation. Do 39 they severally or collectively authorize Congress today a tax on incomes?
 40 What kind of a tax is it ? If a direct tax, within the meaning of the 41 Constitution, it must be apportioned according to population. Is it thus
 42 apportioned? Nobody so pretends. A reference to the last published report of the Commissioner
 43 of Internal Revenue will demonstrate that it was not apportioned according to population. From that suggestive
 44 document it appears that the State of New York paid on account of the income tax for the year 1868 the sum of 45 $10,726,769 21, while the State of Ohio paid for the same period $2,039,588 99. By the census of 1860 New York
 46 had a population of 3,880,735, while Ohio had a population of 2,339,511.

47 Assuming that this income tax had been apportioned according to population, and that the amount collected from 48 the people of Ohio was in just accordance with the unit of apportionment, whatever that might be, then the amount
 49 levied upon the people of New York should have been less than three and a half millions instead of almost ten and
 50 three quarters millions ; or, to take the reverse of the hypothesis, if the amount collected from the people of New 51 York was according to the unit of measurement, Ohio ought to have paid nearly six and a half millions instead of a little over two millions. Similar analogies, or antitheses rather, yet more striking than that afforded by this parallel between New York and Ohio, might be drawn from the same full repertory of official testimony to the inequality, the injustice, and the utter incompatibility of this tax with the provision of the Constitution that all direct taxes shall be according to numbers; but it would be useless. No one contends that the income tax is apportioned according to numbers, and no proofs are needed to show that it is not so apportioned. It only remains to consider whether it is a direct tax within the meaning of the Constitution.

To the determination of such a question no surer test can be applied than that which is supplied by the Constitution itself, to wit: can the tax be apportioned among the several States according to numbers? I maintain that it can and ought to be so apportioned, if laid at all; and this appears to be clear from a consideration of the important and most suggestive words among the several States," in connection with and direct sequence to the words " shall be apportioned." These words are evidently inseparable, and in any complete view of the question must be taken together. Taking them together, they can be construed in no other sense than as forming the substantive proposition of the sentence, which is qualified as a whole, and not in its separate parts, by the subsequent words "according to their respective numbers." It follows, therefore, that any tax which is susceptible of apportionment, not among individual citizens of the States, but among the States themselves, in just proportion to their respective population, is a direct tax, and must be so apportioned as the Constitution directs.

Is the income tax of that character? The only ground for doubt is the element of uncertainty as to the amount which such a tax may yield. Because the net income of the country cannot be determined in advance, and because we could not tell beforehand what the tax arbitrarily proposed to be assessed against that income would amount to, it seems to have been assumed that the tax could not be apportioned according to population. If the Constitution provided for an apportionment among individuals this would be true, and would constitute a valid defense of the tax against any such objection; but we have seen that the apportionment must be "among the several States," in the doing of which there would be found no impossibility and no serious difficulty. All the data requisite for a fair, safe, and correct estimate of the income reasonably certain to accrue from the active business and the invested wealth of the country are at hand, and are sufficient to fix the aggregate revenue to be derived from that source. This done, the apportionment becomes simply a matter of arithmetic, of easy calculation.

If the maximum sum of $25,000,000 were to be raised under the head of a tax on incomes the proportion which the population of any State bears to the whole population fixes the amount to be collected from that State. Then, if we remit the collection to the States, abolishing the Federal machinery now in use, each State will collect its share in whatever mode it may prefer, and pay over to the Federal Treasury the whole sum assessed upon it, free from any deductions on account of expense of collection—certainly a great saving over the present system, which costs nearly or quite twenty-five per cent. This would be a truly equal and equitable, a truly effective and economical method of direct taxation for Federal purposes; it would comply strictly with the constitutional requirement ; it would exactly accord with the spirit and intent of the framers of that instrument, whose great object was to devise a scheme of Government the operation of which should, above every other attribute, bear equally upon all the people of all the States.

Taxation, or the power of compelling the people to part with some of their possessions for the purpose of being protected in the enjoyment of the remainder, was a subject which they had pondered deeply and had mastered in all its comprehensive extent and bearing. All the ordinary protection which organized society needs being afforded by the existing State governments, they had only to provide means for enabling the Federal agency of the States to perform its intended functions. This they did in the clauses of the Constitution which I have cited. In my judgment no candid mind can examine those provisions and compare them with the whole scope and body of the instrument without coming to the conclusion that the power conferred on Congress to lay and collect taxes is both expressly and impliedly limited to " direct" taxes ; that, in brief, the word tax, wherever it occurs in the Constitution, means a "direct" tax, and that, as equality (the grand, distinguishing element of the Constitution) could only be maintained by dividing the burdens it imposes among all the States according to population, it was appointed so to be done in terms as explicit as could well be used.

No one then dreamed of spreading a network of Federal tax-gatherers over the land more numerous and more wasting than the "swarm" which the colonists complained had been sent from Great Britain to "harass the people and eat out their substance ;" it was never contemplated that Congress should lay its grasping hands on the earnings of business or the gains of capital for any purpose whatever, and certainly nobody dared imagine that, should such a bold stretch of Federal authority ever be exercised, it would seek to execute itself without regard to the clear directions of the very instrument on which alone it could rely for its warrant.

I stop not now to discuss the flagrant injustice of a tax on the earnings of business, be they more or less ; the inequality of a tax on the gains of accumulated capital which, how-ever fair and just in theory, is incapable of being reduced to practical effect without inflicting gross wrongs on individuals; the inquisitorial, odious, and tyrannical character of an income tax, however apportioned and levied ; nor any of the other grave objections which have been so well presented and illustrated by others. For me it is enough to be convinced that such a tax is at variance with the spirit and letter of the Constitution. That view of the question once fixed in my mind, I am concluded from any incidental consideration of advantages or disadvantages that may attend the proposed measure. But one course lies before me, and that leads straight to the vote I shall cast.

In this connection I only need to glance at another aspect of the question confirmatory of the one I have already taken and susceptible of being put into the compact and concise form of a syllogism whose cogency countervails the necessity for further argument.

Income is derived from two sources, earnings and invested capital. In either case, when considered as a basis for taxation, it is inseparably associated with, and in greater or less part is made up from the rents, gains, or profits of land. A tax on incomes is therefore, in substance and in fact, a tax on land. There may be, as we know there are, individuals who do not own a foot of land, and a tax on whose income would in no sense involve the idea of taxing lands; but this can be said of a few only out of the mass of those whose incomes are subject to tax; indeed a large, if not the largest, part of the taxed incomes in this country comes from the rents, gains, or profits of land. Now, it has been distinctly and repeatedly held that a tax on lands is a "direct" tax such as the Constitution requires to be apportioned "among the several States," as much so as the capitation tax itself. Hence, the income tax, involving as it inevitably does the principle of taxing lands, is a "direct" tax. Being a direct tax, it must be apportioned as the Constitution commands. But it is not so apportioned. Therefore the tax is unconstitutional, and should be immediately abrogated.

I know, Mr. Speaker, it may appear presumptuous for one little versed in the subtleties of dialectics, much less in the maxims and canons of constitutional interpretation, to essay an argument of this kind, based solely upon a construction of the Constitution. But I am profoundly impressed with the belief that the great men who framed our Constitution meant to make it so plain that even the most unlettered need not err as to its meaning, and that one of its cardinal merits is this very fact that they did succeed in imbedding the immortal principles of civil and religious liberty, which filled their own minds, in language at once so simple, so perspicuous, so nervous, and so strong as could neither be washed away by sophistry nor broken down by the weight of glosses and critical emendations.

It is in the light of this plain, common sense understanding of the Constitution that I have attempted to explore its meaning with respect to the question of taxation. I also know that it is unfashionable and unusual in this revolutionary period to even refer to a document whose precepts, once sacred, have now become almost obsolete; that he who avows devotion to the fundamental source of all power in a free government, the will of the people embodied in a written constitution, is too apt to be stigmatized as obstructive, unprogressive, old-fogyish, or by still harsher terms ; that partisan malevolence even sees " disloyalty" in a text and "treason" in a paragraph from the grand gospel of our American freedom.

Be it so. I gladly accept the odium and proudly wear the brand which attaches to the unwavering few who still uplift the banner of "the Constitution as it was;" the integrity of the Union which our fathers established, and which, administered in the spirit of its authors, for seventy years poured manifold blessings upon all the people; the sovereignty of the States as the creators of the new political system then established, which, allowed to distribute harmoniously its beneficent influences, expanded the few and feeble members of the Confederacy into the august proportions of a mighty republic of republics; the supremacy and undivided rule of the superior white race-in fine, all the glorious truths of the earlier and purer days of American democracy, before "new lights" had risen to shed their baleful glare over a land till then united, free, and happy; before sectional passions had been organized to do their devil's work of alienation and distrust; before fanaticism and folly had combined to rend asunder the silken cords of fraternal affection and mutual esteem which held us together with bands infinitely stronger than "hooks of steel."

In those days debt and taxation, bonds and bondholders, were figments of the imagination, not the tremendous realities which now confront us ; in those days peace, real peace, prosperity, real prosperity, liberty, real liberty, sat triply throned in our midst and held their scepter of bounty and blessing over thirty million freemen. If to wish those halcyon days back again, with all the "sin and shame" which a maudlin sentimentality affected to find in their train, be doughfacism or demagogery or anything most obnoxious to "loyal" sensibilities, I glory to be so denounced.

To our knowledge, the question of whether or not a tax on a man's wage (not "wage" as defined in the Internal Revenue Code, 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(a)-3(a), but "wage" as defined in its common or more general sense) or salary is an indirect tax or a direct tax has never been before the Supreme Court, except in the case of Evans v. Gore, 253 U.S. 245 (1920). Evans v. Gore was a 1920 case about a federal judge who was having his government salary diminished by an income tax and the Supreme Court ruled the tax was unconstitutional. But the question in this case related to a constitutional provision affecting only federal judges. Since most of us reading this book are not federal judges or public officers in the government, Evans v. Gore does not affect us. But the Court has discussed the issue three times in its dicta.

The first time was in the Hylton v. United States, 3 U.S. 171 (1796), where they quoted with approval Adam Smith's book entitled Wealth of Nations in stating that a tax on a man's revenue is a direct tax. The second time was in the Springer v. United States, 102 U.S. 586 (1881), where Springer failed to put this question directly in front of the court. It is unfortunate that Springer made numerous strategic errors in prosecuting his case. The third time was in Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co., 157 U.S. 529 (1895), where the court said, quoting with approval Springer:

"While this language is broad enough to cover interest as well as the professional earnings, the case would have been more significant as a precedent if the distinction had been brought out in the report and commented on in arriving at judgment, for a tax on professional receipts might be treated as an excise or duty, and therefore indirect, when a tax on the income of personalty might be held to be direct."

The reality of a tax on a man's labor was very well described by Senator Bailey of Texas as he debated the income tax amendment [16th Amendment]. Senator Bailey had one of the more vocal voices in this debate. As a Democrat he was an avid supporter of the 16th Amendment. Here is his statement:

"I believe in earning an income by personal service every man consumes a part of his principal, and that fact ought always to be taken into consideration. The man who has his fortune invested in securities may find in a hundred years, if he spent his income, that the fortune still intact, but the lawyer or the physician or the man engaged in other personal employment is spending his principal in earning his income. That fact ought under every just system of income taxation to be recognized and provided against."

A tax on the labor of a man, whether or not he is a construction worker or a rocket scientist, is a tax on the man. It is a species of a capitation tax. Adam Smith described it as a capitation tax and a direct tax. It diminishes the man as the man consumes part of his capital in earning his wage or salary. It is a direct tax. Such a tax in the post 16th Amendment era must be apportioned among the 50 states of the Union before it can be collected from those who, absent a privilege, work and live within the several States of the Union.

A tax on a privilege, although measured by income, is not an income tax either. It is an excise tax. The tax of the Spreckels Sugar Case from the Spanish-American War and the Corporate Excise Tax of 1909 are such taxes. The 16th Amendment provides no authority for such a tax. These taxes are levied under the authority of the original Constitution, not the 16th Amendment.

An income tax within the meaning of the 16th Amendment is a tax on net income (profit). It is not necessarily a tax on a privilege nor is it necessarily a tax on a source. There are many species of income taxes. An income tax can be direct or it can be indirect. It would be a whole lot less confusing if we would stop calling a gross receipts tax an income tax. It is not, as the tax does not fall on income, but instead falls on the source of the income. Any tax that falls on the source of income is a direct tax.

The table below summarizes the types of income taxes found within the United States in relation to the chronology associated with both the 16th Amendment and the Pollock v. Farmers' Loan and Trust case so as to make the meanings of "Direct tax" and "Indirect tax" perfectly clear:

5.1.8 The Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A is an excise tax

The supreme Court has ruled several times that an "income tax" is, and always has been, an indirect or excise tax. With or without the Sixteenth Amendment, this HAS ALWAYS been the case. Because direct taxes are taxes on natural persons (biological people) and property, then indirect taxes are taxes on other than real people. Therefore, the income tax can't, by definition, apply to you and me as a person.

Excise taxes are taxes on privileges granted by the government ONLY to artificial entities other than natural persons, such as corporations, partnerships. Public officers of the U.S. government in receipt of the federal privileges can also be "subject to" subtitle A income/excise taxes but only if they VOLUNTEER because there is no statute making them liable. Likewise, these same public officers are the main ONLY persons defined in Subtitle C (Employment Taxes) of the Internal Revenue Code as "employees". Excise taxes are also commonly referred to in legal circles as "privilege taxes". Here is the definition of "excise tax" from Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, on page 563:

excise tax: A tax imposed on the performance of an act, the engaging in an occupation, or the enjoyment of a privilege. Rapa v. Haines, Ohio Comm.Pl., 101 N.E.2d. 733, 735. A tax on the manufacture, sale, or use of goods or on the carrying on of an occupation or activity, or a tax on the transfer of property. In current usage the term has been extended to include various license fees and practically every internal revenue tax except the income tax (e.g. federal alcohol and tobacco excise taxes, I.R.C. §5001 et seq.) [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 563]*

Did you notice the phrase: "In current usage the term has been extended to include various license fees and practically every internal revenue tax EXCEPT THE INCOME TAX." Well then we should be asking ourselves WHAT KIND OF TAX IS THE INCOME TAX from among the five constitutional taxes listed in table 5-1? You can't tell by reading the legal dictionary, and this is no accident, friends. They are trying to hide the truth!

Furthermore, that last part of the definition from above "or a tax on the transfer of property" is an embellishment and a self-serving distortion of the definition of "excise" by our dishonest government that was not part of the original Constitution, or any supreme court ruling before about 1900. The addition of that phrase is where most courts think they get their authority to impose income taxes on Americans domiciled in states of the Union, and it was not part of the intent of the founding

1 fathers, but is an insidious addition by the unethical legal profession and politicians to illegally extend the jurisdiction of the
2 federal government to impose income taxes against Americans in the states of the Union. We cover this subject in
3 excruciating detail in section 6.12.4 entitled “Judicial Conspiracy to Protect the Income Tax: The Changing Definition of 4 ‘Direct, Indirect, and Excise Taxes’”. To pique your interest at this point, below is the definition of “excises” from Bouvier’s
5 Law Dictionary, Revised Sixth Edition, 1856, which was the law dictionary used by the U.S. supreme Court back in 1856:

6 EXCISES. This word is used to signify an inland imposition, paid sometimes upon the consumption of the 7 commodity, and frequently upon the retail sale. 1 Bl. Com. 318; 1 Tuck. Bl. Com. Appx. 341; Story, Const. Sec.
8 950.
9 [Bouvier’s Law Dictionary, Revised Sixth Edition, 1856]

10 Do you see “transfer of property” anywhere here? You will note that the definition from Bouvier’s Law dictionary would,
11 on the surface, appear to create the impression that 26 U.S.C. Subtitle A income taxes are NOT excise taxes, but this is not
12 true because as you will find out next, even the Congressional Research Service calls income taxes indirect excise taxes.

13 As you will learn by reading the following:

14 . . .the U.S. Congress calls the income tax an indirect excise tax. To make things even more confusing, the IRS contends that 15 the Sixteenth Amendment authorizes a direct, unapportioned tax, as ruled by the circuit courts.

The first thing you notice about the table above is that the IRS definition of income taxes as being direct taxes relies exclusively on Circuit court rulings but completely ignores and overrides the rulings of the Supreme Court on this subject! However, the IRS' own Internal Revenue Manual says the following about this matter:

Internal Revenue Manual (I.R.M.), Section 4.10.7.2.9.8 (05/14/99)

1 "Decisions made at various levels of the court system are considered to be interpretations of tax laws and may be used by either examiners or taxpayers to support a position.

2. Certain court cases lend more weight to a position than others. A case decided by the U.S. Supreme Court becomes the law of the land and takes precedence over decisions of lower courts. The Internal Revenue Service must follow Supreme Court decisions. For examiners, Supreme Court decisions have the same weight as the Code.

3. Decisions made by lower courts, such as Tax Court, District Courts, or Claims Court, are binding on the Service only for the particular taxpayer and the years litigated. Adverse decisions of lower courts do not require the Service to alter its position for other taxpayers."

What this means is that the IRS is obligated to quote the Supreme Court in all cases and ignore the lower courts in determining general tax liabilities of all Americans, and especially where there is a conflict between the two. The Supreme Court is the only court whose rulings can universally apply to all "taxpayers" (which incidentally doesn't necessarily mean all Americans, as you will find out later in section 5.3.1). All other rulings of lower courts apply only to specific cases and not generally to all Americans. Therefore, we must conclude that the Congressional and Supreme Court views are to take precedent and that the income tax, when it is an enforced tax, is an indirect excise tax. The IRS pushes deliberate misinformation on this subject only because it benefits them financially to do so. This amounts to a clear conflict of interest, and a violation of their own IRM. Now if the IRS and the Congress, who are in two different branches of the same federal government can't even agree on what the income tax is, then what are us Americans supposed to think? Don't you think this creates enough confusion in the minds of law abiding Americans such that the Internal Revenue Code or at least the enforcement of it, ought to be declared "void for vagueness" as we point out later in section 5.10? We do! This seeming contradiction also provides compelling evidence of the existence of a "judicial conspiracy to protect the income tax" at the circuit court level which we thoroughly explain later in section 6.6. Here is what one federal court said on this subject:

"Lower court owes deference to higher court and ordinarily has no authority to reject doctrine developed by higher court."

[United States Ex. Rel. Shore v. O'Leary, 833 F.2d. 663 (7th Cir. 1987)]

To conclude our in-depth investigation, here is our definition of what kind of "taxes" Subtitles A and C income taxes are:

If 26 U.S.C. Subtitle A Income Taxes are ENFORCED against artificial entities like "persons" (in the legal sense, which aren't the same as "natural born persons") through distraint (penalties, interest, etc), then they are indirect excise taxes.

Below are just a few citations from U.S. supreme Court Rulings over the years that conclusively demonstrate that income taxes imposed through FORCE or DISTRAINT, are always excise taxes made on privileges, and that DIRECT TAXES on individuals rather than states. The target of the enforcement can only be those artificial entities that have elected or volunteered to engage in privileged taxable activities such as foreign commerce or a "trade or business".

"Nothing can be clearer than that what the constitution intended to guard against was the exercise by the general government of the power of directly taxing persons and property within any state through a majority made up from the other states. It is true that the effect of requiring direct taxes to be apportioned among the states in proportion to their population is necessarily that the amount of taxes on the individual [157 U.S. 429, 583] taxpayer in a state having the taxable subject-matter to a larger extent in proportion to its population than another state has, would be less than in such other state; but this inequality must be held to have been contemplated, and was manifestly designed to operate to restrain the exercise of the power of direct taxation to extraordinary emergencies, and to prevent an attack upon accumulated property by mere force of numbers. "

"Here I close my opinion. I could not say less in view of questions of such gravity that they go down to the very foundations of the government. If the provisions of the Constitution can be set aside by an act of Congress, where is the course of usurpation to end?"

The present assault upon capital is but the beginning. It will be but the stepping stone to others larger and more sweeping, until our political contest will become war of the poor against the rich; a war of growing intensity and bitterness."

[Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co., 157 U.S. 429, 158 U.S. 601 (1895).]

"[Excise taxes are]...taxes laid upon the manufacture, sale, or consumption of commodities within the country, upon licenses to pursue occupations, and upon corporate privileges."

[Flint v. Stone Tracy Co., 220 U.S. 107 (1911)]

...Moreover in addition the Conclusion reached in the Pollock Case did not in any degree involve holding that income taxes generically and necessarily came within the class of direct taxes on property, but on the contrary recognized the fact that taxation on income was in its nature an excise entitled to be enforced as such unless and until it was concluded that to enforce it would amount to accomplishing the result which the requirement as to apportionment of direct taxation was adopted to prevent, in which case the duty would arise to disregard form and consider substance alone and hence subject the tax to the regulation as to apportionment which otherwise as an excise would not apply to it.

...the Amendment demonstrates that no such purpose was intended and on the contrary shows that it was drawn with the object of maintaining the limitations of the Constitution and harmonizing their operation."

...the [16th] Amendment contains nothing repudiating or challenging the ruling in the Pollock Case that the word direct had a broader significance since it embraced also taxes levied directly on personal property because of its ownership, and therefore the Amendment at least impliedly makes such wider significance a part of the Constitution -- a condition which clearly demonstrates that the purpose was not to change the existing interpretation except to the extent necessary to accomplish the result intended, that is, the prevention of the resort to the sources from which a taxed income was derived in order to cause a direct tax on the income to be a direct tax on the source itself and thereby to take an income tax out of the class of excises, duties and imposts and place it in the class of direct taxes...

*Indeed in the light of the history which we have given and of the decision is the Pollock Case and the ground upon which the ruling in that case was based, there is no escape from the Conclusion that the Amendment was drawn for the purpose of doing away for the future with the principle upon which the Pollock Case was decided, that is, of determining whether a tax on income was direct not by a consideration of the burden placed on the taxed income upon which it directly operated, but by taking into view the burden which resulted on the property

1 from which the income was derived, since in express terms the Amendment provides that income taxes, from
 2 whatever source the income may be derived, shall not be subject to the regulation of apportionment..."
 3 [Brushaber v. Union Pacific Railroad Co., 240 U.S. 1 (1916)]

 5 "[The 16h Amendment]...prohibited the ... power of income taxation possessed by Congress from the beginning
 6 from being taken out of the category of indirect taxation to which it inherently belonged..."
 7 [Stanton v. Baltic Mining Co., 240 U.S. 103 (1916)]

 9 "After further consideration, we adhere to that view and accordingly hold that the Sixteenth Amendment does not 10 authorize or support the tax in question. " [A direct tax on salary income of a federal judge]
 11 [Evans v. Gore, 253 U.S. 245 (1920)]

12
 13 The Sixteenth Amendment must be construed in connection with the taxing clauses of the original Constitution
 14 *and the effect attributed to them before the amendment was adopted. In Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co.,*
 15 158 U.S. 601, 15 Sup.Ct. 912, under the Act of August 27, 1894 (28 Stat. 509, 553, c. 349, 27), it was held that
 16 taxes upon rents and profits of real estate and upon returns from investments of personal property were in effect
 17 direct taxes upon the property from which such income arose, imposed by reason of ownership; and that Congress
 18 could not impose such taxes without apportioning them among the states according to population, as required by 19 article 1, 2, cl. 3, and section 9, cl. 4, of the original Constitution.

20 Afterwards, and evidently in recognition of the limitation upon the taxing power of Congress thus determined, the 21 Sixteenth Amendment was adopted, in words lucidly expressing the object to be accomplished:

22 'The Congress shall have power to lay and collect taxes on incomes, from whatever source derived, without
 23 apportionment among [252 U.S. 189, 206] the several states, and without regard to any census or enumeration.'

24 As repeatedly held, this did not extend the taxing power to new subjects, but merely removed the necessity which
 25 *otherwise might exist for an apportionment among the states of taxes laid on income. *Brushaber v. Union Pacific
 26 *R. R. Co., 240 U.S. 1, 17-19, 36 Sup.Ct. 236, Ann. Cas. 1917B, 713, L.R.A. 1917D, 414; *Stanton v. Baltic Mining
 27 *Co., 240 U.S. 103, 112 et seq., 36 Sup.Ct. 278; Peck & Co. v. Lowe, 247 U.S. 165, 172, 173 S., 38 Sup.Ct. 432.*

28 A proper regard for its genesis, as well as its very clear language, requires also that this amendment shall not be
 29 extended by loose construction, so as to repeal or modify, except as applied to income, those provisions of the 30 Constitution that require an apportionment according to population for direct taxes upon property, real and 31 personal. This limitation still has an appropriate and important function, and is not to be overridden by Congress
 32 or disregarded by the courts.

34 *After examining dictionaries in common use (Bouv. L. D.; Standard Dict.; Webster's Internat. Dict.; *Century 35 Dict.), we find little to add to the succinct definition adopted in two cases arising under the Corporation Tax Act
 36 *of 1909 (Stratton's Independence v. Howbert, 231 U.S. 399, 415, 34 S.Sup.Ct. 136, 140 [58 L.Ed. 285]; *Doyle 37 *v. Mitchell Bros. Co., 247 U.S. 179, 185, 38 S.Sup.Ct. 467, 469 [62 L.Ed. 1054]). 'Income may be defined as the 38 gain derived from capital, from labor, or from both combined,' provided it be understood to include profit
 39 gained through a sale or conversion of capital assets, to which it was applied in the Doyle Case, 247 U.S. 183,
 40 185, 38 S.Sup.Ct. 467, 469 (62 L.Ed. 1054).

41 Brief as it is, it indicates the characteristic and distinguishing attribute of income essential for a correct solution
 42 of the present controversy. The government, although basing its argument upon the definition as quoted, placed
 43 chief emphasis upon the word 'gain,' which was extended to include a variety of meanings; while the significance
 44 of the next three words was either overlooked or misconceived. 'Derived-from- capital'; 'the gain-derived-from-
 45 capital,' etc. Here we have the essential matter: not a gain accruing to capital; not a growth or increment of value
 46 in the investment; but a gain, a profit, something of exchangeable value, proceeding from the property, severed
 47 from the capital, however invested or employed, and coming in, being 'derived'-that is, received or drawn by the 48 recipient (the taxpayer) for his separate use, benefit and disposal- that is income derived from property. Nothing
 49 else answers the description.

50 [...]

51 Thus, from every point of view we are brought irresistibly to the conclusion that neither under the Sixteenth
 52 Amendment nor otherwise has Congress power to tax without apportionment a true stock dividend made lawfully

1                   and in good faith, or the accumulated profits behind it, as income of the stockholder. The Revenue Act of 1916,
2                   in so far as it imposes a tax upon the stockholder because of such dividend, contravenes the provisions of article
3                   1, 2, cl. 3, and article 1, 9, cl. 4, of the Constitution, and to this extent is invalid, notwithstanding the Sixteenth
4                   Amendment.”
5                   [Eisner v. Macomber, 252 U.S. 189 (1920)]

6 If you would like a more thorough treatment of this subject, we refer you to section 6.9.4 et seq. We don't have the space to 7 repeat ourselves here, especially because the treatment is so much more thorough in that section.

8 5.1.9 What type of “Tax” Are You Paying the IRS--Direct or Indirect?

9 There are still only two types of taxes allowed under the Constitution, direct and indirect. Here, as they say, is the sixty-four 10 dollar question. When you file IRS Form 1040, aside from whether or not it's the correct form for an American working 11 outside the federal zone to use, you're certainly not paying an indirect excise tax for the privilege of conducting your private
12 profession, are you? Wouldn't your employer be paying that instead of you?

13 Aren't you in fact paying an unapportioned direct tax based upon the amount of money you receive each year, according to 14 the tax tables? But that's not an indirect tax based upon an excise taxable activity identified under the Constitution, is it?
15 After all, even the 16th Amendment states:

16                   “.. a tax on income..from whatever source derived...”

17 doesn't it? According to the Supreme Court in the case of Pollock v. Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, 157 U.S. 429, 158
18 U.S. 601 (1895) , the money you receive in exchange for your labor is your personal property and cannot be directly taxed.
19 They said it again earlier in 1825 as well:

20                   “Every man has a natural right to the fruits of his own labor, is generally admitted; and no other person can 21                   rightfully deprive him of those fruits, and appropriate them against his will...”
22                   [The Antelope, 23 U.S. 66, 10 Wheat 66, 6 L.Ed. 268 (1825)]

23 Maybe your State is sending you a bill each year for your share of your State's share of a constitutionally apportioned direct 24 tax? They aren't? So what are you paying?

25 Aren't you in fact paying a direct tax that has not been apportioned? It certainly looks that way, doesn't it? How does the 26 IRS get away with this? Why don't the federal judges speak up? Is it possible that the high officials of the IRS have been so
27 busy trying to convict everyone who objects to their gross violation of the Constitution that they haven't had time to read the 28 Brushaber case and other still standing Supreme Court Decisions? Or could they all be victims of outcome based education
29 and can't understand these court decisions? Or do you think that perhaps the current and former Secretaries of the Treasury
30 and Commissioners of Internal Revenue have read these decisions and just ignore them--and hope you won't notice, or at 31 least not object if you do?

32 Amazingly, the truth is that the IRS has never rebutted the Brushaber or Stanton decisions or any subsequent decisions of the 33 Supreme Court that declared income taxes to be indirect excise taxes, either. They also don't dare deal with the issue in any 34 of their propaganda publications such as the following:

35 Rebutted Version of the IRS “The Truth About Frivolous Tax Arguments”, Family Guardian Fellowship
36 http://famguardian.org/PublishedAuthors/Govt/IRS/friv\_tax\_rebuts.pdf

37 Instead, in trying to sustain the income tax, the IRS has completely ignored these decisions and only quoted from District and
38 Circuit court cases that said what they wanted and ignored the rulings of the Supreme Court, in direct violation of their own
39 Internal Revenue Manual, section 4.10.7.2.9.8 and in contradiction to established precedent of the Supreme Court!<sup>32</sup>

40 The founding fathers understood the distinction between direct and indirect taxes. Here is what they said in the Federalist
41 Papers that were the foundation of our Constitution. At the writing of these papers, the Congress had already ratified the 42 Constitution and now ratification was put for vote before the American people. The Papers were written to encourage 43 ratification of the new United States Constitution by the American people to replace the Articles of Confederation. The

<sup>32</sup> See Internal Revenue Manual (I.R.M.), Section 4.10.7.2.9.8 for the evidence.

Papers convey very simply and exactly what the authors, Alexander Hamilton, James Madison, and John Jay explained to the American people about the meaning and content of the constitution for the united States of America:

Federalist Paper #15, 15 FP § 6:

"The existing Confederation's great and fundamental defect is the principle of LEGISLATION for STATES in their COLLECTIVE CAPACITIES rather than for the INDIVIDUALS living in the States. Although this principle does not apply to all the powers delegated to the Union, it pervades those on which the effectiveness of the rest depends. Except for the rule of apportionment, the United States has indefinite discretion to requisition men and money. But it has no authority to raise either directly from individual citizens of America." [Emph added]

So what are we missing here? How can the IRS legally enforce a direct unapportioned tax upon people in states of the Union? The answer is that they are the tax collection agency exclusively and only for the municipal government of the District of Columbia and they have no authority to operate in states of the Union. Treasury Order 150-02, in fact, reveals that the ONLY remaining Internal Revenue District that they can operate within is the District of Columbia. They are responsible for administering a system of excise taxation that is perfectly constitutional, because all of the taxable subjects maintain a domicile within the District of Columbia and not within states of the Union under 26 U.S.C. §911(d)(3). Somewhere along the way, you gave them permission to treat you as a person whose legal identity actually "resides" in the District of Columbia. See 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(39), which says effectively that if you file a form 1040, which is only authorized to be used by "citizens and residents of the United States", then you are treated as though you have a domicile in the District of Columbia by the federal courts. 26 U.S.C. §7408(d) contains the same provisions. In effect, you helped the IRS kidnap your legal identity and move it to the District of Columbia and thereby put you under the exclusive jurisdiction of the federal courts. If the IRS had told you the WHOLE truth in their publications, which is that you are neither a "citizen" nor a "resident" under any federal law and that the "United States" is defined as the District of Columbia in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10), then you never would have filed the wrong form, the 1040, to begin with. Receipt of this form by the IRS provided court-admissible evidence under penalty of perjury that you are the proper subject of an excise tax upon earnings of those holding "public office" within the District of Columbia. This condition or activity, by the way, is called a "trade or business" within the I.R.C., which is a "word of art" that means "public office".

If you submitted an IRS Form W-4 to a private employer outside of federal territorial jurisdiction, then you announced to the IRS that you are a federal "employee" domiciled in the District of Columbia under 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(c)-1 who is engaged in a taxable activity called a "trade or business". Note that the upper left corner of the W-4 says "EMPLOYEE Withholding Allowance Certificate". The EMPLOYEE is YOU, friends, and its' not the "employee" you think it is! Now do you know why they call it "the code"? It's encrypted and you have to decrypt it by looking up all the definitions. Do you think they are going to make it convenient to stop paying extortion money to them? Does the mafia do what you tell them to? By voluntarily signing that W-4 under penalty of perjury, you also consented to treat all of your earnings as "gross income" under the Internal Revenue Code.

Title 26
CHAPTER I
SUBCHAPTER C
PART 31
Subpart E
Sec. 31.3402(p)-1 Voluntary withholding agreements.

(a) In general. An employee and his employer may enter into an agreement under section 3402(b) to provide for the withholding of income tax upon payments of amounts described in paragraph (b)(1) of Sec. 31.3401(a)-3, made after December 31, 1970. An agreement may be entered into under this section only with respect to amounts which are includible in the gross income of the employee under section 61, and must be applicable to all such amounts paid by the employer to the employee. The amount to be withheld pursuant to an agreement under section 3402(p) shall be determined under the rules contained in section 3402 and the regulations thereunder. (b) Form and duration of agreement. (1)(i) Except as provided in subdivision (ii) of this subparagraph, an employee who desires to enter into an agreement under section 3402(p) shall furnish his employer with Form W-4 (withholding exemption certificate) executed in accordance with the provisions of section 3402(f) and the regulations thereunder. The furnishing of such Form W-4 shall constitute a request for withholding.

So when you filed that dastardly W-4, which was the wrong form, you gave the IRS permission to treat amounts earned at your employer's place of business as taxable "gross income" under the Internal Revenue Code and which is connected with the "trade or business" franchise described in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26). What makes it taxable, is that you essentially volunteered to become a "taxpayer" by submitting that false IRS Form W-4. Signing and submitting that form made you into a "taxpayer" subject to the Internal Revenue Code and a party to a voluntary "contract" between you and your new boss, the

1 IRS. Always remember that the IRS only “helps” people who want to be “taxpayers” and the Internal Revenue Code is
 2 written to apply ONLY to “taxpayers”. The IRS doesn’t deal with or help “nontaxpayers”. Their mission statement even 3 bluntly confirms this, which says:

4 Internal Revenue Manual (I.R.M.), Section 1.1.1.1 (02-26-1999)
 5 IRS Mission and Basic Organization

6 The IRS Mission: Provide America’s taxpayers top quality service by helping them understand and meet their 7 tax responsibilities and by applying the tax law with integrity and fairness to all.

8 Do you see “nontaxpayers” anywhere in that mission statement? Therefore, you are a “taxpayer”, if you ask for help from 9 the IRS. If you want help, you are going to have to pay for it, friends, by becoming a “taxpayer”! Do you think they work
 10 for “free” out of the generosity of their heart? If you think the cost of education is high, then try ignorance of the laws for a 11 while and tell us which is more expensive.

12 “One who turns his ear from hearing the law, even his prayer is an abomination.”
 13 [Prov. 28:9, Bible, NKJV]

14 If you filed a 1040 or took deductions on your return, then you also indirectly announced that you are involved in a “trade or 15 business”, which again is a “public office” in the District of Columbia. We cover these subjects in more detail later in section
 16 5.6.11. 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(a)(2)(ii) indicates that the only type of taxable income is that which is “effectively connected with 17 a trade of business”. If people would stop acting like “taxpayers”, read the law for themselves, correct their status on all their
 18 government paperwork, and stop believing or reading the deceptive IRS publications and phone support, which are 19 deliberately wrong more than 80% of the time, then we could at least hope that things might start getting better. When are 20 people going to learn?

21 So the answer to the question posed by this section is that the money that most Americans pay to the IRS is, indeed, a lawful
 22 direct, unapportioned tax upon their earnings that is perfectly Constitutional, because it is done against a legal “person” who 23 is “resident” within the District of Columbia, which is within exclusive federal jurisdiction. The problem is, that this legal 24 “person” or “res” is something that was created and continues to exist without your knowledge or explicit informed consent.
 25 The IRS never told you in their deliberately deceptive publications exactly what you were “consenting” to by submitting an 26 IRS Form W-4 or 1040. You didn’t even know a form W-4 was an “Agreement” or “contract”, now did you, but the 27 regulations make that point abundantly clear. The problem is, do the IRS publications make this point equally clear?

28 26 C.F.R. Sec. 31.3401(a)-3 Amounts deemed wages under voluntary withholding 29 agreements.

30 (a) IN GENERAL. Notwithstanding the exceptions to the definition of wages specified in section 3401(a) and the 31 *regulations thereunder, the term “wages” includes the amounts described in paragraph (b)(1) of this section
 32 with respect to which there is a voluntary withholding agreement in effect under section 3402(p). References*
 33 in this chapter to the definition of wages contained in section 3401(a) shall be deemed to refer also to this section
 34 (Section 31.3401(a)-3).

35 They didn’t tell you it was “voluntary” and that you could choose NOT to volunteer, now did they? As such, the tax “codes”
 36 are administered by the IRS in a way that is constructively fraudulent, unjust, and usurious. Through smoke and mirrors, the 37 IRS has made the I.R.C. to “appear” like a mandatory unapportioned direct tax upon EVERYONE in states of the Union,
 38 when in fact, your informed, voluntary consent as an American Citizen not living within federal jurisdiction is required and 39 mandatory in order to create the taxable legal “person” engaged in the excise taxable privilege called a “trade or business”
 40 who is the target of their fraudulent and unlawful enforcement actions. Why would they want the truth to get out about this
 41 elaborate trap, if it would just reduce their revenues, cause IRS agents to have to be laid off, and worsen the federal budget
 42 deficit? Would you tell just a few “white lies” to the American Public for the sizable sum of one TRILLION dollars a year
 43 of cold hard stolen loot? I know a lot of people who would do that, and most of them work for the IRS and the government!
 44 Here is a joke about that subject:

45 Late one night in the capitol city a mugger wearing a ski mask jumped into the path of a well-dressed man and 46 stuck a gun in his ribs. “Give me your money!” he demanded.

1 "In that case," replied the robber, "give me MY money!"

2 5.1.10 The Income Tax: Constitutional or Unconstitutional?

3 So is the income tax constitutional or unconstitutional? If you're like most people, you probably suspect that its
4 unconstitutional and that Americans pay income taxes in direct violation of the Constitution. Well, in light of everything we
5 just told you, the real answer will likely astonish you. If you don't have a headache by now, you may want to go take an
6 aspirin at this point, because it gets worse. Here, as they say, is the "story behind the story."

- 7 1. In spite of the fact that most Americans have never been lawful withholding agents for nonresident aliens or other foreign 8 entities;
- 9 2. In spite of the fact that Americans living and working within the states of the Union have never been made liable by 10 Congress for a tax on "income" under Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A;
- 11 3. In spite of the fact that most Americans have been filing IRS Form 1040 every year although it is not a required form for 12 a CONSTITUTIONAL state citizen domiciled in a state of the Union to use according to the OMB;
- 13 4. In spite of the fact that most Americans have been paying what appears to be a direct, unapportioned income tax directly 14 to the IRS;

15 In spite of all this, the money that Americans have VOLUNTEERED to self-assess and pay to the IRS
16 are in fact absolutely and 100% constitutional. Paying what are actually donations to the federal government
17 deceitfully disguised as lawful "taxes" is constitutional when Americans are not compelled to do so. They are really
18 donations, but your dishonest public servants call them "taxes" to increase "voluntary compliance". This kind of manipulation
19 is dishonest and fraudulent, but the courts refuse to force the government to tell the truth about the voluntary nature of Internal 20 Revenue Code, Subtitle A, so we continue to be the victim of such constructive fraud. For an eye-opening article on this 21 subject, read:

*Federal Courts and the IRS' Own IRM Say the IRS is NOT RESPONSIBLE for Its Actions or its Words or for Following
Its Own Written Procedures*, Family Guardian Fellowship
<http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/Articles/IRSNotResponsible.htm>

22 How is this possible? Because the Internal Revenue Code is limited in its application to what is specifically written and
23 stated. All law is always specific to the subjects it is directed at and no others, and is never generally applied to persons or 24 activities that are not mentioned. In real estate the term is "location, location, location".

25 The first and foremost principle of law is jurisdiction, jurisdiction, jurisdiction. Therefore, the first question to be answered
26 is: where are you? Are you abroad in a foreign country or in a U.S. possession or territory such as Guam or Samoa? Or are 27 you within one of the now 50 Union states and outside of plenary or exclusive federal jurisdiction?

28 In Hooven & Allison Co. v. Evatt, 324 U.S. 652 (1945) the high Court stated that, in exercising its constitutional power to 29 make all needful regulations respecting territory belonging to the United States, Congress is not subject to the same
30 constitutional limitations as when legislating for the 50 Union states.

31 In Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901), the Supreme Court stated that constitutional restrictions and limitations were not
32 applicable to the areas, enclaves, territories and possessions over which Congress had exclusive legislative authority--i.e., not 33 the 50 Union states.

34 The constitution and the Bill of Rights, which is the First ten Amendments to the Constitution, attach not to your citizenship
35 status, but to the land you live on and it protects ALL, whether citizen or alien.

36 "The difficulties arising out of our dual form of government and the opportunities for differing opinions
37 *concerning the relative rights of state and national governments are many; but for a very long time this court
38 has steadfastly adhered to the doctrine that the taxing power of Congress does not extend to the states or their
39 political subdivisions. The same basic reasoning which leads to that conclusion, we think, requires like limitation*
40 *upon the power which springs from the bankruptcy clause. United States v. Butler, supra."*
41 [Ashton v. Cameron County Water Improvement District No. 1, 298 U.S. 513, 56 S.Ct. 892 (1936)]

42 The constitutional protection against direct taxation afforded to Americans, however, ends at the borders of the states of the 43 Union and affords no protection within the territories and possessions where Congress has exclusive and plenary power to

1 tax. In short-row out past the international limit and Congress has you by the short hairs. But here within the 50 states of the 2 Union.. you're FREE! (remember the Bible, Matthew 17:24-27?)

3 So the question where you are is primary. The next question is: who are you? Are you:

- 4 1. A STATUTORY "national and citizen of the United States** at birth" under 8 U.S.C. §1401 and 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(c)
5 domiciled on federal territory.
- 6 2. A STATUTORY "resident" (alien) under 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A) domiciled on federal territory.
- 7 3. A "nonresident alien" under 26 U.S.C. §771(b)(1)(B).
- 8 4. A statutory "non-resident non-person" who is NONE of the above and outside of federal jurisdiction because:
9 4.1. Not domiciled on present anywhere in the federal zone.
10 4.2. Not representing a public office domiciled in the federal zone under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17.

11 Under the Internal Revenue Code, a "resident alien" or "resident" for short is a foreigner who has received permission to live
12 in the stay in the District of Columbia for a prolonged period and may be in the process of relocating here permanently and 13 becoming a naturalized citizen. If you are domiciled in a state of the Union, on the other hand, you are called a "non-resident
14 non-person" if not engaged in a public office and a "nonresident alien" if engaged in a public office. Other than in the context
15 of their official duties as a public officer, "nonresident aliens" are afforded the same protections as a citizen under the 16 Constitution.

17 A "non-resident non-person" could be a French tourist just visiting our country. What if he sold a painting to an American
18 citizen while visiting here? Under no circumstances would he be made liable to pay a tax to the U.S. Government on that
19 transaction unless he is in receipt of federal payments from within the District of Columbia and volunteers to declare himself
20 to be engaged in a taxable activity called a "trade or business", as you will find out later. France might tax him under a treaty
21 with our government, but our government would have no jurisdiction.

22 The next question is what. What were you doing that made you liable for a particular class of taxation? Were you engaged
23 in a privileged excise taxable activity such as the sale, manufacture or distribution or alcohol, tobacco or firearms within the 24 federal zone? Or were you engaged in the exercise of a natural right, such as your right to exchange your labor for money?

25 The next question is when? When were you engaged in the particular taxable activity, because, if you were liable for the 26 particular tax, the rate of taxation may have been different than at another time.

27 Let's put all this together into a specific example. Let's say you're an American citizen domiciled in the middle of the country,
28 say in Kansas, in 1998. Where are you? In one of the states of the Union, which are "foreign" with respect to federal general
29 legislative jurisdiction. Therefore, you fall under the protection of the Constitution.

30 Who are you? If you have never renounced your citizenship, you're an American National, therefore you cannot be taxed
31 directly by the federal government under Article 1, Section 2, Clause 3 of the Constitution as we have already seen.

32 What are you doing? Selling your house, so that's a capital gain, right? Not for you. You're a citizen within the state of 33 Kansas. You do not live in the "United States" under the Internal Revenue Code, which is limited to the District of Columbia
34 (see 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10)). Congress cannot directly tax the proceeds from the sale of your property because 35 they can't collect a tax in an area over which they have no legislative or subject matter jurisdiction:

36 *"It is no longer open to question that the general government, unlike the states, Hammer v. Dagenhart, 247 U.S.
37 251, 275, 38 S.Ct. 529, 3 A.L.R. 649, Ann.Cas.1918E 724, possesses no inherent power in respect of the internal 38 affairs of the states; and emphatically not with regard to legislation."*
39 [Carter v. Carter Coal Co., 298 U.S. 238, 56 S.Ct. 855 (1936)]

40 When did you do this? Sometime during 1998. Was the Constitution in full force and effect? Yes, it's been in full force and 41 effect since the day it was ratified and that included 1998. In other words, the law did not apply to you under these particular,
42 limited circumstances.

43 However, what if you step outside the jurisdictional restrictions of the I.R.C. and volunteer to assess yourself a tax you don't 44 owe and volunteer to pay it? Is that unconstitutional? No, of course not. It's called "voluntary compliance" and the IRS
45 thanks you for your generous and willing "donation".

1 By volunteering to make a donation to the Treasury, millions of Americans each year manage to do something all by
 2 themselves that all the international bankers combined could not accomplish, that is, to prop up paper money as Beardsley
 3 Ruml explained. And deep in their hearts, Congress and senior Treasury Department officials must say a silent prayer of 4 thanks to all of those willing to volunteer!

5 Disregarding whether income taxes on u.S. (note capitalization, and as distinguished from "U.S.** citizens", as described in
 6 section 3.12.1.24) Americans living and working in the 50 Union states are constitutional from the perspective of direct or 7 indirect taxes, there are many other legal reasons why they are unconstitutional if they are enforced rather than strictly
 8 voluntary. Consider all of the constitutional provisions that are violated by the provisions below as a consequence of 9 compelling Americans domiciled and working in the 50 Union states to involuntarily pay monies to the government or file a 10 tax return:

13 5.1.11 Taxable persons and objects within I.R.C., Subtitle A

14 As we said in previous sections, I.R.C., Subtitle A describes an indirect excise tax upon a privileged activity called a "trade
 15 or business", which is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) as "the functions of a public office". This section will identify 16 specific taxable persons and activities within the I.R.C. and where the tax upon these persons is found. Below is a simplified
 17 table summarizing all the taxable persons and activities:

NOTES:

1. A "trade or business" is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) as "the functions of a public office". Congress can only tax a "trade or business" in the District of Columbia and outside the District of Columbia in places where it has expressly authorized "public offices", as required by 4 U.S.C. §72. The only place outside the District of Columbia where "public offices" have been expressly authorized is in the Virgin Islands, pursuant to 48 U.S.C. §1612. No "public offices" have been expressly authorized within any state of the Union except possibly in federal areas, and so taxes related to "trade or business" activities cannot apply in states of the Union.
2. For the purposes of above table, "federal zone" means the District of Columbia and the Virgin Islands, and excludes all other localities, including states of the Union. Title 48 of the U.S. Code indicates that all other territories and possessions do not have federal income taxes. This is covered in much greater detail later in section 5.14.
3. When statutory "U.S. citizens" as defined in 8 U.S.C. §1401 and 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(c) are abroad, they interface to the I.R.C. as "aliens" through a tax treaty with a foreign country. The same is true of "residents" (aliens) domiciled in the federal zone who are temporarily abroad.
4. Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A is NOT a tax on "all earnings" or "gross receipts", but instead is a tax upon "profit" connected with excise taxable activity, which is a "trade or business", meaning a public office.

"We must reject in this case, as we have rejected in cases arising under the Corporation Excise Tax Act of 1909 (Doyle, Collector, v. Mitchell Brothers Co., 247 U.S. 179, 38 Sup.Ct. 467, 62 L.Ed.--), the broad contention submitted on behalf of the government that all receipts—everything that comes in—are income within the proper definition of the term 'gross income,' and that the entire proceeds of a conversion of capital assets, in whatever form and under whatever circumstances accomplished, should be treated as gross income. Certainly the term 'income' has no broader meaning in the 1913 act than in that of 1909 (see Stratton's Independence v. Howbert, 231 U.S. 399, 416, 417 S., 34 Sup.Ct. 136), and for the present purpose we assume there is not difference in its meaning as used in the two acts."
[Southern Pacific Co. v. Lowe, 247 U.S. 330, 335, 38 S.Ct. 540 (1918)]

The bottom line to the above is that unless you are either domiciled in the federal zone or receive payments of some kind from the U.S. government, including employment compensation as a federal "employee", I.R.C., Subtitle A says you can't earn "gross income" or "taxable income". To confirm these findings, the following corroborating evidence is provided:

1. The Index in the back of the current edition to the Internal Revenue Code does not even mention "U.S. citizens", because the government cannot collect Subtitle A income taxes upon "citizens" of any description, including domiciled citizens, when they are situated within the place of their domicile. The only situation where a statutory "U.S. citizen" as defined in 8 U.S.C. §1401 can be a "taxpayer" is when they are abroad pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §911. This is consistent with the foundation of our tax system which is:

"Citizens abroad. Aliens at home."

There are many reasons for this, but the most important reason is that taxes destroy sovereignty, and a government cannot be in charge or protecting someone when it has the taxing power to take EVERYTHING they own away from them. If

1 it could, then there would be no way to ensure a fair trial in any court, because no judge who is paid by monies lawfully
 2 extorted from citizens could possibly claim to be operating impartially by simultaneously also protecting the rights of
 3 the same person. Nearly every country on earth runs its tax system this same way, and most have done just as masterful
 4 a job as the U.S. government in hiding the truth within their "codes". There is a reason they call it "code": Because you
 5 have to "decode it" to understand it. The truth is "encrypted" and kept from you using words of art.

- 6 2. No statutory provision is provided in the I.R.C. for a statutory "U.S. citizen" under 8 U.S.C. §1401 domiciled in the 7 federal zone who is not abroad to be taxed because it is simply NOT allowed. This is also consistent with the U.S.
 8 Supreme Court's ruling in Cook v. Tait (1924), in which it said that statutory "U.S. citizens" abroad may be taxed for 9 the privilege of being protected, because they are not protected by the Constitution and the Bill of Rights when overseas.

10 *"The right to tax and regulate the national citizenship is an inherent right under the rule of the Law of Nations,
 11 which is part of the law of the United States, as described in Article 1, Section 8, Clause 17." The Luisitania, 251
 12 F.715, 732.*

13 *"This jurisdiction extends to citizens of the United States, wherever resident, for the exercise of the privileges and 14 immunities and protections of [federal] citizenship."
 15 [Cook v. Tait, 265 U.S. 47,44 S.Ct. 447, 11 Virginia Law Review, 607 (1924)]*

16 The "national citizenship" they are talking about is federal zone citizenship and NOT constitutional citizenship. This is 17 confirmed by the same Supreme Court, which said in Chisholm v. Georgia, 2 Dall. \(U.S.\) 419, 1 L.Ed. 440 (1793) that 18 the U.S. is NOT a "nation", but a "society". The above statement also contains a deception, because the phrase "wherever 19 resident" EXCLUDES persons within the exterior boundaries of a state of the Union on other than land subject to the 20 exclusive jurisdiction or plenary power of the general government. When a statutory "citizen of the United States"
 21 pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1401 moves his domicile to a state of the Union or anywhere outside the federal zone, he at that 22 point:

- 23 2.1. Ceases to be a statutory "U.S. citizen" pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1401. You cannot be a statutory "U.S. citizen" without 24 a domicile in the federal zone.
 25 2.2. Becomes a "national" but not a "citizen" pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21) just like any other person domiciled in 26 the state of the Union he is in.
 27 2.3. Is no longer "subject to the jurisdiction" of the United States, because no longer domiciled there. Domicile is the 28 source of all of the government's civil jurisdiction, including both its taxing and police powers.
 29 2.4. Becomes a "stateless person" in respect to the federal government for the purposes of legislative jurisdiction and 30 the jurisdiction of the federal courts. See Newman-Green v. Alfonso Larrain, 490 U.S. 826 \(1989\).
 31 3. 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(a)(2)(ii) defines a "married individual" and an "unmarried individual" as an alien with earnings from a
 32 "trade or business". The only "taxpayers" who are "individuals" are therefore "aliens", and a "nonresident alien" as 33 defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B) is not equivalent to an "alien" as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A) .

38 *(a)(2)(ii) For taxable years beginning after December 31, 1970, the tax imposed by section 1(d), as amended by
 39 the Tax Reform Act of 1969, shall apply to the income effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business
 40 in the United States by a married alien individual who is a nonresident of the United States for all or part of
 41 the taxable year or by a foreign estate or trust. For such years the tax imposed by section 1(c), as amended by
 42 such Act, shall apply to the income effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business in the United
 43 States by an unmarried alien individual (other than a surviving spouse) who is a nonresident of the United 44 States for all or part of the taxable year. See paragraph (b)(2) of section 1.871-8."
 45 [26 C.F.R. §1.1-1 (a)(2)(ii)]*

- 46 4. I.R.C. Section 1 imposes the Subtitle A income tax, but the word "domicile" are never mentioned, even though this is 47 the ONLY lawful basis for the tax according to the U.S. Supreme Court.

48 *"Thus, the Court has frequently held that domicile or residence, more substantial than mere presence in transit
 49 or sojourn, is an adequate basis for taxation, including income, property, and death taxes. Since the Fourteenth
 50 Amendment makes one a citizen of the state wherein he resides, the fact of residence creates universally
 51 reciprocal duties of protection by the state and of allegiance and support by the citizen. The latter obviously
 52 includes a duty to pay taxes, and their nature and measure is largely a political matter. Of course, the situs of
 53 property may tax it regardless of the citizenship, domicile, or residence of the owner, the most obvious illustration
 54 being a tax on realty laid by the state in which the realty is located."
 55 Miller Brothers Co. v. Maryland, [347 U.S. 340 (1954) ]*

The requirement for domicile is carefully hidden in 26 U.S.C. §911(d)(3), by referring to it as “abode”, which the legal dictionary defines as domicile. The only tax liability connected with domicile therefore relates ONLY to “citizens and residents” while they are abroad, but not domestically (federal zone) situated. The reason the I.R.C. doesn't mention the source of authority for income tax as “domicile” is because domicile is so hard to prove, and because it is voluntary. If you knew the law allowed you to “unvolunteer”, would you participate in the income tax system? This is covered later starting in section 5.4.8.

5. Nowhere in the Internal Revenue Code is the term “individual” defined, because if your corrupt public servants did truthfully define it, they would have to admit that it means a government (corporate) person domiciled in the federal zone and engaged in a public office. 5 U.S.C. §552a(a)(2) confirms that such an “individual” is a government employee or agent or “public officer”, because it falls under Title 5 of the U.S. Code, which is entitled “Government Organization and Employees”. The government cannot keep records on citizens who are not domiciled in their jurisdiction, because they would be engaging in a conspiracy to violate the privacy of those persons in violation of the Fourth Amendment, but it certainly has the authority to maintain records, protected by the Privacy Act, which describe public employees.

“The power to “legislate generally upon” life, liberty, and property, as opposed to the “power to provide modes of redress” against offensive state action, was “repugnant” to the Constitution. Id., at 15. See also United States v. Reese, 92 U.S. 214, 218 (1876); United States v. Harris, 106 U.S. 629, 639 (1883); James v. Bowman, 190 U.S. 127, 139 (1903). Although the specific holdings of these early cases might have been superseded or modified, see, e.g., Heart of Atlanta Motel, Inc. v. United States, 379 U.S. 241 (1964); United States v. Guest, 383 U.S. 745 (1966), their treatment of Congress’ §5 power as corrective or preventive, not definitional, has not been questioned.”
[City of Boerne v. Flores, Archbishop of San Antonio, 521 U.S. 507 (1997)]

6. 26 U.S.C. §871 lists all the taxable activities and “sources” together in one spot. Although this section describes the taxable activities for “nonresident aliens”, the same rules apply to ALL persons, because equal protection of the law mandated by Section 1 of the Fourteenth Amendment demands that everyone in states of the Union must pay the same amount and kind of taxes on the same activities. Notice that this section divides the taxable activities basically into two groups: 1. Earnings not connected with a “trade or business” in 26 U.S.C. §871(a); 2. Earnings connected with a “trade or business” in 26 U.S.C. §871(b). Notice also that all the items in 26 U.S.C. §871(a) are payments by the government to private persons of one kind or another or are earnings from passive activities in the District of Columbia, which is what the “United States” is defined as for that section in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) .

The process of determining whether we are “taxpayers” under Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A is rather simple. Below are the questions you must answer and the consequences of each answer:

Table 5-15: Questions that help determine whether you are a "taxpayer"

If the answer to all the above is NO, then you can't be a “taxpayer” under I.R.C., Subtitle A and must instead be a “nontaxpayer” not subject to any part of the Internal Revenue Code. Such a person would be a “foreign estate” as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(31) .

5.1.12 The “Dual” nature of the Internal Revenue Code

Congress legislates for two separate legal and political and territorial jurisdictions:

1. The states of the Union under the requirements of the Constitution of the United States. In this capacity, it is called the “federal/general government”.
2. The U.S. government, the District of Columbia, U.S. possessions and territories, and enclaves within the states. In this capacity, it is called the “national government”. The authority for this jurisdiction derives from Article 1, Section 8, Clause 17 of the United States Constitution. All laws passed essentially amount to municipal laws for federal property, and in that capacity, Congress is not restrained by either the Constitution or the Bill of Rights. We call the collection of all federal territories, possessions, and enclaves within the states “the federal zone” throughout this document.

The U.S. Supreme Court confirmed this division of powers of our general government described above when it said:

“It is clear that Congress, as a legislative body, exercise two species of legislative power: the one, limited as to its objects, but extending all over the Union: the other, an absolute, exclusive legislative power over the District of Columbia. The preliminary inquiry in the case now before the Court, is, by virtue of which of these authorities was the law in question passed?”

James Madison, one of our founding fathers, described these two separate jurisdictions in Federalist Paper #39, when he said:

First. In order to ascertain the real character of the government, it may be considered in relation to the foundation on which it is to be established; to the sources from which its ordinary powers are to be drawn; to the operation of those powers; to the extent of them; and to the authority by which future changes in the government are to be introduced.

On examining the first relation, it appears, on one hand, that the Constitution is to be founded on the assent and ratification of the people of America, given by deputies elected for the special purpose; but, on the other, that this assent and ratification is to be given by the people, not as individuals composing one entire nation, but as composing the distinct and independent States to which they respectively belong. It is to be the assent and ratification of the several States, derived from the supreme authority in each State, the authority of the people themselves. The act, therefore, establishing the Constitution, will not be a NATIONAL, but a FEDERAL act.

That it will be a federal and not a national act, as these terms are understood by the objectors; the act of the people, as forming so many independent States, not as forming one aggregate nation, is obvious from this single consideration, that it is to result neither from the decision of a MAJORITY of the people of the Union, nor from that of a MAJORITY of the States. It must result from the UNANIMOUS assent of the several States that are parties to it, differing no otherwise from their ordinary assent than in its being expressed, not by the legislative authority, but by that of the people themselves. Were the people regarded in this transaction as forming one nation, the will of the majority of the whole people of the United States would bind the minority, in the same manner as the majority in each State must bind the minority; and the will of the majority must be determined either by a comparison of the individual votes, or by considering the will of the majority of the States as evidence of the will of a majority of the people of the United States. Neither of these rules have been adopted. Each State, in ratifying the Constitution, is considered as a sovereign body, independent of all others, and only to be bound by its own voluntary act. In this relation, then, the new Constitution will, if established, be a FEDERAL, and not a NATIONAL constitution.

The next relation is, to the sources from which the ordinary powers of government are to be derived. The House of Representatives will derive its powers from the people of America; and the people will be represented in the same proportion, and on the same principle, as they are in the legislature of a particular State. So far the government is NATIONAL, not FEDERAL. The Senate, on the other hand, will derive its powers from the States, as political and coequal societies; and these will be represented on the principle of equality in the Senate, as they now are in the existing Congress. So far the government is FEDERAL, not NATIONAL. The executive power will be derived from a very compound source. The immediate election of the President is to be made by the States in their political characters. The votes allotted to them are in a compound ratio, which considers them partly as distinct and coequal societies, partly as unequal members of the same society. The eventual election, again, is to be made by that branch of the legislature which consists of the national representatives; but in this particular act they are to be thrown into the form of individual delegations, from so many distinct and coequal bodies politic. From this aspect of the government it appears to be of a mixed character, presenting at least as many FEDERAL as NATIONAL features.

The difference between a federal and national government, as it relates to the OPERATION OF THE GOVERNMENT, is supposed to consist in this, that in the former the powers operate on the political bodies composing the Confederacy, in their political capacities; in the latter, on the individual citizens composing the nation, in their individual capacities. On trying the Constitution by this criterion, it falls under the NATIONAL, not the FEDERAL character; though perhaps not so completely as has been understood. In several cases, and particularly in the trial of controversies to which States may be parties, they must be viewed and proceeded against in their collective and political capacities only. So far the national countenance of the government on this side seems to be disfigured by a few federal features. But this blemish is perhaps unavoidable in any plan; and

1 the operation of the government on the people, in their individual capacities, in its ordinary and most essential
2 proceedings, may, on the whole, designate it, in this relation, a NATIONAL government.

3 But if the government be national with regard to the OPERATION of its powers, it changes its aspect again when
4 we contemplate it in relation to the EXTENT of its powers. The idea of a national government involves in it, not
5 only an authority over the individual citizens, but an indefinite supremacy over all persons and things, so far as
6 they are objects of lawful government. Among a people consolidated into one nation, this supremacy is completely
7 vested in the national legislature. Among communities united for particular purposes, it is vested partly in the 8 general and partly in the municipal legislatures. In the former case, all local authorities are subordinate to the 9 supreme; and may be controlled, directed, or abolished by it at pleasure. In the latter, the local or municipal 10 authorities form distinct and independent portions of the supremacy, no more subject, within their respective 11 spheres, to the general authority, than the general authority is subject to them, within its own sphere. In this 12 relation, then, the proposed government cannot be deemed a NATIONAL one; since its jurisdiction extends to 13 certain enumerated objects only, and leaves to the several States a residuary and inviolable sovereignty over
14 all other objects. It is true that in controversies relating to the boundary between the two jurisdictions, the tribunal
15 which is ultimately to decide, is to be established under the general government. But this does not change the 16 principle of the case. The decision is to be impartially made, according to the rules of the Constitution; and all
17 the usual and most effectual precautions are taken to secure this impartiality. Some such tribunal is clearly
18 essential to prevent an appeal to the sword and a dissolution of the compact; and that it ought to be established
19 under the general rather than under the local governments, or, to speak more properly, that it could be safely
20 established under the first alone, is a position not likely to be combated.

21 If we try the Constitution by its last relation to the authority by which amendments are to be made, we find it
22 neither wholly NATIONAL nor wholly FEDERAL. Were it wholly national, the supreme and ultimate authority
23 would reside in the MAJORITY of the people of the Union; and this authority would be competent at all times,
24 like that of a majority of every national society, to alter or abolish its established government. Were it wholly
25 federal, on the other hand, the concurrence of each State in the Union would be essential to every alteration that
26 would be binding on all. The mode provided by the plan of the convention is not founded on either of these 27 principles. In requiring more than a majority, and principles. In requiring more than a majority, and particularly 28 in computing the proportion by STATES, not by CITIZENS, it departs from the NATIONAL and advances towards
29 the FEDERAL character; in rendering the concurrence of less than the whole number of States sufficient, it loses
30 again the FEDERAL and partakes of the NATIONAL character.

31 The proposed Constitution, therefore, is, in strictness, neither a national nor a federal Constitution, but a
32 composition of both. In its foundation it is federal, not national; in the sources from which the ordinary powers
33 of the government are drawn, it is partly federal and partly national; in the operation of these powers, it is 34 national, not federal; in the extent of them, again, it is federal, not national; and, finally, in the authoritative mode 35 of introducing amendments, it is neither wholly federal nor wholly national.

37 [Federalist Paper #39, James Madison]

38 Based on Madison's comments, a "national government" operates upon and derives its authority from individual citizens
39 whereas a "federal government" operates upon and derives its authority from states. The only place where the central 40 government may operate directly upon the individual through the authority of law is within federal territory. Hence, when 41 courts use the word "national government", they are referring to federal territory only and to no part of any state of the Union.
42 The federal government has no jurisdiction within a state of the Union and therefore cannot operate directly upon the 43 individual there.

44 "It is no longer open to question that the general government, unlike the states, Hammer v. Dagenhart, 247 U.S.
45 251, 275, 38 S.Ct. 529, 3 A.L.R. 649, Ann.Cas.1918E 724, possesses no inherent power in respect of the internal
46 affairs of the states; and emphatically not with regard to legislation."

49 The rights of life and personal liberty are natural rights of man. 'To secure these rights,' says the Declaration of 50 Independence, 'governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the 51 governed.' The very highest duty of the States, when they entered into the Union under the Constitution, was 52 to protect all persons within their boundaries in the enjoyment of these 'unalienable rights with which they 53 were endowed by their Creator.' Sovereignty, for this purpose, rests alone with the States. It is no more the 54 duty or within the power of the United States to punish for a conspiracy *554 to falsely imprison or murder
55 within a State, than it would be to punish for false imprisonment or murder itself.

56 The fourteenth amendment prohibits a State from denying to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection
57 of the laws; but this provision does not, any more than the one which precedes it, and which we have just 58 considered, add any thing *555 to the rights which one citizen has under the Constitution against another. The 59 equality of the rights of citizens is a principle of republicanism. Every republican government is in duty bound
60 to protect all its citizens in the enjoyment of this principle, if within its power. That duty was originally assumed

1 by the States; and it still remains there. The only obligation resting upon the United States is to see that the 2 States do not deny the right. This the amendment guarantees, but no more. The power of the national 3 government is limited to the enforcement of this guaranty.
4 [U.S. v. Cruikshank, 92 U.S. 542, 1875 WL 17550 (U.S., 1875)]

5 These two political/legal jurisdictions, federal territory v. states of the Union, are separate sovereignties, and the Constitution
6 dictates that these two distinct sovereignties MUST remain separate because of the Separation of Powers Doctrine:

7 “§79. This sovereignty pertains to the people of the United States as national citizens only, and not as citizens of 8 any other government. There cannot be two separate and independent sovereignties within the same limits or 9 jurisdiction; nor can there be two distinct and separate sources of sovereign authority within the same
10 jurisdiction. The right of commanding in the last resort can be possessed only by one body of people inhabiting
11 the same territory, and can be executed only by those intrusted with the execution of such authority.”

14 In this section, we will summarize federal jurisdiction to tax by consolidating the analysis found throughout this chapter into 15 one simple table to make our findings crystal clear. The vast majority of all laws passed by Congress apply to the latter
16 jurisdiction above: the federal zone. The Internal Revenue Code actually describes the revenue collection “scheme” for these 17 two completely separate political and legal jurisdictions and the table below compares the two. In the capacity as the “national 18 government”, the I.R.C. in Subtitles A (income tax), B (inheritance tax), and C (employment tax) acts as the equivalent of a
19 state income tax for the municipal government of the District of Columbia only. In the capacity of the “federal government”,
20 the I.R.C. in subtitle D acts as an excise tax on imports only. We discussed the difference between the “national government”
21 and the “federal/general government” earlier in section 4.7, if you would like to review:

1 The “plenary” jurisdiction described above means exclusive sovereignty which is not shared by any other sovereignty and
 2 which is exercised over territorial lands owned by or ceded to the federal government under Article 1, Section 8, Clause 17
 3 of the Constitution. Here is a cite that helps confirm what we are saying about the “plenary” word above:

4 *"In dealing with the meaning and application of an act of Congress enacted in the exercise of its plenary power
 5 under the Constitution to tax income and to grant exemptions from that tax, it is the will of Congress which*
 6 controls, and the expression of its will, in the absence of language evidencing a different purpose, should be

15 Why is such jurisdiction “plenary” or “exclusive”? Because all those who file IRS 1040 returns implicitly consent to be 16 treated as “virtual residents” of the District of Columbia, over which Congress has exclusive legislative jurisdiction under 17 Article 1, Section 8, Clause 17 of the Constitution!:

20 (a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent
 21 thereof—

22 (39) Persons residing outside [the federal] United States

23 If any citizen or resident of the United States does not reside in (and is not found in) any United States judicial 24 district, such citizen or resident shall be treated as residing in the District of Columbia for purposes of any 25 provision of this title relating to -

26 (A) jurisdiction of courts, or
 27 (B) enforcement of summons.

28 Because kidnapping is illegal under 18 U.S.C. §1201, people domiciled in states of the Union subject to the provisions above
 29 must be volunteers and must explicitly consent to participate in federal taxation by filling out the WRONG tax form, which 30 is the 1040, and signing it under penalty of perjury. The IRS Published Products Catalog for 2003 confirms that those who
 31 file IRS Form 1040 do indeed declare themselves to be “citizens or residents of the [federal] United States”, which is untrue
 32 for the vast majority of Americans:

39 If American Nationals domiciled in the states of the Union would learn to file with their correct status as “non-resident non-
 40 persons”, then most Americans wouldn’t owe anything. They would have no earnings from sources identified in 26 U.S.C.
 41 §871! The U.S. Congress and their IRS henchmen have become “sheep poachers”, where you, a person domiciled in state of 42 the Union and outside of federal legislative jurisdiction, are the “sheep”. They are “legally kidnapping” people away from 43 the Constitutional protections of their domicile within states using deceptive forms so that they volunteer into exclusive
 44 federal jurisdiction to become “U.S. persons”, “U.S. citizens”, or “residents” under federal law.

45 Notice the use of the term “nation-wide” in the Lyeth case above, which we now know means the “national government” in 46 the context of its jurisdiction over federal territories, possessions, and the District of Columbia and which excludes states of 47 the Union. They are just reiterating that federal jurisdiction over the federal zone is “exclusive” and “plenary” and that state
 48 law only applies where Congress consents to delegate authority, under the rules of “comity”, to the state relating to taxing 49 matters over federal areas within the exterior limits of a state.

1           "comity. Courtesy; complaisance; respect; a willingness to grant a privilege, not as a matter of right, but out of
 2 deference and good will. Recognition that one sovereignty allows within its territory to the legislative, executive,
 3 or judicial act of another sovereignty, having due regard to rights of its own citizens. Nowell v. Nowell,
 4 Tex.Civ.App., 408 S.W.2d. 550, 553. In general, principle of "comity" is that courts of one state or jurisdiction
 5 will give effect to laws and judicial decisions of another state or jurisdiction, not as a matter of obligation, but
 6 out of deference and mutual respect. Brown v. Babbitt Ford, Inc., 117 Ariz. 192, 571 P.2d. 689, 695. See also
 7 Full faith and credit clause."

8 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 267]

9 An example of this kind of "comity" is the Buck Act, 4 U.S.C. §§110-113, in which 4 U.S.C. §106 delegates authority to 10 federal territories and possessions, but not states of the Union, to tax areas within their boundaries subject to exclusive federal 11 jurisdiction. That jurisdiction then is mentioned in the context of 5 U.S.C. §5517 as applying ONLY to federal "employees".

12 The above table is confirmed by the Supreme Court in the case of Downes v. Bidwell, which said on the subjects covered by 13 the table:

14 "Loughborough v. Blake, 5 Wheat. 317, 5 L.Ed. 98, was an action of trespass or, as appears by the original
 15 record, replevin, brought in the circuit court for the District of Columbia to try the right of Congress to impose a 16 direct tax for general purposes on that District. 3 Stat. at L. 216, chap. 60. It was insisted that Congress could
 17 act in a double capacity: in one as legislating [182 U.S. 244, 260] for the states; in the other as a local legislature
 18 for the District of Columbia. In the latter character, it was admitted that the power of levying direct taxes might
 19 be exercised, but for District purposes only, as a state legislature might tax for state purposes; but that it could
 20 not legislate for the District under art. 1, 8, giving to Congress the power 'to lay and collect taxes, imposts, and
 21 excises,' which 'shall be uniform throughout the United States,' inasmuch as the District was no part of the
 22 United States [described in the Constitution]. It was held that the grant of this power was a general one without
 23 limitation as to place, and consequently extended to all places over which the government extends; and that it
 24 extended to the District of Columbia as a constituent part of the United States. The fact that art. 1, 2, declares
 25 that 'representatives and direct taxes shall be apportioned among the several states . . . according to their
 26 respective numbers' furnished a standard by which taxes were apportioned, but not to exempt any part of the
 27 country from their operation. 'The words used do not mean that direct taxes shall be imposed on states only which 28 are represented, or shall be apportioned to representatives; but that direct taxation, in its application to states,
 29 shall be apportioned to numbers.' That art. 1, 9, 4, declaring that direct taxes shall be laid in proportion to the 30 census, was applicable to the District of Columbia, 'and will enable Congress to apportion on it its just and equal
 31 share of the burden, with the same accuracy as on the respective states. If the tax be laid in this proportion, it is 32 within the very words of the restriction. It is a tax in proportion to the census or enumeration referred to.' It was 33 further held that the words of the 9th section did not 'in terms require that the system of direct taxation, when 34 resorted to, shall be extended to the territories, as the words of the 2d section require that it shall be extended to 35 all the states. They therefore may, without violence, be understood to give a rule when the territories shall be 36 taxed, without imposing the necessity of taxing them.'"

37 "There could be no doubt as to the correctness of this conclusion, so far, at least, as it applied to the District
 38 of Columbia. This District had been a part of the states of Maryland and [182 U.S. 244, 261] Virginia. It had 39 been subject to the Constitution, and was a part of the United States[***]. The Constitution had attached to it
 40 irrevocably. There are steps which can never be taken backward. The 41 tie that bound the states of Maryland and Virginia to the Constitution could not be dissolved, without at least
 42 the consent of the Federal and state governments to a formal separation. The mere cession of the District of 43 Columbia to the Federal government relinquished the authority of the states, but it did not take it out of the 44 United States or from under the aegis of the Constitution. Neither party had ever consented to that construction
 45 of the cession. If, before the District was set off, Congress had passed an unconstitutional act affecting its 46 inhabitants, it would have been void. If done after the District was created, it would have been equally void; in 47 other words, Congress could not do indirectly, by carving out the District, what it could not do directly. The 48 District still remained a part of the United States, protected by the Constitution. Indeed, it would have been a
 49 fanciful construction to hold that territory which had been once a part of the United States ceased to be such by 50 being ceded directly to the Federal government."

51 [. . .]

52 "Indeed, the practical interpretation put by Congress upon the Constitution has been long continued and uniform
 53 to the effect [182 U.S. 244, 279] that the Constitution is applicable to territories acquired by purchase or
 54 conquest, only when and so far as Congress shall so direct. Notwithstanding its duty to 'guarantee to every state
 55 in this Union a republican form of government' (art. 4, 4), by which we understand, according to the definition of 56 Webster, 'a government in which the supreme power resides in the whole body of the people, and is exercised by 57 representatives elected by them,' Congress did not hesitate, in the original organization of the territories of 58 Louisiana, Florida, the Northwest Territory, and its subdivisions of Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Illinois, and 59 Wisconsin and still more recently in the case of Alaska, to establish a form of government bearing a much greater
 60 analogy to a British Crown colony than a republican state of America, and to vest the legislative power either in 61 a governor and council, or a governor and judges, to be appointed by the President. It was not until they had 62 attained a certain population that power was given them to organize a legislature by vote of the people. In all

1            these cases, as well as in territories subsequently organized west of the Mississippi, Congress thought it necessary
 2            either to extend to Constitution and laws of the United States over them, or to declare that the inhabitants should
 3            be entitled to enjoy the right of trial by jury, of bail, and of the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus, as well as
 4            other privileges of the bill of rights.”
 5            [Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901)]

6 Based on the above table, ALL of the revenues collected by the IRS under the authority of Subtitle A only apply to workers
 7 of the employees, instrumentalities, and public officers of the U.S. government wherever located, those receiving federal
 8 payments, and those domiciled in the federal zone, and they behave as the equivalent of a kickback of a federal payment, and
 9 not lawful “taxes”. In particular, Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A applies only within federal territory, as is revealed by 10 the definition of “United States” found in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(9\) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d). The IRS has been involved 11 in criminal extortion because they are:

- 12 1. Deliberately and systematically deceiving Americans about the requirements of the I.R.C. using their publications, as we 13 showed earlier in section 3.19. They are doing so by not explaining what “United States” means in their publications
 14 and by not emphasizing that Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A is entirely voluntary and not a “tax”, but a donation.
 15 They also are trying to make most Americans falsely believe that the two jurisdictions identified above are equivalent,
 16 and that all Americans domiciled in states of the Union are “citizens of the United States” or “residents” under federal 17 law, when in fact they are not. Americans who make false statements on their tax returns go to jail for 3 years minimum,
 18 but the I.R.S. does it with impunity every day in their publications and the federal judiciary refuses to hold them
 19 accountable for this constructive fraud.
- 20 2. Applying Subtitles A through C of the Internal Revenue Code unlawfully to persons domiciled in states of the Union 21 over which they have no jurisdiction.
- 22 3. Are enforcing I.R.C. Subtitle A against other than federal “employees”, “public officers”, and instrumentalities. There 23 are no implementing regulations authorizing enforcement against other than federal “employees” as required by 44
 24 U.S.C. §1505\(a\)\(1\), 26 C.F.R. §601.702\(a\)\(2\)\(ii\), and 5 U.S.C. §553\(a\)\(2\).
- 25 4. Enforcing that which is not “law” and is therefore unenforceable. The Internal Revenue Code is not “law” for those not 26 subject to it such as “nontaxpayers”, as you will find out later in section 5.4.3, and therefore may not be enforced against
 27 anyone absent explicit, informed, voluntary consent and a promise by the government of no repercussions for not 28 “volunteering”. Those who explicitly consent in writing or implicitly consent by their conduct to be subject to it are 29 called “taxpayers”, and for them ONLY, I.R.C., Subtitle A is “law”.

30 5.1.13 Brief History of Circuit Court Rulings Relating to Income Taxes

31 Before we scare you or confuse you with the following, we wish to emphasize that in the cases cited below, those cases that
 32 contradicted the idea that mandatory income taxes are excise taxes have a common thread, and that thread is that the
 33 *individuals who ended up having to pay in effect a FORCED DIRECT income tax claimed they were U.S. ** citizens and/or* 34 claimed they resided “within the United States Judicial District”, which is a no-no as we emphasize throughout this book.
 35 These are the two things that got them into most of their trouble. If they had insisted all along that:

- 36 1. They were “non-resident non-persons” not subject to the laws of Congress and outside their jurisdiction.
- 37 2. Filed their withholding forms consistent with this status. This means NOT filing I.R.S. Form W-4.
- 38 3. Changed their citizenship status to “nationals” in all government records. This includes passports.
- 39 4. Filed their “Revocation of Election” (see section 4.5.3.13 of the Sovereignty Forms and Instructions Manual, Form 40 #10.005) as required

41 . . . then the federal courts would have respected their rights and not tried to assert nonexistent jurisdiction over them to assess
 42 federal income taxes.

 44 157 U.S. 429, 15 S.Ct. 673, aff. reh., 158 U.S. 601, 15 S.Ct. 912 (1895). The Pollock Court found that the income tax was a
 45 direct tax which could only be imposed if the tax was apportioned; since this tax was not apportioned, it was found
 46 unconstitutional. In an effort to circumvent this decision, the 16th Amendment was proposed by Congress in 1909 and 47 allegedly ratified by the states in 1913. As a result, various opinions arose regarding the legal effect of the amendment. Some
 48 factions contended that the 16th Amendment simply eliminated the apportionment requirement for one specific direct tax
 49 known as the income tax, while others asserted that the amendment simply withdrew it from the direct tax category and 50 placed the income tax in the indirect, excise tax class. These competing contentions and interpretations were apparently resolved in Brushaber v. Union Pacific Railroad Co., 240 U.S. 1, 36 S.Ct. 236 (1916).<sup>33</sup> Rather than attempt a determination of what the Court held in this case, it is more important to learn what various courts have subsequently declared Brushaber to mean.

A little more than a week after the opinion in Brushaber, similar issues were present for decision in Stanton v. Baltic Mining Co., 240 U.S. 103, 112-13, 36 S.Ct. 278 (1916), which involved the question of whether an inadequate depletion allowance for a mining company constituted a direct tax on the company's property. As to Baltic's contention that "the 16th Amendment authorized only an exceptional direct income tax without apportionment," the Court rejected it by stating that this contention:

"... manifestly disregards the fact that by the previous ruling it was settled that the provisions of the 16th Amendment conferred no new power of taxation, but simply prohibited the previous complete and plenary power of income taxation possessed by Congress from the beginning from being taken out of the category of indirect taxation to which it inherently belonged, and being placed in the category of direct taxation."

The Court clearly held that income taxes inherently belonged to the indirect/excise tax class, but had been converted by Pollock to direct taxes by considering the source of the income; the 16th Amendment merely banished the rule in Pollock. See also Tyee Realty Co. v. Anderson, 240 U.S. 115, 36 S.Ct. 281 (1916), decided the same day.

Subsequently, there was a ruling on the issue in the case of William E. Peck and Co. v. Lowe, 247 U.S. 165, 172-73, 38 S.Ct. 432, 433 (1918), which involved a tax imposed on export earnings:

"The Sixteenth Amendment, although referred to in argument, has no real bearing and may be put out of view. As pointed out in recent decisions, it does not extend the taxing power to new or excepted subjects, but merely removed all occasion, which otherwise might exist, for an apportionment among the states of taxes laid on income, whether it be derived from one source or another."

The federal district courts deviated from these Supreme Court rulings subsequently as part of a "judicial conspiracy to uphold the income tax" described elsewhere in section 6.6. For instance, in Parker v. Commissioner, 724 F.2d. 469, 471 (5th Cir. 1984), the court clearly rejected the contention that income taxes are an excise:

"The Supreme Court promptly determined in Brushaber... that the sixteenth amendment provided the needed constitutional basis for the imposition of a direct non-apportioned income tax."

"The sixteenth amendment merely eliminates the requirement that the direct income tax be apportioned among the states."

"The sixteenth amendment was enacted for the express purpose of providing for a direct income tax."

In Coleman v. Commissioner, 791 F.2d. 68, 70 (7th Cir. 1986), the court held that an argument that this tax was an excise was frivolous on its face ("The power thus long predates the Sixteenth Amendment, which did no more than remove the apportionment requirement...").

In United States v. Francisco, 614 F.2d. 617, 619 (8th Cir. 1980), that court declared that Brushaber held this tax to be a direct one:

"The cases cited by Francisco clearly establish that the income tax is a direct tax, thus refuting the argument based upon his first theory. See Brushaber v. Union Pacific Railroad Co., 240 U.S. 1, 19, 36 S.Ct. 236, 242, 60 L.Ed. 493 (1916) (the purpose of the Sixteenth Amendment was to take the income tax 'out of the class of excises, duties and imposts and place it in the class of direct taxes')."

Finally, in United States v. Lawson, 670 F.2d. 923, 927 (10th Cir. 1982), that court expressed in the following fashion its contempt for the contention that the federal income tax was an indirect excise tax:

"Lawson's 'jurisdictional' claim, more accurately a constitutional claim, is based on an argument that the Sixteenth Amendment only authorizes excise-type taxes on income derived from activities that are government-licensed or otherwise specially protected... The contention is totally without merit... The Sixteenth Amendment"

<sup>33</sup> In this decision, there is a very lengthy sentence which contains the following phrase: "... by which alone such taxes were removed from the great class of excises, duties and imposts subject to the rule of uniformity, and were placed under the other or direct class," 240 U.S., at 19. This phrase and the one at the very end of this paragraph are almost identical. This language was used to describe the contention the Court was rejecting, not approving.

1 removed any need to apportion income taxes among the states that otherwise would have been required by Article
2 I, Section 9, Clause 4."

3 A direct tax applies to and taxes property while an indirect, excise tax is never imposed on property but usually a business
4 event such as sales; see Bromley v. McCaughn, 280 U.S. 124, 50 S.Ct. 46, 47 (1929).<sup>34</sup> The federal appellate courts which
5 now hold that an income tax is a direct property tax believe that income is property.<sup>35</sup>

6 Income is property according to St. Louis Union Trust Co. v. United States, 617 F.2d. 1293, 1301 (8th Cir. 1980). Accrued
7 wages and salaries are likewise property; see Sims v. United States, 252 F.2d. 434, 437 (4th Cir. 1958), aff'd., 359 U.S. 108,
8 79 S.Ct. 641 (1959); and Kolb v. Berlin, 356 F.2d. 269, 271 (5th Cir. 1966). Even private employment and a profession are 9 considered property; see United States v. Briggs, 514 F.2d. 794, 798 (5th Cir. 1975). In James v. United States, 970 F.2d.
10 750, 755, 756 n. 11 (10th Cir. 1992), the 10th Circuit made it clear that income is property. Pursuant to United States v.
11 Lawson, supra, the Tenth Circuit declares that the property known as income is subject to tax under the view that the 16th
12 Amendment eliminated the apportionment requirement for a specific class of property known as income.

13 5.1.14 The "Elevator Speech" Version of the History of the Federal Income Tax Fraud

14 Readers commonly ask us:

15 "Your book is great, and is so thorough about analyzing all the issues and providing very compelling evidence
16 and debate to support all your arguments. The trouble is, it's hard to get my relatives and friends interested or
17 motivated enough to read your whole large book. Can you give me a very short synopsis of the income tax fraud
18 that I could tell someone in a short enough time to communicate the essential elements during an elevator ride?
19 You know, kind of like the 10 second sound bite version that I can yell off a street corner or put into a short
20 pamphlet? That's about the attention span these days of a media saturated culture, you know, and we have to 21 meet them where they are at!"

22 Good question! In responding to this query, we must remember the words of one of the most brilliant scientists who ever
23 lived, Albert Einstein, when he said:

24 "The essence of genius is simplicity."

25 The remainder of this section is our attempt to answer this request in as simple and short a way as I know how. It sums up
26 the several hundred pages in this book into one concise brief statement in order to help you get the word out:

27 _____
28 To summarize the federal income tax fraud, what the federal government did to create the "appearance" of a lawful income
29 tax on natural persons is the following, in the order it was accomplished:

- 30 1. Starting in 1862 to fund the Civil War, Congress passed a municipal donation program that only applies to privileged 31 elected federal employees within the District of Columbia and to federal territories and possessions. See 12 Stat. 432.
32 These "employees" were all officers of the federal corporation called the "United States" identified in 28 U.S.C.
33 §3002(15)(A). The "privilege" that was being "taxed" was that of holding a public office, which is called a "trade or 34 business" in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26). The definition of "employee" found in 5 U.S.C. §2105 continues to be entirely 35 consistent with this scheme.
- 36 2. They fraudulently called this donation or "kickback" program a "tax", even though the Supreme Court admitted it isn't.
37 See section 5.1.2 earlier.
- 38 3. Following the Civil War in 1871, an Act of Congress, 19 Stat. 419, made the District of Columbia into a federal 39 corporation so that this municipal donation program could be made to "appear" like a "tax" on the officers of this federal 40 corporation service in the District of Columbia.

<sup>35</sup> At least one court has declared that the term "income" is not defined in the Internal Revenue Code; see United States v. Ballard, 535 F.2d. 400, 404 (8th Cir. 1976).

4. Starting with the Revenue Act of 1932, subjected federal judges to IRS terrorism and extortion in order to get them on their side as enforcers and corrupters of the system. This program of extortion was made permanent in 1938, when the Supreme Court wrongfully declared in O'Malley v. Woodrough, 307 U.S. 277 (1939) that it was Constitutional.
5. Since that time, they have:
  - 5.1. Created the Internal Revenue "Code" in 1939.
  - 5.2. Passed the Public Salary Tax Act of 1939 and the Buck Act in 1940, in order to unlawfully make the I.R.C. apply within federal areas in the exterior limits of the states.
  - 5.3. Obfuscated and confused the "code" over the years to expand its operation, all the while knowing full well that the I.R.C. was repealed in 1939 (see 53 Stat. 1) and has never been "positive law". That which is not positive law cannot be enforced against those who do not consent.
6. Congress repealed the Internal Revenue Code in 1939 just before the start of the Second World War and then forgot to tell everyone it was repealed. This made the I.R.C. into a state-sponsored religion for all those who obeyed it from that point on. See:

53 Stat. 1, SEDM Exhibit #05.027

<http://sedm.org/Exhibits/ExhibitIndex.htm>

7. Then they spent decades propagandizing American Nationals in the states into thinking that this "tax", which is really just a federal public officer "kickback program" and a voluntary franchise, applied to them. They did so as follows:
  - 7.1. Produced misleading and deceptive IRS publications
  - 7.2. By refusing to acknowledge or admit the truth about the limited scope of their jurisdiction. In short, they "played stupid".
  - 7.3. Encouraging people to file the wrong tax form: the 1040. The 1040NR is the correct form for Americans domiciled in states of the Union on other than federal territory. This created a false presumption that people domiciled in the states were "U.S. citizens" and "residents" domiciled within the federal zone and subject to federal legislative jurisdiction, when in fact, they were not. This gave the IRS court-admissible evidence that they could use as a basis to launch bogus enforcement actions against sovereign American Nationals in the states.
  - 7.4. Instituted an "Enrolled agent" program to "license" tax professionals so that they could be manipulated and propagandized, and have their license pulled and starve to death if they told the truth about the IRS fraud.
  - 7.5. Using "words of art" on government forms that are not defined on the form or in the statutes, such as "State", "United States", "employee", "income", knowing full well that all these terms refer ONLY to the U.S. government and not any state of the Union or the people domiciled therein.
8. They started a program called Agreements on Coordination of Tax Administration (A.C.T.A.) in 1949 and promised the states "kickbacks" from this extortion if they would sign an agreement with the Secretary of the Treasury. This got the states involved in the fraud and created financial incentives for them to help the IRS expand this illegal organized crime and conspiracy against rights by helping them break down the separation of taxing powers between the states and the federal government. The states at the point became a party to expanding the propaganda to get their citizens participating in the federal system, because if they didn't, then they most couldn't collect anything from state citizens because the Bill of Rights made that process too difficult. This destroyed the separation of powers between the state and federal government by causing states of the Union to act like the federal "States" described in the Buck Act, 4 U.S.C. §110(d).
9. The IRS then launched an automated, computerized, paper-terrorism campaign with their IDRS system throughout the 50 states and outside of their jurisdiction to illegally enforce this donation program. Since the IRS had no implementing regulations authorizing enforcement, they encouraged "voluntary compliance" through:
  - 9.1. Constructive fraud in their publications, which the federal courts refused to hold them accountable for.
  - 9.2. Incorrect telephone support advice, which the federal courts also refused to hold them accountable for.
  - 9.3. Encouraging "false presumption" in their treatment of Americans.
  - 9.4. Scare tactics on their website.
  - 9.5. Mistreatment of selected famous personalities that would get a lot of media coverage.
  - 9.6. Careful use of the media through their "Press Releases" website.
  - 9.7. Terrorizing tax publishers like Ernst and Young to change their publications to deceive Americans.
10. The IRS met with little resistance to the above illegal efforts at enforcement within the states because of the relative legal ignorance of most people.

The legal profession conspired with the IRS in this extortion because doing so would increase their revenues, power, and control over the society. In the process, they committed a constructive fraud, but the corrupt federal courts let them get away with it because their salaries were paid by the money they were extorting. The cite below from the U.S. Supreme Court helps clarify the validity of this approach:

"... [Counsel] has contended, that Congress must be considered in two distinct characters. In one character as legislating for the states; in the other, as a local legislature for the district [of Columbia]. In the latter character,

1 it is admitted, the power of levying direct taxes may be exercised; but, it is contended, for district purposes only,
 2 in like manner as the legislature of a state may tax the people of a state for state purposes. Without inquiring at
 3 present into the soundness of this distinction, its possible influence on the application in this district of the first
 4 article of the constitution, and of several of the amendments, may not be altogether unworthy of consideration."
 5 [Loughborough v. Blake, 18 U.S. 317 (1820)]

6 5.2 Federal Jurisdiction to Tax

7 "Giving money and power to government is like giving Whiskey and Car keys to teenage boys"
 8 [P.J O'Rourke, Parliament of Whores]

9 "The difference between death and taxes is death doesn't get worse every time Congress meets."
 10 [Will Rogers, 1920's]

11 After reading our thorough discussion of the law in chapter 3, you ought to have a good idea the legal background we are 12 operating in. Now let's apply that to the case of an American national living and working in the 50 United States who has 13 income only from within the 50 Union states of the United States of America. We will find out from this section that the 14 federal government has jurisdiction to tax only the following items. We are showing this picture because "a picture is worth
 15 a thousand words", as they say. This picture applies ONLY to states of the Union, by the way. There are NO LIMITS upon 16 federal taxation within the federal zone or abroad, because neither of these two places are protected by the Constitution:

17 Table 5-17: Constitutional federal jurisdictions for taxation

18 NOTES:

- 19 1. The Sixteenth Amendment did NOT eliminate the constitutional requirement for apportionment of direct or capitation 20 taxes, but simply placed all taxes on income in the category of indirect excise taxes, to which they inherently belonged.
 21 2. "Excise taxes" may only be placed on the sale or manufacture of goods which are imported from foreign countries.
 22 Excise taxes are synonymous to "privilege" taxes and apply only to corporations and the profits of corporations, but 23 not to natural born persons.
 24 3. Excise taxes may not be placed on exports from states or sales between two entities entirely within a single state. This
 25 requirement comes from Article 1, Section 9, Clause 5 (1:9:5) of the Constitution, which states:

26 Article 1, Section 9, Clause 5

27 No Tax or Duty shall be laid on Articles exported from any State.

- 28 4. The supreme Court case of Flint v. Stone Tracy Co., 220 U.S. 107 (1911) defined excise taxes as:

1 "...taxes laid upon the manufacture, sale, or consumption of commodities within the country, upon licenses to
2 pursue occupations, and upon corporate privileges."

- 3 5. When the supreme Court said "licenses", they meant licenses granted by the taxing authority. For instance, under 4 I.R.C., Subtitle A, one must be a federal corporation or franchise with a domicile in the federal zone and involved in
5 foreign commerce in order to be liable for excise taxes. The same thing goes for state income taxes.
6 6. If you want to avoid income taxes altogether as a corporation, then just make sure that you have no profits and that all
7 profits are passed on to the wage earners through a means such as employee ownership of the corporation.

8 Before a court can hear a matter dealing with jurisdiction, at least one of two elements that make up jurisdiction must be 9 present. We now quote Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, on this subject:

10 "Subject matter jurisdiction: This term refers to a court's power to hear and determine cases of the general
11 class or category to which proceedings in question belong; the power to deal with the general subject involved
12 in the action. Standard Oil Co. v. Montecatini Edison S. p. A., D.C.Del., 342 F.Supp. 125, 129. See also 13 Jurisdiction of the Subject matter."
14 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1425]

15 "Territorial jurisdiction: Territory over which a government or a subdivision thereof, or court, has jurisdiction.
16 State v. Cox, 106 Utah 253, 147 P.2d. 858, 861. Jurisdiction considered as limited to cases arising or persons
17 residing within a defined territory, as, a country, a judicial district, etc. The authority of any court is limited by 18 the boundaries thus fixed. See also Extraterritorial jurisdiction: Jurisdiction."
19 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1473]

20 Lastly, if you would like to know more about the subject of the federal tax jurisdiction, we have prepared a whole line of 21 deposition questions on the subject useful in an IRS audit or deposition that basically backs the government into the corner
22 of admitting based on facts and evidence and their own words that they have absolutely no basis to assert jurisdiction to 23 impose federal taxes upon sovereign Americans such as yourself. It is at:

Tax Deposition Questions, Family Guardian Fellowship
<http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Forms/Discovery/Deposition/Deposition.htm>

24 Look under section 3 of the questions entitled "Jurisdiction" for some rather compelling evidence showing that what we are 25 saying here is true.

26 5.2.1 Territorial Jurisdiction

27 Defining jurisdiction is the key to understanding what Congress can lawfully tax. This is the same as the way the real 28 estate field works:

29 "The three key things in deciding property value are location, location, and location!"

30 In the case of the government, we could rewrite this as :

31 "The three key things in deciding the amount of tax that can be extracted/extorted is location, jurisdiction, and 32 what the ignorance and apathy of the voters will let you get away with!"

33 In this section, we'll establish the jurisdiction of the federal government of the United States. We have compiled a list of a 34 few court cases and statutory citations that confirm the importance of jurisdiction and geographical boundaries and their
35 extent when establishing the relevancy of the federal tax code:

36 "The law of Congress in respect to those matters do not extend into the territorial limits of the states, but have 37 force only in the District of Columbia, and other places that are within the exclusive jurisdiction of the national
38 government."
39 [Caha v. United States, 152 U.S. 211 (March 5, 1894)]

40 ". . . the states are separate sovereigns with respect to the federal government. The states are no less sovereign
41 with respect to each other than they are with respect to the federal government. The Court expressly refused to 42 find that only state and federal government could be considered distinct sovereign with respect to each other: '
43 [Heath v. Alabama, 474 U.S. 82 (December 3, 1985)]

1 "All legislation is prima facie territorial."
2 American Banana Co. v. United Fruit Co., [213 U.S. 347, at 357-358 (1909)]

3 "A canon of construction which teaches that of Congress, unless a contrary intent appears, is meant to apply
4 only within the territorial jurisdiction of the United States."
5 U.S. v. Spelar, [338 U.S. 217 at 222 (1949)]

6 NOTE: An example of this construction and limitation is found in Title 18 USC (Criminal 7 Code) at §7 which specifies such jurisdiction outside of any particular state. The Federal
8 income tax of 1939 recorded in the Statues at Large of October 3, 1913 on page 177 states
9 the limitation to be only that of "any Federal territory, Alaska, District of Columbia, Puerto
10 Rico and Philippine Islands." Alaska is now a Sovereign state and the Philippine islands
11 are no longer a territory of the United States** and you cannot find any reference to these 12 former territories in the Internal Revenue Code. Why is that?

13 "The United States government is a foreign corporation with respect to a state."
14 [N.Y. v. re: Merriam, 36 N.E. 505, 141 N.Y. 479, Affirmed 16 S.Ct. 1973, 41 L.Ed. 287]

15 "Legislation is presumptively territorial and confined to the limits over which the law making power has 16 jurisdiction."
17 N.Y. R.R. v. Chisholm, [268 U.S. 29 at 31-32 (1925)]

18 In addition to these cases, the most enlightening case of all on the subject of federal jurisdiction and the division of 19 responsibilities between the states and the Federal government is the supreme Court case of U.S. v. Lopez, 514 U.S. 549
20 (1995). This case firmly establishes that the only thing that the federal government can regulate or tax within states are 21 activities that impact commerce between states, under the Commerce Clause of the U.S. Constitution, Article 1, Section 8,
22 Clause 3. There is no other constitutional basis for any federal taxation or intervention within a sovereign state than the 23 Commerce Clause. Direct taxes on citizens assessed within states violate the Commerce Clause and usurp the power,
24 sovereignty, and authority of the states and implementation of such taxes by the IRS and the Treasury should have been 25 declared unconstitutional by all federal courts long ago.

26 Now that we have established the importance of geography and sovereignty of the states vis a vis the Federal Government,
27 let's look at the definitions of the term "United States". Looking into the IRC we find specifics about the definition of the 28 "United States". It is not the same as the "United States of America".

29 1. "United States": general definition for the entire Title 26. This definition is to be used in all chapters, sub-chapter, sections,
30 sub-sections, etc., unless there is another definition for the "United States" for that specific chapter, sub-chapter, section, sub-
31 section, etc.":

32 Sec. 7701 Definitions:

33 (a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent
34 thereof—

35 (9) United States. The term "United States" when used in the geographical sense includes only the States and the 36 District Of Columbia.

37 2. Section 3121 of the I.R.C. deals with the Rate of tax, in Subchapter A - Tax on Employees of Chapter 21-Federal Insurance
38 Contributions Act (FICA). This definition is for chapter 21 ONLY. This definition does not apply to any other chapter, 39 subchapter, section subsection, etc.

40 Sec. 3121 Definitions: (e) State, United States and citizen.

41 For purposes of this chapter -(2) United States. The term "United States" when used in the geographical sense
42 includes the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, Guam, and American Samoa.

43 3. Section 3306 deals with Chapter 23-Federal Unemployment Tax Act. This definition is for Chapter 23 ONLY. This 44 definition does not apply to any other chapter, subchapter, section subsection, etc.

45 Sec. 3306 Definitions:

1 (j) State, United States and citizen. For purposes of this chapter –

2 (2) United States. The term "United States" when used in the geographical sense includes the Commonwealth of 3 Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, Guam, and American Samoa.

4 From these citations, we can clearly infer that jurisdiction and geography are the foundation of all laws! That is why
5 references to legitimate "sources" of tax are so important and why they can't be ignored, even though the Congress and the 6 IRS would like for you to do so! This section also explains the otherwise absurd definitions of the following two terms found
7 earlier in the document:

8 Employee: An officer or employee of the federal government (see section 3.11.1.3 and 26 U.S.C. § 3401(c))

9 State: The District of Columbia (see section 3.12.1.19 and 26 U.S.C. § 7701).

10 5.2.2 Sovereignty: Key to Understanding Federal Territorial Jurisdiction

11 The concept of sovereignty is the key to understanding federal jurisdiction. First, let's define the term from Black's Law
12 Dictionary, Sixth Edition, page 1396:

13 "sovereignty. The power to do everything in a state without accountability, --to make laws, to execute and to 14 apply them, to impose and collect taxes and levy contributions, to make war or peace, to form treaties of alliance
15 or of commerce with foreign nations, and the like.

16 Sovereignty in government is that public authority which directs or orders what is to be done by each member
17 associated in relation to the end of the association. It is the supreme power by which any citizen is governed and 18 is the person or body of persons in the necessary existence of the state and that right and power which necessarily 19 follow is "sovereignty." By "sovereignty" in its largest sense it means supreme, absolute, uncontrollable power,
20 the absolute right to govern. The word which by itself comes nearest to being the definition of "sovereignty" is 21 will or volition as applied to political affairs. City of Bisbee v. Cochise County, 52 Ariz. 1, 78 P.2d. 982, 986."
22 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1396]

23 The issue of sovereignty as it relates to jurisdiction is the foundation of understanding our system of government under
24 the Constitution. In the most common sense of the word, "sovereignty" is autonomy, freedom from external control. The 25 sovereignty of any government usually extends up to, but not beyond, the geographical borders of its jurisdiction. This 26 jurisdiction defines a specific territorial boundary which separates the "external" from the "internal", the "within" from the 27 "without", or the "domestic" from the "foreign". It may also define a specific function, or set of functions, which a 28 government may lawfully perform within a particular geographic boundary.

29 Sovereignty is a term to be used very thoughtfully and carefully. In fact, in America, it is the foundation for all governmental 30 authority, because it is always delegated downwards from the true source of sovereignty, the People themselves! This is the 31 entire basis of our Constitutional Republic as follows:

32 "The ultimate authority ... resides in the people alone."
33 James Madison, [The Federalist, No. 46.]

34
35 "Whatever these Constitutions and laws validly determine to be property, it is the duty of the Federal Government,
36 through the domain of jurisdiction merely Federal, to recognize to be property.

37 "And this principle follows from the structure of the respective Governments, State and Federal, and their
38 reciprocal relations. They are different agents and trustees of the people of the several States, appointed with 39 different powers and with distinct purposes, but whose acts, within the scope of their respective jurisdictions,
40 are mutually obligatory."
41 [Dred Scott v. Sandford, 60 U.S. 393 (1856)]
42

43 "While sovereign powers are delegated to ... the government, sovereignty itself remains with the people..."
44 Yick Wo v. Hopkins, [118 U.S. 356 (1886)]

45 "There is no such thing as a power of inherent sovereignty in the government of the United States .... In this 46 country sovereignty resides in the people, and Congress can exercise no power which they have not, by their 47 Constitution entrusted to it: All else is withheld."

[Juilliard v. Greenman, 110 U.S. 421 (1884)]

*"In the United States***, sovereignty resides in the people who act through the organs established by the Constitution. [cites omitted] The Congress as the instrumentality of sovereignty is endowed with certain powers to be exerted on behalf of the people in the manner and with the effect the Constitution ordains. The Congress cannot invoke the sovereign power of the people to override their will as thus declared."*

Perry v. United States, [294 U.S. 330, 353 (1935)]

The "federal zone" is that area over which the sovereignty or "general legislative jurisdiction" or "police powers" of the federal government extends under the authority of Article 1, Section 8, Clause 17 of the U.S. Constitution. It consists of the District of Columbia, the territories and possessions belonging to Congress under Title 48 of the U.S. Code, and a limited amount of land within the states of the Union called "federal enclaves" or "federal areas". Enclaves are often referred to in U.S. government regulations simply as "the states" or "the States", which can and often does deceive people into thinking this means all of the nonfederal land in the 50 sovereign states of the union when in fact it does not in nearly all cases. The U.S. Supreme Court, in the case of Hooven and Allison v. Evatt, confirmed this view in its definition of "United States":

*"The term 'United States' may be used in any one of several senses. [1] It may be merely the name of a sovereign* occupying the position analogous to that of other sovereigns in the family of nations. [2] It may designate the territory over which the sovereignty of the United States** extends, or [3] it may be the collective name of the states*** which are united by and under the Constitution."*

Hooven & Allison Co. v. Evatt, [324 U.S. 652 (1945)]

Note that only the second definition of the term "United States" above uses the word "sovereignty", and this area is the "federal zone". Let's clarify the other word, "territory" used in this second definition:

"Various meanings are sought to be attributed to the term 'territory' in the phrase 'the United States and all territory subject to the jurisdiction thereof.' We are of opinion that it means the regional areas- of land and adjacent waters-over which the United States claims and exercises dominion and control as a sovereign power. The immediate context and the purport of the entire section show that the term is used in a physical and not a metaphorical sense-that it refers to areas or districts having fixity of location and recognized boundaries. See United States v. Bevans, 3 Wheat. 336, 390.

*"It now is settled in the United States and recognized elsewhere that the territory subject to its jurisdiction includes the land areas under its dominion and control, the ports, harbors, bays and other enclosed arms of the sea along its coast and a marginal belt of the sea extending from the coast line outward a marine league, or three geographic miles. Church v. Hubbard, 2 Cranch, 187, 234; The Ann, 1 Fed.Cas. No. 397, p. 926; United States v. Smiley, 27 Fed.Cas. No. 16317, p. 1132; Manchester v. Massachusetts, 139 U.S. 240, 257, 258 S., 11 Sup.Ct. 559; Louisiana v. Mississippi, 202 U.S. 1, 52, 26 S.Sup.Ct. 408; 1 Kent's Com. (12th Ed.) *29; 1 Moore, [\[262 U.S. 100, 123\]](#) International Law Digest, 145; 1 Hyde, International Law, 141, 142, 154; Wilson, International Law (8th Ed.) 54; Westlake, International Law (2d Ed.) p. 187, et seq; Wheaton, International Law (5th Eng. Ed. [Phillipson]) p. 282; 1 Oppenheim International Law (3d Ed.) 185-189, 252. This, we hold, is the territory which the amendment designates as its field of operation; and the designation is not of a part Cunard S.S. Co. v. Mellon, [262 U.S. 100, 43 S.Ct. 504 (1923)]*

An examination of the authoritative publication called Words and Phrases also clarifies the distinction between a sovereign Union "state" and a federal "territory":

"A territory is not a state, nor are the words "territory" and "state" used as synonymous or convertible terms in the acts of Congress. For instance, in 1853, Congress passed "An act regulating the fees and costs in the several states." By act of 1855 Congress extended the provisions of the act of 1853 to the territories 'as fully in all particulars as they would be had the word 'territories' been inserted after the word 'states,'" and the act had read in the several states and territories of the United States. Smith v. U.S., 1 Wash.T. 262, 268. See Brigh Dig. Pp. 273, 279."

"The "state" is only a corporate name for all the citizens within certain territorial limits. Regents of University System of Georgia v. Blanton, 176 S.E. 673, 49 Ga.App. 602."

"State" means a body of people occupying definite territory and politically organized under one government. City of Norwalk v. Daniele, 119 A.2d 732, 735, 143 Conn. 85."
[40 Words and Phrases, p. 12-20.]

So Union "states" are not "territories" of the federal government. They are, instead, independent sovereignties and are not part of the "sovereignty" of the federal government in a general sense. This was confirmed by the U.S. Supreme Court in the case of Clyatt v. U.S., 197 U.S. 207 (1905), which was a case about slavery and the Thirteenth Amendment which we quote

1 below. Note how the court distinguishes in its ruling between “sovereignty of the United States” and “the states” (note the 2 capitalization of the word “states” by the way).

3 “Other authorities to the same effect might be cited. It is not open to doubt that Congress may enforce the
4 Thirteenth Amendment by direct legislation, punishing the holding of a person in slavery or in involuntary
5 servitude except as a punishment for a crime. In the exercise of that power Congress has enacted these sections
6 denouncing peonage, and punishing one who holds another in that condition of involuntary servitude. This
7 legislation is not limited to the territories or other parts of the strictly national domain, but is operative in the
8 states and wherever the sovereignty of the United States extends. We entertain no doubt of the validity of this
9 legislation, or of its applicability to the case of any person holding another in a state of peonage, and this whether
10 there be municipal ordinance or state law sanctioning such holding. It operates directly on every citizen of the 11 Republic, wherever his residence may be.”

12 [Clyatt v. U.S., 197 U.S. 207 (1905)]

13 In the above, if the term “sovereignty of the United States” and “the states” were equivalent, then the sentence “This 14 legislation ...is operative in the states and whenever the sovereignty of the United States extends” would be redundant
15 and unnecessary. Below is another example of how the states of the union are sovereign and independent of the federal 16 government, again right from the mouth of the U.S. Supreme Court:

17 “The several States of the Union are not, it is true, in every respect independent, many of the right and powers
18 *which originally belonged to them being now vested in the government created by the Constitution. But, except 19 as restrained and limited by that instrument, they possess and exercise the authority of independent States, and 20 the principles of public law to which we have referred are applicable to them. One of these principles is, that
21 every State possesses exclusive jurisdiction and sovereignty over persons and property within its territory. As a*
22 consequence, every State has the power to determine for itself the civil status [e.g. citizenship] and capacities of 23 its inhabitants; to prescribe the subjects upon which they may contract, the forms and solemnities with which
24 their contracts shall be executed, the rights and obligations arising from them, and the mode in which their
25 validity shall be determined and their obligations enforced; and also the regulate the manner and conditions upon
26 which property situated within such territory, both personal and real, may be acquired, enjoyed, and transferred.
27 *The other principle of public law referred to follows from the one mentioned; that is, that no State can exercise
28 direct jurisdiction and authority over persons or property without its territory. Story, Confl. Laws, c. 2; Wheat.*
29 Int. Law*, pt. 2, c. 2. The several States are of equal dignity and authority, and the independence of one implies 30 the exclusion of power from all others.

31 [Pennoyer v. Neff, 95 U.S. 714 (1877)]

32 The federal zone area, which we abbreviate as “United States**” throughout this book or simply as the “federal United States”
33 is described in the Treasury Regulations as follows:

34 *“The term “United States**” when used in a geographical sense includes any territory under the sovereignty of 35 the United States**. It includes the [federal enclaves with the] states, the District of Columbia, the possessions*
36 *and territories of the United States**, the territorial waters of the United States**, the air space over the United
37 States**, and the seabed and subsoil of those submarine areas which are adjacent to the territorial waters of the* 38 United States** and over which the United States** has exclusive rights, in accordance with international law,*
39 with respect to the exploration and exploitation of natural resources.”

40 [26 C.F.R. §1.911-2(g) ]

41 Unfortunately, nowhere in the Internal Revenue Code or Treasury Regulations does it indicate how to distinguish between 42 “United States” in its geographic sense indicated above, and “United States” in any of the other two senses defined by the 43 Supreme Court in Hooven, nor do they say that the geographic sense is the only sense in which that term is used in the code
44 or regulations. Consequently, once again, the Internal Revenue Code is “void for vagueness” and unenforceable, as we point 45 out later in section 5.10 of this chapter.

46 A nation or state has no jurisdiction outside its own territory, as made clear by the U.S. supreme Court in Dred Scott v. John
47 F.A. Sanford, 60 U.S. 393 (1856):

48 “Every State or nation possesses an exclusive sovereignty and jurisdiction within her own territory, and her laws
49 affect and bind all property and persons residing within it. It may regulate the manner and circumstances under
50 which property is held, and the condition, capacity, and state of all persons therein, and also the remedy and
51 modes of administering justice. And it is equally true that no State or nation can affect or bind property out of 52 its territory, or persons not residing within it. No State therefore can enact laws to operate beyond its own
53 dominions, and if it attempts to do so, it may be lawfully refused obedience. Such laws can have no inherent 54 authority extraterritorially. This is the necessary result of the independence of distinct and separate 55 sovereignities.”

1 Now it follows from these principles that whatever force or effect the laws of one State or nation may have in the 2 territories of another must depend solely upon the laws and municipal regulations of the latter, upon its own
 3 jurisprudence and polity, and upon its own express or tacit consent."
 4 [Dred Scott v. John F.A. Sanford, 60 U.S. 393 (1856)]

IMPORTANT NOTE: In law, everything outside the "territory" (which describes the "exclusive" or "general" sovereignty, sometimes also called "plenary jurisdiction") of a nation or state is considered "foreign" with respect to it. It is absolutely crucial that you understand this concept. A person born in a state of the Union, for instance, is called a "national" but not a "citizen" under federal law, and his status is defined in 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21) but not limited or regulated in any way. The reason for this is clear, by reading the case above

"As a consequence, every State has the power to determine for itself the civil status [e.g. citizenship] and capacities of its inhabitants" [ . . . ] The several States are of equal dignity and authority, and the independence of one implies the exclusion of power from all others.
 [Pennoyer v. Neff, 95 U.S. 714 (1877)]

A "national but not a citizen" is "foreign" with respect to federal government because he does not come under the jurisdiction of its law, and therefore is called a "non-resident non-person" under the tax code. If they are also engaged in a public office, they become a "nonresident alien". The definition of "nonresident alien" confirms this, noting that a "national" fits the criteria for being a "nonresident alien":

26 U.S.C. §7701\(b\)\(1\)\(B\)

An individual is a nonresident alien if such individual is neither a citizen of the United States nor a resident of the United States (within the meaning of subparagraph (A)).

Most people in ordinary speech have an aversion to being called an "alien" or a "non-resident non-person" or "nonresident alien" in respect to the federal government. Our corrupted politicians and the legal profession have capitalized on this "cognitive dissonance" by refusing to cover such important subjects as the "Separation of Powers Doctrine" in the public school curricula or in the IRS publications. Understanding the Separation of Powers Doctrine can have profound effect on how we describe our status on government forms. The fact that most Americans do not understand this important concept has caused them to misrepresent their status to the Internal Revenue Service by submitting the wrong tax form, the 1040. The correct form for a person born in a state of the Union is the 1040NR, and not the 1040 with the following attached:

1. Tax Form Attachment, Form #04.201
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>
2. Affidavit of Citizenship, Domicile, and Tax Status, Form #02.001
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

The 1040NR form is completed by "nonresident aliens". The fact that the term "foreign" is nowhere defined in the Internal Revenue Code is no accident, and results from the fact that your public dis-servants do not want you to know about the Separation of Powers Doctrine and its effect on their jurisdiction over you. They want to undermine and destroy your sovereignty by devious legal means, because it makes the job of governing you "more convenient" and empowering for them. SCUM BAGS!

If Americans would just learn how the Separation of Powers Doctrine works and not have an aversion to being called a "nonresident alien", then we could at least have hope that things would get better and that the federal government would once again be put back inside the legal box that the founders bequeathed to us.

5 None of the 50 united States comes under the general sovereignty of the federal "United States*" under Article 1, Section
 6 8, Clause 17 of the Constitution, nor are the nonfederal areas of the 50 Union states subject to the exclusive rights
 7 jurisdiction of the federal government. Therefore, we must conclude that the term "the states" in 26 C.F.R. §1.911-2(g) above
 8 refers only to federal enclaves inside the borders of the sovereign states, and most people do NOT live in these areas.
 9 Furthermore, 26 C.F.R. §1.911-2(h) reveals that anything outside the "federal zone" is considered a "foreign country",
 10 including the 50 Union states united by the Constitution!:

26 C.F.R. §1.911-2\(h\):

1           “The term “foreign country” when used in a geographical sense includes any territory under the sovereignty of
 2 a government other than that of the [federal] United States**. It includes the territorial waters of the foreign
 3 country (determined in accordance with the laws of the United States**), the air space over the foreign country,
 4 and the seabed and subsoil of those submarine areas which are adjacent to the territorial waters of the foreign
 5 country and over which the foreign country has exclusive rights, in accordance with international law, with 6 respect to the exploration and exploitation of natural resources.”

7 That’s right(!): all of the 50 sovereign states are foreign with respect to each other and are under the exclusive sovereignty of
 8 their respective legislatures, except where a specific power has been expressly delegated to Congress over lands within their
 9 borders. For cases where such a specific power has been delegated by the states to the federal government, this is called 10 “subject matter jurisdiction” rather than “territorial jurisdiction”. Each of these states, in turn, is also foreign to the territorial
 11 jurisdiction of the U.S. government for the purposes of income taxes as well. The Citizens of each Union state are foreigners
 12 and aliens with respect to another Union state, unless they establish a domicile therein under the laws of that Union state.
 13 Otherwise, they are “nonresident aliens” with respect to all the other Union states and with respect to the Internal Revenue
 14 Code, Subtitle A. As far as legal fictions such as corporations, “domestic” corporations within a state are those corporations
 15 chartered within that state. Those corporations chartered in other states are considered “foreign corporations”. Here are a 16 few quotes to back this up:

17           Foreign Laws: “The laws of a foreign country or sister state.”
 18 [Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 647]

19           Foreign States: “Nations outside of the United States...Term may also refer to another state; i.e. a sister state.
 20 The term ‘foreign nations’, ...should be construed to mean all nations and states other than that in which the
 21 action is brought; and hence, one state of the Union is foreign to another, in that sense.”
 22 [Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 648]

23 When the U.S. Supreme Court is trying to describe places where the “sovereignty” of a state or the federal government is 24 exclusive and complete and entire, their favorite word is “plenary”:

25           “Plenary. Full, entire, complete, absolute, perfect, unqualified. Mashunkashney v. Mashunkashney, 191 Okl.
 26 501, 134 P.2d. 976, 979.”
 27 [Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1154]

28 Here are a few examples of how the U.S. Supreme Court uses the word “plenary”:

29           “In the states, there reposes the sovereignty to manage their own affairs except only as the requirements of the 30 Constitution otherwise provide. Within these constitutional limits the power of the state over taxation is
 31 plenary.”
 32 [Madden v. Commonwealth of Kentucky, 309 U.S. 83 (1940)]

33           “In dealing with the meaning and application of an act of Congress enacted in the exercise of its plenary
 34 power under the Constitution to tax income and to grant exemptions from that tax, it is the will of Congress
 35 which controls, and the expression of its will, in the absence of language evidencing a different purpose, should 36 be interpreted 'so as to give a uniform application to a nation-wide scheme of taxation'. Burnet v. Harmel, 287
 37 U.S. 103, 110, 53 S.Ct. 74, 77. Congress establishes its own criteria and the state law may control only when the 38 federal taxing act by express language or necessary implication makes its operation dependent upon state law.
 39 Burnet v. Harmel, supra. See Burk-Waggoner Oil Association v. Hopkins, 269 U.S. 110, 111, 114 S., 46 S.Ct. 48,
 40 49; Weiss v. Wiener, 279 U.S. 333, 49 S.Ct. 337; Morrissey v. Commissioner, 296 U.S. 344, 356, 56 S.Ct. 289,
 41 294. Compare Crooks v. Harrelson, 282 U.S. 55, 59, 51 S.Ct. 49, 50; Poe v. Seaborn, 282 U.S. 101, 109, 110
 42 S., 51 S.Ct. 58; Blair v. Commissioner, 300 U.S. 5, 9, 10 S., 57 S.Ct. 330, 331.”
 43 [Lyeth v. Hoey, 305 U.S. 188, 59 S.Ct. 155 (1938)]

44 Notice in the above that the term “state” is in lower case, because the court is talking about federal statutes, and in these 45 statutes, states of the Union are “foreign countries” and are not part of the general sovereignty of the federal government.
 46 The Supreme Court basically says in Madden above that the power of the states in regards to taxation is plenary within their 47 own borders, which means it is absolute and isn’t shared with anyone, including the federal government. You will also find
 48 out in sections 7.4.1 and 7.4.2 of the Tax Fraud Prevention Manual, Form #06.008 that “Acts of Congress” mentioned in
 49 Lyeth above only have force within the “federal zone” and nowhere else by default. The subject of the Madden case above
 50 is a state tax. The court said that the power of the state government to impose taxes on persons within their borders who are
 51 “U.S. citizens” is “plenary”, which means unrestrained or not limited by federal taxing powers. In doing so, they overruled
 52 Colgate v. Harvey, 296 U.S. 404 (1935), which was a case that made state citizen status inferior to that of federal or 53 constitutional “U.S. citizen” status. Reading Madden further confirms that Madden was a constitutional “U.S. citizen”,

1 because the Mr. Madden's executor counsel claimed that Mr. Madden was a constitutional "U.S. citizen" who came under
2 the "privileges and immunities clause" of the Fourteenth Amendment:

3 "II. Privileges and Immunities.-

4 The appellant [for Mr. Madden, the deceased] presses urgently upon us the argument that the privileges and
5 immunities clause of the Fourteenth Amendment of the Constitution of the United States forbids the 6 enforcement by the Commonwealth of Kentucky of this enactment which imposes upon the testator taxes five
7 times as great on money deposited in banks outside the State as it does on money of others deposited in banks
8 within the State. The privilege or immunity which appellant contends is abridged is the right to carry on business
9 beyond the lines of the State of his residence, a right claimed as appertaining to national citizenship. "
10 [Madden v. Commonwealth of Kentucky, 309 U.S. 83 (1940)]

11 To summarize, we need to think of Congress as "City Hall" for the "federal zone". In 1820, Justice Marshall described it this 12 way:

13 "... [Counsel] has contended, that Congress must be considered in two distinct characters. In one character as
14 legislating for the states; in the other, as a local legislature for the district [of Columbia]. In the latter character,
15 it is admitted, the power of levying direct taxes may be exercised; but, it is contended, for district purposes only,
16 in like manner as the legislature of a state may tax the people of a state for state purposes. Without inquiring at
17 present into the soundness of this distinction, its possible influence on the application in this district of the first
18 article of the constitution, and of several of the amendments, may not be altogether unworthy of consideration. "
19 [Loughborough v. Blake, 18 U.S. 317 (1820)]

20 The two distinct characters are mentioned again in a case the following year heard before the same Supreme Court, Cohens
21 v. Virginia, 6 Wheat. 264, 5 L.Ed. 257 (1821):

22 "It is clear that Congress as a legislative body, exercises two species of legislative power: the one, limited as to
23 its objects but extending all over the Union; the other, an absolute, exclusive legislative power over the District
24 of Columbia."

25 The problem thus becomes one of deciding which of these "two distinct jurisdictions" is being referred to in the context of 26 whatever tax statute or citizenship statute we are reading. The IRC language used to express the meaning of the word "State"
27 is arguably the best place to undertake a careful diagnosis of this split personality. However, one good place to start appears
28 in the cite below, which establishes that we should assume in any law passed by Congress that the jurisdiction they are
29 referring to is only the federal zone and not the 50 Union states, unless an express contrary intent is clearly shown:

30 "A canon of [statutory] construction which teaches that of Congress, unless a contrary intent appears, is meant 31 to apply only within the territorial jurisdiction of the United States."
32 [U.S. v. Spelar, 338 U.S. 217 at 222 (1949)]

33 The reasons why we must conclude that federal statutes only apply within the federal zone by default are very clear: the 34 federal government has no "police powers" within the borders of the states, as we covered thoroughly under section 4.9.
35 "Police powers" are synonymous with "legislative jurisdiction" or "criminal jurisdiction". 40 U.S.C. §3112 abundantly
36 confirms these conclusions by stating that the federal government has no jurisdiction within the borders of a state of the union
37 except by an act of the legislature ceding specific lands to the federal government.

38 A very interesting exposition on the relationship of the states to the federal government can be found in the book entitled
39 Conflicts in a Nutshell, Third Edition, David D. Siegel and Patrick J. Borchers, ISBN 0-314-160669-3, West Publishing. This 40 exposition helps underscore the content of this section. On pp. 39-41 of this document, we find the following very revealing
41 quote:

42 §22 Federal Subject Matter Jurisdiction

43 Because of our federal system, in which more than 50 sovereigns function within the framework of a national 44 sovereign, the federal court structure is unique in that its principal trial court, the U.S. District Court, is a
45 court of limited rather than general jurisdiction. The state is left to supply the "general" court. The federal 46 constitution permits Congress to confer on federal courts of its creation only such jurisdiction as is outlined in 47 section 2 of Article III. Hence the source of these federal limitations is the constitution itself.

48 Even within the federal system, however, one can find courts of general jurisdiction. Areas within the jurisdiction
49 of the United States that lack their own sovereignty, and thus a court system of their own, must depend on the
50 federal legislature for a complete court system: the District of Columbia and the few remaining territories of the United States are in this category. For them, Congress has the power (from Article I of the constitution for the District and from Article IV of the constitution for the territories) to create courts of general jurisdiction. But Congress has no such power with respect to the states, for which reason all of the federal courts sitting within the states, including the district courts, must trace their powers to those within the limits of Article III and are hence courts of "limited" jurisdiction.

This is one reason why issues of subject matter jurisdiction arise more frequently in the federal system than in state courts. Another is that for a variety of reasons, federal jurisdiction is often preferred by a plaintiff who has a choice of forums. Taken together, this means that more cases near the subject matter jurisdiction borderline appear in the federal than in the state courts.

One of the major sources of federal subject matter jurisdiction is the diversity of citizenship of the parties. It authorizes federal suit even though the dispute involves no issues of federal law. The statute that authorizes this jurisdiction, however (28 U.S.C.A. §1332), requires that there be more than $75,000 in controversy. A plaintiff near that figure and who wants federal jurisdiction will try for it, while a defendant who prefers that the state courts hear the case may try to get it dismissed from federal court on the ground that it can't support a judgment for more than $75,000.

A major source of federal jurisdiction is that the case "arises under" federal law, the phrase the constitution itself uses (Article III, §2). Unless it so arises, there is no subject matter jurisdiction under this caption, and whether it does or does not is often the subject of a dispute between the parties to a federal action.

For these and other reasons, the study of "subject matter" jurisdiction is a more extensive one in federal than in state practice. Indeed, a law school course on federal courts is likely to be devoted in the main to subject matter jurisdiction, with a correspondingly similar time allotment left for mere procedure, rather the reverse of what usually occurs in a course studying the state courts. [Conflicts in a Nutshell, Third Edition, David D. Siegel and Patrick J. Borchers, ISBN 0-314-160669-3, West Publishing, pp. 39-41]

To give you an idea of the extent of federal jurisdiction relating to various areas of law, we've prepared a table summarizing the jurisdiction of the federal government in various subject matters. A picture is worth a thousand words, and this table is the equivalent of a picture of federal sovereignty and jurisdiction. The important thing to remember as you examine the table below is that Subtitle A personal income taxes are indirect excise taxes which apply to persons and federal corporations domiciled within the federal zone as per Eisner v. Macomber, 252 U.S. 189 (1920). This conclusion explains items 6 and 7:

EXAMPLE: 1:9:4=Article 1, Section 9, Clause 4 of the U.S. Constitution.

NOTE: The federal government may only reach inside the borders of a sovereign state for the sake of enforcing areas over which the government has subject matter jurisdiction, because it cannot have territorial jurisdiction and cannot be sovereign there. Sovereignty is only exercised when the type of jurisdiction is exclusively territorial. This point is very important to remember when you read the Constitution.

5.2.3 Two Species of Federal Legislative Jurisdiction

Before we proceed further, we need to remember that our Congress legislates for two jurisdictions. In the United States of America, there are two (2) separated and distinct jurisdictions,

1. The jurisdiction of states of the Union within their own state boundaries. These areas are subject to the sovereignty of the states and the federal government can only have subject matter but not territorial jurisdiction or sovereignty within these areas. Any federal courts created or authorized by legislation or the Constitution to adjudicate matters in these areas must come under Article III of the U.S. Constitution. An example of an Article III court is the Supreme Court. District and Circuit courts of the United States are Article I territorial courts that do not have jurisdiction within states of the Union.
2. Federal jurisdiction (United States), which is limited to the District of Columbia, the U.S. Territories and possessions, and federal enclaves within the states, under Article I, Section 8, Clause 17 of the federal Constitution as well as to federal property wherever located. We call these areas the “federal zone” within this book. These areas are subject only to the general or plenary sovereignty of the U.S. government, and do not come under the jurisdiction of the states of the Union except by mutual agreement between the federal government and a state in a cession document. Any federal courts created by legislation to address matters exclusively within these areas are Article I (of the Constitution) courts. An example of an Article I court is the U.S. Tax Court. Article III courts can also address issues within these areas, but are exercising Article I powers when they do so. Portions of the federal zone are without Constitutional protections, and it is only in those areas where direct taxes or taxes on natural persons can lawfully be collected. In most cases, the areas without Constitutional protections are limited to U.S. territories such as Guam, Puerto Rico, American Samoa, and the Virgin Islands, which are also called federal States and are listed in Title 48 of the U.S. Code.

As we described in detail earlier in sections 4.8 and 4.11.4, only those areas that do not have Constitutional protections, that is the Bill of Rights, can be the proper subject of unapportioned direct taxes on natural persons. These areas are, in almost all cases, federal territories. It is also true that the only place anywhere where the U.S. Congress has the authority or legislative power to suspend the operation of any part of the Constitution is in U.S. territories and enclaves within the states that have never been under the protection of the U.S. Constitution. With this in mind, we can then turn a critical eye at a highly suspect piece of legislation below to establish precisely where Subtitle A federal income taxes can properly apply:

United States Code
 TITLE 28 - JUDICIARY AND JUDICIAL PROCEDURE
 PART VI - PARTICULAR PROCEEDINGS
 CHAPTER 151 - DECLARATORY JUDGMENTS
 Sec. 2201. Creation of remedy

*(a) In a case of actual controversy within its jurisdiction, EXCEPT with respect to Federal taxes other than actions brought under section 7428 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, a proceeding under section 505 or 1146 of title 11, or in any civil action involving an antidumping or countervailing duty proceeding regarding a class or kind of merchandise of a free trade area country (as defined in section 516A(f)(10) of the Tariff Act of 1930), as determined by the administering authority, any court of the United States, upon the filing of an appropriate pleading, may declare the rights and other legal relations of any interested party seeking such declaration, whether or not further relief is or could be sought. Any such declaration shall have the force and effect of a final judgment or decree and shall be reviewable as such.

(b) For limitations on actions brought with respect to drug patents see section 505 or 512 of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act.

So what the Congress is saying in the above statute that it authored, is that federal courts, in the case of Subtitle A income tax cases (which apply mainly to natural persons) may not address RIGHTS, and the rights they are talking about are the Bill of Rights, which are the first fourteen amendments to the Constitution! But wait a minute: Congress is bound by the Constitution and they can't legislate it out of existence in the 50 Union states. Even the Supreme Court admitted this:

“The Constitution had attached to it irrevocably. There are steps which can never be taken backward. The tie that bound the states of Maryland and Virginia to the Constitution could not be dissolved, without at least the consent of the Federal and state governments to a formal separation. The mere cession of the District of Columbia to the Federal government relinquished the authority of the states, but it did not take it out of the United States or from under the aegis of the Constitution. Neither party had ever consented to that construction of the cession. If, before the District was set off, Congress had passed an unconstitutional act affecting its inhabitants, it would have been void."

[Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901)]

There is only one place where the Congress can pass legislation that suspends enforcement of the Constitution, and that is in Constitution Article I, II, or IV courts inside the federal zone or Article III courts in administering laws that only apply to the federal zone or abroad. This ought to be a BIG clue that Subtitle A federal income taxes can only apply in federal territories that are already devoid of Constitutional protections. This can be confirmed by reading the rest of the Supreme Court Case of Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901), cited above:

"Loughborough v. Blake, 5 Wheat. 317, 5 L.Ed. 98, was an action of trespass or, as appears by the original record, replevin, brought in the circuit court for the District of Columbia to try the right of Congress to impose a direct tax for general purposes on that District. 3 Stat. at L. 216, chap. 60. It was insisted that Congress could act in a double capacity: in one as legislating [182 U.S. 244, 260] for the states; in the other as a local legislature for the District of Columbia. In the latter character, it was admitted that the power of levying direct taxes might be exercised, but for District purposes only, as a state legislature might tax for state purposes; but that it could not legislate for the District under art. 1, 8, giving to Congress the power 'to lay and collect taxes, imposts, and excises,' which 'shall be uniform throughout the United States,' inasmuch as the District was no part of the United States. It was held that the grant of this power was a general one without limitation as to place, and consequently extended to all places over which the government extends; and that it extended to the District of Columbia as a constituent part of the United States. The fact that art. 1, 2, declares that 'representatives and direct taxes shall be apportioned among the several states . . . according to their respective numbers' furnished a standard by which taxes were apportioned, but not to exempt any part of the country from their operation. 'The words used do not mean that direct taxes shall be imposed on states only which are represented, or shall be apportioned to representatives; but that direct taxation, in its application to states, shall be apportioned to numbers.' That art. 1, 9, 4, declaring that direct taxes shall be laid in proportion to the census, was applicable to the District of Columbia, 'and will enable Congress to apportion on it its just and equal share of the burden, with the same accuracy as on the respective states. If the tax be laid in this proportion, it is within the very words of the restriction. It is a tax in proportion to the census or enumeration referred to.' It was further held that the words of the 9th section did not 'in terms require that the system of direct taxation, when resorted to, shall be extended to the territories, as the words of the 2d section require that it shall be extended to all the states. They therefore may, without violence, be understood to give a rule when the territories shall be taxed, without imposing the necessity of taxing them.'"

"There could be no doubt as to the correctness of this conclusion, so far, at least, as it applied to the District of Columbia. This District had been a part of the states of Maryland and [182 U.S. 244, 261] Virginia. It had been subject to the Constitution, and was a part of the United States[***]. The Constitution had attached to it irrevocably. There are steps which can never be taken backward. The tie that bound the states of Maryland and Virginia to the Constitution could not be dissolved, without at least the consent of the Federal and state governments to a formal separation. The mere cession of the District of Columbia to the Federal government relinquished the authority of the states, but it did not take it out of the United States or from under the aegis of the Constitution. Neither party had ever consented to that construction of the cession. If, before the District was set off, Congress had passed an unconstitutional act affecting its inhabitants, it would have been void. If done after the District was created, it would have been equally void; in other words, Congress could not do indirectly, by carving out the District, what it could not do directly. The District still remained a part of the United States, protected by the Constitution. Indeed, it would have been a fanciful construction to hold that territory which had been once a part of the United States ceased to be such by being ceded directly to the Federal government."

This means that direct Subtitle A income taxes can't apply in the sovereign 50 Union states, the District of Columbia (which was formerly covered by Constitutional protections before it was ceded to the federal government), or federal enclaves within states that were formerly owned by the state prior to being ceded to the federal government. The only exception to this exclusion is that it can apply voluntarily to natural persons domiciled outside the federal zone, which means you have to volunteer into federal jurisdiction by volunteering to become a "taxpayer" subject to the Internal Revenue Code who has an effective domicile within the federal zone under 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(39). This is done by filing an IRS Form W-4 or submitting a 1040 form rather than the correct 1040NR form.

The territorial jurisdiction that all Congressional legislation is intended to apply to absent a clearly expressed intent to the contrary is the second jurisdiction from above, which are federal zone areas coming under Article 1, Section 8, Clause 17 of the U.S. Constitution as revealed by the U.S. Supreme Court below in U.S. v. Spelar, 338 U.S. 217 at 222 (1949):

"A canon of construction which teaches that of Congress, unless a contrary intent appears, is meant to apply only within the territorial jurisdiction of the United States."

As you will learn in the next few sections, states of the Union are “foreign” with respect to the federal government for the purposes of legislative jurisdiction. The federal/general government has no “police powers” or legislative jurisdiction within states of the Union, as pointed out by the Supreme Court. Keep in mind that the term “legislation” in the quote below INCLUDES the Internal Revenue Code, folks!:

5.2.4 The Three Geographical Definitions of “United States”

Most of us are completely unaware that the term “United States” has several distinct and separate legal meanings and that it is up to us to know and understand these differences, to use them appropriately, and to clarify exactly which one we mean whenever we sign any government or financial form (including voter registration, tax documents, etc). If we do not, we could unknowingly, unwillingly and involuntarily be creating false presumptions that cause us to surrender our Constitutional rights and our sovereignty. The fact is, most of us have unwittingly been doing just that for most, if not all, of our lives. Much of this misunderstanding and legal ignorance has been deliberately “manufactured” by our corrupted government in the public school system. It is a fact that our public dis-servants want docile sheep who are easy to govern, not “high maintenance” sovereigns capable of critical and independent thinking and who demand their rights. We have become so casual in our use of the term “United States” that it is no longer understood, even within the legal profession, that there are actually three different legal meanings to the term. In fact, the legal profession has contributed to this confusion over this term by removing its definitions from all legal dictionaries currently in print that we have looked at. See Section 6.13.1 for details on this scam.

Most of us have grown up thinking the term “United States” indicates and includes all 50 states of the Union. This is true in the context of the U.S. Constitution but it is not true in all contexts. As you will see, this is the third meaning assigned to the term “United States” by the United States Supreme Court. But, usually when we (Joe six pack) use the term United States we actually think we are saying the united States, as we are generally thinking of the several states or the union of States. As you will learn in this section, the meaning of the term depends entirely on the context and when we are filling out federal forms or speaking with the federal government, this is a very costly false presumption.

First, it should be noted that the term United States is a noun. In fact, it is the proper name and title “We the people...” gave to the corporate entity (non-living thing) of the federal (central) government created by the Constitution. This in turn describes where the “United States” federal corporation referenced in 28 U.S.C. §3002(15)(A) was to be housed as the Seat of the Government - In the District of Columbia, not to exceed a ten mile square.

*Constitution
Article 1, Section 8, Clause 17*

To exercise exclusive Legislation in all Cases whatsoever, over such District (not exceeding ten Miles square) as may, by Cession of particular States, and the Acceptance of Congress, become the Seat of the Government of the United States, and to exercise like Authority over all Places purchased by the Consent of the Legislature of the State in which the Same shall be for the Erection of Forts, Magazines, Arsenals, dock-Yards, and other needful Buildings;—And [underlines added]

Below is how the united States Supreme Court addressed the question of the meaning of the term “United States” (see Black’s Law Dictionary) in the famous case of Hooven & Allison Co. v. Evatt, 324 U.S. 652 (1945). The Court ruled that the term United States has three uses:

*“The term ‘United States’ may be used in any one of several senses. It may be merely the name of a sovereign occupying the position analogous to that of other sovereigns in the family of nations. It may designate the territory over which the sovereignty of the United States extends, or it may be the collective name of the states which are united by and under the Constitution.”

We will now break the above definition into its three contexts and show what each means.

Table 5-19: Meanings assigned to “United States” by the U.S. Supreme Court in *Hooven & Allison v. Evatt

You are a "Citizen of the United States" like someone is a Citizen of France, or England. We identify this version of "United States" with a single asterisk after its name: "United States*" throughout this article.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |

Here Congress has exclusive legislative jurisdiction. In this sense, the term "United States" is a singular noun. You are a person residing in the District of Columbia, one of its Territories or Federal areas (enclaves). Hence, even a person living in the one of the sovereign States could still be a member of the Federal area and therefore a "citizen of the United States." This is the definition used in most "Acts of Congress" and federal statutes. We identify this version of "United States" with two asterisks after its name: "United States" throughout this article. This definition is also synonymous with the "United States" corporation found in 28 U.S.C. §3002(15)(A).     |

The federal areas within these states are not included in this definition because the Congress does not have exclusive legislative authority over any of the 50 sovereign States within the Union of States . Rights are retained by the States in the 9th and 10th Amendments, and you are a " Citizen of these united States ." This is the definition used in the Constitution for the United States of America. We identify this version of "United States" with a three asterisks after its name: "United States" throughout this article. |

1 The U.S. Supreme Court helped to clarify which of the three definitions above is the one used in the U.S. Constitution, when
 2 it held the following. Note they are implying the THIRD definition above and not the other two:

3 "The earliest case is that of Hepburn v. Ellzey, 2 Cranch, 445, 2 L.Ed. 332, in which this court held that, under
 4 that clause of the Constitution limiting the jurisdiction of the courts of the United States to controversies between
 5 citizens of different states, a citizen of the District of Columbia could not maintain an action in the circuit court
 6 of the United States. It was argued that the word 'state,' in that connection, was used simply to denote a distinct
 7 political society. 'But,' said the Chief Justice, 'as the act of Congress obviously used the word 'state' in reference
 8 to that term as used in the Constitution, it becomes necessary to inquire whether Columbia is a state in the sense
 9 of that instrument. The result of that examination is a conviction that the members of the American confederacy
 10 only are the states contemplated in the Constitution . . . and excludes from the term the signification attached
 11 to it by writers on the law of nations.' This case was followed in Barney v. Baltimore, 6 Wall. 280, 18 L.Ed.
 12 825, and quite recently in Hooe v. Jamieson, 166 U.S. 395, 41 L.Ed. 1049, 17 Sup.Ct.Rep. 596. The same rule
 13 was applied to citizens of territories in New Orleans v. Winter, 1 Wheat. 91, 4 L.Ed. 44, in which an attempt
 14 was made to distinguish a territory from the District of Columbia. But it was said that 'neither of them is a
 15 state in the sense in which that term is used in the Constitution.' In Scott v. Jones, 5 How. 343, 12 L.Ed. 181,
 16 and in Miners' Bank v. Iowa ex rel. District Prosecuting Attorney, 12 How. 1, 13 L.Ed. 867, it was held that under 17 the judiciary act, permitting writs of error to the supreme court of a state in cases where the validity of a state
 18 statute is drawn in question, an act of a territorial legislature was not within the contemplation of Congress."
 19 [Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901) ]

20 The Supreme Court further clarified that the Constitution implies the third definition above, which is the United States***
 21 when they held the following. Notice that they say "not part of the United States within the meaning of the Constitution" and 22 that the word "the" implies only ONE rather than multiple meanings:

23 "As the only judicial power vested in Congress is to create courts whose judges shall hold their offices during
 24 good behavior, it necessarily follows that, if Congress authorizes the creation of courts and the appointment of 25 judges for limited time, it must act independently of the Constitution upon territory which is not part of the 26 United States within the meaning of the Constitution."
 27 [O'Donoghue v. United States, 289 U.S. 516, 53 S.Ct. 740 (1933)]

28 And finally, the U.S. Supreme Court has also held that the Constitution does not and cannot determine or limit the authority
 29 of Congress over federal territory and that the ONLY portion of the Constitution that does in fact expressly refer to federal 30 territory and therefore the statutory "United States" is Article 1, Section 8, Clause 17. Notice they ruled that Puerto Rico is

1 NOT part of the "United States" within the meaning of the Constitution, just like they ruled in O'Donoghue above that
2 territory was no part of the "United States":

3 *In passing upon the questions involved in this and kindred cases, we ought not to overlook the fact that, while the
4 Constitution was intended to establish a permanent form of government for the states which should elect to 5 take advantage of its conditions, and continue for an indefinite future, the vast possibilities of that future could
6 never have entered the minds of its framers. The states had but recently emerged from a war with one of the 7 most powerful nations of Europe, were disheartened by the failure of the confederacy, and were doubtful as to 8 the feasibility of a stronger union. Their territory was confined to a narrow strip of land on the Atlantic coast
9 from Canada to Florida, with a somewhat indefinite claim to territory beyond the Alleghenies, where their 10 sovereignty was disputed by tribes of hostile Indians supported, as was popularly believed, by the British, who 11 had never formally delivered possession [182 U.S. 244, 285] under the treaty of peace. The vast territory beyond
12 the Mississippi, which formerly had been claimed by France, since 1762 had belonged to Spain, still a powerful
13 nation and the owner of a great part of the Western Hemisphere. Under these circumstances it is little wonder
14 that the question of annexing these territories was not made a subject of debate. The difficulties of bringing 15 about a union of the states were so great, the objections to it seemed so formidable, that the whole thought of 16 the convention centered upon surmounting these obstacles. The question of territories was dismissed with a
17 single clause, apparently applicable only to the territories then existing, giving Congress the power to govern
18 and dispose of them.*

19 Had the acquisition of other territories been contemplated as a possibility, could it have been foreseen that, within 20 little more than one hundred years, we were destined to acquire, not only the whole vast region between the 21 Atlantic and Pacific Oceans, but the Russian possessions in America and distant islands in the Pacific, it is
22 incredible that no provision should have been made for them, and the question whether the Constitution should 23 or should not extend to them have been definitely settled. If it be once conceded that we are at liberty to acquire 24 foreign territory, a presumption arises that our power with respect to such territories is the same power which
25 other nations have been accustomed to exercise with respect to territories acquired by them. If, in limiting the 26 *power which Congress was to exercise within the United States***], it was also intended to limit it with regard*
27 *to such territories as the people of the United States***] should thereafter acquire, such limitations should* 28 have been expressed. Instead of that, we find the Constitution speaking only to states, except in the territorial
29 clause, which is absolute in its terms, and suggestive of no limitations upon the power of Congress in dealing 30 with them. The states could only delegate to Congress such powers as they themselves possessed, and as they
31 had no power to acquire new territory they had none to delegate in that connection. The logical inference from 32 this is that if Congress had power to acquire new territory, which is conceded, that power was not hampered
33 by the constitutional provisions. If, upon the other hand, we assume [182 U.S. 244, 286] that the territorial 34 clause of the Constitution was not intended to be restricted to such territory as the United States then possessed,
35 there is nothing in the Constitution to indicate that the power of Congress in dealing with them was intended to 36 be restricted by any of the other provisions.

38 If those possessions are inhabited by alien races, differing from us in religion, customs, laws, methods of taxation,
39 and modes of thought, the administration of government and justice, according to Anglo-Saxon principles, may
40 for a time be impossible; and the question at once arises whether large concessions ought not to be made for a
41 time, that ultimately our own theories may be carried out, and the blessings of a free government under the 42 Constitution extended to them. We decline to hold that there is anything in the Constitution to forbid such action.

43 We are therefore of opinion that the island of Porto Rico is a territory appurtenant and
44 belonging to the United States, but not a part of the United States***] within the revenue
45 clauses of the Constitution; that the Foraker act is constitutional, so far as it imposes duties upon imports
46 from such island, and that the plaintiff cannot recover back the duties exacted in this case.
47 [Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901)]

48 Another important distinction needs to be made. Definition 1 above refers to the country "United States*", but this country
49 is not a "nation", in the sense of international law. This very important point was made clear by the U.S. Supreme Court in 50 1794 in the case of Chisholm v. Georgia, 2 Dall. (U.S.) 419, 1 L.Ed. 440 (1793), when it said:

51 This is a case of uncommon magnitude. One of the parties to it is a State; certainly respectable, claiming to be
52 sovereign. The question to be determined is, whether this State, so respectable, and whose claim soars so high,
53 is amenable to the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court of the United States? This question, important in itself,
54 will depend on others, more important still; and, may, perhaps, be ultimately resolved into one, no less radical
55 than this 'do the people of the United States form a Nation?'

56 A cause so conspicuous and interesting, should be carefully and accurately viewed from every possible point of 57 sight. I shall examine it; 1st. By the principles of general jurisprudence. 2nd. By the laws and practice of 58 *particular States and Kingdoms. From the law of nations little or no

illustration of this subject can be expected. By that law the several States and Governments spread over our globe, are considered as forming a society, not a NATION.

It has only been by a very few comprehensive minds, such as those of Elizabeth and the Fourth Henry, that this last great idea has been even contemplated. 3rdly, and chiefly, I shall examine the important question before us, by the Constitution of the United States, and the legitimate result of that valuable instrument.
[Chisholm v. Georgia, 2 Dall. (U.S.) 419, 1 L.Ed. 440 (1793)]

Black's Law Dictionary further clarifies the distinction between a "nation" and a "society" by clarifying the differences between a national government and a federal government, and keep in mind that our government is called "federal government":

"NATIONAL GOVERNMENT. The government of a whole nation, as distinguished from that of a local or territorial division of the nation, and also as distinguished from that of a league or confederation.

"A national government is a government of the people of a single state or nation, united as a community by what is termed the "social compact," and possessing complete and perfect supremacy over persons and things, so far as they can be made the lawful objects of civil government. A federal government is distinguished from a national government by its being the government of a community of independent and sovereign states, united by compact." Piqua Branch Bank v. Knoup, 6 Ohio.St. 393.
[Black's Law Dictionary, Revised Fourth Edition, 1968, p. 1176]

"FEDERAL GOVERNMENT. The system of government administered in a state formed by the union or confederation of several independent or quasi independent states; also the composite state so formed.

In strict usage, there is a distinction between a confederation and a federal government. The former term denotes a league or permanent alliance between several states, each of which is fully sovereign and independent, and each of which retains its full dignity, organization, and sovereignty, though yielding to the central authority a controlling power for a few limited purposes, such as external and diplomatic relations. In this case, the component states are the units, with respect to the confederation, and the central government acts upon them, not upon the individual citizens. In a federal government, on the other hand, the allied states form a union, - not, indeed, to such an extent as to destroy their separate organization or deprive them of quasi sovereignty with respect to the administration of their purely local concerns, but so that the central power is erected into a true state or nation, possessing sovereignty both external and internal, -while the administration of national affairs is directed, and its effects felt, not by the separate states deliberating as units, but by the people of all, in their collective capacity, as citizens of the nation. The distinction is expressed, by the German writers, by the use of the two words "Staatenbund" and "Bundesstaat;" the former denoting a league or confederation of states, and the latter a federal government, or state formed by means of a league or confederation."
[Black's Law Dictionary, Revised Fourth Edition, 1968, p. 740]

So the "United States*" the country is a "society" and a "sovereignty" but not a "nation" under the law of nations, by the Supreme Court's own admission. Because the Supreme Court has ruled on this matter, it is now incumbent upon each of us to always remember it and to apply it in all of our dealings with the Federal Government. If not, we lose our individual Sovereignty by default and the Federal Government assumes jurisdiction over us. So, while those who wish to preserve their sovereign immunity will want to be the third type of Citizen, which is a "Citizen of the United States**" and on occasion a "citizen of the United States*", he would never want to be the second, which is a "citizen of the United States**". A human being who is a "citizen" of the second is called a statutory "U.S. citizen" under 8 U.S.C. §1401, and he is treated in law as occupying a place not protected by the Bill of Rights, which is the first ten amendments of the United States Constitution. Below is how the U.S. Supreme Court, in a dissenting opinion, described this "other" United States, which we call the "federal zone":

"I take leave to say that, if the principles thus announced should ever receive the sanction of a majority of this court, a radical and mischievous change in our system of government will result. We will, in that event, pass from the era of constitutional liberty guarded and protected by a written constitution into an era of legislative absolutism.."

"The idea prevails with some, indeed it has found expression in arguments at the bar, that we have in this country substantially two national governments; one to be maintained under the Constitution, with all of its restrictions; the other to be maintained by Congress outside the independently of that instrument, by exercising such powers [of absolutism] as other nations of the earth are accustomed to..

[...]

It will be an evil day for American liberty if the theory of a government outside the supreme law of the land finds lodgment in our constitutional jurisprudence. No higher duty rests upon this court than to exert its full authority to prevent all violation of the principles of the Constitution.
Downes v. Bidwell, [182 U.S. 244 (1901), Justice Harlan, Dissenting]

The second definition of “United States**” above is also a federal corporation. This corporation was formed in 1871. It is described in 28 U.S.C. §3002(15)(A):

TITLE 28 > PART VI > CHAPTER 176 > SUBCHAPTER A > Sec. 3002.
TITLE 28 - JUDICIARY AND JUDICIAL PROCEDURE
PART VI - PARTICULAR PROCEEDINGS
CHAPTER 176 - FEDERAL DEBT COLLECTION PROCEDURE
SUBCHAPTER A - DEFINITIONS AND GENERAL PROVISIONS
Sec. 3002. Definitions

(15) “United States” means -
(A) a Federal corporation;
(B) an agency, department, commission, board, or other entity of the United States; or
(C) an instrumentality of the United States.

The U.S. Supreme Court, in fact, has admitted that all governments are corporations when it said:

“Corporations are also of all grades, and made for varied objects; all governments are corporations, created by usage and common consent, or grants and charters which create a body politic for prescribed purposes; but whether they are private, local or general, in their objects, for the enjoyment of property, or the exercise of power, they are all governed by the same rules of law, as to the construction and the obligation of the instrument by which the incorporation is made [the Constitution is the corporate charter]. One universal rule of law protects persons and property. It is a fundamental principle of the common law of England, that the term freemen of the kingdom, includes ‘all persons,’ ecclesiastical and temporal, incorporate, politique or natural; it is a part of their magna charta (2 Inst. 4), and is incorporated into our institutions. The persons of the members of corporations are on the same footing of protection as other persons, and their corporate property secured by the same laws which protect that of individuals. 2 Inst. 46-7. ‘No man shall be taken,’ ‘no man shall be disseised,’ without due process of law, is a principle taken from magna charta, infused into all our state constitutions, and is made inviolable by the federal government, by the amendments to the constitution.”
Proprietors of Charles River Bridge v. Proprietors of, [36 U.S. 420 (1837)]

If we are acting as a federal “public official” or contractor, then we are representing the “United States** federal corporation”. That corporation is a statutory “U.S. citizen” under 8 U.S.C. §1401 which is completely subject to all federal law.

“A corporation is a citizen, resident, or inhabitant of the state or country by or under the laws of which it was created, and of that state or country only.”
[19 Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.), Corporations, §886 (2003)]

Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b) says that when we are representing that corporation as “officers” or “employees”, we therefore become statutory “U.S. citizens” completely subject to federal territorial law:

IV. PARTIES > Rule 17.
Rule 17. Parties Plaintiff and Defendant; Capacity

(b) Capacity to Sue or be Sued.

Capacity to sue or be sued is determined as follows:

(1) for an individual who is not acting in a representative capacity, by the law of the individual's domicile;

(2) for a corporation, by the law under which it was organized; and

(3) for all other parties, by the law of the state where the court is located, except that:

(A) a partnership or other unincorporated association with no such capacity under that state's law may sue or be sued in its common name to enforce a substantive right existing under the United States Constitution or laws; and

(B) 28 U.S.C. §§ 754 and 959(a) govern the capacity of a receiver appointed by a United States court to sue or be sued in a United States court.

[Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b)]

1 Yet on every government (any level) document we sign (e.g. Social Security, Marriage License, Voter Registration, Driver's
 2 License, BATF 4473, etc.) they either require you to be a "citizen of the United States" or they ask "are you a resident of
 3 Illinois?". They are in effect asking you to assume or presume the second definition, the "United States**", when you fill
 4 out the form, but they don't want to tell you this because then you would realize they are asking you to commit perjury on a
 5 government form under penalty of perjury. They in effect are asking you if you wish to act in the official capacity of a public
 6 employee of the federal corporation. The form you are filling out therefore is serving the dual capacity of a federal job
 7 application and an application for benefits. The reason this must be so, is that they are not allowed to pay "benefits" to private
 8 citizens and can only lawfully pay them to public employees. Any other approach makes the government into a thief. See 9 the article below for details on this scam:

Why Your Government is Either a Thief or You are a "Public Officer" for Income Tax Purposes, Form #05.008
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

10 If you accept the false and self-serving presumption of your public dis-servants, or you answer "Yes" to the question of 11 whether you are a "citizen of the United States" or a "U.S. citizen" on a federal or state form, usually under penalty of perjury,
 12 then you have committed perjury under penalty of perjury and also voluntarily placed yourself under their exclusive/plenary
 13 legislative jurisdiction as a public official/"employee" and are therefore subject to Federal & State Codes and Regulations
 14 (Statutes). The Social Security Number they ask for on the form, in fact, is prima facie evidence that you are a federal 15 employee, in fact. Look at the evidence for yourself, paying particular attention to sections 6.1, 6.2 and 6.6:

Resignation of Compelled Social Security Trustee, Form #06.002
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

16 Most laws passed by government are, in effect, law only for government. They are private law or contract law that act as the 17 equivalent of a government employment agreement.

18 "The power to "legislate generally upon" life, liberty, and property, as opposed to the "power to provide modes
 19 of redress" against offensive state action, was "repugnant" to the Constitution. Id., at 15. See also United States
 20 v. Reese, 92 U.S. 214, 218 (1876); United States v. Harris, 106 U.S. 629, 639 (1883); James v. Bowman, 190 U.S.
 21 127, 139 (1903). Although the specific holdings of these early cases might have been superseded or modified, see,
 22 e.g., Heart of Atlanta Motel, Inc. v. United States, 379 U.S. 241 (1964); United States v. Guest, 383 U.S. 745
 23 (1966), their treatment of Congress' §5 power as corrective or preventive, not definitional, has not been 24 questioned."
 25 [City of Boerne v. Flores, Archbishop of San Antonio, 521 U.S. 507 (1997)]

26 What the U.S. Supreme Court is saying above is that the government has no authority to tell you how to run your private life.
 27 This is contrary to the whole idea of the Internal Revenue Code, whose main purpose is to monitor and control every aspect
 28 of those who are subject to it. In fact, it has become the chief means for Congress to implement what we call "social 29 engineering". Just by the deductions they offer, people who are not engaged in a "trade or business" and thus have no income
 30 tax liability are incentivized into all kinds of crazy behaviors in pursuit of reductions in a liability that they in fact do not even
 31 have. Therefore, the only reasonable thing to conclude is that Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A, which would "appear" to 32 regulate the private conduct of all individuals in states of the Union, in fact only applies to "public officials" in the official
 33 conduct of their duties while present in the District of Columbia, which 4 U.S.C. §72 makes the "seat of government". The 34 I.R.C. therefore essentially amounts to a part of the job responsibility and the "employment contract" of "public officials".
 35 This was also confirmed by the House of Representatives, who said that only those who take an oath of "public office" are 36 subject to the requirements of the personal income tax. See:

38 We the People, as the Sovereigns, cannot lawfully become the proper subject to exclusive federal jurisdiction unless and until

The W-4 is a federal "election" form and you are the only voter. They are asking you if you want to elect yourself into "public office", and if you say "yes", then you got the job and a cage is reserved for you on the federal plantation:

"The restrictions that the Constitution places upon the government in its capacity as lawmaker, i.e., as the regulator of private conduct, are not the same as the restrictions that it places upon the government in its capacity as employer. We have recognized this in many contexts, with respect to many different constitutional guarantees. Private citizens perhaps cannot be prevented from wearing long hair, but policemen can. Kelley v. Johnson, 425 U.S. 238, 247 (1976). Private citizens cannot have their property searched without probable cause, but in many circumstances government employees can. O'Connor v. Ortega, 480 U.S. 709, 723 (1987) (plurality opinion); id., at 732 (SCALIA, J., concurring in judgment). Private citizens cannot be punished for refusing to provide the government information that may incriminate them, but government employees can be dismissed when the incriminating information that they refuse to provide relates to the performance of their job. Gardner v. Broderick, [497 U.S. 62, 95] 392 U.S. 273, 277-278 (1968). With regard to freedom of speech in particular: Private citizens cannot be punished for speech of merely private concern, but government employees can be fired for that reason. Connick v. Myers, 461 U.S. 138, 147 (1983). Private citizens cannot be punished for partisan political activity, but federal and state employees can be dismissed and otherwise punished for that reason. Public Workers v. Mitchell, 330 U.S. 75, 101 (1947); Civil Service Comm'n v. Letter Carriers, 413 U.S. 548, 556 (1973); Broadrick v. Oklahoma, 413 U.S. 601, 616-617 (1973)."

By making you into a "public official" or "employee", they are intentionally destroying the separation of powers that is the main purpose of the Constitution and which was put there to protect your rights.

"To the contrary, the Constitution divides authority between federal and state governments for the protection of individuals. State sovereignty is not just an end in itself: "Rather, federalism secures to citizens the liberties that derive from the diffusion of sovereign power." Coleman v. Thompson, 501 U.S. 722, 759 (1991) (BLACKMUN, J., dissenting). "Just as the separation and independence of the coordinate branches of the Federal Government serve to prevent the accumulation of excessive power in any one branch, a healthy balance of power between the States and the Federal Government will reduce the risk of tyranny and abuse from either front." Gregory v. [505 U.S. 144, 182] Ashcroft, 501 U.S., at 458. They are causing you to voluntarily waive sovereign immunity under the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act, 28 U.S.C. §1601-1611. 28 U.S.C. §1605\(a\)\(2\) of the act says that those who conduct "commerce" within the legislative jurisdiction of the "United States" (federal zone), whether as public official or federal benefit recipient, surrender their sovereign immunity.

TITLE 28 > PART IV > CHAPTER 97 > § 1605

§ 1605. General exceptions to the jurisdictional immunity of a foreign state

(a) A foreign state shall not be immune from the jurisdiction of courts of the United States or of the States in any case—

(2) in which the action is based upon a commercial activity carried on in the United States by the foreign state; or upon an act performed in the United States in connection with a commercial [employment or federal benefit] activity of the foreign state elsewhere; or upon an act outside the territory of the United States in connection with a commercial activity of the foreign state elsewhere and that act causes a direct effect in the United States;

They are also destroying the separation of powers by fooling you into declaring yourself to be a statutory "U.S.** citizen" under 8 U.S.C. §1401. 28 U.S.C. §1603\(b\)\(3\) and 28 U.S.C. §1332\(e\) specifically exclude such statutory "U.S. citizens" from being foreign sovereigns who can file under statutory diversity of citizenship. This is also confirmed by the Department of State Website:

"Section 1603(b) defines an "agency or instrumentality" of a foreign state as an entity (1) which is a separate legal person, corporate or otherwise, and (2) which is an organ of a foreign state or political subdivision thereof, or a majority of whose shares or other ownership interest is owned by a foreign state or political subdivision thereof, and (3) which is neither a citizen of a state of the United States as defined in Sec. 1332(e) nor created under the laws of any third country."

Department of State Website, [http://travel.state.gov/law/info/judicial/judicial\_693.html]

In effect, they kidnapped your legal identity and made you into a “resident alien federal employee” working in the “king’s castle”, the District of Criminals, and changed your status from “foreign” to “domestic” by creating false presumptions about citizenship and using the Social Security Number, IRS Form W-4, and SSA Form SS-5 to make you into a “subject citizen” and a “public employee” with no constitutional rights.

The nature of most federal law as private/contract law is carefully explained below:

Requirement for Consent, Form #05.003
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

As you will soon read, the government uses various ways to mislead and trick us into their private/contract laws (outside our Constitutional protections) and make you into the equivalent of their “employee”, and thereby commits a great fraud on the American People. It is the purpose of this document to expose the most important aspect of that willful deception, which is the citizenship trap.

5.2.5 Dual sovereignty

An old version of our Test for Federal Tax Professionals document found in section 2.2.1 of the Sovereignty Forms and Instructions Online, Form #10.004 was posted on the MSN Tax Bulletin Board, Jeff Schnepfer and commented on by several readers. One of the readers in that discussion group posted two intriguing U.S. Supreme Court cites to rebut the contents of this book which relate to the subject of sovereignty and which we verified were accurate:

"The laws of the United States are laws in the several States, and just as much binding on the citizens and courts thereof as the State laws are. The United States is not a foreign sovereignty as regards the several States, but is a concurrent, and, within its jurisdiction, paramount sovereignty. Every citizen of a State is a subject of two distinct sovereignties, having concurrent jurisdiction in the State, -concurrent as to place and persons, though distinct as to subject-matter."
[Clafin v. Houseman, 93 U.S. 130, 136 (1876)]

"And the powers of the General Government, and of the State, although both exist and are exercised within the same territorial limits, are yet separate and distinct sovereignties, acting separately and independently of each other, within their respective spheres."
[Ableman v. Booth, 62 U.S. 506, 516 (1858)]

The issue he raised relates to the concept of what we call “dual sovereignty”, and he implied in his comments and his emphasis in the above two cases that there is such a thing as “dual sovereignty” within the states of the union, but is there? Can two entities be simultaneously sovereign over a single geographic region and the same subject matter? Let’s investigate this intriguing matter further, keeping in mind that such controversies result from a fundamental misunderstanding of what “sovereignty” really means.

We allege and a book on Constitutional government also alleges that it is a legal impossibility for two sovereign bodies to enjoy concurrent jurisdiction over the same subject, and especially when it comes to jurisdiction to tax.

"§79. This sovereignty pertains to the people of the United States as national citizens only, and not as citizens of any other government. There cannot be two separate and independent sovereignties within the same limits or jurisdiction; nor can there be two distinct and separate sources of sovereign authority within the same jurisdiction. The right of commanding in the last resort can be possessed only by one body of people inhabiting the same territory, and can be executed only by those intrusted with the execution of such authority."

What detractors are trying to do is deceive you, because they are confusing federal “States” described in federal statutes with states of the Union mentioned in the Constitution. These two types of entities are mutually exclusive and “foreign” with respect to each other.

"The earliest case is that of Hepburn v. Ellzey, 2 Cranch, 445, 2 L.Ed. 332, in which this court held that, under that clause of the Constitution limiting the jurisdiction of the courts of the United States to controversies between citizens of different states, a citizen of the District of Columbia could not maintain an action in the circuit court of the United States. It was argued that the word 'state,' in that connection, was used simply to denote a distinct political society. 'But,' said the Chief Justice, 'as the act of Congress obviously used the word 'state' in reference to that term as used in the Constitution, it becomes necessary to inquire whether Columbia is a state in the sense of that instrument. The result of that examination is a conviction that the members of the American confederacy only are the states contemplated in the Constitution . . . and excludes from the term the signification attached to it by writers on the law of nations.' This case was followed in Barney v. Baltimore, 6 Wall. 280, 18 L.Ed. 825, and quite recently in Hooe v. Jamieson, 166 U.S. 395, 41 L.Ed. 1049, 17 Sup.Ct.Rep. 596. The same rule was applied to citizens of territories in New Orleans v. Winter, 1 Wheat. 91, 4 L.Ed. 44, in which an attempt was made to distinguish a territory from the District of Columbia. But it was said that 'neither of them is a state in the sense in which that term is used in the Constitution.' In Scott v. Jones, 5 How. 343, 12 L.Ed. 181, and in Miners' Bank v. Iowa ex rel. District Prosecuting Attorney, 12 How. 1, 13 L.Ed. 867, it was held that under the judiciary act, permitting writs of error to the supreme court of a state in cases where the validity of a state statute is drawn in question, an act of a territorial legislature was not within the contemplation of Congress." [Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901) ]

The definition of "State" for the purposes of federal income taxes confirms that states of the Union are NOT included within the definitions used in the Internal Revenue Code, and that only federal territories are. This is no accident, but proof that there really is a separation of powers and of legislative jurisdiction between states of the Union and the Federal government:

TITLE 4 - FLAG AND SEAL, SEAT OF GOVERNMENT, AND THE STATES
CHAPTER 4 - THE STATES
Sec. 110. Same; definitions

(d) The term "State" includes any Territory or possession of the United States.

TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > § 7701
§ 7701. Definitions

(a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof—

(10)State

The term "State" shall be construed to include the District of Columbia, where such construction is necessary to carry out provisions of this title.

We like to think of the word "sovereignty" in the context of government as the combination of "exclusive authority" with "exclusive responsibility". The Constitution in effect very clearly divides authority and responsibility for specific matters between the states and federal government based on the specific subject matter, and ensures that the functions of each will never overlap or conflict. It delegates certain powers to each of the two sovereigns and keeps the two sovereigns from competing with each other so that public peace, tranquility, security, and political harmony have the most ideal environment in which to flourish.

If we therefore examine the Constitution and the Supreme court cases interpreting it, we find that the complex division of authority that it makes between the states and the federal government accomplishes the following objectives:

1. Delegates primarily internal matters to the states. These matters involve mainly public health, morals, and welfare and require exclusive legislative authority within the state.

"While the states are not sovereign in the true sense of that term, but only quasi sovereign, yet in respect of all powers reserved to them they are supreme-as independent of the general government as that government within its sphere is independent of the States.' The Collector v. Day, 11 Wall. 113, 124. And since every addition to the national legislative power to some extent detracts from or invades the power of the states, it is of vital moment that, in order to preserve the fixed balance intended by the Constitution, the powers of the general government [298 U.S. 238, 295] be not so extended as to embrace any not within the express terms of the several grants or the implications necessarily to be drawn therefrom. It is no longer open to question that the general government, unlike the states, Hammer v. Dagenhart, 247 U.S. 251, 275, 38 S.Ct. 529, 3 A.L.R. 649, Ann.Cas.1918E 724, possesses no inherent power in respect of the internal affairs of the states; and emphatically not with regard to legislation. The question in respect of the inherent power of that government as to the external affairs of the Nation and in the field of international law is a wholly different matter which it is not necessary now to consider. See, however, Jones v. United States, 137 U.S. 202, 212, 11 S.Ct. 80; Nishimur Ekiu v. United States, 142 U.S. 651, 659, 12 S.Ct. 336; Fong Yue Ting v. United States, 149 U.S. 698, 705 et seq., 13 S.Ct. 1016; Burnet v. Brooks, 288 U.S. 378, 396, 53 S.Ct. 457, 86 A.L.R. 747." [Carter v. Carter Coal Co., 298 U.S. 238, 56 S.Ct. 855 (1936)]

1           “Thus, Congress having power to regulate commerce with foreign nations, and among the several States, and
2 with the Indian tribes, may, without doubt, provide for granting coasting licenses, licenses to pilots, licenses to
3 trade with the Indians, and any other licenses necessary or proper for the exercise of that great and extensive
4 power; and the same observation is applicable to every other power of Congress, to the exercise of which the
5 granting of licenses may be incident. All such licenses confer authority, and give rights to the licensee.

6           But very different considerations apply to the internal commerce or domestic trade of the States. Over this
7 commerce and trade Congress has no power of regulation nor any direct control. This power belongs exclusively
8 to the States. No interference by Congress with the business of citizens transacted within a State is warranted
9 by the Constitution, except such as is strictly incidental to the exercise of powers clearly granted to the
10 legislature. The power to authorize a business within a State is plainly repugnant to the exclusive power of the 11 State over the same subject. It is true that the power of Congress to tax is a very extensive power. It is given in 12 the Constitution, with only one exception and only two qualifications. Congress cannot tax exports, and it must 13 impose direct taxes by the rule of apportionment, and indirect taxes by the rule of uniformity. Thus limited, and
14 thus only, it reaches every subject, and may be exercised at discretion. But, it reaches only existing subjects.
15 Congress cannot authorize a trade or business within a State in order to tax it.”
16 License Tax Cases, [72 U.S. 462, 18 L.Ed. 497, 5 Wall. 462, 2 A.F.T.R. 2224 (1866)]

17 2. Delegates primarily external matters to the federal government, including diplomatic and military and postal and 18 commerce matters. These include such things as:

19 2.1. Article 1, Section 8, Clause 3 of the constitution authorizes the feds to tax and regulate foreign commerce and 20 interstate commerce, but not intrastate commerce.

21 2.2. Article 1, Section 8, Clauses 11-16 authorize the establishment of a military and the authority to make war.

22 2.3. Article 1, Section 8, Clause 4 allows the fed to determine uniform rules for naturalization and immigration from 23 outside the country. However, it does not take away the authority of states to naturalize as well.

24 3. Ensures that the same criminal offense is never prosecuted or punished twice or simultaneously under two sets of laws.

25           “Consequently no State court will undertake to enforce the criminal law of the Union, except as regards the 26 arrest of persons charged under such law. It is therefore clear, that the same power cannot be exercised by a
27 State court as is exercised by the courts of the United States, in giving effect to their criminal laws...”

28           “There is no principle better established by the common law, none more fully recognized in the federal and
29 State constitutions, than that an individual shall not be put in jeopardy twice for the same offense. This, it is 30 true, applies to the respective governments; but its spirit applies with equal force against a double punishment,
31 for the same act, by a State and the federal government.....

32           Nothing can be more repugnant or contradictory than two punishments for the same act. It would be a mockery
33 of justice and a reproach to civilization. It would bring our system of government into merited contempt.”
34 [Fox v. The State of Ohio, 46 U.S. 410, 5 Howard 410, 12 L.Ed. 213 (1847)]

35 4. Ensures that the two sovereigns never tax the same objects or activities, because then they would be competing for 36 revenues.

37           “Two governments acting independently of each other cannot exercise the same power for the same object.”
38 [Fox v. The State of Ohio, 46 U.S. 410, 5 Howard 410, 12 L.Ed. 213 (1847)]

39 As far as the last item above goes, which is that of taxation, however, the U.S. Supreme Court has stated:

40           “The States, after they formed the Union, continued to have the same range of taxing power which they had
41 before, barring only duties affecting exports, imports, and on tonnage. 2 Congress, on the other hand, to lay
42 taxes in order 'to pay the Debts and provide for the common Defence and general Welfare of the United States',
43 Art. 1, Sec. 8, U.S.C.A.Const., can reach every person and every dollar in the land with due regard to 44 Constitutional limitations as to the method of laying taxes.”
45 Graves v. People of State of New York, [306 U.S. 466 (1939)]

46
47           “The difficulties arising out of our dual form of government and the opportunities for differing opinions
48 concerning the relative rights of state and national governments are many; but for a very long time this court
49 has steadfastly adhered to the doctrine that the taxing power of Congress does not extend to the states or their
50 political subdivisions. The same basic reasoning which leads to that conclusion, we think, requires like limitation
51 upon the power which springs from the bankruptcy clause. United States v. Butler, supra.”
52 Ashton v. Cameron County Water Improvement District No. 1, [298 U.S. 513; 56 S.Ct. 892 (1936)]

1 "The grant of the power to lay and collect taxes is, like the power to regulate commerce, made in general terms,
 2 and has never been understood to interfere with the exercise of the same power by the State; and hence has
 3 been drawn an argument which has been applied to the question under consideration. But the two grants are
 4 not, it is conceived, similar in their terms or their nature. Although many of the powers formerly [22 U.S. 1,
 5 199] exercised by the States, are transferred to the government of the Union, yet the State governments remain,
 6 and constitute a most important part of our system. The power of taxation is indispensable to their existence, and
 7 is a power which, in its own nature, is capable of residing in, and being exercised by, different authorities at the 8 same time. We are accustomed to see it placed, for different purposes, in different hands. Taxation is the simple
 9 operation of taking small portions from a perpetually accumulating mass, susceptible of almost infinite division;
 10 and a power in one to take what is necessary for certain purposes, is not, in its nature, incompatible with a power
 11 in another to take what is necessary for other purposes. Congress is authorized to lay and collect taxes, and to 12 pay the debts, and provide for the common defence and general welfare of the United States. This does not 13 interfere with the power of the States to tax [internally] for the support of their own governments; nor is the 14 exercise of that power by the States [to tax INTERNALLY], an exercise of any portion of the power that is 15 granted to the United States [to tax EXTERNALLY]. In imposing taxes for State purposes, they are not doing
 16 what Congress is empowered to do. Congress is not empowered to tax for those purposes which are within the 17 exclusive province of the States. When, then, each government exercises the 18 power of taxation, neither is exercising the power of the other. But,
 19 when a State proceeds to regulate commerce with foreign nations, or among the several States, it is exercising
 20 the very power that is granted to Congress, [22 U.S. 1, 200] and is doing the very thing which Congress is 21 authorized to do. There is no analogy, then, between the power of taxation and the power of regulating commerce.
 23 Gibbons v. Ogden, [22 U.S. 21 (1824)]

24
 25
 26 "In Slaughter-House Cases, 16 Wall. 62, it was said that the police power is, from its nature, incapable of any 27 exact definition or limitation; and in Stone v. Mississippi, 101 U.S. 818, that it is 'easier to determine whether 28 particular cases come within the general scope of the power than to give an abstract definition of the power itself,
 29 which will be in all respects accurate.' That there is a power, sometimes called the police power, which has 30 never been surrendered by the states, in virtue of which they may, within certain limits, control everything
 31 within their respective territories, and upon the proper exercise of which, under some circumstances, may 32 depend the public health, the public morals, or the public safety, is conceded in all the cases. Gibbons v. Ogden,
 33 9 Wheat. 203. In its broadest sense, as sometimes defined, it includes all legislation and almost every function
 34 of civil government. Barbier v. Connolly, 113 U.S. 27, 31. [ . . . ] Definitions of the police power must,
 35 however, be taken subject to the condition that the state cannot, in its exercise, for any 36 purpose whatever, encroach upon the powers of the general [federal] government, or 37 rights granted or secured by the supreme law of the land.

38
 39 "Illustrations of interference with the rightful authority of the general government by 40 state legislation-which was defended upon the ground that it was enacted under the 41 police power-are found in cases where enactments concerning the introduction of 42 foreign paupers, convicts, and diseased persons were held to be unconstitutional as 43 conflicting, by their necessary operation and effect, with the paramount authority of 44 congress to regulate commerce with foreign nations, and among the several states. In 45 Henderson v. Mayor of New York, 92 U.S. 263, the court, speaking by Mr. Justice MILLER, while declining to 46 decide whether in the absence of congressional action the states can, or how far they may, by appropriate
 47 legislation protect themselves against actual paupers, vagrants, criminals, [115 U.S. 650, 662] and diseased
 48 persons, arriving from foreign countries, said, that no definition of the police power, and 'no urgency for its use,
 49 can authorize a state to exercise it in regard to a subject-matter which has been confided exclusively to the 50 discretion of congress by the constitution.' Chy Lung v. Freeman, 92 U.S. 276. And in Railroad Co.
 51 v. Husen, 95 U.S. 474, Mr. Justice STRONG, delivering the opinion of 52 the court, said that 'the police power of a state cannot obstruct foreign 53 commerce or interstate commerce beyond the necessity for its exercise;
 54 and, under color of it, objects not within its scope cannot be secured at the 55 expense of the protection afforded by the federal constitution.' "
 New Orleans Gas Company v. Louisiana Light Company, [115 U.S. 650 (1885)]

56 And the Federalist Paper # 45 confirms this view in regards to taxation:

57 "It is true, that the Confederacy is to possess, and may exercise, the power of collecting internal as well as 58 external taxes throughout the States; but it is probable that this power will not be resorted to, except for supplemental purposes of revenue; that an option will then be given to the States to supply their quotas by

1 previous collections of their own; and that the eventual collection, under the immediate authority of the Union,
 2 will generally be made by the officers, and according to the 3 rules, appointed by the several States. Indeed it is extremely 4 probable, that in other instances, particularly in the 5 organization of the judicial power, the officers of the States will
 6 be clothed with the correspondent authority of the Union. “

7 “Should it happen, however, that separate collectors of internal revenue should be appointed under the federal
 8 government, the influence of the whole number would not bear a comparison with that of the multitude of State
 9 officers in the opposite scale. “

10 “Within every district to which a federal collector would be allotted, there would not be less than thirty or forty,
 11 or even more, officers of different descriptions, and many of them persons of character and weight, whose 12 influence would lie on the side of the State. The powers delegated by the proposed Constitution to the federal 13 government are few and defined. Those which are to remain in the State governments are numerous and 14 indefinite. The former will be exercised principally on external objects, as war, peace, negotiation, and foreign 15 commerce; with which last the power of taxation will, for the most part, be connected. The powers reserved to 16 the several States will extend to all the objects which, in the ordinary course of affairs, concern the lives,
 17 liberties, and properties of the people, and the internal order, improvement, and prosperity of the State. The 18 operations of the federal government will be most extensive and important in times of war and danger; those 19 of the State governments, in times of peace and security. As the former periods will probably bear a small 20 proportion to the latter, the State governments will here enjoy another advantage over the federal government.
 21 The more adequate, indeed, the federal powers may be rendered to the national defense, the less frequent will 22 be those scenes of danger which might favor their ascendancy over the governments of the particular States.”
 23 [Federalist Paper No 45 (Jan. 1788), James Madison]

24 The introduction of the Sixteenth Amendment did not change any of the above, because Subtitle A income taxes only apply
 25 to persons domiciled within the federal United States, or federal zone, including persons temporarily abroad per 26 U.S.C.
 26 §911. Even the Supreme Court agreed in the case of Stanton v. Baltic Mining that the Sixteenth Amendment “conferred no
 27 new powers of taxation”, and they wouldn't have said it and repeated it if they didn't mean it. We'll explain this fact more
 28 thoroughly later in the chapter, starting in section 5.2.11. Whether or not the Sixteenth Amendment was properly ratified is 29 inconsequential and a nullity, because of the limited applicability of Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A primarily to persons 30 domiciled in the federal zone no matter where resident. The Sixteenth Amendment authorized that:

31 Sixteenth Amendment

32 The Congress shall have power to lay and collect taxes on incomes, from whatever source derived, without
 33 apportionment among the several States, and without regard to any census or enumeration.

34 And in fact, the above described amendment is exactly what an income tax under Subtitle A that only operates against persons
 35 domiciled within the federal zone does: collect taxes on incomes without apportionment. Furthermore, because the federal 36 zone is not protected by the Constitution or the Bill of Rights (see Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901)), then there can
 37 be no violation of constitutional rights from the enforcement of the I.R.C. there. As a matter of fact, since due process of law
 38 is a requirement only of the Bill of Rights, and the Bill of Rights doesn't apply in the federal zone, then technically, Congress
 39 doesn't even need a law to legitimately collect taxes in these areas! The federal zone, recall, is a totalitarian socialist
 40 democracy, not a republic, and the legislature and the courts can do anything they like there without violating the Bill of 41 Rights or our Constitutional rights.

42 The question of whether the federal government has lawful authority to institute direct taxes inside the Union states is a rather 43 simple one. Every power that it claims in respect to the internal affairs of states must have a Constitutional origin:

44 “The Government of the United States, therefore, can claim no powers which are not [explicitly] granted to it
 45 by the Constitution, and the powers actually granted must be such as are expressly given, or given by necessary
 46 implication.”
 47 [Buffington v. Day, 11 Wall. 113, 78 U.S. 122 (1871)]

48 Under what circumstances the federal government can collect Subtitle A income taxes is a simple question of where, in the
 49 Constitution is the power explicitly granted to institute indirect excise taxes on natural “persons” domiciled inside the 50
 50 union states who are not domiciled in federal enclaves? All excise taxes are taxes on privileges and ordinarily can only be
 51 enforced against artificial corporations and not natural persons. All such taxes against natural persons must be voluntary

1 because consent is required in a free country and all just powers derive from consent. The Sixteenth Amendment, by the
2 repeated admission of the Supreme court, didn't authorize enforcement actions against other than corporations and before we
3 had a Sixteenth Amendment, the Supreme Court said that the federal government didn't have that authority in the case of 4 Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co., 157 U.S. 429 (1895) to enforce income taxes on natural persons. It's a simple question
5 of where in the Constitution does the authority come from if the Supreme Court said it didn't come from the Sixteenth
6 Amendment? Absent an answer, any act by the federal government to collect an indirect excise tax is unlawful and illegal,
7 because not explicitly authorized by the Constitution:

8 Unlawful. That which is contrary to, prohibited, or unauthorized by law. That which is not lawful. The acting
9 contrary to, or in defiance of the law; disobeying or disregarding the law. Term is equivalent to "without excuse
10 or justification." State v. Noble, 90 N.M. 360, 563 P.2d. 1153, 1157. While necessarily not implying the element
11 of criminality, it is broad enough to include it.
12 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1536]

13 "Illegal. Against or not authorized by law."
14 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 747]

15 Without constitutional authority directly from the states somewhere in the Constitution, it cannot be claimed that taxes laid
16 on activities or individuals inside the union states are consensual or voluntary, and if they aren't consensual, then the people
17 in the states are a conquered people and the federal government is at war with them by means of financial terrorism instituted
18 at the hands of the IRS. In that scenario, the District of Columbia becomes a haven for financial terrorists and a "federal 19 mafia", who are protected from legal accountability for their abuses by sovereign immunity and the complicity of a corrupted
20 and treasonous federal judiciary!

21 Let's summarize what we have learned so far by breaking down all the various taxes by state and federal sovereignties and 22 allocating them between internal and external classifications. A picture is worth a thousand words to reveal our research:
23

The location where a crime is committed controls. If it is committed on state property, then the state prosecutes. When a crime is committed inside a federal area within a Union state, however, the crime can be tried under either state or federal jurisdiction in many cases because of a thing called the Assimilated Crimes Act found in 18 U.S.C. §13. You cannot be tried under both jurisdictions because that would be double-jeopardy, which is prohibited by the Constitution. However, if the federal government fails to convict you in a federal court for a crime in a federal area situated inside a state, then sometimes the state will then try to prosecute you under federal law in a state court instead.

With all the above in mind, let's return to the original Supreme Court cites we referred to at the beginning of the section. The Constitution and the Bill of Rights, which are the "laws" of the United States, apply equally to both the union states AND the federal government, as the cites explain. That is why either state or federal officers both have to take an oath to support and defend the Constitution before they take office. However, the statutes or legislation passed by Congress, which are called

1 “Acts of Congress” have much more limited jurisdiction inside the Union states, and in most cases, do not apply at all. For 2 example:

3 TITLE 18 > PART III > CHAPTER 301 > Sec. 4001.
4 Sec. 4001. - Limitation on detention; control of prisons

5 (a) No citizen shall be imprisoned or otherwise detained by the United States except pursuant to an Act of 6 Congress.

7 The reason for the above is because the federal government has no police powers inside the states because these are reserved
8 by the Tenth Amendment to the state governments. Likewise, the feds have no territorial jurisdiction for most subject matters
9 inside the states either. See U.S. v. Bevans, 16 U.S. 336 (1818).

10 Now if we look at the meaning of “Act of Congress”, we find such a definition in Rule 54\(c\) of the Federal Rules of Criminal
11 Procedure prior to Dec. 2002, wherein is defined “Act of Congress.” Rule 54(c) states:

12 Federal Rule of Criminal Procedure 54(c) prior to Dec. 2002

13 “Act of Congress” includes any act of Congress locally applicable to and in force in the District of Columbia, in 14 Puerto Rico, in a territory or in an insular possession.”

15 Keep in mind, the Internal Revenue Code is an “Act of Congress.” The reason such “Acts of Congress” cannot apply within 16 the sovereign states is because the federal government lacks what is called “police powers” inside the union states, and the 17 Internal Revenue Code requires police powers to implement and enforce. THEREFORE, THE QUESTION IS, ON WHICH
18 OF THE FOUR LOCATIONS NAMED IN RULE 54(c) IS THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT ASSERTING
19 JURISDICTION WHEN THE U.S. ATTORNEY HAULS YOUR ASS IN COURT ON AN INCOME TAX CRIME? Hint, 20 everyone knows what and where the District of Columbia is, and everyone knows where Puerto Rico is, and territories and 21 insular possessions are defined in Title 48 of the U.S. Code, happy hunting!

22 The preceding discussion within this section is also confirmed by the content of 4 U.S.C. §72. Subtitle A is primarily a
23 “privilege” tax upon a “trade or business”, as you will learn later starting in section 5.6.12 and following. A “trade or 24 business” is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(26\) as “the functions of a public office”:

25 TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > § 7701
26 § 7701. Definitions

27 (a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent
28 thereof—

29 (26) Trade or business

30 “The term ‘trade or business’ includes the performance of the functions of a public office.”

31 Title 4 of the U.S. Code then says that all “public offices” MUST exist ONLY in the District of Columbia and no place else,
32 except as expressly provided by law:

33 TITLE 4 > CHAPTER 3 > § 72
34 § 72. Public offices; at seat of Government

35 All offices attached to the seat of government shall be exercised in the District of Columbia, and not elsewhere,
36 except as otherwise expressly provided by law.

37 If we then search all the titles of the U.S. Code electronically, we find only one instance where “public offices” are 38 “expressly provided” by law to a place other than the seat of government in connection with the Internal Revenue Code. That 39 reference is found in 48 U.S.C. §1612, which expressly provides that public offices for the U.S. Attorney are extended to the 40 Virgin Islands to enforce the provisions of the Internal Revenue Code.

41 Moving on, we find in 26 U.S.C. §7601 that the IRS has enforcement authority for the Internal Revenue Code only within 42 what is called “internal revenue districts”. 26 U.S.C. §7621 authorizes the President to establish these districts. Under 43 Executive Order 10289, the President delegated the authority to define these districts to the Secretary of the Treasury in 1952.

1 We then search the Treasury Department website for Treasury Orders documenting the establishment of these internal
2 revenue districts:

3 <http://www.ustreas.gov/regs/>

4 The only orders documenting the existence of “internal revenue districts” is Treasury Orders 150-01 and 150-02. Treasury
5 Order 150-01 established internal revenue districts that included federal land within states of the Union, but it was repealed
6 in 1998 as an aftermath of the IRS Restructuring and Reform Act and replaced with Treasury Order 150-02. Treasury Order
7 150-02 says that all IRS administration must be conducted in the District of Columbia. Therefore, pursuant to 26 U.S.C.
8 §7601, the IRS is only authorized to enforce the I.R.C. within the District of Columbia, which is the only remaining internal 9 revenue district. This leads us full circle right back to our initial premise, which is:

- 10 1. The definition of the term “United States” found in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10), which is defined as the District
11 of Columbia, means what it says and says what it means.
- 12 2. Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A may only be enforced within the only remaining internal revenue district, which is 13 the District of Columbia.
- 14 3. There is no provision of law which “expressly extends” the enforcement of the Internal Revenue Code to any land under 15 exclusive state jurisdiction.
- 16 4. The Separation of Powers Doctrine therefore does not allow anyone in a state of the Union to partake of the federal 17 “privilege” known as a “trade or business”, which is the main subject of tax under I.R.C., Subtitle A This must be so 18 because it involves a public office and all public offices must exist ONLY in the District of Columbia.
- 19 5. The only source of federal jurisdiction to tax is foreign commerce because the Constitution does not authorize any other 20 type of tax internal to a state of the Union other than a direct, apportioned tax. Since the I.R.C., Subtitle A tax is not 21 apportioned and since it is upon a privileged “trade or business” activity, then it is indirect and therefore need not be 22 apportioned.

23 Q.E.D.-Quod Erod Demonstrandum (proven beyond a shadow of a doubt)

24 We will now provide an all-inclusive list of subject matters for which the federal government definitely does have jurisdiction
25 within a state, and the Constitutional origin of that power:

- 26 1. Foreign commerce pursuant to Article 1, Section 8, Clause 3 of the United States Constitution. This jurisdiction is 27 described within 9 U.S.C. §1 et seq.
- 28 2. Counterfeiting pursuant to Article 1, Section 8, Clause 5 of the United States Constitution.
- 29 3. Postal matters pursuant to Article 1, Section 8, Clause 7 of the United States Constitution.
- 30 4. Treason pursuant to Article 4, Section 2, Clause 2 of the United States Constitution.
- 31 5. Federal contracts, franchises, and property pursuant to Article 4, Section 3, Clause 2 of the United States Constitution.
32 This includes federal employment, which is a type of contract or franchise, wherever conducted, including in a state of 33 the Union.

34 In relation to that last item above, which is federal contracts and franchises, Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A fits into that 35 category, because it is a franchise and not a “tax”, which relates primarily to federal employment and contracts. The alleged 36 “tax” in fact is a kickback scheme that can only lawfully affect federal contractors and employers, but not private persons.
37 Those who are party to this contract or franchise are called “effectively connected with a trade or business”. Saying a person
38 is “effectively connected” really means that they consented to the contract explicitly in writing or implicitly by their conduct.
39 To enforce the “trade or business” franchise as a contract in a place where the federal government has no territorial jurisdiction
40 requires informed, voluntary consent in some form from the party who is the object of the enforcement of the contract. The 41 courts call this kind of consent “comity”. To wit:

42 "Judge Story, in his treatise on the Conflicts of Laws, lays down, as the basis upon which all reasonings on the
43 law of comity must necessarily rest, the following maxims: First 'that every nation possesses an exclusive
44 sovereignty and jurisdiction within its own territory'; secondly, 'that no state or nation can by its laws directly
45 affect or bind property out of its own territory, or bind persons not resident therein, whether they are natural
46 born subjects or others.' The learned judge then adds: 'From these two maxims or propositions there follows a
47 third, and that is that whatever force and obligation the laws of one country have in another depend solely upon
48 the laws and municipal regulation of the latter; that is to say, upon its own proper jurisdiction and polity, and
49 upon its own express or tacit consent." Story on Conflict of Laws §23."
50 [Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Co. v. Chambers, 73 Ohio.St. 16, 76 N.E. 91, 11 L.R.A., N.S., 1012 (1905)]

1 When the federal government wishes to enforce one of its contracts or franchises in a place where it has no territorial
 2 jurisdiction, such as in China, it would need to litigate in the courts in China just like a private person. However, if the
 3 contract is within a state of the Union, the Separation of Powers Doctrine requires that all “federal questions”, including
 4 federal contracts, which are “property” of the United States, must be litigated in a federal court. This requirement was
 5 eloquently explained by the U.S. Supreme Court in Alden v. Maine, 527 U.S. 706 (1999). Consequently, even though the
 6 federal government enjoys no territorial jurisdiction within a state of the Union for other than the above subject matters
 7 explicitly authorized by the Constitution itself, it still has subject matter jurisdiction within federal court over federal property,
 8 contracts and franchises, which are synonymous. Since the Internal Revenue Code is a federal contract or franchise, then the 9 federal courts have jurisdiction over this issue with persons who participate in the “trade or business” franchise. This concept
 10 is further explained later in sections 5.4 and 5.4.6.6.

11 Finally, below is a very enlightening U.S. Supreme Court case that concisely explains the constitutional relationship between 12 the exclusive and plenary internal sovereignty of the states or the Union and the exclusive external sovereignty of the federal
 13 government:

14 “It will contribute to the elucidation of the question if we first consider the differences between the powers of 15 the federal government in respect of foreign or external affairs and those in respect of domestic or internal
 16 affairs. That there are differences between them, and that these differences are fundamental, may not be doubted.

17 The two classes of powers are different, both in respect of their origin and their nature. The broad statement that 18 the federal government can exercise no powers except [299 U.S. 304, 316] those specifically enumerated in 19 the Constitution, and such implied powers as are necessary and proper to carry into effect the enumerated
 20 powers, is categorically true only in respect of our internal affairs. In that field, the primary purpose of the 21 Constitution was to carve from the general mass of legislative powers then possessed by the states such portions
 22 as it was thought desirable to vest in the federal government, leaving those not included in the enumeration
 23 still in the states. Carter v. Carter Coal Co., 298 U.S. 238, 294, 56 S.Ct. 855, 865. That this doctrine applies only
 24 to powers which the states had is self-evident. And since the states severally never possessed international powers,
 25 such powers could not have been carved from the mass of state powers but obviously were transmitted to the 26 United States from some other source. During the Colonial period, those powers were possessed exclusively by 27 and were entirely under the control of the Crown. By the Declaration of Independence, 'the Representatives of 28 the United States of America' declared the United (not the several) Colonies to be free and independent states,
 29 and as such to have 'full Power to levy War, conclude Peace, contract Alliances, establish Commerce and to do
 30 all other Acts and Things which Independent States may of right do.'

31 As a result of the separation from Great Britain by the colonies, acting as a unit, the powers of external
 32 sovereignty passed from the Crown not to the colonies severally, but to the colonies in their collective and 33 corporate capacity as the United States of America. Even before the Declaration, the colonies were a unit in 34 foreign affairs, acting through a common agency-namely, the Continental Congress, composed of delegates
 35 from the thirteen colonies. That agency exercised the powers of war and peace, raised an army, created a navy,
 36 and finally adopted the Declaration of Independence. Rulers come and go; governments end and forms of 37 government change; but sovereignty survives. A political society cannot endure [299 U.S. 304, 317] without a
 38 supreme will somewhere. Sovereignty is never held in suspense. When, therefore, the external sovereignty of 39 *Great Britain in respect of the colonies ceased, it immediately passed to the Union. See Penhallow v. Doane, 3*
 40 Dall. 54, 80, 81, Fed.Cas. No. 10925. That fact was given practical application almost at once. The treaty of 41 peace, made on September 3, 1783, was concluded between his Britannic Majesty and the 'United States of 42 America.' 8 Stat., European Treaties, 80.

43 The Union existed before the Constitution, which was ordained and established among other things to form 'a
 44 more perfect Union.' Prior to that event, it is clear that the Union, declared by the Articles of Confederation to 45 be 'perpetual,' was the sole possessor of external sovereignty, and in the Union it remained without change
 46 save in so far as the Constitution in express terms qualified its exercise. The Framers' Convention was called
 47 and exerted its powers upon the irrefutable postulate that though the states were several their people in respect
 48 of foreign affairs were one. *Compare The Chinese Exclusion Case, 130 U.S. 581, 604, 606 S., 9 S.Ct. 623. In*
 49 that convention, the entire absence of state power to deal with those affairs was thus forcefully stated by Rufus
 50 King:

51 'The states were not 'sovereigns' in the sense contended for by some. They did not possess the 52 peculiar features of [external] sovereignty,-they could not make war, nor peace, nor alliances,
 53 nor treaties. Considering them as political beings, they were dumb, for they could not speak to 54 any foreign sovereign whatever. They were deaf, for they could not hear any propositions from 55 such sovereign. They had not even the organs or faculties of defence or offence, for they could 56 not of themselves raise troops, or equip vessels, for war.' 5 Elliot's Debates, 212.1 [299 U.S.
 57 304, 318] It results that the investment of the federal government with the powers of external
 58 sovereignty did not depend upon the affirmative grants of the Constitution. The powers to declare
 59 and wage war, to conclude peace, to make treaties, to maintain diplomatic relations with other 60 sovereignities, if they had never been mentioned in the Constitution, would have vested in the 61 federal government as necessary concomitants of nationality. Neither the Constitution nor the laws passed in pursuance of it have any force in foreign territory unless in respect of our own citizens (see American Banana Co. v. United Fruit Co., 213 U.S. 347, 356, 29 S.Ct. 511, 16 Ann.Cas. 1047); and operations of the nation in such territory must be governed by treaties, international understandings and compacts, and the principles of international law. As a member of the family of nations, the right and power of the United States in that field are equal to the right and power of the other members of the international family. Otherwise, the United States is not completely sovereign. The power to acquire territory by discovery and occupation (Jones v. United States, 137 U.S. 202, 212, 11 S.Ct. 80), the power to expel undesirable aliens (Fong Yue Ting v. United States, 149 U.S. 698, 705 et seq., 13 S.Ct. 1016), the power to make such international agreements as do not constitute treaties in the constitutional sense (Altman & Co. v. United States, 224 U.S. 583, 600, 601 S., 32 S.Ct. 593; Crandall, Treaties, Their Making and Enforcement (2d Ed.) p. 102 and note 1), none of which is expressly affirmed by the Constitution, nevertheless exist as inherently inseparable from the conception of nationality. This the court recognized, and in each of the cases cited found the warrant for its conclusions not in the provisions of the Constitution, but in the law of nations.

In Burnet v. Brooks, 288 U.S. 378, 396, 53 S.Ct. 457, 461, 86 A.L.R. 747, we said, 'As a nation with all the attributes of sovereignty, the United States is vested with all the powers of government necessary to maintain an effective control of international relations.' Cf. Carter v. Carter Coal Co., supra, 298 U.S. 238, at page 295, 56 S.Ct. 855, 865. [299 U.S. 304, 319] Not only, as we have shown, is the federal power over external affairs in origin and essential character different from that over internal affairs, but participation in the exercise of the power is significantly limited. In this vast external realm, with its important, complicated, delicate and manifold problems, the President alone has the power to speak or listen as a representative of the nation. He makes treaties with the advice and consent of the Senate; but he alone negotiates. Into the field of negotiation the Senate cannot intrude; and Congress itself is powerless to invade it. As Marshall said in his great argument of March 7, 1800, in the House of Representatives, 'The President is the sole organ of the nation in its external relations, and its sole representative with foreign nations.' Annals, 6th Cong., col. 613, The Senate Committee on Foreign Relations at a very early day in our history (February 15, 1816), reported to the Senate, among other things, as follows:

'The President is the constitutional representative of the United States with regard to foreign nations. He manages our concerns with foreign nations and must necessarily be most competent to determine when, how, and upon what subjects negotiation may be urged with the greatest prospect of success. For his conduct he is responsible to the Constitution. The committee considers this responsibility the surest pledge for the faithful discharge of his duty. They think the interference of the Senate in the direction of foreign negotiations calculated to diminish that responsibility and thereby to impair the best security for the national safety. The nature of transactions with foreign nations, moreover, requires caution and unity of design, and their success frequently depends on secrecy and dispatch.' 8 U.S.Sen.Reports Comm. on Foreign Relations, p. 24.

It is important to bear in mind that we are here dealing not alone with an authority vested in the President by an [299 U.S. 304, 320] exertion of legislative power, but with such an authority plus the very delicate, plenary and exclusive power of the President as the sole organ of the federal government in the field of international relations—a power which does not require as a basis for its exercise an act of Congress, but which, of course, like every other governmental power, must be exercised in subordination to the applicable provisions of the Constitution. It is quite apparent that if, in the maintenance of our international relations, embarrassment—perhaps serious embarrassment—is to be avoided and success for our aims achieved, congressional legislation which is to be made effective through negotiation and inquiry within the international field must often accord to the President a degree of discretion and freedom from statutory restriction which would not be admissible were domestic affairs alone involved. Moreover, he, not Congress, has the better opportunity of knowing the conditions which prevail in foreign countries, and especially is this true in time of war. He has his confidential sources of information. He has his agents in the form of diplomatic, consular and other officials. Secrecy in respect of information gathered by them may be highly necessary, and the premature disclosure of it productive of harmful results. Indeed, so clearly is this true that the first President refused to accede to a request to lay before the House of Representatives the instructions, correspondence and documents relating to the negotiation of the Jay Treaty—a refusal the wisdom of which was recognized by the House itself and has never since been doubted. In his reply to the request, President Washington said:

'The nature of foreign negotiations requires caution, and their success must often depend on secrecy; and even when brought to a conclusion a full disclosure of all the measures, demands, or eventual concessions which may have been proposed or contemplated would be extremely [299 U.S. 304, 321] impolitic; for this might have a pernicious influence on future negotiations, or produce immediate inconveniences, perhaps danger and mischief, in relation to other powers. The necessity of such caution and secrecy was one cogent reason for vesting the power of making treaties in the President, with the advice and consent of the Senate, the principle on which that body was formed confining it to a small number of members. To admit, then, a right in the House of Representatives to demand and to have as a matter of course all the papers respecting a negotiation with a foreign power would be to establish a dangerous precedent.' 1 Messages and Papers of the Presidents, p. 194.

The marked difference between foreign affairs and domestic affairs in this respect is recognized by both houses of Congress in the very form of their requisitions for information from the executive departments. In the case of every department except the Department of State, the resolution directs the official to furnish the information. In the case of the State Department, dealing with foreign affairs, the President is requested to furnish the information 'if not incompatible with the public interest.' A statement that to furnish the information is not compatible with the public interest rarely, if ever, is questioned. "

5.2.6 The TWO Sources of Federal Civil Jurisdiction: "Domicile" and "Contract"

An often misunderstood subject by freedom advocates is federal jurisdiction. None of the freedom advocates we have talked to completely or accurately understand federal jurisdiction, which is why many of them lose when litigating in defense of their rights in federal court. This section will reveal some very important, fundamental, and often overlooked facts about federal jurisdiction that will allow many of you to be successful in court when litigating to protect your Constitutional rights.

The Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b) describes the two sources of federal civil jurisdiction for all subject matters, which are "domicile" and "Contracts/Agency". Here is that section:

IV. PARTIES > Rule 17.
Rule 17. Parties Plaintiff and Defendant; Capacity

(b) Capacity to Sue or be Sued.

Capacity to sue or be sued is determined as follows:

- (1) for an individual who is not acting in a representative capacity, by the law of the individual's domicile;
- (2) for a corporation[the "United States", in this case, or its officers on official duty representing the corporation], by the law under which it was organized; and
- (3) for all other parties, by the law of the state where the court is located, except that:
  - (A) a partnership or other unincorporated association with no such capacity under that state's law may sue or be sued in its common name to enforce a substantive right existing under the United States Constitution or laws; and
  - (B) 28 U.S.C. §§754 and 959(a) govern the capacity of a receiver appointed by a United States court to sue or be sued in a United States court.

Notice the first sentence, which we emphasized. It basically says that civil liability can only be created by either a "domicile" within the general/exclusive jurisdiction of the state in question, or by the existence of "agency" or "employment" of some kind. When one acts in a "representative capacity" as identified above, they are exercising "agency" through the authority of a consensual contract of some kind. An example of such agency might be that of a "Trustee" within a trust indenture, or a "corporate officer", who is an officer of a legal fiction called a corporation. You will learn later starting in section 5.4 through 5.4.6.6 that all "agency" is created mainly through the operation of "private law", which in turn is created through the operation of your private right to contract.

"Private law. That portion of the law which defines, regulates, enforces, and administers relationships among individuals, associations, and corporations. As used in contradistinction to public law, the term means all that part of the law which is administered between citizen and citizen, or which is concerned with the definition, regulation, and enforcement of rights in cases where both the person in whom the right inheres and the person upon whom the obligation is incident are private individuals. See also Private bill; Special law. Compare Public Law."
[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1196]

Therefore, there are only two sources of federal jurisdiction, which are:

1. Domicile in the exclusive legislative jurisdiction of the forum state. When the source of jurisdiction is "domicile", the domicile must occur within the exclusive, general jurisdiction of the forum state and must derive only from "positive law" that is applicable within that jurisdiction. Domicile is based on "allegiance":

1 "Thus, the Court has frequently held that domicile or residence, more substantial than mere presence in transit
 2 or sojourn, is an adequate basis for taxation, including income, property, and death taxes. Since the Fourteenth
 3 Amendment makes one a citizen of the state wherein he resides, the fact of residence creates universally
 4 reciprocal duties of protection by the state and of allegiance and support by the citizen. The latter obviously
 5 includes a duty to pay taxes, and their nature and measure is largely a political matter. Of course, the situs of
 6 property may tax it regardless of the citizenship, domicile, or residence of the owner, the most obvious illustration
 7 being a tax on realty laid by the state in which the realty is located."
 8 Miller Brothers Co. v. Maryland, [347 U.S. 340 (1954) ]

9 Since domicile is based on "allegiance" and all "allegiance" is territorial in nature, then the operation of this type of 10 jurisdiction is exclusively territorial in nature and usually has as its goal the only legitimate purpose of government,
 11 which is public protection and the police powers that implement it.

12 "Yet, it is to be remembered, and that whether in its real origin, or in its artificial state, allegiance, as well as 13 fealty, rests upon lands, and it is due to persons. Not so, with respect to Citizenship, which has arisen from the 14 dissolution of the feudal system and is a substitute for allegiance, corresponding with the new order of things.
 15 Allegiance and citizenship, differ, indeed, in almost every characteristic. Citizenship is the effect of compact
 16 [contract]; allegiance is the offspring of power and necessity. Citizenship is a political tie; allegiance is a
 17 territorial tenure. [ . . . ] The doctrine is, that allegiance cannot be due to two sovereigns; and taking an oath of 18 allegiance to a new, is the strongest evidence of withdrawing allegiance from a previous, sovereign. . . ."

22 A state may not enforce its positive or public laws outside of its own plenary/exclusive territorial jurisdiction. Below is 23 how the U.S. Supreme Court describes it:

24 "Judge Story, in his treatise on the Conflicts of Laws, lays down, as the basis upon which all reasonings on the
 25 law of comity must necessarily rest, the following maxims: First 'that every nation possesses an exclusive
 26 sovereignty and jurisdiction within its own territory'; secondly, 'that no state or nation can by its laws directly
 27 affect or bind property out of its own territory, or bind persons not resident therein, whether they are natural
 28 born subjects or others.' The learned judge then adds: 'From these two maxims or propositions there follows a
 29 third, and that is that whatever force and obligation the laws of one country have in another depend solely upon
 30 the laws and municipal regulation of the latter; that is to say, upon its own proper jurisdiction and polity, and
 31 upon its own express or tacit consent.'" Story on Conflict of Laws §23."
 32 [Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Co. v. Chambers, 73 Ohio.St. 16, 76 N.E. 91, 11 L.R.A., N.S., 1012 (1905)]

33 Therefore, laws based on domicile may not be enforced outside of the territory to which they apply. Below is a definition
 34 of "territory" from the Corpus Juris Secundum legal encyclopedia to make our meaning perfectly clear. Note that a state
 35 of the Union is NOT "territory" of the federal government, and therefore federal laws may not be enforced there:

36 86 Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.), Territories, §1 (2003)

37 "§1. Definitions, Nature, and Distinctions

38 "The word 'territory,' when used to designate a political organization has a distinctive, fixed, and legal
 39 meaning under the political institutions of the United States, and does not necessarily include all the territorial
 40 possessions of the United States, but may include only the portions thereof which are organized and exercise
 41 governmental functions under act of congress."

42 "While the term 'territory' is often loosely used, and has even been construed to include municipal subdivisions
 43 of a territory, and 'territories of the' United States is sometimes used to refer to the entire domain over which the 44 United States exercises dominion, the word 'territory,' when used to designate a political organization, has a
 45 distinctive, fixed, and legal meaning under the political institutions of the United States, and the term 'territory'
 46 or 'territories' does not necessarily include only a portion or the portions thereof which are organized and
 47 exercise government functions under acts of congress. The term 'territories' has been defined to be political 48 subdivisions of the outlying dominion of the United States, and in this sense the term 'territory' is not a description
 49 of a definite area of land but of a political unit governing and being governed as such. The question whether a 50 particular subdivision or entity is a territory is not determined by the particular form of government with which
 51 it is, more or less temporarily, invested.

52 "Territories' or 'territory' as including 'state' or 'states.'" While the term 'territories of the' United States may,
 53 under certain circumstances, include the states of the Union, as used in the federal Constitution and in 54 ordinary acts of congress "territory" does not include a foreign state.

"As used in this title, the term 'territories' generally refers to the political subdivisions created by congress, and not within the boundaries of any of the several states."

2. Private contract, which creates “agency” and liability of specific individuals through their voluntary, usually written, uncoerced, and informed consent. This type of jurisdiction requires the individual, informed, usually written but sometimes implied consent of all those affected by it. It is a different type of jurisdiction from “domicile” because it is not primarily territorial in nature. In fact, your right to contract knows no geographical boundaries:

Debt and contract are of no particular place.”*

[Bouvier's Maxims of Law, 1856;

SOURCE: <http://famguardian.org/Publications/BouvierMaximsOfLaw/BouviereMaxims.htm>]

For instance, the government can contract with anyone, including people in foreign countries. How these private contracts are “arbitrated” or “litigated” is determined by the contract itself. An example would be government employment, which creates agency and a “contract” and “fiduciary duty” between the government and its “employees”. The terms of this contract are documented in Title 5 of the U.S. Code entitled “Government Organization and Employees” and Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A. Even though federal employment essentially is a “private contract” and “private law” that could theoretically be enforced in any court, Title 5 says that all federal “employees” engaged in a dispute with their contracted “employer” have to use the federal courts only and cannot use a state court. This approach is dictated by the Constitution itself, which says that state and federal governments enjoy “sovereign immunity” with respect to each other because of what is called the “Separation of Powers Doctrine”. See Alden v. Maine, 527 U.S. 706 (1999). The implications of this separation of powers are that:

2.1. The federal government may not be sued in a state court.

2.2. A state government may not be sued in any federal District or Circuit court and can ONLY be sued in the U.S. Supreme Court. See the Eleventh Amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

Of the two distinct sources of federal civil jurisdiction documented above, the second one is completely and almost universally overlooked and misunderstood by nearly every freedom fighter we have met. We assert that this supreme oversight, in fact, is the main “loophole” in the income tax deception that has kept it alive all these years since the Sixteenth Amendment was fraudulently ratified in 1913. It is quite common for people like Irwin Schiff, Larry Becraft, Jeffrey Dickstein, and other famous freedom fighter personalities who litigate often in federal court to over-emphasize the lack of federal territorial jurisdiction in item 1 above and to falsely presume that it is the ONLY source of federal jurisdiction. The result of this false “presumption” is that when they decry the lack of territorial jurisdiction and claim that the federal government has no jurisdiction to impose an income tax upon them or their clients, the federal courts rightly label their arguments as “frivolous and without merit”. The only way we will ever get anywhere in federal courts over freedom and sovereignty and taxation issues, folks, is to have a much better understanding of federal jurisdiction than what has been demonstrated in federal courts to date by well-intentioned but misinformed freedom advocates. This is not intended as a personal criticism of any specific individual by any means, but simply a statement of fact intended to help us to collectively focus on more fruitful approaches to litigation so as to end the illegal enforcement of the Internal Revenue Code by the IRS once and for all during our lifetime.

Most of the rest of section 5.2 will focus on item 1 above, which is “domicile”, and so we won't beat a dead horse further by expanding upon that treatment here. Instead, we will focus the rest of this section upon the latter source of jurisdiction, which is item 2 above, or “private contract” as the source of federal jurisdiction because treatment of this subject is so sparse elsewhere on the Internet.

First of all, the foundation of our sovereignty as Americans is our right to contract. The United States Constitution, in fact, is a contract, and its purpose is to protect our right to contract. The U.S. Supreme Court calls it a “compact”.

“The people of the United States erected their Constitutions, or forms of government, to establish justice, to promote the general welfare, to secure the blessings of liberty; and to protect their persons and property from violence. The purposes for which men enter into society will determine the nature and terms of the social compact; and as they are the foundation of the legislative power, they will decide what are the proper objects of it: The nature, and ends of legislative power will limit the exercise of it.”
[Calder v. Bull, 3 U.S. 386, 1798 WL 587 (1798)]

“In Europe, the executive is synonymous with the sovereign power of a state...where it is too commonly acquired by force or fraud, or both...In America, however the case is widely different. Our government is founded upon compact [consent expressed in a written contract called a Constitution or in positive law]. Sovereignty was, and is, in the people [as individuals: that's you!].”

[Glass v. The Sloop Betsey, 3 (U.S.) Dall 6]

A “compact” is a contract or agreement:

“Compact. n. An agreement or contract between persons, nations, or states. Commonly applied to working agreements between and among states concerning matters of mutual concern. A contract between parties, which creates obligations and rights capable of being enforced and contemplated as such between the parties, in their distinct and independent characters. A mutual consent of parties concerned respecting some property or right that is the object of the stipulation, or something that is to be done or forborne. See also Compact clause; Confederacy; Interstate compact; Treaty.”

[Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 281]

This right to contract is an extension of the whole notion of the system of government described in the Declaration of Independence:

“That to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed.”

[Declaration of Independence]

Our system of government is based on “consent of the governed”. In a society populated by sovereigns, the only way a person can lose their rights is to voluntarily contract them away. In that respect, America is what we call “the land of the kings”:

“...at the Revolution, the sovereignty devolved on the people; and they are truly the sovereigns of the country, but they are sovereigns without subjects...with none to govern but themselves; the citizens of America are equal as fellow citizens, and as joint tenants in the sovereignty.”

Chisholm v. Georgia, [2 Dall. \(U.S.\) 419, 454, 1 L.Ed. 440, 455 @DALL 1793 pp. 471-472]

“Sovereignty itself is, of course, not subject to law, for it is the author and source of law; but in our system, while sovereign powers are delegated to the agencies of government, sovereignty itself remains with the people [WE THE PEOPLE!], by whom and for whom all government exists and acts.”

[Yick Wo v. Hopkins, 118 U.S. 356, 6 S.Ct. 1064 (1886)]

“In common usage, the term ‘person’ does not include the sovereign, and statutes employing the word are ordinarily construed to exclude it.”

Wilson v. Omaha Indian Tribe, [442 U.S. 653, 667 (1979)]

“Since in common usage the term ‘person’ does not include the sovereign, statutes employing that term are ordinarily construed to exclude it.”

U.S. v. Cooper, [312 U.S. 600, 604, 61 S.Ct. 742 (1941)]

“In common usage, the term ‘person’ does not include the sovereign and statutes employing it will ordinarily not be construed to do so.”

U.S. v. United Mine Workers of America, [330 U.S. 258, 67 S.Ct. 677 (1947)]

What the government has done to undermine our sovereignty and thereby plunder our assets is learned how to very deviously and secretly cause us to contract away our rights by:

1. Creating government application forms that are actually “agreements” and “contracts” but which do not identify themselves as such. Some examples:
  - 1.1. IRS Form W-4: This form is identified in the regulations at 26 C.F.R. §31.3402(p)-1 and 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(a)-3(a) as a “voluntary withholding agreement”. Your public servants didn’t tell you that this was a contract and the form doesn’t say it either. The reason they commit this “sin of omission” is because they simply don’t want you to know that they need your consent in some form to take your money. That is how they keep the plunder flowing into their checking account and bilk you.
  - 1.2. Bank account applications. These applications state that you will be subject to the Federal Reserve regulations. These regulations, in turn, make you into a statutory “U.S. citizen” subject to federal jurisdiction. When you ask the bank for a copy of the REST of what you are agreeing to, the Federal Reserve regulations, they won’t help you because they simply don’t want you knowing what you are agreeing to.
2. Making and enforcing invisible and undocumented false “presumptions” relating to citizenship and domicile within federal courts. These presumptions create what is called “quasi-contracts” or “constructive contracts” that are invisible and undocumented. See section 5.4.4 later, which shows how income taxes are a form of “quasi-contract”, which is a contract enforced without explicit written consent of the “victim”.

3. Using “words of art” that lead us to misunderstand our sovereign status so as to cause us to believe that we have no rights to give up to begin with. We covered this earlier starting in section 3.12.1. For instance, if everyone domiciled in states of the Union falsely believes that they are statutory “U.S. citizens” under 8 U.S.C. §1401 who are instead domiciled in the federal zone where the Constitution and the Bill of Rights does not apply, then they will gladly and willingly give away our sovereignty on every government form we prepare if it asks us whether we are a statutory “U.S. citizen” or “resident”. When they do this, they won't even realize that they will be giving away for absolutely nothing the very reason for which the Constitution was written in the first place.

If you would like to learn more about the many “invisible contracts” that your public servants have concocted over the years to essentially STEAL your sovereignty, we refer you to George Mercier's wonderful series below available for free on our website at:

Invisible Contracts, George Mercier

<http://famguardian.org/PublishedAuthors/Indiv/MercierGeorge/GeorgeMercier.htm>

Now let's look at how “contracts” and “private law” are implemented in the U.S. Code so as to make them falsely appear to be “mandatory”. The U.S. Supreme Court has admitted that federal income taxation is a type of “quasi-contract”, which means they admit that it is implemented through private law:

“Even if the judgment is deemed to be colored by the nature of the obligation whose validity it establishes, and we are free to re-examine it, and, if we find it to be based on an obligation penal in character, to refuse to enforce it outside the state where rendered, see Wisconsin v. Pelican Insurance Co., 127 U.S. 265, 292, et seq. 8 S.Ct.

1370, compare Fauntleroy v. Lum, 210 U.S. 230, 28 S.Ct. 641, still the obligation to pay taxes is not penal. It is a statutory liability, quasi contractual in nature, enforceable, if there is no exclusive statutory remedy, in the civil courts by the common-law action of debt or indebitatus assumpsit. United States v. Chamberlin, 219 U.S. 250, 31 S.Ct. 155; Price v. United States, 269 U.S. 492, 46 S.Ct. 180; Dollar Savings Bank v. United States, 19 Wall. 227; and see Stockwell v. United States, 13 Wall. 531, 542; Meredith v. United States, 13 Pet. 486, 493. This was the rule established in the English courts before the Declaration of Independence. Attorney General v. Weeks, Bunbury's Exch. Rep. 223; Attorney General v. Jewers and Batty, Bunbury's Exch. Rep. 225; Attorney General v. Hatton, Bunbury's Exch. Rep. [296 U.S. 268, 272] 262; Attorney General v. —, 2 Ans.Rep. 558; see Comyn's Digest (Title 'Dett,' A. 9); 1 Chitty on Pleading, 123; cf. Attorney General v. Sewell, 4 M.&W. 77. “ [Milwaukee v. White, 296 U.S. 268 (1935)]

As you will learn later in section 5.4.2.1, contracts and even some codes (notice we didn't says “laws”) passed by Congress are a type of proposed “private law”. When a law is formally enacted by a legislative body, it is called a “statute”:

“Statute. A formal written enactment of a legislative body, whether federal, state, city, or county. An act of the legislature declaring, commanding, or prohibiting something; a particular law enacted and established by the will of the legislative department of government; the written will of the legislature, solemnly expressed according to the forms necessary to constitute it the law of the state. Such may be public or private, declaratory, mandatory, directory, or enabling, in nature. For mandatory and directory statutes, see Directory; Mandatory statutes.” [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1410]

Statutes can be of two main types: “mandatory” and “directory”, as shown above. A “directory” statute is “voluntary” whereas a “mandatory” statute is not and does not require consent of the subject:

Mandatory statutes. Generic term describing statutes which require and not merely permit a course of action. They are characterized by such directives as “shall” and not “may.”

A “mandatory” provision in a statute is one the omission to follow which renders the proceedings to which it relates void, while a “directory” provision is one the observance of which is not necessarily to validity of the proceeding. It is also said that when the provision of a statute is the essence of the thing required to be done, it is mandatory, Kavanaugh v. Fash, C.C.A.Okl., 74 F.2d. 435, 437; otherwise, when it relates to form and manner, and where an act is incident, or after jurisdiction acquired, it is directory merely.

Mandatory provision is one which must be observed, as distinguished from "directory" provision, which leaves it optional with department or officer to which addressed to obey it or not. State ex rel Dworken v. Court of Common Pleas of Cuyahoga County, 131 Ohio.St. 23, 1 N.E.2d. 138, 139, 5 O.O. 291 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 962]

Directory, adj. A provision in a statute, rule of procedure, or the like, which is a mere direction or instruction of no obligatory force, and involving no invalidating consequence for its disregard, as opposed to an imperative or mandatory provision, which must be followed. The general rule is that the prescriptions of a statute relating to the performance of a public duty are so far directory that, though neglect of them may be punishable, yet it does not affect the validity of the acts done under them, as in the case of a statute requiring an officer to prepare and deliver a document to another officer on or before certain day.

A "directory" provision in a statute is one, the observance of which is not necessary to the validity of the proceeding to which it relates; one which leaves it optional with the department or officer to which it is addressed to obey or not as he may see fit. Generally, statutory provisions which do not relate to essence of thing to be done, and as to which compliance is a matter of convenience rather than substance are "directory," while provisions which relate to essence of thing to be done, that is, matters of substance, are "mandatory." Rodgers v. Meredith, 274 Ala. 179, 146 So.2d. 308, 310.

Under general classification, statutes are either "mandatory" or "directory," and, if mandatory, they prescribe, in addition to requiring the doing of the things specified, the result that will follow if they are not done, whereas, if directory, their terms are limited to what is required to be done. A statute is mandatory when the provision of the statute is the essence of the thing required to be done; otherwise, when it relates to form and manner, and where an act is incident, or after jurisdiction acquired, it is directory merely. [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 460]

In order to deceive a sovereign American into signing what amounts to an "invisible contract", all that a legislator or lawmaker has to do is to deceive the reader by the following devious means:

1. Making a "directory" statute "appear" as a "mandatory" statute.
2. By using "words of art" to disguise who the true audience is for the statute. For instance:
  - 2.1. Using the phrase "all persons" to refer to the audience and then defining "person" as a federal "employee".
  - 2.2. Using the word "United States" and either not defining it. Title 42 of the U.S. Code uses this word in the context of Social Security, but its definition does not appear in Title 42. It is in the original Social Security Act, which most Americans do not have access or skills to locate. The "United States" they are referring to in the act is the federal United States, consisting of the territory and possessions of the United States and excluding states of the Union.
3. By adding indirection to the statute so that two or three places in the code must be examined and simultaneously applied in order to understand the true audience. This makes it more difficult to discern who the proper subject is for the statute.
4. By persecuting and terrorizing all those who point out that the provision of law in question are "voluntary" without entertaining or explaining why these people are wrong. Instead, they are simply and conveniently labeled as "frivolous" without a thoughtful, public rebuttal to what they are saying.
5. When questioned about whether a "directory" statute is "mandatory" or "directory", refusing to answer the question or lying by telling the questioner that it is "mandatory".
6. By telling the truth about the distinctions but then warning people that the courts don't agree with that view. This scares people who are inclined to avoid risk into obeying the statute anyway.
7. By gagging judges from making declaratory judgments about the meaning of words in statutes relating to taxes. The Declaratory Judgments Act, 28 U.S.C. §2201(a) prohibits federal judges from making declaratory judgments in relation to "taxes":

United States Code
 TITLE 28 - JUDICIARY AND JUDICIAL PROCEDURE
 PART VI - PARTICULAR PROCEEDINGS
 CHAPTER 151 - DECLARATORY JUDGMENTS
 Sec. 2201. Creation of remedy

(a) In a case of actual controversy within its jurisdiction, EXCEPT with respect to Federal taxes other than actions brought under section 7428 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, a proceeding under section 505 or 1146 of title 11, or in any civil action involving an antidumping or countervailing duty proceeding regarding a class or kind of merchandise of a free trade area country (as defined in section 516A(f)(10) of the Tariff Act of 1930), as determined by the administering authority, any court of the United States, upon the filing of an appropriate pleading, may declare the rights and other legal relations of any interested party seeking such declaration, whether or not further relief is or could be sought. Any such declaration shall have the force and effect of a final judgment or decree and shall be reviewable as such.

Specifically, Rowen seeks a declaratory judgment against the United States of America with respect to "whether or not the plaintiff is a taxpayer pursuant to, and/or under 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(14)." (See Compl. at 2.) This Court lacks jurisdiction to issue a declaratory judgment "with respect to Federal taxes other than actions brought under section 7428 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986," a code section that is not at issue in the instant action. See 28 U.S.C. §2201; see also Hughes v. United States, 953 F.2d. 531, 536-537 (9th Cir. 1991) (affirming dismissal of claim for declaratory relief under § 2201 where claim concerned question of tax liability). Accordingly, defendant's motion to dismiss is hereby GRANTED, and the instant action is hereby DISMISSED. [Rowen v. U.S., 05-3766MMC. (N.D.Cal. 11/02/2005)]

8. By publishing government forms and publications which:

8.1. Use vague or ambiguous words that are not defined on the form or even in the statutes such as "U.S. citizen", "United States", "State", "employee", "income", "citizen".

8.2. Do not reveal the voluntary nature of the law in question and portray it instead as "mandatory". An example is the IRS publications. The federal courts positively refuse to hold the IRS for anything the IRS publishes or writes, and even the IRS' own Internal Revenue Manual (I.R.M.), Section 4.10.7.2.9.8 admits that IRS publications cannot be relied upon to sustain a position. See also:

The above mechanisms constitute legal terrorism. Their goal is to enslave those who do not know or read the law. They accomplish the purpose opposite that of the purpose for organized government and law, which is to protect. The Code of Federal Regulations proves this:

Title 28: Judicial Administration
PART 0—ORGANIZATION OF THE DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE
§0.85 General functions.

(l) Exercise Lead Agency responsibility in investigating all crimes for which it has primary or concurrent jurisdiction and which involve terrorist activities or acts in preparation of terrorist activities within the statutory jurisdiction of the United States. Within the United States, this would include the collection, coordination, analysis, management and dissemination of intelligence and criminal information as appropriate. If another Federal agency identifies an individual who is engaged in terrorist activities or in acts in preparation of terrorist activities, that agency is requested to promptly notify the FBI. Terrorism includes the unlawful use of force and violence against persons or property to intimidate or coerce a government, the civilian population, or any segment thereof, in furtherance of political or social objectives.

[Emphasis added]

We might add that the main purpose of this book is to fight such legal and government terrorism. The Bible also describes this type of terrorism. Notice the phrase "...which devises evil by law...". There is only one organization or group that can "devises evil by law", and that is lawmakers, politicians, and government employees:

"Shall the throne of iniquity, which devises evil by law, have fellowship with You? They gather together against the life of the righteous, and condemn innocent blood. But the Lord has been my defense, and my God the rock of my refuge. He has brought on them their own iniquity, and shall cut them off in their own wickedness; the Lord our God shall cut them off."
[Psalm 94:20-23, Bible, NKJV]

After being victimized by the above types of state-sponsored terrorism, violation of due process, and propaganda, few Americans are likely to go any further in challenging the legality of illegal IRS enforcement actions. This happens mainly because they are deliberately under-informed about legal subjects in public school so they will make docile sheep for the wolves who run our government to devour. Law, in fact, is one of the few subjects that you simply CAN'T and AREN'T allowed to study in public grammar and high school, leading to dysfunctional citizens who make easy prey for the legal profession and government later in life.

Now that we understand how "directory" statutes are misrepresented by the government to maliciously expand their jurisdiction over sovereign Americans, let us now state some hypotheses that the rest of this chapter will forcefully prove beyond a shadow of any doubt:

1. I.R.C., Subtitles A and C is “private”/contract law that only applies to those who individually consent in some way.
2. For those who do not explicitly and individually consent, I.R.C., Subtitles A and C are merely “directory” in nature.
3. The method of providing consent for the above taxable activities is a combination of the following:
  - 3.1. Specifying a “domicile” within the “United States”, which is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) as the District of Columbia, on a government form. Since declaring a legal domicile is a voluntary act requiring individual consent, then it essentially creates a contract between the individual and the government. The purpose of that contract is essentially to procure “police protection” and public services:

“This right to protect persons having a domicile, though not native-born or naturalized citizens, rests on the firm foundation of justice, and the claim to be protected is earned by considerations which the protecting power is not at liberty to disregard. Such domiciled citizen pays the same price for his protection as native-born or naturalized citizens pay for theirs. He is under the bonds of allegiance to the country of his residence, and, if he breaks them, incurs the same penalties. He owes the same obedience to the civil laws. His property is, in the same way and to the same extent as theirs, liable to contribute to the support of the Government. In nearly all respects, his and their condition as to the duties and burdens of Government are undistinguishable.”

Fong Yue Ting v. United States, [149 U.S. 698 (1893) ]

- 3.2. Making an application for any kind of government benefit, such as Medicare, Social Security, FICA, etc. This makes the applicant into a federal “employee” exercising agency on behalf of the federal government. I.R.C., Subtitle A is part of the employment agreement for that position. This is proved in the pamphlet:

Why Your Government is Either a Thief or You are a “Public Officer” for Income Tax Purposes, Form #05.008
- 3.3. Engaging in an excise taxable activity called a “trade or business”, which is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) as “the functions of a public office”. A “public office” is then defined as a position of authority and sovereignty within the federal government as an “employee”. That makes you subject to federal jurisdiction, and payment of I.R.C., Subtitle A then becomes a part of your implied employment agreement.

The implication we are trying to convey here is that if you want to be “sovereign” and not subject in any way to federal jurisdiction, then you cannot engage in any of the contracts with the government that are documented in item 3 above. That means:

1. You can't declare a “domicile” within the jurisdiction of any earthly government.
  - 1.1. You cannot file the IRS Form 1040, because IRS Document 7130, the IRS Published Products Catalog, under the description of form 1040 says that only “citizens” and “residents” can use the form. What these two groups have in common is a “domicile” in the “United States”, which is defined as the District of Columbia in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10). All earnings from within the District of Columbia are “effectively connected with a trade or business in the United States”, as revealed by 26 U.S.C. §864(c)(3) .
  - 1.2. On any government form that requires you to declare a “permanent address” or “domicile” or “residence”, you must fill in “None.” This includes IRS Form W-8BEN, all driver's license applications, the passport application, and all voter registration forms, for instance.
2. You can't sign up for or participate in any social insurance program of any kind and must completely support yourself. Doing so makes you into an “employee” who comes
3. You cannot use an SSN or any other government issued or controlled number on any government form for any purpose. 20 C.F.R. §422.103 says that Social Security Numbers are government property. The only people who can use government/public property are those involved in an official government function, which is called a “public purpose”. When you are using public property, you are presumed to be exercising the agency of the federal government as an “employee”. You cannot lawfully abuse public property for private or personal use. It is a CRIME and you are a THIEF and a CRIMINAL if you do otherwise.

“Public purpose. In the law of taxation, eminent domain, etc., this is a term of classification to distinguish the objects for which, according to settled usage, the government is to provide, from those which, by the like usage, are left to private interest, inclination, or liberality. The constitutional requirement that the purpose of any tax, police regulation, or particular exertion of the power of eminent domain shall be the convenience, safety, or welfare of the entire community and not the welfare of a specific individual or class of persons [such as, for instance, federal benefit recipients as individuals]. “Public purpose” that will justify expenditure of public money generally means such an activity as will serve as benefit to community as a body and which at same time is directly related function of government. Pack v. Southwestern Bell Tel. & Tel. Co., 215 Tenn. 503, 387 S.W.2d. 789, 794.

The term is synonymous with governmental purpose. As employed to denote the objects for which taxes may be levied, it has no relation to the urgency of the public need or to the extent of the public benefit which is to follow; the essential requisite being that a public service or use shall affect the inhabitants as a community, and not

1 merely as individuals. A public purpose or public business has for its objective the promotion of the public
 2 health, safety, morals, general welfare, security, prosperity, and contentment of all the inhabitants or residents
 3 within a given political division, as, for example, a state, the sovereign powers of which are exercised to promote
 4 such public purpose or public business."
 5 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1231, Emphasis added]

6 The last nagging question we must deal with is how can we identify the existence of these invisible contracts designed to 7 destroy and undermine our sovereignty by making "directory statutes" look like "mandatory statutes"? The answer is:

- 8 1. Read the law frequently and carefully, looking for subtle use of words that might confuse the distinctions between 9 "mandatory" and "directory" statutes. For instance
  - 10 1.1. Look at the definition of key words, such as "tax", "person", "United States", "State", "employee", "includes", 11 "income", "taxpayer", and "trade or business". Nearly all the deceit is usually hidden in the definitions, which are 12 usually at the end in hopes that you won't read them.
  - 13 1.2. Search for the word "consent". Anything requiring either "consent" or "intent" is voluntary. "Domicile", for 14 instance, has as a prerequisite "intent", which is simply a synonym for "consent".

15 "domicile. A person's legal home. That place where a man has his true, fixed, and permanent home and
 16 principal establishment, and to which whenever he is absent he has the intention of returning. Smith v. Smith,
 17 206 Pa.Super. 310, 213 A.2d. 94. Generally, physical presence within a state and the intention to make it one's
 18 home are the requisites of establishing a "domicile" therein. The permanent residence of a person or the place
 19 to which he intends to return even though he may actually reside elsewhere. A person may have more than one
 20 residence but only one domicile. The legal domicile of a person is important since it, rather than the actual
 21 residence, often controls the jurisdiction of the taxing authorities and determines where a person may exercise
 22 the privilege of voting and other legal rights and privileges."
 23 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 485]

- 24 1.3. Look for the words "agreement" or "contract" and find out what the implications of signing such an agreement are.
- 25 1.4. Looking for the word "liable" in a statutes. If it is not to be found, then the code containing it is a "directory" 26 statute and requires consent usually procured by some other means to be enforceable.
- 27 2. Look at the enforcement provisions of the law and who they apply to. This will reveal who the real audience is for the 28 statute.
- 29 3. Read the document from George Mercier above entitled "Invisible Contracts" and thoroughly understand what you 30 should be on the lookout for available at:
 31 <http://famguardian.org/PublishedAuthors/Indiv/MercierGeorge/GeorgeMercier.htm>
- 32 4. Look at what happens to those who refuse to sign any agreements or forms with the government, such as W-4, SS-5 33 applications, or tax returns. Are they left alone? If they are, then you know it's voluntary.
- 34 5. Ask the authorities that be why your signature is necessary on a government form in order to comply, if in fact the tax 35 or desired behavior is "mandatory" and not "voluntary". How come they don't just compute the tax for you and send 36 you a bill, rather than requiring you to sign something under penalty of perjury signifying consent and then mail it in?

37 On the subject of the first item in the list above, allow us to present a table that shows a few examples of exactly what you
 38 are looking for in your reading of the Internal Revenue Code (26 U.S.C.) and Treasury Regulations (26 C.F.R.) in order to 39 prove that it is "directory" rather than "mandatory" statute in relation to a person who has no contracts or agency, constructive
 40 or otherwise, with the federal government:

| 1 | 26 U.S.C. §6001, Notice or regulations requiring records, statements, and special returns | "Every person liable for any tax imposed by this title, or for the collection thereof, shall keep such records, render such statements, make such returns, and comply with such rules and regulations as the Secretary may from time to time prescribe."                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | "All persons shall keep such records, render such statements, make such returns, and comply with such rules and regulations as the Secretary may from time to time prescribe."                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | There is only one person in the entire I.R.C., Subtitle A who is made "liable", which is found in 26 U.S.C. §1461 and relates to withholding on nonresident aliens. Why didn't they just spell it out here? The reason is because then lazy people would not be deceived or misled by the law and only those with the persistence to check the entire code would know the real truth.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
| 2 | 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(a)-3(a), Amounts deemed wages under voluntary withholding agreements.  | "(a) In general. Notwithstanding the exceptions to the definition of wages specified in section 3401(a) and the regulations thereunder, the term "wages" includes the amounts described in paragraph (b)(1) of this section with respect to which there is a voluntary withholding agreement in effect under section 3402(p). References in this chapter to the definition of wages contained in section 3401(a) shall be deemed to refer also to this section (§31.3401(a)-3)." | "(a) In general. Notwithstanding the exceptions to the definition of wages specified in section 3401(a) and the regulations thereunder, the term "wages" includes the amounts described in paragraph (b)(1) of this section with respect to which there is earned income of any kind. References in this chapter to the definition of wages contained in section 3401(a) shall be deemed to refer also to this section (§31.3401(a)-3)." | The only parties who can earn reportable "wages" on a W-2 are those who voluntarily consent by signing and submitting an IRS Form W-4. Even if the private employer is ordered by the IRS to deduct and withhold at single-zero because the party refuses to submit a W-4, the withholding can only occur on "wages" earned, which would be zero for such a person. Notice also that they supersede the definition of "wages" found in 26 U.S.C. §3401 but don't put a pointer to that in that statute to the superseding regulation. The reason they did this was to make it more difficult for you to learn the truth by adding extra levels of "indirection".                                                                                         |
| 3 | 26 U.S.C. §6671(b), Definitions                                                           | "(b) Person definedThe term "person", as used in this subchapter, includes an officer or employee of a corporation, or a member or employee of a partnership, who as such officer, employee, or member is under a duty to perform the act in respect of which the violation occurs."                                                                                                                                                                                               | "(b) Person definedThe term "person", as used in this subchapter, includes anyone who earns taxable income."                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | This is the definition of "person" for the purposes of every single assessable IRS penalty. Note that it only includes officers or employees of corporations or employees of partnerships. Observe the qualifier "who as such an officer, employee, or member is under a duty to perform the act in respect of which the violation occurs." They are referring to a person who has fiduciary duty or agency with the federal government, and the only way that agency can be created is through a private, consensual contract. That contract is the federal employment contract called the SS-4 or W-4, which identifies the signator as a "public officer" engaged in a business partnership with the federal government called a "trade or business". |

Note that it only includes officers or employees of corporations or employees of partnerships. Observe the qualifier "who as such an officer, employee, or member is under a duty to perform the act in respect of which the violation occurs." They are referring to a person who has fiduciary duty or agency with the federal government, and the only way that agency can be created is through a private, consensual contract. That contract is the federal employment contract called the SS-4 or W-4, which identifies the signator as a "public officer" engaged in a business partnership with the federal government called a "trade or business". |

Earnings that are not legally classified as "wages" because not subject to a voluntarily signed W-4 agreement may not be levied at all! The term "salary" is also defined in the Classification Act of 1923 as earnings in connection with a public office. See section 6.5.16 later.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |

1 The last very important thing we must do in this section is to show you how the government and legal profession use propaganda and lies to disguise the voluntary,
 2 consensual nature of Subtitle A federal income taxes from the American public. Below is a table containing government and legal profession propaganda relating to
 3 taxation along with an explanation of the deliberate deception the reveal:

| Welch v. Henry, 305 U.S. 134, 146 (1938) | “Taxation is neither a penalty imposed on the taxpayer nor a liability which he assumes by contract. It is but a way of apportioning the cost of government among those who in some measure are privileged to enjoy its benefits and must bear its burdens. [305 U.S. 134, 147] Since no citizen enjoys immunity from that burden, its retroactive imposition does not necessarily infringe due process, and to challenge the present tax it is not enough to point out that the taxable event, the receipt of income, antedated the statute.” | They are absolutely right because a taxpayer is already party to and subject to the “directory statute” called Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A, but what about the person who is not? For instance, the following statement is similar but would be untrue because it uses a different choice of words and a different subject: “Taxation is neither a penalty imposed on the nontaxpayer nor a liability which he assumes by contract.” In fact, it IS a penalty for a “nontaxpayer” because he doesn’t owe the tax to begin with and is not subject to that law. To force him to pay a tax he doesn’t owe is not only a penalty, but organized extortion. The only way to make a “nontaxpayer” into a “taxpayer” is for him to voluntarily choose a domicile within the forum state and to voluntarily engage in excise taxable activities such as a “trade or business” that would make him liable. In that sense, for the “nontaxpayer”, some type of voluntary and therefore consensual action is required in order to change his status to that of a “taxpayer.” The consent required to institute those voluntary activities is the essence of the “contract” required to change his status into that of a “taxpayer”. A “citizen” is a person who maintains a “domicile” within the forum or jurisdiction in question. The coincidence of legal domicile and the excise taxable activities one engages in within that jurisdiction are the two main factors that make a person a “taxpayer”. “Thus, the Court has frequently held that domicile or residence, more substantial than mere presence in transit or sojourn, is an adequate basis for taxation, including income, property, and death taxes. Since the Fourteenth Amendment makes one a citizen of the state wherein he resides, the fact of residence creates universally reciprocal duties of protection by the state and of allegiance and support by the citizen. The latter obviously includes a duty to pay taxes, and their nature and measure is largely a political matter. Of course, the situs of property may tax it regardless of the citizenship, domicile, or residence of the owner, the most obvious illustration being a tax on realty laid by the state in which the realty is located.” [Miller Brothers Co. v. Maryland, 347 U.S. 340 (1954)] The fact of being a “citizen” is the condition of voluntarily declaring a domicile and thereby becoming liable to taxation. A person who started out as a “citizen” and chooses not to either have no earthly domicile or to have a permanent domicile in a foreign country outside of the state in question becomes a “national” but not a “citizen” and also a “nontaxpayer”. In that sense, income taxes for him are voluntary and result from his choice of domicile. Since the decision to declare a domicile is voluntary, then income taxes are voluntary. One who does not want to participate in the tax system simply becomes a “transient foreigner” which is a person with no legal domicile anywhere. |

| Cooley, Law of Taxation, Fourth Edition, pgs 88-89 | "A tax is not regarded as a debt in the ordinary sense of that term, for the reason that a tax does not depend upon the consent of the taxpayer and there is no express or implied contract to pay taxes. Taxes are not contracts between party and party, either express or implied; but they are the positive acts of the government, through its various agents, binding upon the inhabitants, and to the making and enforcing of which their personal consent individually is not required." | As we said in the previous explanation, taxes result from "domicile". Selecting a "domicile" within the country in which a person was born changes their status from that of simply a "national" to that of a "citizen". The Supreme Court defines "citizenship" as a type of contract called a "compact": "Allegiance and citizenship, differ, indeed, in almost every characteristic. Citizenship is the effect of compact [contract]; allegiance is the offspring of power and necessity. Citizenship is a political tie; allegiance is a territorial tenure." [Talbot v. Janson, 3 U.S. 133 (1795); From the syllabus but not the opinion; SOURCE: http://www.law.cornell.edu/supct/search/display.html?terms=choice%20or%20conflict%20and%20law&amp;url=/supct/html/historics/USSC_CR_0003_0133_ZS.html] A "citizen", which is simply a "national" who owes allegiance to a political community, becomes a "citizen" when he selects a domicile within the exclusive legislative jurisdiction of that community. The court uses the word "inhabitant", which is legally defined as follows: "Inhabitant. One who reside actually and permanently in a given place, and has his domicile there. Ex parte Shaw, 145 U.S. 444, 12 S.Ct. 935, 36 L.Ed. 768." [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 782] Note the key word "resides actually and permanently". That means they are once again talking about a person who has a "domicile" in the exclusive jurisdiction of the state. Notice the use of the word "permanent" in the definition of "domicile": "domicile. A person's legal home. That place where a man has his true, fixed, and permanent home and principal establishment, and to which whenever he is absent he has the intention of returning. Smith v. Smith, 206 Pa.Super. 310, 213 A.2d. 94. Generally, physical presence within a state and the intention to make it one's home are the requisites of establishing a "domicile" therein. The permanent residence of a person or the place to which he intends to return even though he may actually reside elsewhere. A person may have more than one residence but only one domicile. The legal domicile of a person is important since it, rather than the actual residence, often controls the jurisdiction of the taxing authorities and determines where a person may exercise the privilege of voting and other legal rights and privileges." [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 485] Once again, a person cannot be a "taxpayer" without voluntarily choosing a domicile within the forum state. By choosing a domicile within that state, one is making a choice of political association in which the person nominates a "protector" and in essence contracts with that government sovereign to provide protection. In return, he owes allegiance and the duty to support the cost of providing the protection. In that sense, taxation absolutely and unequivocally are "contractual" and the contract is between the individual, and the government that has jurisdiction over the physical place that he voluntarily identifies and consents to make into his "domicile". |

| Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1457 | “Tax: A charge by the government on the income of an individual, corporation, or trust, as well as the value of an estate or gift. The objective in assessing the tax is to generate revenue to be used for the needs of the public. A pecuniary [relating to money] burden laid upon individuals or property to support the government, and is a payment exacted by legislative authority. In re Mytinger, D.C.Tex. 31 F.Supp. 977,978,979. Essential characteristics of a tax are that it is NOT A VOLUNTARY PAYMENT OR DONATION, BUT AN ENFORCED CONTRIBUTION, EXACTED PURSUANT TO LEGISLATIVE AUTHORITY. Michigan Employment Sec. Commission v. Patt, 4 Mich.App. 228, 144 N.W.2d. 663, 665. ...” | This is a play on words. Yes, a “tax” is an enforced contribution to those who are “taxpayers”, but it may not be enforced against those who are “nontaxpayers”. Not everyone is a “taxpayer”, and whether they are is determined by whether they either chose a domicile within the jurisdiction of the state in question, or whether they voluntarily engaged in excise taxable, privileged activities that are subject to government regulation. |

You will note that the key means of deception in the preceding tabular list of government and legal profession propaganda are the following:

1. Use of the word “taxpayer” instead of “every American” or “every person”. A “taxpayer” is, by definition found in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(14), a person who is “subject to” and “liable for” tax.

26 U.S.C. Sec. 7701:Definitions

(14) Taxpayer

The term “taxpayer” means any person subject to any internal revenue tax.

A “taxpayer” therefore is already party to the Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A by virtue of consenting to it and consenting to act and be treated as a “taxpayer”. Consenting to be a “taxpayer” even though no liability statute makes him one is how he becomes subject to it to begin with! He is a “taxpayer” usually because he ALREADY signed a W-4 or 1040 or SSA Form SS-5. To say that is deceptive, because he already has the liability based on the status of being a “taxpayer”. A “taxpayer” incapable of assuming more than that liability in regards to the tax in question than he already has. On the other hand, the following statement would be completely false, and all we did was add three letters!:

“Taxation is neither a penalty imposed on the NONtaxpayer [or “transient foreigner”] nor a liability which he assumes by contract.”

Forcing a “nontaxpayer” to pay anything is a penalty and extortion, and the only way it wouldn't be illegal extortion would be if he had a domicile within the forum state and was engaging in excise taxable activities that made him legally liable to pay.

2. Use of “citizen”, which is a person with a “domicile” within the forum state and therefore liable to taxation, instead of “person”. For instance, a “transient foreigner”, even if he was born in the forum state and physically present there, is not a “citizen” because he does not have a domicile. Therefore, he is a “nontaxpayer”. We cover this later in section 5.4.8.

“Transient foreigner. One who visits the country, without the intention of remaining.”
[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1498]

3. Avoiding revealing what aspect of voluntary behavior made a person a “taxpayer”. For instance, none of the above cites mention the true behaviors that make one into a “taxpayer”, such as “domicile” or excise taxable activities. Instead, they refer to the party liable simply as a “taxpayer”, “inhabitant”, or “citizen”, all three of which are synonymous with a person who maintain a “domicile” within the jurisdiction in question and therefore are “liable”: Here is the proof:

“This right to protect persons having a domicile, though not native-born or naturalized citizens, rests on the firm foundation of justice, and the claim to be protected is earned by considerations which the protecting power is not at liberty to disregard. Such domiciled citizen pays the same price for his protection as native-born or naturalized citizens pay for theirs. He is under the bonds of allegiance to the country of his residence, and, if he breaks them, incurs the same penalties. He owes the same obedience to the civil laws. His property is, in the same way and to the same extent as theirs, liable to contribute to the support of the Government. In nearly all respects, his and their condition as to the duties and burdens of Government are undistinguishable.”
Fong Yue Ting v. United States, [149 U.S. 698 (1893)]

“Inhabitant. One who reside actually and permanently [permanent residence=“domicile”] in a given place, and has his domicile there. Ex parte Shaw, 145 U.S. 444, 12 S.Ct. 935, 36 L.Ed. 768.”
[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 782]

26 C.F.R. §1.1-1\(c\): Income Tax on individuals

(c) Who is a citizen. Every person born or naturalized in the [federal] United States and subject to its exclusive federal jurisdiction under [Article I, Section 8, Clause 17 of the Constitution] jurisdiction is a citizen. [You can only become subject to "its" jurisdiction by choosing a domicile in that jurisdiction. Otherwise, you are a "transient foreigner" or a "national" but not a "citizen" under federal law. See section 4.11.2 for a detailed explanation of how this scam works.]

None of the above cases or quotes mention the real voluntary and consensual "activities" that make one a "taxpayer" such as choosing a legal "domicile" or volunteering to engage in privileged, excise taxable activities, because the sources cited simply do not want to give the audience any information about how to avoid the tax in question. If everyone knew that "domicile" and a "trade or business" were the main legal basis for volunteering or consenting to become a taxpayer, for instance, then they would simply change their domicile and quit associating themselves with the activity that they never were involved in to begin with. This would lawfully deprive the government of revenues, and leave them with no lawful means of replacing said revenues. Instead, those authoring the above specious propaganda want you to believe that taxation does not require consent, that it is compelled, that no aspect of it is voluntary, and that they instead of you are the "sovereigns" who must be obeyed. They want tax slaves to govern in their legislatively created federal plantation in the District of Columbia, not sovereigns which law obligates them to respect, obey, and leave alone. Do you see how insidious this deception is?

5.2.7 "Public" v. "Private" employment: You will be ILLEGALLY Treated as a Public Officer if you Apply for or Receive Government "Benefits"

"All systems either of preference or of restraint, therefore, being thus completely taken away, the obvious and simple system of natural liberty establishes itself of its own accord. Every man, as long as he does not violate the laws of justice, is left perfectly free to pursue his own interest his own way, and to bring both his industry and capital into competition with those of any other man or order of men. The sovereign is completely discharged from a duty, in the attempting to perform which he must always be exposed to innumerable delusions, and for the proper performance of which no human wisdom or knowledge could ever be sufficient: the duty of superintending the industry of private people."
Adam Smith, [An Inquiry into the Nature and Causes of the Wealth of Nations (1776)]

The U.S. Supreme Court has said many times that the ONLY purpose for lawful, constitutional taxation is to collect revenues to support ONLY the machinery and operations of the government and its "employees". This purpose, it calls a "public use" or "public purpose":

"The power to tax is, therefore, the strongest, the most pervading of all powers of government, reaching directly or indirectly to all classes of the people. It was said by Chief Justice Marshall, in the case of McCulloch v. Md., 4 Wheat. 431, that the power to tax is the power to destroy. A striking instance of the truth of the proposition is seen in the fact that the existing tax of ten per cent, imposed by the United States on the circulation of all other banks than the National Banks, drove out of existence every *state bank of circulation within a year or two after its passage. This power can be readily employed against one class of individuals and in favor of another, so as to ruin the one class and give unlimited wealth and prosperity to the other, if there is no implied limitation of the uses for which the power may be exercised.

To lay, with one hand, the power of the government on the property of the citizen, and with the other to bestow it upon favored individuals to aid private enterprises and build up private fortunes, is none the less a robbery because it is done under the forms of law and is called taxation. This is not legislation. It is a decree under legislative forms.

Nor is it taxation. 'A tax,' says Webster's Dictionary, 'is a rate or sum of money assessed on the person or property of a citizen by government for the use of the nation or State.' 'Taxes are burdens or charges imposed by the Legislature upon persons or property to raise money for public purposes.' Cooley, Const. Lim., 479.

Coulter, J., in Northern Liberties v. St. John's Church, 13 Pa.St., 104 says, very forcibly, 'I think the common mind has everywhere taken in the understanding that taxes are a public imposition, levied by authority of the government for the purposes of carrying on the government in all its machinery and operations—that they are imposed for a public purpose.' See, also Pray v. Northern Liberties, 31 Pa.St., 69; Matter of Mayor of N.Y., 11 Johns., 77; Camden v. Allen, 2 Dutch., 398; Sharpless v. Mayor, supra; Hanson v. Vernon, 27 Ia., 47; Whiting v. Fond du Lac, supra."
[Loan Association v. Topeka, 20 Wall. 655 (1874)]

"A tax, in the general understanding of the term and as used in the constitution, signifies an exaction for the support of the government. The word has never thought to connote the expropriation of money from one group for the benefit of another."
[U.S. v. Butler, 297 U.S. 1 (1936)]

Black's Law Dictionary defines the word "public purpose" as follows:

"Public purpose. In the law of taxation, eminent domain, etc., this is a term of classification to distinguish the objects for which, according to settled usage, the government is to provide, from those which, by the like usage, are left to private interest, inclination, or liberality. The constitutional requirement that the purpose of any tax, police regulation, or particular exertion of the power of eminent domain shall be the convenience, safety, or welfare of the entire community and not the welfare of a specific individual or class of persons [such as, for instance, federal benefit recipients as individuals]. "Public purpose" that will justify expenditure of public money generally means such an activity as will serve as benefit to community as a body and which at same time is directly related function of government. Pack v. Southwestern Bell Tel. & Tel. Co., 215 Tenn. 503, 387 S.W.2d. 789, 794.

The term is synonymous with governmental purpose. As employed to denote the objects for which taxes may be levied, it has no relation to the urgency of the public need or to the extent of the public benefit which is to follow; the essential requisite being that a public service or use shall affect the inhabitants as a community, and not merely as individuals. A public purpose or public business has for its objective the promotion of the public health, safety, morals, general welfare, security, prosperity, and contentment of all the inhabitants or residents within a given political division, as, for example, a state, the sovereign powers of which are exercised to promote such public purpose or public business."
[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1231, Emphasis added]

A related word defined in Black's Law Dictionary is "public use":

Public use. Eminent domain. The constitutional and statutory basis for taking property by eminent domain. For condemnation purposes, "public use" is one which confers some benefit or advantage to the public; it is not confined to actual use by public. It is measured in terms of right of public to use proposed facilities for which condemnation is sought and, as long as public has right of use, whether exercised by one or many members of public, a "public advantage" or "public benefit" accrues sufficient to constitute a public use. Montana Power Co. v. Bokma, Mont., 457 P.2d. 769, 772, 773.

Public use, in constitutional provisions restricting the exercise of the right to take property in virtue of eminent domain, means a use concerning the whole community distinguished from particular individuals. But each and every member of society need not be equally interested in such use, or be personally and directly affected by it; if the object is to satisfy a great public want or exigency, that is sufficient. Ringe Co. v. Los Angeles County, 262 U.S. 700, 43 S.Ct. 689, 692, 67 L.Ed. 1186. The term may be said to mean public usefulness, utility, or advantage, or what is productive of general benefit. It may be limited to the inhabitants of a small or restricted locality, but must be in common, and not for a particular individual. The use must be a needful one for the public, which cannot be surrendered without obvious general loss and inconvenience. A "public use" for which land may be taken defies absolute definition for it changes with varying conditions of society, new appliances in the sciences, changing conceptions of scope and functions of government, and other differing circumstances brought about by an increase in population and new modes of communication and transportation. Katz v. Brandon, 156 Conn. 521, 245 A.2d. 579, 586.

See also Condemnation; Eminent domain.
[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1232]

Black's Law Dictionary also defines the word "tax" as follows:

"Tax: A charge by the government on the income of an individual, corporation, or trust, as well as the value of an estate or gift. The objective in assessing the tax is to generate revenue to be used for the needs of the public.

A pecuniary [relating to money] burden laid upon individuals or property to support the government, and is a payment exacted by legislative authority. In re Mytinger, D.C.Tex. 31 F.Supp. 977,978,979. Essential characteristics of a tax are that it is NOT A VOLUNTARY PAYMENT OR DONATION, BUT AN ENFORCED CONTRIBUTION, EXACTED PURSUANT TO LEGISLATIVE AUTHORITY. Michigan Employment Sec. Commission v. Patt, 4 Mich.App. 228, 144 N.W.2d. 663, 665. ..."
[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1457]

So in order to be legitimately called a "tax" or "taxation", the money we pay to the government must fit all of the following criteria:

1. The money must be used ONLY for the support of government.

- 1 2. The subject of the tax must be "liable", and responsible to pay for the support of government under the force of law.
- 2 3. The money must go toward a "public purpose" rather than a "private purpose".
- 3 4. The monies paid cannot be described as wealth transfer between two people or classes of people within society
- 4 5. The monies paid cannot aid one group of private individuals in society at the expense of another group, because this
- 5 violates the concept of equal protection of law for all citizens found in section 1 of the Fourteenth Amendment.

6 If the monies demanded by government do not fit all of the above requirements, then they are being used for a "private"
7 purpose and cannot be called "taxes" or "taxation", according to the Supreme Court. Actions by the government to enforce 8 the payment of any monies that do not meet all the above requirements can therefore only be described as:

- 9 1. Theft and robbery by the government in the guise of "taxation"
- 10 2. Government by decree rather than by law
- 11 3. Extortion under the color of law in violation 18 U.S.C. §872.
- 12 4. Tyranny
- 13 5. Socialism
- 14 6. Mob rule and a tyranny by the "have-nots" against the "haves"
- 15 7. 18 U.S.C. §241: Conspiracy against rights. The IRS shares tax return information with states of the union, so that both 16 of them can conspire to deprive you of your property.
- 17 8. 18 U.S.C. §242: Deprivation of rights under the color of law. The Fifth Amendment says that people in states of the 18 Union cannot be deprived of their property without due process of law or a court hearing. Yet, the IRS tries to make it
19 appear like they have the authority to just STEAL these people's property for a fabricated tax debt that they aren't even 20 legally liable for.
- 21 9. 18 U.S.C. §247: Damage to religious property; obstruction of persons in the free exercise of religious beliefs
- 22 10. 18 U.S.C. §872: Extortion by officers or employees of the United States.
- 23 11. 18 U.S.C. §876: Mailing threatening communications. This includes all the threatening notices regarding levies, liens,
24 and idiotic IRS letters that refuse to justify why government thinks we are "liable".
- 25 12. 18 U.S.C. §880: Receiving the proceeds of extortion. Any money collected from Americans through illegal enforcement
26 actions and for which the contributors are not "liable" under the law is extorted money, and the IRS is in receipt of the 27 proceeds of illegal extortion.
- 28 13. 18 U.S.C. §1581: Peonage, obstructing enforcement. IRS is obstructing the proper administration of the Internal 29 Revenue Code and the Constitution, which require that they respect those who choose NOT to volunteer to participate
30 in the federal donation program identified under I.R.C., Subtitle A
- 31 14. 18 U.S.C. §1583: Enticement into slavery. IRS tries to enlist "nontaxpayers" to rejoin the ranks of other peons who pay 32 taxes they aren't demonstrably liable for, which amount to slavery.
- 33 15. 18 U.S.C. §1589: Forced labor. Being forced to expend one's personal time responding to frivolous IRS notices and 34 pay taxes on my labor that I am not liable for.

35 The U.S. Supreme Court has further characterized all efforts to abuse the tax system in order to accomplish "wealth transfer"
36 as "political heresy" that is a denial of republican principles that form the foundation of our Constitution, when it issued the 37 following strong words of rebuke. Incidentally, the case below also forms the backbone of reasons why the Internal Revenue
38 Code can never be anything more than private law that only applies to those who volunteer into it:

39 "The Legislature may enjoin, permit, forbid, and punish; they may declare new crimes; and establish rules of 40 conduct for all its citizens in future cases; they may command what is right, and prohibit what is wrong; but they
41 [the government] cannot change innocence [a "nontaxpayer"] into guilt [a "taxpayer"]; or punish innocence
42 as a crime [criminally prosecute a "nontaxpayer" for violation of the tax laws]; or violate the right of an
43 antecedent lawful private contract; or the right of private property. To maintain that our Federal, or State,
44 Legislature possesses such powers [of THEFT and FRAUD], if they had not been expressly restrained; would,
45 **389 in my opinion, be a political heresy, altogether inadmissible in our free republican governments."*
46 [Calder v. Bull, 3 U.S. 386 (1798)]

47 We also cannot assume or suppose that our government has the authority to make "gifts" of monies collected through its 48 taxation powers, and especially not when paid to private individuals or foreign countries because:

- 49 1. The Constitution DOES NOT authorize the government to "gift" money to anyone within states of the Union or in foreign 50 countries, and therefore, this is not a Constitutional use of public funds, nor does unauthorized expenditure of such funds
51 produce a tangible public benefit, but rather an injury, by forcing those who do not approve of the gift to subsidize it and 52 yet not derive any personal benefit whatsoever for it.
- 53 2. The Supreme Court identifies such abuse of taxing powers as "robbery in the name of taxation" above.

Based on the foregoing analysis, we are then forced to divide the monies collected by the government through its taxing powers into only two distinct classes. We also emphasize that every tax collected and every expenditure originating from the tax paid MUST fit into one of the two categories below:

Table 5-23: Two methods for taxation

| #  | Characteristic                                                                     | Public use/purpose                                                                                                                             | Private use/purpose                                                                                                                                                                    |

Tax becomes a means of "renting" what amounts to state property to private individuals for temporary use. |

The U.S. Supreme Court also helped to clarify how to distinguish the two above categories when it said:

"It is undoubtedly the duty of the legislature which imposes or authorizes municipalities to impose a tax to see that it is not to be used for purposes of private interest instead of a public use, and the courts can only be justified in interposing when a violation of this principle is clear and the [87 U.S. 665] reason for interference cogent. And in deciding whether, in the given case, the object for which the taxes are assessed falls upon the one side or the other of this line, they must be governed mainly by the course and usage of the government, the objects for which taxes have been customarily and by long course of legislation levied, what objects or purposes have been considered necessary to the support and for the proper use of the government, whether state or municipal. Whatever lawfully pertains to this and is sanctioned by time and the acquiescence of the people may well be held to belong to the public use, and proper for the maintenance of good government, though this may not be the only criterion of rightful taxation."
 [Loan Association v. Topeka, 20 Wall. 655 (1874)]

If we give our government the benefit of the doubt by "assuming" or "presuming" that it is operating lawfully and consistent with the model on the left above, then we have no choice but to conclude that everyone who lawfully receives any kind of federal payment MUST be either a federal "employee" or "federal contractor" on official duty, and that the compensation received must be directly connected to the performance of a sovereign or Constitutionally authorized function of government.

1 Any other conclusion or characterization of a lawful tax other than this is irrational, inconsistent with the rulings of the U.S.
 2 Supreme Court on this subject, and an attempt to deceive the public about the role of limited Constitutional government based
 3 on Republican principles. This means that you cannot participate in any of the following federal social insurance programs
 4 WITHOUT being a federal "employee", and if you refuse to identify yourself as a federal employee, then you are admitting 5 that your government is a thief and a robber that is abusing its taxing powers:

- 6 1. Subtitle A of the Internal Revenue Code. I.R.C. (26 U.S.C.) sections 1, 32, and 162 all confer privileged financial
- 7 benefits to the participant which constitute federal "employment" compensation.
- 8 2. Social Security.
- 9 3. Unemployment compensation.
- 10 4. Medicare.

11 An examination of the Privacy Act, 5 U.S.C. §552a\(a\)\(13\), in fact, identifies all those who participate in the above programs
 12 as "federal personnel", which means federal "employees". To wit:

13 TITLE 5 > PART I > CHAPTER 5 > SUBCHAPTER II > § 552a
 14 § 552a. Records maintained on individuals

15 (a) Definitions.— For purposes of this section—

16 (13) the term "Federal personnel" means officers and employees of the Government of the United States,
 17 members of the uniformed services (including members of the Reserve Components), individuals entitled to 18 receive immediate or deferred retirement benefits under any retirement program of the Government of the 19 United States (including survivor benefits).

20 The "individual" they are talking about above is further defined in 5 U.S.C. §552a\(a\)\(2\) as follows:

21 TITLE 5 > PART I > CHAPTER 5 > SUBCHAPTER II > § 552a
 22 § 552a. Records maintained on individuals

23 (a) Definitions.— For purposes of this section—

24 (2) the term "individual" means a citizen of the United States or an alien lawfully admitted for permanent 25 residence;

26 The "citizen of the United States" they are talking about is based on the STATUTORY rather than CONSTITUTIONAL
 27 definition of the "United States", which means it refers to "national and citizen of the United States** at birth" under 8 U.S.C.
 28 §1401 rather than a CONSTITUTIONAL or Fourteenth Amendment "Citizen" or "citizen of the United States respectively
 29 born in and domiciled in states of the Union. We cover this in:

Why You are a "national", "state national", and Constitutional but not Statutory Citizen, Form #05.006
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

30 Also, note that both of the two preceding definitions are found within Title 5 of the U.S. Code, which is entitled "Government 31 Organization and Employees". Therefore, it refers ONLY to government "employees" and excludes private employees.
 32 There is no definition of the term "individual" anywhere in Title 26 (I.R.C.) of the U.S. Code or any other title that refers to 33 private natural humans, because Congress cannot legislate for them. Notice the use of the phrase "private business" in the 34 U.S. Supreme Court ruling below:

35 *"The individual may stand upon his constitutional rights as a citizen. He is entitled to carry on his private
 36 business in his own way [unregulated by the government]. His power to contract is unlimited. He owes no duty
 37 to the State or to his neighbor to divulge his business, or to open his doors to an investigation, so far as it may
 38 tend to criminate him. He owes no such duty to the State, since he receives nothing therefrom, beyond the 39 protection of his life and property. His rights are such as existed by the law of the land long antecedent to the* 40 organization of the State, and can only be taken from him by due process of law, and in accordance with the 41 Constitution. Among his rights are a refusal to incriminate himself, and the immunity of himself and his property
 42 *from arrest or seizure except under a warrant of the law. He owes nothing to the public [including so-called 43 "taxes" under Subtitle A of the I.R.C.] so long as he does not trespass upon their rights."
 44 [Hale v. Henkel, 201 U.S. 43, 74 (1906)]

1 The purpose of the Constitution and the Bill of Rights instead is to REMOVE authority of the Congress to legislate for private
2 persons and thereby protect their sovereignty and dignity. That is why the U.S. Supreme Court ruled the following:

3 "The makers of our Constitution undertook to secure conditions favorable to the pursuit of happiness. They
4 recognized the significance of man's spiritual nature, of his feelings and of his intellect. They knew that only a
5 part of the pain, pleasure and satisfactions of life are to be found in material things. They sought to protect
6 Americans in their beliefs, their thoughts, their emotions and their sensations. They conferred, as against the 7 Government, the right to be let alone - the most comprehensive of rights and the right most valued by civilized
8 men."

9 [Olmstead v. United States, 277 U.S. 438, 478 (1928) (Brandeis, J., dissenting); see also Washington v. Harper,
10 494 U.S. 210 (1990)]

QUESTIONS FOR DOUBTERS: If you aren't a federal statutory "employee" as a person participating in Social Security and the Internal Revenue Code, then why are all of the Social Security Regulations located in Title 20 of the Code of Federal Regulations under parts 400-499, entitled "Employee Benefits"? See for yourself:

<https://law.justia.com/cfr/title20.html>

26 C.F.R. §31.3401(c)-1 Employee:

"...the term [employee] includes officers and employees, whether elected or appointed, of the United States, a [federal] State, Territory, Puerto Rico or any political subdivision, thereof, or the District of Columbia, or any agency or instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing. The term 'employee' also includes an officer of a corporation."

26 U.S.C. §3401(c) Employee

For purposes of this chapter, the term "employee" includes [is limited to] an officer, employee, or elected official of the United States, a State, or any political subdivision thereof, or the District of Columbia, or any agency or instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing. The term "employee" also includes an officer of a corporation.

TITLE 5 > PART III > Subpart A > CHAPTER 21 > § 2105
§2105. Employee

(a) For the purpose of this title, "employee", except as otherwise provided by this section or when specifically modified, means an officer and an individual who is—

(1) appointed in the civil service by one of the following acting in an official capacity—

- (A) the President;*
- (B) a Member or Members of Congress, or the Congress;*
- (C) a member of a uniformed service;*
- (D) an individual who is an employee under this section;*
- (E) the head of a Government controlled corporation; or*
- (F) an adjutant general designated by the Secretary concerned under section 709 (c) of title 32;*

(2) engaged in the performance of a Federal function under authority of law or an Executive act; and
(3) subject to the supervision of an individual named by paragraph (1) of this subsection while engaged in the performance of the duties of his position.

Keeping in mind the following rules of statutory construction and interpretation, please show us SOMEWHERE in the statutes defining "employee" that EXPRESSLY includes PRIVATE human beings working as PRIVATE workers protected by the constitution and not subject to federal law:

*"Expressio unius est exclusio alterius. A maxim of statutory interpretation meaning that the expression of one thing is the exclusion of another. *Burgin v. Forbes, 293 Ky. 456, 169 S.W.2d. 321, 325; Newblock v. Bowles, 170 Okl. 487, 40 P.2d. 1097, 1100. Mention of one thing implies exclusion of another. When certain persons or things are specified in a law, contract, or will, an intention to exclude all others from its operation may be inferred. Under this maxim, if statute specifies one exception to a general rule or assumes to specify the effects of a certain provision, other exceptions or effects are excluded."

[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 581]

"When a statute includes an explicit definition, we must follow that definition, even if it varies from that term's ordinary meaning. Meese v. Keene, 481 U.S. 465, 484-485 (1987) ("It is axiomatic that the statutory definition of the term excludes unstated meanings of that term"); Colautti v. Franklin, 439 U.S. at 392-393, n. 10 ("As a rule, `a definition which declares what a term "means" . . . excludes any meaning that is not stated"); Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Lenroot, 323 U.S. 490, 502 (1945); Fox v. Standard Oil Co. of N.J., 294 U.S. 87, 95-96 (1935) (Cardozo, J.); see also 2A N. Singer, Sutherland on Statutes and Statutory Construction § 47.07, p. 152, and n. 10 (5th ed. 1992) (collecting cases). That is to say, the statute, read "as a whole," post at 998 [530 U.S. 943] (THOMAS, J., dissenting), leads the reader to a definition. That definition does not include the Attorney General's restriction -- "the child up to the head." Its words, "substantial portion," indicate the contrary."
[Stenberg v. Carhart, 530 U.S. 914 (2000)]

1 Another very important point to make here is that the purpose of nearly all federal law is to regulate "public conduct" rather
2 than "private conduct". Congress must write laws to regulate and control every aspect of the behavior of its employees so
3 that they do not adversely affect the rights of private individuals like you, who they exist exclusively to serve and protect.
4 Most federal statutes, in fact, are exclusively for use by those working in government and simply do not apply to private 5 citizens in the conduct of their private lives. This fact is exhaustively proven with evidence in:

Why Statutory Civil Law is Law for Government and Not Private Persons, Form #05.037
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

6 Franchises of the National (not federal but national) government cannot apply to the private public at large because the 7 Thirteenth Amendment says that involuntary servitude has been abolished. If involuntary servitude is abolished, then they
8 can't use, or in this case "abuse" the authority of law to impose ANY kind of duty against anyone in the private public except 9 possibly the responsibility to avoid hurting their neighbor and thereby depriving him of the equal rights he enjoys.

10 For the commandments, "You shall not commit adultery," "You shall not murder," "You shall not steal," "You
11 shall not bear false witness," "You shall not covet," and if there is any other commandment, are all summed up
12 in this saying, namely, "You shall love your neighbor as yourself."

13 Love does no harm to a neighbor; therefore love is the fulfillment of [the ONLY requirement of] the law [which 14 is to avoid hurting your neighbor and thereby love him].
15 [Romans 13:9-10, Bible, NKJV]
16

17 "Do not strive with a man without cause, if he has done you no harm."
18 [Prov. 3:30, Bible, NKJV]

19 Thomas Jefferson, our most revered founding father, summed up this singular duty of government to LEAVE PEOPLE
20 ALONE and only interfere or impose a "duty" using the authority of law when and only when they are hurting each other in 21 order to protect them and prevent the harm when he said.

22 "With all [our] blessings, what more is necessary to make us a happy and a prosperous people? Still one thing
23 more, fellow citizens--a wise and frugal Government, which shall restrain men from injuring one another, shall 24 leave them otherwise free to regulate their own pursuits of industry and improvement, and shall not take from 25 the mouth of labor the bread it has earned. This is the sum of good government, and this is necessary to close the 26 circle of our felicities."
27 [Thomas Jefferson: 1st Inaugural, 1801. ME 3:320]

28 The U.S. Supreme Court confirmed this view, when it ruled:

29 "The power to "legislate generally upon" life, liberty, and property, as opposed to the "power to provide modes
30 of redress" against offensive state action, was "repugnant" to the Constitution. Id., at 15. See also United States
31 v. Reese, 92 U.S. 214, 218 (1876); United States v. Harris, 106 U.S. 629, 639 (1883); James v. Bowman, 190 U.S.
32 127, 139 (1903). Although the specific holdings of these early cases might have been superseded or modified, see,
33 e.g., Heart of Atlanta Motel, Inc. v. United States, 379 U.S. 241 (1964); United States v. Guest, 383 U.S. 745
34 (1966), their treatment of Congress' §5 power as corrective or preventive, not definitional, has not been 35 questioned."
36 [City of Boerne v. Flores, Archbishop of San Antonio, 521 U.S. 507 (1997)]

1 What the U.S. Supreme Court is saying above is that the government has no authority to tell you how to run your private life.
 2 This is contrary to the whole idea of the Internal Revenue Code, whose main purpose is to monitor and control every aspect
 3 of those who are subject to it. In fact, it has become the chief means for Congress to implement what we call “social
 4 engineering”. Just by the deductions they offer, people are incentivized into all kinds of crazy behaviors in pursuit of
 5 reductions in a liability that they in fact do not even have. Therefore, the only reasonable thing to conclude is that Internal
 6 Revenue Code, Subtitle A which would “appear” to regulate the private conduct of all human beings in states of the Union,
 7 in fact:

- 8 1. Only applies to “public employees”, “public offices”, and federal instrumentalities in the official conduct of their 9 duties on behalf of the municipal corporation located in the District of Columbia, which 4 U.S.C. §72 makes the “seat 10 of government”.
- 11 2. Does not CREATE any new public offices or instrumentalities within the national government, but only regulates the 12 exercise of EXISTING public offices lawfully created through Title 5 of the U.S. Code. The IRS abuses its forms to 13 unlawfully CREATE public offices within the federal government. In payroll terminology, this is called “creating 14 fictitious employees”, and it is not only quite common, but highly illegal and can get private workers FIRED on the 15 spot if discovered.
- 16 3. Regulates PUBLIC and not PRIVATE conduct and therefore does not pertain to private human beings.
- 17 4. Constitutes a franchise and a “benefit” within the meaning of 5 U.S.C. §552a. Tax “refunds” and “deductions”, in fact,
 18 are the “benefit”, and 26 U.S.C. §162 says that all those who take deductions MUST, in fact, be engaged in a public
 19 office within the government, which is called a “trade or business”:

20 TITLE 5 > PART 1 > CHAPTER 5 > SUBCHAPTER II > § 552a
 21 § 552a. Records maintained on individuals

22 (a) Definitions.— For purposes of this section—

23 (12) the term “Federal benefit program” means any program administered or funded by the Federal
 24 Government, or by any agent or State on behalf of the Federal Government, providing cash or in-kind
 25 assistance in the form of payments, grants, loans, or loan guarantees to individuals: . . .

- 26 5. Has the job of concealing all the above facts in thousands of pages and hundreds of thousands of words so that the 27 average American is not aware of it. That is why they call it the “code” instead of simply “law”: Because it is private 28 law you have to volunteer for and an “encryption” and concealment device for the truth. Now we know why former 29 Treasury Secretary Paul O’Neil called the Internal Revenue Code “9500 pages of gibberish” before he quit his job in 30 disgust and went on a campaign to criticize government.

31 The I.R.C. therefore essentially amounts to a part of the job responsibility and the “employment contract” of EXISTING 32 “public employees”, “public officers”, and federal instrumentalities. This was also confirmed by the House of 33 Representatives, who said that only those who take an oath of “public office” are subject to the requirements of the personal 34 income tax. See:

35 <http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/Evidence/PublicOrPrivate-Tax-Return.pdf>

36 The total lack of authority of the government to regulate or tax private conduct explains why, for instance:

- 37 1. The vehicle code in your state cannot be enforced on PRIVATE property. It only applies on PUBLIC roads owned by 38 the government
- 39 2. The family court in your state cannot regulate the exercise of unlicensed and therefore PRIVATE CONTRACT
 40 marriage. Marriage licenses are a franchise that make those applying into public officers. Family court is a franchise
 41 court and the equivalent of binding arbitration that only applies to fellow statutory government “employees”.
- 42 3. City conduct ordinances such as those prohibiting drinking by underage minors only apply to institutions who are 43 licensed, and therefore PUBLIC institutions acting as public officers of the government.

44 Within the Internal Revenue Code, those legal “persons” who work for the government are identified as engaging in a “public
 45 office”. A “public office” within the Internal Revenue Code is called a “trade or business”, which is defined below. We 46 emphasize that engaging in a privileged “trade or business” is the main excise taxable activity that in fact and in deed is what 47 REALLY makes a person a “taxpayer” subject to the Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A:

1 26 U.S.C. Sec. 7701\(a\)\(26\)

2 "The term 'trade or business' includes the performance of the functions of a public office."

3 Below is the definition of "public office":

4 Public office

5 "Essential characteristics of a 'public office' are:

6 (1) Authority conferred by law,

7 (2) Fixed tenure of office, and

8 (3) Power to exercise some of the sovereign functions of government.

9 (4) Key element of such test is that "officer is carrying out a sovereign function".

10 (5) Essential elements to establish public position as 'public office' are:

11 (a) Position must be created by Constitution, legislature, or through authority conferred by legislature.

12 (b) Portion of sovereign power of government must be delegated to position,

13 (c) Duties and powers must be defined, directly or implied, by legislature or through legislative authority.

14 (d) Duties must be performed independently without control of superior power other than law, and

15 (e) Position must have some permanency."

16 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1230]

17 Those who are fulfilling the "functions of a public office" are under a legal, fiduciary duty as "trustees" of the "public trust",
18 while working as "volunteers" for the "charitable trust" called the "United States Government Corporation", which we 19 affectionately call "U.S. Inc.":

20 "As expressed otherwise, the powers delegated to a public officer are held in trust for the people and are to be
21 exercised in behalf of the government or of all citizens who may need the intervention of the officer.<sup>36</sup>

22 Furthermore, the view has been expressed that all public officers, within whatever branch and whatever level
23 of government, and whatever be their private vocations, are trustees of the people, and accordingly labor under
24 every disability and prohibition imposed by law upon trustees relative to the making of personal financial gain
25 from a discharge of their trusts.<sup>37</sup> That is, a public officer occupies a fiduciary relationship to the political 26 entity on whose behalf he or she serves.<sup>38</sup> and owes a fiduciary duty to the public.<sup>39</sup> It has been said that the 27 fiduciary responsibilities of a public officer cannot be less than those of a private individual.<sup>40</sup> Furthermore,

28 it has been stated that any enterprise undertaken by the public official which tends to weaken public confidence
29 and undermine the sense of security for individual rights is against public policy.<sup>41</sup>"

30 [63C American Jurisprudence 2d, Public Officers and Employees, §247 (1999)]

31 "U.S. Inc." is a federal corporation, as defined below:

32 "Corporations are also of all grades, and made for varied objects; all governments are corporations, created by 33 usage and common consent, or grants and charters which create a body politic for prescribed purposes; but
34 whether they are private, local or general, in their objects, for the enjoyment of property, or the exercise of
35 power, they are all governed by the same rules of law, as to the construction and the obligation of the 36 instrument by which the incorporation is made. One universal rule of law protects persons and property. It is
37 a fundamental principle of the common law of England, that the term freemen of the kingdom, includes 'all
38 persons,' ecclesiastical and temporal, incorporate, politique or natural; it is a part of their magna charta (2 Inst.
39 4), and is incorporated into our institutions. The persons of the members of corporations are on the same footing
40 of protection as other persons, and their corporate property secured by the same laws which protect that of

TITLE 28 - JUDICIARY AND JUDICIAL PROCEDURE
 PART VI - PARTICULAR PROCEEDINGS
 CHAPTER 176 - FEDERAL DEBT COLLECTION PROCEDURE
 SUBCHAPTER A - DEFINITIONS AND GENERAL PROVISIONS
 Sec. 3002. Definitions

(15) "United States" means -
 (A) a Federal corporation;
 (B) an agency, department, commission, board, or other entity of the United States; or
 (C) an instrumentality of the United States.

Those who are acting as "public officers" for "U.S. Inc." have essentially donated their formerly private property to a "public use". In effect, they have joined the SOCIALIST collective and become partakers of money STOLEN from people, most of whom, do not wish to participate and who would quit if offered an informed choice to do so.

*"My son, if sinners [socialists, in this case] entice you,
 Do not consent [do not abuse your power of choice]
 If they say, "Come with us,
 Let us lie in wait to shed blood [of innocent "nontaxpayers"];
 Let us lurk secretly for the innocent without cause;
 Let us swallow them alive like Sheol,
 And whole, like those who go down to the Pit:
 We shall fill our houses with spoil [plunder];
 Cast in your lot among us,
 Let us all have one purse [share the stolen LOOT]"--*

My son, do not walk in the way with them [do not ASSOCIATE with them and don't let the government FORCE you to associate with them either by forcing you to become a "taxpayer"/government whore or a statutory "U.S. citizen"].
 Keep your foot from their path;
 For their feet run to evil,
 And they make haste to shed blood.
 Surely, in vain the net is spread
 In the sight of any bird;
 But they lie in wait for their own blood.
 They lurk secretly for their own lives.
 So are the ways of everyone who is greedy for gain [or unearned government benefits];
 It takes away the life of its owners."
 [Proverbs 1:10-19, Bible, NKJV]

Below is what the U.S. Supreme Court says about those who have donated their private property to a "public use". The ability to volunteer your private property for "public use", by the way, also implies the ability to UNVOLUNTEER at any time, which is the part no government employee we have ever found is willing to talk about. I wonder why....DUHHHH!:

"Men are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, -life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness;" and to 'secure,' not grant or create, these rights, governments are instituted. That property [or income] which a man has honestly acquired he retains full control of, subject to these limitations: First, that he shall not use it to his neighbor's injury, and that does not mean that he must use it for his neighbor's benefit; second, that if he devotes it to a public use, he gives to the public a right to control that USE; and third, that whenever the public needs require, the public may take it upon payment of due compensation.
 [Budd v. People of State of New York, 143 U.S. 517 (1892)]

The reason governments are created, according to the Declaration of Independence, is exclusively to protect PRIVATE rights. The only thing MENTIONED in the Declaration, in fact, as the object of protection is HUMANS, not GOVERNMENTS. Government did not CREATE these PRIVATE, UNALIENABLE rights and therefore, they do not OWN them. They can only tax or regulate that which the CREATE, and the place they do the creating is in the definition section of franchise agreements. See:

Hierarchy of Sovereignty: The Power to Create is the Power to Tax, Family Guardian Fellowship
<http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/Remedies/PowerToCreate.htm>

1 The VERY first step in protecting PRIVATE rights held exclusively by HUMANS is to prevent them from being converted
 2 to PUBLIC rights or franchises without the EXPRESS written VOLUNTARY consent of those who have the legal capacity
 3 to consent. Governments should not be using word games, equivocation, or other forms of legal treachery to compel the 4 conversion from PRIVATE to PUBLIC. If you would like to know the legal boundaries for this separation between PRIVATE
 5 and PUBLIC and how it is illegally circumvented by covetous public servants, see:

Separation Between Public and Private, Form #12.025
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

6 Now some rules for how PUBLIC and PRIVATE must be kept separated or else the government has violated its fiduciary
 7 duty to protect PRIVATE property. These rules derive from the above document:

- 8 1. The PRIVATE constitutional rights of human beings are UNALIENABLE according to the Declaration of 9 Independence.
  - 10 1.1. Hence, you aren't even allowed to give them away, even WITH your consent.
  - 11 1.2. The only place that consent can lawfully be given is on federal territory where private or constitutional or 12 unalienable rights DO NOT exist in the first place.
  - 13 1.3. The rights created by the consent can be enforced on federal territory not within a state of the Union. All law is 14 prima facie territorial. That is why all public offices are REQUIRED by 4 U.S.C. §72 to be exercised IN the 15 "District of Columbia" and "NOT elsewhere".
- 16 2. Statutory "persons" are PUBLIC fictions of law, agents, and/or offices created in civil statutes by government as a civil 17 franchise. All civil franchises are contracts between the government grantor and the participant. Hence PRIVATE
 18 human beings whose rights are unalienable are UNABLE to consent to a franchise contract if standing on land
 19 protected by the Constitution and must do so on federal territory AT THE TIME consent is given.
- 20 3. A civil or statutory or legal "person", whether it be a natural person, a corporation, or a trust, may ADD to its duties or 21 join specific franchises through consent. HOWEVER:
  - 22 3.1. Licensing and franchises may not be used to CREATE new public offices.
  - 23 3.2. If licensing or franchises are abused to create NEW public offices, then those who engage in said offices outside 24 the place "expressly authorized" to do so by Congress are criminally impersonating a public officer in violation of 25 18 U.S.C. §912.
  - 26 3.3. A subset of those engaging in a "public office" are federal "employees", but the term "public office" or "trade or 27 business" encompass more than just government "employees". Corporations, for instance, are public offices and 28 instrumentalities of the government grantor.
- 29 4. In law, when a human being volunteers to accept the legal duties of a "public office", it therefore becomes a "trustee",
 30 an agent, and fiduciary (as defined in 26 U.S.C. §6903) acting on behalf of the federal government by the operation of 31 private contract/franchise law. It becomes essentially a "franchisee" of the federal government carrying out the 32 provisions of the franchise agreement, which is found in:
  - 33 4.1. Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A, in the case of the federal income tax.
  - 34 4.2. The Social Security Act, which is found in Title 42 of the U.S. Code.

36 If you would like to know more about the extreme dangers of participating in all government franchises and why you destroy
 37 ALL your Constitutional rights and protections by doing so, see:

 39 <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

 41 <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>
- 42 3. SEDM Liberty University, Section 4:
 43 <http://sedm.org/LibertyU/LibertyU.htm>

1 The IRS Form 1042-S Instructions confirm that all those who use Social Security Numbers are engaged in the “trade or 2 business” franchise:

3 Box 14, Recipient's U.S. Taxpayer Identification Number (TIN)

4 You must obtain and enter a U.S. taxpayer identification number (TIN) for:

- 5 • Any recipient whose income is effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business in the
6 United States.

7 [IRS Form 1042-S Instructions, p. 14]

8 Engaging in a “trade or business” therefore implies a “public office”. All those who USE “Taxpayer Identification Numbers”
9 are therefore treated, USUALLY ILLEGALLY IF THEY ARE OTHERWISE PRIVATE, as public officers in the national 10 government. All property associated with the number then is treated effectively as “private property donated to a public use
11 to procure the benefits of a government franchise”. At that point, the person in control of said property is treated as a de facto
12 manager and trustee over public property created by that donation process. That public property includes his/her formerly
13 private time and services. The “employment agreement” for managing this newly, and in most cases ILLEGALLY created
14 public property is the Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A and the Social Security Act found in Title 42 of the U.S. Code.

15 The Social Security Number is therefore the equivalent of a “de facto license number” to act as a “public officer” for the 16 federal government, who is a fiduciary or trustee subject to the plenary legislative jurisdiction of the federal government
17 pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(39\), 26 U.S.C. §7408\(c\), and Federal Rule of Civil Procedure Rule 17\(b\), regardless of where 18 he might be found geographically, including within a state of the Union. The franchise agreement governs “choice of law”
19 and where it's terms may be litigated, which is the District of Columbia, based on the agreement itself.

20 The invisible process of essentially consenting to become a public officer of the national and not state government is a 21 FRAUD because:

- 22 1. They don't protect your right to NOT volunteer.
- 23 2. They refuse to prosecute the fraud once discovered and respond with silence to criminal complaints directed at 24 stopping it. Remember: It is a maximum of law that such gross negligence is in essence and substance, FRAUD itself.
- 25 3. They don't recognize even the EXISTENCE of a “non-resident non-person”, who is someone who DID NOT 26 volunteer. To do so would mean a surrender of their “plausible deniability” in front of a legally ignorant jury.
- 27 4. They call those who insist that the withholdings and/or reportings associated with the fraudulently created public office
28 “frivolous”, and yet refuse to address the content of this section or to address specifically how your property was 29 LAWFULLY converted from PRIVATE to PUBLIC WITHOUT your consent. Even the taxation process requires, as 30 a bare minimum, CONSENT to become a public officer.

31 Now let's apply what we have learned to your employment situation. God said you cannot work for two companies at once.
32 You can only serve one company, and that company is the federal government if you are receiving federal benefits:

33 *“No one can serve two masters [two employers, for instance]; for either he will hate the one and love the other,
34 or else he will be loyal to the one and despise the other. You cannot serve God and mammon [government].”*
35 [Luke 16:13, Bible, NKJV. Written by a tax collector]

36 Everything you make while working for your slave master, the federal government, is their property over which you are a 37 fiduciary and “public officer”.

38 “THE” + “IRS” = “THEIRS”

39 A federal “public officer” has no rights in relation to their master, the federal government:

40 *“The restrictions that the Constitution places upon the government in its capacity as lawmaker, i.e., as the
41 regulator of private conduct, are not the same as the restrictions that it places upon the government in its capacity
42 as employer. We have recognized this in many contexts, with respect to many different constitutional guarantees.
43 Private citizens perhaps cannot be prevented from wearing long hair, but policemen can. Kelley v. Johnson, 425
44 U.S. 238, 247 (1976). Private citizens cannot have their property searched without probable cause, but in many 45 circumstances government employees can. O'Connor v. Ortega, 480 U.S. 709, 723 (1987) (plurality opinion); id., 46 at 732 (SCALIA, J., concurring in judgment). Private citizens cannot be punished for refusing to provide the*

1 government information that may incriminate them, but government employees can be dismissed when the 2 incriminating information that they refuse to provide relates to the performance of their job. Gardner v.
 3 Broderick, [497 U.S. 62, 95] 392 U.S. 273, 277 -278 (1968). With regard to freedom of speech in particular:
 4 Private citizens cannot be punished for speech of merely private concern, but government employees can be fired
 5 for that reason. Connick v. Myers, 461 U.S. 138, 147 (1983). Private citizens cannot be punished for partisan
 6 political activity, but federal and state employees can be dismissed and otherwise punished for that reason. Public
 7 Workers v. Mitchell, 330 U.S. 75, 101 (1947); Civil Service Comm'n v. Letter Carriers, 413 U.S. 548, 556 (1973);
 8 Broadrick v. Oklahoma, 413 U.S. 601, 616 -617 (1973)."
 9 Rutan v. Republican Party of Illinois, [497 U.S. 62 (1990)]

10 Your existence and your earnings as a federal "public officer" and "trustee" and "fiduciary" are entirely subject to the whim
 11 and pleasure of corrupted lawyers and politicians, and you must beg and grovel if you expect to retain anything:

12 "In the general course of human nature, A POWER OVER A MAN'S SUBSISTENCE AMOUNTS TO A POWER
 13 OVER HIS WILL."
 14 [Alexander Hamilton, Federalist Paper No. 79]

15 You will need an "exemption" from your new slave master specifically spelled out in law to justify anything you want to 16 keep while working on the federal plantation. The 1040 return is a profit and loss statement for a federal business corporation
 17 called the "United States". You are in partnership with your slave master and they decide what scraps they want to throw to 18 you in your legal "cage" AFTER they figure out whatever is left in financing their favorite pork barrel project and paying off
 19 interest on an ever-expanding and endless national debt. Do you really want to reward this type of irresponsibility and surety?

20 The W-4 therefore essentially is being deceptively and illegally MISUSED as a federal employment application. It is your 21 badge of dishonor and a tacit admission that you can't or won't trust God and yourself to provide for yourself. Instead, you
 22 need a corrupted "protector" to steal money from your neighbor or counterfeit (print) it to help you pay your bills and run
 23 your life. Furthermore, if your private employer forced you to fill out the W-4 against your will or instituted any duress to 24 get you to fill it out, such as threatening to fire or not hire you unless you fill it out, then he/she is:

25 1. Engaging in criminal identity theft. See:

Government Identity Theft, Form #05.046
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

- 26 2. Acting as an employment recruiter for the federal government.
 27 3. Recruiting you into federal slavery in violation of the Thirteenth Amendment, and 42 U.S.C. §1994.
 28 4. Involved in a conspiracy to commit grand theft by stealing money from you to pay for services and protection you don't 29 want and don't need.
 30 5. Involved in racketeering and extortion in violation of 18 U.S.C. §1951.
 31 6. Involved in money laundering for the federal government, by sending in money stolen from you to them, in violation of 32 18 U.S.C. §1956.

33 The higher ups at the IRS probably know the above, and they certainly aren't going to tell private employers or their 34 underlings the truth, because they aren't going to look a gift horse in the mouth and don't want to surrender their defense of 35 "plausible deniability". They will NEVER tell a thief who is stealing for them that they are stealing, especially if they don't 36 have to assume liability for the consequences of the theft. No one who practices this kind of slavery, deceit, and evil can 37 rightly claim that they are loving their neighbor and once they know they are involved in such deceit, they have a duty to 38 correct it or become an "accessory after the fact" in violation of 18 U.S.C. §3. This form of deceit is also the sin most hated
 39 by God in the Bible. Below is a famous Bible commentary on Prov. 11:1:

40 "As religion towards God is a branch of universal righteousness (he is not an honest man that is not devout), so
 41 righteousness towards men is a branch of true religion, for he is not a godly man that is not honest, nor can he 42 expect that his devotion should be accepted; for, 1. Nothing is more offensive to God than deceit in commerce.
 43 A false balance is here put for all manner of unjust and fraudulent practices [of our public dis-servants] in
 44 dealing with any person [within the public], which are all an abomination to the Lord, and render those
 45 abominable [hated] to him that allow themselves in the use of such accursed arts of thriving. It is an affront
 46 to justice, which God is the patron of, as well as a wrong to our neighbour, whom God is the protector of. Men
 47 [in the IRS and the Congress] make light of such frauds, and think there is no sin in that which there is money
 48 to be got by, and, while it passes undiscovered, they cannot blame themselves for it; a blot is no blot till it is hit,
 49 Hos. 12:7, 8. But they are not the less an abomination to God, who will be the avenger of those that are
 50 defrauded by their brethren. 2. Nothing is more pleasing to God than fair and honest dealing, nor more
 51 necessary to make us and our devotions acceptable to him: A just weight is his delight. He himself goes by a
 52 just weight, and holds the scale of judgment with an even hand, and therefore is pleased with those that are herein

1 followers of him. A balance cheats, under pretence of doing right most exactly, and therefore is the greater
2 abomination to God."
3 [Matthew Henry's Commentary on the Whole Bible; Henry, M., 1996, c1991, under Prov. 11:1]

4 The Bible also says that those who participate in this kind of "commerce" with the government are practicing harlotry and
5 idolatry. The Bible book of Revelation describes a woman called "Babylon the Great Harlot".

6 "And I saw a woman sitting on a scarlet beast which was full of names of blasphemy, having seven heads and ten
7 horns. The woman was arrayed in purple and scarlet, and adorned with gold and precious stones and pearls,
8 having in her hand a golden cup full of abominations and the filthiness of her fornication. And on her forehead a 9 name was written:

10 MYSTERY, BABYLON THE GREAT, THE MOTHER OF HARLOTS AND OF THE ABOMINATIONS OF THE 11 EARTH.

12 I saw the woman, drunk with the blood of the saints and with the blood of the martyrs of Jesus. And when I saw 13 her, I marveled with great amazement."
14 [Rev. 17:3-6, Bible, NKJV]

15 This despicable harlot is described below as the "woman who sits on many waters".

16 "Come, I will show you the judgment of the great harlot [Babylon the Great Harlot] who sits on many waters,
17 with whom the kings of the earth [politicians and rulers] committed fornication, and the inhabitants of the earth
18 were made drunk [indulged] with the wine of her fornication."
19 [Rev. 17:1-2, Bible, NKJV]

20 These waters are simply symbolic of a democracy controlled by mobs of atheistic people who are fornicating with the Beast
21 and who have made it their false, man-made god and idol:

22 "The waters which you saw, where the harlot sits, are peoples, multitudes, nations, and tongues."
23 [Rev. 17:15, Bible, NKJV]

24 The Beast is then defined in Rev. 19:19 as "the kings of the earth", which today would be our political rulers:

25 "And I saw the beast, the kings of the earth, and their armies, gathered together to make war against Him who 26 sat on the horse and against His army."
27 [Rev. 19:19, Bible, NKJV]

28 Babylon the Great Harlot is "fornicating" with the government by engaging in commerce with it. Black's Law Dictionary
29 defines "commerce" as "intercourse":

30 "Commerce. ...Intercourse by way of trade and traffic between different peoples or states and the citizens or 31 inhabitants thereof, including not only the purchase, sale, and exchange of commodities, but also the 32 instrumentalities [governments] and agencies by which it is promoted and the means and appliances by which it 33 is carried on..."
34 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 269]

35 If you want your rights back people, you can't pursue government employment in the context of your private job. If you do,
36 the Bible, not us, says you are a harlot and that you are CONDEMNED to hell!

37 And I heard another voice from heaven saying, "Come out of her, my people, lest you share in her sins, and lest you
38 receive of her plagues. For her sins have reached to heaven, and God has remembered her iniquities. Render 39 to her just as she rendered to you, and repay her double according to her works; in the cup which she has mixed,
40 mix double for her. In the measure that she glorified herself and lived luxuriously, in the same measure give her
41 torment and sorrow; for she says in her heart, 'I sit as queen, and am no widow, and will not see sorrow.'
42 Therefore her plagues will come in one day—death and mourning and famine. And she will be utterly burned
43 with fire, for strong is the Lord God who judges her."
44 [Rev. 18:4-8, Bible, NKJV]

45 In summary, it ought to be very clear from reading this section then, that:

- 46 1. It is an abuse of the government's taxing power, according to the U.S. Supreme Court, to pay public monies to private 47 persons or to use the government's taxing power to transfer wealth between groups of private individuals.

2. Because of these straight jacket constraints of the use of “public funds” by the government, the government can only lawfully make payments or pay “benefits” to persons who have contracted with them to render specific services that are authorized by the Constitution to be rendered.

3. The government had to create an intermediary called the “straw man” that is a public office or agent within the government and therefore part of the government that they could pay the “benefit” to in order to circumvent the restrictions upon the government from abusing its powers to transfer wealth between private individuals. That “straw man” is exhaustively described in :

Proof That There Is a “Straw Man”, Form #05.042

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

4. The straw man is a “public office” within the U.S. government. It is a creation of Congress and an agent and fiduciary of the government subject to the statutory control of Congress. It is therefore a public entity and not a private entity which the government can therefore lawfully pay public funds to without abusing its taxing powers.

5. Those who sign up for government contracts, benefits, franchises, or employment agree to become surety for the straw man or public office and agree to act in a representative capacity on behalf of a federal corporation in the context of all the duties of the office pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b).

6. Because the straw man is a public office, you can't be compelled to occupy the office. You and not the government set the compensation or amount of money you are willing to work for in order to consensually occupy the office. If you don't think the compensation is adequate, you have the right to refuse to occupy the office by refusing to connect your assets to the office using the de facto license number for the office called the Taxpayer Identification Number.

If you would like to know more about why Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A only applies to federal instrumentalities and payments to or from the federal government, we refer you to the free memorandum of law below:

5.2.8 Social Security: The legal vehicle for extending Federal Jurisdiction outside the federal zone using Private/contract law

In previous sections, we have demonstrated the proper very limited application of the Internal Revenue Code using the code itself and showing why its definitions are entirely consistent with the Separation of Powers Doctrine that is the foundation of the United States Constitution. See the link below for details on the Separation of Powers Doctrine:

<http://famguardian.org/Subjects/LawAndGovt/Articles/SeparationOfPowersDoctrine.htm>

In this section, we will further expand these important legal concepts to show how the reach of the I.R.C. is extended outside the federal zone using the Social Security program, which is private law, and how this is done perfectly legally and constitutionally. The concepts in this section are very important and often go completely overlooked even by the most seasoned freedom researchers. So please read carefully.

We must always remember that there are TWO sources of jurisdiction: public law or private law. Public law is confined to the territory of the sovereign while private law may operate “extraterritorially” because it is a product of your right to contract. This is hinted at by Bouvier's Maxims of Law, which say on this subject:

Debt and contract are of no particular place.”*

[Bouvier's Maxims of Law, 1856;

SOURCE: <http://famguardian.org/Publications/BouvierMaximsOfLaw/BouviereMaxims.htm>]

Congress sometimes enacts special law that is the equivalent of a “proposed private contract” that “activates” when we consent to its provisions. This type of an enactment is called a “special law” or a “private law”. Social Security and the Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A are examples of private law. For details, see:

Requirement for Consent, Form #05.003

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

A section of the code, such as the Internal Revenue Code or the Social Security Act, which is quoted in court can only be cited as “prima facie” evidence, according to 1 U.S.C. §204 and the legislative notes thereunder. “Prima facie” evidence is presumptive evidence. Below are some important limitations relating to the abuse of “presumption” in federal courts relating to income tax issues.

1. Based on the Supreme Court in Vlandis v. Kline, 412 U.S. 441 (1973), presumption that prejudices any constitutionally protected right is unconstitutional and may not be used in any court of law against a party protected by the Bill of Rights.
2. A “statutory presumption”, such as that found in 1 U.S.C. §204, relating to admission into evidence of anything that is not positive law, may only be used against a party who is not protected by the Bill of Rights.
3. Those domiciled inside the federal zone and who therefore are not parties to the Constitution, may not therefore exclude “prima facie” evidence or statutes that are not “positive law” from evidence. Such a person has no Constitutional rights that can be prejudiced. Therefore, he is not entitled to “due process of law”.
4. A person who is protected by the Constitution and the Bill of Rights should have the right to exclude “prima facie” evidence in his or her trial because it prejudices his or her constitutional rights.
5. A court which allows any statute from the Internal Revenue Code, Title 26, into evidence in any federal court in a trial involving a person who maintains a domicile in an area covered by the Constitution is:
  - 5.1. Engaging in kidnapping, by moving the domicile of the party to an area that has no rights, in violation of 18 U.S.C. §1201.
  - 5.2. Engaging in a “conspiracy against rights” in violation of 18 U.S.C. §241.

Based on the above, it is VERY important to know which codes within the U.S. Code are positive law and which are not. Those that are not “positive law” may not be cited in a trial involving a person domiciled in a state of the Union and not on federal property, because such a person is covered by the Bill of Rights. The U.S. Code provides a list of Titles of the U.S. Code that are not “positive law” within the legislative notes section of 1 U.S.C. §204. Among the titles of the U.S. Code that are NOT “positive law” include:

1. Title 26: Internal Revenue Code.
2. Title 42: Social Security
3. Title 50: The Military Selective Service Act (military draft)

Yes, folks, that’s right: Americans domiciled in states of the Union may not have any sections of the above titles of the U.S. Code cited in any trial involving them in a federal court, because it violates due process. They may also not have any ruling of a federal court below the Supreme Court cited as authority against them PROVIDED, HOWEVER that they:

1. Provide proof of their domicile within a state of the Union. See:

Affidavit of Citizenship, Domicile, and Tax Status, Form #02.001
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>
2. Respond to the federal suit using Constitutional Diversity of Citizenship under Article III, Section 2 and NOT statutory diversity under 28 U.S.C. §1332.
3. Do not implicated themselves as statutory “taxpayers” by citing anything from the Internal Revenue code in their own pleading, which would be an indirect admission that they are subject to it. See:

<http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/Articles/TaxpayerVNontaxpayer.htm>
4. Have not filled out and sign any government forms that create any employment or agency between them and the federal government, such as the W-4, 1040, or SSA Form SS-5.
5. Send in and admit into evidence the following:

Resignation of Compelled Social Security Trustee, Form #06.002
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

The most prevalent occasion where the above requirements are violated with most Americans is applying for the Social Security program using the SSA Form SS-5. Completing, signing, and submitting that form creates an agency and employment with the federal government. The submitter becomes a Trustee and a federal “employee” under federal law, and therefore accepts federal jurisdiction from that point forward. We have written an exhaustive free pamphlet that analyzes all the reasons why this is the case, which may be found at:

Resignation of Compelled Social Security Trustee, Form #06.002
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

The above pamphlet also serves the double capacity of an electronically fillable form you can send in to eliminate this one important source of federal jurisdiction and restore your sovereignty so that the Internal Revenue Code may not be cited as authority against you in a court of law.

The reason why signing up for Social Security creates a nexus for federal jurisdiction and a means to cite it against a person is that:

1. Signing up for Social Security makes one into a "Trustee", agent, and fiduciary of the United States government under 26 U.S.C. §6903. The United States government is a foreign corporation with respect to a state of the Union, but it becomes a "domestic" corporation when you are acting as an "employee" and agent.

"The United States Government is a foreign corporation with respect to a state."
 [N.Y. v. re Merriam 36 N.E. 505; 141 N.Y. 479; affirmed 16 S.Ct. 1073; 41 L.Ed. 287] [underlines added]"
 [19 Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.), Corporations, §884 (2003)]

2. The United States Government is defined as a "federal corporation" in 28 U.S.C. §3002(15)(A):

TITLE 28 - JUDICIARY AND JUDICIAL PROCEDURE
 PART VI - PARTICULAR PROCEEDINGS
 CHAPTER 176 - FEDERAL DEBT COLLECTION PROCEDURE
 SUBCHAPTER A - DEFINITIONS AND GENERAL PROVISIONS
 Sec. 3002. Definitions

(15) "United States" means -

(A) a Federal corporation;

(B) an agency, department, commission, board, or other entity of the United States; or

(C) an instrumentality of the United States.

3. The Trust you are acting as a Trustee for is an "employee" of the United States government within the meaning of the Internal Revenue Code under 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(c)-1.
4. You, when acting as a Trustee, are an "officer or employee" of a federal corporation called the "United States".
5. The legal "domicile" of the Trust you are acting on behalf of is the "District of Columbia". This is where the "res" or "corpus" of the Social Security Trust has its only legal existence as a "person". See:
<http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/Articles/DomicileBasisForTaxation.htm>
6. The Social Security Number is the "Trustee License Number". Whenever you write your name anywhere on a piece of paper, and especially in conjunction with your all caps name, such as "JOHN SMITH", you are indicating that you are acting in a Trustee capacity. The only way to remove such a presumption is to black out the number or not put it on the form, and then to correct whoever sent you the form or notice to clarify that you are not acting as a Trustee or government employee, but instead are acting as a natural person. See:
<http://sedm.org/Forms/05-MemLaw/AboutSSNsAndTINs.pdf>
7. As an "officer or employee of a corporation", you are the proper subject of the penalty and criminal provisions of the Internal Revenue Code under:
  - 7.1. 26 U.S.C. §6671(b)
  - 7.2. 26 U.S.C. §7343
8. The requirement to file federal income tax returns by the Social Security Trustee originates not from any liability statute, but from his or her status as a "public officer" and "trustee" of the government:

I: DUTY TO ACCOUNT FOR PUBLIC FUNDS

§ 909. In general. It is the duty of the public officer, like any other agent or trustee, although not declared by express statute, to faithfully account for and pay over to the proper authorities all moneys which may come into his hands upon the public account, and the performance of this duty may be enforced by proper actions against the officer himself, or against those who have become sureties for the faithful discharge of his duties.
 [Treatise on the Law of Public Offices and Officers, §909, Floyd Mechem, 1890, p. 609;
 SOURCE: <http://books.google.com/books?id=g-I9AAAAIAAJ&printsec=titlepage>]

9. The Internal Revenue Code becomes enforceable against you without the need for implementing regulations. The following statutes say that implementing regulations published in the Federal Register are not required in the case of federal employees, agencies, or contractors:
  - 9.1. 5 U.S.C. §553(a)(1).
  - 9.2. 5 U.S.C. §553(a)(2)

10. As a Trustee over the Social Security Trust, you are a “public officer” engaged in a “trade or business” as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26). Consequently, the earnings of the federal corporation you preside over as Trustee are taxable under the Internal Revenue Code. You are exercising the functions of a “public office” because you are exercising fiduciary duty over payments paid to the Federal Government. You are in business with Uncle Sam and essentially become a “Kelly Girl”. Income taxes are really just the “profits” of the Social Security trust created when you signed up for the program, which are “kicked back” to the mother corporation called the “United States”.
11. All items that you take deductions on under 26 U.S.C. §162, earned income credit under 26 U.S.C. §32, or a graduated rate of tax under 26 U.S.C. §1 become “effectively connected with a trade or business”, which is a code word for saying that they are public property, because a “trade or business” is a “public office”. This “trade or business” then becomes a means of earning you “revenue” or “profit” as a private individual, because it serves to reduce your tax liability as a Trustee filing 1040 returns for the Social Security Trust. What the government won't tell you, however, is that the best way to reduce your federal tax liability is simply to either not sign up for Social Security to begin with, or to quit immediately, nor are they going to show you how to quit! See the following article for more details on “The trade or business scam” for further details:
<http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/Articles/TradeOrBusinessScam.htm>
12. Below is what the Supreme Court said about all property you donated for “public use” by the Trust in acquiring reduced tax liability:

“Surely the matters in which the public has the most interest are the supplies of food and clothing; yet can it be that by reason of this interest the state may fix the price at which the butcher must sell his meat, or the vendor of boots and shoes his goods? Men are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, -'life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness;’ and to ‘secure,’ not grant or create, these rights, governments are instituted. That property which a man has honestly acquired he retains full control of, subject to these limitations: First, that he shall not use it to his neighbor's injury, and that does not mean that he must use it for his neighbor's benefit; second, that if he devotes it to a public use, he gives to the public a right to control that use; and third, that whenever the public needs require, the public may take it upon payment of due compensation.”
Budd v. People of State of New York, [143 U.S. 517 (1892)]

Therefore, whatever you take deductions on comes under the jurisdiction of the Internal Revenue Code, which is the vehicle by which the “public” controls the use of your formerly private property. Every benefit has a string attached, and in this case, the string is that you as Trustee, and all property you donate for temporary use by the Trust then comes under the jurisdiction of the Internal Revenue Code and the Social Security Act.

13. Your Trust employer, the “United States” foreign corporation, is your new boss and the beneficiary of the Social Security Trust you work for as an officer. As your new boss, it does not need territorial jurisdiction over you. All it needs is “in rem” jurisdiction over the property you donated to the trust, which includes all your earnings. That jurisdiction derives from Article 4, Section 3, Clause 2 of the Constitution. All this property, while it is donated to a public use, becomes federal property under government management. That is why the Slave Surveillance Number is assigned to all accounts: to track government property, contracts, and employees.
14. Because the property already is government property while you are using it in connection with a “trade or business”, then you implicitly have already given the government permission to repossess that which always was theirs. That is why they can issue a “Notice of Levy” without any judicial process and immediately and conveniently take custody of your bank accounts, personal property, and retirement funds: Because they have the mark of the Beast, the Slave Surveillance Number on them, which means you already gave them to your new benefactor and caretaker, the United States Government.
15. The United States Government does not need territorial jurisdiction over you in order to drag you into federal court while you are acting as one of its Trustees and fiduciaries under 26 U.S.C. §6903. Any matter relating to federal contracts, whether they are federal government franchises, Trust Contracts or federal employment contracts (with the “Trustee”), may ONLY be heard in a federal court. It is a violation of the separation of powers doctrine for a state to hear a matter which might affect the federal government. See Alden v. Maine, 527 U.S. 706 \(1999\). Federal Jurisdiction over Trustees is indeed “subject matter jurisdiction”, but it doesn't derive primarily from the Internal Revenue Code. Instead it derives from the agency and contract you maintain as a “Trustee”:

American Jurisprudence, 2d
United States
§ 42 Interest on claim [77 Am Jur 2d UNITED STATES]

The interest to be recovered as damages for the delayed payment of a contractual obligation to the United States is not controlled by state statute or local common law. 75 In the absence of an applicable federal statute, the

1 federal courts must determine according to their own criteria the appropriate measure of damages. 76 State law
 2 may, however, be adopted as the federal law of decision in some instances. 77
 3 [American Jurisprudence 2d, United States, §42: Interest on Claim (1999)]

4 16. The U.S. Supreme Court has always given wide latitude to the Legislative and Executive branches of the government to 5 manage their own “employees” and officers, which includes both its Social Security Trusts and the Trustees who are
 6 exercising agency over the Trust and its corpus or property. You better bow down and worship your new boss: Uncle
 7 Sam!

8 A few authorities supporting why the Federal Government may not cite federal statutes or caselaw against those who are not 9 its employees or contractors follows:

- 10 1. Federal courts are administrative courts which have jurisdiction only over the following:
- 11 1.1. Plenary/General jurisdiction over federal territory: Implemented primarily through “public law” and applies 12 generally to all persons and things. This is a requirement of “equal protection” found in 42 U.S.C. §1981. Operates 13 upon:
- 14 1.1.1. The District of Columbia under Article 1, Section 8, Clause 17 of the U.S. Constitution.
 15 1.1.2. Federal territories and possessions under Article 4, Section 3, Clause 3 of the U.S. Constitution.
 16 1.1.3. Special maritime jurisdiction (admiralty) in territorial waters under the exclusive jurisdiction of the 17 general/federal government.
 18 1.1.4. Federal areas within states of the Union ceded to the federal government. Federal judicial districts consist 19 entirely of the federal territory within the exterior boundaries of the district, and do not encompass land not
 20 ceded to the federal government as required by 40 U.S.C. §3112. See section 6.4 of the Tax Fraud Prevention
 21 Manual, Form #06.008 et seq for further details.
- 22 1.2. Subject matter jurisdiction:
- 23 1.2.1. “Public laws” which operate throughout the states of the Union upon the following subjects:
- 24 1.2.1.1. Postal fraud. See Article 1, Section 8, Clause 7 of the U.S. Constitution..
 25 1.2.1.2. Counterfeiting under Article 1, Section 8, Clause 6 of the U.S. Constitution.
 26 1.2.1.3. Treason under Article 4, Section 2, Clause 3 of the U.S. Constitution.
 27 1.2.1.4. Interstate commercial crimes under Article 1, Section 8, Clause 3 of the U.S. Constitution.
 28 1.2.1.5. Slavery, involuntary servitude, or peonage under the Thirteenth Amendment, 42 U.S.C. §1994, 18
 29 U.S.C. §1581. and 18 U.S.C. §1589(3).
- 30 “Other authorities to the same effect might be cited. It is not open to doubt that Congress may enforce the 31 Thirteenth Amendment by direct legislation, punishing the holding of a person in slavery or in involuntary
 32 servitude except as a punishment for a crime. In the exercise of that power Congress has enacted these

 34 *servitude. This legislation is not limited to the territories or other parts of the strictly national domain,

 39 [Clyatt v. U.S., 197 U.S. 207 (1905)]
- 40 1.2.2. “Private law” or “special law” pursuant to Article 4, Section 3, Clause 2 of the U.S. Constitution. Applies 41 only to persons and things who individually consent through private agreement or contract. Note that this 42 jurisdiction also includes contracts with states of the Union and private individuals in those states. Includes,
 43 but is not limited exclusively to the following:
- 44 1.2.2.1. Federal franchises.
 45 1.2.2.2. Federal employees, as described in Title 5 of the U.S. Code.
 46 1.2.2.3. Federal contracts and “public offices”.
 47 1.2.2.4. Federal chattel property.
 48 1.2.2.5. Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A.
- 49 2. Social Security, found in 42 U.S.C. Chapter 7.
- 50 3. Internal Revenue Manual (I.R.M.), Section 4.10.7.2.9.8 says that the IRS cannot cite rulings below the Supreme Court
 51 to apply to more than the specific person who litigated:

52 Internal Revenue Manual
 53 4.10.7.2.9.8 \(05-14-1999\)
 54 Importance of Court Decisions

1. Decisions made at various levels of the court system are considered to be interpretations of tax laws and may be used by either examiners or taxpayers to support a position.

2. Certain court cases lend more weight to a position than others. A case decided by the U.S. Supreme Court becomes the law of the land and takes precedence over decisions of lower courts. The Internal Revenue Service must follow Supreme Court decisions. For examiners, Supreme Court decisions have the same weight as the Code.

3. Decisions made by lower courts, such as Tax Court, District Courts, or Claims Court, are binding on the Service only for the particular taxpayer and the years litigated. Adverse decisions of lower courts do not require the Service to alter its position for other taxpayers.

4. There is no federal common law within states of the Union, according to the Supreme Court in Erie Railroad v. Tompkins, 304 U.S. 64 (1938). Consequently, the rulings of federal district and circuit courts have no relevancy to state citizens domiciled in states of the union who do not declare themselves to be "U.S. citizens" under 8 U.S.C. §1401 and who would litigate under diversity of citizenship, pursuant to Article III, Section 2 of the Constitution but NOT 28 U.S.C. §1332.

"There is no Federal Common Law, and Congress has no power to declare substantive rules of Common Law applicable in a state. Whether they be local or general in their nature, be they commercial law or a part of the Law of Torts"
[Erie Railroad v. Tompkins, 304 U.S. 64 (1938)]

"Common law. As distinguished from statutory law created by the enactment of legislatures, the common law comprises the body of those principles and rules of action, relating to the government and security of persons and property, which derive their authority solely from usages and customs of immemorial antiquity, or from the judgments and decrees of the courts recognizing, affirming, and enforcing such usages and customs and, in this sense, particularly the ancient unwritten law of England. In general, it is a body of law that develops and derives through judicial decisions, as distinguished from legislative enactments. The "common law" is all the statutory and case law background of England and the American colonies before the American revolution. People v. Rehman, 253 C.A.2d 119, 61 Cal.Rptr. 65, 85. It consists of those principles, usage and rules of action applicable to government and security of persons and property which do not rest for their authority upon any express and positive declaration of the will of the legislature. Bishop v. U.S., D.C.Tex., 334 F.Supp. 415, 418.

"California Civil Code, Section 22.2, provides that the "common law of England, so far as it is not repugnant to or inconsistent with the Constitution of the United States, or the Constitution or laws of this State, is the rule of decision in all the courts of this State."

"In a broad sense, "common law" may designate all that part of the positive law, juristic theory, and ancient custom of any state or nation which is of general and universal application, thus marking off special or local rules or customs.

"For federal common law, see that title.

"As a compound adjective "common-law" is understood as contrasted with or opposed to "statutory," and sometimes also to "equitable" or to "criminal."
[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 276]

5. The Rules of Decision Act, 28 U.S.C. §1652, requires that the laws of the states of the Union are the only rules of decision in federal courts. This means that federal courts MUST cite state law and not federal law in all tax cases and MAY NOT cite federal caselaw.
6. The Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17\(b\) say that the capacity to sue or be sued is determined by the law of the individual's domicile. This means that if a person is domiciled in a state and not within an enclave, then state law are the rules of decision rather than federal law. Since state income tax liability in nearly every state is dependent on a federal liability first, this makes an income tax liability impossible for those domiciled outside the federal.

Therefore, the private citizen who has:

1. Provided proof of their domicile within a state of the Union. See:

Affidavit of Citizenship, Domicile, and Tax Status, Form #02.001
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

2. Responded to the federal suit using Diversity of Citizenship under 28 U.S.C. §1332.

- 1 3. Not implicated themselves as "taxpayers" by citing anything from the Internal Revenue code in their own pleading,
2 which would be an indirect admission that they are subject to it. See:
3 <http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/Articles/TaxpayerVNontaxpayer.htm>
- 4 4. Not filled out and sign any government forms that create any employment or agency between them and the federal 5 government, such as the W-4, 1040, or SSA Form SS-5.
- 6 5. Sent in and admitted into evidence the following:

7 . . . is unconditionally Sovereign and may not lawfully be dragged into a federal court for an income tax matter or any other
8 federal employment or contract or civil matter. All parties wishing to litigate against them must instead do so in a state, not
9 federal court. The federal courts may not therefore be used to destroy or undermine their sovereignty without violating the 10 Constitution and the separation of powers doctrine. Below is the reason why, in the context of States of the Union, but the 11 justification is equally pertinent to the people they were created to serve and protect, at least in the context of their own right
12 to self-governance and self-determination:

13 Although the Constitution grants broad powers to Congress, our federalism requires that Congress treat the
14 States in a manner consistent with their status as residuary sovereigns and joint participants in the governance
15 of the Nation. See, e.g., United States v. Lopez, 514 U.S., at 583 (concurring opinion); Printz, 521 U.S., at 935
16 ; New York, 505 U.S., at 188. The founding generation thought it "neither becoming nor convenient that the 17 several States of the Union, invested with that large residuum of sovereignty which had not been delegated to the 18 United States, should be summoned as defendants to answer the complaints of private persons." In re Ayers, 123
19 *U.S., at 505. The principle of sovereign immunity preserved by constitutional design "thus accords the States
20 the respect owed them as members of the federation." Puerto Rico Aqueduct and Sewer Authority, 506 U.S., at* 21 146; accord, Coeur d'Alene Tribe, supra, at 268 (recognizing "the dignity and respect afforded a State, which 22 the immunity is designed to protect").

23 *Petitioners contend that immunity from suit in federal court suffices to preserve the dignity of the States. Private
24 suits against nonconsenting States, however, present "the indignity of subjecting a State to the coercive process
25 of judicial tribunals at the instance of private parties." In re Ayers, supra, at 505; accord, Seminole Tribe, 517*
26 *U.S., at 58, regardless of the forum. Not only must a State defend or default but also it must face the prospect of 27 being thrust, by federal fiat and against its will, into the disfavored status of a debtor, subject to the power of 28 private citizens to levy on its treasury or perhaps even government buildings or property which the State
29 administers on the public's behalf.

30 In some ways, of course, a congressional power to authorize private suits against nonconsenting States in their
31 own courts would be even more offensive to state sovereignty than a power to authorize the suits in a federal
32 forum. Although the immunity of one sovereign in the courts of another has often depended in part on comity or*
33 agreement, the immunity of a sovereign in its own courts has always been understood to be within the sole control
34 of the sovereign itself. See generally Hall, 440 U.S., at 414-418. A power to press a State's own courts into federal
35 service to coerce the other branches of the State, furthermore, is the power first to turn the State against itself
36 and ultimately to commandeer the entire political machinery of the State against its will and at the behest of 37 individuals. Cf. Coeur d'Alene Tribe, supra, at 276. Such plenary federal control of state governmental processes
38 denigrates the separate sovereignty of the States.

39 It is unquestioned that the Federal Government retains its own immunity from suit not only in state tribunals but 40 also in its own courts. In light of our constitutional system recognizing the essential sovereignty of the States, we 41 are reluctant to conclude that the States are not entitled to a reciprocal privilege.

42 *Underlying constitutional form are considerations of great substance. Private suits against nonconsenting
43 States--especially suits for money damages--may threaten the financial integrity of the States. It is indisputable
44 that, at the time of the founding, many of the States could have been forced into insolvency but for their
45 immunity from private suits for money damages. Even today, an unlimited congressional power to authorize 46 suits in state court to levy upon the treasuries of the States for compensatory damages, attorney's fees, and
47 even punitive damages could create staggering burdens, giving Congress a power and a leverage over the States
48 that is not contemplated by our constitutional design. The potential national power would pose a severe and 49 notorious danger to the States and their resources.

50 A congressional power to strip the States of their immunity from private suits in their own courts would pose
51 more subtle risks as well. "The principle of immunity from litigation assures the states and the nation from 52 unanticipated intervention in the processes of government." Great Northern Life Ins. Co. v. Read, 322 U.S., at 53 53. When the States' immunity from private suits is disregarded, "the course of their public policy and the 54 administration of their public affairs" may become "subject to and controlled by the mandates of judicial tribunals
55 without their consent, and in favor of individual interests." In re Ayers, supra, at 505. While the States have 56 relinquished their immunity from suit in some special contexts--at least as a practical matter--see Part III, infra,

1 this surrender carries with it substantial costs to the autonomy, the decisionmaking ability, and the sovereign
2 capacity of the States.

3 A general federal power to authorize private suits for money damages would place unwarranted strain on the 4 States' ability to govern in accordance with the will of their citizens. Today, as at the time of the founding, the 5 allocation of scarce resources among competing needs and interests lies at the heart of the political process.
6 While the judgment creditor of the State may have a legitimate claim for compensation, other important needs
7 and worthwhile ends compete for access to the public fisc. Since all cannot be satisfied in full, it is inevitable that
8 difficult decisions involving the most sensitive and political of judgments must be made. If the principle of 9 representative government is to be preserved to the States, the balance between competing interests must be
10 reached after deliberation by the political process established by the citizens of the State, not by judicial decree
11 mandated by the Federal Government and invoked by the private citizen. "It needs no argument to show that 12 the political power cannot be thus ousted of its jurisdiction and the judiciary set in its place." Louisiana v.
13 Jumel, 107 U.S. 711, 727-728 (1883).

14 By " `split[ting] the atom of sovereignty,' " the founders established " `two orders of government, each with its
15 own direct relationship, its own privity, its own set of mutual rights and obligations to the people who sustain it
16 and are governed by it." Saenz v. Roe, 526 U.S. ____ , ____ , n. 17 (1999), quoting U.S. Term Limits, Inc. v.
17 Thornton, 514 U.S. 779, 838 (1995) (concurring opinion). "The Constitution thus contemplates that a State's 18 government will represent and remain accountable [only] to its own citizens [and not to the federal government]."
19 Printz, 521 U.S., at 920. When the Federal Government asserts authority over a State's most fundamental 20 political processes, it strikes at the heart of the political accountability so essential to our liberty and republican 21 form of government.

22 The asserted authority would blur not only the distinct responsibilities of the State and National Governments but 23 also the separate duties of the judicial and political branches of the state governments, displacing "state decisions
24 that `go to the heart of representative government.' " Gregory v. Ashcroft, 501 U.S. 452, 461 (1991). A State is 25 entitled to order the processes of its own governance, assigning to the political branches, rather than the courts,
26 the responsibility for directing the payment of debts. See id., at 460 ("Through the structure of its government, 27 and the character of those who exercise government authority, a State defines itself as a sovereign"). If 28 Congress could displace a State's allocation of governmental power and responsibility, the judicial branch of 29 the State, whose legitimacy derives from fidelity to the law, would be compelled to assume a role not only 30 foreign to its experience but beyond its competence as defined by the very constitution from which its existence 31 derives.

32 Congress cannot abrogate the States' sovereign immunity in federal court; were the rule to be different here, the 33 National Government would wield greater power in the state courts than in its own judicial instrumentalities. Cf.
34 Howlett, 496 U.S., at 365 (noting the anomaly that would arise if "a State might be forced to entertain in its own
35 courts suits from which it was immune in federal court"); Hilton, 502 U.S., at 206 (recognizing the "federalism-
36 related concerns that arise when the National Government uses the state courts as the exclusive forum to permit 37 recovery under a congressional statute").
38 [Alden v. Maine, 527 U.S. 706 (1999)]

39 Furthermore, any government representative, and especially who is from the Dept. of Justice or the IRS, who cites a case
40 below the Supreme Court or any section from the Internal Revenue Code or Title 42 of the U.S. Code in the case of a person
41 who is a "national" but not a "citizen" under federal law, who maintains a domicile in a state of the Union and not within 42 federal jurisdiction, and who is not a "Trustee" or federal "employee" or contractor, is:

- 43 1. Abusing caselaw for political purposes, usually with willful intent to deceive the hearer.
- 44 2. Violating Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b), which establishes that the only law and case law that may be cited in 45 any federal civil trial is the law that derives from the domicile of the party

46 Federal courts, incidentally, are NOT allowed to involve themselves in such "political questions", and therefore should not
47 allow this type of abuse of caselaw, but judges with a conflict of interest and who are fond of increasing their retirement
48 benefits often will acquiesce if you don't call them on it as an informed American. This kind of bias on the part of federal 49 judges, incidentally, is highly illegal under 28 U.S.C. §144 and 28 U.S.C. §455. Below is what the Supreme Court said about 50 the authority of itself, and by implication all other federal courts, to involve itself in strictly political matters:

51 "But, fortunately for our freedom from political excitements in judicial duties, this court [the U.S. Supreme 52 Court] can never with propriety be called on officially to be the umpire in questions merely political. The 53 adjustment of these questions belongs to the people and their political representatives, either in the State or 54 general government. These questions relate to matters not to be settled on strict legal principles. They are 55 adjusted rather by inclination, or prejudice or compromise, often.

56 [ . . . ]

1 Another evil, alarming and little foreseen, involved in regarding these as questions for the final arbitrament
 2 of judges would be that, in such an event, all political privileges and rights would, in a dispute among the
 3 people, depend on our decision finally. We would possess the power to decide against, as well as for, them, and,
 4 under a prejudiced or arbitrary judiciary, the public liberties and popular privileges might thus be much
 5 perverted, if not entirely prostrated. But, allowing the people to make constitutions and unmake them, allowing
 6 their representatives to make laws and unmake them, and without our interference as to their principles or policy
 7 in doing it, yet, when constitutions and laws are made and put in force by others, then the courts, as empowered
 8 by the State or the Union, commence their functions and may decide on the rights which conflicting parties can
 9 legally set up under them, rather than about their formation itself. Our power begins after theirs [the Sovereign
 10 People] ends. Constitutions and laws precede the judiciary, and we act only under and after them, and as to 11 disputed rights beneath them, rather than disputed points in making them. We speak what is the law, jus dicere,
 12 we speak or construe what is the constitution, after both are made, but we make, or revise, or control neither.
 13 The disputed rights beneath constitutions already made are to be governed by precedents, by sound legal 14 principles, by positive legislation [e.g. "positive law"], clear contracts, moral duties, and fixed
 15 rules; they are per se questions of law, and are well suited to the education and habits of the bench. But the 16 other disputed points in making constitutions, depending often, as before shown, on policy, inclination, popular
 17 resolves and popular will and arising not in respect to private rights, not what is meum and tuum, but in relation
 18 to politics, they belong to politics, and they are settled by political tribunals, and are too dear to a people bred in 19 the school of Sydney and Russel for them ever to intrust their final decision, when disputed, to a class of men who
 20 are so far removed from them as the judiciary, a class also who might decide them erroneously, as well as right,
 21 and if in the former way, the consequences might not be able to be averted except by a revolution, while a wrong
 22 decision by a political forum can often be peacefully corrected by new elections or instructions in a single 23 month; and if the people, in the distribution of powers under the constitution, should ever think of making 24 judges supreme arbiters in political controversies when not selected by nor, frequently, amenable to them nor 25 at liberty to follow such various considerations in their judgments as [48 U.S. 53] belong to mere political 26 questions, they will dethrone themselves and lose one of their own invaluable birthrights; building up in this 27 way -- slowly, but surely -- a new sovereign power in the republic, in most respects irresponsible and 28 unchangeable for life, and one more dangerous, in theory at least, than the worst elective oligarchy in the 29 worst of times. Again, instead of controlling the people in political affairs, the judiciary in our system was 30 designed rather to control individuals, on the one hand, when encroaching, or to defend them, on the other,
 31 under the Constitution and the laws, when they are encroached upon. And if the judiciary at times seems to fill
 32 the important station of a check in the government, it is rather a check on the legislature, who may attempt to 33 pass laws contrary to the Constitution, or on the executive, who may violate both the laws and Constitution, than 34 on the people themselves in their primary capacity as makers and amenders of constitutions."
 35 [Luther v. Borden, 48 U.S. 1 (1849)]

36 We know that the content of this section may appear strange at first reading, but after you have gone back and read the 37 Resignation of Compelled Social Security Trustee document, there is simply no other logical conclusion that a person can 38 reach based on the overwhelming evidence presented there that so clearly describes how the Social Security program operates 39 from a legal perspective.

40 A number of tax honesty advocates will attempt to cite 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) as proof that federal jurisdiction
 41 does not extend outside the District of Columbia for the purposes of the Internal Revenue Code.

42 TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > Sec. 7701. [Internal Revenue Code]
 43 Sec. 7701. - Definitions

44 (a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent
 45 thereof—

46 (9) United States

47 The term "United States" when used in a geographical sense includes only the States and the District of Columbia.

48 (10) State

49 The term "State" shall be construed to include the District of Columbia, where such construction is necessary to
 50 carry out provisions of this title.

51 Federal district and circuit courts have been known to label such arguments based on these definitions in the Internal Revenue
 52 Code as "frivolous". Their reasons for doing so have never been completely or truthfully revealed anywhere but here, to the 53 best of our knowledge. Now that we know how the government ropes sovereign Americans into their jurisdiction based on 54 the analysis in this section, we also know that it is indeed "frivolous" to state that federal jurisdiction does not extend outside
 55 the District of Columbia in the case of those who are "Trustees" or federal "employees" or federal contractors, such as those 56 who participate in Social Security. Since we know that the legal domicile of the Trust is indeed the District of Columbia, we also know that anyone who litigates in a federal court and does not deny all of the following will essentially be presumed to be a federal "employee" and Trustee acting on behalf of the Social Security Trust:

1. The all caps name in association with him. His proper name is the lower case Christian Name. The all caps name is the name of the Social Security Trust that was created when you completed and submitted the SSA Form SS-5 to sign up for Social Security.
2. The Trustee license number called the Social Security Number associated with him. If you admit the number is yours, then you admit that you are acting as a Social Security Trustee. Only trustees can use the license number. Instead, all uses must be identified as compelled. Responsibility for a compelled act falls on the person instituting the compulsion, and not the actor. See:

Why It is Illegal for Me to Request or Use a "Taxpayer Identification Number", Form #04.205
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

3. The receipt of income connected to a "trade or business" on form 1099's. All earnings identified on a 1099 are "presumed" to be "effectively connected with a trade or business", which is a "public office" in the United States government as a "Trustee" and fiduciary over federal payments.
4. The receipt of "wage" income in connection with a W-4. Receipt of "wages" are evidence from 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(a)-3(a) that you consented to withhold and participate in Social Security.
5. The existence of consent in signing the SSA Form SS-5. The Trust contract created by this form cannot be lawful so long as it was either signed without your consent or was signed for you by your parents without your informed consent.

A very good way to fulfill all of the above is to avoid filling out government forms and when compelled to do so, to attach the following form:

5.2.9 Oaths of Allegiance: Source of Unjust government jurisdiction over people

*"But above all, my brethren, do not swear, either by heaven or by earth or with any other oath. But let your "Yes" be "Yes," and your "No," "No," lest you fall into judgment."
 [James 5:12, Bible, NKJV]*

In all of history there has been but one successful protest against an income tax. It is little understood in that light, primarily because the remnants of protest groups still exist, but no longer wish to appear to be "anti-government." They don't talk much about these roots. Few even know them. We need to go back in time about 400 years to find this success. It succeeded only because the term "jurisdiction" was still well understood at that time as meaning "oath spoken." "Juris," in the original Latin meaning, is "oath." "Diction" as everyone knows, means "spoken." The protest obviously didn't happen here. It occurred in England. Given that the origins of our law are traced there, most of the relevant facts in this matter are still applicable in this country. Here's what happened.

The Bible had just recently been put into print. To that time, only the churches and nobility owned copies, due to the extremely high cost of paper. Contrary to what you've been taught, it was not the invention of movable type that led to printing this and other books. That concept had been around for a very long time. It just had no application. Printing wastes some paper. Until paper prices fell, it was cheaper to write books by hand than to print them with movable type. The handwritten versions were outrageously costly, procurable only by those with extreme wealth: churches, crowns and the nobility. The wealth of the nobility was attributable to feudalism. "Feud" is Old English for "oath." The nobility held the land under the crown. But unimproved land, itself, save to hunter/gatherers, is rather useless. Land is useful to farming. So that's how the nobility made their wealth. No, they didn't push a plow. They had servants to do it. The nobility wouldn't sell their land, nor would they lease it. They rented it.

Ever paid rent without a lease? Then you know that if the landlord raised the rent, you had no legal recourse. You could move out or pay. But what if you couldn't have moved out? Then you'd have a feel for what feudalism was all about.

A tenant wasn't a freeman. He was a servant to the (land)lord, the noble. In order to have access to the land to farm it, the noble required that the tenant kneel before him, hat in hand, swear an oath of fealty and allegiance and kiss his ring (extending that oath in that last act to the heirs of his estate). That oath established a servitude. The tenant then put his plow to the fields. The rent was a variable. In good growing years it was very high, in bad years it fell. The tenant was a subsistence farmer,

1 keeping only enough of the produce of his labors to just sustain him and his family. Rent was actually an "income tax." The
2 nobleman could have demanded 100% of the productivity of his servant except . . . under the common law, a servant was
3 akin to livestock. He had to be fed. Not well fed, just fed, same as a horse or cow. And, like a horse or cow, one usually
4 finds it to his benefit to keep it fed, that so that the critter is productive. Thus, the tenant was allowed to keep some of his
5 own productivity. Liken it to a "personal and dependent deductions."

6 The freemen of the realm, primarily the tradesmen, were unsworn and unallied. They knew it. They taught their sons the 7 trade so they'd also be free when grown. Occasionally they took on an apprentice under a sworn contract of indenture from 8 his father. His parents made a few coins. But the kid was the biggest beneficiary. He'd learn a trade. He'd never need to 9 become a tenant farmer. He'd keep what he earned. He was only apprenticed for a term of years, most typically about seven.
10 The tradesmen didn't need adolescents; they needed someone strong enough to pull his own weight. They did not take on 11 anyone under 13. By age 21 he'd have learned enough to practice the craft. That's when the contract expired. He was then 12 called a "journeyman." Had he made a journey? No. But, if you pronounce that word, it is "Jur-nee-man." He was a "man,"
13 formerly ("nee"), bound by oath ("jur")."

14 He'd then go to work for a "master" (craftsman). The pay was established, but he could ask for more if he felt he was worth
15 more. And he was free to quit. Pretty normal, eh? Yes, in this society that's quite the norm.

16 But 400 some years ago these men were the exceptions, not the rule. At some point, if the journeyman was good at the trade,
17 he'd be recognized by the market as a "master" (craftsman) and people would be begging him to take their children as
18 apprentices, so they might learn from him, become journeymen, and keep what they earned when manumitted at age 21! The 19 oath of the tenant ran for life. The oath of the apprentice's father ran only for a term of years. Still, oaths were important on 20 both sides. In fact, the tradesmen at one point established guilds (means "gold") as a protection against the potential of the 21 government attempting to bind them into servitudes by compelled oaths.

22 When an apprentice became a journeyman, he was allowed a membership in the guild only by swearing a secret oath to the 23 guild. He literally swore to "serve gold." Only gold. He swore he'd only work for pay! Once so sworn, any other oath of 24 servitude would be a perjury of that oath. He bound himself for life to never be a servant, save to the very benevolent master:
25 gold! (Incidentally, the Order of Free and Accepted Masons is a remnant of one of these guilds. Their oath is a secret. They'd 26 love to have you think that the "G" in the middle of their logo stands for "God." The obvious truth is that it stands for 27 "GOLD.")

28 Then the Bible came to print. The market for this tome wasn't the wealthy. They already had a handwritten copy. Nor was 29 it the tenants. They were far too poor to make this purchase. The market was the tradesmen - and the book was still so costly
30 that it took the combined life savings of siblings to buy a family Bible. The other reason that the tradesmen were the market
31 was that they'd also been taught how to read as part of their apprenticeship. As contractors they had to know how to do that!
32 Other than the families of the super-rich (and the priests) nobody else knew how to read.

33 These men were blown away when they read Jesus' command against swearing oaths (Matt 5: 33-37). This was news to 34 them. For well over a millennia they'd been trusting that the church - originally just the Church of Rome, but now also the 35 Church of England - had been telling them everything they needed to know in that book. Then they found out that Jesus said,
36 "Swear no oaths." Talk about an eye-opener.

37 Imagine seeing a conspiracy revealed that went back over 1,000 years. Without oaths there'd have been no tenants, laboring
38 for the nobility, and receiving mere subsistence in return. The whole society was premised on oaths; the whole society
39 CLAIMED it was Christian, yet, it violated a very simple command of Christ! And the tradesmen had done it, too, by 40 demanding sworn contracts of indenture for apprentices and giving their own oaths to the guilds. They had no way of knowing
41 that was prohibited by Jesus! They were angry. "Livid" might be a better term. The governments had seen this coming.
42 What could they do? Ban the book? The printing would have simply moved underground and the millennia long conspiracy
43 would be further evidenced in that banning. They came up with a better scheme. You call it the "Reformation."

44 In an unprecedented display of unanimity, the governments of Europe adopted a treaty. This treaty would allow anyone the 45 State-right of founding a church. It was considered a State right, there and then. The church would be granted a charter. It
46 only had to do one very simple thing to obtain that charter. It had to assent to the terms of the treaty. Buried in those 47 provisions, most of which were totally innocuous, was a statement that the church would never oppose the swearing of lawful
48 oaths. Jesus said, "None." The churches all said (and still say), "None, except . . ." Who do you think was (is) right?

1 The tradesmen got even angrier! They had already left the Church of England. But with every new "reformed" church still
2 opposing the clear words of Christ, there was no church for them to join - or found. They exercised the right of assembly to
3 discuss the Bible. Some of them preached it on the street corners, using their right of freedom of speech. But they couldn't
4 establish a church, which followed Jesus' words, for that would have required assent to that treaty which opposed what Jesus
5 had commanded. To show their absolute displeasure with those who'd kept this secret for so long, they refused to give anyone
6 in church or state any respect. It was the custom to doff one's hat when he encountered a priest or official. They started
7 wearing big, ugly black hats, just so that the most myopic of these claimed "superiors" wouldn't miss the fact that the hat
8 stayed atop their head. Back then the term "you" was formal English, reserved for use when speaking to a superior. "Thee"
9 was the familiar pronoun, used among family and friends. So they called these officials only by the familiar pronoun "thee"
10 or by their Christian names, "George, Peter, Robert, etc." We call these folk "Quakers." That was a nickname given to them
11 by a judge. One of them had told the judge that he'd better "Quake before the Lord, God almighty." The judge, in a display
12 of irreverent disrespect replied, "Thee are the Quaker here." They found that pretty funny, it being such a total misnomer (as 13 you shall soon see), and the nickname stuck. With the huge membership losses from the Anglican Church - especially from 14 men who'd been the more charitable to it in the past - the church was technically bankrupt. It wasn't just the losses from the 15 Quakers. Other people were leaving to join the new "Reformed Churches." Elsewhere in Europe, the Roman Church had 16 amassed sufficient assets to weather this storm. The far newer Anglican Church had not.

17 But the Anglican Church, as an agency of the State, can't go bankrupt. It becomes the duty of the State to support it in hard
18 times. Parliament did so. It enacted a tax to that end. A nice religious tax, and by current standards a very low tax, a tithe
19 (10%). But it made a deadly mistake in that. The Quakers, primarily as tradesmen, recognized this income tax as a tax
20 "without jurisdiction", at least so far as they went. As men unsworn and unallied, they pointed out that they didn't have to 21 pay it, nor provide a return. Absent their oaths establishing this servitude, there was "no jurisdiction." And they were right.
22 Despite laws making it a crime to willfully refuse to make a return and pay this tax, NONE were charged or arrested.

23 That caused the rest of the society to take notice. Other folk who'd thought the Quakers were "extremists" suddenly began
24 to listen to them. As always, money talks. These guys were keeping all they earned, while the rest of the un-sworn society,
25 thinking this tax applied to them, well; they were out 10%. The Quaker movement expanded significantly, that proof once
26 made in the marketplace. Membership in the Anglican Church fell even further, as did charity to it. The taxes weren't enough
27 to offset these further losses. The tithe (income) tax was actually counterproductive to the goal of supporting the church.
28 The members of the government and the churchmen were scared silly. If this movement continued to expand at the current
29 rate, no one in the next generation would swear an oath. Who'd then farm the lands of the nobility? Oh, surely someone
30 would, but not as a servant working for subsistence. The land would need to be leased under a contract, with the payment
31 for that use established in the market, not on the unilateral whim of the nobleman. The wealth of the nobility, their incomes,
32 was about to be greatly diminished. And the Church of England, what assets it possessed, would need to be sold-off, with 33 what remained of that church greatly reduced in power and wealth. But far worse was the diminishment of the respect
34 demanded by the priests and officials. They'd always held a position of superiority in the society. What would they do when 35 all of society treated them only as equals?

36 They began to use the term "anarchy." But England was a monarchy, not an anarchy. And that was the ultimate solution to 37 the problem, or so those in government thought. There's an aspect of a monarchy that Americans find somewhat
38 incomprehensible, or at least we did two centuries ago. A crown has divine right, or at least it so claims. An expression of 39 the divine right of a crown is the power to rule by demand. A crown can issue commands. The king says, "jump." Everyone
40 jumps. Why do they jump? Simple. It's a crime to NOT jump. To "willfully fail (hey, there's a couple of familiar terms) to 41 obey a crown command" is considered to be a treason, high treason. The British crown issued a Crown Command to end the 42 tax objection movement. Did the crown order that everyone shall pay the income tax? No, that wasn't possible. There really 43 was "no jurisdiction." And that would have done nothing to cure the lack of respect. The crown went one better. It ordered 44 that every man shall swear an oath of allegiance to the crown! Damned Christian thing to do, eh? Literally!

45 A small handful of the tax objectors obeyed. Most refused. It was a simple matter of black and white. Jesus said "swear not 46 at all." They opted to obey Him over the crown. That quickly brought them into court, facing the charge of high treason.
47 An official would take the witness stand, swearing that he had no record of the defendant's oath of allegiance. Then the 48 defendant was called to testify, there being no right to refuse to witness against one's self. He refused to accept the 49 administered oath. That refusal on the record, the court instantly judged him guilty. Took all of 10 minutes. That expedience
50 was essential, for there were another couple hundred defendants waiting to be tried that day for their own treasons against the
51 crown. In short order the jails reached their capacity, plus. But they weren't filled as you'd envision them. The men who'd
52 refused the oaths weren't there. Their children were. There was a "Stand-in" law allowing for that. There was no social 53 welfare system. The wife and children of a married man in prison existed on the charity of church and neighbors, or they

1 ceased to exist, starving to death. It was typical for a man convicted of a petty crime to have one of his kid's stand in for him
2 for 30 or 90 days. That way he could continue to earn a living, keeping bread on the table, without the family having to rely
3 on charity. However, a man convicted of more heinous crimes would usually find it impossible to convince his wife to allow
4 his children to serve his time. The family would prefer to exist on charity rather than see him back in society. But in this
5 case the family had no option. The family was churchless. The neighbors were all in the same situation. Charity was non-
6 existent for them. The family was destined to quick starvation unless one of the children stood- in for the breadwinner.
7 Unfortunately, the rational choice of which child should serve the time was predicated on which child was the least productive
8 to the family earnings.

9 That meant nearly the youngest, usually a daughter. Thus, the prisons of England filled with adolescent females, serving the 10 life sentences for their dads. Those lives would be short. There was no heat in the jails. They were rife with tuberculosis
11 and other deadly diseases. A strong man might last several years. A small girl measured her remaining time on earth in 12 months. It was Christian holocaust, a true sacrifice of the unblemished lambs. (And, we must note, completely ignored in 13 virtually every history text covering this era, lest the crown, government and church be duly embarrassed.) Despite the high
14 mortality rate the jails still overflowed. There was little fear that the daughters would be raped or die at the brutality of other
15 prisoners. The other prisoners, the real felons, had all been released to make room. Early release was premised on the severity
16 of the crime. High treason was the highest crime. The murderers, thieves, arsonists, rapists, etc., had all been set free. That 17 had a very profound effect on commerce. It stopped. There were highwaymen afoot on every road. Thugs and muggers
18 ruled the city streets. The sworn subjects of the crown sat behind bolted doors, in cold, dark homes, wondering how they'd 19 exist when the food and water ran out. They finally dared to venture out to attend meetings to address the situation. At those 20 meetings they discussed methods to overthrow the crown to which they were sworn! Call that perjury. Call that sedition.
21 Call it by any name, they were going to put their words into actions, and soon, or die from starvation or the blade of a thug.
22 Here we should note that chaos (and nearly anarchy: "no crown") came to be, not as the result of the refusal to swear oaths,
23 but as the direct result of the governmental demand that people swear them! The followers of Jesus' words didn't bring that
24 chaos, those who ignored that command of Christ brought it. The crown soon saw the revolutionary handwriting on the wall
25 and ordered the release of the children and the recapture of the real felons, before the government was removed from office
26 under force of arms. The courts came up with the odd concept of an "affirmation in lieu of oath." The Quakers accepted that 27 as a victory. Given what they'd been through, that was understandable. However, Jesus also prohibited affirmations, calling
28 the practice an oath "by thy head." Funny that He could foresee the legal concept of an affirmation 1600 years before it came 29 to be. Quite a prophecy!

30 When the colonies opened to migration, the Quakers fled Europe in droves, trying to put as much distance as they could
31 between themselves and crowns. They had a very rational fear of a repeat of the situation. That put a lot of them here, enough
32 that they had a very strong influence on politics. They could have blocked the ratification of the Constitution had they 33 opposed it. Some of their demands were incorporated into it, as were some of their concessions, in balance to those demands.
34 Their most obvious influence found in the Constitution is the definition of treason, the only crime defined in that document.
35 Treason here is half of what can be committed under a crown. In the United States treason may only arise out of an (overt)
36 ACTION. A refusal to perform an action at the command of the government is not a treason, hence, NOT A CRIME. You
37 can find that restated in the Bill of Rights, where the territorial jurisdiction of the courts to try a criminal act is limited to the 38 place wherein the crime shall have been COMMITTED. A refusal or failure is not an act "committed" - it's the opposite, an 39 act "omitted." In this country "doing nothing" can't be criminal, even when someone claims the power to command you do
40 something. That concept in place, the new government would have lasted about three years. You see, if it were not a crime
41 to fail to do something, then the officers of that government would have done NOTHING - save to draw their pay. That truth
42 forced the Quakers to a concession.

43 Anyone holding a government job would need be sworn (or affirmed) to support the Constitution. That Constitution enabled
44 the Congress to enact laws necessary and proper to control the powers vested in these people. Those laws would establish 45 their duties. Should such an official "fail" to perform his lawful duties, he'd evidence in that omission that his oath was false.
46 To swear a false oath is an ACTION. Thus, the punishments for failures would exist under the concept of perjury, not treason.
47 But that was only regarding persons under oath of office, who were in office only by their oaths. And that's still the situation.
48 It's just that the government has very cleverly obscured that fact so that the average man will pay it a rent, a tax on income.
49 As you probably know, the first use of income tax here came well in advance of the 16th amendment. That tax was NEARLY 50 abolished by a late 19th century Supreme Court decision (Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co., 157 U.S. 429 (1895)). The 51 problem was that the tax wasn't apportioned, and couldn't be apportioned, that because of the fact that it rested on the income
52 of each person earning it, rather than an up-front total, divided and meted out to the several States according to the census.
53 But the income tax wasn't absolutely abolished. The court listed a solitary exception. The incomes of federal officers, derived
54 as a benefit of office, could be so taxed. You could call that a "kick back" or even a "return." Essentially, the court said that

1 what Congress gives, it can demand back. As that wouldn't be income derived within a State, the rule of apportionment didn't
2 apply. Make sense?

3 Now, no court can just make up rulings. The function of a court is to answer the questions posed to it. And in order to pose
4 a question, a person needs standing. The petitioner has to show that an action has occurred which affects him, hence, giving
5 him that standing. For the Supreme Court to address the question of the income of officers demonstrates that the petitioner
6 was such. Otherwise, the question couldn't have come up.

7 Congress was taxing his benefits of office. But Congress was ALSO taxing his outside income, that from sources within a
8 State. Could have been interest, dividends, rent, royalties, and even alimony. If he had a side job, it might have even been 9 commissions or salary. Those forms of income could not be taxed. However, Congress could tax his income from the 10 benefits he derived by being an officer.

11 That Court decision was the end of all income taxation. The reason is pretty obvious. Rather than tax the benefits derived
12 out of office, it's far easier to just reduce the benefits up front! Saves time. Saves paper. The money stays in Treasury rather 13 than going out, then coming back as much as 15 or 16 months later. So, even though the benefits of office could have been 14 taxed, under that Court ruling, that tax was dropped by Congress. There are two ways to overcome a Supreme Court ruling.
15 The first is to have the court reverse itself. That's a very strange concept at law. Actually, it's impossibility at law. The only
16 way a court can change a prior ruling is if the statutes or the Constitution change, thus changing the premises on which its 17 prior conclusion at law was derived. Because it was a Supreme Court ruling nearly abolishing the income tax, the second
18 method, an Amendment to the Constitution, was used to overcome the prior decision. That was the 16th Amendment.

19 The 16th Amendment allows for Congress to tax incomes from whatever source derived, without regard to apportionment.
20 Whose incomes? Hey, it doesn't say (nor do the statues enacted under it). The Supreme Court has stated (see Stanton v.
21 Baltic Mining, 240 U.S. 103 (1916))that this Amendment granted Congress "no new powers." That's absolutely true.
22 Congress always had the power to tax incomes, but only the incomes of corporations or officers of corporations and only
23 their incomes derived out of a benefit or privilege of elected or corporate office. All the 16th Amendment did was extend 24 that EXISTING POWER to tax officers' incomes (as benefits of office) to their incomes from other sources (from whatever 25 source derived). The 16th Amendment and the statutes enacted thereunder don't have to say whose incomes are subject to 26 this tax. The Supreme Court had already said that: officers. That's logical. If it could be a crime for a freeman to "willfully
27 fail" to file or pay this tax, that crime could only exist as a treason by monarchical definition. In this country a crime of 28 failure may only exist under the broad category of a perjury. Period, no exception.

29 Thus, the trick employed by the government is to get you to claim that you are an officer of that government. Yeah, you're 30 saying, "Man, I'd never be so foolish as to claim that." I'll betcha $100 I can prove that you did it and that you'll be forced to 31 agree. Did you ever sign a tax form, a W-4, a 1040? Then you did it.

32 Look at the fine print at the bottom of the tax forms you once signed. You declared that it was "true" that you were "under 33 penalties of perjury." Are you? Were you? Perjury is a felony. To commit a perjury you have to FIRST be under oath (or 34 affirmation). You know that. It's common knowledge. So, to be punished for a perjury you'd need to be under oath, right?
35 Right. There's no other way, unless you pretend to be under oath. To pretend to be under oath is a perjury automatically.
36 There would be no oath. Hence it's a FALSE oath. Perjury rests on making a false oath. So, to claim to be "under penalties 37 of perjury" is to claim that you're under oath. That claim could be true, could be false. But if false, and you knowingly and 38 willingly made that false claim, then you committed a perjury just by making that claim.

39 You've read the Constitution. How many times can you be tried and penalized for a single criminal act? Once? Did I hear
40 you right? Did you say once; only once? Good for you. You know that you can't even be placed in jeopardy of penalty
41 (trial) a second time. The term "penalties" is plural. More than one. Oops. Didn't you just state that you could only be tried
42 once, penalized once, for a single criminal action? Sure you did. And that would almost always be true. There's a solitary
43 exception. A federal official or employee may be twice tried, twice penalized. The second penalty, resulting out of a
44 conviction of impeachment, is the loss of the benefits of office, for life. Federal officials are under oath, an oath of office.
45 That's why you call them civil servants. That oath establishes jurisdiction (oath spoken), allowing them to be penalized,
46 twice, for a perjury (especially for a perjury of official oath). You have been tricked into signing tax forms under the perjury
47 clause. You aren't under oath enabling the commission of perjury. You can't be twice penalized for a single criminal act,
48 even for a perjury. Still, because you trusted that the government wouldn't try to deceive you, you signed an income tax form,
49 pretending that there was jurisdiction (oath spoken) where there was none.

1 Once you sign the first form, the government will forever believe that you are a civil servant. Stop signing those forms while
2 you continue to have income and you'll be charged with "willful failure to file," a crime of doing nothing when commanded
3 to do something!

4 Initially, the income tax forms were required to be SWORN (or affirmed) before a notary. A criminal by the name of Sullivan
5 (U.S. v. Sullivan, 274 U.S. 259 (1927)) brought that matter all the way to the Supreme Court. He argued that if he listed his
6 income from criminal activities, that information would later be used against him on a criminal charge. If he didn't list it,
7 then swore that the form was "true, correct and complete," he could be charged and convicted of a perjury. He was damned
8 if he did, damned if he didn't. The Supreme Court could only agree. It ruled that a person could refuse to provide any 9 information on that form, taking individual exception to each line, and stating in that space that he refused to provide 10 testimony against himself. That should have been the end of the income tax. In a few years everyone would have been 11 refusing to provide answers on the "gross" and "net income" lines, forcing NO answer on the "tax due" line, as well. Of 12 course, that decision was premised on the use of the notarized oath, causing the answers to have the quality of "testimony."

13 Congress then INSTANTLY ordered the forms be changed. In place of the notarized oath, the forms would contain a
14 statement that they were made and signed "Under penalties of perjury." The prior ruling of the Supreme Court was made
15 obsolete. Congress had changed the premise on which it had reached its conclusion. The verity of the information on the 16 form no longer rested on a notarized oath. It rested on the taxpayer's oath of office. And, as many a tax protestor in the 1970s
17 and early 1980s quickly discovered, the Supreme Court ruling for Sullivan had no current relevance.

18 There has never been a criminal trial in any matter under federal income taxation without a SIGNED tax form in evidence
19 before the court. The court takes notice of the signature below the perjury clause and assumes the standing of the defendant 20 is that of a federal official, a person under oath of office who may be twice penalized for a single criminal act of perjury (to 21 his official oath). The court has jurisdiction to try such a person for a "failure." That jurisdiction arises under the concept of 22 perjury, not treason.

23 However, the court is in an odd position here. If the defendant should take the witness stand, under oath or affirmation to tell
24 the truth, and then truthfully state that he is not under oath of office and is not a federal officer or employee, that statement
25 would contradict the signed statement on the tax form, already in evidence and made under claim of oath. That contradiction
26 would give rise to a technical perjury. Under federal statutes, courtroom perjury is committed when a person willfully makes 27 two statements, both under oath, which contradict one another.

28 The perjury clause claims the witness to be a federal person. If he truthfully says the contrary from the witness stand, the 29 judge is then duty bound to charge him with the commission of a perjury! At his ensuing perjury trial, the two contradictory
30 statements "(I'm) under penalties of perjury" and "I'm not a federal official or employee" would be the sole evidence of the 31 commission of the perjury. As federal employment is a matter of public record, the truth of the last statement would be 32 evidenced. That would prove that the perjury clause was a FALSE statement. Can't have that proof on the record, can we?
33 About now you are thinking of some tax protestor trials for "willful failure" where the defendant took the witness stand and 34 testified, in full truth, that he was not a federal person. This writer has studied a few such cases. Those of Irwin Schiff and 35 F. Tupper Saussy come to mind. And you are right; they told the court that they weren't federal persons. Unfortunately,
36 they didn't tell the court that while under oath. A most curious phenomenon occurs at "willful failure" trials where the 37 defendant has published the fact, in books or newsletters, that he isn't a federal person. The judge becomes very absent-
38 minded - at least that's surely what he'd try to claim if the issue were ever raised. He forgets to swear-in the defendant before
39 he takes the witness stand. The defendant tells the truth from the witness stand, but does so without an oath. As he's not
40 under oath, nothing he says can constitute a technical perjury as a contradiction to the "perjury clause" on the tax forms
41 already in evidence. The court will almost always judge him guilty for his failure to file. Clever system. And it all begins
42 when a person who is NOT a federal officer or employee signs his first income tax form, FALSELY claiming that he's under 43 an oath which if perjured may bring him a duality of penalties. It's still a matter of jurisdiction (oath spoken). That hasn't 44 changed in over 400 years. The only difference is that in this country, we have no monarch able to command us to action.
45 In the United States of America, you have to VOLUNTEER to establish jurisdiction. Once you do, then you are subject to 46 commands regarding the duties of your office. Hence the income tax is "voluntary," in the beginning, but "compulsory" once
47 you volunteer. You volunteer when you sign your very first income tax form, probably a Form W-4 and probably at about 48 age 15. You voluntarily sign a false statement, a false statement that claims that you are subject to jurisdiction. Gotcha! Oh,
49 and when the prosecutor enters your prior signed income tax forms into evidence at a willful failure to file trial, he will always
50 tell the court that those forms evidence that you knew it was your DUTY to make and file proper returns. DUTY! A free
51 man owes no DUTY. A free man owes nothing to the federal government, as he receives nothing from it. But a federal 52 official owes a duty. He receives something from that government - the benefits of office. In addition to a return of some of

1 those benefits, Congress can also demand that he pay a tax on his other forms of income, now under the 16th Amendment,
2 from whatever source they may be derived. If that were ever to be understood, the ranks of real, sworn federal officers would
3 diminish greatly. And the ranks of the pretended federal officers (including you) would vanish to zero. It's still the same
4 system as it was 400 years ago, with appropriate modifications, so you don't immediately realize it. Yes, it's a jurisdictional
5 matter. An Oath-spoken matter. Quite likely you, as a student of the Constitution, have puzzled over the 14th Amendment.
6 You've wondered who are persons "subject to the jurisdiction" of the United States and in the alternative, who are not. This
7 is easily explained, again in the proper historical perspective. The claimed purpose of the 14th was to vest civil rights to the 8 former slaves. A method was needed to convert them from chattel to full civil beings. The Supreme Court had issued rulings
9 that precluded that from occurring. Hence, an Amendment was necessary. But it took a little more than the amendment. The 10 former slaves would need to perform an act, subjecting themselves to the "jurisdiction" of the United States. You should 11 now realize that an oath is the way that was/is accomplished.

12 After the battles of the rebellion had ceased, the manumitted slaves were free, but rightless. They held no electoral franchise
13 - they couldn't vote. The governments of the Southern States were pretty peeved over what had occurred in the prior several 14 years, and they weren't about to extend electoral franchises to the former slaves. The Federal government found a way to 15 force that.

16 It ordered that voters had to be "registered." And it ordered that to become a registered voter, one had to SWEAR an oath of 17 allegiance to the Constitution. The white folks, by and large, weren't about to do that. They were also peeved that the excuse
18 for all the battles was an unwritten, alleged, Constitutional premise, that a "State had no right to secede." The former slaves
19 had no problem swearing allegiance to the Constitution. The vast majority of them didn't have the slightest idea of what an 20 oath was, nor did they even know what the Constitution was!

21 Great voter registration drives took place. In an odd historical twist, these were largely sponsored by the Quakers who 22 volunteered their assistance. Thus, most of the oaths administered were administered by Quakers! Every former slave was 23 sworn-in, taking what actually was an OATH OF OFFICE. The electoral franchise then existed almost exclusively among 24 the former slaves, with the white folks in the South unanimously refusing that oath and denied their right to vote. For a while 25 many of the Southern State governments were comprised of no one other than the former slaves. The former slaves became 26 de jure (by oath) federal officials, "subject to the jurisdiction of the United States" by that oath. They were non-compensated
27 officials, receiving no benefits of their office, save what was then extended under the 14th Amendment. There was some 28 brief talk of providing compensation in the form of 40 acres and a mule, but that quickly faded.

29 Jurisdiction over a person (called "in personam jurisdiction") exists only by oath. Always has, always will. For a court to 30 have jurisdiction, someone has to bring a charge or petition under an oath. In a criminal matter, the charge is forwarded under 31 the oaths of the grand jurors (indictment) or under the oath of office of a federal officer (information). Even before a warrant
32 may be issued, someone has to swear there is probable cause. Should it later be discovered that there was NOT probable
33 cause, that person should be charged with a perjury. It's all about oaths. And the one crime for which immunity, even 34 "sovereign immunity," cannot be extended is ... perjury.

35 You must understand "jurisdiction." That term is only understandable when one understands the history behind it. Know
36 what "jurisdiction" means. You didn't WILLFULLY claim that you were "Under penalties of perjury" on those tax forms
37 you signed. You may have done it voluntarily, but you surely did it ignorantly! You didn't realize the import and implications
38 of that clause. It was, quite frankly, a MISTAKE. A big one. A dumb one. Still it was only a mistake. Willfulness rests on 39 intent. You had no intent to claim that you were under an oath of office, a perjury of which could bring you dual penalties.
40 You just didn't give those words any thought. What do you do when you discover you've made a mistake? As an honest man,
41 you tell those who may have been affected by your error, apologize to them, and usually you promise to be more careful in
42 the future, that as a demonstration that you, like all of us, learn by your mistakes. You really ought to drop the Secretary of 43 the Treasury of the United States a short letter, cc it to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. Explain that you never realized
44 that the fine print on the bottom of all income tax forms meant that you were claiming to be "under oath" a perjury of which
45 might be "twice" penalized. Explain that you've never sworn such an oath and that for reasons of conscience, you never will.
46 You made this mistake on every tax form you'd ever signed. But now that you understand the words, you'll most certainly
47 not make that mistake again! That'll be the end of any possibility that you'll ever be charged with "willful failure to file." Too
48 simple? No, it's only as simple as it's supposed to be. Jurisdiction (oath spoken) is a pretty simple matter. Either you are 49 subject to jurisdiction, by having really sworn an oath, or you are not. If you aren't under oath, and abolish all the pretenses,
50 false pretenses you provided, on which the government assumed that you were under oath, then the jurisdiction fails and you
51 become a freeman. A freeman can't be compelled to perform any act and threatened with a penalty, certainly not two penalties,
52 should he fail to do so. That would constitute a treason charge by the part of the definition abolished here.

1 It's a matter of history. European history, American history, and finally, the history of your life. The first two may be hidden
2 from you, making parts of them difficult to discover. But the last history you know. If you know that you've never sworn an
3 oath of office, and now understand how that truth fits the other histories, then you are free. Truth does that. Funny how that 4 works.

5 Jesus was that Truth. His command that His followers "Swear not at all." That was the method by which He set men free.
6 Israel was a feudal society. It had a crown; it had landlords; they had tenant farmers bound by oath to them. Jesus scared
7 them silly. Who'd farm those lands in the next generation, when all of the people refused to swear oaths? Ring a bell? And
8 what did the government do to Jesus? It tried to obtain jurisdiction on the false oath of a witness, charging Him with "sedition"
9 for the out-of-context, allegorical statement that He'd "tear down the temple" (a government building). At that trial, Jesus
10 stood mute, refusing the administered oath. That was unheard of!

11 The judge became so frustrated that he posed a trick question attempting to obtain jurisdiction from Jesus. He said, "I adjure
12 you in the name of the Living God, are you the man (accused of sedition)." An adjuration is a "compelled oath." Jesus then
13 broke his silence, responding, "You have so said."

14 He didn't "take" the adjured oath. He left it with its speaker, the judge! That bound the judge to truth. Had the judge also 15 falsely said that Jesus was the man (guilty of sedition)? No, not out loud, not yet. But in his heart he'd said so. That's what 16 this trial was all about. Jesus tossed that falsehood back where it belonged as well as the oath. In those few words, "You
17 have so said," Jesus put the oath, and the PERJURY of it, back on the judge, where it belonged. The court couldn't get 18 jurisdiction.

19 Israel was occupied by Rome at that time. The court then shipped Jesus off to the martial governor, Pontius Pilate, hoping 20 that martial power might compel him to submit to jurisdiction. But Pilate had no quarrel with Jesus. He correctly saw the 21 charge as a political matter, devoid of any real criminal act. Likely, Pilate offered Jesus the "protection of Rome." Roman 22 law extended only to sworn subjects. All Jesus would need do is swear an oath to Caesar, then Pilate could protect him.
23 Otherwise, Jesus was probably going to turn up dead at the hands of "person or persons unknown" which would really be 24 at the hands of the civil government, under the false charge of sedition. Pilate administered that oath to Caesar. Jesus stood 25 mute, again refusing jurisdiction. Pilate "marveled at that." He'd never before met a man who preferred to live free or die.
26 Under Roman law the unsworn were considered to be unclean - the "great unwashed masses." The elite were sworn to Caesar.
27 When an official errantly extended the law to an unsworn person that "failure of jurisdiction" required that the official perform
28 a symbolic act. To cleanse himself and the law, he would "wash his hands." Pilate did so. Under Roman law, the law to 29 which he was sworn, he had to do so. The law, neither Roman law nor the law of Israel, could obtain jurisdiction over Jesus.
30 The law couldn't kill Him, nor could it prevent that murder. Jesus was turned over to a mob, demanding His death. How's
31 that for chaos? Jesus was put to death because He refused to be sworn. But the law couldn't do that. Only a mob could do
32 so, setting free a true felon in the process. Thus, Jesus proved the one failing of the law - at least the law then and there - the 33 law has no ability to touch a truly free man. A mob can, but the result of that is chaos, not order.

34 In every situation where a government attempts to compel an oath, or fails to protect a man of conscience who refuses it, the 35 result is chaos. That government proves itself incapable of any claimed powers as the result, for the only purpose of any
36 government should be to defend the people establishing it - all of those people - and not because they owe that government
37 any duty or allegiance, but for the opposite reason, because the government owes the people its duty and allegiance under the 38 law. This country came close to that concept for quite a few decades. Then those in federal office realized that they could
39 fool all of the people, some of the time. That "some of the time" regarded oaths and jurisdiction. We were (and still are) a
40 Christian country, at least the vast majority of us claim ourselves to be Christian. But we are led by churchmen who still 41 uphold the terms of that European treaty. They still profess that it is Christian to swear an oath, so long as it's a "lawful oath."
42 We are deceived. As deceived as the tenant in 1300, but more so, for we now have the Words of Jesus to read for ourselves.

43 Jesus said (in Matt. 5:33-37), "Swear no oaths," extending that even to oaths which don't name God. If His followers obeyed
44 that command, the unscrupulous members of the society in that day would have quickly realized that they could file false
45 lawsuits against Jesus' followers, suits that they couldn't answer (under oath). Thus, Jesus issued a secondary command,
46 ordering His followers to sell all they had, making themselves what today we call "judgment proof." They owned only their 47 shirt and a coat. If they were sued for their shirt, they were to offer to settle out-of-court (without oath) by giving the plaintiff
48 their coat. That wasn't a metaphor. Jesus meant those words in the literal sense!

49 It's rather interesting that most income tax protestors are Christian and have already made themselves virtually judgment
50 proof, perhaps inadvertently obeying one of Jesus' commands out of a self-preservation instinct. Do we sense something

1 here? You need to take the final step. You must swear no oaths. That is the penultimate step in self-preservation, and in
2 obedience to the commands of Christ. It's all a matter of "jurisdiction" (oath spoken), which a Christian can't abide. Christians
3 must be freemen. Their faith, duty and allegiance can go to no one on earth. We can't serve two masters. No one can. As
4 Christians our faith and allegiance rests not on an oath. Our faith and allegiance arise naturally. These are duties owed by a
5 child to his father. As Children of God, we must be faithful to Him, our Father, and to our eldest Brother, the Inheritor of the 6 estate. That's certain.

7 As to what sort of a society Jesus intended without oaths or even affirmations, this writer honestly can't envision. Certainly
8 it would have been anarchy (no crown). Would it have also been chaos? My initial instinct is to find that it would lead to
9 chaos. Like the Quakers in 1786, I can't envision a functional government without the use of oaths. Yet, every time a
10 government attempts to use oaths as a device to compel servitudes, the result is CHAOS. History proves that. The Dark
11 Ages were dark, only because the society was feudal, failing to advance to enlightenment because they were sworn into 12 servitudes, unwittingly violating Jesus' command. When the British crown attempted to compel oaths of allegiance, chaos
13 certainly resulted. And Jesus' own death occurred only out of the chaos derived by His refusal to swear a compelled oath and 14 an offered oath.

15 The current Internal Revenue Code is about as close to legislated chaos as could ever be envisioned. No two people beginning
16 with identical premises will reach the same conclusion under the IRC. Is not that chaos? Thus, in every instance where the 17 government attempts to use oaths to bind a people, the result has been chaos.

18 Hence, this writer is forced to the conclusion that Jesus was right. We ought to avoid oaths at all costs, save our own souls,
19 and for precisely that reason. Yet, what system of societal interaction Jesus envisioned, without oaths, escapes me. How 20 would we deal with murderers, thieves, rapists, etc. present in the society without someone bringing a complaint, sworn
21 complaint, before a Jury (a panel of sworn men), to punish them for these criminal actions against the civil members of that 22 society? Perhaps you, the reader, can envision what Jesus had in mind. Even if you can't, you still have to obey His command.
23 That will set you free. As to where we go from there, well, given that there has never been a society, neither civil nor martial,
24 which functioned without oaths, I guess we won't see how it will function until it arrives.

25 Meanwhile, the first step in the process is abolishing your prior FALSE claims of being under oath (of office) on those income
26 tax forms. You claimed "jurisdiction." Only you can reverse that by stating the Truth. It worked 400 years ago. It'll still 27 work. It's the only thing that'll work. History can repeat, but this time without the penalty of treason extended to you (or 28 your daughters). You can cause it. Know and tell this Truth and it will set you free. HONESTLY. Tell the government,
29 then explain it to every Christian you know. Most of them will hate you for that bit of honesty. Be kind to them anyhow.
30 Once they see that you are keeping what you earn, the market will force them to realize that you aren't the extremist they
31 originally thought! If only 2% of the American people understand what is written here, income taxation will be abolished -
32 that out of a fear that the knowledge will expand. The government will be scared silly. What if no one in the next generation
33 would swear an oath? Then there'd be no servants!

34 No, the income tax will be abolished long before that could ever happen. That's only money. Power comes by having an 35 ignorant people to rule. A government will always opt for power. That way, in two or three generations, the knowledge lost
36 to the obscure "between the lines" of history, they can run the same money game. Pass this essay on to your Christian friends.
37 But save a copy. Will it to your grandchildren. Someday, they too will probably need this knowledge. Teach your children
38 well. Be honest; tell the truth. That will set you free - and it'll scare the government silly.

39 5.2.10 How Does the Federal Government Acquire Legislative Jurisdiction Over an Area?

40 How does the Federal Government acquire exclusive legislative jurisdiction or sovereignty over its territories under Article
41 1, Section 8, Clause 17 of the U.S. Constitution? According to the April, 1956, report (Part I), pages 41-47 of the 42 Interdepartmental Committee "Study Of Jurisdiction Over Federal Areas Within The States" which is available at:

43 <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

44 The Supreme Court has recognized three methods by which the federal government may acquire exclusive legislative 45 jurisdiction over real property:

- 1 1. Constitutional consent.--Other than the District of Columbia, the Constitution gives express recognition to but one
2 means of Federal acquisition of legislative jurisdiction-- purchase with State consent under article I, section 8, clause 17.

3 ... "and to exercise like authority over all places purchased by the consent of the legislature of the state in which
4 the same shall be, for the creation of forts, magazines, arsenals, dockyards and other needful buildings...."

5 "The debates in the Constitutional Convention and State ratifying conventions leave little doubt that both the 6 opponents and proponents of Federal exercise of exclusive legislature jurisdiction over the seat of government
7 were of the view that a constitutional provision such as clause 17 was essential if the Federal government was to 8 have such jurisdiction.... While, as has been indicated in the preceding chapter, little attention was given in the 9 course of the debates to Federal exercise of exclusive legislative jurisdiction over areas other than the seat of 10 government, it is reasonable to assume that it was the general view that a special constitution provision was 11 essential to enable the United States to acquire exclusive legislative jurisdiction over any area..."

12 According to the 1956 report, pages 7-8, "... the provision of the second portion, for transfer of like jurisdiction [as the 13 District of Columbia] to the Federal Government over other areas acquired for Federal purposes, was not uniformly
14 exercised during the first 50 years of the existence of the United States. It was exercised with respect to most, but not 15 all, lighthouse sites, with respect to various forts and arsenals, and with respect to a number of other individual properties.
16 But search of appropriate records indicates that during this period it was often the practice of the Government merely to 17 purchase the lands upon which its installations were to be placed and to enter into occupancy for the purposes intended,
18 without also acquiring legislative jurisdiction over the lands."

- 19 2. Federal reservation.--In Fort Leavenworth R.R. v. Lowe, 114 U.S. 525 (1885), the Supreme Court approved a method
20 not specified in the Constitution of securing legislative jurisdiction in the United States. Although the matter was not in 21 issue in the case, the Supreme Court said (p. 526):

22 "The land constituting the Reservation was part of the territory acquired in 1803 by cession from France, and
23 until the formation of the State of Kansas, and her admission into the Union, the United States possessed the 24 rights of a proprietor, and had political dominion and sovereignty over it. For many years before that admission
25 it had been reserved from sale by the proper authorities of the United States for military purposes, and occupied
26 by them as a military post. The jurisdiction of the United States over it during this time was necessarily 27 paramount. But in 1861 Kansas was admitted into the Union upon an equal footing with the original States, that 28 is, with the same rights of political dominion and sovereignty, subject like them only to the Constitution of the 29 United States. Congress might undoubtedly, upon such admission, have stipulated for retention of the political 30 authority, dominion and legislative power of the United States over the Reservation so long as it should be used
31 for military purposes by the government; that is, it could have excepted the place from the jurisdiction of 32 Kansas, as one needed for the uses of the general government. But from some cause, inadvertence perhaps, or 33 over-confidence that a recession of such jurisdiction could be had whenever desired, no such stipulation or 34 exception was made." (See also United States v. Gratoit concerning post-statehood reservation of mines, salt licks, 35 salt springs, and mill seats in the (former) Eastern ceded territories.)

- 36 3. State cession.--In the same case, (Fort Leavenworth R.R. v. Lowe) the United States Supreme Court sustained the validity
37 of an act of Kansas ceding to the United States legislative jurisdiction over the Fort Leavenworth military reservation,
38 but reserving to itself the right to serve criminal and civil process in the reservation and the right to tax railroad, bridge,
39 and other corporations, and their franchises and property on the reservation. In the course of its opinion sustaining the 40 cession of legislative jurisdiction, the Supreme Court said (p. 540):

41 "... Though the jurisdiction and authority of the general government are essentially different from those of the 42 State, they are not those of a different country; and the two, the State and general government, may deal with 43 each other in any way they may deem best to carry out the purposes of the Constitution. It is for the protection
44 and interests of the States, their people and property, as well as for the protection and interests of the people
45 generally of the United States, that forts, arsenals, and other buildings for public uses are constructed within the 46 States. As instrumentalities for the execution of the powers of the general government, they are, as already 47 said, exempt from such control of the States as would defeat or impair their use for those purposes; and if, to 48 their more effective use, a cession of legislative authority and political jurisdiction by the State would be 49 desirable, we do not perceive any objection to its grant by the Legislature of the State. Such cession is really as 50 much for the benefit of the State as it is for the benefit of the United States."

51 The above list of three sources of jurisdiction, however, is missing one very important additional source of federal jurisdiction.
52 As a matter of fact, it is THE most important and frequent source. Another way the U.S. government gets exclusive legislative 53 jurisdiction over sovereign people and property inside the borders of states is to trick sovereign state citizens (also called 54 Natural Born Persons) into falsely admitting that they are "U.S.** citizens", and then they become federal property...slaves!

"The persons declared to be citizens are ALL PERSONS BORN OR NATURALIZED IN THE UNITED STATES AND SUBJECT TO THE JURISDICTION THEREOF. The evident meaning of these last words is, not merely subject in some respect or degree to the jurisdiction of the United States, but COMPLETELY SUBJECT..."

Elk v. Wilkins, [112 U.S. 94 (1884)]

"To be 'completely subject' to the political jurisdiction of the United States is to be in no respect or degree subject to the political jurisdiction of any other government [including state governments]."

United States v. Wong Kim Ark, [169 U.S. 649, 18 S.Ct. 456; 42 L.Ed. 890 (1898)]

As a "U.S.** citizen", both you and everything you own comes under the jurisdiction of the federal courts. This is jurisdiction they got from you that they wouldn't have if you knew enough about the law to know that you aren't a statutory "U.S.** citizen" under 8 U.S.C. §1401! Why on earth would anyone want to admit to being a statutory "U.S. citizen", especially since such persons by law must be both born and domiciled on federal property inside the federal zone:

3C Am Jur 2d §2689, Who is born in United States and subject to United States jurisdiction

"A person is born subject to the jurisdiction of the United States, for purposes of acquiring citizenship at birth, if his or her birth occurs in territory over which the United States is sovereign, even though another country provides all governmental services within the territory, and the territory is subsequently ceded to the other country."

Here's the only definition of "U.S. citizen" anywhere in 26 U.S.C. or 26 C.F.R.:

Title 26. INTERNAL REVENUE CODE
Subtitle C. Employment Taxes
Chapter 21. FEDERAL INSURANCE CONTRIBUTIONS ACT
Subchapter C. General Provisions

26 U.S. Code § 3121. Definitions

(e) STATE, UNITED STATES, AND CITIZEN

For purposes of this chapter—

(1) STATE

The term "State" includes the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, Guam, and American Samoa.

(2) UNITED STATES

The term "United States" when used in a geographical sense includes the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, Guam, and American Samoa.

An individual who is a citizen of the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico (but not otherwise a citizen of the United States) shall be considered, for purposes of this section, as a citizen of the United States.

26 C.F.R. §31.3121(e)-1 State, United States, and citizen.

(b)...The term 'citizen of the United States' includes a citizen of the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico or the Virgin Islands, and, effective January 1, 1961, a citizen of Guam or American Samoa.

By the above definition, most people simply aren't statutory "U.S. citizens" but their own ignorance deceives them into thinking that they are! That is why we emphasize over and over in this book that it is so important to get educated so the exploitation and oppression the government has foisted upon you because of your legal ignorance can be eliminated immediately. Knowledge is the only way out of financial slavery to the government. Instead, we should always declare ourselves to be "nationals" or "state nationals" and never statutory "U.S.** citizens" and we should never file 1040 forms, but instead if we file anything, they should be 1040NR forms.

4 5.2.11 Limitations on Federal Taxation Jurisdiction

5 At this point it is reasonable to consider what types of income might be (as the older regulations state) “under the Constitution,
6 not taxable by the Federal Government.” While the public seems largely ignorant of this fact, Congress has legal power over
7 only those few matters which the Constitution puts under federal jurisdiction (and the Tenth Amendment clearly states this).
8 Within the 50 Union states, Congress has legal control over only those matters listed in Article I, Section 8 of the Constitution.

9 The Constitution creates a Federal Government of enumerated powers. See U.S. Const., Art. I, 8. As James
10 Madison wrote, “[t]he powers delegated by the proposed Constitution to the federal government are few and 11 defined. Those which are to remain in the State governments are numerous and indefinite.” The Federalist No.

13 the Framers to ensure protection of our fundamental liberties.” Gregory v. Ashcroft, 501 U.S. 452, 458 (1991)*
14 *(internal quotation marks omitted). “Just as the separation and independence of the coordinate branches of the

16 balance of power between the States and the Federal Government will reduce the risk of tyranny and abuse
17 from either front.”*
18 [United States v. Lopez, 514 U.S. 549 (1995)]

19 “The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are 20 reserved to the States respectively, or to the people.”
21 [Tenth Amendment, U.S. Constitution]

22 In the 1995 case of U.S. v. Lopez cited above, the Supreme Court threw out the “Gun Free School Zone” law (18 U.S.C.
23 §922(q)) as unconstitutional, on the grounds that it was outside of Congress’ enumerated powers described in Article I,
24 Section 8. Not only did the court say this, but the lawyers on the other side tried to argue that the law was about regulating
25 “interstate commerce” (which Article I, Section 8 puts under federal jurisdiction), demonstrating that they agreed that the 26 law had to be based on something in Article I, Section 8.

27 Article I, Section 8 of the Constitution authorizes Congress “to lay and collect taxes.” And says exactly what may be taxed
28 by Congress. In addition, the Sixteenth Amendment states: “Congress shall have the power to lay and collect taxes on 29 income, from whatever source derived.” So surely Congress has the Constitutional power to tax your income, doesn’t it? In 30 most cases, no, it doesn’t. Many have argued about the “direct tax” vs. “indirect tax” question (which is not necessary to 31 explain in detail here), but the more important limitation on Congress’ taxing power (the one keeping them from actually 32 imposing the tax most people assume exists) is usually overlooked.

33 Article I, Section 8 leaves almost all matters that occur within a single state (e.g. intrastate commerce) to the state
34 governments. But, as mentioned above, it does grant Congress the “power to lay and collect taxes.” While there are rules for 35 how “direct” and “indirect” taxes must be imposed, the taxing clauses do not say exactly what may or may not be taxed (there 36 is, however, a clause forbidding taxation on exports from states). Is there then no limit to what Congress can tax, only how 37 they can tax?

38 To answer that, we start with a simple question: Do Article I, Section 8 and the Sixteenth Amendment give Congress the 39 power to tax the incomes of everyone in China? The question is admittedly a bit silly, but why is it silly? If Congress has the 40 power “to lay and collect taxes,” and specifically has the power “to lay and collect taxes on income, from whatever source
41 derived,” why can’t it tax everyone in China? In this case, we naturally (and correctly) assume that “from whatever source”
42 only includes things under the jurisdiction of Congress. (It would be difficult to find anyone to make the argument that the 43 Sixteenth Amendment gave Congress jurisdiction over everyone in China.)

44 So Congress can’t tax everyone in China. Big deal. What does that have to do with us Americans? The question about 45 geographical or territorial jurisdiction is fairly simple, but what about jurisdiction within the 50 Union states? This type of 46 jurisdiction, instead of “territorial jurisdiction” or sovereignty, is called “subject matter jurisdiction”. Can Congress tax
47 anything it wants there?

Article I, Section 8 does include the "power to lay and collect taxes," but does not say what may be taxed by Congress. This allows for two options. The first option is that there are essentially no limitations on what Congress can tax (though there are certain rules on how "direct" and "indirect" taxes must be imposed). The problem with this option is that it would essentially negate the entire Constitution, as this option would give Congress the jurisdiction and power to control anything and everything, provided it exerted that control through tax legislation. For example, if this option were true, in response to the Lopez decision mentioned above, Congress could simply impose a $1,000,000 tax on carrying a firearm near a school, to get around the restriction that would otherwise exist.

The courts have thrown out many acts of Congress, on the grounds that they were beyond the powers granted to Congress by Article I, Section 8. For example, the Supreme Court threw out the "Gun Free School Zone" law in the 1995 "Lopez" decision. The law (18 U.S.C. §922(q)) made it illegal for anyone to possess a gun near a school. Despite attempts by the government lawyers to pass this off as a regulation of interstate commerce (which Article I, Section 8 puts under federal jurisdiction), the court ruled that such a law was not within Congress' constitutional power to make." Here is what they said in U.S. v. Lopez, 514 U.S. 549 (1995):

To uphold the Government's contentions here, we would have to pile inference upon inference in a manner that would bid fair to convert congressional authority under the Commerce Clause to a general police power of the sort retained by the States. Admittedly, some of our prior cases have taken long steps down that road, giving great deference to congressional action. See supra, at 8. The broad language in these opinions has suggested the possibility of additional expansion, but we decline here to proceed any further. To do so would require us to conclude that the Constitution's enumeration of powers does not presuppose something not enumerated, cf. Gibbons v. Ogden, supra, at 195, and that there never will be a distinction between what is truly national and what is truly local, cf. Jones & Laughlin Steel, supra, at 30. This we are unwilling to do.

Suppose, after that ruling, Congress then imposed a $1,000,000 "tax" on possessing a gun near a school. Would that not get around the restriction? If Congress could control any behavior it wanted, as long as it is done by way of "tax" legislation, then:

"all that Congress would need to do, hereafter, in seeking to take over to its control any one of the great number of subjects of public interest, jurisdiction of which the states have never parted with, and which are reserved to them by the Tenth Amendment, would be to enact a detailed measure of complete regulation of the subject and enforce it by a so-called tax upon departures from it. To give such magic to the word 'tax' would be to break down all constitutional limitation of the powers of Congress and completely wipe out the sovereignty of the states."

Those are the words of the Supreme Court, from the case of Bailey v. Drexel Furniture Co., 259 U.S. 20 (1922). An Act of Congress, designed to regulate by way of a "tax" something not otherwise under federal jurisdiction, "cannot be sustained as an exercise of the taxing power of Congress conferred by section 8, article I." Again, those are the words of the Supreme Court, this time from the case of Hill v. Wallace, 259 U.S. 44 (1922). In other words, the taxing clause in Article I, Section 8, does not give Congress jurisdiction over everything occurring within the 50 Union states.

The next logical question is: Does Congress have any power over those who receive their income from intrastate commerce (commerce within a single state)? Under Article I, Section 8, Congress does not have jurisdiction over intrastate commerce.

"No interference by Congress with the business of citizens transacted within a state is warranted by the Constitution, except such as is strictly incidental to the exercise of powers clearly granted to the legislature."
[License Tax Cases, 72 U.S. 462 (1866)]

During this century, the courts have stretched their reading of the "commerce clause" to the extreme. The courts have upheld many Acts of Congress, on the grounds that the matters regulated, though not interstate commerce themselves, have enough of an "impact" on interstate commerce that Congress may regulate them. We will here limit our criticism of this tendency of the courts to agreeing with Supreme Court Justice, Clarence Thomas, in his concurring opinion in the U.S. v. Lopez, 514 U.S. 549 (1995) case mentioned above, when he said:

"We have said that Congress may regulate not only "Commerce... among the several states," U.S. Const., Art. I, 8, cl. 3, but also anything that has a "substantial effect" on such commerce... [I]t seems to me that the power to regulate "commerce" can by no means encompass authority over mere gun possession, any more than it empowers the Federal Government to regulate marriage, littering, or cruelty to animals, throughout the 50 States. Our Constitution quite properly leaves such matters to the individual States, notwithstanding these activities' effects on interstate commerce. Any interpretation of the Commerce Clause that even suggests that Congress could regulate such matters is in need of reexamination."

1 Even with the courts' "creative" interpretation of the commerce clause, it would be quite a stretch to say that Congress has
 2 the jurisdiction to regulate all income-generating activities within the 50 Union states. If they cannot regulate it, can they tax
 3 it?

4 There has been extensive debate in the courts over the concept that "the power to tax is the power to destroy." Though usually
 5 applied to limits on state power, the principle basically says that if a government has no jurisdiction to regulate an activity,
 6 then it also cannot tax that activity.

7 "[N]o state has the right to lay a tax on interstate commerce in any form... and the reason is that such taxation
 8 is a burden on that commerce, and amounts to a regulation of it, which belongs solely to congress. This is the 9 result of so many recent cases that citation is hardly necessary."
 10 [Leloup v. Port of Mobile, 127 U.S. 640 (1888)]

11 But the courts have gone back and forth on this issue as well. Could anyone argue that the extensive "social engineering" in 12 the tax Code, rewarding some behaviors with credits and deductions, while penalizing others, does not amount to an attempt
 13 to regulate the behavior of those who receive taxable income? Does Congress have the authority to regulate the behavior of 14 100+ million Americans in that manner, by way of "tax" legislation? Or could it be that such "reward and punishment" tactics
 15 could only be imposed on those engaged in some activity otherwise under federal jurisdiction? What might that activity be 16 that makes us "liable"?

17 In discussing the Income Tax Act of 1913, as it related to a company engaged in the business of selling U.S. products in 18 foreign countries, the Supreme Court stated the following:

19 "The Constitution broadly empowers Congress not only 'to lay and collect taxes, duties, imposts, and excises,'
 20 but also 'to regulate commerce with foreign nations.' So, if [the clause forbidding taxes on exports from states]
 21 be not in the way, Congress undoubtedly has power to lay and collect such a tax as is here in question."
 22 [William E. Peck & Co. v. Lowe, 247 U.S. 165 (1918)]

23 Why would the Supreme Court even mention the second clause, unless there was some question about whether the "power
 24 to lay and collect taxes" by itself, authorized a tax on any and all income?

25 But what of the Sixteenth Amendment? Didn't that expand Congress' taxing jurisdiction to all Americans? The Supreme 26 Court and the Secretary of the Treasury say it did not. The following Treasury Decision (which expresses the official position 27 of the Secretary of the Treasury) is actually a direct quote from the Supreme Court's ruling in the case of Stanton v. Baltic
 28 Mining Co., 240 U.S. 103 (1916).

29 "The provisions of the sixteenth amendment conferred no new power of taxation, but simply prohibited
 30 [Congress' original power to tax incomes] from being taken out of the category of indirect taxation, to which it 31 inherently belonged, and being placed in the category of direct taxation subject to apportionment."
 32 [Treasury Decision 2303]

33 In the 1916 case of Brushaber v. Union Pacific Railroad Co., 240 U.S. 1 (1916), the Supreme Court called it an "erroneous
 34 assumption" to believe that "the 16th Amendment provides for a hitherto unknown power of taxation; that is, a power to 35 levy an income tax which, although direct, should not be subject to the regulation of apportionment applicable to all other
 36 direct taxes."

37 The Sixteenth Amendment was passed in response to the Supreme Court decision in Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co.,
 38 157 U.S. 429 (1895), which said that a tax on the income derived from owning property was the same as a tax on owning
 39 property, which would be a "direct" tax, requiring Congress to go through the complicated process of "apportioning" the tax
 40 among the states. (The court's complaint about the tax did not apply to income received in exchange for labor.)

41 Without discussing all the ins and outs of "direct" and "indirect" taxes, the relevant point is that the Sixteenth Amendment
 42 simply identified the tax as an "indirect" tax (even when the income comes from property ownership), and therefore a tax
 43 which does not require (and has never required) "apportionment." It did nothing to expand Congress' taxing jurisdiction.

44 "The Sixteenth Amendment... has no real bearing and may be put out of view. As pointed out in recent decisions, 45 it does not extend the taxing power to new or excepted subjects..."
 46 [William E. Peck & Co. v. Lowe, 247 U.S. 165 (1918)]

1 The Sixteenth Amendment does not at all address Congress' taxing jurisdiction within the 50 union states, in spite of what
 2 well-meaning but ignorant Congressmen tell their constituents all the time in regards to their liability to pay income taxes.
 3 Saying that Congress can tax incomes "from whatever source derived," without apportionment, obviously did not allow
 4 Congress to tax everyone in China. The only issue the amendment is relevant to is the question of "direct" vs. "indirect"
 5 taxation (with the amendment stating that the income tax is an "indirect" tax).

6 In fact, in one of the key rulings regarding the meaning of the Sixteenth Amendment, the Supreme Court made some 7 interesting comments that show that the amendment was not about taxing jurisdiction in general. In the case of Stanton v.
 8 Baltic Mining Co., 240 U.S. 103 (1916), the Supreme Court stated that the Sixteenth Amendment simply forbids the courts
 9 from ruling that the income tax is a "direct" tax, based on "the sources from which the income was derived," as happened in 10 the Pollock case (mentioned above). The Court then said the following:

11 *"Mark, of course, in saying this we are not here considering a tax... entirely beyond the scope of the taxing power
 12 of Congress, and where consequently no authority to impose a burden, either direct or indirect, exists. In other*
 13 words, we are here dealing solely with the restriction imposed by the 16th Amendment on the right to resort to 14 the source whence an income is derived in a case where there is power to tax..."
 15 Stanton v. Baltic Mining Co., [240 U.S. 103 (1916)]

16 If there were no Constitutional restriction on Congress' jurisdiction to tax incomes, this would make no sense. Is the court
 17 here referring merely to Congress' inability to tax foreigners who do no business related to the United States of America?
 18 Would the court feel the need to mention that? Or were they implying that other restrictions exist on Congress' ability to tax
 19 income? The Court thought it worth mentioning that they were not implying that the Sixteenth Amendment removed all the 20 limits from Congress' taxing power.

21 Article I, Section 8 of the Constitution does include the "power to lay and collect taxes," but does not say what may be taxed
 22 by Congress. This allows for two options. The first option is that there are essentially no limitations on what Congress can 23 tax (though there are certain rules on how "direct" and "indirect" taxes must be imposed). The problem with this option is 24 that it would essentially negate the entire Constitution, as this option would give Congress the jurisdiction and power to 25 control anything and everything, provided it exerted that control through tax legislation. For example, if this option were 26 true, in response to the Lopez decision mentioned above, Congress could simply impose a $1,000,000 tax on carrying a 27 firearm near a school, to get around the restriction that would otherwise exist.

28 The Supreme Court seems to agree that this option cannot be. The court said that they could not allow Congress to control
 29 by tax legislation matters which they have no jurisdiction to regulate. (Congress was attempting, in this case, to control
 30 "child labor" within the states through tax legislation.) The Supreme Court said the following:

31 "Grant the validity of this law, and all that Congress would need to do, hereafter, in seeking to take over to its 32 control any one of the great number of subjects of public interest, jurisdiction of which the states have never
 33 parted with, and which are reserved to them by the Tenth Amendment, would be to enact a detailed measure of 34 complete regulation of the subject and enforce it by a so-called tax upon departures from it. To give such magic 35 to the word 'tax' would be to break down all constitutional limitation of the powers of Congress, and completely 36 wipe out the sovereignty of the states."
 37 Bailey v. Drexel Furniture Co., [259 U.S. 20 (1922)]

38 In the same year, the court also ruled on the Future Trading Act, which imposed a tax "on all contracts for the sale of grain
 39 for future delivery." The court quoted the citation above, and immediately afterward said this:

40 "This has complete application to the act before us, and requires us to hold that the provisions of the act we
 41 *have been discussing cannot be sustained as an exercise of the taxing power of Congress conferred by section
 42 8, article I."*
 43 Hill v. Wallace, [259 U.S. 44 (1922)]

44 Clearly the court saw that Congress' power to lay and collect taxes does not grant unlimited jurisdiction over everything
 45 within the states. To ignore the limits of federal jurisdiction when reading the taxation clause would lead to concluding that 46 Congress can control everything by tax legislation. (In fact, this reading would also mean that Congress has the power to tax 47 everyone in China, since the taxing clause does not mention geographical jurisdiction either.)

48 The second option is that "the power to lay and collect taxes" applies only to matters otherwise under federal jurisdiction.
 49 For example, Article I, Section 8 specifically puts international commerce under federal jurisdiction, and Article IV, Section

3 gives Congress control of federal possessions. However, “intrastate” commerce (commerce that happens entirely within a single state) is not under federal jurisdiction. Here is a quote from the Constitution that prohibits taxing intrastate commerce:

U.S. Constitution, Article I, Section 9, Clause 5:

“No Tax or Duty shall be laid on Articles exported from any State.”

So the power to tax, together with the clauses giving Congress jurisdiction over international/foreign commerce, and commerce within federal possessions, would give Congress the power to tax income from international commerce, and income from federal possessions ONLY.

The Supreme Court made an interesting comment in 1918 related to this. The case concerned the income tax act of 1913 (which is the basis of the current tax), and how it applied to a domestic corporation in the business of buying things in the states and selling them in foreign countries. The corporation was arguing that the tax in this case violated the provision of the Constitution which forbids the federal government from taxing exports from any state.

“[T]he act obviously could not impose a tax forbidden by the Constitution... The Constitution broadly empowers Congress not only ‘to lay and collect taxes, duties, imposts, and excises,’ but also ‘to regulate commerce with foreign nations.’ So, if the prohibitory clause [meaning the clause forbidding taxes on exports from states] invoked by the plaintiff be not in the way, Congress undoubtedly has power to lay and collect such a tax as is here in question.”
William E. Peck & Co. v. Lowe, [247 U.S. 165 (1918)]

In other words, if not for the question about whether this was a tax on state exports, this income would be taxable because Congress is given the general power “to lay and collect taxes,” and is given specific jurisdiction over “regulat[ing] commerce with foreign nations.” The court obviously thought this second clause was relevant to whether Congress could tax such income.

One more very important Supreme Court Case, Gibbons v. Ogden, 22 U.S. 1 (1824) , helps clarify the division of taxing authority between federal and state governments. The below cite confirms that the state and federal governments may not tax the same object or activity, and if they do, they are conflicting with the Constitution and with each other. Presently, exactly this constitutional conflict is found in IRC Subtitle A income taxes within the Union states, where both the federal and state governments are simultaneously competing for taxes on the same income of the same person and on the same activity, which is wages and labor. The more that one takes out of the income of the natural person, the less the other has and this is a clear constitutional conflict that cannot be remedied if we interpret Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A to apply inside the 50 sovereign Union states. This Constitutional conflict, by the way, is one of many reasons why the federal income tax can never be anything other than entirely voluntary within the Union states:

“The grant of the power to lay and collect taxes is, like the power to regulate commerce, made in general terms, and has never been understood to interfere with the exercise of the same power by the State; and hence has been drawn an argument which has been applied to the question under consideration. But the two grants are not, it is conceived, similar in their terms or their nature. Although many of the powers formerly [22 U.S. 1, 199] exercised by the States, are transferred to the government of the Union, yet the State governments remain, and constitute a most important part of our system. The power of taxation is indispensable to their existence, and is a power which, in its own nature, is capable of residing in, and being exercised by, different authorities at the same time. We are accustomed to see it placed, for different purposes, in different hands. Taxation is the simple operation of taking small portions from a perpetually accumulating mass, susceptible of almost infinite division; and a power in one to take what is necessary for certain purposes, is not, in its nature, incompatible with a power in another to take what is necessary for other purposes. Congress is authorized to lay and collect taxes, &c. to pay the debts, and provide for the common defence and general welfare of the United States. This does not interfere with the power of the States to tax for the support of their own governments; nor is the exercise of that power by the States, an exercise of any portion of the power that is granted to the United States. In imposing taxes for State purposes, they are not doing what Congress is empowered to do. Congress is not empowered to tax for those purposes which are within the exclusive province of the States. When, then, each government exercises the power of taxation, neither is exercising the power of the other. But, when a State proceeds to regulate commerce with foreign nations, or among the several States, it is exercising the very power that is granted to Congress, [22 U.S. 1, 200] and is doing the very thing which

Congress is authorized to do. There is no analogy, then, between the power of taxation and the power of regulating commerce.
 [Gibbons v. Ogden, 22 U.S. 1 (1824)]

As you will see later in this book starting in section 5.6.10, the popular "861 Position" fully realizes exactly the above described limits on the power of the federal government to tax foreign commerce under Article I, Section 8, Clause 3 of the U.S. Constitution. It recognizes the income tax as an indirect excise tax on revenue taxable privileges granted to corporations involved in foreign (outside the country) commerce. 26 C.F.R. §1.861 therefore limits taxable sources of income for the federal government to specific taxable activities and entities, which include, the following. Incidentally, the taxable activities listed below are what is called "statutory groupings" in 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f) :

1. Profit of federally-chartered Foreign Sales Corporations (FSC's) under 26 U.S.C. §994
2. Profit from federally chartered Domestic International Sales Corporations (DISC) under 26 U.S.C. §925
3. Foreign base company income under 26 U.S.C. §954. This type of company is also identified as a federal corporation in 26 U.S.C. §952, but is operating inside a military base on federal property.

The courts have long argued over the concept that "the power to tax is the power to destroy," meaning that the ability to tax something implies the ability to regulate it or to forbid it entirely. This conversely implies that if a government has no jurisdiction to regulate or forbid an activity, then it also has no jurisdiction to tax that activity either. There are numerous Supreme Court cases dealing with the concept.

"[N]o state has the right to lay a tax on interstate commerce in any form... and the reason is that such taxation is a burden on that commerce, and amounts to a regulation of it, which belongs solely to congress. This is the result of so many recent cases that citation is hardly necessary."
 [Leloup v. Port of Mobile, 127 U.S. 640 (1888)]

In this case the court is stating the restrictions on what a state can tax, but the underlying logic is clear. Taxing commerce is a burden on that commerce, and amounts to a regulation of commerce. While Congress is authorized to regulate interstate commerce (commerce crossing state lines) and international commerce, it has no jurisdiction over intrastate commerce (commerce occurring entirely within a single state). By the simple logic above, that means Congress cannot tax income from intrastate commerce.

"No interference by Congress with the business of citizens transacted within a state is warranted by the Constitution, except such as is strictly incidental to the exercise of powers clearly granted to the legislature."
 [License Tax Cases, 72 U.S. 462 (1866)]

It is true that the opinions of the courts have fluctuated significantly on this, from saying that the power to tax requires the power to regulate, to saying that Congress may tax things it cannot regulate, provided that taxation does not amount to regulation under the guise of a "tax." But considering the massively complex "social engineering" in the income tax code (punishing some behaviors and rewarding others) it would be difficult to argue that it would not constitute an attempt to regulate behavior.

However, the courts' position on the matter is ultimately irrelevant. Regardless of what the courts think Congress could tax, the statutes and regulations show what Congress did tax. Whether the courts think Congress has the constitutional power to tax the income of all Americans is only relevant if Congress attempts to impose such a tax, which has not occurred. (The courts cannot expand the scope of a tax just by saying that Congress could have taxed more if they had wanted to.)

Brief mention should be made of the 16th Amendment to the Constitution, since there is a common but erroneous belief that the 16th Amendment expanded Congress' power to impose direct taxes on incomes. The purpose of the 16th Amendment, according to the Supreme Court in Brushaber v. Union Pacific Railroad Co., 240 U.S. 1 (1916), and again in Stanton v. Baltic Mining Co., 240 U.S. 103 (1916) was to make it clear that the income tax is, and has always been, an indirect "excise" tax, which never required apportionment. The Secretary of the Treasury agreed with the Court in Treasury Decision 2303:

"The Sixteenth Amendment. The provisions of the sixteenth amendment conferred no new power of taxation, but simply prohibited [Congress' original power to tax incomes] from being taken out of the category of indirect taxation, to which it inherently belonged, and being placed in the category of direct taxation subject to apportionment."
 [Treasury Decision 2303]

An in-depth explanation of direct and indirect taxes, and how they must be imposed, is not necessary here. The only relevant point is that Congress' taxing jurisdiction was not expanded by the 16th Amendment.

QUESTION FOR DOUBTERS: Under Article I, Section 8 (first clause) of the Constitution, can Congress control anything and everything within the 50 Union states, provided that that control is exerted through tax legislation?

But, after all this discussion of what the courts think, in the end that is irrelevant. As the statutes and regulations show, the income tax was not imposed on the income of most Americans, regardless of the "conventional wisdom" on the subject. The above discussion is not an attempt to claim that Congress imposed an unconstitutional tax. (They did not.) It is to explain why Congress did not impose the tax that the American people have been tricked into believing exists. If Congress did not impose the tax, of what relevance is it whether the courts think they could have?

Because of the above restrictions, we would like to summarize the extent of Congress' power to lay and collect taxes:

"The Internal Revenue Code is precisely that: Internal to the 'federal zone', which includes the District of Columbia, and federal possessions and territories over which the U.S. Government is sovereign and has exclusive jurisdiction. The IRC therefore is a kind of municipal law for its regional holdings throughout the country and within federal enclaves situated within the borders of the 50 Union states, but does not apply to the states in their entirety. If and when those federal holdings transition to ownership either by the individual states or to citizens within the states of the Union, the federal government cedes or forfeits jurisdiction and control and sovereignty over those areas and they are then permanently covered by the Constitution in perpetuity to the exclusion of direct taxes."

All laws that have applicability only within the federal zone are called "special law" or "private law" as opposed to "public law", which has general applicability to all American Citizens:

special law: One relating to particular persons or things; one made for individual cases or for particular places or districts; one operating upon a selected class, rather than upon the public generally. A private law. A law is "special" when it is different from others of the same general kind or designed for a particular purpose, or limited in range or confined to a prescribed field of action or operation. A "special law" relates to either particular persons, places, or things or to persons, places, or things which, though not particularized, are separated by any method of selection from the whole class to which the law might, but not such legislation, be applied. Utah Farm Bureau Ins. Co. v. Utah Ins. Guaranty Ass'n, Utah, 564 P.2d. 751, 754. A special law applies only to an individual or a number of individuals out of a single class similarly situated and affected, or to a special locality. Board of County Com'rs of Lemhi County v. Swensen, Idaho, 80 Idaho 198, 327 P.2d. 361, 362. See also Private bill; Private law. Compare General law; Public law. [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, pp. 1397-1398, 0-314-76271-X]

Throughout the discussion in this section, we have tried and will continue to try to be very careful about the use of the word "State", because it is a "word of art" that has a different meaning in the IRC than in everyday usage, as we will point out later in section 5.2.13. That is why we have consistently either said "the 50 Union states" or "federal zone" instead of mixing the two definitions together and loosely calling both of them "States". We encourage you to be just as careful how you use these terms yourself so you don't confuse people and thereby undermine the tax freedom movement.

5.2.12 "United States" in the Internal Revenue Code means the federal zone OR the government, and excludes states of the Union

Based on sections 4.6 through 4.8 earlier, we'll admit that it is easy to get confused about which of the three United States a particular section of the tax code is referring to. This kind of confusion was intended by the government, we believe, because that is how they get the wiggle room to deny due process and create a society of men rather than law: writing vague laws that can't stand on their own and require a corrupt member of the legal profession (a "man") to interpret before they can be properly applied. It's quite common for people in the tax honesty movement to argue over the definition of the term "United States" and this kind of argument simply helps to point out the incomprehensibility and deliberate vagueness of the tax code.

The following definitions imply that the United States meant in the Internal Revenue Code is federal territories and the "United States*" mentioned in the previous section:

TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > Sec. 7701. [Internal Revenue Code]
Sec. 7701. - Definitions

(a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof—

(9) United States

The term "United States" when used in a geographical sense includes only the States and the District of Columbia.

(10) State

The term "State" shall be construed to include the District of Columbia, where such construction is necessary to carry out provisions of this title.

You will note that "States" is the plural of "State", and that "State" refers only to the District of Columbia, which is part of the federal zone and is a federal State. This conclusion is further explained in section 5.2.13. But wait, there is only one District of Columbia and they used the plural form of "State" in the definition of "United States". What other federal "States" do we have? Here they are below in an excerpt from the Buck Act of 1940:

TITLE 4 - FLAG AND SEAL, SEAT OF GOVERNMENT, AND THE STATES
CHAPTER 4 - THE STATES
Sec. 110. Same; definitions

(d) The term "State" includes any Territory or possession of the United States.

Notice the title of the Chapter above, which is "The States". These are federal states, and the same "the States" appearing in the definition of the term "United States" found in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) above. These same federal States are also the only States subject to the federal income tax or the territorial jurisdiction of the federal government! The above is from 4 U.S.C. Sections 104-113, also called the Buck Act of 1940, which was enacted by the federal government to allow states to institute state income or sales taxes inside of federal enclaves within sovereign states or in federal possessions like the Virgin Islands. An "enclave" is property within a sovereign state that has been ceded to the federal government by a state for use, for instance, as a military base or federal courthouse. As we explained in section 4.17, there are 50 artificial or federal "States" within the borders of the sovereign 50 "states" under the Buck Act. If we took all of the federal property within one of these sovereign "states" and grouped it together, this would be called a "State". The definition of "United States" found in the Treasury Regulations confirms our reasonable conclusions:

26 C.F.R. §1.911-2 Qualified Individuals

(g) United States.

The term "United States" when used in a geographical sense includes any territory under the sovereignty of the United States. It includes the states, the District of Columbia, the possessions and territories of the United States, the territorial waters of the United States, the air space over the United States, and the seabed and subsoil of those submarine areas which are adjacent to the territorial waters of the United States and over which the United States has exclusive rights, in accordance with international law, with respect to the exploration and exploitation of natural resources.

The important thing to remember about the above regulation is that they qualify the definition by saying "when used in a geographical sense". Lawyers love to play word games like this to confuse people and hide the truth. This definition implies that there may also be other senses in which the term is used, and it creates doubt and confusion in the reader because it is nearly impossible for the average American to know based on the context in many cases whether the term "United States" as used is indeed being used in its "geographical sense", or whether it is defined in the general sense found in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) to mean the federal zone or the federal corporation found in 28 U.S.C. §3002(15)(A). The focus of the statute, 26 U.S.C. §911, which this regulation was written for is to determine whether one is a citizen who is living "abroad", which in this case means outside of the federal zone AND the states of the Union, which we call the geographical United States.

Did you also notice in this regulation that the Secretary of the Treasury who wrote the regulation above didn't capitalize "the states", as if to imply that the Internal Revenue Code subtitle A applies throughout the sovereign 50 Union states? A lower case "states" implies a foreign state in legal lingo. Apparently, the Secretary of the Treasury wanted to avoid confusing the term "the States" found in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(9\) with the sovereign 50 Union states so he made it lower case to avoid confusion, because he was the one who had to administer the tax code! Since the sovereign 50 Union states are not under the sovereignty of the federal government, then they are not part of the definition of the term "United States" found throughout Subtitles A through C of the Internal Revenue Code! The definition of "territory" as used above from Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1473 underscores this point:

"Territory: A part of a country separated from the rest, and subject to a particular jurisdiction. Geographical area under the jurisdiction of another country or sovereign power.

A portion of the United States not within the limits of any state, which has not yet been admitted as a state of the Union, but is organized with a separate legislature, and with executive and judicial powers appointed by the President."

[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1473

In the case of the current United States* (the country), therefore, federal territories include Guam, the Virgin Islands, or Puerto Rico. These federal "States" and others are very clearly identified in Title 48 of the U.S. Code. You don't therefore live in the "United States" defined in Subtitles A through C of the tax code and you probably never have! The federal government will pretend like you live in the federal United States if you "volunteer", however, by sending in a 1040 tax return. In that case, 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(39) confirms that when you file a 1040 tax return (not a 1040NR, but a 1040), even if you live in a state of the Union, the IRS and the federal courts will "pretend" like you live in the District of Columbia. In effect, you become a virtual citizen of the District of Criminals for the purpose of judicial jurisdiction:

TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > Sec. 7701.
Sec. 7701. - Definitions

(39) Persons residing outside United States

If any [federal "U.S."] citizen or resident of the [federal] United States does not reside in (and is not found in) any United States judicial district, such citizen or resident shall be treated as residing in the District of Columbia for purposes of any provision of this title relating to -

*(A) jurisdiction of courts, or
(B) enforcement of summons.*

TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 76 > Subchapter A > § 7408
§7408. Action to enjoin promoters of abusive tax shelters, etc.

(d) Citizens and residents outside the United States If any citizen or resident of the United States does not reside in, and does not have his principal place of business in, any United States judicial district, such citizen or resident shall be treated for purposes of this section as residing in the District of Columbia.

Do you think the slick lawyers in Congress would need a trick like the above to suck you into the federal zone if the Internal Revenue Code already defined the term "United States" as including the entire country? NOT!!!!

Going back to the definitions of "United States" and "State" again found in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9)-(10) above, then by the rules of statutory construction, the plural of the word "State" may not have a different meaning or category than the singular of a word. The definition of "United States" also cannot have two different meanings either that depend on the context used, meaning that it can't mean the federal zone for individuals and the geographical United States* (the entire country) for other artificial entities, because Section 7701(a)(9) doesn't provide two definitions or contexts. It can only have one meaning that can consistently be applied throughout the Internal Revenue Code.

Do either the definition of "United States" or "State" above express a clear intent to apply to areas outside the federal zone (federal properties coming under Article 1, Section 8, Clause 17 of the U.S. Constitution)? The answer is NO! Therefore, the term "United States" can only mean the "federal zone" within the context of the entire Internal Revenue Code as per U.S.

1 v. Spelar, 338 U.S. 217 at 222 (1949). We have no choice, as per the rulings of the Supreme Court, to reach any other
 2 conclusion. We wish to emphasize, however, that there are exceptions to this rule, as found in 26 U.S.C. §3121 and [26 U.S.C.
 3 §4612](#). These sections redefine the term “United States” within selected portions of the code and for special purposes related
 4 to excise taxes and FICA taxes. We therefore must conclude that the income tax, by default and absent an alternate or
 5 substitute definition of “United States”, only applies in the District of Columbia and other portions of the federal zone, based
 6 on the definitions above. The only exceptions to this conclusion are those portions of the Internal Revenue Code which use
 7 another definition of the term “United States”. 40 U.S.C. §3112 puts the nail in the coffin on this issue, in defining the extent
 8 of criminal jurisdiction of the “United States**” government:

9 TITLE 40 > SUBTITLE II > PART A > CHAPTER 31 > SUBCHAPTER II > § 3112
 10 § 3112. Federal jurisdiction

11 (a) Exclusive Jurisdiction Not Required.— It is not required that the Federal Government obtain exclusive
 12 jurisdiction in the United States over land or an interest in land it acquires.

13 (b) Acquisition and Acceptance of Jurisdiction.— When the head of a department, agency, or independent
 14 establishment of the Government, or other authorized officer of the department, agency, or independent
 15 establishment, considers it desirable, that individual may accept or secure, from the State in which land or an
 16 interest in land that is under the immediate jurisdiction, custody, or control of the individual is situated, consent
 17 to, or cession of, any jurisdiction over the land or interest not previously obtained. The individual shall indicate
 18 acceptance of jurisdiction on behalf of the Government by filing a notice of acceptance with the Governor of the 19 State or in another manner prescribed by the laws of the State where the land is situated.

20 (c) Presumption.— It is conclusively presumed that jurisdiction has not been accepted until the Government
 21 accepts jurisdiction over land as provided in this section.

22 Don't confuse yourself. The above use of the word “State” is different from that in Title 26, the I.R.C. It means the states of
 23 the Union and not the federal States. If you electronically search all of Title 40 as we have, you will not find a definition of 24 “State” that applies to the above statute because they simply DO NOT want you knowing what it is and do not want to draw
 25 attention to the distinction between “federal States” and “Union states”! However, a definition that helps clarify what it
 26 means is found in 40 U.S.C. §1314:

27 TITLE 40 > CHAPTER 4 > Sec. 1314.
 28 Sec. 1314. - Easements

29 (a) Definitions.— In this section—

30 (3) State.— The term “State” means a State of the United States, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, and the 31 territories and possessions of the United States.

32 So there you have it right from the deceitful horse's mouth in 40 U.S.C. §3112 above! The United States government admits
 33 in its own laws that it does not have territorial jurisdiction over any land within the states of the union not explicitly ceded
 34 to it in writing by the state. The territorial jurisdiction we refer to is that relating to “Acts of Congress” and federal statutes,
 35 such as the Internal Revenue Code and the Title 18 Criminal code.

36 “A canon of construction which teaches that of Congress, unless a contrary intent appears, is meant to apply
 37 only within the territorial jurisdiction of the United States.”
 38 [U.S. v. Spelar, 338 U.S. 217 at 222 (1949)]

39 This includes jurisdiction to impose federal income taxes under Subtitles A, B, and C! Note that Subtitles D and E use a
 40 different definition of United States because they do apply throughout the country rather than just inside the federal zone or 41 abroad. Why then, based on these conclusions, would the federal government have any jurisdiction over your private property
 42 or residence within a state, which also was never ceded to the federal government in writing? Worse yet, why would they 43 have any jurisdiction over you if you weren't a U.S. citizen and were instead a “national”? The answer is the U.S.
 44 government's jurisdiction inside the states of the Union on land outside the federal zone doesn't exist, other than to regulate 45 and tax foreign commerce under Subtitles D and E of the Internal Revenue Code! Only the states have territorial jurisdiction 46 there.

47 Another issue to consider is deciding whether “United States” means the “District of Columbia” or the “federal zone” is the 48 definition of the term “employee” we will talk about later in section 5.2.19. Here's the definition from 26 C.F.R. §31.3401\(c\) 49 ):

26 C.F.R. §31.3401(c) Employee:

"...the term [employee] includes officers and employees, whether elected or appointed, of the United States, a [federal] State, Territory, Puerto Rico or any political subdivision, thereof, or the District of Columbia, or any agency or instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing. The term 'employee' also includes an officer of a corporation."

Here's what the code says about such officer "employees", and note that they all work only in the District of Columbia:

United States Code
TITLE 4 - FLAG AND SEAL, SEAT OF GOVERNMENT, AND THE STATES
CHAPTER 3 - SEAT OF THE GOVERNMENT
§ 72. Public offices; at seat of government.

All offices attached to the seat of government shall be exercised in the District of Columbia, and not elsewhere, except as otherwise expressly provided by law.

Another reason that the term "United States" found in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) cannot mean areas outside the federal zone are the following two portions of the Constitution of the United States of America:

Article 1, Section 9, Clause 5:

"No Tax or Duty shall be laid on Articles exported from any State."

To tax wages earned from interstate commerce or exporting from a State to a foreign country would amount to an indirect duty on exports in violation of the above clause of the Constitution.

Getting back to the Buck Act of 1940 and these federal "States", the question is, are the 50 sovereign "states" possessions or territories of the "United States**". The answer is emphatically NO. The 50 "states" of the United States of America are sovereign and are foreign jurisdictions with respect to the federal government and with respect to each other, as shown below:

Foreign States: "Nations outside of the United States...Term may also refer to another state; i.e. a sister state. The term 'foreign nations', ...should be construed to mean all nations and states other than that in which the action is brought; and hence, one state of the Union is foreign to another, in that sense."
[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 648]

Foreign Laws: "The laws of a foreign country or sister state."
[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 647]

As we read the above, we should recognize that what makes the federal and the state governments "foreign" with respect to each other is that they are mutually exclusive territorial jurisdictions and each have sovereignty within their respective territories. Because they are mutually exclusive territorial jurisdictions, that is why the U.S. Constitution requires the states to collect taxes for the federal government through apportionment in 1:9:4 and 1:2:3. Thomas Jefferson confirmed this

"With respect to our State and federal governments, I do not think their relations are correctly understood by foreigners. They generally suppose the former subordinate to the latter. But this is not the case. They are coordinate departments of one simple and integral whole. To the State governments are reserved all legislative and administration, in affairs which concern their own citizens only, and to the federal government is given whatever concerns foreigners, or the citizens of the other States; these functions alone being made federal. The one is domestic, the other the foreign branch of the same government; neither having control over the other, but within its own department."
[Thomas Jefferson, "Writing of Thomas Jefferson" pub by Taylor & Maury, Washington DC, 1854, quote number VII 355-61, from correspondence to Major John Cartwright, June 5, 1824.]

The above conclusions of Thomas Jefferson are no accident. The U.S. Supreme Court very eloquently described why we have such a separation of powers between the federal and state governments and why they must be foreign with respect to each other in the case of U.S. v. Lopez, 514 U.S. 549 (1995):

We start with first principles. The Constitution creates a Federal Government of enumerated powers. See U.S. Const., Art. I, 8. As James Madison wrote, "[t]he powers delegated by the proposed Constitution to the federal government are few and defined. Those which are to remain in the State governments are numerous and indefinite." The Federalist No. 45, pp. 292-293 (C. Rossiter ed. 1961). This constitutionally mandated division of authority "was adopted by the Framers to ensure protection of our fundamental liberties." Gregory v.

Ashcroft, 501 U.S. 452, 458 (1991) (internal quotation marks omitted). "Just as the separation and independence of the coordinate branches of the Federal Government serves to prevent the accumulation of excessive power in any one branch, a healthy balance of power between the States and the Federal Government will reduce the risk of tyranny and abuse from either front." Ibid.
[U.S. v. Lopez, 514 U.S. 549 (1995)]

Therefore, the Internal Revenue Code Subtitles A through C DOES NOT apply to you, as these subtitles are a municipal tax that applies only on federal property and to persons domiciled on federal property but situated outside of federal property. I.R.C., Subtitle A has territorial jurisdiction only within the District of Columbia and other federal possessions, territories, and federal enclaves within the sovereign states and hereafter referred to as the "federal zone". This is no accident, but is a direct result of the restrictions imposed on the U.S. Government in Article 1, Section 8, Clauses 1 and 3 of the U.S. Constitution. The Federalist Paper No. 36 drafted by the founding fathers confirms the limited ability of the federal government to tax individuals within the borders of the sovereign states:

"The more intelligent adversaries of the new Constitution admit the force of this reasoning; but they qualify their admission by a distinction between what they call INTERNAL and EXTERNAL taxation. The former they would reserve to the State governments; the latter, which they explain into commercial imposts, or rather duties on imported articles, they declare themselves willing to concede to the federal head."
[Alexander Hamilton, Federalist Paper #36]

Even if the IRS wants to assert that you are a statutory "citizen of the [federal] United States**" under 8 U.S.C. §1401 (which most people are not because they were not born or naturalized inside the federal zone in an area subject to the exclusive sovereignty of the U.S. government and are not domiciled there), they will still not be able to extend the jurisdiction of the federal courts or their taxing authority under Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A beyond the boundaries of the federal zone and foreign lands for the purposes of the Internal Revenue Code because of the above limitations. Incidentally, have you ever asked yourself what Subtitles A through C of the Revenue Code is Internal TO? They are Internal to the federal zone/United States**! This may have something to do with why the Internal Revenue Code was never enacted into positive law and still stands only as prima facie evidence of law or special/municipal/private law.. because it has no effect on persons domiciled in the 50 Union states or outside of the federal zone anyway! Of course, if you receive federal payments as a foreign person, the government can withhold taxes from that, but they can't apply the I.R.C., Subtitle A to nonresident persons. The more correct way to refer to yourself is not as a "resident or citizen of the United States**", both of whom have domicile in the federal zone, but as an American Nationals or natural born constitutional (but not statutory) Citizen of a state of the United States of America, which DOES NOT include the District of Columbia or the federal zone. You are a "non-resident non-persons" with respect to the foreign jurisdiction of the United States Internal Revenue Code!

For those of you who STILL don't believe that the "United States**" found in the Internal Revenue Code does NOT include areas outside of the federal zone, one of our readers (thanks Bob Conlon!) did an exhaustive and scholarly study of the I.R.C. at the following web address using their search engine:

<https://www.law.cornell.edu/uscode/text/26/subtitle-A/chapter-1>

Based on his findings, the definition of "United States" (sec.3121) that does not explicitly reference the 50 Union states is used in 29 different sections of the Internal Revenue Code (other than its own definition), however the definition that DOES explicitly refer as the "United States" to mean the 50 Union states, section 4612, is only used 3 times in the whole of TITLE 26, and the cases where it is used refer to excise taxes on gasoline!!!

It appears that all the sections that have to do with income tax, self-employment tax, etc. refer to 3121 AND NOT 4612. This is obviously done to obfuscate and confuse and to cause presumption, but the definition is clear as section 4612 will illustrate. It says :

Title 26
Subtitle D-Miscellaneous Excise Taxes
Chapter 38-Environmental Taxes
Subchapter A- Tax on Petroleum
26 U.S.C. Sec. 4612\(a\)\(4\) - United States

(A) In general

The term "United States" means the 50 States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, any possession of the United States, the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, and the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands

United States Code
 TITLE 26 - INTERNAL REVENUE CODE
 Subtitle C - Employment Taxes
 CHAPTER 21 - FEDERAL INSURANCE CONTRIBUTIONS ACT
 Subchapter C - General Provisions
26 U.S.C. Sec. 3121(e)(2) - United States

The term "United States" when used in a geographical sense includes the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, Guam, and American Samoa. An individual who is a citizen of the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico (but not otherwise a citizen of the United States) shall be considered, for purposes of this section, as a citizen of the United States.

Based on the above two definitions, it ought to be clear that Congress knows exactly how to define the term "United States" to include the 50 Union states when they want to, and that if they really meant the 50 Union states in section 3121, they would have said exactly that and eliminated this section and referred to section 4612 instead, BUT THEY DIDN'T by choice and would rather keep you guessing!

Below are the 'hits' our reader found for both sections 3121 and 4612 of the Internal Revenue Code (Title 26) and each gives the number of times references are made to each of the two definitions in all the code sections where these sections were referenced within the I.R.C. This research has made it very clear that if one doesn't live in a federal area but instead in nonfederal areas of the 50 Union states, no Subtitle A income tax or Subtitle C FICA tax liability exists!

1 As we look at the above table, we should realize that the ONLY source of Congressional jurisdiction to tax derives from
2 Article 1, Section 8, Clauses 1 and 3 of the Constitution, which state:

3 Art. 1, Sect. 8, Clause 1: The Congress shall have Power To lay and collect Taxes, Duties, Imposts and Excises,
4 *to pay the Debts and provide for the common Defence and general Welfare of the United States; but all Duties,
5 Imposts and Excises shall be uniform throughout the United States;

6 Art. 1, Sect. 8, Clause 3: To regulate Commerce with foreign Nations, and among the several States, and with 7 the Indian Tribes;

8 Now if we look at the last sentence in 1:8:1 of the Constitution and then we consider that graduated income taxes are NOT
9 uniform throughout the United States**, but instead are highly non-uniform and most oppressive on the rich, then the 10 graduated income tax instituted on nonresident alien individuals with income "effectively connected with a trade or business
11 in the United States" referenced in 26 U.S.C. §871(b) would be unconstitutional if the definition of "United States" meant
12 the 50 Union states or the nonfederal areas of the states! Remember, however, the meaning of "trade or business" from 13 section 3.12.1.22, which is a "word of art" that really means the holding of "public office" in the U.S. federal government!
14 The only persons who really fit the description of "trade or business" in the U.S. are those who elect or volunteer to be treated
15 that way. No one else really fits that description because Congressmen conveniently excluded their wages from the definition
16 of "wages" found in 26 U.S.C. §3401(a). Hypocrites!

Moving our discussion along, 26 U.S.C. §871(a) applies a 30% flat UNIFORM tax on income not connected with a U.S. business that is derived from U.S.** sources (in this case, the federal government). This tax applies to corporations with income originating within the territorial jurisdiction of the federal government, which is only within the federal zone or to persons domiciled in the federal zone but temporarily abroad for Subtitle A taxes as per 40 U.S.C. §3112. Try to explain that one away. The U.S. supreme Court agreed that taxes that were not uniform throughout the "United States" were unconstitutional outside of the federal United States in the landmark case of Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co., 157 U.S. 429, 158 U.S. 601 (1895):

"...the law is invalid, because imposing indirect taxes in violation of the constitutional requirement of uniformity, and therein also in violation of the implied limitation upon taxation that all tax laws must apply equally, impartially, and uniformly to all similarly situated. Under the second head, it is contended that the rule of uniformity is violated, in that the law taxes the income of certain corporations, companies, and associations, no matter how created or organized, at a higher rate than the incomes of individuals or partnerships derived from precisely similar property or business; in that it exempts from the operation of the act and from the burden of taxation numerous corporations, companies, and associations having similar property and carrying on similar business to those expressly taxed; in that it denies to individuals deriving their income from shares in certain corporations, companies, and associations the benefit of the exemption of $ 4,000 granted to other persons interested in similar property and business; in the exemption of $4,000; in the exemption of building and loan associations, savings banks, mutual life, fire, marine, and accident insurance companies, existing solely for the pecuniary profit of their members,-these and other exemptions being alleged to be purely arbitrary and capricious, justified by no public purpose, and of such magnitude as to invalidate the entire enactment; and in other particulars."
[Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co., 157 U.S. 429, 158 U.S. 601 (1895)]

Here are a few more examples of constitutional, UNIFORM taxes imposed on people living outside the "United States" (the federal zone), and ALL of them are exactly 30% and are not graduated:

26 U.S.C. Sec. 881. Tax on income of foreign corporations not connected with United States business

26 U.S.C. Sec. 1441. Withholding of tax on nonresident aliens

26 U.S.C. Sec. 1442. Withholding of tax on foreign corporations

The authority to regulate commerce defined in 1:8:1 of the U.S. Constitution implies the authority to tax that commerce, but the only tax authorized on income in that part of the constitution are excise or privilege taxes based on privileges received from the federal government by public officers of the U.S.** government or U.S.** registered corporations (not state corporations). This excludes the vast majority of Americans and businesses, and the IRS and the Congress are loath to admit this.

5.2.12.2 Meaning of "resident" within the I.R.C.

Most people falsely PRESUME that the word "resident" within the Internal Revenue Code is associated with a geographic place. This presumption is false because:

1. The word "resident" is nowhere associated with a geographic place within the I.R.C. It is therefore a violation of due process of law to PRESUME that it is.
2. As we repeatedly point out in the following document, the I.R.C., Subtitles A through C are a franchise, and that all franchises are contracts or agreements:

The "Trade or Business" Scam, Form #05.001

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

3. There is a maxim of law that debt and contract are independent of place.

Debitum et contractus non sunt nullius loci.

Debt and contract [franchise agreement, in this case] are of no particular place.

Locus contractus regit actum.

26 C.F.R. §301.7701-5 Domestic, foreign, resident, and nonresident persons.

A domestic corporation is one organized or created in the United States, including only the States (and during the periods when not States, the Territories of Alaska and Hawaii), and the District of Columbia, or under the law of the United States or of any State or Territory. A foreign corporation is one which is not domestic. A domestic corporation is a resident corporation even though it does no business and owns no property in the United States. A foreign corporation engaged in trade or business within the United States is referred to in the regulations in this chapter as a resident foreign corporation, and a foreign corporation not engaged in trade or business within the United States, as a nonresident foreign corporation. A partnership engaged in trade or business within the United States is referred to in the regulations in this chapter as a resident partnership, and a partnership not engaged in trade or business within the United States, as a nonresident partnership. Whether a partnership is to be regarded as resident or nonresident is not determined by the nationality or residence of its members or by the place in which it was created or organized.

[SOURCE: <http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/CitesByTopic/Resident-26cfr301.7701-5.pdf>]

Notice the language above:

"Whether a partnership is to be regarded as resident or nonresident is not determined by the nationality or residence of its members or by the place in which it was created or organized."

This is a tacit admission that the status of BEING a "resident" has nothing to do with a geographic place and instead is a FRANCHISE STATUS which is created by the coincidence of the grant of a "congressionally created right" or "public right" AND your consent to adopt the status and franchise PRIVILEGES associated with that public right or privilege.

Therefore, the ONLY way one can be a statutory "resident" is to be LAWFULLY engaged in a statutory "trade or business", which is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) as "the functions of a public office".

TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > § 7701
§ 7701. Definitions

(a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof—

(26) Trade or business

"The term 'trade or business' includes the performance of the functions of a public office."

Why do they do this? Because ALL PUBLIC OFFICES are domiciled in the District of Columbia:

TITLE 4 > CHAPTER 3 > § 72
Sec. 72. - Public offices; at seat of Government

All offices attached to the seat of government shall be exercised in the District of Columbia, and not elsewhere, except as otherwise expressly provided by law

Hence, by being associated with a public office, your legal identity is legally kidnapped under the authority of Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b) and transported to the District of Columbia, which in turn is the ONLY place expressly included in the definition of "United States" within the Internal Revenue Code.

TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > Sec. 7701. [Internal Revenue Code]
Sec. 7701. - Definitions

(a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof—

(9) United States

The term "United States" when used in a geographical sense includes only the States and the District of Columbia.

(10) State

1 The term "State" shall be construed to include the District of Columbia, where such construction is necessary to
2 carry out provisions of this title.

3 Pursuant to the rules of statutory construction, that which is not EXPRESSLY included must be conclusively presumed to be
4 purposefully excluded. Hence, states of the Union are purposefully excluded from being within the "United States" in a
5 geographic sense:

6 "Expressio unius est exclusio alterius. A maxim of statutory interpretation meaning that the expression of one
7 thing is the exclusion of another. Burgin v. Forbes, 293 Ky. 456, 169 S.W.2d. 321, 325; Newblock v. Bowles,
8 170 Okl. 487, 40 P.2d. 1097, 1100. Mention of one thing implies exclusion of another. When certain persons or
9 things are specified in a law, contract, or will, an intention to exclude all others from its operation may be
10 inferred. Under this maxim, if statute specifies one exception to a general rule or assumes to specify the effects
11 of a certain provision, other exceptions or effects are excluded."
12 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 581]

13 Note that all income taxes are based upon domicile, as in the case of the I.R.C., Subtitle A through C "income tax". However,
14 the domicile is INDIRECT rather than direct. The PUBLIC OFFICE is the thing domiciled in the Federal Zone and not the
15 human being filling it, who can geographically be a "nonresident".

16 The other noteworthy thing about this SCAM is that the 26 C.F.R. §301.7701-5 regulation cited above encompasses ALL
17 "persons" within the I.R.C., and NOT just corporations and partnerships. It expressly mentions only corporations and
18 partnerships, but in fact, these ARE the only entities EXPRESSLY included within the definition of "person" for the purposes
19 of BOTH civil AND criminal jurisdiction of the I.R.C., and hence, describes ALL "persons" within the I.R.C.

20 TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 68 > Subchapter B > PART I > § 6671
21 § 6671. Rules for application of assessable penalties

22 (b) Person defined

23 The term "person", as used in this subchapter, includes an officer or employee of a corporation, or a member
24 or employee of a partnership, who as such officer, employee, or member is under a duty to perform the act in 25 respect of which the violation occurs.
26

27 TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 75 > Subchapter D > § 7343
28 §7343. Definition of term "person"

29 The term "person" as used in this chapter includes an officer or employee of a corporation, or a member or
30 employee of a partnership, who as such officer, employee, or member is under a duty to perform the act in respect
31 of which the violation occurs.

32 Why do they mention "partnerships" in the above definition? Because whenever you consent to occupy a public office in the 33 U.S. government, a partnership is formed between the otherwise PRIVATE HUMAN BEING and the PUBLIC OFFICE that
34 the person fills. THAT partnership is how the legal statutory "person" who is the proper subject of the I.R.C. is lawfully
35 created. The problem, however, is that you CANNOT lawfully elect yourself into a public office, even with your consent.
36 In order for a lawful election or appointment must occur, you must take a lawful oath, and only THEN can one become a
37 lawful public office. If there is a deviation from this procedure for creating public offices, a crime has been committed 38 pursuant to 18 U.S.C. §912.

39 TITLE 18 > PART I > CHAPTER 43 > § 912
40 § 912. Officer or employee of the United States

41 Whoever falsely assumes or pretends to be an officer or employee acting under the authority of the United States
42 or any department, agency or officer thereof, and acts as such, or in such pretended character demands or obtains
43 any money, paper, document, or thing of value, shall be fined under this title or imprisoned not more than three 44 years, or both.

45 Another important implication is that anyone who PRESUMES you are a "resident" is effectively "electing" you into a public
46 office. If you don't object to that usually false presumption, then a cage is reserved for you on the federal corporate plantation
47 in the District of Criminals. We call this "theft and kidnapping by presumption".

1 Finally, don't go searching for the 26 C.F.R. §301.7701-5 regulation indicated in the CURRENT Code of Federal Regulations.
 2 As soon as we pointed it out on our website, it was conveniently HID and replaced with a temporary regulation. Now you
 3 know WHY it was hid. You will have to go back to the historical versions of the regulations to find it, so please don't contact
 4 us to tell us you can't find it. THEY HID IT to protect their CRIMINAL racketeering enterprise. Would you expect anything
 5 less when you create a Babylon corporation in the District of Criminals, turn it into a haven for financial terrorists, and put
 6 CRIMINALS in charge of writing laws that only protect them and which are designed to SCREW you?

7 5.2.12.3 How States of the Union are illegally treated as statutory "States" under federal law

8 By default, states of the Union mentioned in the Constitution:

- 9 1. Are sovereign and legislatively foreign in respect to federal legislative jurisdiction.
- 10 2. Are not subject to federal civil or criminal law.
- 11 3. Function in nearly every particular as independent nations under the law of nations.

12 The above facts are covered further in the next section. Like any other legal entity or "person", however, a state of the Union
 13 can make themselves subject to private foreign law by exercising their right to contract with an otherwise foreign entity. This
 14 process of contracting operates under equity and in that capacity, the state behaves as the equivalent of a private person
 15 contracting with other private persons:

16 When a State engages in ordinary commercial ventures, it acts like a private person, outside the area of its 17 "core" responsibilities, and in a way unlikely to prove essential to the fulfillment of a basic governmental
 18 obligation. A Congress that decides to regulate those state commercial activities rather than to exempt the State
 19 likely believes that an exemption, by treating the State differently from identically situated private persons,
 20 would threaten the objectives of a federal regulatory program aimed primarily at private conduct. Compare,
 21 e.g., 12 U.S.C. §1841(b) (1994 ed., Supp. III) (exempting state companies from regulations covering federal bank 22 holding companies); 15 U.S.C. §77c(a)(2) (exempting state-issued securities from federal securities laws); and 23 29 U.S.C. §652(5) (exempting States from the definition of "employer[s]" subject to federal occupational safety
 24 and health laws), with 11 U.S.C. §106(a) (subjecting States to federal bankruptcy court judgments); 15 U.S.C.
 25 §1122(a) (subjecting States to suit for violation of Lanham Act); 17 U.S.C. §511(a) (subjecting States to suit for 26 copyright infringement); 35 U.S.C. §271(h) (subjecting States to suit for patent infringement). And a Congress
 27 that includes the State not only within its substantive regulatory rules but also (expressly) within a related system
 28 of private remedies likely believes that a remedial exemption would similarly threaten that program. See Florida
 29 Prepaid Postsecondary Ed. Expense Bd. v. College Savings Bank, ante, at ___ (Stevens, J., dissenting). It 30 thereby avoids an enforcement gap which, when allied with the pressures of a competitive marketplace, could 31 place the State's regulated private competitors at a significant disadvantage.

32 These considerations make Congress' need to possess the power to condition entry into the market upon a waiver
 33 of sovereign immunity (as "necessary and proper" to the exercise of its commerce power) unusually strong, for 34 to deny Congress that power would deny Congress the power effectively to regulate private conduct. Cf.
 35 California v. Taylor, 353 U.S. 553, 566 (1957). At the same time they make a State's need to exercise sovereign
 36 immunity unusually weak, for the State is unlikely to have to supply what private firms already supply, nor may 37 it fairly demand special treatment, even to protect the public purse, when it does so. Neither can one easily
 38 imagine what the Constitution's founders would have thought about the assertion of sovereign immunity in this
 39 special context. These considerations, differing in kind or degree from those that would support a general
 40 congressional "abrogation" power, indicate that Parden's holding is sound, irrespective of this Court's decisions
 41 in Seminole Tribe of Fla. v. Florida, 517 U.S. 44 (1996), and Alden v. Maine, ante, p. ____.
 42 [College Savings Bank v. Florida Prepaid Postsecondary Education Expense, 527 U.S. 666 (1999)]

43 Notice the above statement:

44 These considerations make Congress' need to possess the power to condition entry into the market upon a
 45 waiver of sovereign immunity (as "necessary and proper" to the exercise of its commerce power) unusually 46 strong, for to deny Congress that power would deny Congress the power effectively to regulate private conduct.
 47 Cf. California v. Taylor, 353 U.S. 553, 566 (1957).

48 The U.S. Congress has the right to regulate foreign or interstate commerce, regardless of whether it is a constitutional state
 49 engaging in the commerce or simply a private human being or business. Therefore, only after a sovereignty such as a
 50 Constitutional state government contracts as the equivalent of a private party in commerce can it become a "person" under 51 the contract or franchise that it consented to. That waiver of sovereignty and sovereign immunity is mandated by the Foreign 52 Sovereign Immunities Act (F.S.I.A.), which says in pertinent part:

53 TITLE 28 > PART IV > CHAPTER 97 > § 1605

§1605. General exceptions to the jurisdictional immunity of a foreign state

(a) A foreign state shall not be immune from the jurisdiction of courts of the United States or of the States in any case—

(2) in which the action is based upon a commercial activity carried on in the United States by the foreign state; or upon an act performed in the United States in connection with a commercial activity of the foreign state elsewhere; or upon an act outside the territory of the United States in connection with a commercial activity of the foreign state elsewhere and that act causes a direct effect in the United States;

That process of consent can only be in relation to a private party because it cannot lawfully do any of the following without violating the separation of powers doctrine:

1. Agree to be treated as a federal territory or statutory "State".
2. Contract away its sovereignty to the national government.

No doubt, a state of the Union may procure a formerly private business or create a business of its own that engages in interstate commerce and thereby become subject to federal regulation, but they can do so only indirectly as the equivalent of a private party on the same footing as every other private party engaging in regulated activity. And in that capacity, they are a private person and not a statutory "State" under federal law.

Ordinarily, when the federal government is legislating for constitutional states, it uses the phrase "several States" just as it is used in the Constitution itself. Here are some examples:

United States Constitution
Article IV, Section 2

The Citizens of each State shall be entitled to all Privileges and Immunities of Citizens in the several States.

TITLE 1 > CHAPTER 3 > § 204
§ 204. Codes and Supplements as evidence of the laws of United States and District of Columbia; citation of Codes and Supplements

In all courts, tribunals, and public offices of the United States, at home or abroad, of the District of Columbia, and of each State, Territory, or insular possession of the United States—

(a) United States Code.— The matter set forth in the edition of the Code of Laws of the United States current at any time shall, together with the then current supplement, if any, establish prima facie the laws of the United States, general and permanent in their nature, in force on the day preceding the commencement of the session following the last session the legislation of which is included: Provided, however, That whenever titles of such Code shall have been enacted into positive law the text thereof shall be legal evidence of the laws therein contained, in all the courts of the United States, the several States, and the Territories and insular possessions of the United States.

On the other hand, when the U.S. Congress wants to legislate for federal territories and possessions, it uses the term "the States" rather than "the SEVERAL States":

TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > Sec. 7701. [Internal Revenue Code]
Sec. 7701. - Definitions

(a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof—

(9) United States

The term "United States" when used in a geographical sense includes only the States and the District of Columbia.

20 C.F.R. §422.404.2
Social Security

(6) United States, when used in a geographical sense, includes, unless otherwise indicated:

(i) The States,

(ii) The Territories of Alaska and Hawaii prior to January 3, 1959, and August 21, 1959, respectively, when they acquired statehood,

(iii) The District of Columbia,

(iv) The Virgin Islands,

(v) The Commonwealth of Puerto Rico effective January 1, 1951, (vi) Guam and American Samoa, effective September 13, 1960, generally, and for purposes of sections 210(a) and 211 of the Act, effective after 1960 with respect to service performed after 1960, and effective for taxable years beginning after 1960 with respect to crediting net earnings from self-employment and self-employment income, and

(vii) The Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands effective January 1, 1987.

We allege that a violation of due process of law, a violation of the separation of powers, and treason on the part of the judge has occurred when any Court:

1. Includes constitutional states of the Union operating in the PUBLIC capacity as GOVERNMENTS within the statutory definition of:
  - 1.1. "State" within any act of Congress.
  - 1.2. "the States" within any act of Congress. See 4 U.S.C. §110(d).
2. Treats a constitutional State as a statutory "State" under federal law under the auspices of the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act as indicated above. Instead, they must be treated as a private "person" and NOT a statutory "State", which is the equivalent of a federal territory.
3. Imputes a different meaning or class of things to the plural "States" or "the States" than it does to the definition of the singular version of "State". For instance, 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(10) defines "State" as the District of Columbia and does not define the plural but includes the plural within the definition of "United States" in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9). It is a rule of statutory construction that the plural cannot have a different meaning than the similar:

[TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > Sec. 7701. \[Internal Revenue Code\]](#)
Sec. 7701. - Definitions

(a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof—

(9) United States

The term "United States" when used in a geographical sense includes only the States and the District of Columbia.

(10) State

The term "State" shall be construed to include the District of Columbia, where such construction is necessary to carry out provisions of this title.

What judges seem to like to do to unconstitutionally expand their jurisdiction is to use the word "includes" as a means to add anything they want to the definition of a term, but this clearly violates the rules of statutory construction, due process of law, and the separation of powers doctrine:

"It is apparent that a constitutional prohibition cannot be transgressed indirectly by the creation of a statutory presumption any more than it can be violated by direct enactment. The power to create presumptions is not a means of escape from constitutional restrictions."

[Bailey v. Alabama, 219 U.S. 219 (1911)]

*"Expressio unius est exclusio alterius. A maxim of statutory interpretation meaning that the expression of one thing is the exclusion of another. Burgin v. Forbes, 293 Ky. 456, 169 S.W.2d. 321, 325; Newblock v. Bowles, 170 Okl. 487, 40 P.2d. 1097, 1100. Mention of one thing implies exclusion of another. When certain persons or things are specified in a law, contract, or will, an intention to exclude all others from its operation may be inferred. Under this maxim, if statute specifies one exception to a general rule or assumes to specify the effects of a certain provision, other exceptions or effects are excluded."*

[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 581]

"When a statute includes an explicit definition, we must follow that definition, even if it varies from that term's ordinary meaning. Meese v. Keene, 481 U.S. 465, 484-485 (1987) ("It is axiomatic that the statutory definition of the term excludes unstated meanings of that term"); Colautti v. Franklin, 439 U.S. at 392-393, n. 10 ("As a rule, 'a definition which declares what a term 'means' . . . excludes any meaning that is not stated"); Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Lenroot, 323 U.S. 490, 502 (1945); Fox v. Standard Oil Co. of N.J., 294 U.S. 87, 95-96 (1935) (Cardozo, J.); see also 2A N. Singer, Sutherland on Statutes and Statutory Construction § 47.07, p. 152, and n. 10 (5th ed. 1992) (collecting cases). That is to say, the statute, read "as a whole," post at 998 [530 U.S. 943] (THOMAS, J., dissenting), leads the reader to a definition. That definition does not include the Attorney General's restriction -- "the child up to the head." Its words, "substantial portion," indicate the contrary." [Stenberg v. Carhart, 530 U.S. 914 (2000)]

Any judge who violates these rules and tries to include a constitutional state into a statutory State under federal law ought to be called on it, because he/she is clearly:

1. Exceeding his/her delegated authority.
2. Legislating from the bench by adding to the definition of words. This violates the separation of powers between the Judicial Branch and the Legislative Branch.
3. Violating the separation of powers doctrine between the states and the federal government. See:

Government Conspiracy to Destroy the Separation of Powers, Form #05.023

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

4. Engaging in a conspiracy to destroy your Constitutional rights. The MAIN purpose of the separation of powers is to protect your constitutional rights. Disregarding it is a violation of rights.

"We start with first principles. The Constitution creates a Federal Government of enumerated powers. See U.S. Const., Art. I, § 8. As James Madison wrote, "[t]he powers delegated by the proposed Constitution to the federal government are few and defined. Those which are to remain in the State governments are numerous and indefinite." The Federalist No. 45, pp. 292-293 (C. Rossiter ed. 1961). This constitutionally mandated division of authority "was adopted by the Framers to ensure protection of our fundamental liberties." Gregory v. Ashcroft, 501 U.S. 452, 458 (1991) (internal quotation marks omitted). "Just as the separation and independence of the coordinate branches of the Federal Government serves to prevent the accumulation of excessive power in any one branch, a healthy balance of power between the States and the Federal Government will reduce the risk of tyranny and abuse from either front." Ibid. " [U.S. v. Lopez, 514 U.S. 549 (1995)]

5. Violating due process of law by making false presumptions and depriving other litigants of the EQUAL right to presume what IS NOT included in the definition.

We end this section with a comparison between STATUTORY states under federal law and CONSTITUTIONAL states under the United States Constitution. They are NOT the same and no federal or state judge can lawfully make them the same without committing a crime!

5.2.12.4 Meaning of "United States" within IRS Publications: The GOVERNMENT and not a geographical place

Even within federal territories and possessions such as Puerto Rico and American Samoa, IRS Publication 519 describes the following requirements:

"Bona Fide Residents of American Samoa or Puerto Rico"

If you are a nonresident alien who is a bona fide resident of American Samoa or Puerto Rico for the entire tax year, you generally are taxed the same as resident aliens. You should file Form 1040 and report all income from sources both in and outside the United States. However, you can exclude the income discussed in the following paragraphs.

For tax purposes other than reporting income, however, you will be treated as a nonresident alien.

[ . . . ]

Residents of Puerto Rico.

If you are a bona fide resident of Puerto Rico for the entire tax year, you can exclude from gross income all income from sources in Puerto Rico (other than amounts for service performed as an employee of the United States or any of its agencies).

[ . . . ]

Residents of American Samoa.

If you are a bona fide resident of American Samoa for the entire year, you can exclude from gross income all income from sources in American Samoa (other than amounts for services performed as an employee of the U.S. government or any of its agencies).

[IRS Publication 519 (2009), pp. 33-34]

Based on the above, the following conclusions are inevitable and are the ONLY thing that is entirely consistent with the I.R.C., all the court cases we have read, and the I.R.S. publications in their entirety:

1. Those domiciled in Puerto Rico and American Samoa are statutory aliens under 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A).
2. Puerto Rico and American Samoa do not count as “sources within the United States” per 26 U.S.C. §861 except in the case of:

“ . . . amounts for service performed as an employee of the United States or any of its agencies ”

3. People domiciled in Puerto Rico and American Samoa are treated as:
  - 3.1. “Resident aliens” under 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A) for the purpose of reporting ONLY
  - 3.2. “Nonresident aliens” under 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B) for the purposes of tax returns.
 These territories are therefore NOT within the statutory “United States”.
4. Because taxation is limited to services performed as a statutory “employee” of the United States per 5 U.S.C. §2105(a) and 26 U.S.C. §3401(c) and EXCLUDES private earnings, then “sources within the United States” as identified in 26 U.S.C. §861 REALLY can only mean THE GOVERNMENT and not any geographic place. This is also consistent with 26 U.S.C. §864(c)(3):

TITLE 26 > Subtitle A > CHAPTER 1 > Subchapter N > PART I > § 864
§864. Definitions and special rules

(c) Effectively connected income, etc.

(3) Other income from sources within United States

All income, gain, or loss from sources within the United States (other than income, gain, or loss to which paragraph (2) applies) shall be treated as effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business within the United States.

The ONLY place where ALL earnings are connected with a public office and a statutory “trade or business” is the United States Government in the District of Columbia, and more particularly, among statutory “employees”, all of whom are identified in 5 U.S.C. §2105(a) as public officers by being called an “officer and individual”:

TITLE 5 > PART III > Subpart A > CHAPTER 21 > § 2105
§2105. Employee

(a) For the purpose of this title, “employee”, except as otherwise provided by this section or when specifically modified, means an officer and an individual who is—

- 1 5. "United States" is used in TWO senses within the I.R.C.: (1) The GEOGRAPHIC SENSE and (2) The
2 GOVERNMENT SENSE.
3 5.1. Not all senses of the term "United States" are defined in Title 26, but rather only one of the TWO senses, which is 4 the GEOGRAPHIC SENSE. The definitions at 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d) are, in 5 fact, a red herring and define only ONE of the two contexts.

6 TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > Sec. 7701. [Internal Revenue Code]
7 Sec. 7701. - Definitions

8 (a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent
9 thereof—

10 (9) United States

11 The term "United States" when used in a geographical sense includes only the States and the District of 12 Columbia.

13 (10) State

14 The term "State" shall be construed to include the District of Columbia, where such construction is necessary to 15 carry out provisions of this title.

- 16 5.2. If they identified exactly which of these two senses was intended for every use, their FRAUD would have to end
17 immediately. So they keep it quiet, leave undue discretion to judges to decide because of incomplete and vague
18 definitions, and abuse presumption and propaganda to expand their jurisdiction unlawfully.
19 5.3. The term "United States" as used within the phrase "sources within the United States" in 26 U.S.C. §861 is NOT
20 used in a GEOGRAPHIC SENSE found in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d), but rather in 21 the "GOVERNMENT" sense ONLY. Why? Because only earnings of government statutory "employees" or 22 instrumentalities acting as public officers are counted as taxable "gross income".
23 6. The term "the States" as used in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) really can only mean federal corporations that are part of the 24 U.S. government and not constitutional states of the Union. This is confirmed by:
25 6.1. The following holding of the U.S. Supreme Court, which confirms that "income" within the meaning of the 26 revenue laws means corporate profit:

27 "Income has been taken to mean the same thing as used in the Corporation Excise Tax Act of 1909 (36 Stat. 112)
28 in the 16th Amendment, and in the various revenue acts subsequently passed."
29 [Bowers v. Kerbaugh-Empire Co., 271 U.S. 170, 174, (1926) ]

- 30 6.2. The fact that Congress is forbidden by the U.S. Constitution from creating a state within a state or from enacting 31 civil legislation enforceable within the borders of a Constitutional but not statutory state per Article 4, Section 3, 32 Clause 1, or from treating states of the Union as either federal territories or statutory "States" within the meaning
33 of the I.R.C.

34 United States Constitution
35 Article 4: States Relations
36 Section 3.

37 New States may be admitted by the Congress into this Union; but no new State shall be formed or erected within
38 the Jurisdiction of any other State; nor any State be formed by the Junction of two or more States, or Parts of
39 States, without the Consent of the Legislatures of the States concerned as well as of the Congress.

- 40 6.3. The following holding of the U.S. Supreme Court, which confirms that federal territories and therefore statutory 41 "States" are all corporation franchises. Notice also that they define an "individual" as a "corporation sole", thus 42 implying that the "individual" within the I.R.C. is in fact a corporation sole.

43 At common law, a "corporation" was an "artificial perso[n] endowed with the legal capacity of perpetual
44 succession" consisting either of a single individual (termed a "corporation sole") or of a collection of several
45 individuals (a "corporation aggregate"). 3 H. Stephen, Commentaries on the Laws of England 166, 168 (1st Am.
46 ed. 1845). The sovereign was considered a corporation. See id., at 170; see also 1 W. Blackstone, Commentaries
47 *467. Under the definitions supplied by contemporary law dictionaries, Territories would have been classified
48 as "corporations" (and hence as "persons") at the time that 1983 was enacted and the Dictionary Act
49 recodified. See W. Anderson, A Dictionary of Law 261 (1893) ("All corporations were originally modeled upon a state or nation"); 1 J. Bouvier, A Law Dictionary Adapted to the Constitution and Laws of the United States of America 318-319 (11th ed. 1866) ("In this extensive sense the United States may be termed a corporation"); Van Brocklin v. Tennessee, 117 U.S. 151, 154 (1886) ("The United States is a . . . great corporation . . . ordained and established by the American people") (quoting United [495 U.S. 182, 202] States v. Maurice, 26 F. Cas. 1211, 1216 (No. 15,747) (CC Va. 1823) (Marshall, C. J.)); Cotton v. United States, 11 How. 229, 231 (1851) (United States is "a corporation"). See generally Trustees of Dartmouth College v. Woodward, 4 Wheat. 518, 561-562 (1819) (explaining history of term "corporation").

[Ngiraingas v. Sanchez, 495 U.S. 182 (1990)]

7. The statutory "citizen" or "resident" or "U.S. person" all are synonymous with the GOVERNMENT CORPORATION and NOT a human being. That corporation described in 28 U.S.C. §3002(15)(A) itself is a statutory but not constitutional "U.S. citizen", "U.S. resident", and "U.S. person".

"A corporation is a citizen, resident, or inhabitant of the state or country by or under the laws of which it was created, and of that state or country only."
[19 Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.), Corporations, §886 (2003)]

8. The term "United States" as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) must by implication be limited to ONLY those DOMICILED in the District of Columbia, WHEREVER physically situated. A person who is a "bona fide resident" of Puerto Rico or American Samoa, for instance, could not ALSO be a resident anywhere else because you can only have a DOMICILE in ONE PLACE at a time. Hence, they would not be domiciled within the statutory "United States".
9. The only real "taxpayer" is a public office in the U.S. government and not state government. It is THIS statutory "taxpayer" who is the REAL "person" and "individual" mentioned in the I.R.C. and NOT the public officer filling the office. The public officer is a "partner" with the public office and he/she/it represents this public office and "taxpayer" as a "transferee" when information returns are filed against the office or against the name of the officer. See 26 U.S.C. §§6901 and 6903.
10. Even in the case of "nonresident aliens" as described in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B), a domicile on federal territory is still involved in the case of the statutory "taxpayer". Why? Because the statutory "person" and "individual" being taxed is NOT the nonresident entity or human being, but the PUBLIC OFFICE filled by the entity through the "trade or business" franchise contract.<sup>42</sup> The PUBLIC OFFICE is domiciled on federal territory but the PUBLIC OFFICER is NOT. The PUBLIC OFFICER is surety for the PUBLIC OFFICE through the "trade or business" franchise contract. Hence, the tax is an indirect excise tax as repeatedly held by the U.S. Supreme Court.<sup>43</sup> 26 U.S.C. §6671(b) and 26 U.S.C. §7343 both confirm that the legal definition of "person" for the purpose of the I.R.C. is an "officer or employee of a corporation or partnership" who has a FIDUCIARY DUTY to the public and therefore is a public officer. The "partnership" they are referring to is the franchise partnership between the OFFICE and the OFFICER. The only way that fiduciary duty could be created is through a franchise contract or quasi-contract because it is otherwise illegal to punish someone for NOT doing something. This would be forbidden by the Thirteenth Amendment as "involuntary servitude".
11. Consent of the Human Being is required to turn that PRIVATE human being into a public officer and it is a crime in violation of 18 U.S.C. §912 to unilaterally elect yourself into public office by either signing a tax form or using a Taxpayer Identification Number when NOT actually occupying said public office created under the authority of Title 5 and not Title 26 of the U.S. Code.
12. The reader should also note that it is "nonresident alien INDIVIDUALS" made liable for tax returns in 26 C.F.R. §1.6012-1(b), and NOT "nonresident aliens" who are NOT "individuals". Hence:
- 12.1. "nonresident aliens" who are NOT statutory "Individuals" or "persons" are not engaged in the "trade or business" franchise.
- 12.2. "nonresident alien INDIVIDUALS" as described in 26 C.F.R. §1.6012-1(b) ARE public officers.
13. The word "INTERNAL" within the phrase "INTERNAL Revenue Service" means INTERNAL to the U.S. government corporation, and not INTERNAL to the geographical or statutory "United States".
14. The I.R.C., Subtitles A through C behaves as a public officer kickback program disguised to "look" like a legitimate income tax. The feds have never been able to regulate or tax private conduct and only have the authority to impose duties upon their own statutory "employees" without just compensation. Hence, through "words of art", presumption,

4 Consistent with the above, the following regulation betrays the above CONSTRUCTIVE FRAUD. Notice that what makes
 5 an entity “resident” is whether they are engaged in a public office and therefore a statutory “trade or business” under 26
 6 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26), and that residency has ABSOLUTELY NOTHING TO DO WITH THE NATIONALITY OR 7 CITIZENSHIP OR EVEN THE DOMICILE of the entity:

8 26 C.F.R. §301.7701-5 Domestic, foreign, resident, and nonresident persons.

9 *A domestic corporation is one organized or created in the United States, including only the States (and during 10 the periods when not States, the Territories of Alaska and Hawaii), and the District of Columbia, or under the 11 law of the United States or of any State or Territory. A foreign corporation is one which is not domestic. A 12 domestic corporation is a resident corporation even though it does no business and owns no property in the 13 United States. A foreign corporation engaged in trade or business within the United States is referred to in the 14 regulations in this chapter as a resident foreign corporation, and a foreign corporation not engaged in trade
 15 or business within the United States, as a nonresident foreign corporation. A partnership engaged in trade or 16 business within the United States is referred to in the regulations in this chapter as a resident partnership, and a
 17 partnership not engaged in trade or business within the United States, as a nonresident partnership. Whether a
 18 partnership is to be regarded as resident or nonresident is not determined by the nationality or residence of its

22 Also consistent with the content of this section, IRS Form 1040NR also describes those from American Samoa and Swains
 23 Island as “U.S. nationals” (8 U.S.C. §1408) and “nonresident aliens”. The IRS 1040NR Form, block 1 filing status lists the 24 following:

25  Single resident of Canada or Mexico, or a single U.S. national

26 Then, in the IRS Form 1040 Instruction Book for 2009 on p. 8, it says the following:

27 “U.S. national. A U.S. national is an individual who, although not a U.S. citizen, owes his or her allegiance to 28 the United States. U.S. nationals include American Samoans and Northern Mariana Islanders who chose to 29 become U.S. nationals instead of U.S. citizens.”

30 [IRS Form 1040NR Instruction Booklet (2009), p. 8]

31 We prove throughout this document that people born within and domiciled within constitutional states of the Union are all of 32 the following, and therefore have the status equivalent to that above and are:

- 33 1. Statutory “non-resident non-persons” if not engaged in a public office.
- 34 2. “nationals” per 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21).
- 35 3. “nationals of the United States*” under the common law as described Perkins v. Elg, 307 U.S. 325 (1939).
- 36 4. NOT any of the following:
  - 37 4.1. STATUTORY “U.S.** nationals” or “nationals but not citizens of the United States** at birth” per 8 U.S.C.
 38 §1408.
  - 39 4.2. STATUTORY “nationals of the United States***” per 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(22)(B).

40 By deduction, since IRS describes those domiciled in federal territories and possessions such as Puerto Rico and American
 41 Samoa as “nationals of the United States*” per 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(22) per the Internal Revenue Code, then people domiciled
 42 in states of the Union must have at least the same standing, which means they are statutory “non-resident non-persons” if not
 43 engaged in a public office and “nonresident aliens individuals” if engaged in a public office for the purposes of filing income
 44 tax returns. They don’t become “individuals” or the “nonresident alien individual” mentioned in 26 C.F.R. §1.6012-1(b) who 45 has a liability to file a tax return unless and until they are lawfully engaged in a public office in the U.S. government. This is 46 consistent with 26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1, which says that Taxpayer Identification Numbers are ONLY MANDATORY in the

<sup>44</sup> See: Internal Revenue Manual (I.R.M.), Section 4.10.7.2.8, which says you CANNOT trust or rely upon ANY IRS publication.

1 case of those engaged in a statutory “trade or business”, which is defined as “the functions of a public office” in 26 U.S.C.
2 §7701(a)(26).

NOTE: By saying the above, we are NOT implying ANY of the following:

1. That the jurisdiction of the Internal Revenue Code is limited ONLY to the District of Columbia. Like all income taxes, it attaches to DOMICILE, and you can have a domicile or residence in the District of Columbia WITHOUT a physical presence there. Domicile is not where you ARE, but where you have been in the past AND CONSENT to be civilly protected.

“Thus, the Court has frequently held that domicile or residence, more substantial than mere presence in transit or sojourn, is an adequate basis for taxation, including income, property, and death taxes. Since the Fourteenth Amendment makes one a citizen of the state wherein he resides, the fact of residence creates universally reciprocal duties of protection by the state and of allegiance and support by the citizen. The latter obviously includes a duty to pay taxes, and their nature and measure is largely a political matter. Of course, the situs of property may tax it regardless of the citizenship, domicile, or residence of the owner, the most obvious illustration being a tax on realty laid by the state in which the realty is located.”
Miller Brothers Co. v. Maryland, [347 U.S. 340 (1954)]

2. That the U.S. government is without authority to tax its own public offices. By “public office”, we mean “trade or business”, which is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) as “the functions of a public office”. Instead, they can tax them ANYWHERE they are EXPRESSLY AUTHORIZED by law as required by 4 U.S.C. §72, which at this time is limited EXCLUSIVELY to the District of Columbia and the Virgin Islands. Anyone who asserts authority to tax outside the District of Columbia has the burden of PROVING with evidence that the public office subject to tax was expressly authorized to be executed in the specific place it is sought to be taxed.

TITLE 4 > CHAPTER 3 > § 72
Sec. 72. - Public offices; at seat of Government

All offices attached to the seat of government shall be exercised in the District of Columbia, and not elsewhere, except as otherwise expressly provided by law

4 5.2.13 “State” in the Internal Revenue Code means a “federal State” and not a Union state

5 5.2.13.1 Contemporary meaning

6 In something as important as a Congressional statute, one would think that key terms like "State" would be defined so clearly
7 as to leave no doubt about their meaning. Alas, this is not the case in the Internal Revenue Code ("IRC") brought to you by
8 Congress. The term "State" has been deliberately defined so as to confuse the casual reader into believing that it means one
9 of the 50 States of the Union, even though it doesn't say "50 Union states" in so many words. Throughout this section, we
10 make a distinction between the term “United States***”, which includes the 50 states of the union. This area does not include
11 the federal areas, enclaves, or possessions or the District of Columbia, which we call the “federal zone”. We also use the 12 term “United States***”, which means the “federal zone” or area encompassing federal enclaves within states, federal 13 possessions, Guam, Puerto Rico, and the District of Columbia but not the sovereign contiguous 50 Union states. These two 14 terms are in agreement with the two jurisdictions within the United States of America defined earlier in section 5.2.12.

15 You might want to go to the beginning of this document under “Conventions Used Consistently Throughout This Book” and
16 review the distinctions between the word “state” and “State” in federal statutes before you proceed further with reading this 17 section in order to avoid confusion. Remember that the sequence a sovereignty was created defines the capitalization of 18 words identifying that sovereignty, and the sequence of creation is defined earlier in section 5.1.1.

19 For the sake of comparison, we begin by crafting a definition of “State” which is deliberately designed to create absolutely
20 no doubt or ambiguity about its meaning:

1 For the sole purpose of establishing a benchmark of clarity, the term "State" means any one of the 50 States of
2 the Union, the District of Columbia, the territories and possessions belonging to the Congress, and the federal
3 enclaves lawfully ceded to the Congress by any of the 50 States of the Union.

4 Now, compare this benchmark with the various definitions of the word "State" that are found in Black's Law Dictionary and
5 in the Internal Revenue Code. Black's is a good place to start, because it clearly defines two different kinds of "states". The 6 first kind of state defines a member of the Union, i.e., one of the 50 states which are united by and under the U.S. Constitution:

7 *The section of territory occupied by one of the United States***. One of the component commonwealths or states*
8 of the United States of America.
9 [emphasis added]

10 The second kind of state defines a federal "State", which is entirely different from a member of the Union:

11 *Any state of the United States**, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, and any territory*
12 or possession subject to the legislative authority of the United States. Uniform Probate Code, Section 1-201(40).

13 [emphasis added]

14 This same definition of a federal "State" also appears elsewhere in the U.S. Codes. For instance, it appears as part of the 15 Buck Act of 1940, which is contained in 4 U.S.C. §§105-113. 4 U.S.C. §110(d) defines "State" as follows:

16 TITLE 4 - FLAG AND SEAL, SEAT OF GOVERNMENT, AND THE STATES
17 CHAPTER 4 - THE STATES

18 (d) The term "State" includes any Territory or possession of the United States.

19 Notice carefully that a member of the Union is not defined as being "subject to the legislative authority of the United States".
20 Also, be aware that there are also several different definitions of "State" in the IRC, depending on the context. One of the 21 most important of these is found in a chapter specifically dedicated to providing definitions, that is, Chapter 79 (not exactly 22 the front of the book). To de-code the Code, read it backwards! In this chapter of definitions, we find the following:

23 When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof
24 -- ...

25 (10) State. -- The term "State" shall be construed to include the District of Columbia, where such 26 construction is necessary to carry out provisions of this title.

27 [I.R.C. §7701(a)(10)]

28 [emphasis added]

29 Already, it is obvious that this definition leaves much to be debated because it is ambiguous and it is not nearly as clear as 30 our "established benchmark of clarity" (which will be engraved in marble a week from Tuesday). Does the definition restrict 31 the term "State" to mean only the District of Columbia? Or does it expand the term "State" to mean the District of Columbia
32 in addition to the 50 States of the Union? And how do we decide? We would argue the that confusion
33 created by this definition on the part of the authors in Congress is deliberate, because 34 they do NOT want you to know that the correct definition of "State" would clearly
35 demonstrate their lack of jurisdiction to impose income taxes on U.S. Citizens domiciled
36 in the 50 Union states!

37 The following cite confirms that the District of Columbia qualifies as a federal "State", which is part of the federal zone:

38 4 U.S.C.S. §113

39 "(2) the term 'State' includes the District of Columbia."

40 However, the District of Columbia does not qualify as a "state", which is outside the federal zone:

1 "1. The District of Columbia and the territories are not states within the judicial clause of the Constitution giving
 2 jurisdiction in cases between citizens of different states."
 3 [O'Donoghue v. United States, 289 U.S. 516, 53 S.Ct. 740 (1933)]

4 The California Revenue and Taxation Code (R&TC) has a similar definition of the term "State" that is consistent with the 5 one above but is more clear:

6 17018. "State" includes the District of Columbia, and the possessions of the United States.
 7 [which don't include the 50 sovereign states but do include federal areas within those states]]

8 You can read the above for yourself at: <http://www.leginfo.ca.gov/cgi-bin/displaycode?section=rtc&group=17001-18000&file=17001-17039.1>.

10 Here's another interesting tidbit for the benefit of the reader that makes the definitions even more clear. In 26 U.S.C. §3121
 11 (FICA contributions tax), the definition of "State" does not include the 50 Union states but AFTER a person has submitted
 12 or filed an income tax return, described in 26 U.S.C. §6103, the term "State" DOES include the 50 Union states! Once again,
 13 more obfuscation and subterfuge to confuse as to when the 50 Union states actually apply to the tax code. AFTER you submit
 14 a return they gotcha, and then it's o.k. to give the definition that includes the 50 Union states. So, the tax code even defines 15 specifically what a real state from among the several states is when the authors of the code wanted it to define it clearly.

46 Now are you convinced that what we say is true about the definition of "United States" within the Internal Revenue Code?
 47 Now do you understand why the IRS won't define the term "United States" anywhere on their website or in ANY of their 48 publications or forms relative to Subtitle A Income Taxes? We don't see how you couldn't be convinced, but if you STILL 49 aren't convinced, we refer you to sections 4.6 and 4.9 earlier for further study on this fascinating subject.

5.2.13.2 Effect of "includes": Doesn't add to the definition

51 Even some harsh critics of federal income taxation, like Otto Skinner, have argued that ambiguities like this are best resolved
 52 by interpreting the word "include" in an expansive sense, rather than in a restrictive sense. Some legal dictionaries define the 53 term "includes" to mean "in addition to" in some instances, for instance. To support his argument, Skinner cites the 54 definitions of "includes" and "including" that are actually found in the Code:

1 Includes and Including. -- The terms "includes" and "including" when used in a definition contained in this title
 2 shall not be deemed to exclude other things otherwise within the meaning of the term defined.
 3 [I.R.C. §7701(c), emphasis added]

4 Skinner reasons that the Internal Revenue Code provides for an expanded definition of the term "includes" when it is used in
 5 other definitions contained in that Code. Using his logic, then, the definition of "State" at IRC Sec. 7701(a)(10) must be
 6 interpreted to mean the District of Columbia, in addition to other things. But what other things? Are the 50 Union states to
 7 be included also? What about the territories and possessions? And what about the federal enclaves ceded to Congress by the
 8 50 Union states? If the definition itself does not specify any of these things, then where, pray tell, are these other things
 9 "distinctly expressed" in the Code? If these other things are distinctly expressed elsewhere in the Code, is their expression
 10 in the Code manifestly compatible with the intent of that Code? Should we include also a state of confusion to our 11 understanding of the Code?

12 Quite apart from the meaning of "includes" and "including", defining the term "include" in an expansive sense leads to an
 13 absurd result that is manifestly incompatible with the Constitution. If the expansion results in defining the term "State" to 14 mean the District of Columbia in addition to the 50 States of the Union, then these 50 Union states must be situated within 15 the federal zone. Remember, the federal zone is the area of land over which the Congress has unrestricted, exclusive
 16 legislative jurisdiction. But, the Congress does not have unrestricted, exclusive legislative jurisdiction over any of the 50
 17 Union states. It is bound by the chains of the Constitution in this other zone, to paraphrase Thomas Jefferson. Specifically,
 18 Congress is required to apportion direct taxes which it levies inside the 50 Union states. This is a key limitation on the 19 power of Congress; it has never been expressly repealed (as Prohibition was repealed).

20 Other problems arise from Skinner's reasoning. First of all, like so much of the IRC, the definitions of "includes" and 21 "including" are outright deceptions in their own right. A grammatical approach can be used to demonstrate that these 22 definitions are thinly disguised tautologies. Note, in particular, where the Code states that these terms "shall not be deemed 23 to exclude other things". This is a double negative. Two negatives make a positive. This phrase, then, is equivalent to saying
 24 that the terms "shall be deemed to include other things". Continuing with this line of reasoning, the definition of "includes"
 25 includes "include", resulting in an obvious tautology. (We just couldn't resist.) Forgive them, for they know not what they 26 do.

27 The definitions of "includes" and "including" can now be rewritten so as to "include other things otherwise within the meaning
 28 of the term defined". So, what things are otherwise within the meaning of the term "State", if those things are not
 29 distinctly expressed in the original definition? You may be dying to put the 50 States of the Union among those things
 30 that are "otherwise within the meaning of the term", but you are using common sense. The Internal Revenue Code was not
 31 written with common sense in mind; it was written with deception in mind. When the authors want to deliberately confuse
 32 and deceive you in order to enlarge their jurisdiction, they will invent a new definition or "term of art" that conflicts with the 33 layman's definition. The rules of statutory construction apply a completely different standard. Author Ralph Whittington
 34 has this to say about the specialized definitions that are exploited by lawyers, attorneys, lawmakers, and judges:

35 The Legislature means what it says. If the definition section states that whenever the term "white" is used (within 36 that particular section or the entire code), the term includes "black," it means that "white" is "black" and you are 37 not allowed to make additions or deletions at your convenience. You must follow the directions of the Legislature,
 38 NO MORE -- NO LESS.
 39 [Omnibus, Addendum II, p. 2]

40 Unfortunately for Otto Skinner and others who try valiantly to argue the expansive meaning of "includes" and "including",
 41 Treasury Decision No. 3980, Vol. 29, January-December 1927, and some 80 court cases have adopted the restrictive meaning
 42 of these terms:

43 The supreme Court of the State ... also considered that the word "including" was used as a word of enlargement,
 44 the learned court being of the opinion that such was its ordinary sense. With this we cannot concur. It is its 45 exceptional sense, as the dictionaries and cases indicate.
 46 [Montello Salt Co. v. State of Utah, 221 U.S. 452 (1911)]
 47 [emphasis added]

48 Moreover, the "void for vagueness" doctrine is deeply rooted in our right to due process (under the Fifth Amendment) and 49 our right to know the nature and cause of any criminal accusation (under the Sixth Amendment). The latter right goes far
 50 beyond the contents of any criminal indictment. The right to know the nature and cause of any accusation starts with the 51 statute which a defendant is accused of violating. A statute must be sufficiently specific and unambiguous in all its terms, in 52 order to define and give adequate notice of the kind of conduct which it forbids.

The essential purpose of the "void for vagueness doctrine" with respect to interpretation of a criminal statute, is to warn individuals of the criminal consequences of their conduct. ... Criminal statutes which fail to give due notice that an act has been made criminal before it is done are unconstitutional deprivations of due process of law.

[U.S. v. De Cadena, 105 F.Supp. 202, 204 (1952), emphasis added]

If it fails to indicate with reasonable certainty just what conduct the legislature prohibits, a statute is necessarily void for uncertainty, or "void for vagueness" as the doctrine is called. In the De Cadena case, the U.S. District Court listed a number of excellent authorities for the origin of this doctrine (see Lanzetta v. New Jersey, 306 U.S. 451) and for the development of the doctrine (see Screws v. United States, 325 U.S. 91, Williams v. United States, 341 U.S. 97, and Jordan v. De George, 341 U.S. 223). Any prosecution which is based upon a vague statute must fail, together with the statute itself. A vague criminal statute is unconstitutional for violating the 5th and 6th Amendments. The U.S. Supreme Court has emphatically agreed:

[I] That the terms of a penal statute creating a new offense must be sufficiently explicit to inform those who are subject to it what conduct on their part will render them liable to its penalties is a well-recognized requirement, consonant alike with ordinary notions of fair play and the settled rules of law; and a statute which either forbids or requires the doing of an act in terms so vague that men of common intelligence must necessarily guess at its meaning and differ as to its application violates the first essential of due process of law.

[Connally et al. v. General Construction Co., 269 U.S. 385, 391 (1926), emphasis added]

The debate that is currently raging over the correct scope and proper application of the IRC is obvious, empirical proof that men of common intelligence are differing with each other. For example, The Informer's conclusions appear to require definitions of "includes" and "including" which are expansive, not restrictive. The matter could be easily decided if the IRC would instead exhibit sound principles of statutory construction, state clearly and directly that "includes" and "including" are meant to be used in the expansive sense, and itemize those specific persons, places, and/or things that are "otherwise within the meaning of the terms defined". If the terms "includes" and "including" must be used in the restrictive sense, the IRC should explain, clearly and directly, that expressions like "includes only" and "including only" must be used, to eliminate vagueness completely.

Alternatively, the IRC could exhibit sound principles of statutory construction by explaining clearly and directly that "includes" and "including" are always meant to be used in the restrictive sense.

Better yet, abandon the word "include" entirely, together with all of its grammatical variations, and use instead the word "means" (which does not suffer from a long history of semantic confusion). It would also help a lot if the 50 Union states were consistently capitalized and the federal states were not. The reverse of this convention can be observed in the regulations for Title 31 (see 31 C.F.R. Sections 51.2 and 52.2).

These, again, are excellent grounds for deciding that the IRC is vague and therefore null and void. Of course, if the real intent is to expand the federal zone in order to subjugate the 50 Union states under the dominion of Federal States (defined along something like ZIP code boundaries a la the Buck Act, codified in Title 4), and to replace the sovereign Republics with a monolithic socialist dictatorship, carved up into arbitrary administrative "districts", that is another problem altogether. Believe it or not, the case law which has interpreted the Buck Act admits to the existence of a "State within a state"! So, which State within a state are you in? Or should we be asking this question: "In the State within which state are you?" (Remember: a preposition is a word you should never end a sentence with!)

The absurd results which obtain from expanding the term "State" to mean the 50 Union states, however, are problems which will not go away, no matter how much we clarify the definitions of "includes" and "including" in the IRC. There are 49 other U.S. Codes which have the exact same problem. Moreover, the mountain of material evidence impugning the ratification of the so-called 16th Amendment should leave no doubt in anybody's mind that Congress must still apportion all direct taxes levied inside the sovereign borders of the 50 Union states. The apportionment restrictions have never been repealed.

5.2.13.3 Historical context

An historical approach yields similar results. Without tracing the myriad of income tax statutes which Congress has enacted over the years, it is instructive to examine the terminology found in a revenue statute from the Civil War era. The definition of "State" is almost identical to the one quoted from the current IRC at the start of this chapter. On June 30, 1864, Congress enacted legislation which contained the following definition:

1                   The word "State," when used in this Title, shall be construed to include the Territories and the District of
2                   Columbia, where such construction is necessary to carry out its provisions.
3                   [Title 35, Internal Revenue, Chapter 1, page 601]
4                   [Revised Statutes of the United States**]
5                   [43rd Congress, 1st Session, 1873-74]

6       Aside from adding "the Territories", the two definitions are nearly identical. The Territories at that point in time were 7       Washington, Utah, Dakota, Nebraska, Colorado, New Mexico, and the Indian Territory.

8       One of the most fruitful and conclusive methods for establishing the meaning of the term "State" in the IRC is to trace the 9       history of changes to the United States Codes which occurred when Alaska and Hawaii were admitted to the Union. Because 10       other authors have already done an exhaustive job on this history, there is no point in re-inventing their wheels here.

11       It is instructive to illustrate these Code changes as they occurred in the IRC definition of "State" found at the start of this
12       chapter. The first Code amendment became effective on January 3, 1959, when Alaska was admitted to the Union:

13                   Amended 1954 Code Sec. 7701(a)(10) by striking out "Territories", and by substituting "Territory of Hawaii".
14                   [I.R.C. §7701(a)(10)]

15       The second Code amendment became effective on August 21, 1959, when Hawaii was admitted to the Union:

16                   Amended 1954 Code Sec. 7701(a)(10) by striking out "the Territory of Hawaii and" immediately after the word
17                   "include".
18                   [I.R.C. §7701(a)(10)]

19       Applying these code changes in reverse order, we can reconstruct the IRC definitions of "State" by using any word processor
20       and simple "textual substitution" as follows:

21                   Time 1:   Alaska is a U.S.** Territory

22                               Hawaii is a U.S.** Territory

23                   7701(a)(10):       The term "State" shall be construed to include the Territories and the District of Columbia,
24                   where such construction is necessary to carry out provisions of this title.

25       Alaska joins the Union. Strike out "Territories" and substitute "Territory of Hawaii":

26                   Time 2:   Alaska is a State of the Union

27                               Hawaii is a U.S.** Territory

28                   7701(a)(10):       The term "State" shall be construed to include the Territory of Hawaii and the District of 29                   Columbia, where such construction is necessary to carry out provisions of this title.

30       Hawaii joins the Union. Strike out "the Territory of Hawaii and" immediately after the word "include":

31                   Time 3:   Alaska is a State of the Union

32                               Hawaii is a State of the Union

33                   7701(a)(10):       The term "State" shall be construed to include the District of Columbia, where such 34                   construction is necessary to carry out provisions of this title.

35       Author Lori Jacques has therefore concluded that the term "State" now includes only the District of Columbia, because the 36       former Territories of Alaska and Hawaii have been admitted to the Union, Puerto Rico has been granted the status of a 37       Commonwealth, and the Philippine Islands have been granted their independence (see United States Citizen versus National 38       of the United States, page 9, paragraph 5). It is easy to see how author Lori Jacques could have overlooked the following
39       reference to Puerto Rico, found near the end of the IRC:

1 Commonwealth of Puerto Rico. -- Where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the
2 *intent thereof, references in this title to possessions of the United States** shall be treated as also referring to the* 3 Commonwealth of Puerto Rico.
4 [I.R.C. §7701(d)]

5 In order to conform to the requirements of the Social Security scheme, a completely different definition of "State" is found
6 in those sections of the IRC that deal with Social Security. This definition was also amended on separate occasions when 7 Alaska and Hawaii were admitted to the Union. The first Code amendment became effective on January 3, 1959, when 8 Alaska was admitted:

9 Amended 1954 Code Sec. 3121(e)(1), as it appears in the amendment note for P.L. 86-778, by striking out
10 "Alaska," where it appeared following "includes".
11 [I.R.C. §3121(e)(1)]

12 The second Code amendment became effective on August 21, 1959, when Hawaii was admitted:

13 Amended 1954 Code Sec. 3121(e)(1), as it appears in the amendment note for P.L. 86-778, by striking out
14 "Hawaii," where it appeared following "includes".
15 [I.R.C. §3121(e)(1)]

16 Applying these code changes in reverse order, as above, we can reconstruct the definitions of "State" in this section of the 17 IRC as follows:

18 *Time 1: Alaska is a U.S.** Territory*

19 *Hawaii is a U.S.** Territory*

20 3121(e)(1): The term "State" includes Alaska, Hawaii, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, and the 21 Virgin Islands.

22 Alaska joins the Union. Strike out "Alaska," where it appeared following "includes":

23 Time 2: Alaska is a State of the Union

24 *Hawaii is a U.S.** Territory*

25 3121(e)(1): The term "State" includes Hawaii, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin
26 Islands.

27 Hawaii joins the Union. Strike out "Hawaii," where it appeared following "includes":

28 Time 3: Alaska is a State of the Union

29 Hawaii is a State of the Union

30 3121(e)(1): The term "State" includes the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands.

31 Puerto Rico becomes a Commonwealth. For services performed after 1960, Guam and American Samoa are added to the 32 definition:

33 Time 4: Puerto Rico becomes a Commonwealth

34 Guam and American Samoa join Social Security

35 3121(e)(1): The term "State" includes the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the 36 Virgin Islands, Guam, and American Samoa.

37 Notice carefully how Alaska and Hawaii only fit these definitions of "State" before they joined the Union. *It is most 38 revealing that these Territories became States when they were admitted to the Union, 39 and yet the United States Codes had to be changed because Alaska and Hawaii were defined in those Codes as "States" before admission to the Union, but not afterwards.

This apparent anomaly is perfectly clear, once the legal and deliberately misleading definition of "State" is understood. The changes made to the United States Codes when Alaska joined the Union were assembled in the Alaska Omnibus Act. The changes made to the federal Codes when Hawaii joined the Union were assembled in the Hawaii Omnibus Act.

The following table summarizes the sections of the IRC that were affected by these two Acts:

Table 5-26: History of Code Changes for States Joining the Union

I.R.C. §7621(b) sticks out like a sore thumb when the changes are arrayed in this fashion. The Alaska Omnibus Act modified this section of the IRC, but the Hawaii Omnibus Act did not. Let's take a close look at this section and see if it reveals any important clues:

Sec. 7621. Internal Revenue Districts.

(a) Establishment and Alteration. -- The President shall establish convenient internal revenue districts for the purpose of administering the internal revenue laws. The President may from time to time alter such districts.

[IRC 7621(a)]

Now witness the chronology of amendments to I.R.C. §7621(b), entitled "Boundaries", as follows:

*Time 1: Alaska is a U.S.** Territory.*

7621(b): Boundaries. -- For the purpose mentioned in subsection (a), the President may subdivide any State, Territory, or the District of Columbia, or may unite two or more States or Territories into one district.

Time 2: Alaska is a State of the Union.

1/3/59 *Hawaii is a U.S.** Territory.*

7621(b): Boundaries. -- For the purpose mentioned in subsection (a), the President may subdivide any State, Territory, or the District of Columbia, or may unite into one District two or more States or a Territory and one or more States.

1 Time 3: Alaska is a State of the Union.

2 2/1/77 Hawaii is a State of the Union.

3 7621(b): Boundaries. -- For the purpose mentioned in subsection (a), the President may subdivide any State or 4 the District of Columbia, or may unite into one district two or more States.

5 The reason why the Hawaii Omnibus Act did not change section 7621(b) is not apparent from reading the statute, nor has
6 time permitted the research necessary to determine why this section was changed in 1977 and not in 1959. After Alaska
7 joined the Union, Hawaii was technically the only remaining Territory. This may explain why the term "Territories" was 8 changed to "Territory" at Time 2 above. However, this is a relatively minor matter, when compared to the constitutional
9 issue that is involved here. There is an absolute constitutional restriction against subdividing or joining any of the 50 Union
10 states, or any parts thereof, without the consent of Congress and of the Legislatures of the States affected. This restriction
11 is very much like the restriction against direct taxes within the 50 Union states without apportionment:

12 New States may be admitted by the Congress into this Union; but no new State shall be formed or erected within
13 the Jurisdiction of any other State; nor any State be formed by the Junction of two or more States, or Parts of
14 States, without the Consent of the Legislatures of the States concerned as well as of the Congress.
15 [Constitution for the United States of America, Article 4, Section 3, Clause 1, emphasis added]

16 This point about new States caught the keen eye of author and scholar Eustace Mullins. In his controversial and heart-
17 breaking book entitled A Writ for Martyrs, Mullins establishes the all-important link between the Internal Revenue Service
18 and the Federal Reserve System, and does so by charging that Internal Revenue Districts are "new states" unlawfully
19 established within the jurisdiction of legal States of the Union, as follows:

20 The income tax amendment and the Federal Reserve Act were passed in the same year, 1913, because they
21 *function as an essential team, and were planned to do so. The Federal Reserve districts and the Internal 22 Revenue Districts are "new states," which have been established within the jurisdiction of legal states of the 23 Union.
24 [emphasis added]

25 Remember, the federal zone is the area of land over which the Congress exercises an unrestricted, exclusive legislative
26 jurisdiction. The Congress does not have unrestricted, exclusive legislative jurisdiction over any of the 50 Union states. It
27 is bound by the chains of the Constitution. This point is so very important, it bears repeating throughout this book. As
28 in the apportionment rule for direct taxes and the uniformity rule for indirect taxes, Congress cannot join or divide any of the 29 50 Union states without the explicit approval of the Legislatures of the State(s) involved. This means that Congress cannot 30 unilaterally delegate such a power to the President. Congress cannot lawfully exercise (nor delegate) a power which it simply 31 does not have.

32 How, then, is it possible for I.R.C. Section 7621(b) of the IRC to give this power to the President? The answer is very simple:
33 the territorial scope of the Internal Revenue Code is the "federal zone". The IRC only applies to the land that is internal to 34 that zone. Indeed, a leading legal encyclopedia leaves no doubt that the terms "municipal law" and "internal law" are 35 equivalent:

36 International law and Municipal or internal law.

37 ... [P]ositive law is classified as international law, the law which governs the interrelations of sovereign states,
38 *and municipal law, which is, when used in contradistinction to international law, the branch of the law which 39 governs the internal affairs of a sovereign state.

40 However, the term "municipal law" has several meanings, and in order to avoid confusing these meanings
41 authorities have found more satisfactory Bentham's phrase "internal law," this being the equivalent of the 42 French term "droit interne," to express the concept of internal law of a sovereign state.

43 The phrase "municipal law" is derived from the Roman law, and when employed as indicating the internal law of 44 a sovereign state the word "municipal" has no specific reference to modern municipalities, but rather has a 45 broader, more extensive meaning, as discussed in the C.J.S. definition Municipal.

46 [52A Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.), Law, Sections 741, 742 ("Law"), emphasis added]

47 If the territorial scope of the IRC were the 50 States of the Union, then section 7621(b) would, all by itself, render the entire 48 Code unconstitutional for violating clause 4:3:1 of the Constitution (see above). Numerous other constitutional violations would also occur if the territorial scope of the IRC were the 50 Union states. A clear and unambiguous definition of "State" must be known before status and jurisdiction can be decided with certainty. The IRC should be nullified for vagueness; this much is certain.

After seeing and verifying all of the evidence discussed above, the editors of a bulletin published by the Monetary Realist Society wrote the following long comment about the obvious problems it raises:

A serious reader could come to the conclusion that Missouri, for example, is not one of the United States referred to in the code. This conclusion is encouraged by finding that the code refers to Hawaii and Alaska as states of the United States before their admission to the union! Is the IRS telling us that the only states over which it has jurisdiction are Guam, Washington D.C., Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, etc.? Well, why not write and find out? Don't expect an answer, though. Your editor has asked this question and sought to have both of his Senators and one Congresswoman prod the IRS for a reply when none was forthcoming. Nothing.

*And isn't that strange? It would be so simple for the service to reply, "Of course Missouri is one of the United States referred to in the code" if that were, indeed, the case. What can one conclude from the government's refusal to deal with this simple question except that the government cannot admit the truth about United States citizenship? I admit that the question sounds silly. Everybody knows that Missouri is one of the United States, right? Sure, like everybody knows what a dollar is! But the IRS deals with "silly" questions every day, often at great length. After all, the code occupies many feet of shelf space, and covers almost any conceivable situation. It just doesn't seem to be able to cope with the simplest questions!
["Some Thoughts on the Income Tax"]
[The Bulletin of the Monetary Realist Society, March 1993, Number 152, page 2, emphasis added]*

Although this book was originally intended to focus on the Internal Revenue Code, the other 49 United States Codes contain a wealth of additional proof that the term "State" does not always refer to one of the 50 States of the Union. Just to illustrate, the following statutory definition of the term "State" was found in Title 8, the Immigration and Nationality Act, as late as the year 1987:

(36) The term "State" includes (except as used in section 310(a) of title III [8 USCS Section 1421(a)]) the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, Guam, and the Virgin Islands of the United States.
[8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(36), circa 1987, emphasis added]

The "exception" cited in this statute tells the whole story here. In section 1421, Congress needed to refer to courts of the 50 Union states, because their own local constitutions and laws have granted to those courts the requisite jurisdiction to naturalize. For this reason, Congress made an explicit exception to the standard, federal definition of "State" quoted above. The following is the paragraph in section 1421 which contained the exceptional uses of the term "State" (i.e. Union state, not federal state):

1421. Jurisdiction to naturalize

(a) Exclusive jurisdiction to naturalize persons as citizens of the United States** is hereby conferred upon the following specified courts: District courts of the United States now existing, or which may hereafter be established by Congress in any State ... also all courts of record in any State or Territory now existing, or which may hereafter be created, having a seal, a clerk, and jurisdiction in actions at law or equity, or law and equity, in which the amount in controversy is unlimited.
[8 U.S.C. §1421(a), circa 1987, emphasis added]

In a section entitled "State Courts", the interpretive notes and decisions for this statute contain clear proof that the phrase "in any State" here refers to any state of the Union (e.g. New York):

*Under 8 USCS Section 1421, jurisdiction to naturalize was conferred upon New York State Supreme Court by virtue of its being court of record and having jurisdiction in actions at law and equity. Re Reilly (1973) 73 Misc.2d. 1073, 344 N.Y.S.2d. 531.
[8 U.S.C.S. §1421, Interpretive Notes and Decisions, Section II. State Courts, emphasis added]*

Subsequently, Congress removed the reference to this exception in the amended definition of "State", as follows:

(36) The term "State" includes the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, Guam, and the Virgin Islands of the United States.
[8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(36), circa 1992]

Two final definitions prove, without any doubt, that the IRC can also define the terms "State" and "United States" to mean the 50 Union states as well as the other federal states. The very existence of multiple definitions provides convincing proof that the IRC is intentionally vague, particularly in the section dedicated to general definitions (I.R.C. §7701(a)). The following definition is taken from Subtitle D, Miscellaneous Excise Taxes, Subchapter A, Tax on Petroleum (which we all pay taxes at the pump to use):

(A) In General. -- The term "United States" means the 50 States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, any possession of the United States, the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, and the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands. [!!]
[I.R.C. §4612(a)(4)(A), emphasis added]

Notice that this definition uses the term "means". Why is this definition so clear, in stark contrast to other IRC definitions of the "United States"? Author Ralph Whittington provides the simple, if not obvious, answer:

The preceding is a true Import Tax, as allowed by the Constitution; it contains all the indicia of being Uniform, and therefore passes the Constitutionality test and can operate within the 50 Sovereign States. The language of this Revenue Act is simple, specific and definitive, and it would be impossible to attach the "Void for Vagueness Doctrine" to it.
[The Omnibus, page 83, emphasis added]

The following definition of "State" is required only for those Code sections that deal with the sharing of tax return information between the federal government and the 50 States of the Union. In this case, the 50 States need to be mentioned in the definition. So, the lawmakers can do it when they need to (and not do it, in order to put the rest of us into a state of confusion, within a state of the Union):

(5) State -- The term "State" means -- [!!]

(A) any of the 50 States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, the Canal Zone, Guam, American Samoa, and the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands ....
[I.R.C. §6103(b)(5), emphasis added]

It is noteworthy [!!] that these sections of the IRC also utilize the term "means" instead of the terms "includes" and "including", and instead of the phrase "shall be construed to include". It is certainly not impossible to be clear. If it were impossible to be clear, then just laws would not be possible at all, and the Constitution could never have come into existence anywhere on this planet. Authors like The Informer (as he calls himself) consider the very existence of multiple definitions of "State" and "United States" to be highly significant proof of fluctuating statutory intent, even though a definition of "intent" is nowhere to be found in the Code itself. Together with evidence from the Omnibus Acts, these fluctuating definitions also expose perhaps the greatest fiscal fraud that has ever been perpetrated upon any people at any time in the history of the world.

Having researched all facets of the law in depth for more than ten full years, we summarize what we have learned thus far with a careful precision that was unique for its time:

*The term "States" in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) is referring to the federal states of Guam, Virgin Islands, Etc., and NOT the 50 States of the Union. Congress cannot write a municipal law to apply to the human "non-resident non-persons" (constitutional but not statutory Citizens) domiciled within States of the Union. Yes, the IRS can go into the States of the Union by Treasury Decision Order, to seek out those "taxpayers" who are subject to the tax, be they a class of individuals that are statutory "United States** citizens", or statutory "resident aliens". They also can go after nonresident aliens that are under the regulatory corporate jurisdiction of the United States**, but only when they are "effectively connected with a trade or business with the United States**" or have made income from a "source within the United States**" ....*

[emphasis added]

Nevertheless, despite a clarity that was rare, author Lori Jacques has found good reasons to dispute even this statement. In a private communication, she explained that the Office of the Federal Register has issued a statement indicating that Treasury Department Orders ("TDO") 150-10 and 150-37 (regarding taxation) were not published in the Federal Register. Evidently, there are still no published orders from the Secretary of the Treasury giving the Commissioner of Internal Revenue the requisite authority to enforce the Internal Revenue Code within the 50 States of the Union.

1 Furthermore, under Title 3, Section 103, the President of the United States, by means of Presidential Executive Order, has no
 2 delegated authority to enforce the IRC within the 50 States of the Union. Treasury Department Order No. 150-10 can be
 3 found in Commerce Clearinghouse Publication 6585 (an unofficial publication). Section 5 reads as follows:

4 U.S. Territories and Insular Possessions. The Commissioner shall, to the extent of authority otherwise vested in
 5 him, provide for the administration of the United States internal revenue laws in the U.S. Territories and insular
 6 possessions and other authorized areas of the world.

7 Thus, the available evidence indicates that the only authority delegated to the Internal Revenue Service is to enforce tax
 8 treaties with foreign territories, U.S. territories and possessions, and Puerto Rico. To be consistent with the law,
 9 Treasury Department Orders, particularly TDO's 150-10 and 150-37, needed to be published in the Federal Register. Thus,
 10 given the absence of published authority delegations within the 50 Union states, the obvious conclusion is that the various
 11 Treasury Department orders found at Internal Revenue Manual 1229 have absolutely no legal bearing, force, or effect on 12 those who are Constitutional but not Statutory Citizens domiciled within the 50 Union states. Awesome, yes? Our hats are 13 off, once again, to Lori Jacques for her superb legal research.

14 The astute reader will notice another basic disagreement between authors Lori Jacques and this document. Lori Jacques
 15 concludes that the term "State" now includes only the District of Columbia, a conclusion that is supported by IRC Sec.
 16 7701(a)(10). We, on the other hand, conclude that the term "States" refers to the federal states of Guam, Virgin Islands, etc.
 17 These two conclusions are obviously incompatible, because singular and plural must, by law, refer to the same things. (See 18 Title 1 of the United States Code for rules of federal statutory construction).

19 It is important to realize that both conclusions were reached by people who have invested a great deal of earnest time and 20 energy studying the relevant law, regulations, and court decisions. If these honest Americans can come to such 21 diametrically opposed conclusions, after competent and sincere efforts to find the truth, this is all the more reason
 22 why the Code should be declared null and void for vagueness. Actually, this is all the more reason why we should all be
 23 pounding nails into its coffin, by every lawful method available to boycott this octopus. The First Amendment guarantees
 24 our fundamental right to boycott arbitrary government, by our words and by our deeds.

25 Likewise, Congress is not empowered to delegate unilateral authority to the President to subdivide or to join any of the 50
 26 Union states. There are many other constitutional violations which result from expanding the term "State" to mean the 50
 27 States of the Union. In this context, the mandates and prohibitions found in the Bill of Rights are immediately obvious,
 28 particularly as they apply to Union state Citizens (as distinct from United States** citizens a/k/a federal citizens). Clarifying
 29 the definitions of "includes" and "including" in the IRC is one thing; clarifying the exact extent of sovereign jurisdiction is 30 quite another. Congress is just not sovereign within the borders of the 50 Union states.

31 Sorry, all you Senators and Representatives. When you took office, you did not take an oath to uphold and defend the Ten
 32 Commandments. You did not take an oath to uphold and defend the Uniform Commercial Code. You did not take an oath
 33 to uphold and defend the Communist Manifesto, Karl Marx. You did take an oath to uphold and defend the Constitution for 34 the United States of America.

35 It should be obvious, at this point, that capable authors like Lori Jacques and The Informer do agree that the 50 Union states
 36 do not belong in the standard definition of "State" because they are in a class that is different from the class known as federal 37 states. Here's the way Congressman Barbara Kennelly put in a letter received by one reader?

38 Within the borders of the 50 States, the "geographical" extent of exclusive federal jurisdiction is strictly confined 39 to the federal enclaves; this extent does not encompass the 50 States themselves.

40 We cannot blame the average American for failing to appreciate this subtlety. The confusion that results from the vagueness
 41 we observe is inherent in the Code and evidently intentional, which raises some very serious questions concerning the real
 42 intent of that Code in the first place. Could money have anything to do with it? That question answers itself.

This section will deal with the issue of the meaning of "United States" in the context of "U.S. source" within Internal Revenue Code, Subtitles A and C. It is only "U.S. source" or "sources within the United States" that are taxable under these provisions of the I.R.C. We will prove that the only thing that it can mean is the NATIONAL and not STATE government, and that not even all national government payments fall in this category, but only those payments that are paid to public offices within the national government.

5.2.14.1 Background

Within our system of law, all are equal under the law. We cover this subject exhaustively in the following document, in fact:

Requirement for Equal Protection and Equal Treatment, Form #05.033
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

Because we are all equal, then:

1. All human beings are equal in rights and authority to any and every government.
2. An entire government as a legal person can have no more authority than a single human being.
3. The only way you can become UNEQUAL to anyone, including any government, is with your consent.
4. The method of giving consent is to acquire or invoke a civil statutory status that gives the government the right to govern you.
5. You can't delegate any authority to any government that you don't have, including the right to STEAL or enforce anything.
6. If you can't steal from your neighbor to pay for services from you that he doesn't want, then neither can a government.
7. The only way you acquire any right over your neighbor is with their consent.
8. Anything you do him that your neighbor doesn't consent to and which injures him/her is a tort. In other words, if you do not respect his/her right to simply be "left alone", then he/she has a right to sue you in court. The right to simply be left alone, after all, is the very definition of "justice" itself, and governments are established to promote justice.
9. All the constraints above apply equally to both your neighbor AND the government.

The above considerations are why the ONLY people the government has civil statutory jurisdiction or authority over are those who consent to contract with them, and thereby acquire "agency" on behalf of the government. The U.S. Supreme Court admitted this when it held the following:

"All the powers of the government [including ALL of its civil enforcement powers against the public] must be carried into operation by individual agency, either through the medium of public officers, or contracts made with [private] individuals."
[Osborn v. Bank of U.S., 22 U.S. 738 (1824)]

In other words, you have to be their AGENT before they can civilly enforce against or "govern" you. That agency can take many forms:

1. Acquiring or invoking the statutory franchise status of "citizen", "resident", "taxpayer", "employee", "benefit recipient", "driver", etc., all of whom are franchisees under civil franchise or protection franchise.
2. Applying for or using a "license" of any kind.
3. Accepting or using government property. A public officer, after all, is legally defined as someone who exercises the sovereign functions of the government and thereby uses government property or rights to property in the process of doing so:

*"Public office. The right, authority, and duty created and conferred by law, by which for a given period, either fixed by law or enduring at the pleasure of the creating power, an individual is invested with some portion of the sovereign functions of government for the benefit of the public. Walker v. Rich, 79 Cal.App. 139, 249 P. 56, 58. An agency for the state, the duties of which involve in their performance the exercise of some portion of the sovereign power, either great or small. Yaselli v. Goff, C.C.A., 12 F.2d. 396, 403, 56 A.L.R. 1239; Lacey v. State, 13 Ala.App. 212, 68 So. 706, 710; Curtin v. State, 61 Cal.App. 377, 214 P. 1030, 1035; Shelmadine v. City of Elkhart, 75 Ind.App. 493, 129 N.E. 878. State ex rel. Colorado River Commission v. Frohmiller, 46 Ariz. 413, 52 P.2d. 483, 486. Where, by virtue of law, a person is clothed, not as an incidental or transient authority, but for such time as de- notes duration and continuance, with Independent power to control the property of the public, or with public functions to be exercised in the supposed interest of the people, the service to be compensated by a stated yearly salary, and the occupant having a designation or title, the position so created is a public office. State v. Brennan, 49 Ohio.St. 33, 29 N.E. 593.

[Black's Law Dictionary, Fourth Edition, p. 1235]

4. Being a stockholder in a corporation. All stockholders are considered contractors of the government.

*The court held that the first company's charter was a contract between it and the state, within the protection of the constitution of the United States, and that the charter to the last company was therefore null and void., Mr. Justice DAVIS, delivering the opinion of the court, said that, if anything was settled by an unbroken chain of decisions in the federal courts, it was that an act of incorporation was a contract between the state and the stockholders, 'a departure from which now would involve dangers to society that cannot be foreseen, would shock the sense of justice of the country, unhinge its business interests, and weaken, if not destroy, that respect which has always been felt for the judicial department of the government.'

[New Orleans Gas Co. v. Louisiana Light Co., 115 U.S. 650 (1885)]

The authority for the federal government to regulate the use of its own property, wherever situated to include a state of the Union, derives from Article 4, Section 3, Clause 2 of the United States Constitution. To wit:

*United States Constitution
Article 4, Section 3, Clause 2*

The Congress shall have Power to dispose of and make all needful Rules and Regulations respecting the Territory or other Property belonging to the United States; and nothing in this Constitution shall be so construed as to Prejudice any Claims of the United States, or of any particular State.

“The Constitution permits Congress to dispose of and to make all needful rules and regulations respecting the territory or other property belonging to the United States. This power applies as well to territory belonging to the United States within the States, as beyond them. It comprehends all the public domain, wherever it may be. The argument is, that the power to make 'ALL needful rules and regulations' 'is a power of legislation,' 'a full legislative power;' 'that it includes all subjects of legislation in the territory,' and is without any limitations, except the positive prohibitions which affect all the powers of Congress. Congress may then regulate or prohibit slavery upon the public domain within the new States, and such a prohibition would permanently affect the capacity of a slave, whose master might carry him to it. And why not? Because no power has been conferred on Congress. This is a conclusion universally admitted. But the power to 'make rules and regulations respecting the territory' is not restrained by State lines, nor are there any constitutional prohibitions upon its exercise in the domain of the United States within the States; and whatever rules and regulations respecting territory Congress may constitutionally make are supreme, and are not dependent on the situs of 'the territory.'”
[Dred Scott v. Sandford, 60 U.S. 393, 509-510 (1856)]

Those who want to be beyond the jurisdiction of any government therefore:

1. Cannot accept, apply to receive, or use any kind of government property.
2. Cannot apply for or use any kind of license. Licenses are the property of the government grantor.
3. Cannot invoke any civil statutory franchise status or the rights, privileges, or immunities associated with said status, INCLUDING “taxpayer”, “citizen”, or “resident”, “driver” (under the vehicle code), “spouse” (under the family code).
4. Cannot own stock in any corporation. All corporations are franchises of the government grantor and those owning stock are government contractors.
5. Cannot act as an officer of a corporation. If they do, then they will become subject to the civil laws of the government grantor pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b).
6. Cannot use government identifying numbers in connection with any of their financial transactions. 20 C.F.R. §422.103(d) says that these numbers are PROPERTY of the Social Security Administration and must be returned upon request.

The following subsections will apply these important considerations to many different scenarios to show why “U.S. sources” within the Internal Revenue Code really means government payments, and not commerce within the geographical “United States” appearing EITHER within the Internal Revenue Code itself OR the Constitution.

5.2.14.2 Sixteenth Amendment was proposed by President Taft as a tax on the NATIONAL government, not upon a geography

1 When President Taft proposed the Sixteenth Amendment, he introduced it as a tax upon the NATIONAL GOVERNMENT,
2 and not upon a geography. Below is the proof from the Congressional Record:

3 "The decision of the Supreme Court in the income-tax cases deprived the National Government of a power, which
4 by reason of previous decisions of the court; it was generally supposed that government had. It is undoubtedly a
5 power the National Government ought to have, It might be indispensable to the Nation's life in great crises.
6 Although I have not considered a constitutional amendment as necessary to the exercise of certain phases of this
7 power, a mature consideration has satisfied me that an amendment is the only proper course for its establishment
8 to its full extent.

12 [Legislative Intent of the 16th Amendment written by President William Taft, June 16, 1909, Congressional
13 Record pp. 3344-3345, SEDM Exhibit #02.001; <https://sedm.org/Exhibits/ExhibitIndex.htm>]

14 From the above, we can see that the income tax implemented by the Sixteenth Amendment is NOT a tax upon private human 15 beings, but upon the GOVERNMENT. That government is a federal corporation pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §3002(15)(A).

16 "Corporations are also of all grades, and made for varied objects; all governments are corporations, created by
17 usage and common consent, or grants and charters which create a body politic for prescribed purposes; but
18 whether they are private, local or general, in their objects, for the enjoyment of property, or the exercise of
19 power, they are all governed by the same rules of law, as to the construction and the obligation of the
20 instrument by which the incorporation is made. One universal rule of law protects persons and property. It is
21 a fundamental principle of the common law of England, that the term freemen of the kingdom, includes 'all
22 persons,' ecclesiastical and temporal, incorporate, politique or natural; it is a part of their magna charta (2 Inst.
23 4), and is incorporated into our institutions. The persons of the members of corporations are on the same footing
24 of protection as other persons, and their corporate property secured by the same laws which protect that of
25 individuals. 2 Inst. 46-7. 'No man shall be taken,' 'no man shall be disseised,' without due process of law, is a 26 principle taken from magna charta, infused into all our state constitutions, and is made inviolable by the federal 27 government, by the amendments to the constitution."

32 CHAPTER 176 - FEDERAL DEBT COLLECTION PROCEDURE
33 SUBCHAPTER A - DEFINITIONS AND GENERAL PROVISIONS
34 Sec. 3002. Definitions

35 (15) "United States" means -
36 (A) a Federal corporation;
37 (B) an agency, department, commission, board, or other entity of the United States; or
38 (C) an instrumentality of the United States.

39 Hence, the income tax is an excise tax ONLY upon public offices. Everything the government does as a legal fiction is done
40 through public offices and contracts. Hence, the tax could ONLY be upon these offices and contracts:

41 "All the powers of the government [including ALL of its civil enforcement powers against the public] must be
42 carried into operation by individual agency, either through the medium of public officers, or contracts made 43 with [private] individuals."
44 Osborn v. Bank of U.S., [22 U.S. 738 (1824)]

45 Any federally chartered corporation is an instrumentality of the mother "U.S. Inc." corporation and therefore ALSO a public 46 office and franchise of the national government.

47 At common law, a "corporation" was an "artificial perso[n] endowed with the legal capacity of perpetual 48 succession" consisting either of a single individual (termed a "corporation sole") or of a collection of several
49 individuals (a "corporation aggregate"). 3 H. Stephen, Commentaries on the Laws of England 166, 168 (1st Am.
50 ed. 1845). The sovereign was considered a corporation. See id., at 170; see also 1 W. Blackstone, Commentaries
51 *467. Under the definitions supplied by contemporary law dictionaries, Territories would have been classified as 52 "corporations" (and hence as "persons") at the time that 1983 was enacted and the Dictionary Act recodified.
53 See W. Anderson, A Dictionary of Law 261 (1893) ("All corporations were originally modeled upon a state or 54 nation"); 1 J. Bouvier, A Law Dictionary Adapted to the Constitution and Laws of the United States of America
55 318-319 (11th ed. 1866) ("In this extensive sense the United States may be termed a corporation"); Van Brocklin

v. Tennessee, 117 U.S. 151, 154 (1886) ("The United States is a . . . great corporation . . . ordained and established by the American people") (quoting United [495 U.S. 182, 202] States v. Maurice, 26 F. Cas. 1211, 1216 (No. 15,747) (CC Va. 1823) (Marshall, C. J.)); Cotton v. United States, 11 How. 229, 231 (1851) (United States is "a corporation"). See generally Trustees of Dartmouth College v. Woodward, 4 Wheat. 518, 561-562 (1819) (explaining history of term "corporation").
[Ngiraingas v. Sanchez, 495 U.S. 182 (1990)]

Hence, the tax proposed above by the proposed Sixteenth Amendment is a tax ONLY upon federal corporations, which are franchises.

"Is it a franchise? A franchise is said to be a right reserved to the people by the constitution, as the elective franchise. Again, it is said to be a privilege conferred by grant from government, and vested in one or more individuals, as a public office. Corporations, or bodies politic are the most usual franchises known to our laws."
[People v. Ridgley, 21 Ill. 65, 1859 WL 6687, 11 Peck 65 (Ill., 1859)]

The income tax is a franchise tax upon the PRIVILEGE of operating as a federal and not state corporation. It in effect functions as "liability insurance premium" paid to the government for the privilege of operating the corporation WITHOUT personal liability to the officers of the corporation or shareholders. All franchises are implemented as excise taxes and would come under the category of excise taxes within Article 1, Section 8, Clause 1 of the Constitution:

Article I - U.S. Constitution

Section 8

Clause 1

The Congress shall have Power To lay and collect Taxes, Duties, Imposts and Excises, to pay the Debts and provide for the common Defence and general Welfare of the United States; but all Duties, Imposts and Excises shall be uniform throughout the United States;

The above analysis explains the following rulings on the income taxes AFTER the Sixteenth Amendment proposed by Taft was enacted FRAUDULENTLY:

"The Sixteenth Amendment declares that Congress shall have power to levy and collect taxes on income, "from [271 U.S. 174] whatever source derived," without apportionment among the several states and without regard to any census or enumeration. It was not the purpose or effect of that amendment to bring any new subject within the taxing power. Congress already had power to tax all incomes. But taxes on incomes from some sources had been held to be "direct taxes" within the meaning of the constitutional requirement as to apportionment. Art. 1, § 2, cl. 3, § 9, cl. 4; Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co., 158 U.S. 601. The Amendment relieved from that requirement, and obliterated the distinction in that respect between taxes on income that are direct taxes and those that are not, and so put on the same basis all incomes "from whatever source derived." Brushaber v. Union P. R. Co., 240 U.S. 1, 17. "Income" has been taken to mean the same thing as used in the Corporation Excise Tax Act of 1909, in the Sixteenth Amendment, and in the various revenue acts subsequently passed. Southern Pacific Co. v. Lowe, 247 U.S. 330, 335; Merchants' L. & T. Co. v. Smietanka, 255 U.S. 509, 219. After full consideration, this Court declared that income may be defined as gain derived from capital, from labor, or from both combined, including profit gained through sale or conversion of capital. Stratton's Independence v. Howbert, 231 U.S. 399, 415; Doyle v. Mitchell Brothers Co., 247 U.S. 179, 185; Eisner v. Macomber, 252 U.S. 189, 207. And that definition has been adhered to and applied repeatedly. See, e.g., Merchants' L. & T. Co. v. Smietanka, supra; 518; Goodrich v. Edwards, 255 U.S. 527, 535; United States v. Phellis, 257 U.S. 156, 169; Miles v. Safe Deposit Co., 259 U.S. 247, 252-253; United States v. Supplee-Biddle Co., 265 U.S. 189, 194; Irwin v. Gavit, 268 U.S. 161, 167; Edwards v. Cuba Railroad, 268 U.S. 628, 633. In determining what constitutes income, substance rather than form is to be given controlling weight. Eisner v. Macomber, supra, 206. [271 U.S. 175]"
[Bowers v. Kerbaugh-Empire Co., 271 U.S. 170, 174, (1926)]

Note that the tax described in the Corporation Excise Tax Act of 1909 was a tax ONLY upon federal and not state corporations.

"...Whatever difficulty there may be about a precise scientific definition of 'income' it imports, as used here, something entirely distinct from principal or capital either as a subject of taxation or as a measure of the tax; conveying rather the idea of gain or increase arising from corporate activities."
[Doyle v. Mitchell Brothers Co., 247 U.S. 179, 185, 38 S.Ct. 467 (1918)]

"As repeatedly pointed out by this court, the Corporation Tax Law of 1909. imposed an excise or privilege tax, and not in any sense, a tax upon property or upon income merely as income. It was enacted in view of the decision of Pollock v. Farmer's Loan & T. Co., 157 U.S. 429, 29 L.Ed. 759, 15 Sup. St. Rep. 673, 158 U.S. 601,

1 39 L.Ed. 1108, 15 Sup.Ct.Rep. 912, which held the income tax provisions of a previous law to be unconstitutional
 2 because amounting in effect to a direct tax upon property within the meaning of the Constitution, and because
 3 not apportioned in the manner required by that instrument."

5 When confronted by the above realities in a video interview, the Former IRS Commissioner Shelton Cohen (a Jewish money
 6 grubbing Pharisee<sup>45</sup> in private practice at the time) told movie producer Aaron Russo (who had terminal cancer at the time)
 7 that he didn't give a DAMN about what the Supreme Court says on the subject! Quite the anarchist! Instead he said all the 8 people in Washington want to do is "play word games". He didn't say WHY they want to play "word games" but the reason
 9 is obvious: They want to deceive people out of their money by playing word games. SCUM BAG. He ought to be behind

12 5.2.14.3 Being a federal corporation is the ONLY way provided in federal statutes to transition from being 13 legislatively "foreign" to "domestic"<sup>46</sup>

14 The definitions found within the Internal Revenue Code and the rules of statutory construction betray the fact that the only
 15 way to be "domestic" in relation to the national government is to be is be a national corporation registered in the District of 16 Columbia.

17 26 U.S. Code § 7701 - Definitions

18 (a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent
 19 thereof—

20 (3) Corporation

21 The term "corporation" includes associations, joint-stock companies, and insurance companies.

22 (4) Domestic

23 The term "domestic" when applied to a corporation or partnership means created or organized in the United
 24 States or under the law of the United States or of any State unless, in the case of a partnership, the Secretary 25 provides otherwise by regulations.

26 (5) Foreign

27 The term "foreign" when applied to a corporation or partnership means a corporation or partnership which is 28 not domestic.

29 The rules of statutory construction forbid extending the statutory term defined above to include anything OTHER than that 30 defined above, including PRIVATE human beings. Therefore, the ONLY thing "domestic" are national corporations. All
 31 human beings are therefore FOREIGN for legislative purposes.

32 "When a statute includes an explicit definition, we must follow that definition, even if it varies from that term's
 33 ordinary meaning. Meese v. Keene, 481 U.S. 465, 484-485 (1987) ("It is axiomatic that the statutory definition
 34 of the term excludes unstated meanings of that term"); Colautti v. Franklin, 439 U.S. at 392-393, n. 10 ("As a
 35 rule, a definition which declares what a term "means" . . . excludes any meaning that is not stated"); Western
 36 Union Telegraph Co. v. Lenroot, 323 U.S. 490, 502 (1945); Fox v. Standard Oil Co. of N.J., 294 U.S. 87, 95-96

and n. 10 (5th ed. 1992) (collecting cases). That is to say, the statute, read "as a whole," post at 998 [530 U.S. 943] (THOMAS, J., dissenting), leads the reader to a definition. That definition does not include the Attorney General's restriction -- "the child up to the head." Its words, "substantial portion," indicate the contrary." [Stenberg v. Carhart, 530 U.S. 914 \(2000\)]

"Expressio unius est exclusio alterius. A maxim of statutory interpretation meaning that the expression of one thing is the exclusion of another. Burgin v. Forbes, 293 Ky. 456, 169 S.W.2d. 321, 325; Newblock v. Bowles, 170 Okl. 487, 40 P.2d. 1097, 1100. Mention of one thing implies exclusion of another. When certain persons or things are specified in a law, contract, or will, an intention to exclude all others from its operation may be inferred. Under this maxim, if statute specifies one exception to a general rule or assumes to specify the effects of a certain provision, other exceptions or effects are excluded." [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 581]

Everything that is either NOT a corporation or NOT registered in the District of Columbia as a national corporation is therefore legislatively "foreign" for the purpose of the Internal Revenue Code. This is also consistent with the fact that "income" is defined in the Internal Revenue Code and by the U.S. Supreme Court as profit in connection with a federal corporation or business trust.

"The Sixteenth Amendment declares that Congress shall have power to levy and collect taxes on income, "from [271 U.S. 174] whatever source derived," without apportionment among the several states and without regard to any census or enumeration. It was not the purpose or effect of that amendment to bring any new subject within the taxing power. Congress already had power to tax all incomes. TITLE 26 > Subtitle A > CHAPTER 1 > Subchapter J > PART I > Subpart A > § 643
§ 643. Definitions applicable to subparts A, B, C, and D

(b) Income

For purposes of this subpart and subparts B, C, and D, the term "income", when not preceded by the words "taxable", "distributable net", "undistributed net", or "gross", means the amount of income of the estate or trust for the taxable year determined under the terms of the governing instrument and applicable local law. Items of gross income constituting extraordinary dividends or taxable stock dividends which the fiduciary, acting in good faith, determines to be allocable to corpus under the terms of the governing instrument and applicable local law shall not be considered income.

That "trust" described above in turn is ONLY a PUBLIC trust, meaning the "United States corporation". The definitions of "person" within the Internal Revenue Code confirm this:

TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 68 > Subchapter B > PART I > § 6671
§ 6671. Rules for application of assessable penalties

(b) Person defined

The term "person", as used in this subchapter, includes an officer or employee of a corporation, or a member or employee of a partnership, who as such officer, employee, or member is under a duty to perform the act in respect of which the violation occurs.

TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 75 > Subchapter D > Sec. 7343.
Sec. 7343 - Definition of term "person"

The term "person" as used in this chapter [Chapter 75] includes an officer or employee of a corporation [U.S. Inc.], or a member or employee of a partnership, who as such officer, employee, or member is under a duty to perform the act in respect of which the violation occurs

The PRIVILEGE of exercising the "functions of a public office" is the PRIVILEGE being taxed. That "privilege" is legally defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) as a "trade or business":

"As repeatedly pointed out by this court, the Corporation Tax Law of 1909..imposed an excise or privilege tax, and not in any sense, a tax upon property or upon income merely as income. It was enacted in view of the decision of Pollock v. Farmer's Loan & T. Co., 157 U.S. 429, 29 L.Ed. 759, 15 Sup.St.Rep. 673, 158 U.S. 601, 39 L.Ed. 1108, 15 Sup.Ct.Rep. 912, which held the income tax provisions of a previous law to be unconstitutional because amounting in effect to a direct tax upon property within the meaning of the Constitution, and because not apportioned in the manner required by that instrument."

Congress can only tax or regulate what it creates, and it didn't create you. Corporations and offices within the government in fact are the only legal "persons" they can lawfully create and therefore tax. This is explained in:

Hierarchy of Sovereignty: The Power to Create is the Power to Tax, Family Guardian Fellowship
<http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/Remedies/PowerToCreate.htm>

Everything the government DIDN'T create is therefore PRIVATE and legislatively FOREIGN. The U.S. Supreme Court confirmed that the tax is upon AGENCY as a PUBLIC OFFICE in the national government when they held that the tax can lawfully extend ONLY where the government itself extends, but no further.

"Loughborough v. Blake, 5 Wheat. 317, 5 L.Ed. 98, was an action of trespass or, as appears by the original record, replevin, brought in the circuit court for the District of Columbia to try the right of Congress to impose a direct tax for general purposes on that District. 3 Stat. at L. 216, chap. 60. It was insisted that Congress could act in a double capacity: in one as legislating [182 U.S. 244, 260] for the states; in the other as a local legislature for the District of Columbia. In the latter character, it was admitted that the power of levying direct taxes might be exercised, but for District purposes only, as a state legislature might tax for state purposes; but that it could not legislate for the District under art. 1, 8, giving to Congress the power 'to lay and collect taxes, imposts, and excises,' which 'shall be uniform throughout the United States,' inasmuch as the District was no part of the United States [described in the Constitution]. It was held that the grant of this power was a general one without limitation as to place, and consequently extended to all places over which the government extends; and that it extended to the District of Columbia as a constituent part of the United States. The fact that art. 1, 2, declares that 'representatives and direct taxes shall be apportioned among the several states . . . according to their respective numbers' furnished a standard by which taxes were apportioned, but not to exempt any part of the country from their operation. The words used do not mean that direct taxes shall be imposed on states only which are represented, or shall be apportioned to representatives; but that direct taxation, in its application to states, shall be apportioned to numbers.' That art. 1, 9, 4, declaring that direct taxes shall be laid in proportion to the census, was applicable to the District of Columbia, 'and will enable Congress to apportion on it its just and equal share of the burden, with the same accuracy as on the respective states. If the tax be laid in this proportion, it is within the very words of the restriction. It is a tax in proportion to the census or enumeration referred to.' It was further held that the words of the 9th section did not 'in terms require that the system of direct taxation, when resorted to, shall be extended to the territories, as the words of the 2d section require that it shall be extended to all the states. They therefore may, without violence, be understood to give a rule when the territories shall be taxed, without imposing the necessity of taxing them.'"
 Downes v. Bidwell, [182 U.S. 244 (1901)]

The phrase "extended to all places over which the government extends" means where the OFFICES and therefore STATUTORY "persons" of the government extend. Those offices, as indicated above, can be exercised ANYWHERE, but Congress MUST EXPRESSLY authorize their exercise in a SPECIFIC geographic place and cause those exercising it to take an oath, as required by 4 U.S.C. §72 and 5 U.S.C. §3331 respectively. Those offices, in turn, are "officers of a corporation" because the government itself is a corporation as held by the U.S. Supreme Court:

"Corporations are also of all grades, and made for varied objects; all governments are corporations, created by usage and common consent, or grants and charters which create a body politic for prescribed purposes; but whether they are private, local or general, in their objects, for the enjoyment of property, or the exercise of power, they are all governed by the same rules of law, as to the construction and the obligation of the instrument by which the incorporation is made. One universal rule of law protects persons and property. It is a fundamental principle of the common law of England, that the term freemen of the kingdom, includes 'all persons,' ecclesiastical and temporal, incorporate, politique or natural; it is a part of their magna charta (2 Inst. 4), and is incorporated into our institutions. The persons of the members of corporations are on the same footing of protection as other persons, and their corporate property secured by the same laws which protect that of individuals. 2 Inst. 46-7. 'No man shall be taken,' 'no man shall be disseised,' 'without due process of law,' is a principle taken from magna charta, infused into all our state constitutions, and is made inviolable by the federal government, by the amendments to the constitution."

 PART VI - PARTICULAR PROCEEDINGS
 CHAPTER 176 - FEDERAL DEBT COLLECTION PROCEDURE
 SUBCHAPTER A - DEFINITIONS AND GENERAL PROVISIONS
 Sec. 3002. Definitions

(15) "United States" means -
 (A) a Federal corporation;
 (B) an agency, department, commission, board, or other entity of the United States; or
 (C) an instrumentality of the United States.

5.2.14.4 "trade or business"="public office"

Subtitle A of the Internal Revenue Code imposes a tax upon two distinct groups mentioned in 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1. These are:

1. Public employees domiciled in the federal zone and traveling overseas: The tax is imposed under 26 U.S.C. §911 upon those domiciled in the federal zone who are traveling temporarily overseas and fall under a tax treaty. The tax applies only to "trade or business" income which is recorded on an IRS Form 1040 and 2555. See also the Supreme Court case of Cook v. Tait, 265 U.S. 47 (1924). The tax imposed in 26 U.S.C. §1 against those domiciled in the federal zone engaged in a "trade or business", which is defined as "the functions of a public office" in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(26\). This includes:
  - 1.1. "U.S. citizens" who are described in 8 U.S.C. §1401 as persons born in the federal zone. See:

Why You are a "national", "state national", and Constitutional but not Statutory Citizen, Form #05.006
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>
  - 1.2. "residents" who are all aliens and foreign nationals domiciled in our country.
2. Nonresident aliens receiving government payments: These are all nationals or instrumentalities of a foreign country either physically present on federal territory or at least doing business there under the Minimum Contacts Doctrine and the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act (FSIA), 28 U.S.C. Chapter 97. All of their activities constitute foreign commerce that is subject to regulation or control by the national government. The tax imposed under 26 U.S.C. §871 on nonresident aliens with government income that is:
  - 2.1. Not connected with a "trade or business" under 26 U.S.C. §871\(a\) but originates from the federal zone.
  - 2.2. Connected with a "trade or business" under 26 U.S.C. §871\(b\).

Those engaged in a "trade or business":

1. Must be federal statutory "employees" and "public officers" and "subcontractors" for the federal government under 26 C.F.R. §31.3401\(c\)-1 and 5 U.S.C. §2105(a).
2. Are acting in a representative capacity for the federal corporation called the "United States" defined in 28 U.S.C. §3002\(15\)\(A\) and therefore are subject to the laws where the corporation was incorporated under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17\(b\), which is the District of Columbia.
3. Are completely subject to federal jurisdiction without the need for implementing regulations published in the Federal Register, as revealed under 44 U.S.C. §1505\(a\)\(1\), 5 U.S.C. §552\(a\)\(1\), and 5 U.S.C. §553\(a\)\(2\).
4. Are subject to penalties and the criminal provisions of the Internal Revenue Code while acting as "public officers". Both 26 U.S.C. §6671\(b\) and 26 U.S.C. §7343 define "person" as an officer of a corporation, and that corporation is the federal government, which is defined in 28 U.S.C. §3002\(15\)\(A\) as a federal corporation.
5. Are withholding agents who are liable under 26 U.S.C. §1461, because they are nonresident aliens who must withhold federal kickbacks and send them to the IRS.
6. Are "transferees" and "fiduciaries" over federal payments under 26 U.S.C. §§6901 and 6903.

A picture is worth a thousand words. Below is a diagram showing the condition of those who are employed by private employers and who have consented to participate in the federal tax system by completing an IRS Form W-4. This diagram shows graphically the relationships established by filling out the IRS Form W-4 and signing it under penalty of perjury.

1 Figure 5-5: Employment arrangement of those involved in a "trade or business"

3 NOTES ON ABOVE DIAGRAM:

1. The I.R.C. Subtitle A income tax is NOT implemented through public law or positive law, but primarily through private law. Private law always supersedes enacted positive law because no court or government can interfere with your right to contract. See Article 1, Section 10 of the Constitution for the proof. The W-4 is a contract, and the United States has jurisdiction over its own property and employees under Article 4, Section 3, Clause 2, wherever they may reside, including in places where it has no legislative jurisdiction. The W-4 you signed is a private contract that makes you into a federal employee, and neither the state nor the federal government may interfere with the private right to contract. 26 C.F.R. §31.3402\(p\)-1 identifies the W-4 as an “agreement”, which is a contract. It doesn't say that on the form, because your covetous government doesn't want you to know you are signing a contract by submitting a W-4.
2. The “tax” is not paid by you, but by your “straw man”, who is a federal “public officer” engaged in a “trade or business” as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(26\). His workplace is the “District of Columbia” under 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(39\), 26 U.S.C. §7408\(d\), and Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b). That “public officer” you have volunteered to represent is working as a federal “employee” who is part of the United States government, which is defined as a federal corporation in 28 U.S.C. §3002\(15\)\(A\). In that sense, the “tax” is indirect, because you don't pay it, but your straw man, who is a “public officer”, pays it to your “employer”, the federal government, which is a federal corporation.
3. Because you are a federal “employee” and you work for a federal corporation, then you are acting as an “officer or employee of a federal corporation” and you:
  - 3.1. Are the proper subject of the penalty statutes, as defined under 26 U.S.C. §6671\(b\).
  - 3.2. Are the proper subject of the criminal provisions of the Internal Revenue Code found in 26 U.S.C. §7343.
  - 3.3. May have the code enforced against you without implementing regulations as required by 44 U.S.C. §1505\(a\)\(1\) and 5 U.S.C. §553\(a\)\(2\)
4. The “activity” of performing a “trade or business” is only “taxable” when executed in the statutory “United States**” (federal zone), which is defined as in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(9\) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d). See 26 U.S.C. §864 and this section for evidence.
5. Those who file form 1040 instead of the proper form 1040NR provide evidence under penalty of perjury that they are statutory “U.S. persons” (see 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(30\) ) who are domiciled in the statutory “United States**” (federal zone). The IRS Published Products Catalog (2003), Document 7130 says the form can only be used for “citizens or residents” of the statutory “United States**” (federal zone).

If you would like to know more about the above diagram and the details behind what a “trade or business” is, please consult the following memorandum of law:

If you are a “nonresident alien” with no income originating from the statutory “United States**” (federal zone) under 26 U.S.C. §871, then you aren't even mentioned in the I.R.C. as a subject for any Internal Revenue tax. It was shown starting in section 4.11 of the Great IRS Hoax book that nearly all Americans living in states of the Union are “nonresident aliens”, and so the above provision must apply to you, folks. To summarize the findings of this section then, those who are “nonresident aliens” with no “sources of income” connected with a public office (which is defined as a “trade or business” in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(26\)) in the District of Columbia and who never signed a W-4:

1. Are not engaged in an excise taxable activity under the I.R.C. Subtitle A.
2. May not lawfully have any Information Returns, such as a W-2, 1098, or 1099 filed against them. See:

3. Don't earn any “gross income”:

 4 (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d)], as determined under the provisions of sections 861 through 863, and the 5 regulations thereunder, is not included in the gross income of a nonresident alien individual unless such
 6 income is effectively connected for the taxable year with the conduct of a trade or business in the United States
 7 by that individual. To determine specific exclusions in the case of other items which are from sources within the 8 United States, see the applicable sections of the Code. For special rules under a tax convention for determining 9 the sources of income and for excluding, from gross income, income from sources without the United States which
 10 is effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business in the United States, see the applicable tax
 11 convention. For determining which income from sources without the United States is effectively connected with 12 the conduct of a trade or business in the United States, see section 864(c)(4) and §1.864-5.

13 4. Their entire estate is a “foreign estate” under 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(31\) not subject to the I.R.C.

14 TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > § 7701
 15 § 7701. Definitions

16 (a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent
 17 thereof—

18 (31) Foreign estate or trust

19 (A) Foreign estate

20 The term “foreign estate” means an estate the income of which, from sources without the United States which is 21 not effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business within the United States, is not includible in 22 gross income under subtitle A.

23 5. Are a “nontaxpayer” not subject to the I.R.C. All portions within the I.R.C., IRS Publications, and the Internal Revenue
 24 Manual (I.R.M.) that refer to “taxpayers” don't refer to you and can safely be disregarded and disobeyed.

25 “Revenue Laws relate to taxpayers [officers, employees, and elected officials of the Federal Government] and 26 not to non-taxpayers [American Citizens/American Nationals not subject to the exclusive jurisdiction of the 27 Federal Government]. The latter are without their scope. No procedures are prescribed for non-taxpayers and 28 no attempt is made to annul any of their Rights or Remedies in due course of law.”
 29 [Economy Plumbing & Heating v. U.S., 470 F.2d. 585 \(1972\)]

30 6. If any money was withheld from your pay by either a business or a financial institution, then you are due for a refund of 31 all withholding.

32 7. Cannot file an IRS Form 1040, because EVERYTHING that goes on that form is treated as “effectively connected with 33 a trade or business”. That form is for “aliens”, and not “nonresident aliens”, as was shown in section 5.5.2 of the Great
 34 IRS Hoax.

35 8. Cannot lawfully have any CTR's, or “Currency Transaction Reports”, prepared against you by any financial institution
 36 for withdrawals in excess of $10,000. Only those “effectively connected with a trade or business in the United States”
 37 can be the proper subject of CTR's. See:

38 <http://famguardian.org/Subjects/MoneyBanking/Articles/FedTransReptnRequirements.htm>

39 9. Cannot be the subject of federal jurisdiction in the context of Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A

40 10. Cannot be treated as a federal “employee”.

41 11. Cannot lawfully be penalized or criminally prosecuted by the IRS for failure to volunteer to participate in the federal tax 42 system.

43 Based on the above table, ALL of the revenues collected by the IRS under the authority of Subtitle A only apply within the 44 federal zone and are simply donations, not lawful “taxes” for people in states of the Union who are not federal public officers.
 45 In particular, Subtitle A of the Internal Revenue Code applies ONLY within the statutory “United States**” (federal zone),
 46 as is revealed by the definition of “United States” found in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(9\) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d). The 47 IRS has been involved in criminal extortion in the case of persons domiciled in states of the Union who are not engaged in a 48 “trade or business” because they are:

1. Deliberately and systematically deceiving Americans about the requirements of the I.R.C. using their publications, as was shown in section 3.18 of the Great IRS Hoax. They are doing so by not explaining what “United States” means in their publications and by not emphasizing that Subtitle A of the Internal Revenue Code is entirely voluntary and not a “tax”, but a donation. They also are trying to make most Americans falsely believe that the two jurisdictions identified above are equivalent, and that all Americans living in states of the Union are “citizens of the United States” or “residents” under federal law, when in fact they are not. Americans who make false statements on their tax returns go to jail for 3 years minimum, but the I.R.S. does it with impunity every day in their publications and the federal judiciary refuses to hold them accountable for this constructive fraud.
2. Applying Subtitles A through C of the Internal Revenue Code to persons in states of the Union over which they have no jurisdiction.
3. Are enforcing I.R.C. Subtitle A against other than federal “employees”. There are no implementing regulations authorizing enforcement against other than federal “employees” as required by 44 U.S.C. §1505\(a\)\(1\), 26 C.F.R. §601.702\(a\)\(2\)\(ii\), and 5 U.S.C. §553\(a\)\(2\).
4. Enforcing that which is not “law” for that specific group and is therefore unenforceable. The Internal Revenue Code is not “law” for “nontaxpayers”, as you will find out later in section 5.4.3 of the Great IRS Hoax, Form #11.302, and therefore may not be enforced against anyone absent explicit, informed, voluntary consent. This consent is what makes them subject to it and “taxpayers”.

5.2.14.5 U.S. Supreme Court agrees that income tax is a tax on the GOVERNMENT and not PRIVATE people

Below are some authorities we have found proving that I.R.C. Subtitles A and C is an income tax on the GOVERNMENT and not private human beings:

1. All the powers of the government, including civil enforcement powers, require individual agency on behalf of the government by the object of the enforcement. Private people do not have such agency, and therefore cannot be statutory “taxpayers”.

“All the powers of the government [including ALL of its civil enforcement powers against the public] must be carried into operation by individual agency, either through the medium of public officers, or contracts made with [private] individuals.”

[Osborn v. Bank of U.S., 22 U.S. 738 (1824)]

2. Congress has no legislative power within a state and cannot establish franchises such as a “trade or business” there:

“Thus, Congress having power to regulate commerce with foreign nations, and among the several States, and with the Indian tribes, may, without doubt, provide for granting coasting licenses, licenses to pilots, licenses to trade with the Indians, and any other licenses necessary or proper for the exercise of that great and extensive a power; and the same observation is applicable to every other power of Congress, to the exercise of which the granting of licenses may be incident. All such licenses confer authority, and give rights to the licensee.

But very different considerations apply to the internal commerce or domestic trade of the States. Over this commerce and trade Congress has no power of regulation nor any direct control. This power belongs exclusively to the States. No interference by Congress with the business of citizens transacted within a State is warranted by the Constitution, except such as is strictly incidental to the exercise of powers clearly granted to the legislature. The power to authorize a business within a State is plainly repugnant to the exclusive power of the State over the same subject. It is true that the power of Congress to tax is a very extensive power. It is given in the Constitution, with only one exception and only two qualifications. Congress cannot tax exports, and it must impose direct taxes by the rule of apportionment, and indirect taxes by the rule of uniformity. Thus limited, and thus only, it reaches every subject, and may be exercised at discretion. But, it reaches only existing subjects. Congress cannot authorize [e.g. LICENSE, using a Social Security Number (SSN) or Taxpayer Identification Number (TIN)] a trade or business [per 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26)] within a State in order to tax it.”

[License Tax Cases, 72 U.S. 462, 18 L.Ed. 497, 5 Wall. 462, 2 A.F.T.R. 2224 (1866) ]

3. The income tax extends ONLY to all places where the GOVERNMENT rather than the TERRITORY served BY the government extends. The cite below explains why “United States” is legally defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) as the District of Columbia and NO part of any state of the Union, as we point out in the next section.

“Loughborough v. Blake, 5 Wheat. 317, 5 L.Ed. 98, was an action of trespass or, as appears by the original record, replevin, brought in the circuit court for the District of Columbia to try the right of Congress to impose a direct tax for general purposes on that District. 3 Stat. at L. 216, chap. 60. It was insisted that Congress could act in a double capacity: in one as legislating [182 U.S. 244, 260] for the states; in the other as a local legislature

1 for the District of Columbia. In the latter character, it was admitted that the power of levying direct taxes might
 2 be exercised, but for District purposes only, as a state legislature might tax for state purposes; but that it could
 3 not legislate for the District under art. 1, 8, giving to Congress the power 'to lay and collect taxes, imposts, and
 4 excises,' which 'shall be uniform throughout the United States,' inasmuch as the District was no part of the
 5 United States [described in the Constitution]. It was held that the grant of this power was a general one without
 6 limitation as to place, and consequently extended to all places over which the government extends; and that it
 7 extended to the District of Columbia as a constituent part of the United States."
 8 [Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901)]

9 In support of our hypothesis:

10 3.1. Note the phrase: "WHEREVER THE GOVERNMENT EXTENDS" and contrast with "WHEREVER THE 11 TERRITORY EXTENDS".

12 3.2. Note the phrase "'WITHOUT LIMITATION AS TO PLACE", which can only mean contract and debt, because 13 neither are limited as to place:

14 Debt and contract [franchise agreement, in this case] are of no particular place.
 15 Locus contractus regit actum.
 16 The place of the contract [franchise agreement, in this case] governs the act.

19 Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17 governs what is called "choice of law" in civil disputes within federal courts. Consistent
 20 with the above, Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b) says that the law that applies to all civil disputes in federal court is the 21 law from the DOMICILE of the party:

22 IV. PARTIES > Rule 17.
 23 Rule 17. Parties Plaintiff and Defendant; Capacity

24 (b) Capacity to Sue or be Sued.

25 Capacity to sue or be sued is determined as follows:

26 (1) for an individual who is not acting in a representative capacity, by the law of the individual's domicile;

27 (2) for a corporation, by the law under which it was organized; and

28 (3) for all other parties, by the law of the state where the court is located, except that:

29 (A) a partnership or other unincorporated association with no such capacity under that state's law may sue or
 30 be sued in its common name to enforce a substantive right existing under the United States Constitution or 31 laws; and

32 (B) 28 U.S.C. §§ 754 and 959(a) govern the capacity of a receiver appointed by a United States court to sue
 33 or be sued in a United States court.

34 [\[Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17\(b\)\]](#)

35 Those domiciled OUTSIDE of federal territory and the statutory "United States" cannot quote federal civil law in disputes in 36 federal court. The only exception given above is if they are representing a legislatively foreign corporation, such as a federal 37 corporation, in which case the law that applies is the law of the DOMICILE of the foreign corporation rather than the 38 OFFICER'S domicile. Hence, those within states of the Union acting as officers of the national government, whether officers
 39 of a federal corporation, federal government workers, or federal public officers, can cite ONLY the laws of the United States
 40 government in the context of their official duties in a federal civil court. The authority for doing so is Article 4, Section 3,
 41 Clause 2 of the United States Constitution

42 United States Constitution
 43 Article 4, Section 3, Clause 2

44 *The Congress shall have Power to dispose of and make all needful Rules and Regulations respecting the
 45 Territory or other Property belonging to the United States; and nothing in this Constitution shall be so construed*
 46 as to Prejudice any Claims of the United States, or of any particular State.

47 The above provision empowers congress to make all INTERNAL rules for operating the GOVERNMENT. The INTERNAL 48 Revenue Code and the INTERNAL Revenue Service that enforces it both count as JUST such a rule.

49 "The Constitution permits Congress to dispose of and to make all needful rules and regulations respecting the
 50 *territory or other property belonging to the United States. This power applies as well to territory belonging to 51 the United States within the States, as beyond them. It comprehends all the public domain, wherever it may be.
 52 The argument is, that the power to make 'ALL needful rules and regulations' 'is a power of legislation,' 'a full legislative power; 'that it includes all subjects of legislation in the territory,' and is without any limitations, except the positive prohibitions which affect all the powers of Congress. Congress may then regulate or prohibit slavery upon the public domain within the new States, and such a prohibition would permanently affect the capacity of a slave, whose master might carry him to it. And why not? Because no power has been conferred on Congress. This is a conclusion universally admitted. But the power to 'make rules and regulations respecting the territory' is not restrained by State lines, nor are there any constitutional prohibitions upon its exercise in the domain of the United States within the States; and whatever rules and regulations respecting territory Congress may constitutionally make are supreme, and are not dependent on the situs of 'the territory.'"

[Dred Scott v. Sandford, 60 U.S. 393, 509-510 (1856)]

5.2.14.6 "United States" in a geographical sense ONLY means federal territory and excludes constitutional states of the Union

The following definitions imply that the United States meant in the Internal Revenue Code is federal territories and the "United States**" mentioned in the previous section:

TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > Sec. 7701. [Internal Revenue Code]
Sec. 7701. - Definitions

(a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof—

(9) United States

The term "United States" when used in a geographical sense includes only the States and the District of Columbia.

(10) State

The term "State" shall be construed to include the District of Columbia, where such construction is necessary to carry out provisions of this title.

The term "the States" also implies the following:

TITLE 4 - FLAG AND SEAL, SEAT OF GOVERNMENT, AND **THE STATES**
CHAPTER 4 - **THE STATES**
Sec. 110. Same; definitions

(d) The term "State" includes any Territory or possession of the United States.

Based on the rules of statutory construction, we are not allowed to PRESUME anything OTHER than that which is expressly specified and a failure to observe this rule is a violation of due process of law, a violation of the constitutional requirement for reasonable notice, and a tort:

"It is apparent that a constitutional prohibition cannot be transgressed indirectly by the creation of a statutory presumption any more than it can be violated by direct enactment. The power to create presumptions is not a means of escape from constitutional restrictions."
[Bailey v. Alabama, 219 U.S. 219 (1911)]

"Expressio unius est exclusio alterius. A maxim of statutory interpretation meaning that the expression of one thing is the exclusion of another. Burgin v. Forbes, 293 Ky. 456, 169 S.W.2d. 321, 325; Newblock v. Bowles, 170 Okl. 487, 40 P.2d. 1097, 1100. Mention of one thing implies exclusion of another. When certain persons or things are specified in a law, contract, or will, an intention to exclude all others from its operation may be inferred. Under this maxim, if statute specifies one exception to a general rule or assumes to specify the effects of a certain provision, other exceptions or effects are excluded."
[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 581]

"When a statute includes an explicit definition, we must follow that definition, even if it varies from that term's ordinary meaning. Meese v. Keene, 481 U.S. 465, 484-485 (1987) ("It is axiomatic that the statutory definition of the term excludes unstated meanings of that term"); Colautti v. Franklin, 439 U.S. at 392-393, n. 10 ("As a rule, 'a definition which declares what a term 'means' . . . excludes any meaning that is not stated"); Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Lenroot, 323 U.S. 490, 502 (1945); Fox v. Standard Oil Co. of N.J., 294 U.S. 87, 95-96 (1935) (Cardozo, J.); see also 2A N. Singer, Sutherland on Statutes and Statutory Construction § 47.07, p. 152, and n. 10 (5th ed. 1992) (collecting cases). That is to say, the statute, read "as a whole," post at 998 [530 U.S. 943] (THOMAS, J., dissenting), leads the reader to a definition. That definition does not include the Attorney General's restriction -- "the child up to the head." Its words, "substantial portion," indicate the contrary."

1 [\[Stenberg v. Carhart, 530 U.S. 914 \(2000\)\]](#)

2 Note the following important facts:

- 3 1. We are NOT implying that the GEOGRAPHIC sense is the ONLY sense in which the term “United States” is used in
- 4 Internal Revenue Code, Subtitles A and C.
- 5 2. The only sense OTHER than the “GEOGRAPHIC SENSE” in which the term “United States” can be or is used within
- 6 Internal Revenue Code, Subtitles A and C is the NATIONAL GOVERNMENT as a legal person, a federal corporation,
- 7 and a statutory but not constitutional “person”.
- 8 3. Based on the rules of statutory construction, the only time when the GEOGRAPHIC sense can logically be implied is
- 9 when the term “United States” is PRECEDED by the word “geographic”.

10 Note that if you don't clarify the above when you are litigating this issue, you be told that your argument is frivolous per 11 Becraft v. Nelson (In re Becraft), 885 F.2d. 547, 549 n2 (9th Circuit).

19 A very important method of determining who the intended audience for an enforcement statute or regulation is to look at

20 whether or not it has implementing enforcement regulations. This section will expand upon the notice and publication process

21 for federal regulations to pinpoint the exact steps by which enforcement authority is obtained by Executive Branch agencies

22 and will describe who the specific targets of the enforcement may lawfully be based upon the method of publication. We

23 will prove that for the purposes of the enforcement provisions of the Internal Revenue Code, there are no implementing

24 regulations and therefore, that the ONLY lawful audience for enforcement is officers of the government.

25 The Federal Register Act, 44 U.S.C. §1505 et seq., and the Administrative Procedures Act, 5 U.S.C. §553 et seq, both describe

26 laws which may be enforced as “laws having general applicability and legal effect”. Laws which have general applicability

27 and legal effect are laws that apply to persons OTHER than those in the government or to the public at large. To wit, read

28 the following, which is repeated in slightly altered form in 5 U.S.C. §553(a):

29 TITLE 44 > CHAPTER 15 > § 1505

30 § 1505. Documents to be published in Federal Register

31 (a) Proclamations and Executive Orders; Documents Having General Applicability and Legal Effect; Documents

33 [. . .]

34 For the purposes of this chapter every document or order which prescribes a penalty has general applicability

35 and legal effect.

36 The requirement for “reasonable notice” or “due notice” as part of Constitutional due process extends not only to statutes and

37 regulations AFTER they are enacted into law, such as when they are enforced in a court of law, but also to the publication of

38 proposed statutes and rules/regulations BEFORE they are enacted and subsequently enforced by agencies within the

39 Executive Branch. The Federal Register is the ONLY approved method by which the public at large domiciled in “States of 40 the Union” are provided with “reasonable notice” and an opportunity to comment publicly on new or proposed statutes OR

41 rules/regulations which will directly affect them and which may be enforced directly against them.

42 TITLE 44 > CHAPTER 15 > § 1508

43 § 1508. Publication in Federal Register as notice of hearing

1. IRS Due Process Meeting Handout, Form #03.008; <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>.

2. Federal Enforcement Authority Within States of the Union, Form #05.032; <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>.

A notice of hearing or of opportunity to be heard, required or authorized to be given by an Act of Congress, or which may otherwise properly be given, shall be deemed to have been given to all persons residing within the States of the Union and the District of Columbia, except in cases where notice by publication is insufficient in law, when the notice is published in the Federal Register at such a time that the period between the publication and the date fixed in the notice for the hearing or for the termination of the opportunity to be heard is—

Neither statutes nor the rules/regulations which implement them may be directly enforced within states of the Union against the general public unless and until they have been so published in the Federal Register.

TITLE 5 > PART 1 > CHAPTER 5 > SUBCHAPTER II > § 552
§ 552. Public information; agency rules, opinions, orders, records, and proceedings§ 1508. Publication in Federal Register as notice of hearing

Except to the extent that a person has actual and timely notice of the terms thereof, a person may not in any manner be required to resort to, or be adversely affected by, a matter required to be published in the Federal Register and not so published. For the purpose of this paragraph, matter reasonably available to the class of persons affected thereby is deemed published in the Federal Register when incorporated by reference therein with the approval of the Director of the Federal Register.

26 C.F.R. §601.702 Publication and public inspection

(a)(2)(ii) Effect of failure to publish.

Except to the extent that a person has actual and timely notice of the terms of any matter referred to in subparagraph (1) of this paragraph which is required to be published in the Federal Register, such person is not required in any manner to resort to, or be adversely affected by, such matter if it is not so published or is not incorporated by reference therein pursuant to subdivision (i) of this subparagraph. Thus, for example, any such matter which imposes an obligation and which is not so published or incorporated by reference will not adversely change or affect a person's rights.

The only exceptions to the requirement for publication in the Federal Register of the statute and the implementing regulations are the groups specifically identified by Congress as expressly exempted from this requirement, as follows:

1. A military or foreign affairs function of the United States. 5 U.S.C. §553\(a\)\(1\) .
2. A matter relating to agency management or personnel or to public property, loans, grants, benefits, or contracts. 5 U.S.C. §553\(a\)\(2\) .
3. Federal agencies or persons in their capacity as officers, agents, or employees thereof. 44 U.S.C. §1505\(a\)\(1\).

All of the above requirements are also mentioned in 5 U.S.C. §301 (federal employees), which establishes that the head of an Executive or military department may prescribe regulations for the internal government of his department.

TITLE 5 > PART 1 > CHAPTER 3 > § 301
§ 301. Departmental regulations

The head of an Executive department or military department may prescribe regulations for the government of his department, the conduct of its employees, the distribution and performance of its business, and the custody, use, and preservation of its records, papers, and property. This section does not authorize withholding information from the public or limiting the availability of records to the public.

Based on the above, the burden of proof imposed upon the government at any due process meeting in which it is enforcing any provision is to produce at least ONE of the following TWO things:

1. Evidence signed under penalty of perjury by someone with personal, first-hand knowledge, proving that you are a member of one of the three groups specifically exempted from the requirement for implementing regulations, as identified above.
2. Evidence of publication in the Federal Register of BOTH the statute AND the implementing regulation which they seek to enforce against you.

Without satisfying one of the above two requirements, the government is illegally enforcing federal law and becomes liable for a constitutional tort. For case number two above, the federal courts have said the following enlightening things:

1 "...for federal tax purposes, federal regulations [rather than the statutes ONLY] govern."
2 [Dodd v. United States, 223 F.Supp. 785]

4 "When enacting §7206(1) Congress undoubtedly knew that the Secretary of the Treasury is empowered to 5 prescribe all needful rules and regulations for the enforcement of the internal revenue laws, so long as they carry
6 into effect the will of Congress as expressed by the statutes. Such regulations have the force of law. The 7 Secretary, however, does not have the power to make law. Dixon v. United States, supra."
8 [United States v. Levy, 533 F.2d. 969 (1976)]

10 "An administrative regulation, of course, is not a "statute." While in practical effect regulations may be called
11 "little laws," 7 they are at most but offspring of statutes. Congress alone may pass a statute, and the Criminal
12 Appeals Act calls for direct appeals if the District Court's dismissal is based upon the invalidity or construction
13 of a statute. See United States v. Jones, 345 U.S. 377 (1953). This Court has always construed the Criminal
14 Appeals Act narrowly, limiting it strictly "to the instances specified." United States v. Borden Co., 308 U.S. 188,
15 192 (1939). See also United States v. Swift & Co., 318 U.S. 442 (1943). Here the statute is not complete by itself, 16 since it merely declares the range of its operation and leaves to its progeny the means to be utilized in the 17 effectuation of its command. But it is the statute which creates the offense of the willful removal of the labels of 18 origin and provides the punishment for violations. The regulations, on the other hand, prescribe the identifying 19 language of the label itself, and assign the resulting tags to their respective geographical areas. Once
20 promulgated, [361 U.S. 431, 438] these regulations, called for by the statute itself, have the force of law, and 21 violations thereof incur criminal prosecutions, just as if all the details had been incorporated into the 22 congressional language. The result is that neither the statute nor the regulations are complete without the 23 other, and only together do they have any force. In effect, therefore, the construction of one necessarily 24 involves the construction of the other."
25 U.S. v. Mersky, [361 U.S. 431 (1960)]

27 "...the Act's civil and criminal penalties attach only upon violation of the regulation promulgated by the 28 Secretary; if the Secretary were to do nothing, the Act itself would impose no penalties on anyone...The 29 Government urges that since only those who violate these regulations [not the Code] may incur civil or criminal
30 penalties, it is the actual regulations issued by the Secretary of the Treasury, and not the broad authorizing 31 language of the statute, which are to be tested against the standards of the Fourth Amendment; and that when so 32 tested they are valid."
33 Calif. Bankers Assoc. v. Shultz, [416 U.S. 21, 44, 39 L.Ed.2d. 812, 94 S.Ct. 1494]

35 "Although the relevant statute authorized the Secretary to impose such a duty, his implementing regulations did 36 not do so. Therefore we held that there was no duty to disclose..."
37 [United States v. Murphy, 809 F.2d. 142, 1431]

39 "Failure to adhere to agency regulations [by the IRS or other agency] may amount to denial of due process if 40 regulations are required by constitution or statute..."
41 [Curley v. United States, 791 F.Supp. 52]

42 Another very interesting observation is that the federal courts have essentially ruled that I.R.C. Subtitle A pertains exclusively 43 to government employees, agents, and officers, when they held:

44 "Federal income tax regulations governing filing of income tax returns do not require Office of Management and 45 Budget control numbers because requirement to file tax return is mandated by statute, not by regulation."
46 [U.S. v. Bartrug, E.D.Va.1991, 777 F.Supp. 1290, affirmed 976 F.2d. 727, certiorari denied 113 S.Ct. 1659, 507
47 U.S. 1010, 123 L.Ed.2d. 278]

48 Since there are no implementing regulations for most federal tax enforcement, the statutes which establish the requirement
49 are only directly enforceable against those who are members of the groups specifically exempted from the requirement for
50 implementing regulations published in the Federal Register as described above. This is also consistent with the statutes
51 authorizing enforcement within the I.R.C. itself found in 26 U.S.C. §6331, which say on the subject the following:

52 26 U.S.C., Subchapter D - Seizure of Property for Collection of Taxes
53 Sec. 6331. Levy and distraint

54 (a) Authority of Secretary

55 If any person liable to pay any tax neglects or refuses to pay the same within 10 days after notice and demand, it
56 shall be lawful for the Secretary to collect such tax (and such further sum as shall be sufficient to cover the

1 expenses of the levy) by levy upon all property and rights to property (except such property as is exempt under
2 section 6334) belonging to such person or on which there is a lien provided in this chapter for the payment of
3 such tax. Levy may be made upon the accrued salary or wages of any officer, employee, or elected official, of
4 the United States, the District of Columbia, or any agency or instrumentality of the United States or the District
5 of Columbia, by serving a notice of levy on the employer (as defined in section 3401(d)) of such officer,
6 employee, or elected official. If the Secretary makes a finding that the collection of such tax is in jeopardy, notice
7 and demand for immediate payment of such tax may be made by the Secretary and, upon failure or refusal to pay
8 such tax, collection thereof by levy shall be lawful without regard to the 10-day period provided in this section.

9 With respect to the Internal Revenue Code specifically, we have searched for enforcement regulations and found that:

- 10 1. There are no implementing regulations for the enforcement provisions of the Internal Revenue Code, Subtitles A and 11 C.
- 12 2. Without such enforcement regulations, the provisions cited can and do apply ONLY to government statutory 13 “employees”, to include:
  - 14 2.1. A military or foreign affairs function of the United States. 5 U.S.C. §553\(a\)\(1\) .
  - 15 2.2. A matter relating to agency management or personnel or to public property, loans, grants, benefits, or contracts. 5
16 U.S.C. §553\(a\)\(2\) .
  - 17 2.3. Federal agencies or persons in their capacity as officers, agents, or employees thereof. 44 U.S.C. §1505\(a\)\(1\).

18 We have tabulated our results to make them usable against the government in the following section. You can use the following
19 section at an IRS deposition against an IRS agent to give them the opportunity to PROVE that there ARE implementing 20 regulations and therefore, that the enforcement provisions apply to PRIVATE, non-governmental people such as yourself.

NOTES:

1. The only "persons" liable for penalties related to ANY tax are federal corporations or their employees.

- 1 2. 26 U.S.C. §6201 is the only statute authorizing assessment instituted by the Secretary, and this assessment may only be accomplished under 6201(a)(2) for taxes
- 2 payable by stamp and not on a return, all of which are tobacco and alcohol taxes.
- 3 3. The only statutory collection activity authorized is under 26 U.S.C. §§6331 and 6331(a) of this section only authorizes levy against elected or appointed officers of
- 4 the U.S. government. The only other type of collection that can occur must be the result of a court order and NOT either a Notice of Levy or a Notice of Seizure.

5 26 U.S.C.,
 6 Subchapter D - Seizure of Property for Collection of Taxes
 7 Sec. 6331. Levy and distraint

8 (a) Authority of Secretary

9 If any person liable to pay any tax neglects or refuses to pay the same within 10 days after notice and demand, it shall be lawful for the Secretary to collect such tax (and
 10 such further sum as shall be sufficient to cover the expenses of the levy) by levy upon all property and rights to property (except such property as is exempt under section
 11 *6334) belonging to such person or on which there is a lien provided in this chapter for the payment of such tax. Levy may be made upon the accrued salary or wages of
 12 any officer, employee, or elected official, of the United States, the District of Columbia, or any agency or instrumentality of the United States or the District of
 13 Columbia, by serving a notice of levy on the employer (as defined in section 3401(d)) of such officer, employee, or elected official. If the Secretary makes a finding that*
 14 the collection of such tax is in jeopardy, notice and demand for immediate payment of such tax may be made by the Secretary and, upon failure or refusal to pay such tax,
 15 collection thereof by levy shall be lawful without regard to the 10-day period provided in this section.

16 (b) Seizure and sale of property

17 The term "levy" as used in this title includes the power of distraint and seizure by any means. Except as otherwise provided in subsection (e), a levy shall extend only to 18 property possessed and obligations existing at the time thereof. In any case in which the Secretary may levy upon property or rights to property, he may seize and sell 19 such property or rights to property (whether real or personal, tangible or intangible).

- 20 4. The only IRS agents who are authorized to execute any of the enforcement activity listed above must carry a pocket commission which designates them as “E” for
- 21 enforcement rather than “A” for administrative.
- 22 5. For the purposes of all taxes above, the term “employee” is defined as follows:

5.2.14.8 “resident” means a public officer contractor within the I.R.C.

Most people falsely PRESUME that the word “resident” within the Internal Revenue Code is associated with a geographic place. This presumption is false because:

4. The word “resident” is nowhere associated with a geographic place within the I.R.C. It is therefore a violation of due process of law to PRESUME that it is.
5. As we repeatedly point out in the following document, the I.R.C. Subtitles A through C are a franchise, and that all franchises are contracts or agreements:

The “Trade or Business” Scam, Form #05.001

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

6. There is a maxim of law that debt and contract are independent of place.

Debitum et contractus non sunt nullius loci.

Debt and contract [franchise agreement, in this case] are of no particular place.

Locus contractus regit actum.

26 C.F.R. §301.7701-5 Domestic, foreign, resident, and nonresident persons.

*A domestic corporation is one organized or created in the United States, including only the States (and during the periods when not States, the Territories of Alaska and Hawaii), and the District of Columbia, or under the law of the United States or of any State or Territory. A foreign corporation is one which is not domestic. A domestic corporation is a resident corporation even though it does no business and owns no property in the United States. A foreign corporation engaged in trade or business within the United States is referred to in the regulations in this chapter as a resident foreign corporation, and a foreign corporation not engaged in trade or business within the United States, as a nonresident foreign corporation. A partnership engaged in trade or business within the United States is referred to in the regulations in this chapter as a resident partnership, and a partnership not engaged in trade or business within the United States, as a nonresident partnership. Whether a partnership is to be regarded as resident or nonresident is not determined by the nationality or residence of its members or by the place in which it was created or organized.

[Amended by T.D. 8813, Federal Register: February 2, 1999 (Volume 64, Number 21), Page 4967-4975]

Notice the language above:

“Whether a partnership is to be regarded as resident or nonresident is not determined by the nationality or residence of its members or by the place in which it was created or organized.”

This is a tacit admission that the status of BEING a “resident” has nothing to do with a geographic place and instead is a FRANCHISE STATUS which is created by the coincidence of the grant of a “congressionally created right” or “public right” AND your consent to adopt the status and franchise PRIVILEGES associated with that right.

Therefore, the ONLY way one can be a statutory “resident” is to be LAWFULLY engaged in a statutory “trade or business”, which is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) as “the functions of a public office”.

TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > § 7701
§ 7701. Definitions

(a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof –

(26) Trade or business

“The term ‘trade or business’ includes the performance of the functions of a public office.”

1 Why do they do this? Because ALL PUBLIC OFFICES are domiciled in the District of Columbia:

2 TITLE 4 > CHAPTER 3 > § 72
3 Sec. 72. - Public offices; at seat of Government

4 All offices attached to the seat of government shall be exercised in the District of Columbia, and not elsewhere,
5 except as otherwise expressly provided by law

6 Hence, by being associated with a public office, your legal identity is legally kidnapped under the authority of Federal Rule
7 of Civil Procedure 17(b) and transported to the District of Columbia, which in turn is the ONLY place expressly included in 8 the definition of “United States” within the Internal Revenue Code.

9 [TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > Sec. 7701. \[Internal Revenue Code\]](#)
10 Sec. 7701. - Definitions

11 (a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent

13 (9) United States

15 (10) State

16 The term "State" shall be construed to include the District of Columbia, where such construction is necessary to
17 carry out provisions of this title.

18 Pursuant to the rules of statutory construction, that which is not EXPRESSLY included must be conclusively presumed to be
19 purposefully excluded. Hence, states of the Union are purposefully excluded from being within the “United States” in a
20 geographic sense:

21 *“Expressio unius est exclusio alterius. A maxim of statutory interpretation meaning that the expression of one
22 thing is the exclusion of another. Burgin v. Forbes, 293 Ky. 456, 169 S.W.2d. 321, 325; Newblock v. Bowles,*
23 *170 Okl. 487, 40 P.2d. 1097, 1100. Mention of one thing implies exclusion of another. When certain persons or

25 inferred. Under this maxim, if statute specifies one exception to a general rule or assumes to specify the effects*
26 of a certain provision, other exceptions or effects are excluded.”
27 [Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 581]

28 Note that all income taxes are based upon domicile, as in the case of the I.R.C. Subtitle A through C “income tax”. However,
29 the domicile is INDIRECT rather than direct. The PUBLIC OFFICE is the thing domiciled in the Federal Zone and not the
30 human being filling it, who can geographically be a “nonresident”.

31 The other noteworthy thing about this SCAM is that the 26 C.F.R. §301.7701-5 regulation cited above encompasses ALL
32 “persons” within the I.R.C., and NOT just corporations and partnerships. It expressly mentions only corporations and
33 partnerships, but in fact, these ARE the only entities EXPRESSLY included within the definition of “person” for the purposes
34 of BOTH civil AND criminal jurisdiction of the I.R.C., and hence, describes ALL “persons” within the I.R.C.

35 TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 68 > Subchapter B > PART I > § 6671
36 § 6671. Rules for application of assessable penalties

37 (b) Person defined

38 *The term “person”, as used in this subchapter, includes an officer or employee of a corporation, or a member
39 or employee of a partnership, who as such officer, employee, or member is under a duty to perform the act in*
40 respect of which the violation occurs.

42 TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 75 > Subchapter D > § 7343
43 §7343. Definition of term “person”

The term "person" as used in this chapter includes an officer or employee of a corporation, or a member or employee of a partnership, who as such officer, employee, or member is under a duty to perform the act in respect of which the violation occurs.

Why do they mention "partnerships" in the above definition? Because whenever you consent to occupy a public office in the U.S. government, a partnership is formed between the otherwise PRIVATE HUMAN BEING and the PUBLIC OFFICE that the person fills. THAT partnership is how the legal statutory "person" who is the proper subject of the I.R.C. is lawfully created. The problem, however, is that you CANNOT lawfully elect yourself into a public office, even with your consent. In order for a lawful election or appointment to occur, you must take a lawful oath, and only THEN can one become a lawful public officer. If there is a deviation from this procedure for creating public offices, a crime has been committed pursuant to 18 U.S.C. §912.

TITLE 18 > PART 1 > CHAPTER 43 > § 912
§ 912. Officer or employee of the United States

Whoever falsely assumes or pretends to be an officer or employee acting under the authority of the United States or any department, agency or officer thereof, and acts as such, or in such pretended character demands or obtains any money, paper, document, or thing of value, shall be fined under this title or imprisoned not more than three years, or both.

Another important implication is that anyone who PRESUMES you are a "resident" is effectively "electing" you into a public office. If you don't object to that usually false presumption, then a cage is reserved for you on the federal corporate plantation in the District of Criminals. We call this "theft and kidnapping by presumption".

Finally, don't go searching for the 26 C.F.R. §301.7701-5 regulation indicated in the CURRENT Code of Federal Regulations. As soon as we pointed it out on our website, it was conveniently HID and replaced with a temporary regulation. Now you know WHY it was hid. You will have to go back to the historical versions of the regulations to find it, so please don't contact us to tell us you can't find it. THEY HID IT to protect their CRIMINAL racketeering enterprise. Would you expect anything less when you create a Babylon corporation in the District of Criminals, turn it into a haven for financial terrorists, and put CRIMINALS in charge of writing laws that only protect them and which are designed to SCREW you?

5.2.14.9 Why it is UNLAWFUL for the I.R.S. to enforce Subtitle A of the Internal Revenue Code within states of the Union

The federal government enjoys NO legislative jurisdiction on land within the exterior limits of a state of the Union that is not its own territory. The authorities for this fact are as follows:

1. The U.S. Supreme Court has stated repeatedly that the United States federal government is without ANY legislative jurisdiction within the exterior boundaries of a sovereign state of Union:

*"The difficulties arising out of our dual form of government and the opportunities for differing opinions concerning the relative rights of state and national governments are many; but for a very long time this court has steadfastly adhered to the doctrine that the taxing power of Congress does not extend to the states or their political subdivisions. The same basic reasoning which leads to that conclusion, we think, requires like limitation upon the power which springs from the bankruptcy clause. United States v. Butler, supra."*
[Ashton v. Cameron County Water Improvement District No. 1, 298 U.S. 513, 56 S.Ct. 892 (1936)]

*"It is no longer open to question that the general government, unlike the states, Hammer v. Dagenhart, 247 U.S. 251, 275, 38 S.Ct. 529, 3 A.L.R. 649, Ann.Cas.1918E 724, possesses no inherent power in respect of the internal affairs of the states; and emphatically not with regard to legislation."
*[Carter v. Carter Coal Co., 298 U.S. 238, 56 S.Ct. 855 (1936)]

If you meet with someone from the IRS, ask them whether the Internal Revenue Code qualifies as "legislation" within the meaning of the above rulings. Tell them you aren't interested in court cases because judges cannot make law or create jurisdiction where none exists.

2. 40 U.S.C. §3112 creates a presumption that the United States government does not have jurisdiction unless it specifically accepts jurisdiction over lands within the exterior limits of a state of the Union:

TITLE 40 - PUBLIC BUILDINGS, PROPERTY, AND WORKS
 SUBTITLE II - PUBLIC BUILDINGS AND WORKS

PART A - GENERAL
 CHAPTER 31 - GENERAL
 SUBCHAPTER II - ACQUIRING LAND
 Sec. 3112. Federal jurisdiction

(a) Exclusive Jurisdiction Not Required. - It is not required that the Federal Government obtain exclusive jurisdiction in the United States over land or an interest in land it acquires.

(b) Acquisition and Acceptance of Jurisdiction. - When the head of a department, agency, or independent establishment of the Government, or other authorized officer of the department, agency, or independent establishment, considers it desirable, that individual may accept or secure, from the State in which land or an interest in land that is under the immediate jurisdiction, custody, or control of the individual is situated, consent to, or cession of, any jurisdiction over the land or interest not previously obtained. The individual shall indicate acceptance of jurisdiction on behalf of the Government by filing a notice of acceptance with the Governor of the State or in another manner prescribed by the laws of the State where the land is situated.

(c) Presumption. - It is conclusively presumed that jurisdiction has not been accepted until the Government accepts jurisdiction over land as provided in this section.

3. The Uniform Commercial Code defines the term "United States" as the District of Columbia:

The United States is located in the District of Columbia.

4. Article 1, Section 8, Clause 17 of the Constitution expressly limits the territorial jurisdiction of the federal government to the ten square mile area known as the District of Columbia. Extensions to this jurisdiction arose at the signing of the Treaty of Peace between the King of Spain and the United States in Paris France, which granted to the United States new territories such as Guam, Cuba, the Philippines, etc.
5. 4 U.S.C. §72 limits the exercise of all "public offices" and the application of their laws to the District of Columbia and NOT elsewhere except as expressly provided by Congress.

TITLE 4 > CHAPTER 3 > § 72

§ 72. Public offices; at seat of Government

All offices attached to the seat of government shall be exercised in the District of Columbia, and not elsewhere, except as otherwise expressly provided by law.

6. The Internal Revenue Code Subtitle A places the income tax primarily upon a "trade or business". The U.S. Supreme Court expressly stated that Congress may not establish a "trade or business" in a state of the Union and tax it.

"Congress cannot authorize a trade or business within a State in order to tax it."
 License Tax Cases, [72 U.S. 462, 18 L.Ed. 497, 5 Wall. 462, 2 A.F.T.R. 2224 (1866)]

7. A "trade or business" is defined as the "functions of a public office" in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(26\). See:

The Trade or Business Scam, Form #05.001

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

8. The U.S. Supreme Court has said that Congress cannot license a "trade or business" within the borders of a state of the Union to tax it:

"Congress cannot authorize a trade or business within a State in order to tax it."
 License Tax Cases, [72 U.S. 462, 18 L.Ed. 497, 5 Wall. 462, 2 A.F.T.R. 2224 (1866)]

9. The IRS and the DOJ have been repeatedly asked for the statute which "expressly extends" the "public office" that is the subject of the tax upon "trade or business" activities within states of the Union. NO ONE has been able to produce such a statute because IT DOESN'T EXIST. There is no provision of law which "expressly extends" the enforcement of Subtitle A of the Internal Revenue Code to any state of the Union. Therefore, IRS jurisdiction does not exist there.

1 “Expressio unius est exclusio alterius. A maxim of statutory interpretation meaning that the expression of one

 6 of a certain provision, other exceptions or effects are excluded.”
 7 [Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 581]

- 8 10. 48 U.S.C. §1612 expressly extends the enforcement of the criminal provisions of the Internal Revenue Code to the 9 Virgin Islands and is the only enactment of Congress that extends enforcement of any part of the Internal Revenue
 10 Code to any place outside the District of Columbia.
 11 11. The U.S. Supreme Court commonly refers to states of the Union as “foreign states”. To wit:

12 We have held, upon full consideration, that although under existing statutes a circuit court of the United States
 13 has jurisdiction upon habeas corpus to discharge from the custody of state officers or tribunals one restrained of 14 his liberty in violation of the Constitution of the United States, it is not required in every case to exercise its power
 15 to that end immediately upon application being made for the writ. 'We cannot suppose,' this court has said, 'that

- 47 12. The Federal Register Act, 44 U.S.C. §1505\(a\), and the Administrative Procedures Act, 5 U.S.C. §553\(a\) both require
 48 that when a federal agency wishes to enforce any provision of statutory law within a state of the Union, it must write
 49 proposed implementing regulations, publish them in the Federal Register, and thereby give the public opportunity for
 50 “notice and comment”. Notice that 44 U.S.C. §1508 says that the Federal Register is the official method for providing 51 “notice” of laws that will be enforced in “States of the Union”. There are no implementing regulations authorizing the 52 enforcement of any provision of the Internal Revenue Code within any state of the Union, and therefore it cannot be 53 enforced against the general public domiciled within states of the Union. See the following for exhaustive proof:
 54 13. Various provisions of law indicate that when implementing regulations authorizing enforcement have NOT been 55 published in the Federal Register, then the statutes cited as authority may NOT prescribe a penalty or adversely affect 56 rights protected by the Constitution of the United States:

57 TITLE 5 > PART 1 > CHAPTER 5 > SUBCHAPTER II > § 552

(a)(2)(ii) Effect of failure to publish.

Except to the extent that a person has actual and timely notice of the terms of any matter referred to in subparagraph (1) of this paragraph which is required to be published in the Federal Register, such person is not required in any manner to resort to, or be adversely affected by, such matter if it is not so published or is not incorporated by reference therein pursuant to subdivision (i) of this subparagraph. Thus, for example, any such matter which imposes an obligation and which is not so published or incorporated by reference will not adversely change or affect a person's rights.

14. 44 U.S.C. §1505(a) and 5 U.S.C. §553(a) both indicate that the only case where an enactment of the Congress can be enforced DIRECTLY against persons domiciled in states of the Union absent implementing regulations is for those groups specifically exempted from the requirement. These groups include:
- 14.1. A military or foreign affairs function of the United States. 5 U.S.C. §553\(a\)\(1\).
  - 14.2. A matter relating to agency management or personnel or to public property, loans, grants, benefits, or contracts. 5 U.S.C. §553\(a\)\(2\).
  - 14.3. Federal agencies or persons in their capacity as officers, agents, or employees thereof. 44 U.S.C. §1505\(a\)\(1\).
15. The Internal Revenue Code itself defines and limits the term "United States" to include only the District of Columbia and nowhere expands the term to include any state of the Union. Consequently, states of the Union are not included.

- 17.1. The President delegated that authority to the Secretary of the Treasury pursuant to Executive Order 10289.
  - 17.2.   - 17.3. Congress cannot delegate to the President or the Secretary an authority within states of the Union that it does not have. Congress has NO LEGISLATIVE JURISDICTION within a state of the Union.

1. The word "INTERNAL" in the phrase "INTERNAL Revenue Service" means INTERNAL to the federal government or the federal zone. This includes people OUTSIDE the federal zone but who have a domicile there, such as citizens and residents abroad coming under a tax treaty with a foreign country, pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §911. It DOES NOT include persons domiciled in states of the Union. See:

2. The U.S. Supreme Court has confirmed that there is no basis to believe that any part of the federal government enjoys any legislative jurisdiction within any state of the Union, including in its capacity as a lawmaker for the general government. This was confirmed by one attorney who devoted his life to the study of Constitutional law below:

"§79. [ . . . ] There cannot be two separate and independent sovereignties within the same limits or jurisdiction; nor can there be two distinct and separate sources of sovereign authority within the same jurisdiction. The right of commanding in the last resort can be possessed only by one body of people inhabiting the same territory, and can be executed only by those intrusted with the execution of such authority."

Our public dis-servants have tried to systematically destroy this separation using a combination of LIES, PROPAGANDA in unreliable government publications, and the abuse of "words of art" in the void for vagueness "codes" they write in order to hunt and trap and enslave you like an animal.

*But this is a people robbed and plundered;
 All of them are snared in [legal] holes, [by the sophistry of rebellious public "servant" lawyers]
 And they are hidden in prison houses;
 They are for prey, and no one delivers;
 For plunder, and no one says, "Restore!"
 Who among you will give ear to this?
 Who will listen and hear for the time to come?
 Who gave Jacob [Americans] for plunder, and Israel [America] to the robbers?
 Was it not the LORD,
 He against whom we have sinned?
 For they would not walk in His ways,
 Nor were they obedient to His law,
 Therefore He has poured on him the fury of His anger
 And the strength of battle;
 It has set him on fire all around,
 Yet he did not know;
 And it burned him,
 Yet he did not take it to heart.

5.2.14.10 You can't earn "income" or "reportable income" WITHOUT being engaged in a public office in the U.S. government

Before IRS can do an assessment, they must have an information return documenting the receipt of "income". Information returns include IRS Forms W-2, 1042-S, 1098, 1099, etc. 26 U.S.C. §6041(a) affirms that the ONLY way these information returns can lawfully be filed is if the payment they document occurred in connection with a statutory "trade or business" as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26).

TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 61 > Subchapter A > PART III > Subpart B > § 6041
§ 6041. Information at source

(a) Payments of $600 or more

All persons engaged in a trade or business and making payment in the course of such trade or business to another person, of rent, salaries, wages, premiums, annuities, compensations, remunerations, emoluments, or other fixed or determinable gains, profits, and income (other than payments to which section 6042 (a)(1), 6044 (a)(1), 6047 (e), 6049 (a), or 6050N (a) applies, and other than payments with respect to which a statement is required under the authority of section 6042 (a)(2), 6044 (a)(2), or 6045), of $600 or more in any taxable year, or, in the case of such payments made by the United States, the officers or employees of the United States having information as to such payments and required to make returns in regard thereto by the regulations hereinafter provided for, shall render a true and accurate return to the Secretary, under such regulations and in such form and manner and to such extent as may be prescribed by the Secretary, setting forth the amount of such gains, profits, and income, and the name and address of the recipient of such payment.

A statutory "trade or business" is then defined as follows:

TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > § 7701
§ 7701. Definitions

(a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof—

(26) Trade or business

"The term 'trade or business' includes the performance of the functions of a public office."

Nowhere in the entire I.R.C. or any IRS publication is the above definition of "trade or business" expanded to include any activity other than a "public office", and therefore it is all-inclusive and limited to "public offices". This is also confirmed by the rules of statutory construction, which say on this subject:

"Expressio unius est exclusio alterius. A maxim of statutory interpretation meaning that the expression of one thing is the exclusion of another. Burgin v. Forbes, 293 Ky. 456, 169 S.W.2d. 321, 325; Newblock v. Bowles, 170 Okl. 487, 40 P.2d. 1097, 1100. Mention of one thing implies exclusion of another. When certain persons or things are specified in a law, contract, or will, an intention to exclude all others from its operation may be inferred. Under this maxim, if statute specifies one exception to a general rule or assumes to specify the effects of a certain provision, other exceptions or effects are excluded."
 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 581]

"When a statute includes an explicit definition, we must follow that definition, even if it varies from that term's ordinary meaning. Meese v. Keene, 481 U.S. 465, 484-485 (1987) ("It is axiomatic that the statutory definition of the term excludes unstated meanings of that term"); Colautti v. Franklin, 439 U.S. at 392-393, n. 10 ("As a rule, a definition which declares what a term 'means' . . . excludes any meaning that is not stated"); Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Lenroot, 323 U.S. 490, 502 (1945); Fox v. Standard Oil Co. of N.J., 294 U.S. 87, 95-96 (1935) (Cardozo, J.); see also 2A N. Singer, Sutherland on Statutes and Statutory Construction § 47.07, p. 152, and n. 10 (5th ed. 1992) (collecting cases). That is to say, the statute, read "as a whole," post at 998 [530 U.S. 943] (THOMAS, J., dissenting), leads the reader to a definition. That definition does not include the Attorney General's restriction -- "the child up to the head." Its words, "substantial portion," indicate the contrary."

2 If you would like to learn more about what a “trade or business” and a “public office” is, see the following, because that
3 subject is beyond the scope of this pamphlet:

4 The “Trade or Business” Scam, Form #05.001
5 <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

6 The vast majority of Americans are not lawfully engaged in a “public office”. Hence, most information returns are FALSE
7 and FRAUDULENT. It is only earnings in connection with the “trade or business”/public office franchise that may lawfully
8 be taxed under Internal Revenue Code Subtitle A. Some in government like to argue against this claim by quoting 26 U.S.C.
§871(a), which allegedly taxes earnings NOT connected with the “trade or business” franchise. HOWEVER, even earnings mentioned in this section is associated indirectly with a “trade or business” at 26 U.S.C. §864(c)(3):

9 TITLE 26 > Subtitle A > CHAPTER 1 > Subchapter N > PART 1 > § 864
10 § 864. Definitions and special rules

11 (c) Effectively connected income, etc.

12 (3) Other income from sources within United States

13 All income, gain, or loss from sources within the United States (other than income, gain, or loss to which 14 paragraph (2) applies) shall be treated as effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business within the
15 United States.

16 Hence, even so-called earnings that are NOT directly connected with the “trade or business” franchise in 26 U.S.C. §871(a)
17 are in fact DEEMED to be connected to said franchise. This is why we say that essentially, the entire Internal Revenue Code,
18 Subtitles A and C is really just an excise or franchise tax upon public offices within the government. It is what we call a
19 “public officer kickback program”. Those who are required to participate are specifically identified in 5 U.S.C. §2105(a) as 20 “officers AND individuals”, meaning that the only way you can BECOME a statutory “individual” is to serve in a public
21 office within the federal government. Otherwise, the U.S. Supreme Court has repeatedly held that the ability to regulate 22 PRIVATE conduct is repugnant to the Constitution.

23 “The power to “legislate generally upon” life, liberty, and property, as opposed to the “power to provide modes
24 of redress” against offensive state action, was “repugnant” to the Constitution. Id., at 15. See also United States
25 v. Reese, 92 U.S. 214, 218 (1876); United States v. Harris, 106 U.S. 629, 639 (1883); James v. Bowman, 190 U.S.
26 127, 139 (1903). Although the specific holdings of these early cases might have been superseded or modified, see,
27 e.g., Heart of Atlanta Motel, Inc. v. United States, 379 U.S. 241 (1964); United States v. Guest, 383 U.S. 745
28 (1966), their treatment of Congress’ §5 power as corrective or preventive, not definitional, has not been 29 questioned.”
30 [\[City of Boerne v. Flores, Archbishop of San Antonio, 521 U.S. 507 \(1997\)\]](#)

31 Those who therefore argue against the conclusion that public offices within the government are the only ones who can earn 32 “reportable” and therefore “taxable” income have the burden of explaining how:

- 33 1. The IRS can FIND OUT about PRIVATE earnings NOT connected to the “trade or business”/public office franchise, 34 since they are NOT reported.
- 35 2. IRS can lawfully tax PRIVATE PROPERTY without in effect executing eminent domain without compensation
36 against PRIVATE property in violation of the Fifth Amendment. The only party who can lawfully convert PRIVATE 37 property to PUBLIC property is the original owner, and it must be DONATED to public use before the public can
38 REGULATE or TAX said use. Taxation, after all, is the process of converting PRIVATE property to PUBLIC 39 property.

40 5.2.15 Separation of Powers Between State and Federal Governments

41 States of the Union are sovereign over their territories, as is the U.S. Government over its territories and lands. Sovereignty
42 implies exclusive jurisdiction to govern a geographic area. The 50 Union states therefore control everything within their 43 respective borders with very few exceptions, and we identify what those exceptions are in section 6.4.9 of the Tax Fraud
44 Prevention Manual, Form #06.008. The federal government exclusively controls everything within the District of Columbia
45 and all federal territories, possessions and enclaves within the state, collectively called the “federal zone”. The federal zone

1 does NOT include the 50 Union states but does include “the States”. The definition of “State” in IRC section 7701(a)(10)
 2 and 4 U.S.C. §110(d) and the definition of “United States” found in IRC section 7701(a)(9) all agree with this conclusion
 3 that the jurisdictions of the state and Federal Governments are mutually exclusive territorially.

4 TITLE 4 - FLAG AND SEAL, SEAT OF GOVERNMENT, AND THE STATES
 5 CHAPTER 4 - THE STATES

6 Sec. 110. Same; definitions

7 (d) The term "State" includes any Territory or possession of the United States.

8 As we pointed out in section 3.12.1.23, the definition of the term “United States” in I.R.C., Subtitle A only includes the 9 federal territories and possessions and the District of Columbia, including Puerto Rico, Guam, etc, which are all part of the 10 “federal zone”. I.R.C., Subtitles A and C can therefore ONLY apply to persons domiciled in the “federal zone” and not to 11 areas such as the 50 Union states where the federal government has only subject matter but not general/exclusive jurisdiction.
 12 If one of the 50 Union states wants to tax the federal government or its territories, then the federal government must consent
 13 to it, which is exactly what the Buck Act of 1940 found in 4 U.S.C. §§105-113 authorizes. Likewise, if the federal government
 14 wants to tax one of the 50 Union states or persons domiciled in one of the 50 Union states, then the state and/or the Citizen
 15 in the state must explicitly and individually consent to it because both the states and the Citizens in the states are Sovereign.
 16 They manifest this consent by filling out federal forms to misrepresent their domicile as being within the “United States”.
 17 There is a longstanding separation between the state and Federal governments or “political units”. That separation is so
 18 distinct, that the states and the incomes of the Americans in each state are “foreign” with respect to each other’s jurisdictions.
 19 Likewise the income of Americans of the 50 Union states is “foreign” with respect to the jurisdiction of the federal United 20 States** (the federal zone). The below court finding of the Supreme Court helps to justify and clarify this conclusion:

21 “The United States government is a foreign corporation with respect to a state.”
 22 [N.Y. v. re: Merriam, 36 N.E. 505, 141 N.Y. 479, Affirmed 16 S.Ct. 1973, 41 L.Ed. 287]

23 This conclusion is also in agreement with what happened during the Revolutionary war. Britain had to sign treaties separately
 24 with each of the 13 colonies to end the war, rather than with the United States Government alone, because each state was 25 sovereign!

26 There are two exceptions to this mutual exclusivity of territorial jurisdiction between state and Federal Governments. The 27 first exception is a product of Article 1, Section 8, Clause 3 of the U.S. Constitution:

28 Article I, Section 8, Clause 3: “To regulate Commerce with foreign Nations, and among the several States, and 29 with the Indian Tribes;”

30 This means the federal government can, for instance, regulate weights and measures, transportation, and communication
 31 systems which facilitate commerce among the several states. This is where the authority for establishing the Bureau of 32 Weights and Measures and the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) comes from. The above clause also conveys
 33 the authority to tax imports in the form of excises, duties, and imposts. Therefore, within states of the Union, the only type
 34 of tax the federal government may impose is a tax on imports. The power over EXTERNAL taxation by the federal 35 government is what is called “plenary” in the legal field, which means it is exclusive. That tax is collected at sea ports,
 36 at airports, and at border crossings ONLY. This type of taxing jurisdiction is subject matter jurisdiction, and does not derive
 37 from territorial jurisdiction. Every other subject of taxation within states of the Union is under the exclusive and plenary
 38 jurisdiction of your state government.

39 The second point of overlap of jurisdiction is the occurrence of federal property within the 50 Union states. This includes
 40 such things as military bases, Indian Reservations, Post Offices, National Parks, etc. The Internal Revenue Code, believe it
 41 or not, actually refers to these areas as “States” in section 7701(a)(10). All of these areas are described as “enclaves” within 42 states and count as federal territory over which Congress and the U.S. Government have exclusive, plenary jurisdiction and 43 control and which are part of the “federal zone”. If you took all of the federal enclaves within a sovereign state and collected
 44 them together, that area would be referred to as a “State” within 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(10) and the Buck Act found in 4 U.S.C.
 45 §110(d).

46 Other than these two exceptions, the Federal Government has no Constitutional authority within the borders of the 50 Union
 47 states outside of the “federal zone”.

5.2.16 The 50 Union states are “Foreign Countries” and “foreign states” with Respect to the Federal Government

The terms “foreign” and “domestic” are opposites. There are two contexts in which these terms may be used:

1. Constitutional: The U.S. Constitution is political document, and therefore this context is also sometimes called “political jurisdiction”.
2. Statutory: Congress writes statutes or “acts of Congress” to manage property dedicated to their care. This context is also called “legislative jurisdiction” or “civil jurisdiction”.

Any discussion of the terms “foreign” and “domestic” therefore must start by identifying ONE of the two above contexts. Any attempt to avoid discussing which context is intended should be perceived as an attempt to confuse, deceive, and enslave you by corrupt politicians and lawyers:

*“For where envy and self-seeking exist, confusion and every evil thing are there.”
[James 3:16, Bible, NKJV]*

The separation of powers makes states of the Union STATUTORILY/LEGISLATIVELY FOREIGN and sovereign in relation to the national government but CONSTITUTIONALLY/POLITICALLY DOMESTIC for nearly all subject matters of legislation. Every occasion by any court or legal authority to say that the states and the federal government are not foreign relates to the CONSTITUTIONAL and not STATUTORY context. Below is an example of this phenomenon, where “sovereignty” refers to the CONSTITUTIONAL/POLITICAL context rather than the STATUTORY/LEGISLATIVE context:

*“The United States is not a foreign sovereignty as regards the several states, but is a concurrent, and, within its jurisdiction, paramount sovereignty.”
[Claflin v. Houseman, 93 U.S. 130, 136 (1876)]*

The several states of the Union of states, collectively referred to as the United States of America or the “freely associated compact states”, are considered to be STATUTORILY/LEGISLATIVELY “foreign countries” and “foreign states” with respect to the federal government. An example of this is found in the Corpus Juris Secundum legal encyclopedia, in which federal territory is described as being a “foreign state” in relation to states of the Union:

“§1. Definitions, Nature, and Distinctions

“The word 'territory,' when used to designate a political organization has a distinctive, fixed, and legal meaning under the political institutions of the United States, and does not necessarily include all the territorial possessions of the United States, but may include only the portions thereof which are organized and exercise governmental functions under act of congress.”

“While the term 'territory' is often loosely used, and has even been construed to include municipal subdivisions of a territory, and 'territories of the' United States is sometimes used to refer to the entire domain over which the United States exercises dominion, the word 'territory,' when used to designate a political organization, has a distinctive, fixed, and legal meaning under the political institutions of the United States, and the term 'territory' or 'territories' does not necessarily include only a portion or the portions thereof which are organized and exercise government functions under acts of congress. The term 'territories' has been defined to be political subdivisions of the outlying dominion of the United States, and in this sense the term 'territory' is not a description of a definite area of land but of a political unit governing and being governed as such. The question whether a particular subdivision or entity is a territory is not determined by the particular form of government with which it is, more or less temporarily, invested.

“Territories' or 'territory' as including 'state' or 'states.’” While the term 'territories of the' United States may, under certain circumstances, include the states of the Union, as used in the federal Constitution and in ordinary acts of congress "territory" does not include a foreign state.

*“As used in this title, the term 'territories' generally refers to the political subdivisions created by congress, and not within the boundaries of any of the several states.”
[86 Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.), Territories, §1 (2003)]*

*26 C.F.R. §1.911-2(h): The term “foreign country” when used in a geographical sense includes any territory under the sovereignty of a government other than that of the United States**. It includes the territorial* waters of the foreign country (determined in accordance with the laws of the United States**), the air space over the foreign country, and the seabed and subsoil of those submarine areas which are adjacent to the territorial waters of the foreign country and over which the foreign country has exclusive rights, in accordance with international law, with respect to the exploration and exploitation of natural resources.

Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 498 helps make the distinction clear that the 50 Union states are foreign countries:

Dual citizenship. Citizenship in two different countries. Status of citizens of United States who reside within a state; i.e., person who are born or naturalized in the U.S. are citizens of the U.S. and the state wherein they reside.
[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 498]

If we examine other U.S. codes, we find the following hints to confirm the above assertion and conclusion:

TITLE 28 > PART 1 > CHAPTER 13 > Sec. 297.
Sec. 297. - Assignment of judges to courts of the freely associated compact states

(a) The Chief Justice or the chief judge of the United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit may assign any circuit or district judge of the Ninth Circuit, with the consent of the judge so assigned, to serve temporarily as a judge of any duly constituted court of the freely associated compact states whenever an official duly authorized by the laws of the respective compact state requests such assignment and such assignment is necessary for the proper dispatch of the business of the respective court.

(b) The Congress consents to the acceptance and retention by any judge so authorized of reimbursement from the countries referred to in subsection (a) of all necessary travel expenses, including transportation, and of subsistence, or of a reasonable per diem allowance in lieu of subsistence. The judge shall report to the Administrative Office of the United States Courts any amount received pursuant to this subsection

Note that Congress, in subparagraph (a) above refers to the "freely associated compact states" in subparagraph (b) as "countries". That is because they fit in every respect the description of "foreign country" found above in 26 C.F.R. §1.911-2(h):

"Generally, the states of the Union sustain toward each other the relationship of independent sovereigns or independent foreign states, except in so far as the United States is paramount as the dominating government, and in so far as the states are bound to recognize the fraternity among sovereignties established by the federal Constitution, as by the provision requiring each state to give full faith and credit to the public acts, records, and judicial proceedings of the other states..."
[81A Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.), United States, §29 (2003)]

The California Supreme Court agreed with the conclusions of this section when it stated in the case of People ex re. Atty. Gen. v. Naglee, 1 Cal. 234 (1850):

"In determining the boundaries of apparently conflicting powers between states and the general government, the proper question is, not so much what has been, in terms, reserved to the states, as what has been, expressly or by necessary implication, granted by the people to the national government; for each state possess all the powers of an independent and sovereign nation, except so far as they have been ceded away by the constitution. The federal government is but a creature of the people of the states, and, like an agent appointed for definite and specific purposes, must show an express or necessarily implied authority in the charter of its appointment, to give validity to its acts.

The power of taxation in independent nations, is unrestricted as to things, and, with the exception of foreign ambassadors and agents, and their retinue, is unlimited as to persons; and is deemed a power indispensable to their welfare and even their existence. The several states may, therefore, subject to the above restrictions, tax everything within their territorial limits, and every person, whether citizen or foreigner, who resides under the protection of their respective governments."

Title 28, Judiciary and Judicial Procedure, describes the jurisdiction and operation of the federal district and circuit (appellate) courts. Section 1603 contains definitions and includes a very interesting and related definition of the term "foreign state":

TITLE 28 > PART IV > CHAPTER 97 JURISDICTIONAL IMMUNITIES OF FOREIGN STATES
Sec. 1603. - Definitions

For purposes of this chapter -

(a) A "foreign state", except as used in section 1608 of this title, includes a political subdivision of a foreign state or an agency or instrumentality of a foreign state as defined in subsection (b).

(b) An "agency or instrumentality of a foreign state" means any entity -

(1) which is a separate legal person, corporate or otherwise, and

(2) which is an organ of a foreign state or political subdivision thereof, or a majority of whose shares or other ownership interest is owned by a foreign state or political subdivision thereof, and

(3) which is neither a citizen of a State of the United States as defined in section 1332 (c) and (d) of this title, nor created under the laws of any third country.

(c) The "United States" includes all territory and waters, continental or insular, subject to the jurisdiction of the United States.

Likewise, the legal encyclopedia, Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.) , says about the subject of "sovereignty":

"Generally, the states of the Union sustain toward each other the relationship of independent sovereigns or independent foreign states, except in so far as the United States is paramount as the dominating government, and in so far as the states are bound to recognize the fraternity among sovereignties established by the federal Constitution, as by the provision requiring each state to give full faith and credit to the public acts, records, and judicial proceedings of the other states..."

[81A Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.), United States, §29 (2003), legal encyclopedia]

The phrase "except in so far as the United States is paramount" refers to subject matters delegated to the national government under the United States Constitution. For all such subject matters ONLY, "acts of Congress" are NOT foreign and therefore are regarded as "domestic". All such subject matters are summarized below. Every other subject matter is legislatively "foreign" and therefore "alien":

1. Excise taxes upon imports from foreign countries. See Article 1, Section 8, Clause 1 of the U.S. Constitution. Congress may NOT, however, tax any article exported from a state pursuant to Article 1, Section 9, Clause 5 of the Constitution. Other than these subject matters, NO national taxes are authorized:

"The States, after they formed the Union, continued to have the same range of taxing power which they had before, barring only duties affecting exports, imports, and on tonnage. 2 Congress, on the other hand, to lay taxes in order 'to pay the Debts and provide for the common Defence and general Welfare of the United States', Art. 1, Sec. 8, U.S.C.A.Const., can reach every person and every dollar in the land with due regard to Constitutional limitations as to the method of laying taxes."

Graves v. People of State of New York, [306 U.S. 466 (1939)]

"The difficulties arising out of our dual form of government and the opportunities for differing opinions concerning the relative rights of state and national governments are many; but for a very long time this court has steadfastly adhered to the doctrine that the taxing power of Congress does not extend to the states or their political subdivisions. The same basic reasoning which leads to that conclusion, we think, requires like limitation upon the power which springs from the bankruptcy clause. United States v. Butler, supra."

Ashton v. Cameron County Water Improvement District No. 1, [298 U.S. 513; 56 S.Ct. 892 (1936)]

"Thus, Congress having power to regulate commerce with foreign nations, and among the several States, and with the Indian tribes, may, without doubt, provide for granting coasting licenses, licenses to pilots, licenses to trade with the Indians, and any other licenses necessary or proper for the exercise of that great and extensive power; and the same observation is applicable to every other power of Congress, to the exercise of which the granting of licenses may be incident. All such licenses confer authority, and give rights to the licensee.

But very different considerations apply to the internal commerce or domestic trade of the States. Over this commerce and trade Congress has no power of regulation nor any direct control. This power belongs exclusively to the States. No interference by Congress with the business of citizens transacted within a State is warranted by the Constitution, except such as is strictly incidental to the exercise of powers clearly granted to the legislature. The power to authorize a business within a State is plainly repugnant to the exclusive power of the State over the same subject. It is true that the power of Congress to tax is a very extensive power. It is given in the Constitution, with only one exception and only two qualifications. Congress cannot tax exports, and it must

1 impose direct taxes by the rule of apportionment, and indirect taxes by the rule of uniformity. Thus limited, and
 2 thus only, it reaches every subject, and may be exercised at discretion. But, it reaches only existing subjects.
 3 Congress cannot authorize a trade or business within a State in order to tax it."

 11 U.S.C. §1589(3).

12 "Other authorities to the same effect might be cited. It is not open to doubt that Congress may enforce the
 13 Thirteenth Amendment by direct legislation, punishing the holding of a person in slavery or in involuntary
 14 servitude except as a punishment for a crime. In the exercise of that power Congress has enacted these
 15 sections denouncing peonage, and punishing one who holds another in that condition of involuntary
 16 servitude. This legislation is not limited to the territories or other parts of the strictly national domain,
 17 but is operative in the states and wherever the sovereignty of the United States extends. We entertain no
 18 doubt of the validity of this legislation, or of its applicability to the case of any person holding another in a
 19 state of peonage, and this whether there be municipal ordinance or state law sanctioning such holding. It
 20 operates directly on every citizen of the Republic, wherever his residence may be."

 24 U.S. 251, 275, 38 S.Ct. 529, 3 A.L.R. 649, Ann.Cas.1918E 724, possesses no inherent power in respect of the

 42 "In determining the boundaries of apparently conflicting powers between states and the general government, the 43 proper question is, not so much what has been, in terms, reserved to the states, as what has been, expressly or by 44 necessary implication, granted by the people to the national government; for each state possess all the powers
 45 of an independent and sovereign nation, except so far as they have been ceded away by the constitution. The 46 federal government is but a creature of the people of the states, and, like an agent appointed for definite and 47 specific purposes, must show an express or necessarily implied authority in the charter of its appointment, to give 48 validity to its acts."
 49 [People ex re. Atty. Gen. v. Naglee, 1 Cal. 234 (1850)]

50 The motivation behind this distinct separation of powers between the state and federal government was described by the 51 Supreme Court. Its ONLY purpose for existence is to protect our precious liberties and freedoms. Hence, anyone who tries
 52 to confuse the CONSTITUTIONAL and STATUTORY contexts for legal terms is trying to STEAL your rights.

1                   "We start with first principles. The Constitution creates a Federal Government of enumerated powers. See U.S.
 2 Const., Art. I, 8. As James Madison wrote, "[t]he powers delegated by the proposed Constitution to the federal

 5 of authority "was adopted by the Framers to ensure protection of our fundamental liberties." Gregory v.
 6 Ashcroft, 501 U.S. 452, 458 (1991) (internal quotation marks omitted). "Just as the separation and
 7 independence of the coordinate branches of the Federal Government serves to prevent the accumulation of 8 excessive power in any one branch, a healthy balance of power between the States and the Federal Government
 9 will reduce the risk of tyranny and abuse from either front." Ibid.
 10 *[U.S. v. Lopez, 514 U.S. 549 (1995)]

11 We therefore have no choice to conclude, based on the definitions above that the sovereign 50 Union states of the United
 12 States of America are considered "foreign states", which means they are outside the legislative jurisdiction of the federal
 13 courts in most cases. This conclusion is the inescapable result of the fact that the Tenth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution
 14 reserves what is called "police powers" to the states and these police powers include most criminal laws and every aspect of 15 public health, morals, and welfare. See section 4.9 for further details. There are exceptions to this general rule, but most of 16 these exceptions occur when the parties involved reside in two different "foreign states" or in a territory (referred to as a
 17 "State") of the federal United States and wish to voluntarily grant the federal courts jurisdiction over their issues to simplify 18 the litigation. The other interesting outcome of the above analysis is that We the People are "instrumentalities" of those 19 foreign states, because we fit the description above as:

- 20 1. A separate legal person.
- 21 2. An organ of the foreign state, because we:
  - 22 2.1. Fund and sustain its operations with our taxes.
  - 23 2.2. Select and oversee its officers with our votes.
  - 24 2.3. Change its laws through the political process, including petitions and referendums.
  - 25 2.4. Control and limit its power with our jury and grand jury service.
  - 26 2.5. Protect its operation with our military service.

27 The people govern themselves through their elected agents, who are called public servants. Without the involvement of every
 28 citizen of every "foreign state" in the above process of self-government, the state governments would disintegrate and cease
 29 to exist, based on the way our system is structured now. The people, are the sovereigns, according to the Supreme Court:
 30 Juilliard v. Greenman, 110 U.S. 421 (1884); Perry v. U.S., 294 U.S. 330 (1935); Yick Wo v. Hopkins, 118 U.S. 356 (1886).
 31 Because the people are the sovereigns, then the government is there to serve them and without people to serve, then we 32 wouldn't need a government! How much more of an "instrumentality" can you be as a natural person of the body politic of 33 your state? We refer you back to section 4.1 to reread that section to find out just how very important a role you play in your 34 state government. By the way, here is the definition of "instrumentality" right from Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition,
 35 page 801:

36 Instrumentality: Something by which an end is achieved; a means, medium, agency. Perkins v. State, 61 Wis.2d.*
 37 341, 212 N.W.2d. 141, 146.
 38 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, page 801]

39 Another section in that same Chapter 97 above says these foreign states have judicial immunity:

40 TITLE 28 > PART IV > CHAPTER 97 > Sec. 1602.
 41 Sec. 1602. - Findings and declaration of purpose

42 The Congress finds that the determination by United States courts of the claims of foreign states to immunity from 43 the jurisdiction of such courts would serve the interests of justice and would protect the rights of both foreign
 44 states and litigants in United States courts. Under international law, states are not immune from the jurisdiction
 45 of foreign courts insofar as their commercial activities are concerned, and their commercial property may be
 46 levied upon for the satisfaction of judgments rendered against them in connection with their commercial activities.
 47 Claims of foreign states to immunity should henceforth be decided by courts of the United States and of the States
 48 in conformity with the principles set forth in this chapter

49 Why is this important? Because as you will find out below, your earnings qualify as "foreign income" and you qualify as a
 50 "nonresident alien" who lives in a foreign country if you were born outside of the federal zone and inside a state of the Union
 51 and are domiciled there and are engaged in a public office. This is important because if you have only earnings not connected
 52 with a "trade or business in the United States" and you are a non-resident non-person, then your income is not subject to 53 municipal income taxes for the federal corporation called the "United States":

1 26 C.F.R. §1.864-2 Trade or business within the United States.

2 (b) Performance of personal services for foreign employer--(1) Exempted services. For purposes of paragraph
3 (a) of this section, the term "engaged in trade or business within the United States" does not include the 4 performance of personal services--

5 (i) For a nonresident alien individual, foreign partnership, or foreign corporation, not engaged in 6 trade or business within the United States at any time during the taxable year, or

8 26 C.F.R. §1.871-7

9 Taxation of nonresident alien individuals not engaged in trade or U.S. business.--

10 Imposition of tax. (1) "...a nonresident alien individual...is NOT subject to the tax imposed by Section 1" [Subtitle
11 A, Chapter 1]

12 IRS Publication 515 (Nov. 2001), Withholding Tax on Nonresident Aliens and Foreign Entities, confirms the nontaxability
13 of income earned outside of the federal United States (or federal zone) by a Nonresident Alien on page 21:

14 "Services performed outside the United States. Compensation paid to a nonresident alien (other than a resident
15 of Puerto Rico, discussed later) for services performed outside the [federal] United States is not considered 16 wages and is not subject to graduated withholding or 30% withholding."
17 [IRS Publication 515 (Nov. 2001), Withholding Tax on Nonresident Aliens and Foreign Entities, p. 21]

18 Now can you see why your deceitful government might not want you to know that as a human being domiciled in one of the 19 several states and outside the federal zone with no earnings from a public office, you live in a "foreign country" and are a 20 statutory "non-resident non-person", and are therefore not liable for municipal income taxes of what Mark Twain called "The 21 District of Criminals"?

22 5.2.17 "foreign" means outside the federal zone and "foreign income" means outside the country in the context of
23 the Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A

24 Subtitle A of Title 26, the Internal Revenue Code, frequently uses the term "foreign" but never defines the meaning of the 25 term. The term "foreign corporation" and "domestic corporation" are defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701, but not "foreign" by itself.
26 There is a very good reason for this: The Congress and IRS don't want you to know that "United States" in the Internal 27 Revenue Code, Subtitle A means the District of Columbia. We were so intrigued by this omission that we decided to further
28 investigate and reveal the results of our research in this section. This subject is really interesting and enlightening and clarifies
29 so much about the applicability of the tax code once you understand it. There are two contexts that the word "foreign" is 30 used in: 1. The Internal Revenue Code; 2. The Constitution. The basis for these two contexts is that in the U.S. Constitution,
31 the term "United States" means the federated states of the Union, while in most federal statutes, "United States" means the 32 federal zone only. We'll cover both and end this section with a summary of our findings.

33 We'll now try to provide a statutory definition of the word "foreign". Following is the definition of "foreign" right from the 34 Merriam Webster Dictionary of Law:

35 foreign: not being within the jurisdiction of a political unit (as a state)

36 esp

37 : being from or in a state other than the one in which a matter is being considered

38 Example: a foreign company doing business in South Carolina

39 Example: a foreign executor submitting to the jurisdiction of this court

40 Example: a foreign judgment

41 (compare domestic)<sup>48</sup>

Note that the reference in the legal definition of “foreign” is to a political unit, and NOT a country. The U.S. Codes, title 26, are written by the government of the “United States”, which term is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701 as:

United States

The term "United States" when used in a geographical sense includes only the States and the District of Columbia.

And then in 26 U.S.C. §7701 we see the definition of “State” within the internal revenue code:

State

The term "State" shall be construed to include the District of Columbia, where such construction is necessary to carry out provisions of this title.

The “State” above is a federal “State”, not a sovereign “state” as shown below:

*TITLE 4 - FLAG AND SEAL, SEAT OF GOVERNMENT, AND THE STATES
CHAPTER 4 - THE STATES*

Sec. 110. Same; definitions

(d) The term "State" includes any Territory or possession of the United States.

Therefore, the real meaning of “United States” is:

United States

The term "United States" when used in a geographical sense includes federal States and the District of Columbia, all of which are subject to the general sovereignty and exclusive jurisdiction of the United States as described under Article 1, Section 8, Clause 17 of the U.S. Constitution.

This definition agrees with that of section 4.8 earlier, entitled “The Federal Zone”. The only thing the U.S. Congress has exclusive jurisdiction over is the “federal zone”, which includes the District of Columbia and the federal enclaves, possessions, and territories and not the sovereign states directly. The reason the “United States” under the tax code has to be limited to the District of Columbia is because of the following two considerations:

1. Article 1, Section 8, Clause 17 of the Constitution limits the United States government to the District of Columbia and makes the District the “Seat” of government:

Article 1, Section 8, Clause 17

To exercise exclusive Legislation in all Cases whatsoever, over such District (not exceeding ten Miles square) as may, by Cession of Particular States, and the Acceptance of Congress, become the Seat of the Government of the United States, and to exercise like Authority over all Places purchased by the Consent of the Legislature of the State in which the Same shall be, for the Erection of Forts, Magazines, Arsenals, dock-Yards and other needful Buildings;--

2. 4 U.S.C. §72, written in pursuance to the authority delegated by Article 1, Section 8, Clause 17 of the Constitution, limits the United States government to the District of Columbia and says it cannot exist elsewhere.

TITLE 4 > CHAPTER 3 > Sec. 72.
Sec. 72. - Public offices; at seat of Government

All offices attached to the seat of government shall be exercised in the District of Columbia, and not elsewhere, except as otherwise expressly provided by law.

With the above background out of the way, we are now left to consider the true legal meaning of the term “foreign” in the context of federal statutes and “acts of Congress”. Since foreign means “not being within the jurisdiction of a political unit” and the political unit in question is the seat of government found geographically only in the District of Columbia and called the “United States”, then according to the Internal Revenue Code Subtitle A, all income that originates from outside the District of Columbia (or the federal zone) originates from “without the United States”! The IRS’ own publications confirm this. In IRS Publication 54, on page 12 of the year 2000 version says:

1 A "foreign country" usually is any territory (including the air space and territorial waters) under the sovereignty
2 of a government other than that of the United States.

3 [...]

4 The term "foreign country" does not include Puerto Rico, Guam, the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana
5 Islands, the Virgin Islands, or U.S. possessions such as American Samoa. For purposes of the foreign earned
6 income exclusion, the foreign housing exclusion, and the foreign housing deduction, the terms "foreign,"
7 "abroad," and "overseas" refer to areas outside the United States, American Samoa, Guam, the Commonwealth
8 of Northern Mariana Islands, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, and the Antarctic region.

9 The above citation also appears in the regulations at 26 C.F.R. §1.911-2(h):

10 (h) Foreign country.

11 The term "foreign country when used in a geographical sense includes any territory under the sovereignty of a
12 government other than that of the United States. It includes the territorial waters of the foreign country
13 (determined in accordance with the laws of the United States), the air space over the foreign country, and the 14 seabed and subsoil of those submarine areas which are adjacent to the territorial waters of the foreign country
15 and over which the foreign country has exclusive rights, in accordance with international law, with respect to the 16 exploration and exploitation of natural resources.

17 (Sec. 911 (95 Stat. 194; 26 U.S.C. §911) and sec. 7805 (68A Stat. 917; 26 U.S.C. §7805) of the Internal Revenue
18 Code of 1954)
19 [T.D. 8006, 50 FR 2965, Jan. 23, 1985]

20 So in the context of federal statutes and "acts of Congress", the 50 Union states of the United States of America qualify
21 entirely and completely as foreign countries under the IRS' own definition above right from their Publication 54 and 26
22 C.F.R. §1.911-2(h)! That is why we can legitimately file as non-resident non-persons. We discuss and explain this
23 completely in section 5.3 entitled "Know Your Proper Filing Status by Citizenship and Residency!" Below are a few
24 definitions from Black's Law Dictionary which confirm these conclusions:

25 Foreign Laws: "The laws of a foreign country or sister state."
26 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 647]

27 Foreign States: "Nations outside of the United States...Term may also refer to another state; i.e. a sister state.
28 The term 'foreign nations', ...should be construed to mean all nations and states other than that in which the
29 action is brought; and hence, one state of the Union is foreign to another, in that sense."
30 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 648]

31 The legal profession has been systematically hiding realities like the above over time. For instance, the Sixth and Seventh
32 editions of Black's Law Dictionary have the term "Foreign government" removed from their dictionary after they had it in 33 the Fifth edition. Likewise, the Seventh Edition removed the definition for the term "United States", even though it was in 34 the Sixth edition. Could there be a conspiracy afoot here by the legal profession to extend the jurisdiction of the U.S.
35 government beyond its rightful bounds and to make everyone a slave to the income tax and to federal jurisdiction?

36 Another way of looking at this is that the "United States" is a small geographic area that is a "subcontractor" to the states of 37 the Union, and all the states of the Union are legally "foreign" from the federal government as far as legislative jurisdiction,
38 which includes the Internal Revenue Code. The "contract" that binds the states to the federal government "contractor" is the 39 "U.S. Constitution", the U.S. Codes, and the Uniform Commercial Code (UCC). That's why Congress puts source rules for 40 taxable income under section 861 within the following hierarchy in the tax code:

41 United States Code
42 TITLE 26 - INTERNAL REVENUE CODE
43 Subtitle A - Income Taxes
44 CHAPTER 1 - NORMAL TAXES AND SURTAXES
45 Subchapter N - Tax Based on Income From Sources Within or Without the United States
46 PART I - SOURCE RULES AND OTHER GENERAL RULES RELATING TO FOREIGN INCOME
47 § 861. Income from sources within the United States.

48 Even more interesting is the fact that the title of Part I under versions of the code prior to 1988 was "Determination of sources
49 of income", which we describe in section 6.5.5 as one of Congress' cover-ups. After that, Congress added the word "foreign"
50 to hide the truth better. We are then left to believe with the new title of this section and earlier discussion that "foreign income” is anything that derives from importation by federally registered corporations from sources geographically outside the federal zone and that the “person” who earns it must maintain a domicile within the “federal zone”, which is the District of Columbia and federal possessions. We must conclude this because of the definition of the term “United States” in 26 U.S.C. §7701 and the fact that the federal zone is the only area over which the federal government has exclusive jurisdiction and general (not limited) sovereignty. However, most people fall back on the common definition of the term “foreign” found in the layman’s (nonlegal) dictionary, which only confuses the average person and deceives them into reaching the wrong conclusion. The layman’s definition of “foreign” is:

Foreign: 1: situated outside a place or country; esp: situated outside one's own country. 2: born in, belonging to, or characteristic of some place or country other than the one under consideration.
[Webster's Ninth New Collegiate Dictionary, 1983, Merriam-Webster, p. 483]

Did you notice the BIG difference between the legal definition of “foreign” terms found in Black’s Law Dictionary and the everyday, more common definition of “foreign”? Of the two definitions of “foreign”, the correct definition is the legal definition and not the layman’s definition when we are reading federal statutes. If you have learned anything by now, it should be that you should always use the legal definition and ignore layman’s dictionaries when reading the law or the governments “words of art” will deceive you about the jurisdiction of the law. Can you see how the IRS and Congress might want you to use or believe the layman’s version of the word instead of the legal version of it? It would certainly benefit them from a tax collection standpoint! If you think like most people mistakenly do that “foreign” is relative to your country instead of relative to the federal United States (District of Columbia), then you will think that Part I of the Internal Revenue Code doesn’t apply to you as a “national” of the 50 United States with income from the 50 Union states! You will therefore instead have to refer to section 61 of the IRC which talks about “gross income” as being any type of income and with no definition of the word “source” to go from. And since Congress removed the pointer in section 61 of the IRC back to section 861 in about 1982, you won’t even think to look in section 861 to determine taxable sources of income, and you won’t believe people who tell you that only foreign income earned from within the District of Columbia and abroad pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §911 but not within states of the Union are taxable under 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f)!

There’s a reason why the wording of the Internal Revenue Code hasn’t changed significantly since the code was enacted in 1921: because the law is very carefully and deceitfully crafted to cover-up and obfuscate the truth about income tax liability. In the following sections and especially in our discussion of “taxable sources” or “sources”, keep this definition of “foreign” in the back of your mind so the meaning and significance of IRC Section 861 is clear! We also talk more about this in section 3.12.1.3 “‘Domestic’ (in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(4))” and section 3.12.1.6: “‘Foreign’ (in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(5))”. The below court ruling helps clarify the meaning of the terms “foreign” and “domestic” (derived from section 5.9) and also explains why the Internal Revenue Code had to explicitly define the meaning of the term “foreign corporation” but not define the meaning of the word “foreign”:

[N.Y. v. re: Merriam, 36 N.E. 505, 141 N.Y. 479, Affirmed 16 S.Ct. 1973, 41 L.Ed. 287]

Once again, we’d emphasize that the “void for vagueness” doctrine discussed in section 5.22 (entitled “Why the ‘Void for Vagueness Doctrine’ should be invoked by the courts to render the Internal Revenue Code Unconstitutional in Total”) really applies here, and that the Internal Revenue Code ought to be nullified by the courts because of vagueness, on something as simple as the definition of “foreign income”. That term “foreign” needs to be much better defined to prevent unnecessary litigation or misinterpretation, because absent a proper, unambiguous legal definition, the only thing we have to refer to in the code is the definition of “foreign corporation” in 26 U.S.C. §7701. We are then lead to believe based on the above definitions that ALL earnings of “taxpayers” that originates from outside the District of Columbia and other parts of the “federal zone” (foreign to the political unit of the “United States” federal government) is “foreign income”. And our interpretation must stick, because according to the U.S. Supreme Court:

“Keeping in mind the well-settled rule that the citizen is exempt from taxation unless the same is imposed by clear and unequivocal language, and that where the construction of a tax law is doubtful, the doubt is to be resolved in favor of those upon whom the tax is sought to be laid.”
[Spreckels Sugar Refining Co. v. McClain, 192 U.S. 397 (1904)]

The context of “words of art” is very important! We have covered the meaning of the term “foreign” in the context of the Internal Revenue Code, but what about the Constitution? In the Constitution, the term “United States” has a completely different meaning than that of the Internal Revenue Code, and it means the states of the Union collectively, and not the federal zone or federal United States. Article 1, Section 8 of the Constitution and Clause 3 of that section is the main taxing section of the Constitution, and it uses the following emphasized phrase:

1 "The Congress shall have the power.... To regulate Commerce with foreign Nations, and among the several
2 States, and with the Indian Tribes;"

3 Recall that the United States is not a "nation", but a Union or federation according to the Supreme Court in Chisholm v.
4 Georgia, 2 Dall. \(U.S.\) 419, 1 L.Ed. 440 (1793). Therefore, the term "foreign nations" means any nation outside of the 5 confederation of states called the "United States", meaning the country United States. On the surface, this would appear to
6 conflict with the Internal Revenue Code Subtitle A, which we just said uses the word "foreign" to refer to anything outside
7 of the federal zone. In fact, there is no conflict between the I.R.C. and the Constitution because the "person" who is the 8 subject of the tax must first reside within the federal United States before the Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A even applies,
9 and the income must be received and earned from "sources within" the federal United States (meaning the District of 10 Columbia and territories and possessions) under 26 U.S.C. §861 and the implementing regulations at 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f) .
11 The "sources within" all relate to Foreign Sales Corporations (FSCs) and Domestic International Sales Corporations (DISCs)
12 registered and licensed with the federal government under 26 U.S.C. §7001. Some people point to 26 U.S.C. §862 as a
13 justification for the false conclusion that sources "without the United States" are also taxable, but in fact, this section uses the 14 same regulations as 26 U.S.C. §861 for computing "income from sources within and without the United States", which is 26
15 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f).

16 The original Constitution didn't define whether territories of the United States were to be treated as part of the "United States"
17 for the purposes of "foreign commerce". The Supreme Court would later have to analyze this deficiency around the turn of 18 the century in 1901, leading it to extend the meaning of "United States" to include territories for the purposes of defining 19 "foreign income" within the Constitution and the Internal Revenue Code in the cases of Downes v. Bidwell and De Lima v.
20 Bidwell in 1901. You can also confirm these conclusions by reading the following cases for yourself:

- 21 1. De Lima v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 1 (1901): Supreme Court ruled that the new territory of Puerto Rico was no longer a 22 foreign country and imports from this territory could no longer be taxed because no longer foreign income.
- 23 2. Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901): Supreme Court ruled that Porto Rico became a part of the United States within 24 the meaning of the Constitution, and therefore, trade with that country was no longer considered "foreign" and no longer
25 subject to taxes on foreign commerce.
- 26 3. Eisner v. Macomber, 252 U.S. 189 (1920): defines the term "income" and says that Congress does not have the authority 27 to legislatively define the word "income".
- 28 4. Balzac v. Porto Rico, 258 U.S. 298 (1922): Supreme Court explained that the "United States" in the context of the 29 Constitution only includes the Union of states, and not territories of the federal government. Therefore "foreign income"
30 in the context of the Constitution can only mean income earned from other countries.

31 5.2.18 Constitutional Federal Taxes under the I.R.C. apply to imports, Foreign Income of Aliens and Corporations, 32 and domiciliaries Living Abroad

33 To some, the title of this section may seem ambiguous or misleading. Allow us to clarify our terms. We must always 34 remember that there are two systems of taxation described within the Internal Revenue Code, as explained earlier at the 35 beginning of section 5.1.11:

- 36 1. Legitimate, Constitutional "Federal income taxes" described under Subtitles D and E of the Internal Revenue Code. This 37 revenue system operates exclusively within states of the Union on nonfederal land and also within admiralty or maritime 38 jurisdiction.
- 39 2. "national" or "municipal" taxes of the District of Columbia described under Subtitles A through C of the I.R.C. This 40 revenue system operates only within exclusive jurisdiction of the federal government and coming under Article 1, Section
41 8, Clause 17 of the Constitution. It is implemented only within the District of Columbia, federal enclaves within the 42 states, territories and possessions of the United States and it is addressed exclusively by Subtitles A through C of the 43 Internal Revenue Code. We call this a "municipal tax of the District of Columbia", as distinguished from a "federal 44 income tax" applying exclusively within the states of the Union and admiralty jurisdiction.

45 All of the above aside, we can now delve into taxation exclusively within states of the Union on nonfederal land. The taxing 46 approach of the federal government within states of the Union has always had is:

47 "Citizens abroad and foreigners at home."

1 In the context of municipal income taxes, "home" means the federal zone and "abroad" means outside the country "United
2 States". This is the same taxing scheme advocated by Jesus in the Bible. Jesus Christ first addressed the tax issue in Matthew
3 17:24-27, which says:

4 *After Jesus and his disciples arrived in Capernaum, the collectors of the two-drachma tax came to Peter and
5 asked, "Doesn't your teacher pay the temple tax?"*

6 "Yes, he does," he replied.

7 *When Peter came into the house, Jesus was the first to speak. "What do you think, Simon?" he asked. "From 8 whom do the kings of the earth collect duty and taxes--from their own 9 sons or from others?"

10 "From others," Peter answered.

11 "Then the sons [of the King, Constitutional but not statutory citizens and 12 sovereign "national" and "non-resident non-persons"] are EXEMPT."

13 The Founders understood because of their Christian faith that "the sons [nationals] are exempt" and, in their wisdom, designed
14 our Constitutional Republic so that the sovereign People domiciled in states of the Union would be free from direct taxation
15 by the government; so that the day-to-day operations of the federal government would be funded through indirect excise taxes
16 in the form of duties and tariffs to be paid by foreigners wishing to sell into our vast markets. Below is confirmation of this
17 fact by the supreme Court of the United States:

18 *"Now, the Federal Government can no more regulate the commerce of a State than a State can regulate the 19 commerce of the Federal government; and domestic bills or promissory notes are as necessary to the commerce
20 of a State as foreign bills to the commerce of the Union. And if a tax on the exchange broker who deals in foreign
21 bills be a regulation of foreign commerce, or commerce among the States, much more would a tax upon state
22 paper, by Congress, be a tax on the commerce of a State."
23 [Paul v. Virginia, 8 Wall (U.S.) 168, 19 L.Ed. 357 (1868)]*

24 *"No interference by Congress with the business of citizens transacted within a state is warranted by the 25 Constitution, except such as is strictly incidental to the exercise of powers clearly granted to the legislature."
26 [License Tax Cases, 72 U.S. 462 (1866)]*

27 The Internal Revenue Code implementing regulations also confirm the conclusion that federal taxation is limited to foreign 28 commerce and aliens as well. For instance, 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(a)(2)(ii) indicates that married and unmarried "individuals" are 29 all defined as aliens and the definition does not include "citizens":

30 NORMAL TAXES AND SURTAXES
31 DETERMINATION OF TAX LIABILITY
32 Tax on Individuals
33 Sec. 1.1-1 Income tax on individuals.

34 *(a)(2)(ii) For taxable years beginning after December 31, 1970, the tax imposed by section 1(d), as amended by
35 the Tax Reform Act of 1969, shall apply to the income effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business
36 in the United States by a married alien individual who is a nonresident of the United States for all or part of
37 the taxable year or by a foreign estate or trust. For such years the tax imposed by section 1(c), as amended by
38 such Act, shall apply to the income effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business in the United
39 States by an unmarried alien individual (other than a surviving spouse) who is a nonresident of the United 40 States for all or part of the taxable year. See paragraph (b)(2) of section 1.871-8." [26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(a)(2)(ii)]*

41 The above definition of "individual" is also confirmed elsewhere in the regulations at 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c):

42 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1 Requirement for the deduction and withholding of tax on payments to foreign persons.

43 (c) Definitions

44 (3) Individual.

45 (i) Alien individual.

1 The term alien individual means an individual who is not a citizen or a national of the United States. See Sec.
2 1.1-1(c).

4 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1T Requirement for the deduction and withholding of tax on payments to foreign persons.

5 (c) Definitions

6 (3) Individual.

7 (ii) Nonresident alien individual.

8 The term nonresident alien individual means persons described in section 7701(b)(1)(B), alien individuals who
9 are treated as nonresident aliens pursuant to § 301.7701\(b\)-7 of this chapter for purposes of computing their U.S.
10 tax liability, or an alien individual who is a resident of Puerto Rico, Guam, the Commonwealth of Northern
11 Mariana Islands, the U.S. Virgin Islands, or American Samoa as determined under § 301.7701\(b\)-1\(d\) of this
12 chapter. An alien individual who has made an election under section 6013(g) or \(h\) to be treated as a resident of
13 the United States is nevertheless treated as a nonresident alien individual for purposes of withholding under
14 chapter 3 of the Code and the regulations thereunder.

15 Do you see “citizen” or “national” listed anywhere in the above definition of “individual”? Not only this, but if you look at 16 the regulations at 26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1(d)(3) which govern the assignment of “Individual Taxpayer Identification Numbers
17 (TINs)”, the only people who can be assigned these numbers are “residents”, which we will prove later in section 5.5.2 means
18 a ONLY a “resident alien”!

19 26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1\(d\)\(3\): Identifying Numbers

20 (3) IRS individual taxpayer identification number –

21 (i) Definition.

22 The term IRS individual taxpayer identification number means a taxpayer identifying number issued to an
23 alien individual by the Internal Revenue Service, upon application, for use in connection with filing
24 requirements under this title. The term IRS individual taxpayer identification number does not refer to a
25 social security number or an account number for use in employment for wages. For purposes of this section,
26 the term alien individual means an individual who is not a citizen or national of the United States.

27 In the tax code, people born in or domiciled within states of the Union are “nationals” and “non-resident non-persons”. They 28 only earn “gross income” if they are holding a public office in the United States government or receive payments from the 29 federal government, as confirmed by the following statutes and implementing regulations:

- 30 1. 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B) defines “nonresident aliens” as persons who are neither “citizens” or “residents” and that is 31 exactly what a “national” born in a state of the Union is. 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3)(i) also shows that “nationals” are 32 not “aliens”.
- 33 2. 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) defines “trade or business” as the functions of a public office. See section 5.6.12 and following 34 later entitled “The Trade or Business Scam”.
- 35 3. 26 U.S.C. §864(c)(3) excludes the earnings of “nonresident aliens” who work for nonresident aliens from the definition
36 of “gross income” under 26 U.S.C. §61.
- 37 4. “Gross income” for nonresident aliens is defined under 26 U.S.C. §871, and is limited to income originating from the 38 District of Columbia that is:
39 4.1. Connected directly to a “trade or business” under 26 U.S.C. §871(b) or 40 4.2. Connected indirectly to a “trade or business” under 26 U.S.C. §871(a).
- 41 5. 26 U.S.C. §861(a)(3)(C), 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f)(1)(iv), and 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(a)(6)-1(b) all limit “gross income” to 42 earnings derived from conduct “effectively connected with a trade or business in the United States government”.

43 Consequently, you can only be a compelled “taxpayer” under I.R.C., Subtitle A if you are:

- 44 1. Domiciliaries of the federal zone who are temporarily abroad for no more than nine months per year under 26 U.S.C.
45 §911, including:
46 1.1. “residents” and “resident aliens”.

- 1 1.2. Statutory "U.S. citizens" under 8 U.S.C. §1401 domiciled abroad.
 2 1.3. Statutory "U.S. persons" defined under 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30).
 3 2. A "nonresident alien" lawfully occupying a public office in the national government with earnings from the office
 4 originating within the District of Columbia coming under 8 U.S.C. §871.

5 The term "statutory U.S. citizens" above, by the way also includes federal "corporations" incorporated in the District of 6 Columbia but excludes state chartered corporations under the Internal Revenue Code. This is what the I.R.C. refers to as
 7 "domestic corporations". Any other type of "corporation" is a "foreign corporation" under 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(5). Here is a
 8 quote from the legal encyclopedia Corpus Juris Secundum confirming this conclusion:

9 "A corporation is a citizen, resident, or inhabitant of the state or country by or under the laws of which it was
 10 created, and of that state or country only."

11 [19 Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.), Corporations, §886 (2003)]

12 We assert that these corporate "citizens" and statutory "U.S. citizens" (under 8 U.S.C. §1401) residing temporarily abroad
 13 but domiciled in the federal "United States" are technically the only types of "citizens" that are the proper subject of Internal 14 Revenue Code, Subtitle A because the definition of "income" can only mean "corporate profit" derived only from foreign 15 commerce according to the Supreme Court, as we will point out later in section 5.6.5. Even the IRS 1040 Instruction Booklet
 16 for 2001 confirms on page 20 that the only "income" that should be reported on form 1040 is "Foreign-Source Income", 17 which is profit derived from commerce with countries outside of ours:

18 Income

19 Foreign-Source Income

20 You must report unearned income, such as interest, dividends, and pensions, from sources outside the United
 21 States unless exempt by law or tax treaty. You must also report earned income, such as wages and tips, from 22 sources outside the United States.

23 If you worked abroad, you may be able to exclude part of all of your earned income. For details, see Pub. 54 and 24 Form 2555 or 2555-EZ.
 25 [IRS 1040 Instruction Booklet (2001), p. 20]

26 While the general power to "lay and collect taxes" (U.S. Constitution, Article I, Section 8, Clause 1) combined with the power
 27 to "regulate commerce with foreign nations" (U.S. Constitution, Article I, Section 8, Clause 3) undoubtedly gives Congress
 28 the power to impose an income tax on income derived from foreign commerce (William E. Peck & Co. v. Lowe, 247 U.S.
 29 165 (1918)), mere receipt of income from intrastate commerce cannot be a proper subject of a federal excise tax. This 30 restriction exists because of Article 1, Section 9, Clause 5 of the U.S. Constitution, which states:

31 "No Tax or Duty shall be laid on Articles exported from any State."

32 Both the Supreme Court (Stanton v. Baltic Mining, 240 U.S. 103 (1916)) and the Secretary of the Treasury (Treasury Decision 33 2303) agree that the income tax is in fact an "indirect" excise. Indirect taxes are taxes only on artificial entities such as 34 corporations and partnerships and not on natural persons.

35 The preceding discussion so far which describes the Constitutional limits of federal taxing jurisdiction by showing that it is 36 limited ONLY to foreign commerce. This limits also happen to be entirely consistent with the stated legislative intent of the 37 Constitution revealed in the Federalist Papers. Here is an excerpt from Federalist Paper #45 backing that up:

38 "The powers delegated by the proposed Constitution to the Federal Government, are few and defined. Those 39 which are to remain in the State Governments are numerous and indefinite. The former will be exercised 40 principally on external objects, as war, peace, negotiation and foreign commerce; with which last the power of 41 taxation will for the most part be connected. The powers reserved to the several States will extend to all the 42 objects, which, in the ordinary course of affairs, concern the lives, liberties and properties of the people; and the 43 internal order, improvement, and prosperity of the State."
 44 [Federalist Paper #45, James Madison]

1                   "The States, after they formed the Union, continued to have the same range of taxing power which they had
 2 before, barring only duties affecting exports, imports, and on tonnage. 2 Congress, on the other hand, to lay
 3 taxes in order 'to pay the Debts and provide for the common Defence and general Welfare of the United States',
 4 Art. 1, Sec. 8, U.S.C.A.Const., can reach every person and every dollar in the land with due regard to
 5 Constitutional limitations as to the method of laying taxes."
 6 [Graves v. People of State of New York, 306 U.S. 466 (1939)]

7 The status of being a statutory "U.S. citizen" under "acts of Congress" (that is, a person born or naturalized in the District of 8 Columbia or other federal territory) creates a means or nexus for the U.S. government to obtain jurisdiction over us that it
 9 will abuse to illegally compel payment of income taxes citizen regardless of where they live, including in a state of the Union
 10 or abroad. The reason we have to pay the tax when we are abroad in a foreign country is to pay the cost of "defending" and 11 "protecting" us while we are abroad. Even in that scenario though, this only applies to those who legitimately are 8 U.S.C.
 12 §1401 statutory federal "U.S.** citizens" under "acts of Congress", which people born in states of the Union are not. Most 13 persons born on nonfederal land in the 50 states of the Union are, in fact, "nationals" under federal law, as defined in 8 U.S.C.
 14 §1101(a)(21). In the U.S. Constitution Annotated, under the Fifth Amendment (see 15 <http://caselaw.lp.findlaw.com/data/constitution/amendment05/13.html> - 6) , here is what it says about this subject:

16                   "In laying taxes, the Federal Government is less narrowly restricted by the Fifth Amendment than are the States
 17 *by the Fourteenth. The Federal Government may tax property belonging to its [domiciled, statutory but not
 18 constitutional] citizens, even if such property is never situated within the jurisdiction of the United States.<sup>49</sup>*
 19 and it may tax the income of a citizen resident abroad, which is derived from property located at his residence.<sup>50</sup>
 20 The difference is explained by the fact that protection of the Federal Government follows the citizen wherever he
 21 goes, whereas the benefits of state government accrue only to persons and property within the State's borders. "
 22 [Annotated Fifth Amendment, Findlaw]

23 However, the above findings do not translate into a power by Congress to tax natural persons inside the 50 states of the Union
 24 on nonfederal land, because of the limitations on direct taxes found in Article 1, Section 9, Clause 4, and Article 1, Section
 25 2, Clause 3 of the U.S. Constitution. This is in spite of the fact that for the purposes of police powers and legislative 26 jurisdiction (e.g. "acts of Congress"), the states of the Union are "foreign countries" and "foreign states" with respect to the 27 federal government. This means that no federal territorial jurisdiction for direct taxes are authorized in the 50 Union states
 28 for natural persons.

29                   "In the states, there reposes the sovereignty to manage their own affairs except only as the requirements of the 30 *Constitution otherwise provide. Within these constitutional limits the power of the state over taxation is 31 plenary."
 32 [Madden v. Commonwealth of Kentucky, 309 U.S. 83 (1940)]

33 In case you don't know what "plenary" means, it means unrestrained, absolute, exclusive rights NOT shared with the federal 34 government. Likewise, even though the U.S. government has jurisdiction for direct taxes overseas, the income must still 35 derive from taxable sources identified in 26 U.S.C. §862, which then points to 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f) as the implementing 36 regulation for determining taxable sources of income. That section of regulations, in turn, only defines as "gross income"
 37 those profits associated with privileged Domestic International Sales Corporations (DISCs) or Foreign Sales Corporations
 38 (FSCs), both of whom are involved directly and only in foreign commerce with other countries.

39 In fact, not only is the income tax under Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A only imposed on foreign commerce external to
 40 the country as required under Art. 1, Section 8, Clause 3 of the Constitution, but the people participating in such commerce
 41 are licensed "individuals" in receipt of federal privileges and residing within the federal zone under 26 U.S.C. §7001:

42                   TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 72 > Subchapter A > Sec. 7001.
 43                   Sec. 7001. - Collection of foreign items

44                   (a) License

45                   All persons undertaking as a matter of business or for profit the collection of foreign payments of interest or
 46 dividends by means of coupons, checks, or bills of exchange shall obtain a license from the Secretary and shall
 47 be subject to such regulations enabling the Government to obtain the information required under subtitle A
 48 (relating to income taxes) as the Secretary shall prescribe.

1 (b) Penalty for failure to obtain license

2 For penalty for failure to obtain the license provided for in this section, see section 7231

3 The Code of Federal Regulations, when published in the Federal Register, are the official notification to the public of what
4 the law requires of them (44 USC). These regulations must give specifics. For decades, the regulations defining "gross
5 income" specifically stated that income of "persons" (artificial entities such as corporations and partnerships) derived from
6 "foreign commerce" must be included in their "gross income," and also described income of foreigners, and income of those
7 who receive most of their income from federal possessions (Regulations 62, Article 31 (1922), 26 C.F.R. §39.22(a)-1 (1956)).

8 Congress cannot gain jurisdiction over an event, or regulate an event not otherwise constitutionally under federal jurisdiction
9 (such as intrastate commerce), simply by exerting such control via taxation legislation. "To give such magic to the word 'tax'
10 would be to break down all constitutional limitation of the powers of Congress" (Bailey v. Drexel Furniture Co., 259 U.S. 20
11 (1922)), and such a law "cannot be sustained as an exercise of the taxing power of Congress conferred by section 8, article
12 1" (Hill v. Wallace, 259 U.S. 44 (1922)). This is not to say that the income tax is in any way invalid; it is merely to show
13 why the income tax statutes and regulations themselves limit the tax to those engaged in international or foreign commerce
14 only.

15 When it comes to taxation, the truth can sometimes be stranger than fiction! For further study on the right of Congress to tax
16 federal/U.S.** citizens living abroad, who are called "nonresident citizens", we refer you to the Supreme Court case of Cook
17 v. Tait, 265 U.S. 47 (1924) and to IRS Publication 54.

18 5.2.19 "Employee" in the Internal Revenue Code means ONLY public officers and instrumentalities of the federal
19 government

20 Most people are shocked to learn that they are not considered "employees" as defined in the Internal Revenue Code. IRC
21 section 3401(c) provides the following definition of "employee" within the context of income tax withholding:

22 26 U.S.C. §3401(c) Employee

23
24 For purposes of this chapter, the term "employee" includes [is limited to] an officer, employee, or elected
25 official of the United States, a [federal] State, or any political subdivision thereof, or the District of 26 Columbia, or any agency or instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing. The term "employee" also 27 includes an officer of a corporation.

28 8 Federal Register, Tuesday, September 7, 1943, §404.104, pg. 12267

29 Employee: "The term employee specifically includes officers and employees whether elected or appointed, of 30 the United States, a state, territory, or political subdivision thereof or the District of Columbia or any agency or 31 instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing."

32 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(c) Employee: "...the term [employee] includes officers and employees, whether elected or 33 appointed, of the United States, a [federal] State, Territory, Puerto Rico or any political subdivision, thereof,
34 or the District of Columbia, or any agency or instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing. The term
35 'employee' also includes an officer of a corporation."

36 Now isn't that interesting? You aren't considered an "employee" as far as payroll deductions unless you are an officer, an 37 appointee, or elected official of the United States who is in direct receipt of government privileges! This is because the 38 income tax is an excise/privilege tax according to the U.S. Supreme Court and the Congressional Research Service. But then
39 the IRS will deny adamantly that the income tax is an excise/privilege tax if you ask them. Self-serving hypocrites! That 40 means the U.S. Government has no authority whatsoever to be telling private employers to withhold pay or hold them liable
41 for not withholding! Likewise, if you aren't an "employee", then the person you work for also isn't an "employer", as defined
42 in section 3401(d) of the IRC, because an "employer" is defined as someone with "employees".

43 Even more interesting is the definition of "employee" found in 5 U.S.C. §2105:

44 2105. DEFINITIONS

45 (a) For the purpose of this title, "employee", except as otherwise provided by this section 46 or when specifically modified, means an officer and an individual who is -

- (1) appointed in the civil service by one of the following acting in an official capacity -
- (A) the President;
  - (B) a Member or Members of Congress, or the Congress;
  - (C) a member of a uniformed service;
  - (D) an individual who is an employee under this section;
  - (E) the head of a Government controlled corporation; or
  - (F) an adjutant general designated by the Secretary concerned under section 709(c) of title 32;
- (2) engaged in the performance of a Federal function under authority of law or an Executive act; and
- (3) subject to the supervision of an individual named by paragraph (1) of this subsection while engaged in the performance of the duties of his position.

[....skipped a few entries since irrelevant...]

(d) A Reserve of the armed forces who is not on active duty or who is on active duty for training is deemed not an employee or an individual holding an office of trust or profit or discharging an official function under or in connection with the United States because of his appointment, oath, or status, or any duties or functions performed or pay or allowances received in that capacity.

Another very interesting insight comes from 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(c)-1, which states:

(c) Generally, physicians, lawyers, dentists, veterinarians, contractors, subcontractors, public stenographers, auctioneers, and others who follow an independent trade, business, or profession, in which they offer their services to the public, are not employees.

Basically then, you aren't a "federal employee" unless you work in the District of Columbia (the proper United States) and were directly appointed by the delegated authority of an elected official or elected by the public. Any other situation implies that you are practicing a business trade or profession that does not depend on the taxable privileges incident to political "public office". Further confirmation of this fact is found in the definition of the term "trade or business", which is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) as being associated with the performance of the functions of a public office. All "gross income" and "taxable income" which is associated with a "trade or business in the [federal] United States" must meet this test for natural persons. Once again, the key to understanding this situation is to recognize that the jurisdiction by the government to tax results from the acceptance of government privileges in exchange for consent to waive one's rights to not pay taxes. The key to staying tax free is to be never accept any government privileges.

The subject of the definition of "employee" above is something that some academics indicate does not include everyone covered by the internal revenue code. They say that the word "includes" as far as the IRC is not meant to be inclusive, but rather "expansive" and that there may be other things the words mean that aren't in the code. This is nonsense, as we explain in 3.12.1.8 "Includes" and is just meant to in effect deceive people and convince them that they can't trust the law and English language to explicitly define the taxes they owe. The courts have struck this approach down many times over, and conflict of interest and downright greed on the part of federal judges is the only reason they wouldn't strike it down. See 28 U.S.C. 455, which makes such conflict of interest a crime.

5.2.20 You're not a STATUTORY "citizen" under the Internal Revenue Code

As we proved exhaustively earlier in Chapter 4 starting with section 4.11, there are TWO contexts in which one may be a "citizen", and these two contexts are mutually exclusive and not overlapping:

1. Statutory: Relies on statutory definitions of "United States", which mean federal territory that is no part of any state of the Union.
2. Constitutional. Relies on the Constitutional meaning of "United States", which means states of the Union and excludes federal territory.

Within the field of citizenship, CONTEXT is everything in discerning the meaning of geographical terms. By "context", we mean ONE of the two contexts as indicated above:

"Citizenship of the United States is defined by the Fourteenth Amendment and federal statutes, but the requirements for citizenship of a state generally depend not upon definition but the constitutional or statutory context in which the term is used. Risewick v. Davis, 19 Md. 82, 93 (1862); Halaby v. Board of Directors of University of Cincinnati, 162 Ohio St. 290, 293, 123 N.E.2d 3 (1954) and authorities therein cited.

The decisions illustrate the diversity of the term's usage. In Field v. Adreon, 7 Md. 209 (1854), our predecessors held that an unnaturalized foreigner, residing and doing business in this State, was a citizen of Maryland within the meaning of the attachment laws. The Court held that the absconding debtor was a citizen of the State for commercial or business purposes, although not necessarily for political purposes. Dorsey v. Kyle, 30 Md. 512, 518 (1869), is to the same effect. Judge Alvey, for the Court, said in that case, that 'the term citizen, used in the formula of the affidavit prescribed by the 4th section of the Article of the Code referred to, is to be taken as synonymous with inhabitant or permanent resident.'

Other jurisdictions have equated residence with citizenship of the state for political and other non-commercial purposes. In re Wehlitz, 16 Wis. 443, 446 (1863), held that the Wisconsin statute designating 'all able-bodied, white, male citizens' as subject to enrollment in the militia included an unnaturalized citizen who was a resident of the state. 'Under our complex system of government,' the court said, 'there may be a citizen of a state, who is not a citizen of the United States in the full sense of the term.' McKenzie v. Murphy, 24 Ark. 155, 159 (1863), held that an alien, domiciled in the state for over ten years, was entitled to the homestead exemptions provided by the Arkansas statute to 'every free white citizen of this state, male or female, being a householder or head of a family * * *.' The court said: 'The word 'citizen' is often used in common conversation and writing, as meaning only an inhabitant, a resident of a town, state, or county, without any implication of political or civil privileges; and we think it is so used in our constitution.' Halaby v. Board of Directors of University, supra, involved the application of a statute which provided free university instruction to citizens of the municipality in which the university is located. The court held that the plaintiff, an alien minor whose parents were residents of and conducted a business in the city, was entitled to the benefits of that statute, saying: 'It is to be observed that the term, 'citizen,' is often used in legislation where 'domicile' is meant and where United States citizenship has no reasonable relationship to the subject matter and purpose of the legislation in question.'

Closely in point to the interpretation of the constitutional provision here involved is a report of the Committee of Elections of the House of Representatives, made in 1823. A petitioner had objected to the right of a Delegate to retain his seat from what was then the Michigan Territory. One of the objections was that the Delegate had not resided in the Territory one year previous to the election in the status of a citizen of the United States. An act of Congress passed in 1819, 3 Stat. 483 provided that 'every free white male citizen of said Territory, above the age of twenty-one years, who shall have resided therein one year next preceding' an election shall be entitled to vote at such election for a delegate to Congress. An act of 1823, 3 Stat. 769 provided that all citizens of the United States having the qualifications set forth in the former act shall be eligible to any office in the Territory. The Committee held that the statutory requirement of citizenship of the Territory for a year before the election did not mean that the aspirant for office must also have been a United States citizen during that period. The report said: 'It is the person, the individual, the man, who is [221 A.2d 435] spoken of, and who is to possess the qualifications of residence, age, freedom, &c. at the time he offers to vote, or is to be voted for * * *.' Upon the filing of the report, and the submission of a resolution that the Delegate was entitled to his seat, the contestant of the Delegate's election withdrew his protest, and the sitting Delegate was confirmed. Biddle v. Richard, Clarke and Hall, Cases of Contested Elections in Congress (1834) 407, 410.

There is no express requirement in the Maryland Constitution that sheriffs be United States citizens. Voters must be, under Article I, Section 1, but Article IV, Section 44 does not require that sheriffs be voters. A person does not have to be a voter to be a citizen of either the United States or of a state, as in the case of native-born minors. In Maryland, from 1776 to 1802, the Constitution contained requirements of property ownership for the exercise of the franchise; there was no exception as to native-born citizens of the State. Steiner, Citizenship and Suffrage in Maryland (1895) 27, 31.

The Maryland Constitution provides that the Governor, Judges and the Attorney General shall be qualified voters, and therefore, by necessary implication, citizens of the United States. Article II, Section 5, Article IV, Section 2, and Article V, Section 4. The absence of a similar requirement as to the qualifications of sheriffs is significant. So also, in our opinion, is the absence of any period of residence for a sheriff except that he shall have been a citizen of the State for five years. The Governor, Judges and Attorney General in addition to being citizens of the State and qualified voters, must have been a resident of the State for various periods. The conjunction of the requisite period of residence with state citizenship in the qualifications for sheriff strongly indicates that, as in the authorities above referred to, state citizenship, as used in the constitutional qualifications for this office, was meant to be synonymous with domicile, and that citizenship of the United States is not required, even by implication, as a qualification for this office. The office of sheriff, under our Constitution, is ministerial in nature; a sheriff's function and province is to execute duties prescribed by law. See Buckeye Dev. Crop. v. Brown & Schilling, Inc., Md., 220 A.2d. 922, filed June 23, 1966 and the concurring opinion of Le Grand, C. J. in Mayor & City Council of Baltimore v. State, ex rel. Bd. of Police, 15 Md. 376, 470, 488-490 (1860).

It may well be that the phrase, 'a citizen of the State,' as used in the constitutional provisions as to qualifications, implies that a sheriff cannot owe allegiance to another nation. By the naturalization act of 1779, the Legislature provided that, to become a citizen of Maryland, an alien must swear allegiance to the State. The oath or

1 affirmation provided that the applicant renounced allegiance 'to any king or prince, or any other State or
2 Government.' Act of July, 1779, Ch. VI; Steiner, op. cit. 15. In this case, on the admitted facts, there can be no
3 question of the appellant's undivided allegiance.

4 The court below rested its decision on its conclusion that, under the Fourteenth Amendment, no state may confer
5 state citizenship upon a resident alien until such resident alien becomes a naturalized citizen of the United States.
6 The court relied, as does not Board in this appeal, upon City of Minneapolis v. Reum, 56 F. 576, 581 (8th Cir.
7 1893). In that case, an alien resident of Minnesota, who had declared his intention to become a citizen of the 8 United States but had not been naturalized, brought a suit, based on diversity of citizenship, against the city in
9 the Circuit Court of the District of Minnesota under Article III, Section 2 of the United States
10 Constitution which provides that the federal judicial power shall extend to 'Controversies between * * * a State,
11 or the Citizens thereof, and foreign States, Citizens or Subjects.' At the close of the evidence, the defendant moved
12 to dismiss the action for want of jurisdiction, on the [221 A.2d 436] ground that the evidence failed to establish 13 the allegation that the plaintiff was an alien. The court denied the motion, the plaintiff recovered judgment, and 14 the defendant claimed error in the ruling on jurisdiction. The Circuit Court of Appeals affirmed. Judge Sanborn,
15 for the court, stated that even though the plaintiff were a citizen of the state, that fact could not enlarge or restrict 16 the jurisdiction of the federal courts over controversies between aliens and citizens of the state. The court said:
17 'It is not in the power of a state to denationalize a foreign subject who has not complied with the federal
18 naturalization laws, and constitute him a citizen of the United States or of a state, so as to deprive the federal 19 courts of jurisdiction * * *.'

20 Reum dealt only with the question of jurisdiction of federal courts under the diversity of citizenship clause of the 21 federal Constitution. That a state cannot affect that jurisdiction by granting state citizenship to an unnaturalized
22 alien does not mean it cannot make an alien a state citizen for other purposes. Under the Fourteenth Amendment
23 all persons born or naturalized in the United States are citizens of the United States and of the state in which they
24 reside, but we find nothing in Reum or any other case which requires that a citizen of a state must also be a citizen
25 of the United States, if no question of federal rights or jurisdictions is involved. As the authorities referred to in 26 the first portion of this opinion evidence, the law is to the contrary.

27 Absent any unconstitutional discrimination, a state has the right to extend qualification for state office to its 28 citizens, even though they are not citizens of the United States. This, we have found, is what Maryland has done
29 in fixing the constitutional qualifications for the office of sheriff. The appellant meets the qualifications which our 30 Constitution provides."
31 [Crosse v. Board of Sup'rs of Elections of Baltimore City, 221 A.2d. 431, 243 Md. 555 (Md., 1966) ]

32 The confusion over citizenship prevalent today is caused by a deliberate confusion of the above two contexts with each other
33 so as to make every American appear to be a statutory citizen and therefore an public officer of the "United States Inc"
34 government corporation. This fact was first identified by the U.S. Supreme Court as follows:

35 "Under our own systems of polity, the term 'citizen', implying the same or similar relations to the government and
36 to society which appertain to the term, 'subject' in England, is familiar to all. Under either system, the term used
37 is designed to apply to man in his individual character and to his natural capacities -- to a being or agent
38 [PUBLIC OFFICER!] possessing social and political rights and sustaining social, political, and moral
39 obligations. It is in this acceptation only, therefore, that the term 'citizen', in the article of the Constitution,
40 can be received and understood. When distributing the judicial power, that article extends it to controversies
41 between 'citizens' of different states. This must mean the natural physical beings composing those separate
42 communities, and can by no violence of interpretation be made to signify artificial, incorporeal, theoretical,
43 and invisible creations. A corporation, therefore, being not a natural person, but a mere creature of the mind,
44 invisible and intangible, cannot be a citizen of a state, or of the United States, and cannot fall within the terms
45 or the power of the above mentioned article, and can therefore neither plead nor be impleaded in the courts of 46 the United States."

47 "Sir Edward Coke has declared, that a corporation cannot commit treason, felony, or other crime; neither is 48 it capable of suffering a traitor's or felon's punishment, for it is not liable to corporeal penalties -- that it can 49 perform no personal duties, for it cannot take an oath for the due execution of an office; neither can it be
50 arrested or committed to prison, for its existence being ideal, no man can arrest it; neither can it be 51 excommunicated, for it has no soul. But these doctrines of Lord Coke were founded upon an apprehension of 52 the law now treated as antiquated and obsolete. His lordship did not anticipate an improvement by which a 53 corporation could be transformed into a citizen, and by that transformation be given a physical existence, and 54 endowed with soul and body too. The incongruities here attempted to be shown as necessarily deducible from 55 the decisions of the cases of Bank of the United States v. Deveaux and of Cincinnati & Louisville Railroad
56 Company v. Letson afford some illustration of the effects which must ever follow a departure from the settled
57 principles of the law. These principles are always traceable to a wise and deeply 58 founded experience; they are therefore ever consentaneous and in 59 harmony with themselves and with reason, and whenever abandoned as 60 guides to the judicial course, the aberration must lead to bewildering
61 uncertainty and confusion."

[Rundle v. Delaware & Raritan Canal Company 55 U.S. 80, 99 (1852) from dissenting opinion by Justice Daniel]

"The principal issue in this petition is the territorial scope of the term 'the United States' in the Citizenship Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment. U.S. Const. amend. XIV, § 1 ("All persons born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States and of the State wherein they reside." (emphasis added)). Petitioner, who was born in the Philippines in 1934 during its status as a United States territory, argues she was "born ... in the United States" and is therefore a United States citizen.<sup>51</sup>

Petitioner's argument is relatively novel, having been addressed previously only in the Ninth Circuit. See Rabang v. INS, 35 F.3d 1449, 1452 (9th Cir.1994) ("No court has addressed whether persons born in a United States territory are born 'in the United States,' within the meaning of the Fourteenth Amendment."), cert. denied sub nom. Sanidad v. INS, 515 U.S. 1130, 115 S.Ct. 2554, 132 L.Ed.2d. 809 (1995). In a split decision, the Ninth Circuit held that "birth in the Philippines during the territorial period does not constitute birth 'in the United States' under the Citizenship Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment, and thus does not give rise to United States citizenship." Rabang, 35 F.3d at 1452. We agree.<sup>52</sup>

Despite the novelty of petitioner's argument, the Supreme Court in the Insular Cases<sup>53</sup> provides authoritative guidance on the territorial scope of the term "the United States" in the Fourteenth Amendment. The Insular Cases were a series of Supreme Court decisions that addressed challenges to duties on goods transported from Puerto Rico to the continental United States. Puerto Rico, like the Philippines, had been recently ceded to the United States. The Court considered the territorial scope of the term "the United States" in the Constitution and held that this term as used in the uniformity clause of the Constitution was territorially limited to the states of the Union. U.S. Const. art. I, § 8 ("[A]ll Duties, Imposts and Excises shall be uniform throughout the United States." (emphasis added)); see Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244, 251, 21 S.Ct. 770, 773, 45 L.Ed. 1088 (1901) ("It can nowhere be inferred that the territories were considered a part of the United States. The Constitution was created by the people of the United States, as a union of States, to be governed solely by representatives of the States; ... In short, the Constitution deals with States, their people, and their representatives."); Rabang, 35 F.3d at 1452. Puerto Rico was merely a territory "appurtenant and belonging to the United States, but not a part of the United States within the revenue clauses of the Constitution." Downes, 182 U.S. at 287, 21 S.Ct. at 787.

The Court's conclusion in Downes was derived in part by analyzing the territorial scope of the Thirteenth and Fourteenth Amendments. The Thirteenth Amendment prohibits slavery and involuntary servitude "within the United States, or any place subject to their jurisdiction." U.S. Const. amend. XIII, § 1 (emphasis added). The Fourteenth Amendment states that persons "born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States and of the State wherein they reside." U.S. Const. amend. XIV, § 1 (emphasis added). The disjunctive "or" in the Thirteenth Amendment demonstrates that "there may be places within the jurisdiction of the United States that are not part of the Union" to which the Thirteenth Amendment would apply. Downes, 182 U.S. at 251, 21 S.Ct. at 773. Citizenship under the Fourteenth Amendment, however, "is not extended to persons born in any place 'subject to [the United States'] jurisdiction," "but is limited to persons born or naturalized in the states of the Union. Downes, 182 U.S. at 251, 21 S.Ct. at 773 (emphasis added); see also id. at 263, 21 S.Ct. at 777 ("I]n dealing with foreign sovereignties, the term 'United States' has a broader meaning than when used in the Constitution, and includes all territories subject to the jurisdiction of the Federal government, wherever located.").<sup>54</sup>

Following the decisions in the Insular Cases, the Supreme Court confirmed that the Philippines, during its status as a United States territory, was not a part of the United States. See Hooven & Allison Co. v. Evatt, 324

<sup>51</sup> Although this argument was not raised before the immigration judge or on appeal to the BIA, it may be raised for the first time in this petition. See INA, supra, § 106(a)(5), 8 U.S.C. § 1105a(a)(5).

<sup>52</sup> For the purpose of deciding this petition, we address only the territorial scope of the phrase "the United States" in the Citizenship Clause. We do not consider the distinct issue of whether citizenship is a "fundamental right" that extends by its own force to the inhabitants of the Philippines under the doctrine of territorial incorporation. Dorr v. United States, 195 U.S. 138, 146, 24 S.Ct. 808, 812, 49 L.Ed. 128 (1904) ("Doubtless Congress, in legislating for the Territories would be subject to those fundamental limitations in favor of personal rights which are formulated in the Constitution and its amendments." (citation and internal quotation marks omitted)); Rabang, 35 F.3d at 1453 n. 8 ("We note that the territorial scope of the phrase 'the United States' is a distinct inquiry from whether a constitutional provision should extend to a territory." (citing Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244, 249, 21 S.Ct. 770, 772, 45 L.Ed. 1088 (1901))). The phrase "the United States" is an express territorial limitation on the scope of the Citizenship Clause. Because we determine that the phrase "the United States" did not include the Philippines during its status as a United States territory, we need not determine the application of the Citizenship Clause to the Philippines under the doctrine of territorial incorporation. Cf. United States v. Verdugo-Urquidez, 494 U.S. 259, 291 n. 11, 110 S.Ct. 1056, 1074 n. 11, 108 L.Ed.2d 222 (1990) (Brennan, J., dissenting) (arguing that the Fourth Amendment may be applied extraterritorially, in part, because it does not contain an "express territorial limitation[ ]").

U.S. 652, 678, 65 S.Ct. 870, 883, 89 L.Ed. 1252 (1945) ("As we have seen, [the Philippines] are not a part of the United States in the sense that they are subject to and enjoy the benefits or protection of the Constitution, as do the states which are united by and under it."); see id. at 673-74, 65 S.Ct. at 881 (Philippines "are territories belonging to, but not a part of, the Union of states under the Constitution," and therefore imports "brought from the Philippines into the United States ... are brought from territory, which is not a part of the United States, into the territory of the United States.").

Accordingly, the Supreme Court has observed, without deciding, that persons born in the Philippines prior to its independence in 1946 are not [CONSTITUTIONAL] citizens of the United States. See Barber v. Gonzales, 347 U.S. 637, 639 n. 1, 74 S.Ct. 822, 823 n. 1, 98 L.Ed. 1009 (1954) (stating that although the inhabitants of the Philippines during the territorial period were "nationals" of the United States, they were not "United States citizens"); Rabang v. Boyd, 353 U.S. 427, 432 n. 12, 77 S.Ct. 985, 988 n. 12, 1 L.Ed.2d. 956 (1957) ("The inhabitants of the Islands acquired by the United States during the late war with Spain, not being citizens of the United States, do not possess right of free entry into the United States." (emphasis added) (citation and internal quotation marks omitted)).
[Valmonte v. I.N.S., 136 F.3d. 914 (C.A.2, 1998)]

The STATUTORY context for the term "citizen" described in 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(c) and 26 U.S.C. §3121(e) relies on the geographical term "United States" found in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d), which means federal territory and not a state of the Union. Therefore, the "citizen" and "U.S. person" found in the Internal Revenue Code is a TERRITORIAL rather than a STATE citizen. For details on why STATUTORY "citizens" are all public officers and not private humans, read:

The U.S. Supreme Court has held in Hooven & Allison Co. v. Evatt, 324 U.S. 652 \(1945\) that there are THREE different meanings and contexts for the word "United States". Hence, there are THREE different types of "citizens of the United States" as used in federal statutes and the Constitution. All three types of citizens are called "citizens of the United States", but each relies on a different meaning of the "United States". The meaning that applies depends on the context. For instance, the meaning of "United States" as used in the Constitution implies states of the Union and excludes federal territory, while the term "United States" within federal statutory law means federal territory and excludes states of the Union. Here is an example demonstrating the Constitutional context. Note that they use "part of the United States within the meaning of the Constitution", and the word "the" and the use of the singular form of "meaning" implies only ONE meaning, which means states of the Union and excludes federal territory:

"As the only judicial power vested in Congress is to create courts whose judges shall hold their offices during good behavior, it necessarily follows that, if Congress authorizes the creation of courts and the appointment of judges for limited time, it must act independently of the Constitution upon territory which is not part of the United States within the meaning of the Constitution."
O'Donoghue v. United States, [289 U.S. 516, 53 S.Ct. 740 (1933)]

The U.S. Supreme Court and lower courts have also held specifically that:

1. The statutes conferring citizenship in Title 8 of the U.S. Code are a PRIVILEGE and not a CONSTITUTIONAL RIGHT, and are therefore not even necessary in the case of state citizens.

"Finally, this Court is mindful of the years of past practice in which territorial citizenship has been treated as a statutory [PRIVILEGE!], and not a constitutional, right."
[Tuana v. U.S.A., Case No. 12-01143 (D.D.C., 2013)]

2. A citizen of the District of Columbia is NOT equivalent to a constitutional citizen. Note also that the "United States" as defined in the Internal Revenue Code, for instance, includes the "District of Columbia" and nowhere expressly includes states of the Union in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10). We therefore conclude that the statutory term "citizen of the United States" as used in 8 U.S.C. §1401 includes District of Columbia citizens and all those domiciled on federal territory "statutory citizens" and EXCLUDES those domiciled within states of the Union:

"The 1st section of the 14th article [Fourteenth Amendment], to which our attention is more specifically invited, opens with a definition of citizenship—not only citizenship of the United States[***], but citizenship of the states. No such definition was previously found in the Constitution, nor had any attempt been made to define it by act of Congress. It had been the occasion of much discussion in the courts, by the executive departments and

1 in the public journals. It had been said by eminent judges that no man was a citizen of the United States***
 2 except as he was a citizen of one of the states composing the Union. Those therefore, who had been born and
 3 resided always in the District of Columbia or in the territories, though within the United States*, were not 4 citizens."

5 [Slaughter-House Cases, 83 U.S. (16 Wall.) 36, 21 L.Ed. 394 (1873)]

- 6 3. An the 8 U.S.C. §1401 "national and citizen of the United States** at birth" born on federal territory is NOT a
 7 CONSTITUTIONAL citizen mentioned in the Fourteenth Amendment when it said:

8 "The Court today holds that Congress can indeed rob a citizen of his citizenship just so long as five members
 9 of this Court can satisfy themselves that the congressional action was not 'unreasonable, arbitrary,' ante, at 10 831; 'misplaced or arbitrary,' ante, at 832; or 'irrational or arbitrary or unfair,' ante, at 833. My first comment
 11 is that not one of these 'tests' appears in the Constitution. Moreover, it seems a little strange to find such 'tests' as 12 these announced in an opinion which condemns the earlier decisions it overrules for their resort to clichés, which 13 it describes as 'too handy and too easy, and, like most clichés, can be misleading'. Ante, at 835. That description
 14 precisely fits those words and clauses which the majority uses, but which the Constitution does not.

15 The Constitution, written for the ages, cannot rise and fall with this Court's passing notions of what is 'fair,' or 16 'reasonable,' or 'arbitrary.' [ . . . ]

17 The Court today holds that the Citizenship Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment has no application to Bellei.
 18 The Court first notes that Afroyim was essentially a case construing the Citizenship Clause of the Fourteenth
 19 Amendment. Since the Citizenship Clause declares that: 'All persons born or naturalized in the United States * *
 20 * are citizens of the United States * * *,' the Court reasons that the protections against involuntary expatriation
 21 declared in Afroyim do not protect all American citizens, but only those 'born or naturalized in the United States.'
 22 Afroyim, the argument runs, was naturalized in this country so he was protected by the Citizenship Clause, but
 23 Bellei, since he acquired his American citizenship at birth in Italy as a foreignborn child of an American citizen,
 24 was neither born nor naturalized in the United States and, hence, falls outside the scope of the Fourteenth
 25 Amendment guarantees declared in Afroyim. One could hardly call this a generous reading of the great purposes
 26 the Fourteenth Amendment was adopted to bring about. While conceding that Bellei is an American citizen, the 27 majority states: 'He simply is not a Fourteenth-Amendment-first-sentence citizen.' Therefore, the majority
 28 reasons, the congressional revocation of his citizenship is not barred by the Constitution. I cannot accept the 29 Court's conclusion that the Fourteenth Amendment protects the citizenship of some Americans and not others.
 30 [ . . . ]

31 The Court today puts aside the Fourteenth Amendment as a standard by which to measure congressional
 32 action with respect to citizenship, and substitutes in its place the majority's own vague notions of 'fairness.'
 33 The majority takes a new step with the recurring theme that the test of constitutionality is the Court's own view
 34 of what is 'fair, reasonable, and right.' Despite the concession that Bellei was admittedly an American citizen,
 35 and despite the holding in Afroyim that the Fourteenth Amendment has put citizenship, once conferred, beyond
 36 the power of Congress to revoke, the majority today upholds the revocation of Bellei's citizenship on the ground
 37 that the congressional action was not 'irrational or arbitrary or unfair.' The majority applies the 'shock-the-
 38 conscience' test to uphold, rather than strike, a federal statute. It is a dangerous concept of constitutional law
 39 that allows the majority to conclude that, because it cannot say the statute is 'irrational or arbitrary or unfair,' 40 the statute must be constitutional.

41 [ . . . ]

42 Since the Court this Term has already downgraded citizens receiving public welfare, Wyman v. James, 400 U.S.
 43 309, 91 S.Ct. 381, 27 L.Ed.2d. 408 (1971), and citizens having the misfortune to be illegitimate, Labine v. Vincent,
 44 401 U.S. 532, 91 S.Ct. 1917, 28 L.Ed.2d. 288, I suppose today's decision downgrading citizens born outside the
 45 United States should have been expected. Once again, as in James and Labine, the Court's opinion makes evident
 46 that its holding is contrary to earlier decisions. Concededly, petitioner was a citizen at birth, not by constitutional
 47 right, but only through operation of a federal statute.

48 [Rogers v. Bellei, 401 U.S. 815 (1971)]

49 The Internal Revenue Code relies on the statutory definition of "United States", which means federal territory. The term
 50 "citizen" is nowhere defined within the Internal Revenue Code and is defined twice within the implementing regulations at 51 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1 and 26 C.F.R. §31.3121(e)-1 . Below is the first of these two definitions:

52 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1 Income tax on individuals

53 (c) Who is a citizen.

54 Every person born or naturalized in the United States and subject to its jurisdiction is a citizen. For other rules
 55 governing the acquisition of citizenship, see chapters 1 and 2 of title III of the Immigration and Nationality
 56 Act (8 U.S.C. 1401-1459). For rules governing loss of citizenship, see sections 349 to 357, inclusive, of such Act

(8 U.S.C. 1481-1489), Schneider v. Rusk, (1964) 377 U.S. 163, and Rev.Rul. 70-506, C.B. 1970-2, 1. For rules pertaining to persons who are nationals but not citizens at birth, e.g., a person born in American Samoa, see section 308 of such Act (8 U.S.C. 1408). For special rules applicable to certain expatriates who have lost citizenship with a principal purpose of avoiding certain taxes, see section 877. A foreigner who has filed his declaration of intention of becoming a citizen but who has not yet been admitted to citizenship by a final order of a naturalization court is an alien.

Notice the term “born or naturalized in the United States and subject to its jurisdiction”, which means the exclusive legislative jurisdiction of the federal government within the District of Columbia and its territories and possessions under Article 1, Section 8, Clause 17 of the Constitution and Title 48 of the U.S. Code. If they meant to include states of the Union, they would have used “their jurisdiction” or “the jurisdiction” as used in section 1 of the Fourteenth Amendment instead of “its jurisdiction”.

“The 13th Amendment to the Constitution, prohibiting slavery and involuntary servitude 'within the United States, or in any place subject to their jurisdiction,' is also significant as showing that there may be places within the jurisdiction of the United States that are no part of the Union. To say that the phraseology of this amendment was due to the fact that it was intended to prohibit slavery in the seceded states, under a possible interpretation that those states were no longer a part of the Union, is to confess the very point in issue, since it involves an admission that, if these states were not a part of the Union, they were still subject to the jurisdiction of the United States.

Upon the other hand, the 14th Amendment, upon the subject of citizenship, declares only that 'all persons born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States, and of the state wherein they reside.' Here there is a limitation to persons born or naturalized in the United States, which is not extended to persons born in any place 'subject to their jurisdiction.'”
[\[Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 \(1901\)\]](#)

The above definition of “citizen” applying exclusively to the Internal Revenue Code reveals that it depends on 8 U.S.C. §1401, which we said earlier in section 4.11.3 and its subsections means a human being and NOT artificial person born anywhere in the country but domiciled in the federal United States**/federal zone, which includes territories or possessions and excludes states of the Union. These people possess a special "non-constitutional" class of citizenship that is not covered by the Fourteenth Amendment or any other part of the Constitution.

We also showed in section 4.11.4 that people born in states of the Union are technically not STATUTORY “citizens and nationals of the United States” under 8 U.S.C. §1401, but instead are STATUTORY “non-resident non-persons” with a legislatively but not constitutionally foreign domicile under 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21). The term "national" is defined in 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21) as follows:

(a) (21) The term "national" means a person owing permanent allegiance to a state.

In the case of "nationals" who are also statutory “non-resident non-persons” under 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21), these are people who owe their permanent allegiance to the confederation of states in the Union called the "United States of America***" and NOT the "United States****", which is the government and legal person they created to preside ONLY over community property of states of the Union and foreign affairs but NOT internal affairs within the states..

The definition of “citizen of the United States” found in 26 C.F.R. §31.3121(e)-1 corroborates the above conclusions, keeping in mind that “United States” within that definition means the federal zone instead of the states of the Union. Remember: “United States” or “United States of America” in the Constitution means the states of the Union while “United States” in federal statutes means the federal zone only and excludes states of the Union.

26 C.F.R. §31.3121(e)-1 State, United States, and citizen

(e)...The term 'citizen of the United States' includes a citizen of the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico or the Virgin Islands, and, effective January 1, 1961, a citizen of Guam or American Samoa.

Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, Guam, and American Samoa are all U.S. territories and federal “States” that are within the federal zone. They are not “states” under the Internal Revenue Code. The proper subjects of Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A are only the people who are born in these federal “States”, and these people are the only people who are in fact “citizens and nationals of the United States” under 8 U.S.C. §1401 and under 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(c).

1 The basis of citizenship in the United States is the English doctrine under which nationality meant “birth within allegiance of
2 the king”. The U.S. Supreme Court helped explain this concept precisely in the case of U.S. v. Wong Kim Ark, 169 U.S. 649
3 (1898) :

4 “The supreme court of North Carolina, speaking by Mr. Justice Gaston, said: 'Before our Revolution, all free
5 persons born within the dominions of the king of Great Britain, whatever their color or complexion, were native-
6 born British subjects; those born out of his allegiance were aliens.' Upon the Revolution, no other change took
7 place in the law of North Carolina than was consequent upon the transition from a colony dependent on an
8 European king to a free and sovereign [169 U.S. 649, 664] state. 'British subjects in North Carolina
9 became North Carolina freemen;' 'and all free persons born within the state are born citizens of the state.' The 10 term 'citizen,' as understood in our law, is precisely analogous to the term 'subject' in the common law, and 11 the change of phrase has entirely resulted from the change of government. The sovereignty has been 12 transferred from the man to the collective body of the people; and he who before was a 'subject of the king' is 13 now 'a citizen of the state.'” State v. Manuel (1838) 4 Dev. & b. 20, 24-26. “
14 [U.S. v. Wong Kim Ark, 169 U.S. 649 (1898)]

15 In our country following the victorious Revolution of 1776, the “king” was therefore replaced by “the people”, who are 16 collectively and individually the “sovereigns” within our republican form of government. The group of people within 17 whatever “body politic” one is referring to who live within the territorial limits of that “body politic” are the thing that you 18 claim allegiance to when you claim “nationality” to any one of the following three distinctive political bodies:

- 19 1. A state the Union.
- 20 2. The country “United States”, as defined in our Constitution.
- 21 3. The municipal government of the federal zone called the “District of Columbia”, which was chartered as a federal 22 corporation under 16 Stat. 419 §1 and 28 U.S.C. §3002(15)(A).

23 Each of the three above political bodies have “citizens” who are distinctively their own. When you claim to be a “citizen” of 24 any one of the three, you aren't claiming allegiance to the government of that “body politic”, but to the people (the sovereigns)
25 that the government serves. If that government is rebellious to the will of the people, and is outside the boundaries of the 26 Constitution that defines its authority so that it becomes a “de facto” government rather than the original “de jure” government
27 it was intended to be, then your allegiance to the people must be superior to that of the government that serves the people. In 28 the words of Jesus Himself in John 15:20:

29 “Remember the word that I said to you, 'A servant is not greater than his master.'”
30 [John 15:20, Bible, NKJV]

31 The “master” or “sovereign” in this case, is the people, who have expressed their sovereign will through a written and 32 unchangeable Constitution.

33 “The glory of our American system of government is that it was created by a written constitution which protects 34 the people against the exercise of arbitrary, unlimited power, and the limits of which instrument may not be 35 passed by the government it created, or by any branch of it, or even by the people who ordained it, except by 36 amendment or change of its provisions.”
37 [Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244, 21 S.Ct. 770 (1901)]

38 This is a crucial distinction you must understand in order to fully comprehend the foundations of our republican system of 39 government. Let's look at the definition of “citizen” according to the U.S. Supreme Court in order to clarify the points we 40 have made so far on what it means to be a “citizen” of our glorious republic:

41 “There cannot be a nation without a people. The very idea of a political community, such as a nation is, implies
42 an [88 U.S. 162, 166] association of persons for the promotion of their general welfare. Each one of the persons
43 associated becomes a member of the nation formed by the association. He owes it allegiance and is entitled to 44 its protection. Allegiance and protection are, in this connection, reciprocal obligations. The one is a 45 compensation for the other; allegiance for protection and protection for allegiance.”

46 “For convenience it has been found necessary to give a name to this membership. The object is to designate by a
47 title the person and the relation he bears to the nation. For this purpose the words 'subject,' 'inhabitant,' and 48 'citizen' have been used, and the choice between them is sometimes made to depend upon the form of the 49 government. Citizen is now more commonly employed, however, and as it has been considered better suited to
50 the description of one living under a republican government, it was adopted by nearly all of the States upon
51 their separation from Great Britain, and was afterwards adopted in the Articles of Confederation and in the 52 Constitution of the United States. When used in this sense it is understood as conveying the idea of membership 53 of a nation, and nothing more.”

"To determine, then, who were citizens of the United States before the adoption of the amendment it is necessary to ascertain what persons originally associated themselves together to form the nation, and what were afterwards admitted to membership."

"Looking at the Constitution itself we find that it was ordained and established by 'the people of the United States,'<sup>3</sup> and then going further back, we find that these were the people of the several States that had before dissolved the political bands which connected them with Great Britain, and assumed a separate and equal station among the powers of the earth,<sup>4</sup> and that had by Articles of Confederation and Perpetual Union, in which they took the name of 'the United States of America,' entered into a firm league of [88 U.S. 162, 167] friendship with each other for their common defence, the security of their liberties and their mutual and general welfare, binding themselves to assist each other against all force offered to or attack made upon them, or any of them, on account of religion, sovereignty, trade, or any other pretence whatever. 5

"Whoever, then, was one of the people of either of these States when the Constitution of the United States was adopted, became ipso facto a citizen-a member of the nation created by its adoption. He was one of the persons associating together to form the nation, and was, consequently, one of its original citizens. As to this there has never been a doubt. Disputes have arisen as to whether or not certain persons or certain classes of persons were part of the people at the time, but never as to their citizenship if they were."
 [Minor v. Happersett, 88 U.S. 162 (1874), emphasis added]

The thing to focus on in the above is the phrase "he owes allegiance and is entitled to its protection". People domiciled in states of the Union have dual allegiance and dual nationality: They owe allegiance to two governments not one, so they are "dual-nationals". They are "dual nationals" because the states of the Union are independent nations<sup>55</sup>:

Dual citizenship. Citizenship in two different countries. Status of citizens of United States who reside within a state; i.e., person who are born or naturalized in the U.S. are citizens of the U.S. and the state wherein they reside. [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 498]

Likewise, those people who live in a federal "State" like Puerto Rico also owe dual allegiance: one to the District of Columbia, which is their municipal government and which possesses the police powers that protect them, and the other allegiance to the government of the United States of America, which is the general government for the whole country. As we said before, Congress wears two hats and operates in two capacities or jurisdictions simultaneously, each of which covers a different and mutually exclusive geographical area:

1. As the municipal government for the District of Columbia and all U.S. territories. All "acts of Congress" or federal statutes passed in this capacity are referred to as "private international law". This political community is called the "National Government".
2. As the general government for the states of the Union. All "acts of Congress" or federal statutes passed in this capacity are called "public international law". This political community is called the "Federal Government."

Each of the two capacities above has different types of "citizens" within it and each is a unique and separate "body politic". Most laws that Congress writes pertain to the first jurisdiction above only. Below is a summary of these two classes of "citizens":

Table 5-28: Types of citizens

| # | Jurisdiction                                                                                                     | Land area                                                       | Name of "citizens"                                                                                                                                             |
|---|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 1 | Municipal government of the District of Columbia and all U.S. territories. Also called the "National Government" | "Federal zone" (District of Columbia + federal "States")        | "Statutory citizens" or "citizens and nationals of the United States" as defined in 8 U.S.C. §1401                                                             |
| 2 | General government for the states of the Union. Also called the "Federal Government"                             | "United States of America " ( 50 Union "states" ) | "Constitutional citizens", "nationals but not citizens of the United States" as defined in 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21), "non-resident non-persons" under federal law |

The U.S. Supreme Court recognized the above two separate political and legislative jurisdictions and their respective separate types of "citizens" when it held the following:

<sup>55</sup> See Bank of Augusta v. Earle, 38 U.S. (13 Pet.) 519, 10 L.Ed. 274 (1839), in which the Supreme Court ruled:

"The States between each other are sovereign and independent. They are distinct and separate sovereignties, except so far as they have parted with some of the attributes of sovereignty by the Constitution. They continue to be nations, with all their rights, and under all their national obligations, and with all the rights of nations in every particular; except in the surrender by each to the common purposes and objects of the Union, under the Constitution. The rights of each State, when not so yielded up, remain absolute."

2 opens with a definition of citizenship—not only citizenship of the United States[***], but citizenship of the states.
3 No such definition was previously found in the Constitution, nor had any attempt been made to define it by act
4 of Congress. It had been the occasion of much discussion in the courts, by the executive departments and in the
5 public journals. It had been said by eminent judges that no man was a citizen of the United States[***] except
6 as he was a citizen of one of the states composing the Union. Those therefore, who had been born and resided
7 always in the District of Columbia or in the territories, though within the United States[*], were not citizens.
8 Whether this proposition was sound or not had never been judicially decided.”
9 [Slaughter-House Cases, 83 U.S. (16 Wall.) 36, 21 L.Ed. 394 (1873)]

10 As we pointed out earlier in section 4.11.4, federal statutes and “acts of Congress” do not and cannot prescribe the 11 STATUTORY citizenship status of human beings born in and domiciled in states of the Union and outside of the exclusive
12 or general legislative jurisdiction of Congress. 8 U.S.C. §1408(2) comes the closest to defining their citizenship status, but
13 even that definition doesn’t address most persons born in states of the Union neither of whose parents ever resided in the 14 federal zone. No federal statute or “act of Congress” directly can or does prescribe the citizenship status of people born in 15 states of the Union because state law, and not federal law, prescribes their status under the Law of Nations.<sup>56</sup> The reason is 16 because no government may write civil laws that apply outside of their subject matter or exclusive territorial jurisdiction, and
17 states of the Union are STATUTORILY but not CONSTITUTIONALLY “foreign” to the United States government for the 18 purposes of police powers and legislative jurisdiction. Here is confirmation of that fact which the geographical definitions
19 within federal also CONFIRM:

20           “Judge Story, in his treatise on the Conflict of Laws, lays down, as the basis upon which all reasonings on the
21 law of comity must necessarily rest, the following maxims: First, ‘that every nation possesses an exclusive
22 sovereignty and jurisdiction within its own territory’; secondly, ‘that no state or nation can by its laws directly
23 affect or bind property out of its own territory, or bind persons not resident therein, whether they are natural
24 born subjects or others.’ The learned judge then adds: ‘From these two maxims or propositions there follows a
25 third, and that is that whatever force and obligation the laws of one country have in another depend solely upon
26 the laws and municipal regulation of the matter; that is to say, upon its own proper jurisdiction and polity, and 27 upon its own express or tacit consent.’ Story on Conflict of Laws, §23.”
28 [Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Co. v. Chambers, 73 Ohio.St. 16, 76 N.E. 91, 11 L.R.A., N.S., 1012 (1905)]

29 Congress is given the authority under the Constitution, Article 1, Section 8, Clause 4 to write “an uniform Rule of 30 Naturalization” and they have done this in Title 8 of the U.S. Code called the “Aliens and Nationality”, but they were never
31 given any authority under the Constitution to prescribe laws for the states of the Union relating to citizenship by birth rather 32 than naturalization. That subject is, and always has been, under the exclusive jurisdiction of states of the Union.
33 Naturalization is only one of two ways by which a person can acquire citizenship, and Congress has jurisdiction only over 34 one of the two ways of acquiring citizenship.

35           “The question, now agitated, depends upon another question; whether the State of Pennsylvania, since the 26th
36 of March, 1790, (when the act of Congress was passed) has a right to naturalize an alien? And this must receive 37 its answer from the solution of a third question; whether, according to the constitution of the United States, the 38 authority to naturalize is exclusive, or concurrent? We are of the opinion, then, that the States, individually,
39 still enjoy a concurrent authority upon this subject; but that their individual authority cannot be exercised so
40 as to contravene the rule established by the authority of the Union.”

41           “The true reason for investing Congress with the power of naturalization has been assigned at the Bar: --It
42 was to guard against too narrow, instead of too liberal, a mode of conferring the rights of citizenship. Thus,
43 the individual States cannot exclude those citizens, who have been adopted by the United States; but they can 44 adopt citizens upon easier terms, than those which Congress may deem it expedient to impose.

45           “But the act of Congress itself, furnishes a strong proof that the power of naturalization is concurrent. In the 46 concluding proviso, it is declared, ‘that no person heretofore proscribed by any State, shall be admitted a citizen
47 as aforesaid, except by an act of the Legislature of the State, in which such person was proscribed.’ Here, we 48 find, that Congress has not only circumscribed the exercise of its own authority, but has recognized the
49 authority of a State Legislature, in one case, to admit a citizen of the United States; which could not be done
50 in any case, if the power of naturalization, either by its own nature, or by the manner of its being vested in the 51 Federal Government, was an exclusive power.”
52 [Collet v. Collet, 2 U.S. 294, 1 L.Ed. 387 (1792)]

53 Many freedom fighters overlook the fact that the STATUTORY “citizen” mentioned in 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1 can also be a
54 corporation, and this misunderstanding is why many of them think that they are the only proper subject of the Subtitle A

<sup>56</sup> See The Law of Nations, Vattel, available on our website at: <http://famguardian.org/Publications/LawOfNations/vattel.htm>

1 federal income tax. In fact, a corporation is also a STATUTORY "person" and an "individual" and a "citizen" within the 2 meaning of the Internal Revenue Code.

3 "A corporation is a citizen, resident, or inhabitant of the state or country by or under the laws of which it was
4 created, and of that state or country only."
5 [19 Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.), Corporations, §886 (2003); Legal encyclopedia]

6 Corporations, however, cannot be either a CONSTITUTIONAL "person" or "citizen" nor can they have a legal existence 7 outside of the sovereignty that they were created in.

8 "Citizens of the United States within the meaning of this Amendment must be natural and not artificial
9 persons; a corporate body is not a citizen of the United States.<sup>14</sup>

10
11 <sup>14</sup> Insurance Co. v. New Orleans, 13 Fed.Cas. 67 (C.C.D.La. 1870). Not being citizens of the United States,
12 corporations accordingly have been declared unable "to claim the protection of that clause of the Fourteenth
13 Amendment which secures the privileges and immunities of citizens of the United States against abridgment or
14 impairment by the law of a State." Orient Ins. Co. v. Daggs, 172 U.S. 557, 561 (1869). This conclusion was in
15 harmony with the earlier holding in Paul v. Virginia, 75 U.S. (8 Wall.) 168 (1869), to the effect that corporations
16 were not within the scope of the privileges and immunities clause of state citizenship set out in Article IV, Sec. 2.

22 Consequently, the only corporations who are "citizens" and the only "corporate profits" that are subject to tax under Internal
23 Revenue Code, Subtitle A are those that are formed under the laws of the District of Columbia, and not those under the laws
24 of states of the Union. Congress can ONLY tax or regulate that which it creates as a VOLUNTARY franchise, and 25 corporations are just such a franchise. Here is why:

26 "Now, a grant of corporate existence is a grant of special privileges to the incorporators, enabling them to act for 27 certain designated purposes as a single individual, and exempting them (unless otherwise specifically provided)
28 from individual liability. The corporation being the mere creation of local law, can have no legal existence
29 beyond the limits of the sovereignty where created. As said by this court in Bank of Augusta v. Earle, 'It must 30 dwell in the place of its creation and cannot migrate to another sovereignty.' The recognition of its existence
31 even by other States, and the enforcement of its contracts made therein, depend purely upon the comity of those 32 States—a comity which is never extended where the existence of the corporation or the exercise of its powers are 33 prejudicial to their interests or repugnant to their policy."
34 [Paul v. Virginia, 8 Wall (U.S.) 168, 19 L.Ed. 357 (1868)]

35 In conclusion, you aren't the STATUTORY "citizen" described in 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1 who is the proper subject of Internal
36 Revenue Code, Subtitle A, nor are you a "resident" of the "United States" defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) if you were born
37 in a state of the Union and are domiciled there. Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A only applies to persons domiciled in the 38 federal zone and payments originating from within the United States government. If you are domiciled in a state of the Union,
39 then you aren't domiciled in the federal zone. Consequently, the only type of person you can be as a person born in a state of 40 the Union is:

- 41 1. A "national" as defined in 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21).
- 42 2. A CONSTITUTIONAL "person".
- 43 3. A statutory "non-resident non-person".
- 44 4. NOT any of the following:
  - 45 4.1. A STATUTORY "person".
  - 46 4.2. An "alien" under 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(3).
  - 47 4.3. A statutory "national and citizen of the United States** at birth" as defined in 8 U.S.C. §1401.
  - 48 4.4. A "National but not citizen of the United States** at birth" under 8 U.S.C. §1408.
  - 49 4.5. "a person who, though not a citizen of the United States, owes permanent allegiance to the United States[**]"
50 under 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(22)(B).
  - 51 4.6. A "U.S.[**] non-citizen national" under 8 U.S.C. §1452.

1 We call the confluence of the above a "non-resident non-person " as described below:

Non-Resident Non-Person Position, Form #05.020

FORMS PAGE: <https://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

DIRECT LINK: <https://sedm.org/Forms/05-MemLaw/NonresidentNonPersonPosition.pdf>

2 You only become a statutory "nonresident alien" as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B) when you surrender your PRIVATE,
3 sovereign status and sovereign immunity by entering into contracts with the government, such as accepting a public office or 4 a government "benefit".

5 The reason most Americans falsely think they owe income tax and why they continue to illegally be the target of IRS
6 enforcement activity is because they file the wrong tax return form and thereby create false presumptions about their status
7 in relation to the federal government. IRS Form 1040 is only for use by resident aliens, not those who are non-residents such
8 as state nationals. The "individual" mentioned in the upper left corner of the form is defined in 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3) as 9 an "alien". STATUTORY "citizens" (under 8 U.S.C. §1401) are not included in the definition and this is the only definition
10 of "individual" anywhere in the I.R.C. or the Treasury Regulations. It also constitutes fraud for a state national to declare
11 themselves to be a resident alien. A state national who chooses a domicile in the federal zone is classified as a statutory
12 "U.S.** citizen" pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(22)(A) and NOT a "resident" (alien). It is furthermore a criminal violation
13 of 18 U.S.C. §911 for a state national to impersonate a statutory "U.S. citizen". The only tax return form a state national can
14 file without committing fraud or a crime is IRS Form 1040NR, and even then he or she is committing a fraud unless lawfully
15 serving in a public office in the national government.

16 If you still find yourself confused or uncertain about citizenship in the context of the Internal Revenue Code after having read
17 this section, you might want to go back and reread the following to refresh your memory, because these resources are the 18 foundation to understanding this section:

We contend that Wikipedia, like most federal judges and prosecutors, are deliberately confusing and perpetuating the confusion between STATUTORY and CONSTITUTIONAL contexts in order to unlawfully enforce federal law in places that they KNOW they have no jurisdiction. The following forms PREVENT them from doing the very thing that Wikipedia unsuccessfully tried to do, and we encourage you to use this every time you deal with priests of the civil religion of socialism called "attorneys" or "judges":

5.2.21 Rebutted DOJ and Judicial Deception Regarding Federal Jurisdiction

The federal government on a number of occasions has committed fraud in attempting to deny that its jurisdiction is limited to persons domiciled in the federal zone and payments from the U.S. government in the case of Subtitle A income taxes. For instance, section 40.14[2] of the Department of Justice (DOJ), Tax Division, Criminal Tax Manual (DOJTDCTM) at the following address on our website:

[http://famguardian.org/Publications/DOJTDCTM/taxc40.htm - 40.14\[2\]](http://famguardian.org/Publications/DOJTDCTM/taxc40.htm - 40.14[2])

denies the claim generally that the Federal government has jurisdiction only inside the federal zone. Here is the quote from that section:

[40.14\[2\] District Court Jurisdiction of Title 26 Offenses](#)

Despite protestors' claims to the contrary, it is clear that United States District Courts have jurisdiction over criminal offenses enumerated in the Internal Revenue Code, notwithstanding want of a statute within Title 26 conferring such jurisdiction. Generally, this is based on the reasoning that 18 U.S.C. § 3231 gives the district courts original jurisdiction over "all offenses against the laws of the United States" and the Internal Revenue Code defines offenses against the laws of the United States. United States v. Huguenin, 950 F.2d. 23, 25 n.2 (1st Cir. 1991); United States v. Isenhower, 754 F.2d. 489, 490 (3d Cir. 1985); United States v. Eilertson, 707 F.2d. 108, 109 (4th Cir. 1983); United States v. Masat, 948 F.2d. 923, 934 (5th Cir. 1991); Salberg v. United States, 969 F.2d. 379, 384 (7th Cir. 1992); United States v. Bressler, 772 F.2d. 287, 293 n.5 (7th Cir. 1985); United States v. Rosnow, 977 F.2d. 399, 412 (8th Cir. 1992), cert. denied sub nom. Dewey v. United States, 113 S.Ct. 1596 (1993); United States v. Przybyla, 737 F.2d. 828, 829 (9th Cir. 1984), cert. denied, 471 U.S. 1099 (1985); United States v. Collins, 920 F.2d. 619, 629 (10th Cir. 1990), cert. denied, 111 S.Ct. 2022 (1991) (citing cases); United States v. Ward, 833 F.2d. 1538, 1539 (11th Cir. 1987), cert. denied, 485 U.S. 1022 (1988). See also United States v. McMullen, 755 F.2d. 65, 67 (6th Cir. 1984), cert. denied, 474 U.S. 829 (1985). The argument that the United States has jurisdiction only over Washington, D.C., federal enclaves and territories, and possessions of the United States has similarly been rejected. See Ward, 833 F.2d. at 1539.

We agree with the DOJ that the United States can have extraterritorial jurisdiction, but only in the following cases:

1. Federal employees and instrumentalities, regardless of where they are situated, pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §871(b). All such instrumentalities are engaged in a "trade or business", which the I.R.C. defines as a "public office" in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26). This includes:
  - 1.1. Federal employees.
  - 1.2. Federal corporations.
  - 1.3. Federal benefit recipients.
2. Federal payments not connected with a "trade or business", as defined in 26 U.S.C. §871(a).
3. Persons domiciled in the statutory but not constitutional "United States", which is limited to the District of Columbia per 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10), and who are located abroad under 26 U.S.C. §911.

We will also prove later, starting in section 5.4 and its subsections, that all extraterritorial (outside the federal zone) jurisdiction the federal government exercises MUST originate from voluntary consent in some form. That consent is manifested in any of the following forms:

1. The voluntary choice of domicile within the federal zone. See section 5.4.8 and following.

2. The voluntary choice to engage in privileged, excise taxable activities, such as a “trade or business”, which is the equivalent of a business partnership with the federal government. See:

The “Trade or Business” Scam, Family Guardian Fellowship
<http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/Articles/TradeOrBusinessScam.htm>

3. The act of incorporating a corporation.

The court held that the first company's charter was a contract between it and the state, within the protection of the constitution of the United States, and that the charter to the last company was therefore null and void. Mr. Justice DAVIS, delivering the opinion of the court, said that, if anything was settled by an unbroken chain of decisions in the federal courts, it was that an act of incorporation was a contract between the state and the stockholders, 'a departure from which now would involve dangers to society that cannot be foreseen, would shock the sense of justice of the country, unhinge its business interests, and weaken, if not destroy, that respect which has always been felt for the judicial department of the government.'
 [New Orleans Gas Co. v. Louisiana Light Co., 115 U.S. 650 (1885)]

4. Authority delegated in the constitution itself on any of the following subjects:
- 4.1. Use of mail. (see U.S. Constitution, Article 1, Section 8, Clause 7 and 18 U.S.C. §1341)
  - 4.2. Federal insurance (see 18 U.S.C. §2113)
  - 4.3. Interstate commerce (see U.S. Constitution, Article 1, Section 8, Clause 3 and 18 U.S.C. §2314)
  - 4.4. Slavery (see U.S. Constitution, Amendment 13 and 18 U.S.C. §1581)
  - 4.5. Excise taxes (duties, imposts, etc) on foreign commerce under Subtitles D and E of the Internal Revenue Code (see U.S. Constitution, Article 1, Section 8, Clause 3)

Of the above, the only one that could have fit Mr. Ward was item 2 above, a “trade or business”. Chances are, information returns were filed against him that he never rebutted which connected him with a public office in the U.S. government and unwittingly made him into a “taxpayer”. If he had rebutted these returns, the outcome of his case probably would have been very different.

[10] Author: Per Curiam

[11] Arthur D. Ward was convicted of three counts of tax evasion (26 U.S.C. § 7201), and two counts of making false statements or claims to a federal agency. 18 U.S.C. § 1001. Ward makes three arguments on this appeal. First, he suggests that the United States has jurisdiction over only Washington, D.C., the federal enclaves within the states, and the territories and possessions of the United States. Secondly, he interprets the term “individual” within the Internal Revenue Code to apply only to those individuals located within this jurisdiction of the United States. Ward reaches this twisted conclusion by misinterpreting a portion of the Income Tax Code. The 1913 Act defined the words “state” or “United States” to “include” United States territories and the District of Columbia; Ward asks this court to interpret the word “include” as a term of limitation, rather than of definition. Finally, Ward maintains that the only persons expressly and statutorily liable for income tax are the withholding agents of nonresident aliens and foreign corporations.

[12] We find each of appellant's contentions to be utterly without merit. The district court properly denied Ward's motions for acquittal, and properly refused to instruct the jury as to Ward's theory of his defense. The opinion of the district court is AFFIRMED.

Attorney Larry Becraft represented Mr. Ward. Below are his words on the subject:

Back in 1987, I tried a tax evasion case in Orlando where the defendant's name was Arthur D. Ward. He was convicted and we appealed.

In Sept. 1987, AUSA Bruce Hinshelwood filed his brief in that appeal wherein he stated as follows:

"The government is unable, therefore, to offer case authority for the universally accepted proposition that a citizen of the United States, working and residing in the United States, subject to federal law, earning wages, and responsible for filing an income tax return, is liable for taxation."

See attached PDF of parts of his brief. Notwithstanding this statement, Ward's conviction was affirmed; see United States v. Ward, 833 F.2d. 1538 (11th Cir. 1988).

Back in 1987, I circulated to a small confidential group a letter outlining the arguments in that appeal, and today there has circulated on the Net what appears to be a redraft of that letter, which I no longer have. I hope what I state in this e-mail explains today's "amazing" e-mail, which did not originate with me.

Note that this is the ONLY case the DOJ hangs its hat on in denying that federal jurisdiction under Subtitle A only applies to persons domiciled in the federal zone. Remember, however, that the Supreme Court has never ruled in this manner on such issues or it would have been cited as precedent in this case, and that even the IRS' own Internal Revenue Manual in section 4.10.7.2.9.8 says that cases below the Supreme Court such as the one above do not apply generally to all taxpayers, but only to the "single taxpayer" litigating the case.

Internal Revenue Manual (I.R.M.), Section 4.10.7.2.9.8 (05/14/99): Importance of Court Decisions

1. "Decisions made at various levels of the court system are considered to be interpretations of tax laws and may be used by either examiners or taxpayers to support a position.

*2. Certain court cases lend more weight to a position than others. A case decided by the U.S. Supreme Court becomes the law of the land and takes precedence over decisions of lower courts. The Internal Revenue Service must follow Supreme Court decisions. For examiners, Supreme Court decisions have the same weight as the Code.

3. Decisions made by lower courts, such as Tax Court, District Courts, or Claims Court, are binding on the Service only for the particular taxpayer and the years litigated. Adverse decisions of lower courts do not require the Service to alter its position for other taxpayers."

Therefore, the above case, at least in the case of Subtitle A income taxes, cannot and should not be cited as a precedent by the Department of Justice. They did it anyway in the case of the DOJTDCTM because it benefits them financially, even though the case appears to be a void judgment because of its lack of specificity and lack of any evidence of jurisdiction identified by the judge in the ruling.

Another person, Bernard Sussman, also correctly argues that the federal government's jurisdiction is not limited to the federal zone. You can read his arguments and our response to them below:

5.3 Know Your Proper Income Tax Filing Status!

*"If the Lord had meant us to pay income taxes, he'd have made us smart enough to prepare the return."

2                   [Unknown]

3 Every successful battle begins with studying your enemy and yourself. We started this chapter off by showing you the limits
4 on federal authority right from the Constitution itself. This is not enough. Before you even think about taking on a brutal
5 and dishonest opponent, you must also know where you stand in relation to him. That relationship is described by your
6 citizenship and filing status so you know what legal position you are fighting from in relation to your enemy. Sun Tzu, a
7 Chinese contemporary of Confucius and author of The Art of War, wrote:

8                   "Know your enemy, win some of your battles...know yourself, win some of your battles...know your enemy and 9                   know yourself, win all of your battles".
10                  [Sun Tzu]

11 We already know that your goal is to be a sovereign, who isn't the proper subject of any law. But do you know what status
12 that is in the Internal Revenue Code and what forms, if any, a sovereign would file to prove he is a sovereign? What is your 13 filing status as a sovereign? That, it turns out, is a result of your citizenship status. We covered the citizenship subject in 14 great detail in Chapter 4 of this book and before you read this section, if you haven't already, you might want to read Chapter
15 4 again and especially section 4.11 and its subsections. Below is a table summarizing what we learned from those sections
16 showing the relationship between your "citizenship status" under Title 8 of the U.S. Code and your "tax status" under Title
17 26 of the U.S. Code.

1 In this section, we'll show you that you have been filing your taxes incorrectly all these years, and that you really needed to
2 be using the IRS Form 2555 AND the IRS Form 1040, instead of the form 1040 ONLY if you are claiming to be a "U.S.
3 citizen", which we assert later in this chapter is a very bad idea. This surprises many people, no doubt, to find that they have
4 been filing incorrectly for so long and yet the IRS hasn't corrected them in all these years. Why? Because you will pay
5 considerably less taxes if you file in a way that reflects your proper status and the IRS wants your money so it conveniently
6 looks the other way!

7 We start this subsection off with the notion of "the matrix", which the Bible describes as the Beast. Anyone who has seen
8 the movie called The Matrix will understand what we mean when we say that having a Socialist Security Number is the 9 umbilical, or "the Mark of the Beast" described in Revelation 13:16-18 that connects the back of our head into "the matrix"
10 and makes us into slaves and drones of the socialist state and host organisms for the parasite called the U.S. Government.
11 That's why we tell people over and over throughout this book to do everything they can to get rid of the number and avoid
12 using it. Another kind of "matrix" to consider is the one below that defines when we are connected, or subservient to this 13 "matrix" or biblical beast described above through slavery to the income tax. We want to give you plenty of ways to look at 14 this so you understand completely what your obligations are relative to federal taxes:

NOTES:

1. For all the Subtitle A income taxes above, the tax is imposed in 26 U.S.C. §1(1)(1) and 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(a)(1). It is imposed ONLY on STATUTORY U.S. citizens "resident" abroad and on "nonresident aliens" with income described in 26 U.S.C. §871(b) or 26 U.S.C. §877(b) (Expatriation to avoid tax). It is NOT imposed on nonresident aliens who do not hold public office or who do not have income associated with a "trade or business" in the federal United States, which is the condition that describes most Americans. It is also not imposed upon state citizens.
2. For all the taxes above, liability for tax is created by 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(b), which is an "illegal regulation" as we describe in section 5.6.1. This regulation is illegal because it exceeds that scope of the statute that it implements found in 26 U.S.C. §1.

1 To conclude this section, below is a graphical diagram that shows all the classifications of alien and citizenship status and the associated tax filing status.

5.3.1 "Taxpayer" v. "Nontaxpayer": Which One are You?

"The taxpayer-- that's someone who works for the federal government but doesn't have to take the civil service examination."
[President Ronald W. Reagan]

The word "taxpayer" is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(14) and 26 U.S.C. §1313 as someone who is "liable for" and "subject to" the income tax in Internal Revenue Code Subtitle A.

TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > § 7701
§ 7701. Definitions

(a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof—

(14) Taxpayer

The term "taxpayer" means any person subject to any internal revenue tax.

The "person" they are referring to above is further characterized as a STATUTORY "citizen of the United States**" or STATUTORY "resident of the United States**" (alien). The tax is not on nonresident aliens, but on their INCOME, therefore they cannot lawfully be "taxpayers":

TITLE 26--INTERNAL REVENUE
CHAPTER I--INTERNAL REVENUE SERVICE, DEPARTMENT OF THE TREASURY
PART 1 _INCOME TAXES--Table of Contents
Sec. 1.1-1 Income tax on individuals.

(a) General rule.

(1) Section 1 of the Code imposes an income tax on the income of every individual who is a citizen or resident of the United States and, to the extent provided by section 871(b) or 877(b), on the income of a nonresident alien individual.

What "U.S. citizens" and "U.S. residents" share in common is a domicile on federal territory that is no part of the exclusive jurisdiction of any state of the Union. Collectively, they are called "U.S. persons" as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30). Remember:

"U.S. person=domicile or residence on federal territory and not any state of the Union"

The "United States" they mean in the term "U.S. citizen" is defined as federal territory in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d) and nowhere includes any state of the Union because they are sovereign and foreign in respect to the federal government. In that sense, income taxes are a franchise tax associated with the domicile/protection franchise.

"Thus, the Court has frequently held that domicile or residence, more substantial than mere presence in transit or sojourn, is an adequate basis for taxation, including income, property, and death taxes. Since the Fourteenth Amendment makes one a citizen of the state wherein he resides, the fact of residence creates universally reciprocal duties of protection by the state and of allegiance and support by the citizen. The latter obviously includes a duty to pay taxes, and their nature and measure is largely a political matter. Of course, the situs of property may tax it regardless of the citizenship, domicile, or residence of the owner, the most obvious illustration being a tax on realty laid by the state in which the realty is located."
Miller Brothers Co. v. Maryland, [347 U.S. 340 (1954)]

"domicile. A person's legal home. That place where a man has his true, fixed, and permanent home and principal establishment, and to which whenever he is absent he has the intention of returning. Smith v. Smith, 206 Pa.Super. 310, 213 A.2d. 94. Generally, physical presence within a state and the intention to make it one's home are the requisites of establishing a "domicile" therein. The permanent residence of a person or the place to which he intends to return even though he may actually reside elsewhere. A person may have more than one residence but only one domicile. The legal domicile of a person is important since it, rather than the actual residence, often controls the jurisdiction of the taxing authorities and determines where a person may exercise the privilege of voting and other legal rights and privileges."
[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 485]

Those who don't want to pay the tax or be "taxpayers" simply don't partake of the government protection franchise and instead declare themselves as "non-resident non-persons" with no "residence" or "permanent address" within the jurisdiction of the taxing authority on every government form they fill out. That is why "non-resident non-persons" cannot be "taxpayers" unless and until they lawfully occupy a public office. For further details, see:

Why Domicile and Becoming a "Taxpayer" Require Your Consent, Form #05.002
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

The IRS refers to everyone as "taxpayers" because that is what they want everyone to be. Here is the way one of our readers describes how he reacts to being habitually called "taxpayer" by the IRS:

*I refuse to allow any IRS or State revenue officer to call me or any client a "taxpayer". Just because I may look like one or have the attributes of one does not necessarily make me one. To one IRS lady, and I have no reason to doubt that she fits this category, I use the following example. "Miss you have all of the equipment to be a whore, but that does not make you one by presumption." Until it is proven by a preponderance of evidence I must assume you are a lady and you will be treated as such. Please have the same respect for me, and don't slander my reputation and defame my character by calling me a whore for the government, which is what a "taxpayer" is.
 [Eugene Pringle]*

Funny! But guess what? This is not a new idea. We refer you to the Bible book of Revelation, Chapter 17, which describes precisely who this whore or harlot is: Babylon the Great! Check out that chapter, keeping in mind that "Babylon the Great" is symbolic of the city full of all the ignorant and idolatrous people who have unwittingly made themselves into government whores by becoming surety for government debts in the pursuit of taxable government privileges and benefits they didn't need to begin with. The Bible describes these harlots and adulterers below:

*"Adulterers and adulteresses! Do you not know that friendship [and citizenship] with the world [and the governments/states of the world] is enmity with God? Whoever therefore wants to be a friend of the world makes himself an enemy of God."
 [James 4:4, Bible, NKJV]*

*"When thou sawest a thief [the IRS] then thou consentedst with him, and hast been partaker with adulterers."
 [Ps 50:18]*

*"Where do wars and fights [and tyranny and oppression] come from among you? Do they not come from your desires for pleasure [pursuit of government "privileges"] that war in your members?...You ask [from your government and its THIEF the IRS] and do not receive, because you ask amiss, that you may spend it on your own pleasures. Adulterers and adulteresses [and HARLOTS]! Do you not know that friendship with the world is enmity with God? Whoever therefore wants to be a friend of the world makes himself an enemy of God."
 [James 4:3-4, Bible, NKJV]*

These "taxpayer" and citizen government idolaters have made government their new pagan god (neo-god), their friend, and their source of false man-made security. That is what the "Security" means in "Social Security". The bible mentions that there is something "mysterious" about "Babylon the Great Harlot":

*"And on her forehead a name was written: MYSTERY, BABYLON THE GREAT, THE MOTHER OF HARLOTS AND OF THE ABOMINATIONS OF THE EARTH."
 [Rev. 17:5, Bible, NKJV]*

GOVERNMENT ANNOUNCEMENT April 15, 20__

[Washington, D.C.]

The federal government announced today that it is changing its emblem from an eagle to a condom, because that more clearly reflects its political stance. A condom stands up to inflation, halts production, destroys the next generation, protects a bunch of pricks, and gives you a sense of security while it's actually screwing you.

The mystery about this harlot/adulterous woman described in Rev. 17:5 is symbolic of the ignorance and apathy that these people have about the law and their government. For a fascinating read into this subject, we refer you to the free book on the internet below referred to us by one of our readers:

Babylon the Great is Falling, Jack Hook

The IRS DOES NOT have the authority conferred by law under Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A to bestow the status of “taxpayer” on any natural person who doesn’t first volunteer for that “distinctive” title. Below are some facts confirming this:

1. There is no statute making anyone liable for the income tax. Therefore, the only way you can become subject is by volunteering. Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A is therefore “private law” and “special law” that only applies to those who individually consent by connecting their earnings to a “trade or business”, which is a “public office” in the United States government. These people are referred to in the Treasury Regulations as “effectively connected with a trade or business”. BEFORE they consent, they are called "nontaxpayers". AFTER they consent, they are called "taxpayers".

"To the extent that regulations implement the statute, they have the force and effect of law...The regulation implements the statute and cannot vitiate or change the statute..."
[Spreckles v. C.I.R., 119 F.2d, 667]

"..liability for taxation must clearly appear[from statute imposing tax]."
[Higley v. Commissioner of Internal Revenue, 69 F.2d. 160 (1934)]

"While Congress might have the power to place such a personal liability upon trust beneficiaries who did not renounce the trust, yet it would require clear expression of such intent, and it cannot be spelled out from language (as that here) which can be given an entirely natural and useful meaning and application excluding such intent."
[Higley v. Commissioner of Internal Revenue, 69 F.2d. 160 (1934)]

"A tax is a legal imposition, exclusively of statutory origin (37 Cyc. 724, 725), and, naturally, liability to taxation must be read in statute, or it does not exist." [Bente v. Bugbee, 137 A. 552, 103 N.J. Law. 608 (1927)]

"...the taxpayer must be liable for the tax. Tax liability is a condition precedent to the demand. Merely demanding payment, even repeatedly, does not cause liability."
[Terry v. Bothke, 713 F.2d. 1405, at 1414 (1983)]

If you want to know more about this subject see:

1.1. Section 5.6.1 later, which covers the subject of no liability in excruciating detail.

1.2. The following link is the online version of the above section:

<http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/Articles/NoStatuteLiable.htm>

1.3. Sections 5.4.6 through 5.4.6.6 later prove that the Internal Revenue Code is “private law” and a private contract/agreement. Those who have consented are called “taxpayers” and those who haven’t are called “nontaxpayers”.

2. The federal courts agree that the IRS cannot involuntarily make you a “taxpayer” when they said the following:

"A reasonable construction of the taxing statutes does not include vesting any tax official with absolute power of assessment against individuals not specified in the statutes as a person liable for the tax without an opportunity for judicial review of this status before the appellation of 'taxpayer' is bestowed upon them and their property is seized..."
[Botta v. Scanlon, 288 F.2d. 504, 508 (1961)]

3. IRS has no statutory authority to convert employment withholding taxes under I.R.C., Subtitle C into “income taxes” under I.R.C., Subtitle A. We show later in section 5.6.8 that employment withholding taxes deducted under the authority of Subtitle C of the Internal Revenue Code using a W-4 voluntary withholding agreement and that the IRS classifies them in IRS Document 6209 as “Tax Class 5”, which is “Estate and gift taxes”. Therefore, they are gifts to the U.S. government, not taxes that may not be enforced. We also show in section 5.6.8 that taxes paid under the authority of Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A are classified as Tax Class 2, “Individual Income Tax”. We also exhaustively prove with evidence later in section 5.6.16 that IRS has no statutory or regulatory authority to convert what essentially amounts to a voluntary “gift” paid through withholding to a “tax”. Only you can do that by assessing yourself. That is why the 1040 form requires that you attach the information returns to it, such as the W-2: So that the gift and the tax are reconciled and so that the accuracy of the W-2, which is unsigned hearsay evidence, is guaranteed by the penalty of perjury signature on the 1040 form itself.

The consequence of the IRS not having any lawful authority to make anyone into a “taxpayer” is that they cannot do a lawful Substitute For Return (SFR) or penalty assessment under I.R.C., Subtitle A, as you will learn later. This is also confirmed by the following document:

Why the Government Can't Lawfully Assess Human Beings With an Income Tax Liability Without Their Consent, Form #05.011
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

If you have been the victim of an involuntary IRS assessment and do a Freedom Of Information Act (FOIA) request for assessment documents as we have, and you examine all of the documents returned, you will not see even one document signed by any IRS employee that purports to be an assessment and which has your name on it as the only subject of the assessment. The reason they won't sign the assessment document, such as the 23C or the IRS RACS 006 Report, under penalty of perjury is that no one is STUPID enough to accept legal liability for violating the Constitution and the rights of those they have done wrongful assessments against. The IRS knows these people are involved in wrongdoing, which is why they assign “pseudo names” (false names) to their employees: To protect them from lawsuits against them for their habitual violation of the law. The documents you will get back from the IRS in response to your FOIA include the following forms, none of which are signed by the IRS employee:

11. IRS Form 13496: IRC Section 6020\(b\) Certification

<http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Forms/IRS/IRSFormsPubs.htm>

We have looked at hundreds of these assessment documents and every one of them is required by 26 U.S.C. §6065 to be signed under penalty of perjury by the IRS employee who prepared them but none are. As a matter of fact, the examination documents prepared by the IRS Examination Branch to do the illegal Substitute for Returns (involuntary assessments) purport to be a “proposal” rather than an involuntary assessment, have no signature of an IRS employee, and the only signature is from the “taxpayer”, who must consent to the assessment in order to make it lawful. See, for instance, IRS Forms 4549 and 5564. What they do is procure the consent invisibly using a commercial default process by ignoring your responsive correspondence, and therefore “assume” that you consented. This, ladies and gentlemen, is constructive FRAUD, not justice. It is THEFT! The Form 12616 above is the vehicle by which they show that the “taxpayer” consented to the involuntary assessment, because they can't do ANYTHING without his consent.

Furthermore, 28 U.S.C. §2201 also removes the authority of federal courts to declare the status of “taxpayer” on a sovereign American also!:

United States Code
 TITLE 28 - JUDICIARY AND JUDICIAL PROCEDURE
 PART VI - PARTICULAR PROCEEDINGS
 CHAPTER 151 - DECLARATORY JUDGMENTS
 Sec. 2201. Creation of remedy

(a) In a case of actual controversy within its jurisdiction, except with respect to Federal taxes other than actions brought under section 7428 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, a proceeding under section 505 or 1146 of title 11, or in any civil action involving an antidumping or countervailing duty proceeding regarding a class or kind of merchandise of a free trade area country (as defined in section 516A(f)(10) of the Tariff Act of 1930), as determined by the administering authority, any court of the United States, upon the filing of an appropriate pleading, may declare the rights and other legal relations of any interested party seeking such declaration, whether or not further relief is or could be sought. Any such declaration shall have the force and effect of a final judgment or decree and shall be reviewable as such.

(b) For limitations on actions brought with respect to drug patents see section 505 or 512 of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act.

The federal courts themselves agree that they do not have the jurisdiction to bestow the status of “taxpayer” upon someone who is a “nontaxpayer”:

“And by statutory definition the term “taxpayer” includes any person, trust or estate subject to a tax imposed by the revenue act. ...Since the statutory definition of taxpayer is exclusive, the federal [and state] courts do not have the power to create nonstatutory taxpayers for the purpose of applying the provisions of the Revenue Acts...”
[C.I.R. v. Trustees of L. Inv. Ass'n., 100 F.2d. 18 (1939)]

26 U.S.C. §1461 is the only statute within the Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A which creates an explicit liability or “legal duty”. That duty is enforceable only against those subject to the I.R.C., who are “taxpayers” with “gross income” above the exemption amount identified in 26 U.S.C. §6012. All amounts reported by third parties on Information Returns, such as the W-2, 1042-S, 1098, and 1099, document receipt of “trade or business” earnings. All “trade or business” earnings, as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26), are classified as “gross income”. A “non-resident alien non-person” who has these information returns filed against him or her becomes his or her own “withholding agent”, and must reconcile their account with the federal government annually by filing a tax return. This is a requirement of all those who are engaged in a “public office”, which is a type of business partnership with the federal government. That business relationship is created through the operation of private contract and private law between you, the natural human, and the federal government. The method of consenting to that contract is any one of the following means:

1. Assessing ourselves with a liability shown on a tax return.
2. Voluntarily signing an IRS Form W-4, which is identified in the regulations as an “agreement” to include all earnings in the context of that agreement as “gross income” on a 1040 tax return. See 26 C.F.R. §31.3402(p)-1(a). For a person who is not a “public official” or engaged in a “public office”, the signing of the W-4 essentially amounts to an agreement to procure “social services” and “social insurance”. You must bribe the Beast with over half of your earnings in order to convince it to take care of you in your old age.
3. Completing, signing, and submitting an IRS Forms 1040 or 1040NR and indicating a nonzero amount of “gross income”. Nearly all “gross income” and all information returns is connected with an excise taxable activity called a “trade or business” pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §871\(b\) and 26 U.S.C. §6041, which activity then makes you into a “resident”. See older versions of 26 C.F.R. §301.7701-5:
<http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/CitesByTopic/Resident-26cfr301.7701-5.pdf>
4. Filing information returns on ourself or not rebutting information returns improperly filed against us, such as the Forms W-2, 1042-S, 1098, and 1099. Pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §6041\(a\), all of these federal forms associate all funds documented on them with the taxable activity called a “trade or business”. If you are not a federal “employee” or a “public officer”, then you can't lawfully earn “trade or business” income. See the following for details:

5. Allowing Currency Transaction Reports (CTR's), IRS Form 8300, to be filed against us when we withdraw 10,000 or more in cash from a financial institution. The statutes at 31 U.S.C. §5331 and the regulation at 31 C.F.R. §103.30(d)(2) only require these reports to be filed in connection with a “trade or business”, and this “trade or business” is the same “trade or business” referenced in the Internal Revenue Code at 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) and 26 U.S.C. §162. If you are not a "public official" or if you do not consent to be treated as one in order to procure "social insurance", then banks and financial institutions are violating the law to file these forms against you. See:

The "Trade or Business" Scam, Form #05.001
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

6. Completing and submitting the Social Security Trust document, which is the SSA Form SS-5. This is an agreement that imposes the "duty" or "fiduciary duty" upon the natural person and makes him into a "trustee" and an officer of a federal corporation called the "United States". The definition of "person" for the purposes of the criminal provisions of the Internal Revenue Code, codified in 26 U.S.C. §7343, incidentally is EXACTLY the same as the above. Therefore, all tax crimes require that the violator must be acting in a fiduciary capacity as a Trustee of some kind or another, whether it be as an Executor over the estate of a deceased "taxpayer", or over the Social Security Trust maintained for the benefit of a living trustee/employee of the federal corporation called the "United States Government". See the following for details:

Resignation of Compelled Social Security Trustee, Form #06.002
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

Unless and until we do any of the above, voluntarily, and absent duress, deceit silence or fraud by the government, our proper title is "nontaxpayer". The foundation of American Jurisprudence is the presumption that we are "innocent until proven guilty", which means that we are a "nontaxpayer" until the government proves with court-admissible evidence signed under penalty of perjury that we are a "taxpayer" who is participating in government franchises that are subject to the excise tax upon a "trade or business" which is described in I.R.C., Subtitle A. For cases dealing with the term "nontaxpayer" see: Long v. Rasmussen, 281 F. 236, 238 (1922); Rothensis v. Ullman, 110 F.2d. 590(1940); Raffaele v. Granger, 196 F.2d. 620 (1952); Bullock v. Latham, 306 F.2d. 45 (1962); Economy Plumbing & Heating v. United States, 470 F.2d. 585 (1972); and South Carolina v. Regan, 465 U.S. 367 (1984).

"The revenue laws are a code or system in regulation of tax assessment and collection. They relate to taxpayers, and not to nontaxpayers. The latter are without their scope. No procedure is prescribed for nontaxpayers, and no attempt is made to annul any of their rights and remedies in due course of law. With them Congress does not assume to deal, and they are neither of the subject nor of the object of the revenue laws..."

"The distinction between persons and things within the scope of the revenue laws and those without is vital."
[Long v. Rasmussen, 281 F. 236, 238 (1922)]

Since the above ruling, Congress has added new provisions to the I.R.C. which obtusely mention "nontaxpayers", but not by name, because they don't want people to have a name to describe their proper status. The new provision is found in 926 U.S.C. §7426, and in that provision of the I.R.C., "nontaxpayers" are referred to as "Persons other than taxpayers". So far as we know, this is the ONLY provision within the I.R.C. that provides any remedy or standing to a "nontaxpayer".

The behavior of the IRS confirms the above conclusions. See the following IRS internal memo proving that a return that is signed under penalty of perjury and saying "not liable" or words to that effect is treated as a non-return:

<http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Evidence/Refunds/1998-053IRSMemoZeroRet.pdf>

Look what the above internal top secret IRS memo says (are they trying to hide something?.. cover-up and obstruction of justice!). Pay particular attention to the use of the word "taxpayer" in this excerpt, by the way, which doesn't include most people:

"A taxpayer can also negate the penalties of perjury statement with an addition. In Schmitt v. U.S., 140 B.R. 571 (Bank W.D. Okl. 1992), the taxpayers filed a return with the following statement at the end of the penalties of perjury statement, "SIGNED UNDER DURESS, SEE STATEMENT ATTACHED." In the addition, the taxpayers denied liability for tax on wages. The Service argued that the statement, added to the "return", qualified the penalties of perjury statement, thus making the penalties of perjury statement ineffective and the return a nullity. Id. at 572.

In agreeing with the Service, the court pointed out that the voluntary nature of our tax system requires the Service to rely on a taxpayer's self-assessment and on a taxpayer's assurance that the figures supplied are true to the best of his or her knowledge. Id. Accordingly, the penalties of perjury statement has important significance in our tax system. The statement connects the taxpayer's attestation of tax liability (by the signing of the statement) with the Service's statutory ability to summarily assess the tax.

Similarly, in Sloan v. Comm'r, 53 F.3d. 799 (7th Cir. 1995), cert. denied, 516 U.S. 897 (1995), the taxpayers submitted a return containing the words "Denial & Disclaimer attached as part of this form" above their signatures. In the addition, the taxpayers denied liability for any individual income tax. In determining the effect of the addition on the penalties of perjury statement, the court reasoned that it is a close question whether the addition negates the penalties of perjury statement or not. The addition, according to the court, could be read just to mean that the taxpayers reserve their right to renew their constitutional challenge to the federal income tax law. However, the court concluded that the addition negated the penalties of perjury statement. Id. at 800.

In both Schmitt and Sloan the court questioned the purpose of the addition. Both courts found that the addition of qualifying language was intended to deny tax liability. Accordingly, this effect rendered the purported returns invalid."

The reason is clear: If you are a "nontaxpayer" who is "not liable", then you essentially are outside their jurisdiction and can't even ask for a refund of the money you paid in. All of your property is consequently classified as a "foreign estate", as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(31):

TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > Sec. 7701.
Sec. 7701. - Definitions

(a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof –

(31) Foreign estate or trust

(A) Foreign estate

The term "foreign estate" means an estate the income of which, from sources without the United States which is not effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business within the United States, is not includible in gross income under subtitle A.

If you indeed are a "nontaxpayer" and act like one, the IRS will pretend like you don't even exist, that is, until in their ignorance and greed they try years later to go after you wrongfully and unlawfully for willful failure to file, notice of deficiency, or some other contrived nonsense to terrorize you into paying and filing again. That's how they make "nontaxpayers" "volunteer" into becoming "taxpayers": with terrorism and treason against the rights of sovereign Americans, starting with "mailing threatening, false, and harassing communications" in violation of 18 U.S.C. §876. Lawyer hypocrites! Jesus was right!

"Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! For you pay tithes of mint and anise and cummin, and have neglected the weightier matters of the law: justice and mercy and faith. These you ought to have done, without leaving the others undone."
[Matt. 23:23, Bible]

Now that we understand the difference between "taxpayer" and a "nontaxpayer", allow us to make a very critical distinction that is the Achilles Heel of the IRS fraud. Ponder for a moment in your mind the following very insightful question:

"Is a person in law always either a 'taxpayer' or a 'nontaxpayer' as a whole? Can a person simultaneously be BOTH?"

Once you understand the answer to this crucial question, you will understand how to get your money back in an IRS refund claim without litigating! The answer, by the way, is YES! Let us now explain why this is the case.

We said above that if you are a "nontaxpayer", the IRS will basically try to completely ignore your refund claim and you are lucky if they even respond. At worst, they will illegally try to penalize you and at best, they will ignore you. We must remember, however, that it is "taxable income" that makes you a "taxpayer". "Taxable income" is "gross income" minus "deductions", as described in 26 U.S.C. §63(a). Therefore, we must earn "gross income" as legally defined in order to have "taxable income". One cannot earn "gross income" unless they fit into one of the following categories:

1. Domestic taxable activities: Activities within the "United States", which is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) as the District of Columbia.
  - 1.1. Federal "Employees", Agencies, and "Public officers" – meaning those who are federal "public officers", federal "employees", and elected officials of the national government. This is one reason why 26 U.S.C. §6331(a) lists only federal officers, federal employees, federal instrumentalities, and elected officials as ones who can be served with a levy upon their compensation, which is actually a payment from the federal government.

- 1.2. Federal benefit recipients. These people are receiving “social insurance” payments such as Medicare, Social Security, or Unemployment. These benefits are described as “gross income” in 26 U.S.C. §871(a)(3). When they signed up for these programs, they became “trustees”, “employees”, and instrumentalities of the U.S. government. They are described as “federal personnel” in the Privacy Act, 5 U.S.C. §552a(a)(13). Neither the Constitution nor the Social Security Act authorize these benefits to be offered to anyone domiciled outside of federal territories and possessions. For details on this scam, see:

Resignation of Compelled Social Security Trustee, Family Guardian Fellowship
<http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Forms/Emancipation/SSTrustIndenture.pdf>

- 1.3. Those who operate in a representative capacity in behalf of the federal government via contract. This includes those who have a valid Taxpayer Identification Number, which constitutes a constructive trust contract with the federal government and use that federal property [number] as per 20 C.F.R. §422.103(d). They are identified as federal trustees and/or federal employees as referenced in 20 C.F.R. “Employee Benefits”. For details on this scam, see:

Resignation of Compelled Social Security Trustee, Family Guardian Fellowship
<http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Forms/Emancipation/SSTrustIndenture.pdf>

2. Foreign taxable activities: Activities in the states of the Union or abroad.

- 2.1. Domiciliaries of the federal zone abroad and in a foreign country pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §911 who are engaged in a “trade or business”:
- 2.1.1. Statutory “U.S. citizens” - those are federal statutory creations of Congress and defined specifically at 8 U.S.C. §1401 to be those who were born in a U.S. territory or possession AND who have a legal domicile there.
